Rockies Surpass the Alps

FEW people who have never been to the scenic regions of the Canadian Rockies and the Selkirk have the slightest idea of its wonders.

Perhaps this fact will help a bit: The Swiss Alps are traversed in five hours, but the magnificent scenery between Calgary and Vancouver lasts for twenty-three hours of rapid rail-roading!

Edward Whymper of Matterhorn fame once stated that the Canadian Rockies were "fifty Switzerlands thrown into one." Snowy peaks, vast glaciers hanging from them, rugged precipices, waterfalls, foaming torrents, great canons, lakes like vast sapphires and emeralds set in pine clad mountains, have been flung together in unparalleled profusion.

Banff, Lake Louise, Field and Glacier all have ample accommodations for tourists, but last year the hotels were more than full owing to the heavy tourist traffic across Canada. Banff, but a short ride west of Calgary, has an altitude of 4,521 feet and is surrounded by majestic snow capped peaks that rise a mile above the Bow Valley. This valley is a vast amphitheatre, walled in by mountains, and through it winds the Bow river, which some wag once called the "Baby Blue Bow." The Bow Valley as viewed from the Banff Springs Hotel is so beautiful that even the strongest adjectives seem weak and futile.

Banff is the capital of Rocky Mountains Park and is the tourist's own town. There are fine automobile roads, a busy business section, boating and fishing on the Bow and interesting side trips to Lake Minnewanka, the Stony Indian's name for "Spirit Water," and Johnson's Canon, Tunnel Mountain and the great open air zoo, where buffalo and the big game of the Rockies may be seen in their natural haunts.

Mule deer from the mountains wandered through the streets unmolested, because Banff is a safe refuge for them, and elk, bear and Rocky Mountain sheep are frequently seen by automobile parties and tourists who "hit the trail" up the mountains to various points of interest. Banff, too, is headquarters for the Canadian Alpine Club, whose members go into camp each year and climb some "heaven kissing hill." Their clubhouse, more than a mile above the sea, clings to the wooden slopes of Sulphur Mountain, one of the most remarkable peaks in the Canadian Rockies.

Sulphur Mountain is one of Mother Nature's great tea kettles, except that the brew is hot sulphur water and not tea. There are excellent bathing facilities at the Hot Sulphur Springs, high up on the peak, the Cave and Basin, the Government's handsome $150,000 pool and the Banff Springs Hotel's pool, all of which get a bountiful supply of hot water at about 90 degrees from Sulphur Mountain.

The Government also owns and maintains a first-class golf course along the Bow river, where the golfer may enjoy his favorite sport amid the most inspiring surroundings. Mountains rise from the edges of the fair green, and the scenery is so attractive that the golfer finds trouble in "keeping his eye on the ball."

Glacier, in the heart of the mighty Selkirk, is a great resort for Alpinists. Here Mount Sir Donald, 10,808 feet in altitude, rises to the height of a mile and a quarter above the valley. It was named after Sir Donald Smith (Lord Strathcona), one of the far-seeing geniuses who bound eastern and western Canada together with the rails of the Canadian Pacific and made Canada a nation. Near Glacier is Illecillewaet Glacier, which covers ten square miles and is nearly a mile high. Its forefoot is almost in Glacier's backyard. Nearby, too, is Asulkan Valley, with its big glacier and the mysterious Nakimu Caves on the lower slopes of Mount Cheops.

There are many scenic wonders in the Canadian Rockies and the Selkirk, but only a few can be described within the limits of an ordinary newspaper article.

February Has Five Sundays.

For the first time in forty years there is five Sundays in February. Ordinarily the sequence of five Sundays in February recurs once in each twenty-eight years, but owing to the fact that 1900 was not a leap year the calendar "slipped a cog," and Sunday, being shunted out of place in numerical order, it did not get back into position to become the first and last day of the month from 1880 until this year.

A BLIND MAN'S BAND.

Unique Organization Exists in City of Toronto.

If a blind musician who memorizes whole works of music without the use of his eyes is a prodigy, what is a brass band composed of twenty-six blind men?

Toronto has that band. It was organized last September and will make its first public appearance soon.

Its members, most of whom have been blind all their lives, are engaged in mastering the intricate mysteries of the various brass and wooden musical instruments.

But their mastery of their parts, which, in band music, are a technical hodge-podge of harmonization, rests and stops, is the great miracle.

These blind men study their music with their fingers. Their music is written on long strips of brown paper with the Braille system of raised lettering.

You see a band or an orchestra, no matter how expert, with its music set before its players. The Blind Men's Band must memorize every note of its music.

Mr. Joseph M. Dawson, bandmaster of the 30th Regiment, who took the band of the 244th Battalion overseas, is director of the Blind Band.

Last September, Mr. C. W. Carruthers and certain other leaders in the interests of the blind in Toronto decided that an instrumental band would be a most suitable form of interesting recreation for our blind.

Many of whom, as piano tuners, had a special aptitude in music. Mrs. Lionel Clarke, wife of the new Lieutenant-Governor, was asked to interest herself in the securing of the band instruments, and after a great deal of difficulty, persuaded the military authorities to let the blind men have the instruments of the 5th Battalion.

The blind men took to the band idea instantly, and the band now numbers twenty partly trained members, and six beginners. There are a number of piano tuners and several ex-soldiers in the band, all of whom have received practical training in music at the Brantford Institute for the Blind.

The players prepare their own music. Bandmaster Dawson selects a simple piece of band music and gathers the players together. He then reads each instrument's part to the blind player, who writes it out in the Braille characters. Each player then takes his music home, memorizes it, plays it; and at the weekly practices, which are held in the King street broom factory, the bandmaster corrects any misinterpretations, and plays over any obscure passages.

Canada's Population.

Canada's population is estimated by the Census Branch of the Trade and Commerce Department at 8,825,102. The census branch has based its estimate for the year 1919 on the known increases of population, as shown by the census of 1901 and 1911. Such calculations have in the past proved to be approximately correct. The estimates for the various provinces are:

Ontario	2,820,909
Quebec	2,326,528
British Columbia	718,660
Saskatchewan	754,090
Manitoba	618,903
Alberta	587,770
Nova Scotia	518,761
New Brunswick	368,760
Prince Edward Island	93,728
Northwest Territories	18,481
Yukon	8,512

It is thought that the figure for British Columbia may be a little high, inasmuch as immigration into the province between 1901 and 1911 was heavy, but showed a falling off in war years. Saskatchewan, it is also noted, claims a population of 833,000, or an increase of nearly 100,000 in slightly more than two years.

Estimates of city populations based on figures prepared for local assessment purposes include the following:

Montreal and outskirts	743,964;
Toronto	473,829; Vancouver, 102,550.

Searching Autos.

Canadian automobilists crossing to the United States at Detroit are complaining that federal authorities have been "unreasonable" in inspecting their machines. It has been announced that the reason for the action of the custom officials was a discovery that considerable liquor was being smuggled into the United States in automobile radiators.

Sergt J. H. Robertson Awarded the M. M.

Mrs. Hattie Robertson of Dundas has recently received the Military Medal awarded to her late husband, Sergt. J. H. Robertson. The Militia Council regrets that he did not live to wear the Decoration which he so bravely won. At Passchendale on November 6th, 1917, he intelligently handled his Lewis gun against the enemy's strong points from a position behind the front waves, which necessitated expert and prudent judgment in selection of his field fire. He held his section together and led them to the objective and there selected and constructed his post in record time preparatory to an expected counter attack. He personally kept a supply of ammunition for the gun, carrying it forward to his gun after collecting it from casualties, having to pass through a heavy enemy barrage.

Inter-Church Evangelistic Services

The Inter-church Evangelistic services under the leadership of the Irish Evangelist are continuing during the week with the exception of Saturday evening. Large congregations listened appreciatively to Mr. Robinson last Sunday in the Presbyterian church in the morning and in the Methodist church at night. Mr. Robinson is a convincing and forceful speaker who brings to his audience a scriptural message which grips.

The services on Sunday, April 4th will continue on the united plan, the service in the morning will be in the Presbyterian church at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 6.45 in the Methodist church. It is desirable that every one shall avail themselves of the opportunity of enjoying these meetings. We need you, Come.

Holstein Cattle

The following letter from Mr. C. M. Flatt to the Review will be of more than passing interest to the large number of Holstein breeders in this district. Mr. Flatt is an enthusiastic breeder of Holsteins and is leaving no stone unturned to place his breed at the head of the list in his country.

