'Margaret,' The GIRL ARTIST, The Countess of Ferrers Court.

CHAPTER XXI.

The sun poured its generous warmth over the Villa Capri, laying the white stone front of the graceful house with its bright rays, and tinting the statues on the terraces, which, in Italian fashion, rose in three tiers from the smooth lawn to the salon and dining-room windows. On the highest of the three terraces, lying back in a hammock chair of velvet tapestry, was an old lady with a face of aristocratic beauty set in snow-white hair. At a little distance, pacing up and down, were two young ladies, the younger of the two with her arm round the waist of her companion, and her beautiful young face turned up with that air of pure devotion and affection which only exists in the heart of one woman for another.

The old lady was the Princess Rivani, the mother of Florence and Ferdinand; and the two girls were Margaret and Florence. It had come to pass that Margaret was an honored inmate of the Villa Capri.

The Princess Florence had fallen in love with Margaret's lovely face, and its sad, gentle smile, and still more with her sweet voice, and had taken a fancy that Margaret's presence in the villa was necessary to her existence; and as princesses' whims are born but to be gratified, Margaret was here.

The mother, who made a rule never to deny her darling child any innocent and harmless desire, welcomed Margaret with the gentle sweetness of a patrician, combined with the frank candor of an old lady.

"I am very glad to see you, Miss Leslie," she had said. "You have won my daughter's heart, and your presence seems necessary to her happiness. I trust you will not let her be a burden to you. Please consider the villa your home while it seems good to you to remain with us, and I hope that will be for a long period."

That was all; but as the signora—as the elder princess was called—always said what she meant, and never more than she meant, it was a good deal. She had scanned Margaret's face when she had been presented to her, and had listened to her voice, and was convinced that Margaret was a lady, and a fit companion for the princess, and she had said so in a sentence to her daughter.

"I like your friend, Florence, and I can understand the charm she exerts over you. It is a very lovely face, is it not?"

"Is it not, mamma?" exclaimed Florence enthusiastically.

"But it is a very sad one. I am afraid Miss Leslie has had some great trouble, one of those sorrows which set their mark upon the heart, as a fell disease brands the face."

Don't Cough Your Throat Sore
"Nerviline" Will Cure You Quickly.

The Annoyance of a Bad Cough Soothed Away in One Day.

Nothing so bad for the throat as coughing, and nothing half so annoying as to have some one near by that is hacking, sneezing, or constantly clearing the throat.

Rub on Nerviline—it will save you all further pain and distress. Even one good rub with this soothing, penetrating remedy will bring the finest relief, will take out that rasping soreness, will stop that irritating tickle that makes you want to cough so much.

Nerviline isn't something new. It has a record of forty years of wonderful success behind it.

"But you will not like her the less for that, mamma?" Florence had said, and the signora had replied with a sigh:

"No, rather the more, my dear," for the signora had suffered also in her life.

So the princess had her wish gratified, and Margaret came to the villa, and the princess, instead of growing tired of her, as one would be tempted to prophesy, seemed to grow more attached and devoted as the days rolled into weeks, and the weeks threatened to glide into months.

If it had not been for the experience of the grandeur of Leyton Court, Margaret might have been rather overwhelmed by the splendor of Capri Villa, for the Rivani were great people, of the best blood in Italy, and lived in a state befitting their rank.

The villa was not so large as the Court—that Court which Blair had often told her she would one day be mistress of—but it was exquisitely situated, and the interior was replete with the refined splendor of a palace.

The suit of rooms allotted to Margaret were large and grand enough for a duchess, but when she murmured something in deprecation of such sumptuous apartments, the princess had opened her blue eyes wide and smiled with surprise.

"Oh, but I want you to be comfortable, dear," she said. "I want you to feel at home—that is the English phrase, isn't it?"

"Yes, but 'at home' all my rooms would have gone into the smallest you have given me," Margaret had said, smiling.

