Whenever anyone satisfies the requirements in either of the cases enumerated he or she will be given a certificate entitling the holder to the educational advantages offered. A rare opportunity is here placed within reach of those desirous of acquiring a good education, and no time should be lost in taking advantage thereof. Only a little work is required in order to secure the coveted boon, and all can easily be accomplished during this summer's vacation, so that the winners may enter either college at the opening of the next academic year.

The Altar.

The history of the development of the ALTAR, with authentic illustrations, is given as follows, in the new Catholic Encyclopedia:

ANCIENT AND MEDIEVAL ALTARS.—Few ancient Altars have survived the ravages of time. Probably the oldest of these is the fifth-century Altar discovered at Anzio, near Rome. The stone table, on the front of which the monogram of Christ, with twelve doves, is engraved, rests on a single column. Similar in construction to this are three altars in the "confessio" of the church of St. Petrus in Rome, which are attributed to the sixth century. In the sixth-century mosaic, of San Vitale and San Apollinare in Classe, Ravenna, two table Altars of wood, resting on four feet, are represented. They are covered by a long cloth which completely hides the tables. Holzar regards it as probable that the tables enclosed in the Altars of the Eastern and Santa Pudenziana are similar in appearance (Manuel d'archéol. française, I, Aristh. Relig., note 1). Altars of the tomb type, like the sarcophagi of the Constantinian epoch, offered a surface the front of which was well adapted to sculptured decoration. The earliest existing example of an Altar with a carved antependium, however, in the church of Cividade, dates from the beginning of the eighth century. Our Lord is here represented in the centre of the antependium, accompanied by angels, while the hand of the Father appears above His head. Of greater interest is the antependium, as well as the side panels, of the Altar of the Ambrosian basilica in Milan. The front, over seven feet in length, is of gold, the back and sides of silver. Both front and back are panelled into three compartments, in which reliefs from the life of Christ and St. Ambrose are represented. The subjects of the central panel of the front are a Greek Cross, in the centre of which our Lord is represented; in the arms of the cross are the symbols of the four Evangelists, while the remaining spaces contain representations of the Apostles. Crosses are represented on the sides also, with Angels in various attitudes. The famous retables of St. Marks, Venice, known as the "Pala d'oro," which dates from the tenth century, was originally an antependium. To the following (eleventh) century belongs the splendid golden antependium presented to the Cathedral of Basel by the Emperor Henry II, now in the Musée de Cluny at Paris. In five columns, exceeds the figures of our Lord, the Archangel, Gabriel, Raphael, Michael, and St. Benedict are represented. Such costly antependia as these were of course rare; the material more commonly used was wood, with representations of Caries or saints. A painted wooden panel, executed in a manner very similar to the antependium of Basel, is preserved in the episcopal museum of Münster in Westphalia. It dates from the twelfth century. Down to the tenth century the altarism was in general use as a protection and ornamental feature of altars. The ciborium of San Apollinare in Classe, Ravenna, which belongs to the early ninth century, is, as noted above, essentially the same as those of the earlier period. After the tenth century, however, except in Italy and the Orient, where ciboria were always in favor (Holzar, Manuel d'archéologie française, I, 742), they were rarely employed. The best example of a ciborium of the early Gothic period is in the Church of Our Lady of Halberstadt, Germany, two other Gothic ciboria are in the cathedrals of Ratisbon and Vienna. In Italy numerous medieval ciboria still exist. The early types of Christian altars, unlike those most in vogue during the Middle Ages, had no antependium. So long, indeed, as the bishop's throne occupied the centre of the apse a retable "retabulum," which would conceal the bishop from the congregation, would have been impracticable. By degrees, as we have seen, the custom was introduced, with the general adoption of the Eastern apse, of the celebrant facing in the same direction as the congregation, and it became possible to introduce an ornamental panel at the back of the altar similar to the antependium. Probably the custom of exposing relics on the altar, approved by Pope Leo IV (P. L., CXXV, 677), exercised some influence on the development of the retable, and the antependium naturally suggested its form. The retable was introduced about the beginning of the twelfth century. The oldest existing example of it is the "Pala d'oro" of St. Mark's, Venice, which, after re-decoration, was detached from the front and placed at the back of the altar by the Doge Orseolo Faliero, in 1105. The Church of Kloster-Neuburg, near Vienna, also boasts a beautiful example of a twelfth century retable, with representations from the Old and the New Testament. The retable of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries was only moderately elevated when compared with the style which found favor in the late Gothic and Renaissance periods. The practice of exhibiting relics, which we have seen, authorized in the thirteenth century, was relinquished permanently kept on, or more frequently behind, the altar. In the latter case a platform was especially constructed for the purpose. In some instances the reliquaries formed part of the retable, but the more common arrangement was to place them on a platform. This practice of permanently exposing relics behind the Altar influenced certain other changes of importance with regard to the ciborium and the retable. The latter, instead of disappearing; there was no longer a reason for its existence, since the relics were provided with a new location; and the ciborium was modified into a "baldachin" placed above the reliquary part of the altar. An example of this arrangement of the thirteenth century, may be seen in the chapel of the Blessed Virgin, in the Church of St. Denis, Paris. At first only the altar of relics, usually placed at the end of the apse, was provided with a retable, but in the course of the fourteenth century the main altar also was similarly provided. The comparative simplicity of the early retables gradually yielded, in the course of the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, to the prevalent taste for richness of adornment, and reliquaries became of secondary consideration. The retable now became a great structure, reaching in many instances to the vault of the church, containing life-sized statues of Our Lord, the Blessed Virgin, and the saints, besides a number of representations in relief of sacred subjects. This structure was usually of wood, carved or painted. It was connected with the altar by means of a predella, or altar-step, similar to the predella of modern altars, for candleabra, on which the Apostles or other saints were depicted. Towards the end of the sixteenth century the influence of the Renaissance effected another change in the form of the altar. Porticoes, multiplied after the triumphal arches of antiquity, with statues in high and low relief, took the place of the retable, and more costly materials, such as rare marbles, were employed in their construction. In the seveneenth and eighteenth centuries especially, parts of the Renaissance style became encharged with ornamentation, often in bad taste and of inferior materials.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