Dear Sir:-

We are pleased to report the sale of the pure-bred Holstein Bull advertised in the Review. He was purchased by Mr. Wm. Flintoff of Waterdown.

This is the tenth bull we have placed in Wentworth in the last few years. While the financial returns are appreciated there is also the satisfaction of knowing that stock of this kind has had a beneficial effect on the dairy stock of the country. That the production of a grade herd can be increased by the use of a high class bull is evidenced by the fact that the average production of the dairy herd at Spedwell Military Hospital was raised in a period of seven years from 4000 to 14000 lbs. by the use of a pure-bred bull. Sir Hartog Hengerveld which we sold to the government some nine years ago. Mr. Flintoff's calf is of the same breeding and will give him as good results.

ICE MINES

Found in Underground Caves in the States.

There are places in the United States known to science where winter and summer gets all mixed up and nature puts up ice in July and August instead of in January. Decorah, Ia., and Bixby's park, near Edge wood, are two of them. There are ice mines at both places.

A rocky hillside with a cave in it, whence issues a draft of icy air on the hottest day in summer, describes each of these mines. Instead the caves there are walls of ice. The Decorah ice cave is much the larger of the two. How large is a matter of conjecture. Winding chambers lead back 100 feet to the big icebound chamber, but there are many evidences that beyond this other cave passages penetrate deep into the hill. It is even surmised that there may be subterranean halls a mile or two in length, as in two different places distance from the ice cave blasts of cold air issue from the crevasses in the hills above Decorah.

Science has been busy for some time explaining these ice mines. Edson P. Black, of Philadelphia, who has made a particular study of them, states that according to the theory evolved by investigators the formation of the caverns in such that the cold air of winter does not penetrate and settle in them until late in the spring, at the time when the water from spring thaws is sweeping through the walls and roof. The water meeting the cold air freezes and stays frozen all summer.

The Decorah ice cave remains as nature made it, up among the beetling rocks that wall the upper Iowa river at that point. A climb up a steep path and a great triangular opening in the cliffs confronts the visitor.

Chill air comes from it. On entering the cave it is necessary every soon to use a flash light as the winding passages are entirely cut off from the light that enters the cave opening. There are evidences that the redman knew of the ice cave and brought his venison to it in the summers.

The ice mine at Bixby's park is comparatively new in origin. Some years ago a prospector ran a shaft into the hillside in the park, thinking there was lead in the rocks. The lead was not found, but the opening he had blasted in the rocks was discovered the following season. After the mine had been abandoned, it was walled with ice. The condition has prevailed ever since. Science explains it in the same way that the Decorah mine is explained. There are a number of springs near the Bixby cave that give forth real ice water.

Steel and Bronze Bells.

The Vochum Verein, the well-known German steel works which specializes in the manufacture of bells, has taken exception to a statement by one Prof. Dethleifen that steel bells were merely a "war substitute" for bells of bronze and that their disadvantages outweighed the advantages. This assertion, the Vochum Verein states, is nothing but a repetition of old statements which have already been disproved.

So far from the use of steel for bell founding being a "war substitute" industry the Boshum Verein has made steel bells for sixty years, and before the war had made over 7,500 church bells. In Berlin alone there are more than sixty peals of steel bells. They are more durable than bronze bells, and with an equal volume of sound can be heard at a greater distance. Under normal conditions, with steel about one-third the price of bronze, steel bells are at least 50 per cent. cheaper than good bronze bells.

Exception also is taken to his statement that the cost of maintenance of steel bells is greater than that of bronze bells owing to their being so much heavier. Up to one ton piece weight steel bells are not heavier than bronze, and above that weight they are considerably lighter; hence it is incorrect to say that they require specially constructed bellfrets or an increased staff of ringers. The bronze bells in the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church at Berlin, which weigh thirty and a half tons, would only weigh twenty-four and three-quarters tons if they were made of steel.

You Can be Cured of Catarrh

The Pure Balsamic Essences of Cattarrhozone Afford Surest and Quickest Cure.

Cattarrhozone is certain to cure because its healing vapor is carried with the breath direct to the seat of the chest, nose or throat trouble. Being composed of the purest balsams and pine essences it immediately allays irritations, facilitates the ejection of mucus, soothes and stimulates the lungs and bronchial tubes. The marvel of the age in curing nose, throat and bronchial troubles, that's what thousands say about Cattarrhozone. There is nothing so sure to cure, and to those in fear of changeable weather—those who easily catch cold—those who work among lung-chilling surroundings, or where dust, impure air, fog, or damp can affect them—let them get Cattarrhozone and use it several times daily—it will cure every time.

Large size Cattarrhozone, sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed, price $1.00; smaller size, 50 cents; sample size, 25 cents. Sold everywhere.

CHOOSING A HOBBY.

Make It One That Will Relieve the Tension of Business.

Writing on the advantage and enjoyment that a busy man will derive from a hobby, Arnold Bennett says in the Metropolitan:

"In choosing a distraction—that is to say, in choosing a rival to his business—he should select some pursuit whose nature differs as much as possible from the nature of his business, and which will bring into activity another side of his character. If his business is monotonous, demanding care and solicitude rather than irregular, intense effort of the brain, then let his distraction be such as will make a powerful call upon his brain. But if on the other hand the course of his business runs in crises that string up the brain to its tightest strain, then let his distraction be a foolish and merry one.

"Many men fall into the error of assuming that their hobbies must be as dignified and serious as their vocations, though surely the example of the greatest philosophers ought to have taught them better. They seem to imagine that they should continually be improving themselves in either body or mind. If they take up sport it is because the sport may improve their health. And if the hobby is intellectual it must needs be employed to improve their brain.

"The fact is that their conception of improvement is too narrow. In their restricted sense of the phrase they possibly don't need improving; they possibly are already improved to the point of being nuisances to their fellow creatures, possibly what they need is worsening. In the broad and full sense of the phrase self-improvement, a course of self-worsening might improve them.

"I have known men—and everybody has known them—who would approach nearer to perfection if they could only acquire a little carelessness, a little absentmindedness, a little illogicality, a little irrational and infantile gaiety, a little unscrupulousness in the matter of the time of day. These considerations should be weighed before certain hobbies are dismissed as being unworthy of a plain man's notice."

NATURAL STEAM SPRINGS.

Curious Freak of Nature Useful in Italy.

At Larderello, in Tuscany, Italy, a very interesting experiment has been made with satisfactory results. At this point there is an area of about 26 miles where, from time immemorial, natural steam springs have existed. As early as 1790 the presence of boracic acid in the water condensed from the steam was detected, and for many years, the Societa Boracifera di Larderello, which is a combination of small companies formerly in operation, has been producing boracic acid on a large scale.

The natural steam was first used for evaporating the water from which the boracic acid is obtained. Wells are drilled and dry steam at a pressure of three atmospheres is found at a depth varying from 195 to 290 feet. At Larderello some of these wells have had an initial production of 154,000 pounds of steam an hour. In 1897 the natural steam was first used for heating the boilers of the company, and in 1905 a further step was taken when experiments were conducted with the steam in a piston engine. The results were so satisfactory that a large engine was installed.

Having a very large surplus of steam in excess of that required for its own use the Societa Boracifera decided to utilize this excess steam for producing electric power. In 1912 a 250 kilowatt turbo-generator was installed—the natural steam being employed not directly in the turbine, but as a means of heating water for the production of the steam required; and in 1916 a large power plant containing three units of 2,500 kilowatts each was completed. A fourth unit will soon be added which will give a capacity of 7,500 kilowatts, one unit being held in reserve. The boilers which are used are on the principle of the ordinary tube boiler and consist of aluminum tubes contained in a shell of sheet iron. The natural steam at a pressure of about one atmosphere circulates outside the tubes, within which the pure steam is generated at a pressure of about one-half atmosphere. Each element is calculated to produce 13,200 pounds of pure steam an hour. The turbines, which were specially made by Franco Tosi, of Legnano, have a maximum output of 3,000 kilowatts at 3,000 revolutions a minute.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

Worth Knowing.

"If nervous women would only drink more water they would not be so nervous," remarked a trained nurse the other day. "Nearly every physician will recommend a woman who is suffering from nervous prostration or nervous exhaustion to drink lots of water between meals, and many women who do not come under a doctor's care would feel better, and look better, if they would drink, say, a quart of water in the course of a day. Water is a nerve food. It has a distinctly soothing effect when sipped gradually, as one can test for herself."