"Really! Well, at any rate you need large rooms, for are you not an artist, and do you not want a studio? Ferdinand has given orders that the large room with the big window is to be fitted up as a painting-room for you; and he promised to choose some pictures and some curios, and all those kind of things you artists love, to furnish it. He has gone to Rome, you know."

Margaret looked rather grave. A prince is a prince to us English people, and it rather alarmed her that she should be the cause of so much trouble to his highness.

The princess laughed at her serious countenance.

"Do not look so grave," she said. "It was Ferd's own idea. He chose the rooms, and said how nice the big one would do for a studio. You can't think how thoughtful he is—when he chooses to think at all."

"His highness is very good," said Margaret, "but I am ashamed to give him so much trouble."

The princess laughed again.

"Ferd's great relief is that he has nothing to do, for you see there is nothing to employ him here. The steward looks after the land, and the major domo does all the business in the villa, and there is nothing for poor Ferd to do when he is away from the court. I want you to like my brother, Miss Leslie," she added.

"I should be very ungrateful if I did not," said Margaret.

All this had occurred on the first day of her arrival; since then the studio had been furnished and she had been made to feel as if she were part and parcel of the Rivani family. Just before Margaret's arrival, the prince had been called away by his duties to the Italian Court, and the three ladies were left alone, so that Margaret had as yet had no opportunity of thanking him for his kindness, of which she was reminded every time she entered the luxurious studio he had furnished for her.

Margaret's lines had indeed fallen in pleasant places, and if the possession of good and true friends and the comforts of a luxury brought to the highest state of perfection, could have brought happiness, she would have been happy. But the sadness which wrapped her as in a veil through which she smiled, and sometimes laughed, never left her, and she spent hours in her studio, with the brush lying untouched, and her dark eyes fixed dreamily upon the hills which rose before her windows. She could not prevent her thoughts from traveling back toward the past, that past with which she had done forever, and often in the gloaming of the late summer evenings she would see Blair's face rise before her, and hear his voice as she had heard it during those few happy weeks when she had believed him to be her lover and husband.

There was only one way of escape from these thoughts, this flitting back of her heart which brought her so keen an anguish, and that was in work.

She had come to the villa on the understanding that she should give lessons in painting to the princess, but Florence soon showed the futility of such an arrangement.

"Dear, you will never make me an artist," she said, "never, do what you will! I can learn to paint a barn or a village pump, so that I needn't write 'this is a barn,' or 'this is a pump,' underneath them, but that is all. Don't waste your valuable time upon an impracticable— isn't that a splendid English word?—subject, but do your own work. I'll bring you my dreadful daubs, and you shall tell me where I am wrong, but you sha'n't work and drudge like an ordinary drawing-mistress. I daren't let you, for the last words Ferd said were, 'Don't abuse Miss Leslie's good nature, and bore her! Remember that she is an artist, and she's somebody to the world that you must not rob it of!' and Ferd said wisely."

"I think he spoke too generously, and thought only of the stranger within his gates," said Margaret.

"But mamma thinks the same," said the princess. "She has set her heart upon your painting a great picture while you are at the villa. You know that mamma and Ferd are devoted to art. I think that either of them would rather be an artist—a true artist—than Ruler of Italy, and if you want to do them an honor, why paint a grand picture, exhibit it at the Salon, and date it from the Villa Capri."

Life at the villa, Margaret found, was one of routine—pleasant, easy routine—but still carefully measured out and planned.

At eight the great bell in the campanille rang for rising; at nine the household gathered in the hall for prayers; at half-past breakfast was served. At one o'clock the luncheon bell rang, and at seven the major domo, in his solemn suit of black, stood at the drawing-room door to announce dinner.

There was an army of servants, male and female, and the three ladies were attended with as much state as if the king were present.

Between breakfast and dinner Margaret worked.

Art is a jealous mistress; she will not share her shrine with any other god, though it be Cupid himself. If Margaret had remained the happy wife of Lord Blair, it is a question whether any more pictures of worth would have left her easel, but now, with her great sorrow ever present with her, she felt that her work alone would bring her partial forgetfulness.

