THE MONTRÉAL CATASTROPHE. Three Widows and seventeen children left by the Dead Firemen—Greater Goes to Trial.

Montréal, Oct. 18.—(Special.)—The terrible catastrophe on St. Peter street, which three heavy beams fell on their lives, is the talk of the city and the sad event was referred to today in many of the Catholic and Protestant churches. It has been decided to have a public funeral for the victims on the 20th inst., and which, no doubt, will be very largely attended.

Complaint is made that settlers in the States of Dakota and Montana are perpetrating similar raids across the frontier, and in those Canadian towns contiguous to the fish by the unscrupulous use of nets. The mounted police are anxious to see the Government in watching for these marauding parties of off-duty hunters.

A prominent Quebecer who was in town to-day, talking to your correspondent, said much as to a quarter of a century ago, he had seen the St. Lawrence bridge at Quebec, he described the Canadian cities as they were very many years ago. A bridge at this time would cost at least $1,000,000.

GREAT HORSE DEAL

The Market for High-Class Equines is booming in Kitley—Sweet Violets Blooming in Brookville.

Thou perchance to no more my neighbors, I wish to profess a distinct advantage in the market price of carriage horses and roadsters as the outcome of a deal made by me a few days ago.

A short time ago Dave Dowley's Fair cum off, one evening after chares was dunn up and supper put down, me and my woman was sitting down each other, when a stranger rid into the yard and I mounted out to receive him. He was hanted on the highest, tuffest, and, generally speaking, the most one piece of horse-flesh I had ever seen. I brot a ladder and as the ridd climbed down off his dizzy perch he riz his hat, which bore a bright and shinin King William band, and announced himself to be the Agricultural Editor of the Brookville Times. I was becomingly impressed, and murmured amidst him, the result of "Slite was the hump on its back hadn't been the rear of the center of gravitation would have fallen over on his nose). I then droo his attention to a splint, a bone spavin, a bog spavin, and several warts. He smiled a superior smile and said that the protuberances I had noticed were merely vascular distensions, due to too much blood—his horse been a thorough. This kinder knocked me cold, but not wishin to quarl with a first class horse, I seen him and when he was in the stable, he said the loss was a little low in flesh. This seemed to hurt the stranger's feelings, and he at once protested that you couldn't always judge by appearances, that the horse was rollin fat, but the skin bein so small the fat was all on the inside, and was perdo in talk about adyose tissues and secretory glands, when I moved an adjourment.

After trippin off the saddle and bridlin and leenin the horse he called him

Moore, I suppose because he wouldn't "go" against the barn without easy reach of a pile of hay, we went to the house and I introduced the Ag'l Ed to the wimen folks. His hole demenor changed in the presents of the ladies

A Churn that Churns in One Minute I have been in the dairy business all my life and have many times churned an hour before butter would appear, so when I heard of a churn that would churn in a minute, I concluded to try it. Every day for a week I used it, and not only could I churn in a minute, but I got more and better butter than with the common churn. This is very important information to butter makers. The churn works easily, and will churn an ordinary churning in less than 60 seconds. I have sold two dozen of these churns in the past month. Every butter maker that has seen me churn in less than a minute has bought one. You can obtain desired information regarding the churn by addressing J. F. Casey & Co., St. Louis, and they will give you prompt and courteous attention.

Mrs. H. Stapleton of Wingham writes:—I have been very much troubled for years—since 1878—with nervous debility and dyspepsia. Had been treated in Canada and England by some of the best physicians without permanent relief. I was advised about three months ago to take South American Nerve and I finally believe I owe my life to it. I can truthfully say that I have derived more benefit from it than any treatment I ever had, and will never be without it myself." Sold by J. P. Lamb & Son.

A Great Chance to Make Money. I want to tell you of my wonderful success. Being a poor girl and needing money badly, I tried the Dish Washer business and have cleared $200 every month. It is more money than

I ever had before and I can't help telling you about it, for I believe any person can do as well as I have if they only try. Dish Washers sold on every lady wants one. The Mount City Dish Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo., will give you all necessary instructions, so you can begin work at once. The Dish Washer does good work; you can wash and dry the dishes in two or three minutes without putting your hands in the water.

WILTSETOWN. MONDAY, Oct. 19.—Hawking bees are quite prevalent, and the boys are happy, especially when devouring pies and cakes. Mrs. Jonah Stacey and Mrs. Wilton Towris have recovered from their affliction with the trouble, but who is now in perfect health, thanks to his timely use of the famous remedy. There are of those people both known and unknown to Chas. Waldren, perhaps better known as "Charley Waldren," for he has lived in Guelph almost continuously since he was three years of age and has since had a long and successful career as a miller and millwright. Mr. Waldren, who has worked at that business for 22 years; and besides, being noted as a steady workman, he is a man whose veracity is unquestioned. It is a well known fact that Mr. Waldren had to quit work in January 1896, on account of a severe attack of sciatica, and for eleven weeks was unable to do a tap.