Cabbage is a popular vegetable in many families, yet, unless it be eaten in larger quantities than would be required, it is of little nutritive value. Its occasional use, however, to supplement other foods is advantageous. To cook cabbage, plunge into salted boiling water, bring quickly to a boil, then move to the back of the range and simmer 30 minutes. Rapid and prolonged boiling renders cabbage unpalatable in appearance and robs it of its palatableness.

A GENTLE LAXATIVE FOR THE CHILDREN

Mothers—the surest way of keeping your little ones well and happy; whether it is the new-born babe or the growing child, is to keep their bowels regular and their stomach sweet. Nineteenth of all childhood ailments are the result of clogged bowels and sour stomach. The most necessary and the best medicine for little ones is a gentle laxative—something that will relieve constipation; sweeten the stomach and promote rest and natural sleep. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are a gentle but efficient laxative; are absolutely guaranteed free from opiates or other injurious drugs and may be given to the youngest infant with perfect safety. They banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and give the baby that health and happiness which all children should have. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

IDENTIFICATION REMOVED.

A Scottish tradesman stepped into a barber's shop the other day, and, whilst he was being shaved, the barber was wondering if this was a new customer. "Have you ever been here for a shave before?" asked the barber. "Yes, once," was the reply. "But I do not remember your face, sir." "Well, I dare say you don't," said the customer. "Ye see, it's a healed up now."

She's Up and at Her Work Again

THAT'S WHY MRS. KARGUS RECOMMENDS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Lynedoch Lady states that she was so weak she could not get out of bed till she found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lynedoch, via Wolfe, Ont., March 27th, (Special).—"I feel like telling everybody about what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for me."

"I don't know the cause of my trouble," she says, "but I know it dragged along for over a year. I had a bad pain in my back and I was so weak that I could not get out of bed. My heart troubled me very much and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. "I was always tired and nervous and sometimes I was so bad I thought I could not live much longer. I tried two doctors and they did not do me much good, so I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"They have done me a lot of good. I can do my housework again and I am getting about fine."

Mrs. Kargus troubles are all symptoms of diseased kidney. That's why she got such prompt relief. Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not relieve all kidney ills.

The Sheep and the Goat.

O, sheep, whose days are so demurely spent, I wonder if it's past your contemplating?

That you and I between us represent The starting of a process and its ending? On you the wool, on me the cloth and hose— Thus swings the cycle from its start to close.

A SPRING TONIC AIDS EFFICIENCY

LAY FOUNDATION OF GOOD HEALTH NOW BY BUILDING YOUR BLOOD AND STRENGTHENING YOUR NERVES.

The good old fashion of taking a tonic in the spring time like most of the customs of our grandparents, is based upon so common sense and good medical practice. Winter is always a trying time for those who are not in rugged physical health. Many men, women and children go through the winter on "reserve strength" they have stored up during the sunny summer months, and grow increasingly pale and languid as the spring days approach. A tonic for the blood and nerves at this time will do much for such people, by putting color in the cheeks and banishing that tired feeling that worries thousands of people at this season of the year.

It is impossible to be energetic if your blood is thin and weak, or if your nerves are frayed or shattered. You cannot compete with others if you do not get refreshing sleep at night, or if your appetite is poor or you are losing weight. You need a tonic at this time to add to your efficiency now, as well as to save you from the suffering later on. And in all the realm of medicine, there is no safer or better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills tone and enrich the blood which circulates through every portion of the body, strengthening the nerves and run-down organs, and bringing a feeling of new strength and energy to weak, easily tired, despondent men, women and children.

Mrs. J. N. McNeil, Glace Bay, N.S., says: "For years past my home has never been without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have good reason to praise them highly. Following an attack of la grippe, I was left in a badly run-down condition. I had no appetite and felt so weak I could scarcely go about the house. I was taking medicine but it was not helping me, and a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I used them for a time with the most beneficial results. My appetite improved, my strength returned, and I was soon able to do all my housework. I now use the pills every spring, and find them a splendid strength-bringing tonic. I have recommended the pills to other friends who have used them with good results."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic, not a stimulant. They build up the blood, and through their use not only the disordered after-effects of influenza but also troubles due to poor blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion and the generally worn-out feeling that affects so many people, disappear. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EBERT GIVES IN TO SOCIALISTS

They Will Form New German Cabinet.

Gen. von Luettwitz Under Arrest.

London cable: The Bauer Government has come to terms with the extremists at the cost of sweeping concessions, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to The London Times. A purely Socialist Cabinet is to be formed, which will try to re-establish order and hold general elections. The State troops will be immediately withdrawn, and Berlin Workmen's Guards formed.

The general strike will be stopped, but instantly resumed if the Government is unable to effectuate the stipulated conditions.

The foregoing agreement was reached this afternoon between Secretary Bauer and the trade union leaders, and was followed by a split in the independents, the smaller part of whom joined the Communists.

LUETTWITZ IN CUSTODY.

Berlin cable says: Major-Gen. von Luettwitz, the military commander in the Kapp revolt, has been placed under arrest, it is officially announced. Admiral von Trotha, chief of the Admiralty, has also been arrested. There is no definite news of Kapp's whereabouts. It is supposed he is on his estate in East Prussia.

A DEFINITION.
"What is intuition, pa?"
"Guessing right the first time."

A Pleasant Purgative.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so compounded as to operate on both the stomach and the bowels, so that they act along the whole alimentary and excretory passage. They are not drastic in their work, but mildly purgative, and the pleasure of taking them is only equalled by the gratifying effect they produce. Compounded only of vegetable substances the curative qualities of which were fully tested, they afford relief without chance of injury.

IRISH OUTLOOK NOW VERY GRAVE

Conditions in West and South Extremely So.

Public So Enraged As to Be Irrational.

London special cable says: The Dublin correspondent of the London Times describes the situation in Ireland in the darkest colors. He says the outlook is serious. Conditions in the west and south are extremely grave. The position, bad last week, is now definitely worse. Public feeling is so fiercely inflamed as to become quite irrational. The most outrageous charges against the Government are accepted as gospel truth.

The correspondent says the Sinn Fein asks the country to accept the monstrous theory that Lord Mayor MacCurrian was killed by actual agents of the Government. He describes the overnight riot in Dublin as another danger signal, and says it is impossible to get an impartial account of the incident, the popular version being that the soldiers provoked and assaulted civilians. The correspondent learns that the soldiers were stoned by the crowd because they left the theatre singing the National Anthem as a protest against the failure of the theatre orchestra to play it. He adds that public opinion throughout the country is exasperated by a wild charge against the police and soldiers, who hardly would be human if they did not recognize the campaign of murder and calumny.

THE INQUEST.

Cork cable says: Evidence at today's hearing in the inquest over the murder last week of Lord Mayor MacCurrian, of Cork, tended to strengthen the suspicion that the crime may have been committed by one or more members of the police force.

Attorney Lynch, representing the murdered man's family, pointed out that the Lord Mayor's house is close to the police barracks, that the police made no investigation in the house when three rifle shots were fired, but merely held up passers-by. The attorney charged that police, wearing civilian clothes, were seen after the crime entering the barracks from the direction of the scene of the murder. He added he would prove that police revolver bullets were found in the MacCurrian home's door. A button from a police tunic found in the Mayor's home was introduced as evidence by Lynch, who suggested that the authorities might identify the man from whose uniform such a button was missing.

Mr. Lynch challenged the authorities to produce the book showing what men were out of barracks on Friday night.

The Lord Mayor's widow testified, amid sobs, that she believed from the appearance of the men who entered her house they were policemen.

POLES ROUTED THE BOLSHEVIKI

Red Assault Ended in Severe Reverse

And Big Captures By the Defenders.

A Warsaw cable says: Extremely heavy fighting is reported on the Polish front. A communication issued today announces that after the greatest artillery preparation yet experienced, the Bolsheviki Infantry advanced in columns against the bridgehead at Zwiel, aided by tanks and armored motor cars. After a sharp engagement, says the communication, the Polish troops launched a counter-attack with bayonets and hand grenades, driving the enemy far from the Polish line.

The Poles, the communication continues, captured one tank, and some machine guns and prisoners. Simultaneously the Poles attacked the Seventh Bolsheviki Division, which was on the offensive in the sector of Emlozen, and compelled the enemy to retreat easterly, abandoning his batteries, horses, ammunition carts and machine guns. At other points attempts to cross the River Slucz were checked.

The communication adds that intensive artillery fire continues by both sides along this and other sectors, and that the Bolsheviki are concentrating as rapidly as possible and reforming their shattered units for the purpose of re-attacking.