And she did work. At first she thought she would paint a view of Florence from the hills, and she made a very fair sketch; but, about a week after her arrival at the villa she was sitting before a fresh canvas, and, her thoughts flying back to the past, she, all unwittingly, took up the charcoal and began to draw the outline of the Long Rock at Appleford. It was not until she had sketched in the whole of the scene that she became conscious of what she was doing; and when she had so become conscious, she took up her brush to wipe the marks out. Then she hesitated. A desire to paint the scene took possession of her, and she went on with it.

She painted the rock, with the sea raging round it, and the sky threatening it from above; and, as she painted, the whole scene came back to her, just as a scene which a novelist has witnessed with his own eyes comes back to him.

As and the picture grew, it exerted a fascination for her which she could not resist.

On this she worked day after day, carefully locking up, the unfinished picture in the mahogany case which the prince had supplied with the rest of the furniture of the studio.

She felt that she could do nothing until it was finished. One day the princess knocked at the door, and Margaret, before she opened it, hurriedly inclosed the canvas in its mahogany case.

"Why, you have shut your picture up," said the princess in a tone of disappointment.

"I will show it to you, if you wish," said Margaret, laying her hand upon the key; but the princess stopped her.

"No, no," she said. "Do not, I think I understand. It is your great picture, is it not? And you do not want any one to see it until it is finished."

WOMAN GIVEN TWO DAYS

To Make Up Her Mind for Surgical Operation. She Refused; Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"One year ago I was very sick and I suffered with pains in my side and back until I nearly went crazy. I went to different doctors and they all said I had female trouble and would not get any relief until I would be operated on. I had suffered for four years before this time, but I kept getting worse the more medicine I took. Every month since I was a young girl I had suffered with cramps in my sides at periods and was never regular. I saw your advertisement in the newspaper and the picture of a woman who had been saved from an operation and this picture was impressed on my mind. The doctor had given me only two more days to make up my mind so I sent my husband to the drug store at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and believe me, I only took four doses before I felt a change and when I had finished the third bottle I was cured and never felt better. I grant you the privilege to publish my letter and am only too glad to let other women know of my cure."—Mrs. Thos. McGOWAN, 3432 Hartville Street, Phila., Pa.

AGREEMENT REACHED.

LONDON, April 20.—An agreement was reached upon the proposals which the Ministers will make to Parliament on the subject of recruiting. Their proposals will be submitted at a secret session of the House of Parliament on Tuesday. The foregoing was announced in an official statement, issued this afternoon.

COALITION CANDIDATE ELECTED.

LONDON, April 20.—Sir Stuart Coats, Coalition candidate, has been elected member of Parliament from Wembley, Surrey, over Kennedy Jones, Independent, with a majority of 811.

RUSSIANS IN FRANCE.

PARIS, April 20.—A strong force of Russian troops disembarked at Marseilles to-day. The Russians are to fight beside the Allied soldiers in France. Joffre welcomed the Russians in an order of the day, saying their arrival was another striking proof of the devotion of Russia to the common cause.

RUSSIANS WELCOMED IN FRANCE.

MARSEILLES, April 20.—The Russian National Anthem was sung as the first transport La Touche Treville drew up. The Russian officers and sailors were lined up along the decks and on the bridges of the transports. Russian bands played the Marseillaise as the disembarkation began and cheers went up from the Russians on the transports. General Lochevsky, commander of the Russian forces, was received with military honors by General Menassier, the Governor of Marseilles and General Gervie representing General Joffre. A notable gathering of Russian and French officials joined in the exchange of salutations and the Russian and French soldiers were let loose amid salvoes of cheers, while cannon roared in exchange of salutes.

The coming of the Russian troops to the Western front has been talked of by military people for two or three months. The reason, as now explained, is that it is easier for Russia to supply fighting material to the Russian troops on the western front than on the eastern. In Russia there are still many hundreds of thousands more men under training than she can use on her fighting lines, because the Russian problem continues to be not how to get men, but munitions. The Allies can provide complete equipment for the Russians more easily in France than by shipping to Russia. Possibly a quarter of a million men will be sent into France this spring.