Knowing that he was again at work a Mercury reporter called at his residence to learn how he had recovered from the facts of the case. Mr. Waldren, when spoken to on the subject, replied quite freely, and had no hesitation in crediting Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for his remarkable recovery. "I am not one of those people who are content with a paper notice," said Mr. Waldren, "neither have I been snatched from death's door, but the day when I quit work, until March 30th, when I

A Victim of Sciatica.

UNABLE TO WALK THOUGH STRONG AND WILLING.

The Sufferings of a Well known Guelph Citizen—Could Not Move About Without the Aid of a Stick—Again as Strong and Healthy as Ever.

From the Guelph Mercury. There is perhaps no business or occupation that any man could follow that is more trying to the health—particularly in winter—than that of moulding. A workman leaves the shop with perspiration, and a cold wind chills him to the marrow, making him ready mark for lumbago, sciatica and kindred troubles. A moulder requires to be a man of more than ordinary strength, and to continue at his work must always be in good health, for a moulding shop is no place for an invalid. Sciatica, by no means an uncommon affliction for men of this craft, and once the dread disease has lanced a victim he seldom shakes himself free from it again. In fact some people declare one evening to incur the ailment, and in the next morning find that it is not in their power to get up. Generally a personal interview with one once afflicted THROWING A DISCUS.

REVIVAL OF THE POPULAR THOUGH ANCIENT GREEK GAMES.

An American's Victory at Athens Last Spring Has Caused Many American Sporting Clubs to Include "Throwing the Discus" in Their Fall Games.

Throwing the discus is one of the oldest forms of muscle propelling exercises, says James S. Mitchell in the New York Journal, and it might be said, perhaps, to be the only game of the ancient Greeks that has come down to us unaltered. In the early ages of physical culture this pastime occupied a front rank among the favored athletic exercises, and was only approached in point of excellence by boxing and wrestling. Of course, the strangers and devotees of the contest were held in high esteem, but the discus thrower as a model of muscular manly was the ideal athlete of those early times. The discus is most generally in use consisted of a piece of flat metal or stone, or very often a lump of heavy and compact wood. Most commonly, however, it was made of copper and shaped somewhat like the ball of the eye, bulging in the centre, but growing thinner at the edge. Lucian has described it as a small, round bucket, so polished and smoothed that it readily slipped from the hand of the person holding it. In throwing the athlete placed himself in a stance called the balhis. He advanced his right leg, slightly bending the knee with the weight of the body principally resting on the right foot. When he was ready to launch the missile he bent his body forward, the left hand taking a point of support on the right thigh while his right arm extended, holding the discus and raised the hand to the level of his shoulder.

Remaining a moment in this position he described a semi-circle in the air as the athlete concentrated his strength, made his throw, at the same time leaning forward to increase the force of the action. A condition governing the contest and one universally and emphatically insisted on was that should the thrower happen to let the discus drop after having taken his stand in the balhis, the left hand was debarr'd from that particular contest. The ancient discus throwers entered the arena in a manner being the same as that of the modern athlete, but the course, optional, but as it was generally understood that the least partiality in clothing diminished the freedom of action, not very many aspirants for fame but appeared entirely naked. At first the competitors were decided by casting the implement at a mark, the winner being the one who cast the discus nearest to the proscribed object; but as time wore on, however, more liberal notions prevailing, until the end the athlete who achieved the greatest distance was decorated with the laurel wreath.

The discus thrower at play was a favorable theme with Greek artists, but no one has treated the subject as happily as the sculptor Phidias. He was the first to render the athlete in the act of throwing. The original statue of the discus thrower has not been transmitted to us, but many copies exist, the best of which is to be found in the British Museum. Myron flourished about 422 B.C., and was gifted with a rare genius for modelling animals as well as human beings, and his works are instinct with life and action, and it is principally for these qualities he has been admired by critics in all ages. The weight of the modern implement is 4-2 pounds. It is made of lignum vitae, is a perfect circle, and measures eight inches in diameter. It is about two inches thick, and is convex in the centre. Many clubs have included this competition in their lists of games this fall. The thrower takes the disk in his

muscles of his right arm by stretching it to its fullest extent, he lifts the disk over his head and proceeds to get his grip on it. The grip is an important part of the performance and should be studied with great care. The fingers should be kept well apart, only the first joints coming on the edge of the disk and thumb placed on the side ways against the side of the disk about two inches from the edge. When the athlete finds he has a com-