On the Podolian front the Bolsheviki have attacked Nowosienlawke, Latyczaw and Novocostantynow and the sector south-west of Deranza. Heavy fighting followed these attacks, which were preceded by artillery preparations. A number of villages in the region of Deranza changed hands time and again, but the Poles, counter-attacking, in the end were the victors. There was much hand-to-hand fighting in these villages, the fighting lasting all day and night.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that find lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive, as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with work havoc there. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

CONCERNING TOOTHACHE.

Something of the Cause of This Ailment.

Everyone knows, of course, that a toothache is the result of a "cavity." It may be wise, therefore, to ascertain first why a tooth decays. On this question dental authorities differ slightly in their views, but a widely-accepted theory is that there are two essential factors in decay, viz., bacteria and carbohydrate food. Under the latter heading may be included, all starchy and sugary foods.

These two factors are interdependent. The bacteria collect in a slimy film of saliva coating the tooth, and form what is known as a bacterial plaque. The carbohydrate food usually collects on some spot whence it is not easily dislodged by the tooth brush. On this food the bacteria hold a feast, the direct result of which is the liberation of lactic acid. The acid dissolves out the lime salts of the enamel covering of the tooth and exposes the inner substance or dentine.

The dentine is next attacked, and in this operation the bacteria take a more direct part. The lime salts having been dissolved out as in the case of the enamel there remains an organic matrix of framework, upon which the bacteria fling themselves in overwhelming numbers and utterly destroy it.

It is when the dentine is thus affected that the tooth first begins to pain. This inner substance is supplied with sensitive substance given off by the dental pulp or "nerve," which when brought in contact with the air, or with foods or liquids, give the familiar reaction known as toothache.

If this usually mild warning is unheeded and the tooth remains neglected, the decay proceeds until finally the "nerve" is exposed. This organ, which is a jelly-like mass, consisting of blood vessels as well as nerves, is as sensitive, probably, as the eyeball, and as a consequence of the irritation incident to exposure, soon becomes inflamed. Then ensues the horrors of "jumping toothache." Inflammation is characterized by a dilatation of the blood vessels, and pain is caused by pressure due to an excess of blood in the part. A recumbent position increases the pain by causing a further influx of blood, wherefore the diabolical persistency of toothache at bedtime.

Then this dental pain can go no farther. It may be quieted by household remedies or by patent nostrums, or, if the sufferer have sufficient fortitude, it may eventually die down of its own accord. In the end, however, with continued neglect, the pulp breaks down into pus, and the inflammation may spread to the soft tissues surrounding the root, upon which the tooth becomes loosened and the old throbbing pain appears. An abscess may appear on the gum—"gum boil"—or the swelling may involve the neck and the cheek, and even puff up one eye as effectually as a "straight from the left."

Yet, despite all this, if you ask the average dentist what he considers the most effective agent in the warfare against disease of the teeth he will answer "prophylaxis." Prophylaxis means getting on the job before the bacteria does. It is an epitome of the hoary old adage that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." And, like most effective measures, prophylaxis is simple and inexpensive. It consists in a constant and intelligent use of the tooth-brush, supplemented by the use of dental floss and the toothpick; together with a visit to the dentist several times a year, so that the teeth may be polished and examined for incipient decay.

Such a procedure may not absolutely prevent decay, but it will notably lessen the range of what is to-day recognized by physicians and dentists alike as a serious factor in ill-health.

Sore Flees Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which acts like magic. All similarly troubled should lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is in no way expressed by its low price.

When Boston Was in Trouble.

In 1174, on the 1st of June, the Boston port bill went into operation. At noon the harbor was closed against all vessels, and business was suspended. In a 20 days' notice the citizens of Boston were deprived of their means of gaining a living. Indignation ran high throughout the colonies, contributions were raised in other cities for their relief, and the people of Marblehead offered the Boston merchants the use of their wharves.

The man who stands in his own light doesn't necessarily keep other people in the dark.

GOING THE ROUNDS.

"Jones borrowed it. Why?"
"Oh, nothing; only the fellow I borrowed it off says the owner has been asking for it."

NEW WEAPON FOR IRISH POLICE.

Dublin's mounted police force has been issued a new weapon in the shape of an ash stick. In a recent Sinn Fein battle the rioters thought they were swords. The picture shows the close resemblance.

SHOT SON TO SAVE HIS SOUL

Chicago Father's Method With Wayward Boy

After Every Other Means Had Failed.

Chicago despatch: Frank Pinano, Jun., to-day was at the County Hospital with three bullet wounds in his body. Frank Pinano, sen., was held at a police station, where officers said a murder charge would be placed if the 18-year-old boy died.

"I shot him to save his soul," the aged man told the police. "I would rather kill him myself than have the police do it. For months I have been worried every time I heard of a 'stick up' for fear my son had been killed. I tried to get him to buckle down, but he would not do it."

Frank Jun., according to court records, slipped into a near crime record when he was fourteen year old. Two years later he had become a recognized gangster, and repeatedly was arrested. A year ago his father carried him bodily to the police, and had Frank, Jr., confined to a boys' home. Two months later he was released, at the instance of Mrs. Pinano.

Between sobs, the aged father told the police of how for two years he had herded his family of ten other children to the Church of Our Lady of Pompeii on Sunday, but that Frank Jun. always was missing—"hanging out with his gang."

Last night Pinano, sen. continued, he determined to make a final effort to reclaim his boy. Encountered with friends at a street corner, the youth sneered, and walked away to escape "being bawled out by his goody-goody old man," the father said, and he fired five times. Two bullets hit Frank Jr., in the legs and the third seriously wounded him in the back.

GREEN FOR WINTER MENU.

While we are apt to look upon salad as primarily a spring and summer dish, there is no count but that the winter dinner is always more satisfactory when served with a salad course. Often if the salad is substantial it can take the place of a second vegetable, or, if it is sweet, of the dessert. For luncheon even in winter, with hot soup, a hot beverage or hot breads, it can form the main dish.

A Cream Cheese Salad.

Arrange your lettuce and have your mayonnaise all made first. Then break up the solid cheese with the bowl of your spoon, moistening it gradually with the mayonnaise until it is creamy and smooth. When the cheese has reached this stage drop a spoonful of it on each plate and set it on ice or in the cold long enough to chill it thoroughly. Serve garnished with hard-boiled eggs or rings of large olives, or sprinkle with nuts.

Cabbage Salad.

Shred the cabbage very fine, and mix with it celery in the proportion of one-fourth and walnut meats in the proportion of one-third. Serve with a cream dressing or with a rich mayonnaise.

Bean Salad.

Cut the top from a large apple and scoop out the pulp with a sharp knife, or if you use very large apples, just cut them in half, using a half for each cup. Drain the liquid from a can of red kidney beans and mix with the beans half the amount of celery and the same of gourd cucumber pickles. A few nuts added after this makes the mixture even tastier. Moisten with salad dressing and fill in the apple cups. Make apple sauce of the pulp you have extracted.

Different Potato Salad.

Rub through a sieve a small, hot boiled potato for each plate of salad. Mold lightly into a small ball on the lettuce, chill and pour over it a dressing made this way: Rub the inside of the mixing bowl with a strong onion, mash in it the yolks of two hard-boiled eggs, add a small teaspoonful of dry mustard, one of salt and a quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Mix well and pour over it three tablespoonfuls of olive oil; still mixing, add a tablespoonful of vinegar and a few drops of lemon juice. Lastly, toss on a teaspoonful of anchovy sauce and pour over the potato mounds. Serve immediately.

Prune Salad.

Put half a pound of prunes, add half of a very small onion and chop fine. Shred half a head of lettuce and half a small pepper. Dress with French dressing and garnish with watercress.

To have the children sound and healthy is the first care of a mother. They cannot be healthy if troubled with worms. Use Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

HIS GUESS.

"Why was the poor sick man told to take up his bed and walk?" asked the Sabbath school teacher.
"I s'pose he couldn't pay his rent," answered Skinny Simpson.

LAST BIG BLOCK Of Canadian Pacific Reserve Farm Lands In Central Alberta and Saskatchewan

We would call your attention to these lands, the last large block of good virgin farm land in Western Canada, which marks the end of the sale prices for virgin farm lands in the Prairie West.

News of this block being opened up is being advertised throughout Europe and the United States, and is being read by hundreds of thousands of people every week.

