If Christmas-tide.

Oh, did you hear glad bells ring out?
And did you hear the children shout
And see the garlands twisted about?
The world forgets its sorrows and its
And decks itself without, within,
To hail the Merry Christmas in And happy—how quaint and still The blessed message of good-will.
That cheers the hearts of millions still.
The world forgets its grief and pain,
And longs for better things again!

The Grays' Christmas Party.

WHAT a quiet Christmas we shall have, George. There will not be a creature in the house but Mrs. Peters and our two selves."

"It is very disappointing. Harry might have contrived to be at home for Christmas, Agnes."

"It will be a change, will it not, after so many Christmases at the Cope's?"

"Yes. Let me see. Fifteen—eight-teen—nineteen; why it is nineteen years since we spent Christmas Day anywhere else. We have been at the Cope's every Christmas for all that time. I think it is shabby for Harry and Maud. They might have managed to be at home for Christmas."

"It will seem strange."

"Strange! The place will be as dull as a tomb. It is too bad."

George Gray had felt back against the soft cushions of his easy chair. His eyes became fixed on the ceiling. He was thinking of the nineteen Christmases he had spent with Agnes at Barton Cope, his brother Harry's house in Leicestershire, and of how very incongruous Harry and his wife had been that they had not come back from Menton for the annual Christmas reunion. He thought it unkind of Harry and Maud to break the family circle in that way.

"I wonder how poor Fred will spend his Christmas this year," said Mrs. Gray, after a pause.

"Oh, at somebody's house. Fred will be all right, you may be sure."

George Gray answered, with a look expressive of confidence in the boy's ability to enjoy himself at Christmastime.

"The Melbourne people are very good," Mrs. Gray said, giving attention to a hope which was dear to her heart. Fred was her only boy. He was in his twentieth year, and this would be the first Christmas he had been away from them. He had left England eight months before, with excellent prospects. But now that Christmas was upon them, how they were missing him! Mrs. Gray cherished the hope that some kind family would invite her boy to spend the festal day with them, that so, even in far-off Melbourne, it might be a happy Christmas to him.

"George," she said in a whisper.

"Yes, Agnes," came the reply in an undertone.

"Do you now what I have been thinking?"

George Gray's eyes opened, and he looked inquiringly at his wife.

"There must be many lads like our Fred, and girls, too, away from home at Christmas. Why, I have counted up nearly a dozen at the church."

"Oh, they are all right. People ask them out to dinner. They have a good enough time," replied George Gray, carelessly.

"I very much doubt that, George.
I don't know one family likely to ask them," Mrs. Gray said thoughtfully.

"Oh, well, we can't help that. It has nothing to do with us."

A pang of reproach shot through Mrs. Gray's breast. She remembered that they had been married for twenty-two years. They had health and everything they could desire, yet never once through all those years had they invited a creature, young or old, to spend Christmas Day with them. They had gone, as a matter of course, to Harry's and had enjoyed themselves with his family at Barton Cope. They had never given a thought to any one else, and it was only through the double accident of Fred being in Melbourne and Harry and his family being at Menton that they had thought of it at all.

"George," said Mrs. Gray, anxiously.

"What is it, Agnes?"

"I am afraid we have made a very great mistake."

"Oh! What's the matter?"

George Gray sat up and looked at his wife.

"We have never asked whether there was anybody about us, like Fred, away from home, one Christmas since we have been married.
There are young people at our own church who will be alone in the city this very Christmas."

"Yes, but they will be asked out.
They will be all right," said George Gray, impatiently.

"By whom? There is no one at the church better able to ask them than we. There are few as able. Besides, you said it had nothing to do with

Christmas Reveals Nobler Nature.

Were the brotherly reciprocities of the Christmas time kept alive all the year, were the typical virtues—love of friend and neighbor, generosity and hospitality—kept warm and bright the whole round would be bound in blessedness.

Christmas, the dearest holiday of the heart is the one day when we do the simple human things—the loving kindnesses which we ought to be doing every day in the year. For one hour at Christmas we live as we pray and practice the tender virtues, the only virtues in which we are to be examined at the last day; we visit the sick, feed the hungry, clothe the naked, comfort the afflicted. We see that sharing, not hoarding, is the law of life—that joy is a duty, a thing to be lived in one's own life and to be passed on and made possible in other lives.