The head-mistress of a certain village school was one day examining a few of her select pupils in grammar. "Stand up, Freddie and make me a sentence containing the word 'seldom,'" she said, pointing to a small urchin.

Freddie paused as if in thought, then with a flash of triumph on his face replied, "Last week father had five horses, but yesterday he seldom!"

Mrs. Fred Laine, St. George's Ont. writes:—"My little girl would cough, so at night that neither she nor I could get any rest. I gave her Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and am thankful to say it cured her cough quickly."

A bright-faced little boy in a sailor suit saluted the occupants of a passing motor-car so quietly that they stopped to give him a dime.

"You're a very polite little fellow," the lady motorist said, do you salute all the strangers who pass in the same way?"

"No, no, ma'am—only motorists," the boy stammered, fidgeting his coin nervously. "Father says I've always to be polite to them, because motorists bring him trade."

The lady seemed disappointed. "What is your father's trade, my little man? Does he repair motor-cars?"

"No, ma'am; he's an undertaker," was the significant response.

"Are you quite sure?"

Items of Interest.

A press despatch from Rome says Archbishop Sparretti, the Apostolic Delegate to Canada, who is now in the Eternal City, is about to return to Ottawa.

At a recent meeting of England's Catholic Educational Council, the Duke of Norfolk presiding, the following question was adopted and subsequently approved by the Bishops: "That this meeting of the Catholic Education Council condemns the education (special religious instruction) bill as flagrantly unjust, and urges Catholics to resist it by every means in their power."

The Archdiocese of Cologne, Germany, is probably the largest in the world. Last year it had 2,577,923 Catholics. These belonged to 914 parishes. In the Archdiocese of Cologne are 1,875 diocesan and 175 regular priests. The suffragan Sees of Cologne are large dioceses. That of Trier (or Treves) has 1,200,000 Catholics, 700 pastors, 180 chaplains and 150 other priests—in all, 1,290 priests. Cologne's second suffragan see is Munster, Westphalia, which has 1,154,084 Catholics and 1,283 priests. Its third is Paderborn, with 1,307,574 Catholics and 1,305 priests.

In Kilkenny the other day was celebrated the golden jubilee of a distinguished religious, Mother M. Chry somom Byrne, for twenty-seven years rectress of St. Patrick's Industrial school.