The American farmers have been quick to see the opportunities offered in the Western Provinces of Canada in the past, and I am sure that they will see this last opportunity as quickly as any, and that there will be thousands of them going to see these lands as soon as the snow begins to thaw in the spring. It is, therefore, up to us in Eastern Canada to make arrangements to visit the West and see these lands at the earliest possible opportunity, and I cannot urge you too strongly if you are at all interested in getting a farm of your own, to take advantage of this last opportunity. Those who act now and secure some of these lands will reap the benefit of quicker increase in value than at any period in the past, and the land will pay for itself from the crops in a few years.

Those who do not wish to improve the land at once may purchase land on our ten year contract, one-tenth cash, balance in nine equal payments at 6%, which does not require improvement of the land, or you can pay in full if you choose.

Those who get there first will get best selection and best location.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday School Lesson, April 4, 1920.
 Easter Lesson, Luke 24:13-35. Israel Ruled by Judges. Print 2:6-16.

Commentary—I. Israel Forsaking Jehovah (vs. 6-13). 6. When Joshua had led the people to this statement is a continuation of the history of the people of Israel under Joshua's leadership and follows in order Joshua's farewell address. To possess the land—The people went to their several inheritances which had been divinely assigned to them. They were under obligation to subdue their several portions, and occupy them. They could do this without difficulty as long as they fully obeyed the Lord. 7. Served the Lord—Israel was, first of all, a religious people. They recognized God as their ruler, both in matters of secular life, and in spiritual things. Their Government was therefore a theocracy. They served the Lord as they kept His commandments. They had solemnly promised to do this when Joshua assumed the leadership of Israel by the Lord's appointment (Josh. 1:16). All the days of Joshua—Joshua lived twenty-five years after he with Israel entered Canaan. His earnest religious character and his strong personality enabled him to exert a powerful influence for good upon his people. Elders that outlived Joshua—The elders were the recognized leaders of the several tribes of Israel. They probably lived about twenty-five years after Joshua's death. Great works—They had witnessed the great works of God in Israel's behalf during the latter part of their journey toward Canaan, and in making a passage for them across the Jordan and in helping them to drive out their enemies. 8. Servant of the Lord—Joshua is first mentioned in Exod. 17:9, and he was for nearly forty years Moses' faithful servant and companion. 9. Timnath-heres—The location of this place is uncertain. Eminent scholars accept the Jewish tradition that it was nine miles south of Shechem.

10. Were gathered unto their fathers—This expression means that they died. Knew not the Lord—The leaders of Israel at this neglected the true God. If the fathers had taught his law to their children, they were disobedient to it and went after other gods. Nor yet Thy Works—They had not seen the miraculous works which God had wrought for them, nor had they been impressed upon their minds by their parents. 11. Did evil—They forgot God and as a consequence they went into sin. Served Baalim—Baalim is the plural of Baal. There were many heathen deities that were known in Israel and provided for them, and by that name. Baal-worship was common in Syria. It was greatly licentious and corrupted the morals of all who took part in it. 12. Forsook the Lord God of all fathers—This was a fearful charge to bring against God's chosen, special people. They forsook Him Who had marvellously protected them after gods that could do nothing for them. It was the basest ingratitude on their part, and the most inexcusable departure from the God of their fathers. Provoked the Lord to anger—Incurred His displeasure. 13.—Asherah—The plural of Asherah. This was the female deity corresponding to the male deity Baal. The worship offered to her was grossly impure.

14. Israel punished (vs. 14, 15). 14. Anger—was hot against Israel—Anger of Jehovah was kindled against Israel.—R. V. The Lord was greatly displeased with Israel because they had disobeyed and forsaken Him. Their opportunities had been great, God's mercy had been great, their departure from Him was great, His displeasure with them was great and their punishment must be great also. Delivered them into the hands of spoilers.—The Lord gave them over as a punishment to their enemies, to bands of plunderers, who defeated them in battle and carried away their property. Sold them.—They were God's peculiar people, but because of their sins He let them fall into the power of others. He withdrew His protection from them, and they became unable to resist successfully the attacks of their foes. Having lost their confidence in Jehovah, they had nothing beyond their own resources on which to depend. 15. Hand of the Lord was against them—It was very different to have the Lord working against them, from what it had been to have Him working miraculously for them, as He had been doing for nearly a hundred years. As the Lord had said, and . . . sworn—Blessings for obedience and distresses for disobedience are impressively set forth in Lev. 26 and Deut. 28.

16. Israel delivered through judges (vs. 16-23). 16. Nevertheless—This word indicates a change in the thought and purpose of God. He had "sold" them to be punished, and then He worked signally in their behalf. The Lord raised up judges.—The judges whom the Lord raised up were by no means officers to administer justice. They were more especially military leaders, whom the Lord endowed with powers of mind and body to inspire Israel's enemies with fear or to defeat them in battle. The judges had to some extent to do with the execution of law. Samuel went from place to place to hear causes and to pronounce judgment. The Lord raised up these persons. It was His work, even if human instrumentality was employed. Delivered them.—With God it was an easy matter to give Israel over into the hands of enemies that the nation might be punished, and it was easy also for Him to employ means for that people's deliverance.

17-23. Even when the Lord raised up deliverers and signally wrought with them for the relief of His people, they refused to give heed to them. They left the true God, whom they had promised to love and serve, and went after the gods of the people around them. They offered worship to heathen deities. It was a comparatively short time after Joshua's death, and almost immediately after the death of his successors, that the Israelites departed from the God of their fathers. The commandments given by Moses at Sinai were acknowledged to be still in force. While their fathers had been careful to observe God's law, the children turned away from it, thus dishonoring both God and their fathers. It was because the Lord was merciful toward Israel that He raised up deliverers for them, and as He raised them up, He was with them to direct and empower them to do the work to which He had called them. The Lord is unchangeable, and does not repent in the sense in which men do. He changes His course only as men change their attitude toward Him.

QUESTIONS—Give a brief account of the life of Joshua. What was the last service he rendered to Israel? What was his influence upon his nation? What took place in the religious life of Israel after his death? Why was punishment visited upon the nation? For what purpose were judges raised up? What proof is there of God's compassion toward Israel?

PRACTICAL SURVEY.
 Topic—God working through national leaders.

I. Joshua a great leader.
 II. Disobedience and chastisement.
 I. Joshua a great leader. Great nations have always great leaders. Like trees, they commence to die at the top. The virtue or virtue of the court circles of any people permeates the entire body politic. Universal history proves that the tendency is toward deterioration. A study of national heroes is a true index of national character. The history of Israel is typical in this as in other respects. A peculiarly noble eulogy is given us in the single sentence concerning Joshua and his associates in authority. "And the people served the Lord all the days of Joshua, and all the days of the elders that outlived Joshua." We are not surprised when we recall Joshua's early faithfulness, which won for himself and his single associate in fidelity inheritances in the land of promise. No higher tribute could have been paid to both their piety and patriotism. Those who go right not only preserve themselves, but keep others right. No man walks life's pathway alone. Especially is this true of national leaders, and too often has it been the case in our own and other nations, that those in authority have led the way in departures from God's law concerning the Sabbath, temperance and other sins. Joshua sustained a two-fold relationship (v. 8). He was by heredity the son of Nun, and by moral allegiance the "servant of God." His declaration of policy was publicly made before the great national assembly (Josh. 24:15), and he bound the nation to an adherence to the law of Jehovah and enforced the covenant with both promises and threatenings (Josh. 24:16, 25, 27). In the lesson we have the elevating influence of one consecrated life.

II. Disobedience and chastisement. The point of departure is recorded in verses 8-10. Another generation arose, morally poor, and historically penniless. They neither knew the Lord nor regarded their own miraculous history. "History takes hold of the past to bind us to the future," and its great value lies in its inspirations and warnings. On the part of Israel, indifference to the one and regardless of the other, the return of idolatry was surprisingly quick. It is one of the incredible incidents of history. Sin may assume its national aspect. This becomes true when any form of sin becomes so prevalent as to become a distinguishing characteristic. It becomes the rule and not the exception. Also it becomes national when the policy of the established Government abets and protects it. It must then be dealt with in its largest aspects. In the punishment of nations it is recognized that as such they have no existence in the world to come, hence whatever transgressions must find its extinction in the present history of the nation. There are divine standards for national as well as individual character, and no nation has ever embodied iniquity in its governmental policy without laying the foundation for its future punishment. God often punishes and purifies by the same process. Israel was "sold into the hands of the spoilers." Their morale was gone when God had forsaken them.—W.H.C.

HANDLING HORSES.