The ideal Christmas spirit is to give one's self and one's goods for love's sake, to succor the needy or to rejoice the friend. And there is much of this fine generosity. But greed too frequently steps in and pushes love aside. Christmas in some respects seems now to be a commercial scramble rather than a religious festival.

In spite of all imperfections, however, Christmas is the one spot of the year that recalls to us the fact that we have a larger, nobler nature than the selfish nature we live by the rest of the year. Indeed man's truer and higher nature is unselfish. When man shall reach his true manhood, he will live the life of unselfish service—a life immersed in thought and work for others. Then the Golden Rule will be the working principle of life; then it will be Christmas all the year.

—Edwin Markham in The Delineator.

Rosy Cheeks

The Ambition of Every Woman.

Hollow cheeks with dark lines, sallow complexion—how a woman hates them.

But rosy cheeks, clear skin, bright eyes, these are the things a woman wishes to have.

In the blood is found the first sign of trouble.

It grows thin and watery, its color fades, and increasing pallor and sal-lowness give the outward evidence of the change within.

Soon the nerves weaken, the heart easily tires and palpitates, strength declines.

The delicate mechanism of the woman's functions is interfered with, and pleasures, activities and even duties are loaded down with the burden of declining health.

Why is it that a woman neglect the first warning?

Usually she waits till she is ready to drop—often then it's too late.

These conditions are easily checked, easily cured at the beginning—but even when long established Ferrozone will remove the cause and cure the trouble.

Ferrozone's action aids the three principal functions of the body—digestion, assimilation, elimination.

By strengthening digestion it forms an abundance of rich, red blood—this gives good color.

By perfecting assimilation, Ferro-zone supplies nutrition—this gives strength, vim, stability.

Elimination is assured because Ferro-zone quickens the actions of the liver, kidneys and bowels—this guarantees the maintenance of vigorous health.

Ferrozone puts you on the right road—the one that leads to health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance—not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferro-zone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. Try it yourself—sold everywhere in goc. boxes.

A highly popular custom of the young Scots of past years was for the young men to go about the streets ringing doorbells, and theirs was the right to kiss the girl who answered the ring. In case the girl proved elderly or unattractive there was no e-vading the expected salute, however much it might go against the grain of the belleringer.

Do You Get Bilious?
This trouble arises from torpidity of the liver. Nothing acts so nicely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They stir up the liver, rid the system of bile, tone the stomach, give appetite and sound digestion. If you feel drowsy and had tempered. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will help you at once.—taken at night you'll be well by morning. Don't be afraid of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they are mild—don't gripe or nauseate.
They just "cure"—that's all.

BOVRIL creates appetite

BOVRIL added to any dish gives it the delightful odor of roasting beef.

Makes your mouth water—puts your appetite on edge.

Its rich, beefy flavor, starts the gastric juices flowing, helping the digestive organs extract more nutrition from the food you eat.

BOVRIL is not a mere extract. It contains in concentrated form all the essence, substance and flavor of prime beef.

When tired out, try a little BOVRIL in a cup of boiling water, with a soda biscuit. 'Twill refresh and strengthen you.

All good cooks keep BOVRIL always on hand. There's not a day passes that it cannot help make some dish more palatable —most nourishing.

All good grocers sell BOVRIL.

'Christmas is Coming.'

'Christmas is coming,' the children shout, and they are counting the days and their pennies and writing letters to Santa Claus and speculating as to their parents. They know as well as the calendars do when Christmas will be here, and if a school of children were to tell me the calendar was wrong I would believe the children just as I would take the prospective bride's word as to the day of days to her in preference to the calendar.

There is universal joy in the child's world at the coming of Christmas, but I must qualify that statement.
There are children to whom the day will bring no joy. They see the Christmas trees from longing anxious eyes, but they know there will be no Christmas tree for them, for the brightest that shines on happier homes than their's will cast a darker shadow on their poor homes.

The Master wants us to do all in our power to help His poor, especially His little ones, and our Christmas will be all the happier if we do what we can to send happiness to the homes of poverty. There are homes that will be without coal and bread and light if you do not send to them.
Send a little happiness into these homes—please; they are out of happiness about all the time.

'Christmas is coming,' the clerks say, and they are counting the days for them as you can these busy days that are almost here. You don't know how tired they are, these overworked girls and young men; if you did you would wonder at their patience and politeness, for you surely tax their over-wrought nerves by your exactions, unreasonable prices, when you are not a purchaser.