ARCHANGEL CLOSED.

AGREEMENT REACHED.
LONDON, April 20. At a meeting of the Cabinet to-day, an agreement was reached upon the proposals which the Ministers will make to Parliament on the subject of recruiting. Their proposals will be submitted at a secret session of each House of Parliament on Tuesday. The foregoing was announced in an official statement issued this afternoon.

COALITION CANDIDATE ELECTED.
LONDON, April 20. Sir Stuart Coats, Coalition candidate, has been elected member of Parliament from Wimbledon, Surrey, over Kennedy Jones, Independent, with a majority of 811.

RUSSIANS IN FRANCE.
PARIS, April 20. A strong force of Russian troops disembarked at Marseilles today. The Russians are to fight beside the Allied soldiers in France. Joffre welcomed the Russians in an order of the day, saying their arrival was another striking proof of the devotion of Russia to the common cause.

RUSSIAN WELCOMED IN FRANCE.
MARSEILLES, April 20. The Russian National Anthem was sung as the first transport La Touche Twelle drew up. The Russian officers and sailors were lined up along the decks and on the bridges of the transports. Russian bands played the Marseillaise as the disembarkation began and cheers went up from the Russians on the transports. General Lohewy, commander of the Russian forces, was received with military honors by General Messadier, the Governor of Marseilles and General Gerwin representing General Joffre. A notable gathering of Russian and French officials joined in the exchange of salutations and the Russian and French soldiers were let loose amid salvos of cheers, while cannon roared in exchange of salutes.

ed to include all the White Sea and Arctic ports. No official explanation is forthcoming for the new order, but it is believed it has to do with the movement of Russian troops to France.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, April 21. (Official.) Following heavy artillery preparation the Germans last night launched a powerful attack on a front of more than a mile against French positions northeast of Verdun. The assault was directed against the French lines between Thiamont and south of Douaumont fort. The Germans succeeded in entering the French lines, but were later repulsed by a French counter-attack. The French captured numbers of prisoners and two quickfiring in the counter attack. The French also advanced their lines on both sides of the Meuse. On the west bank in the region of Dead Man's Hill, the French followed up the successes of yesterday's fighting by capturing a trench on the edge of Carrette Wood capturing four German officers and 150 men. On the east bank of the Meuse the French made progress south of Haudremont, rescuing several wounded French soldiers and capturing twenty Germans.

ACTIVITY IN FLANDERS.

LONDON, April 20. (Official.) Last night after heavy bombardment the Germans attacked our lines about Ypres at four points, St. Eloi, the Bluff, Welch and on the Ypres-Langemarck road where he retains one trench near Mametz. A hostile raid failed to reach our trenches. There has been mining activity to-day about the quarries south of Givenchy in which we had the advantage.

RECALLED FROM WESTERN FRONT.

LONDON, April 21. A Morning Post despatch from Bernie says that Field Marshal Count Von Sneseler, who has been the Crown Prince's guide and inspiring spirit since the beginning of the war has been recalled from the Western front. The Supreme military authorities have selected him as the scapegoat for the failure of the attacks on Verdun.

IN MESOPOTAMIA.

LONDON, April 21. (Official.) Previous to the Turkish counter-attack the enemy left between 200 and 300 dead in the captured trenches. Two field guns, five machine guns, and prisoners aggregating 130 including 8 officers, also were taken. Our losses were comparatively small. An aeroplane reconnaissance after the enemy counter attack disclosed the fact that a large number of Turkish ambulances were busy all day removing the wounded.

TURKISH LOSSES.

LONDON, April 21. The recent attacks by the Turks on the British forces along the Tigris were made by about 10,000 men, and cost them heavy losses. An official statement says: They came on in dense formation and penetrated part of our front. Within 500 yards of the front of one of our brigades alone, 1,200 to 1,500 dead Turks were counted, and it is reported that they are lying thick farther out. Their kill-rol on the night of April 17-18 are estimated at more than 3,000. In several instances the attacks were led by Germans, some of whom were killed. Apparently the enemy supposed that part of our troops were isolated by floods, and they had a chance of overwhelming us, as a matter of fact supports were moving up at the time. Our total casualties in killed, wounded and missing, though very considerable, are less than the Turkish killed.