Good horses are very often ruined if not lost by improper care. The way the colt is trained the horse will follow. Good care, kind treatment and regularity in all things will not only add years to the horse's life, but it will make the animal more safe and useful. A cruel driver will soon develop a balky, stubborn horse, if not a vicious one.

BITS AND THE HORSE'S MOUTH.

There are dozens of different makes of bits on the market. Some are claimed to be marvelous means of control, and each new invention in that line claims some special feature not obtainable in any other make. It seems every effort is exerted to produce an article that will rectify the mistakes of ignorant drivers who, first of all, spoil the horse's mouth and then are in search of some contrivance to make the mouth soft again.

A horse can only be tough in the mouth according to the amount of resistance that is brought to bear on it. In other words, it requires two to pull and the horse cannot be tough unless one hangs on to it. It can, however, be made tough by persistent pulling, and can bit has no effect whatever. If we save the horse's mouth we save the horse. It is a mistake to attempt to get him to pull the cart by the reins. There should be a bond of sympathy between the horse's mouth and the hand.

WHEN THE HORSE IS SICK.

When the horse is taken ill, it is not always convenient to obtain the services of a veterinarian, so it is important that the owner have some knowledge of treatment. It may be a more indisposition and it may be serious illness. When an animal is really sick, it should at once be removed from the other stock and placed into a comfortable, roomy stall into which plenty of sunshine may enter, except during the hot summer time. At that time a cool, shady place is best.

Any kind of flooring may be used, but in winter concrete is somewhat cold. The floor should have clean straw spread over it and in cold cases there should be extra thick, but never lumpy. The door of the stall should be large and the stall should be roomy enough so that any animal may wallow in it without injuring himself.

Very little food is required in sickness, but plenty of pure, fresh water should be given. The feeding and watering should be done at regular periods each day. In acute stomach disorders, very little or no food should be given. Bran mashes, bright, well-cured hay in small quantities and oats are good in cases of sickness.

To make a good bran mash take a clean pail, put in a gallon of wheat bran, a small handful of salt and pour over it about a quart of boiling water. Cover the pail with a grain bag and allow it to stand for about 20 minutes, when it will be cool enough for feeding. Some raw eggs and a few oats may be mixed with this if desired. If the animal can swallow and will not drink, give water as a drench. Drugs should ordinarily be given only under the direction of a competent veterinarian.

GENERAL ADVICE WORTH KNOWING.

In cases of bowel trouble injections of warm soapy water are beneficial. Salt, turpentine or glycerine may be added in small quantities if desired. Punctures are often useful in case of accidents causing sprains, or other hurts, but they are messy to apply. The best plan is to keep a reliable liniment on hand for such purposes.

In applying the liniment rub it in well.

Liniments go but skin deep at best, it is the rubbing that gives relief by blood to flow to the affected part and remove poison caused by the injury.

In case an animal is sick for several days, give him clean bedding often, and if he is unable to turn over, or get up on his feet, change his position of lying often. If a horse has shoes on, it is well to remove the shoes if they are worn enough to be likely to injure him. If he is delirious rope his feet together. See that the sick animal rests with his head higher than the rest of his body. If bedsores appear, or the animal injures himself by rubbing against any sharp projection, paint the injury with iodine and sprinkle on boracic acid powder. If the eyes are sore wash them with a solution of boracic acid. If the owner finds that he cannot give a sick animal relief, he should take into consideration the value of the animal and not delay in employing the services of a competent veterinarian, if one can be had.

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS.

It is most essential that as many good points as possible should be embodied in the stock boar. The first, undoubtedly, is that he should be pure-bred—that is, one that has been bred for a certain number of generations on certain lines or a standard more or less defined. In order to be certain of this and of the fixity of these good points of the boar which are apparent, an old-established herd should be visited and the choice of the boar be made after seeing the parents. It is a generally accepted opinion that the male animal exerts a far greater influence on the external points of the joint produce than does the female parent, the latter in turn influencing the internal points to a greater degree. It is therefore necessary that in selecting a boar one should be sought for compactness in frame, as long and deep in carcass as is possible consistent with strength, well developed in the hind quarters, with a wide chest, ribs well sprung, head of medium size, but wide between the ears and eyes, the latter being bright and lively, a feat of sexual energy.

A simple treatment for pigs which become lame and off their feed, due to constipation through overfeeding or in-exercise or damp, uncomfortable quarters, is to give salt in their feed and sprinkle wood ashes on the floor.

When an ungraded sample of grain is sown the plants produced from the large seeds have a considerable and adverse influence on the plants produced from the small seeds.

Rather than run the risk of having the cattle on a short pasture ration this summer sow a field of white oats for feeding-off when the grass becomes dry.

The great scarcity of wool and mutton in all parts of the world should be an incentive to the average farmer to get into the sheep business.

Start the calf right by giving him a good father.

Clean pails are as necessary in feeding calves as in milking cows.

Milk should be fairly warm when fed to the young calves in order to promote health.

Farming is like teaching; a larger part of the returns cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

The general result of an English experiment shows that one ton of potatoes is equivalent to two tons of swedes for pig feeding.

DICKENS NOOK SOON TO BE LOST

Mornington Crescent, in Hampstead Road,

Where Novelist Went Early to School.

Another of those ancient nooks immortalized by their associations with Charles Dickens seems doomed to destruction. This time it is a block of buildings situated in the Hampstead road, which are shortly to be offered for sale. These houses, which are over 120 years old, are known as Mornington Crescent.

Adjoining the Crescent, at the corner of Granby street, is Mornington Place, where many years ago stood Wellington House Academy for boys. Part of the premises about the London & Northwestern Railway, the formation of which demolished the old schoolroom and playground. In the early 'twenties the academy was kept by a Mr. Jones, under whose auspices the future novelist received two years' technical education, being little over fourteen when he left.

Speaking of the place to John Forster, when the letter was compiling his famous Life of Dickens, the novelist said:

"There was a school in the Hampstead road kept by Mr. Jones, a Welshman, to which my father dispatched me to ask for a card of terms. The boys were at dinner and Mr. Jones was carving for them when I acquitted myself of this commission. He came out and gave me what I wanted, and hoped I should become a pupil. I did. At 7 o'clock one morning very soon afterwards I went as day scholar to Mr. Jones' establishment."

As to the actual life of young Dickens at the academy, we learn a great deal from the letters of John Forster from Owen P. Thomas and Henry Dawson, school-fellows of Dickens. So far from being a gloomy, meditative youngster, he appears to have been quite a typical schoolboy. Both correspondents emphasize his light-heartedness and animal spirits. He usually led and always took part in the numerous school pranks. How much or how little learning he acquired here is doubtful, but it was at this academy that he began to write short stories, which were circulated among his school-fellows, and also short plays, which were acted by the boys on an impromptu stage erected in the schoolroom.

In later years his life at Wellington House Academy supplied the novelist with much useful material for depicting school life in his writings. In Household Words for October 11, 1851, there was published an interesting article entitled "Our School," which is undoubtedly his old academy painted from life. We are told how the boys were remarkable for their great love for small pets. Red-poles, linnets and even canaries, were kept in desks, drawers and hat boxes.

We have the authority of John Forster that the academy supplied some of the lighter traits of Salem House for David Copperfield. Perhaps it helped the novelist to delineate the uglier side of school life in the nineteenth century, when in Nicholas Nickleby, he paints us the picture of Mr. Creakle's educational establishment, which stood down by Blackheath. The character of Creakle at least suggests the portrait of Mr. Jones.—John O'London's Weekly.

AN IDEAL LIFE.

Tiny Bay Island, Utilla, Laysan Man's Paradise.

Life in the Isle of Utilla is described in The Oregonian as an existence of unbroken ease. There are no worries or ceaseless struggles for your daily outflakes. Nature takes care of all that. Utilla's place on the map would be hard to find, but it's worth discovering. Away off in a southern sea, never heard from before and but little known it comes to the knowledge of the Pan-American union that here have Americans found a home that others enjoy when they are dead. "We call it a lousy man's paradise," says the message from this land of delight, "not that the inhabitants are necessarily indolent, but simply because a large amount of labor is superfluous. Nature provides for nearly all our wants here as in most tropical countries. Farming is our principal occupation, yet there is not a plow on the island. Frost is unknown and extreme heat is never experienced. Ninety degrees in the shade would be an unusually high temperature. Our grade schools are of high standard, attendance being compulsory 10 months in the year. American textbooks exclusively are used and social life could not be distinguished from that of the United States.