There seems to have been a most extraordinary amount of bungling and blundering in connection with the question of the proposed increase of the Provincial Subsidies. Our readers are already aware of the wretched failure of our Island delegates to the Ottawa Conference to safeguard the rights of this Province. The indignation of the Island electorate over this failure of our delegates, expressed in public meetings, in petitions to the Legislature, and the able exposure of this unfortunate blundering by the Opposition in our Legislature and by our Opposition members in the House of Commons, caused the Federal Government to add a saving clause, presumably preserving to us our rights. The blundering did not stop there. After the address to the King, asking for the amendment of the British North America Act re the subsidies, had gone from the House of Commons to the Senate, Senator Ferguson detected defects in it regarding the manner of appropriating the proposed increased subsidies to the Western Provinces. This necessitated the withdrawing of the matter from the Senate and re-modelling it in the Commons. Once the question was re-opened in the Commons a multiplicity of defects were discovered in the resolutions. A long debate ensued and abundant criticism, well merited, was hurled at the Minister of Justice and the Minister of Finance, who were responsible for the resolutions as they stood. During this discussion, Mr. Martin, M. P. for Queen's, again raised his voice in favor of better treatment for Prince Edward Island. In an able speech he moved an amendment to the effect that $100,000 additional be granted to Prince Edward Island for a period of ten years. He pointed out that the Conference had agreed to give such a grant to British Columbia and he felt sure our Province was entitled to as much as the Pacific Province was getting. Mr. A. A. McLean seconded and ably supported this motion. But the amendment was lost on division. Thus again was defeated the efforts of our Opposition members in the Commons to help Prince Edward Island.

The Canadian Post Office Department has made a regulation that inflicts a great hardship on the publishers of newspapers throughout the Dominion. By this regulation, which comes into force today, all Canadian papers going into the United States are subject to a heavy rate of postage. On every single paper sent to any address in the United States, henceforth one cent postage shall be prepaid, and must have a one cent stamp placed upon it. On packages of one or more papers addressed to the same station one cent for every four ounces shall be charged, and stamps to that value shall be attached. Subscribers in the United States, to Canadian papers, are generally speaking, widely scattered; so that practically the new regulation means that every Canadian paper sent to a subscriber in the United States must have a one cent stamp on every copy that leaves a post office in Canada. There are no exceptions; exchanges and all papers, whatsoever, are included. On a weekly paper this new regulation imposes a tax of fifty-two cents a year. That is what it means for the Herald. As our subscription price is but dollar a year, all we shall have left, after paying the postage is forty-eight cents a year for each paid up subscription. The regulation is simply outrageous and cannot be too strongly condemned and rebuffed. It simply prohibits any further expansion of our subscription business in the United States, at the old rates. If this regulation is to continue we shall have to charge our subscribers in the United States one dollar and fifty cents a year. The present Federal Government has from the beginning been dicker in legislation unfavorable to the newspapers; but this is the limit and should earn for the administration the severest condemnation from every independent journal in Canada.

Ottawa Weekly Letter.

A Period of Extravagance.

Current Expenditure Doubled in Ten Years.—Other Outlay Multiplied Several Times.—Taxation Much More Than Doubled.

MR. BORDEN MOVES A RESOLUTION.

Setting Forth the Vast Increase in Expenditure and Taxes.—Showing That They Are Swelled by Extravagance, Graft and Corruption.

Ottawa, April 27, 1907. Mr. Fielding has brought down a neat little supplementary estimate for the fiscal year that commenced the 1st of April. He asks for $7,230,847.05 on current account and $3,710,711, which he is pleased to charge to capital. The total bill for appropriations for the current year is—

This is a pretty heavy bill. It is far away beyond anything the country has ever seen. It should also be stated that the estimates do not include votes for railway subsidies. Nor do they include amounts required for bounties on iron and steel. These two items alone will bring the estimate up to $120,000,000.

IN FORMER DAYS. It is worth noting that the amount now asked for current expenses including bounties is $77,000,000 or almost exactly double the sum which in 1893 was denounced in all parts of speech by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright and the other leaders. It is just eleven years since Sir Richard Cartwright said "It is a disgrace and a shame to the Government that they come down to ask for the expenditure of $38,800,000 a year for Federal purposes. Sir, the thing is wholly unjustifiable."

MR. BORDEN STATES THE CASE

On Thursday Mr. Borden took the opinion of the House on this question of increased expenditure. He moved the following as an amendment to the motion to go into supply.

"That the enormous and rapidly increasing expenditure by the present administration is a matter of grave concern to Parliament and to the people.