WANTS SEPARATE PEACE.

LONDON, April 21. A Salonika despatch to the Chronicle says: "I learn that intermediary agents are sounding Allied circles in more than one quarter on behalf of the Turkish Government, in order to find out what chances there are for separate peace. So far, I am informed, such efforts have led to nothing, but the disaster in Asia Minor may cause them to take a more direct form."

WILSON'S ACTION ENDORSED.

ALBANY, N.Y., April 21. The Republican Legislature of New York State in the closing hours of the 1916 session to-night adopted a resolution pledging its unqualified support to President Wilson and Congress in any action necessary to maintain the nation's honor, and its willingness to support Governor Whitman in any exercise of authority for that purpose to the full extent of the resource of the State.

BERNSTORFF CONFERS WITH LANSSING.

Count Von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, called at the State Department to-day, and had twenty-five minutes conference with Secretary Lansing in the desire to prevent a break between his country and the United States. The President having laid down the condition that there must be an abandonment of the present submarine methods, Lanssing takes the view that there must be a direct formal response from the German Government itself, before there can be a discussion of the various phases of the subject, or of any alternative propositions short of absolute compliance with the American demands.

VIOLENT OUTBREAKS IN BERLIN.

PARIS, April 21. The Journal Des Debats prints a Fournier News Agency despatch received by way of Basel, Switzerland, alleging that violent outbreaks occurred before the Reichstag buildings during Dr. Karl Liebknecht's recent interpellation. It asserts that the enormous crowd had to be held back by the troops who finally fired upon the people killing more than 200 persons. The despatch is not confirmed.

DANISH STEAMER CAPTURED.

LONDON, April 21. The Danish steamer England, bound from Rplague for Copenhagen, was captured in the Cattogat by Germans, and taken into Swinemuede, according to a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen.

MEETING FORBIDDEN.

PARIS, April 21. A Madrid despatch to the Temps says that a meeting which was to have been held to protest against the torpedoing of the Spanish steamer Vigo, in the Bay of Biscay, has been forbidden by the Spanish Government on the ground that prudence is essential under the present disturbed conditions. Leaders of the Republican, Radical and Socialist parties made arrangements for the meeting. The Spanish Government received a number of telegrams of protest seeking to obtain satisfaction from Germany for the loss of the Vigo. The German Embassy has issued an announcement to the effect that the Vigo was torpedoed because she was carrying contraband, and that time was given to the crew to leave the vessel.

GERMANY AND THE U.S. NOTE.

BERLIN, April 21. Nothing has yet developed as a result of the receipt of the American note to Germany, concerning Germany's submarine warfare. No expression of opinion is obtainable from the Foreign Office, where absolute reticence has been maintained. Neither the note nor any reference to it has been published in Germany, and there is no intimation as yet when the note will be made public. Celebrations of Holy Week and Easter, therefore, are proceeding undisturbed by any knowledge of foreign complications. Ministers and other officials who were entitled to it, received a copy of the note this morning, and were engaged during the day studying the document. As far as the Associated Press has been made acquainted with the sentiment in higher quarters, it would be wrong to regard the situation as anything but extremely grave. The note will probably be answered some time next week, after serious consideration has been given to the American contention, but there is little hope that any answer can go to the length demanded by the Washington Government, despite the fact that the Government desires to maintain good relations with the States. Sentiment against any further weakening of Germany's submarine campaign, say nothing about the abandonment of it.

Philadelphia, April 14.—The Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company formal contract with the British Government for 100 howitzers at $27,000 each. It is believed that extensive additions to the Nicetown plant will be begun immediately to handle the work.