Think, something, oh Christian, of the girl and man behind the counter and don't snub and lose your politeness with them. They are not machines. 'Hath not a clerk eyes?' Hath not a clerk hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? Fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons?

'Christmas is coming,' they are saying in offices and schools, 'and then for home,' and they count the days and later the hours that keep them from home.

God grant they may not be disappointed and those at home who smile as they work and say to themselves fifteen, ten, five days—one day more and they will be home.

'Christmas is coming,' my last at home, the next I will be with him in my house—in ours,' says many a sweet young girl, with a smile for prospective joys and a sigh and a tear for the coming good-bye.

God grant that the wedding bells and Christmas bells may ring out together, 'Peace on earth, good will to men.'

'Christmas is coming,' and they say it with sadness. 'Last Christmas we were all together. I dread the coming of Christmas; it tells me of my loneliness without him—without her.'

'Oh God! he kind and helpful to the man to whom the Christmas-tide will bring no joy, for since last Christmas the bell has been rung softly; there was crape on the door.'

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., DEC. 20, 1907.

Sanctum Suggestions.

The ACADIAN takes the early opportunity of wishing all its readers a very Merry Christmas. May the glad season bring nothing but happiness—peace on earth and good-will to men.

The Bridgewater Bulletin has issued a very creditable Christmas number this week. Bridgewater people loyally support their local newspaper as the Bulletin's adv. columns abundantly testify.

THE ACADIAN has received from the publishers of the Montreal Star a very useful publication entitled The Canadian Red Book. It contains much information regarding public institutions, political governments, laws, universities, societies, etc., and in a concise form gives a great deal of useful information concerning Canada and its institutions.

THE ACADIAN has received from Principal DeWolfe a copy of the souvenir calendar just issued in the interests of Acadia Seminary. It is a most artistic and dainty production of the printer's art and reflects great credit upon the institution. We can scarcely conceive of a Christmas gift that would be more appreciated by a friend or former student of the Seminary than a copy of this handsome calendar, with its beautiful illustrations of scenes in and around the buildings and grounds.

A number of people have already secured a year's subscription to THE ACADIAN to be given to absent friends as a Christmas remembrance. We know of no gift which would be half so acceptable. It's an easy solution of a problem that has been facing you for week's back. Send in a dollar and the address of your friend or absent relative, anywhere in the empire, and we will do the rest. In the case of subscription to the United States an additional amount will be required for postage.

The Alumnae Fair.

The Christmas Fair under the auspices of the Alumnae of Acadia Seminary, which closed on Monday evening, proved to be a very successful affair, and to the promoters is certainly due a large amount of credit. Graduates of the Seminary and friends from all over the Dominion generously responded to the appeal sent out, and rich gifts of fancy work of all kinds were received.

The Fair opened on Saturday and was patronized generously.

Alumnae hall was artistically decorated with evergreens, with clusters of apples, giving a bright touch to the articles of exceptional value, presided over by fair maidens and handsome matrons, were the centre of attraction, but the cut flowers and plant booth and the fruits vied with them in popularity. In a side room a large and beautiful Christmas tree, promoted by the young ladies of the town, with a table of toys of all kinds, attracted numberless children, who had huge enjoyment in a forrest of Christmas, and before the first day was over, all the articles were gone.

Another room, with books and pictures of all kinds, was a busy scene during the two days of the fair. Needless to say that the tea room, in the big gymnasium in the basement, was the Mecca of all the visitors, sooner or later. With its open fire, its pretty cosy tea tables, and its attractive decorations of numberless flags and bunting, it presented a very inviting appearance and visitors who went once, were impelled to go again, and partake of the dainty refreshments.

The centre booth, with its tasteful Japanese decorations, was devoted to confectionery. The description of this seminary fair would not be complete without mention of the pantomime entertainment by the young ladies of the seminary, under the direction of Miss Blanche Bishop, which attracted a large number of visitors and was a most successful addition to the festivities. The receipts of the fair were about $500, with a number of articles left over as the nucleus of another fair next year.