That the expenditure authorized and the liabilities incurred are as follows:—

Table with 2 columns: Item, Amount. Total: $119,823,194

That this sum is equivalent to about $22 for every inhabitant of Canada, or $110 for every family of five persons. That the taxation (Customs and Inland Revenue duties) has increased from $27,759,285 in 1896 to $60,074,813 in 1906 and the per capita tax has increased from $5.46 in 1896 to more $10 in 1906.

EXTRAVAGANCE AND CORRUPTION CHARGED.

That the public assets have been depleted and the public expenditure has largely and unnecessarily increased by reason of the unsystematic, improvident and extravagant methods of the present administration which, while denying certain legitimate requirements of the public service lead themselves to the aggrandisement of designing partisan intriguers, who are thus enabled to enrich themselves at the expense of the people.

That the disclosures in the Committee on Public Accounts during the present and past sessions continually demonstrate that large sums of public money are misapplied in providing for middlemen absurd and unnecessary profits which can have been allowed only in the expectation that recipients will in return provide funds for party purposes.

That recent disclosures have exposed frauds in selections which frauds could not have been successfully carried out, without the expenditure of large sums of money and the aid of such middlemen.

That this House desires to place on record its strong condemnation of the maladministration and corruption thus brought to light."

THE MOTION DEBATED.

Mr. Borden supported this motion with a brief and comprehensive review, in which he referred to such exposures as the Arctic Supplies, the Merwin contracts, the Moncton and Halifax land deals, as illustrating the pillage which prevails and which is one cause for the largely increased expenditure.

Mr. Fielding's reply was the general statement that this is a growing time, that the revenues are sufficient to justify the outlay and that no important cases of corrupt or improper expenditure have been proved.

Mr. Foster retorted, mentioning several proved scandals showing that the majority of the Government has for ten years been used in the House to prevent exposure, and pointing out that the revenues Mr. Fielding boasted result from increased taxation. He referred to the verdict in the Halifax Herald libel case where a local jury found that the charges of graft in the Halifax land deal were amply proved.

ON THE VOTE BY THE USUAL PARTY MAJORITY.

AYLESWORTH AGAINST PROVINCIAL RIGHTS

Mr. Aylesworth has had unpleasant days. On Monday he threw himself into the fight in favor of declaring the Hamilton Radial Electric Railways a work for the general advantage of Canada. This would take the road out of Provincial control and place it under Federal authority. The Railway is promoted by Hon. J. M. Gibson, formerly Attorney-General of Ontario who went out of power with the Ross Government and has been doing a little lobbying among his friends at Ottawa. His Company seeks to extend its line into the heart of Toronto City. Had Mr. Aylesworth, been able to get the bill through Parliament neither the Legislature of Ontario nor the City of Toronto nor any municipality through which the road passes could protect its own roads and streets or get value for the franchise. Toronto City which gets a large amount from street railway franchises, protested. So did Hamilton, Conservative Members from Ontario including Mr. Borden, Mr. Foster, Mr. MacDunnell, Mr. McLean, Mr. Northrup, Mr. Blair, Dr. Barr, Dr. Sprague, Dr. Reid, Mr. Haggart, Mr. Oaker, Mr. Byles, Mr. Lyndon, Mr. Armstrong, Mr. Bennett, and Mr. Lancaster, strongly protested against this invasion of Provincial rights, involving as it did the usurpation of Dominion control over all local and street railways throughout the Country.

THE MINISTERS HUMILIATED

Mr. Aylesworth was supported vigorously by Archie Campbell, of Centre York, Mr. Clark, of South Essex, and several Liberal from Ontario and other Provinces, but many party men hesitated about this act of treason to the Provincial Rights doctrine.

They had not all forgotten the song "The traitor's hand is on thy throat. Ontario, Ontario!"

Yet it was only the obstinate fight of the Conservatives which prevailed. They kept up the opposition until midnight on Monday, renewing it in the hour for private bills on Tuesday, and killed the measure for the Session to spite of Mr. Aylesworth, and the promoters whom he has befriended. On Tuesday the Toronto Globe completed Mr. Aylesworth's humiliation by a leading article headed "Resist the usurper," ridiculing Mr. Aylesworth's fine speech, assailing "the touts of the interested Corporation who haunt the lobby of Parliament," denouncing as "radicalism" the pretences set up by the Minister of Justice, sneering at the clever evasions proposed, and declaring that Parliament would be a "disolute" body and "an illustration of anarchy" if it should give the corporation pirates the favors that they sought under the "trampy pretences" presented by Mr. Aylesworth.