Utilla is one of the Bay Islands, a string of six verdant keys in the Bay of Honduras, an arm of the Caribbean sea, which were discovered by Columbus in 1502. They were then thickly populated by native Indians who became slaves. The islands now are inhabited wholly by English-speaking people.

In 1852 settlers on the island petitioned the governor of Belize to administer them as a British colony. This was done until 1960 when the island was ceded to Honduras. "The change somewhat discouraged the people at first," says the letter, "but they soon learned that the laws of Honduras were equally just and allowed all the privileges in the pursuit of life and happiness enjoyed under British rule. The administration of the present governor, R. Barahona Mejia, whose headquarters are at Roatan, the capital, is giving general satisfaction."—New York Times.

CHAPTER I.

"Look here, Barry, you must be a sport, and help me out of this hole."
"Yours to command, madam."
Moya looked up at him with her bright, quizzical eyes. She was not at all sure that Barry Tremond was hers to command—at least in the way she wanted at that particular moment. Barry was much too fond of his joke, and had a tiresome habit of laughing to scorn all serious problems such as confronted her now.

"Ah, but will you be mine to command, Barry?" she implored. "That's just what I want to ask. Whether you will lend yourself to me, so to speak, for the next few weeks. It will not be any longer than that. And it would be rather a bit of fun, too."
Barry caught up a stone and sent it carelessly clattering down the cliff. The dancing sea was before them, blue and sunny. The soft cliff turf was under their feet. And they were holiday-making and in holiday mood.

"What's it all about?" queried Barry. "You're really so mysterious I can't make head nor tail of it. And I certainly can't stretch my overworked intellect to fathom mysteries on my one holiday in the year."
"Overworked!" she scoffed. "I'd like to see the work you do, Barry. Going to sleep at the office, and waking up when it's time to draw your screw!"
"Draw my screw indeed! That comes about every three months. I must be a regular Rip Van Winkle if I manage to get all that amount of slumber in between. It strikes me, Moya, you're not at all awake yourself to the dignity and responsibility of a City capitalist!"

"Capitalist?" she echoed. "Do you call it that?" I should have thought 'office boy' would have been nearer the correct."
They seemed fully launched in one of their wars of repartee. But Barry plumped himself down determinedly on the cliff grass.

"Office boy or capitalist—and perhaps both are equally wide of the mark—I'm not going to be marched any more miles over these interminable cliffs. What's making you so restless, Moya? You seem bent on putting as good a distance as you can contrive between you and Seabridge."

She laughed. "Oh, I believe I hate the place. Wish we had never come. Still more wish we were going back tomorrow."
Barry elevated his brows. "That's queer. I thought you were dead nuts on coming here. No other place would do. And we were to have such a jolly time together—our two families. And now, literally, you've been as cross as two sticks ever since we arrived."

"There's an old friendship, and successfully survived plain speaking. At any rate, Moya, bore his in perfect good humor, notwithstanding what he had just suggested as to the state of her temper while holiday-making."
"I have—I own it. Because, you see, I found out at once why the matter came. Not for the sea air or the scenery, or even because your people could come at the same time, and it would be so jolly to go together and make one party. No, not for that. For what, then?"

Moya leaned towards him, dropping her voice to a tragic whisper. "Because Guy Berkeley is coming down to join us to-morrow," she breathed, dependently.

"Well, what of that?" demanded Barry, with as great a contrast of cheerfulness. "Rather a good sort, isn't he? At least, so I've heard. One more to swell our party. The more the merrier."

Moya only groaned, however. And Barry turned round. "What's the matter?" he demanded without much of the sympathy she seemed to crave from him. "I thought he was an old friend of your family. What did I hear about him? Oh, that rich aunt of yours left him all her money, didn't she? When you expected she would leave it to you. Don't you like him on that account? Well, it must have been rather a disappointment."

"Oh, you don't understand." Moya's voice was still more tragic. "Of course I don't care if he had the money or not. It isn't that. I'm not one bit jealous. It's only that I'm afraid—oh, of what he'll think. Isn't it horrible? If he had only refused the matter's invite here."

Barry shook his head. It was too cryptic for him. "Then you don't like him," he hazarded. "Don't know the chap myself. But I've heard him well spoken of. Though they say he's rather quiet and sober. Perhaps he wouldn't quite suit our set down here."
"Don't like him. I don't know him either. I've never met him. I only wish I had not to now. But, of course, he's hateful and horrid. Stuck-up and condescending. Oh, Barry, I should have thought you would guess it at once. He's coming down to marry me. That's the long and short of it."

Her cheeks were indignantly crimson. Barry eyed her incredulously. She went on in a choked voice. "You know, the matter's always been set on my making a good marriage. I guessed at once what it meant. When she started praising him, and hoping we should be friends when he came. Oh, yes, I guessed it all."
Barry was silent, pursing his lips to a noiseless whistle. He knew Moya's mother. A good mother in her own methods, but bent on the welfare of her children in life, or what she considered their true welfare.

"Well, no one can make you marry against your will," he counselled, uncomfortably.
"Oh, that isn't it. You don't realize it even now. It's the intolerable position for me. All the fun of the holiday spoiled. A wretched bit of match-making. And such a humiliation."
Perhaps Barry could not see it, could not realize at all a girl's pride or point of view.

Moya choked down an angry laugh, though she had told Barry she did not know what he saw to laugh at in it. She drove her little fist furiously into the soft grass and sweet clover blossoms.
"I suspected something of it before I left home. I believe it was originally aunt's idea for us to marry. She had awfully old-fashioned notions about girls. And she thought no end of Guy Berkeley—why, I can't think, except that probably he was dull and old-fashioned and proper and boring, as she was! As if I'd marry money! And the matter thinks no one can see her quiet little plans, much less be annoyed by them."
"Then tell her," advised that tactless if straightforward Barry.

Moya choked over another laugh more angry than the last. "What sense counsel! Was the matter ever turned from her purpose? She'd just gently laugh at me and call me a silly, self-conscious child to get such notions cheap. I'm coy. I require to think over this flattering proposal of yours, madam."

Moya looked despairing. Barry liked his joke, and no one ever denied it to him. But Barry might see that this was no joke, but a serious problem. She had called it a bit of fun, certainly, but that had been to entice Barry into considering it. But all she really thought was the saving of her pride, and this was the way to save it. Let Guy Berkeley and all the world see she was carelessly independent of his money.

"I must get engaged now," she decreed. "Before he comes. Oh, Barry, don't you see if it was afterwards people might say it was only pique because he would not marry me! No, it must be at once. That is the one thing I think of—proving to Guy Berkeley I'm not the mercenary little wretch anyone would think me to be."

It was the one thing she thought of. She did not think of Barry himself at all. Moya was given to impulse. And as to Barry—why, he was very much given to the guiding of the moment. But he made one last objection.

"Have you thought of what your mother will say?" he asked. (To be continued.)

into my head, and all the while I should be thrown at his head harder than ever."
Barry looked thoughtful. It always hurt him to hear Moya speak of her mother like that. But then, he invariably owned to himself that his own mother was so different—a gentle, little woman who could not have schemed for her children's benefit if she had tried.

"There's only one thing for it," cried Moya. "You must help me. Only you can. Do be a sport, Barry, and come to my assistance."
"I? How on earth can I help you out of it? Whatever do you want me to do?"

"Be mine to command as you promised just now. Literally to lend yourself to me for the next few weeks, till Guy Berkeley has gone. I don't suppose he'll stay long when he finds it's all useless. Oh, it may only be a day or two that we shall have to pretend—and keep up the pretence—that we're engaged."

It was not often Barry flattered himself that anyone took a rise out of him. But he rose from his comfortable seat on the cliff grass now, and looked down at Moya with the most unaffected astonishment. She for her part, did not move at all or change her easy attitude as she sat there, clasped hands on her lap. She just looked up at him and laughed, a gleam of fun in her dark eyes.

"Engaged!" gasped Barry, helplessly. "Oh, great Scott, what next? And have you announced the engagement, please, yet? And when's the wedding? And where do I come in, pray? It does not look as if I was much consulted about a matter in which I might be expected to have some slight interest—my own engagement!"

Moya chuckled mischievously. "You are not very unflattering," she said, severely. "Rule in the extreme! To be proposed to by a lady and to take it in this way!"