The death of Hon. J. Israel Tarte, ex-minister of Public works, occurred at his home in Montreal on Tuesday, after an illness of nine months. He was fifty-nine years of age and in his day played many important parts in public life, and however much one might differ from him in opinion, he was a man who challenged a certain admiration, and won a large measure of indulgence and kind regard even from his opponents. He was undoubtedly a man of many and great abilities, and some would no doubt add, of many and great mistakes. But to whom cannot usages and great mistakes be attributed? Since his retirement from the Government he has confined his attention to journalism, and the tendency of his recent work was wholesome and patriotic. Journalism was, professedly, his favorite work, and the appreciative readers of La Patrie will miss the touch of a jovial and illuminative pen.

The executive of the Hants, Kings and Annapolis counties exhibited a bold meeting at Windsor last week for final closing up of the accounts. A very satisfactory showing was made by the reports of the trustees, there being a surplus after all liabilities were paid of $104.90.

The South Shore Route.

A recent trip over the Halifax and South-Western Railway recalls the event of the official opening of the 'South Shore' route as it is familiarly known, which occurred a year ago this week. Beyond the prominence given at the time to the occurrence by the Evening Mail little attention was accorded the matter by the provincial press, yet few events in the history of the industrial development of Nova Scotia are more deserving of commemoration. People are familiar with the idea that the road was long-talked of, eagerly looked forward to, and in a complacent way are glad that it is now an accomplished fact. Yet it is safe to say that not one in a thousand grasp the full significance of its completion.

A trite subject truly, 'The Wonderful Resources of Nova Scotia,' and one that able pens have exploited far and wide, yet the power of the most facile pen is feeble to bring home the intrinsic truth of such declamations, when compared to the impression conveyed to the mind by the few hours' run necessary to convey a passenger from Halifax to Yarmouth. Setting aside the far-famed attractions from the tourist's point of view, the exquisite grace of majestic reaches of land-locked bays and clustering islands, between whose fir-clad slopes, dancing waters reflect the sun's rays in dazzling confusion, with here and there a glimpse of 'blue water' heaving in the offing, one oft-repeated vision recurs again and again with a persistency not to be denied—THE RUSH OF FALLING WATER. Like a mighty hand outspread by nature to mark the northern gateway of a continent, Nova Scotia holds within her grasp a power as limitless as the surging tides that wash her shores. Stream after stream, led by the numerous lakes and watersheds of the interior, empty their hurrying waters into the outstretched arms of the ocean, each bearing a message written on its foam-flecked surface.

Mining, manufacturing, ship-building, the day is fast approaching when the potentialities of the power now cradled in those rushing waters will be measured and nature's forces allied with the ingenuity of man will place the products of Nova Scotia mine and mill in all the principal markets of the world, and once more make her shipping a familiar sight in every foreign port. Hidden away, only awaiting modern methods of production, side by side with the secret sources of river and lake, lies gold to build the ships, erect the mills, and pay for the brains needed to direct and control so vast a force.

The only factor lacking in the past is now supplied by the completion of a railroad bringing the whole belt of country within easy touch of capital and the outside world.

Palace cars of the newest construction, modern equipment, efficient management, among the many features destined to make the Halifax and South-Western popular with the hosts of tourists that each year throng the south shore. Yet important as such traffic undoubtedly is, it is but a detail when the possibilities afforded by the opening of the road are considered.

What would the 'Rand' not give for the water that each moment loses itself in the ocean along our shores? What are the difficulties of mining in Nova Scotia when compared to those in South Africa? How do the gross returns, per ton, compare in the two localities? Why seek the precious metal amid sandy deserts or in some desolate wilderness far from all the comforts of civilization, when it lies only awaiting the magic touch of capital right at our doors in a country of surpassing loveliness? These questions and suggestions are left to our readers to ponder, the fact remains that the possibilities of industrial development in our province are boundless. Here surely is an opportunity for the sons of Nova Scotia to enroll themselves in that great brotherhood of empire builders whose names will stir the blood of men for centuries to come.

The conditions here touched upon have long been known to many familiar with such matters, but it seems fitting now on the anniversary of the coming of the 'South Western' to point out once more to capitalists looking for 'new worlds to conquer' that their opportunity lies here and that the door is now open.