A PAINFUL MEMORY.

Next day Mr. Aylesworth had the pleasure of listening while Mr. Ward of Durham and Mr. Foster read and repeated the canvass made by himself and his friends when Mr. Aylesworth was a candidate against Mr. Ward, Vote for Aylesworth and the canal! was the slogan at Port Hope. Port Hope's future rests in the hands of Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, said the Aylesworth organ. In Bowmanville the canvass was "Aylesworth and the clock in the Post Office Tower." The Minister had said at different Port Hope meetings, at least three from Sir Wilfrid Laurier about the Canal terminus. When Mr. Aylesworth boasted on Wednesday that he got a very large vote at Port Hope, these canvasses were exhibited. But Port Hope did not get the canal. The work goes to Trenton, and now it is the fate of Mr. Aylesworth to sit and listen to the recital of all the miserable little sectional appeals made by him and for him in Durham, and made in vain.

WEDDING BELLS.

The marriage of Miss Georgina Molloy, daughter of the late Martin Molloy of St. Peter's and Mr. John J. McKinnon, son of Daniel J. McKinnon, Southampton, was solemnized in St. Cecilia's Church, Boston on Sunday April 28th. The bride was given in white lace and carried bridal roses. The maid of honor, Miss Helen Mages of Bangor, Me., wore navy blue and carried white roses. The groomsmen were Mr. Joseph McMillan St. Peter's. Among those present at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Hines and Charles Jr. of Bangor; Miss Mary McMillan, Mrs. John Christolou, and Miss Gray, all of Hamletway Chambers; Mr. and Mrs. Stone, Huntington Chambers; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Cox; Dr. and Mrs. Brooks of Milton. Abundance of gifts and confetti were showered upon the bridal couple, and many valuable and useful presents are received by them. A very enjoyable evening was spent by all present and that the bridal couple might have many years of happy wedded life was the parting wish of the visiting friends. Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon will reside at Wallisport, Mass.—Conn.

IRON AND STEEL BOUNTIES

Mr. Fielding has made the greatest protectionist speech of his parliamentary career in defending the policy of iron and steel bounties. He and his party denounced the bounty policy for many years. When they came into power they promised to abolish bounties as soon as the period should run out for which they had been established. This promise was broken, and Bounties were continued on a downward sliding scale, which Mr. Fielding declared, would bring them to an end in July of this year. The Minister of Finance boasted of this in many meetings held at places remote from the iron industry. But this year he has introduced a measure restoring the duties as they stood two years ago, continuing all of them for four years and some for six years longer. He explains that in the past nine years $8,000,000 has been paid in bounties and that $8,000,000 more will be expended under the bill introduced.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC PROSE-LYTE

Mr. Fielding admitted having received petitions from many agricultural constituencies against these bounties, but pleaded that the farmers did not understand these things. Dr. Chisholm, Mr. Lalor, Mr. Wilson of Lennox, Mr. Lancaster, Mr. Clements and Mr. Wright, whose constituencies have protested against these bounties, spoke for these electors in the House, some claiming that the iron industry was sufficiently protected, and some that protection should be by tariff and not by bounties. Mr. Fielding replied that under this protection communities have been built up, large increases in customs revenue produced, the coal industry stimulated, working people kept at home, a farmer's market provided and so on, until Mr. Foster described the Finance Minister as a student in the school of protection who though at first intractable and dull had now become so accomplished a scholar that he was starting a school of instruction against his old doctrine.

END OF SESSION

The business of parliament closes today. It has been an unfortunate session for the Government. Two Ministers, and these in charge of the largest spending departments have disappeared under a cloud. Two land-selling scandals in the West and two land buying scandals in the East are among the disgraceful disclosures. More than usual effort has been made by ministerial members in the Committee, to choke off investigations, but they have not been wholly successful in concealing the fact. The London election conspiracy trials are impending and many disquieting events and developments are in prospect for the administration. There is trouble over the reversal of the old Provincial right policy on the tariff and on bounties Sir Wilfrid will find many anxieties awaiting him when he comes home.

"Then I'm agin it!" answered Farmer Giles, with a firmness that suggested some domestic infelicity.