Barry wiped his forehead in an exaggerated fashion. "Who knows?" he demanded anxiously. "It's a kind of you to inform me—when everyone else knows it. Though now I come to think of it, I haven't received any congratulations, yet."
"Oh, don't be so silly," said Moya irritably. "Of course I've told no one yet. I'm going to burst it on you like a bombshell. Now, Barry, won't it be fun? Oh, do be sensible for a moment and listen! Just think how it will foil Guy Berkeley—prove to him that I don't want that wretched money, even if it was mine by rights, still less want to be squared in that odious way. He'll arrive here—to find me engaged! Oh, won't it be splendid!"

She clasped her hands round her knees and hugged them with enthusiastic delight. Barry, however, did not seem to share it, did not emerge from his own gloom, or see the splendor of this famous idea.

"We're the best of pals," he began uncomfortably. "But to be engaged—have you thought it well out, Moya?"

She unclasped her hands and stamped a small foot angrily in lieu of the enthusiasm of a moment before.

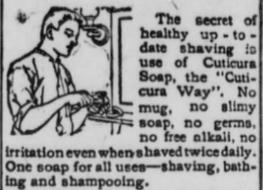

"Oh, bother!" she cried hopelessly at Barry's obtuseness and failure to see what was so clear to herself. "What waste of time! I'd like to know! Isn't it simple enough? I'm not asking you to be really engaged, stupid. Is it likely I should go such a thing? I'm simply asking you to help me out of a hole, to—to—her voice trembled a little—"save my pride," she finished quickly. "Yes, save my pride from such a humiliation as Guy Berkeley's visit would be!"

"Young ladies should not call their prospective fiancés stupid," put in Barry. "That is, if they want a favorable answer to their proposals."
Moya rose with dignified wrath. "You're hateful!" she declared, "almost as bad as—Guy Berkeley himself. And a little while back you called yourself a city capitalist. We need not bother about the ring, of course. If you can't make up a few excuses—well—she stopped—"you can make excuses enough now to avoid helping me," she finished accusingly.

"Sorry," said the unrepentant Barry. "Been a bit of a shock to me, you see. Am not accustomed to be proposed to by beautiful young ladies. To have them throw themselves at my head. No, no," said Barry meditatively, "I'm not going too

CUTICURA SOAP

For Shaving, Bathing and Shampooing

The secret of healthy up-to-date shaving is the use of Cuticura Soap, the "Cuticura Way". No mug, no slimy soap, no germs, no free alkali, no irritation even when shaved twice daily. One soap for all uses—shaving, bathing and shampooing.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25c and 50c. Sold throughout the Dominion. Canadian Depot: Lyons, Limited, St. Paul St., Montreal. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

into my head, and all the while I should be thrown at his head harder than ever."
Barry looked thoughtful. It always hurt him to hear Moya speak of her mother like that. But then, he invariably owned to himself that his own mother was so different—a gentle, little woman who could not have schemed for her children's benefit if she had tried.

Ruddy Cheeks, Sparkling Eyes, Womanly Health

THOUSANDS OF VIGOROUS, HAPPY GIRLS AND WOMEN ENDORSE THE TREATMENT

BRINGS KEEN APPETITE, GOOD SPIRITS.

Women who are all played out, droopy, pale, nervous, and irritable will certainly be greatly interested. So will folks who are embarrassed with pimples, rashes, and pallid complexion.

The real joy of living is best known to those who keep the blood pure and the system toned by the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a soothing tonic laxative that puts health, vim, and spirits into those who lack these qualities.

You will be stronger, better nourished, in better spirits and sleep better after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. This wonderful medicine will do you good in a hundred ways. It will put spring in your step, an attractive brightness in your eyes, and on your cheeks will be stamped the glow and blush of a June rose. All this is possible because Dr. Hamilton's Pills bring about vigorous digestion, perfect assimilation, pure blood, and a proper working of all the organs.

The benefits from Dr. Hamilton's Pills come about in a natural, soothing, easy way, and girls and women of all ages are advised to try this old-time family remedy, which is sold by all dealers in 25-cent boxes.

FOR BREAKFAST. Three Good Recipes for You to Test.

Beat up three eggs with a tablespoonful of milk and a pinch of salt. Melt one-half ounce of butter in an omelette pan, and when it bubbles pour in the mixture, and cook while stirring until begins to set. Fold the eggs over to make it omelette. Do not turn it, but to finish it on the upper side place the pan under the grill until just set.

Curry Eggs—Four hard-boiled eggs one ounce of butter add a dessert-spoonful of curry powder and half of flour. Fry together. Now moisten with a teaspoonful of milk. Stir for a quarter of an hour. Put the eggs into the sauce, add a teaspoonful of chutney, simmer for a few minutes, and serve with rice.

Fried Bacon with Bananas—Remove the rind from some thinly cut rashers of bacon and fry them on both sides in a frying pan. Skin half as many bananas as there are rashers, cut each in half lengthwise, sprinkle with salt and pepper and fry them in the bacon fat, adding a little margarine if necessary. Dish up the bacon, and put half a banana on each rasher. Serve at once.

Deaf and Dumb Language. The Encyclopedia Britannica says: "We have conversed by signs with deaf people from all parts of the British Isles, from France, from Norway and Sweden, Poland, Finland, Italy, Russia, Turkey, the United States, and found that indeed they use a world-wide communication. Deaf people in America converse with Red Indians with ease, thereby showing how natural the clarity of even deaf signs are."

ORANGE PUDDING. Cut up five oranges, put in a large pudding dish and sprinkle over them one-half cup of white sugar. Set a pan containing a pint of milk in a kettle of boiling water; let it boil. Stir together the yolks of two eggs, one-half cup of sugar, and two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch in a little cold milk and with a little salt. Add this to the boiling milk, let it thicken and pour it over the fruit. Now beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth, add a tablespoon of fine sugar and pour it over the pudding. Set in a hot oven to brown. Drop jelly on the top for ornament.

DR. WARD The Specialist

79 NIAGARA SQUARE, BUFFALO, NEW YORK.

Men, Are You in Doubt?

As to your trouble? Have you some skin eruption that is stubborn, has resisted treatment? Is there a nervous condition which does not improve in spite of rest, diet and medicine? Are you going down hill steadily? ARE YOU NERVOUS and despondent, weak and debilitated; tired mornings; no ambition—lifeless; memory gone; easily fatigued; excitable and irritable; lack of energy and confidence? Is there failing power, a drain on the system? Consult the old reliable specialists.

SYMPTOMS OF VARIOUS AILMENTS.

Weak and relaxed state of the body, nervousness, despondency, poor memory, lack of will power, timid, irritable disposition, diminished power of application, energy and concentration, fear of impending danger or misfortune, drowsiness and tendency to sleep, restless sleep, dark rings under eyes, loss of weight, insomnia. Dr. Ward gives you the benefit of 29 years' continuous practice in the treatment of all chronic, nervous, blood and skin diseases. The above symptoms, and many others not mentioned, show plainly that something is wrong with your physical condition and that you need expert attention.

Men, why suffer longer? Let me make you a vigorous man. Let me restore your physical condition to full manhood. Don't be a weakling any longer. Make up your mind to come to me and I will give the best treatment known to science—the one successful treatment based on the experience of 29 years in treating men and their ailments.

Dr. Ward's Methods Unrivaled, Thorough and Permanent.

Do you realize that you have only one life to live—do you realize that you are missing most of that life by ill health? A life worth living is a healthy life. Neglect of one's health has put many a man in his grave.

I have been telling men these things for many years but still there are thousands of victims who, for various reasons, have not had the good sense to come and get well.

Specialist in the treatment of nervous conditions, nervous exhaustion, backache, lumbago, rheumatism, stomach and liver trouble, acne, skin diseases, catarrh, asthma, rectal troubles, piles, fistula and blood conditions.

DELICIOUS RED CABBAGE.

One small red cabbage cut fine, two green apples chopped, one large onion chopped, one teaspoon flour, one tablespoon unsalted fat, one-half cup water, salt, pepper, one tablespoon vinegar, one teaspoon sugar. Put the unsalted fat into a saucepan, add the onion, apples, cabbage, water, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer slowly for about two hours, adding water as it boils away. Sprinkle flour over the cabbage and stir in; add vinegar and sugar. White cabbage may be prepared in the same way.

BREAD-STICKS.

Add one yeast cake to a half-pint of lukewarm water, dissolve, add half a teaspoonful of salt in the beaten white of one egg and sufficient flour to make a dough; knead well for 10 minutes. Stand aside for two hours. When light turn out on the board, cut off small bits and roll them under the hands into a cord-like strip to fit pans. Stand in a warm place for 20 minutes and bake for 10 minutes in a quick oven. These sticks are especially nice served with salads.