Word has been received in Berwick of the death of Zephaniah E. Young, son of the late Hugh R. Newcombe of Buckley's Corner, at his home in Highlands Lake county, Indiana. He left for Boston in 1880, where he was engaged in a manufacturing business. He then moved to Chicago, where he entered into partnership with his brother, Holmer M. Newcombe. In 1894 he purchased a farm in Highlands, Indiana, where he lived until his death, which took place on November 28th, aged fifty-one years, after a year of intense suffering. He was a man of excellent character. He leaves a wife who was a daughter of Isaac W. Morton, of Somerset, and a brother, Jonathan, residing on the old homestead at Buckley's Corner.

THE ACADIAN has received a copy of 'Recher's Farmer's Almanac' for 1908, from the publishers, the McAlpine Publishing Co., Halifax. This valuable work is too well known by the public to make any extended notice necessary. It is a most valuable compendium of useful knowledge and ought to have a place in every home.

The Faculty Recital.

The Faculty Recital of Acadia Seminary, given at the Assembly Hall, on Monday evening, Dec. 16, was attended by a large audience, which listened with keen interest to the artistic presentations and rewarded each performer with liberal applause.

Miss Martha Burmeister opened the program with Chopin's Scherzo in C sharp and rendered this difficult composition in a very creditable manner. Her touch is firm, her technique well nigh perfect; excellent artistic phrasing and fine dynamic expression reveal the artistic nature of this gifted performer and teacher. The sombre Norwegian color and majestic grandeur of an impressive 'Theme with Variations' by Grieg, her second selection, were well depicted in her masterful rendition. The enthusiastic applause induced her to give an encore, a composition of her brother's, Richard Burmeister. This work breathes the spirit of the ultra-modern German School, is remarkable in construction and noble in sentiment.

Miss Elise D. Merson, who needs no introduction to the musical people here and who always delights with her well-trained, rich contralto voice, sang 'Still wie die Nacht' by Bohm and 'The Song my Mother Sang' by Grimsbow with sentiment and 'Flower Song' by Gounod with artistic finish. As an encore she sang a familiar Scotch song.

Miss Louise Paulsen, the violin teacher, made her debut with the first movement of a Sonata in E minor by Sjoegren. Like his confrere Grieg, he represents the new Norwegian School with its local color. The rhythms are interesting and a noble spirit pervades the whole. Miss Paulsen has a firm, graceful bowing, a full, round tone of crystalline purity, and shows thoroughness and character in her playing. Especially pleasing were the 'Adagio' by Ries and 'Serenade' by Piarce.

Mr. Ringwald in his delightful rendering of Chopin's Polonaise op. 53 received a well earned recall, to which he responded with Valse de Concert by Wieniawski.

In the Rhapsodic Hodgrouse No. 14, he revealed a delicacy of touch as well as strength, fine musical feeling, finished technique which assured his place as one of the best pianists at Wolfville and has been heard.

Miss Goodspeed in the 'Falcon' by Tennyson achieved a distinct success. Her conception of the character was noble and the interpretation most artistic. In the lighter selections, 'Secret o' Dyin' and 'Hanging a Picture' she was most happy.

Miss Portia Starr filled the role of accompanist in a most satisfactory manner. Plenty of opportunity was given her to show her musical qualities and technical attainments in the violin sonata which with its peculiar rhythm, is difficult to interpret.

All in all those who know say that it was the best Faculty Recital in recent years.

The Next Exhibition.

The provincial exhibition commission met yesterday, Mr. Justice Longley presiding, and reconsidered the question of the date of the exhibition, which was previously fixed for the fair. There was a spirited discussion on the question. Alderman Johnson and other city members holding out for the date already fixed. But the commissioners from outside the city were favorable to a change, and Commissioner Elderkin, who was absent owing to illness, from the meeting which fixed the dates, wanted to have the week as late as possible. Finally a vote was taken, and September 2-10 was selected, 4 voting against—Herald.

In the absence of the pastor, who preached in Fort Massey church, Halifax, on Sunday last, the pulpit of St. Andrew's church was filled by Mr. McPherson, a student of the Halifax Presbyterian College.

Acadia College and affiliated schools closed for the Christmas vacation on Tuesday and the greater number of the students departed for their homes on Wednesday morning. The public schools close to day.

The death occurred at Halifax on Sunday last of Mrs. Sutherland, widow of the late Kenneth Sutherland, formerly manager of the Dominion Atlantic railway. The remains were forwarded to Kentville for interment.

A meeting of the Wolfville hockey club will be held at the store of I. S. Bates & Co., this evening at 8 o'clock. All the members, as well as all interested in hockey, are urged to be present and assist in preparation for a successful season.

Law office of Shaffer and Pinea—over store of R. E. Harris & Son. Open every Wednesday.

A poor woman in Wolfville lost the sum of $2.75 tied up in a handkerchief one day recently. The money, which represented her savings towards Christmas, was lost either on the street or in one of the stores, and was no doubt found by somebody. If the finder will return it to THE ACADIAN it will be sent to the loser who will rejoice in its recovery.

The prettiest calendar we have seen this season so far was handed THE ACADIAN by Mr. William Regan, harness manufacturer, of this town. The illustration is entitled "Chums" and represents a beautiful girl, a handsome horse and a fine dog. It is a work of art and will be prized by any person fortunate enough to secure one.

The principal of Acadia Seminary has been notified that graduates of the Seminary in the senior matriculation course will for the next three years be admitted to the freshmen class of Welsley College, upon certificate, without examination. This is the only ladies' college in the maritime provinces having certificate rights.

A very quiet wedding took place on Wednesday morning, the 18th inst., at the residence of the groom's father, at Hortonville, when Mr. Fred K. McMann was united in marriage to Miss Bertha Stevens. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. David Wright, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Wolfville. The happy couple left by the morning express for Boston and other parts. THE ACADIAN extends congratulations.

New stock of MacLaughlin Sleighs at the Massey-Harris store. Call early and get a choice. Prices right.

J. W. SELFRIDGE. The Nova Scotia Telephone Co. has spent a large amount of money in this vicinity during the past few months in putting their line in first-class condition, and is now prepared to increase their business. With this end in view a thorough canvass of the town is being made. In another place in THE ACADIAN this week will be found their large advertisement, which we recommend to the careful attention of our readers.

Especially liberal terms are offered to those who wish to try the telephone in their residence. We understand it is the intention of the company to give a continuance service as soon as one hundred instruments shall be in operation in the town.

Active operations have been going on at the steam laundry this week, with a view to beginning business on Monday next. A new boiler and engine have been installed and the various machines thoroughly overhauled and put in order. The new proprietor is an energetic practical man and is evidently determined to spare no effort in his endeavor to provide a good service. He is spending a lot of time and money in order to ensure his ability to turn out good work. It has been a source of regret to our citizens for some time that the laundry has been lying idle, and we trust they will now show their appreciation of the effort being made to again set it in operation by giving the new proprietor a liberal patronage. The way to ensure the success of any industry in the town is for every citizen to help in its advancement. That a well-conducted laundry will be a good thing for the town is beyond question, and as far as we can see the light soon have taken hold of it.

Kings College in Wolfville.

Rev. Albert Gale, Organizing Secretary for King's College, visited Wolfville on Sunday, in the interests of the College, and preached twice in St. John's church. In the afternoon he delivered an address in the College Hall, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. J. Acland, introduced Mr. Gale, who spoke for about half an hour on the subject, 'The College and the world power of the future.' He prefaced his remarks by a very happy allusion to the close historical connection between King's and Acadia, and spoke of Acadia's splendid record, present position and prospects.

'The future,' he said, 'lay with the College trained man.' People said it was the day of the young man. It was more accurate to say that it was the day of the college-trained man. Of late years young men had been substituted in some cases for old men, but it was not because they were young, but because they had had the benefit of a college training. He spoke of various ideals that should govern students and concluded with an earnest appeal for self-consecration to the service of God and man. The address, which was very much admired, was most apt and timely and was in every respect adapted to the occasion. Rev. Dr. Chute offered prayer.

The young people have been indulging in the amusement of skating on the tannery pond this week—a rather risky form of pastime judging from the drowning accidents so often reported in the newspapers. Better wait until the ice gets a little stronger.

Truro Real Estate Mart

NOTICE TO FARM OWNERS IN N. S. We are just completing arrangements that will put us in touch with a large number of farmers in Great Britain who intend coming to Canada during the ensuing winter and spring.

The largest list of farms for sale we can show, will give the greatest chance for choice, and show Nova Scotia to be the place they are looking for.

If you have a farm for sale we would be glad to list it, and will furnish blanks for description. No charge for any work done till property is sold, then only a small commission, the amount of which is set out in blank named. Please not promptly in this time is short. W. D. MacCallum, Truro, N. S., Oct. 28th, 1907.