A report, issued from sources close to the Midvale company, this afternoon said that preparations already are under way for a $1,000,000 addition to the company's plant. The present capacity of the Midvale works is taxed to the limit with ordnance and other contracts.

TRENCH ACTIVITY.

LONDON, To-day. British official: There has been mining activity near Fricourt, Souchez, Hulluch and Givency. During last night we dispersed a party of Germans who left their trenches near St. Eloi. There has been trench mortar fighting south of Arras and artillery duels between Souchez, La-hasse Canal and the neighbourhood of Ypres.

S. S. SABIA SUNK.

LONDON, To-day. The British steamer Sabia has been sunk, according to the Central News, and the captain and 24 men of the crew landed. The Sabia is a vessel of 2307 tons and owned in London. Available shipping records show she arrived on March 2 at Marseilles from Cardiff.

BUDGET OF WAR NEWS.

NEW YORK, To-day. On all fronts around Verdun the Germans are heavily bombarding the French positions, especially those occupied by the French in their last attack around Le Mort Homme, north-west of the fortress, and in the sector from the eastern bank of the Meuse to Fort Vaux. No infantry engagements have taken place around Verdun, although Paris records the occupation of a portion of a crater made by a German mine in Argonne forest. The Tenthons in East Galicia, near Popovazora went on the offensive against the Russians, but Petrograd asserts their efforts were without result. The bombardment by the Germans of the Russians holding Ikskull bridgehead is still in progress. Farther south of a point west of Olyka and north of Mouritzva the Germans essayed an attempt on the Russian trenches but were repulsed. On the Austro-Italian front there have been the usual artillery duels and at various points small infantry engagements. No point, however, has any important change of position taken place. Petrograd reports the Russian Caucasus army continues on the offensive against the Turks in the Black Sea district in Asia Minor. Constantinople in acknowledging the occupation of Trebizond by the Russians says the town had already been evacuated in anticipation of its capture. Turkish troops are withdrawing in accordance with instructions to the sector where they will have a new task to fulfil.

WELL DONE, RYAN!

NEW YORK, To-day. Australia, with 200,000 men at the front at an annual cost to the country of $50,000,000, is drilling another 100,000 soldiers, and is prepared to exhaust her resources in men and wealth to aid the Entente Allies, according to Hon. T. J. Ryan, Prime Minister and Attorney General of Queensland, who arrived here yesterday with other members of the official party on their way to London. As evidence of the patriotism which is felt all over Australia towards the cause of the war, Ryan stated he is carrying a set of engrossed resolutions from the Queensland Irish Association endorsing the activities of John Redmond in endeavouring to get all Irishmen to enlist in the army.

EX-PRESIDENT TAFT BACKS PRESIDENT WILSON.

CHICAGO, To-day. War with Germany seems unavoidable, unless Germany recedes from its position in submarine controversy, is the opinion of ex-President Taft. In a speech yesterday Taft asked the audience to stand by President Wilson in this present crisis. He expressed the hope that diplomatic interchanges would avert war. This is a terribly trying hour for the United States, he said. President Wilson is President of all of us, and I am a citizen of the United States.

VON GOLTZ DEAD.

BITTER ATTACK ON LLOYD GEORGE.

LONDON, To-day. Displeasure expressed by radicals over the attitude of Lloyd George, culminated to-day in a remarkable open letter by Alfred G. Gardiner, editor of the Daily News, in which Gardiner charges Lloyd George with responsibility for the Government crisis just passed. The crisis this week, says the Gardiner letter, "was the culmination of all your activities. The country has made its choice between Asquith and you. It heard much about Asquith from your friends of the press. You escaped insult. You will escape exposure no longer. In the heated atmosphere of your mind, you believe yourself a man of destiny. Democracy has been only a veil to you, not a faith. When the storm came, the adventurer within you made short work of the democrat. Now you could have ten months power of Napoleon, whereof you once spoke to me. Parliament becomes a nuisance and democracy an encumbrance from your friends of a new heaven and earth. You never understood nor liked Trade Unionism. You are essentially an agrarian agitator. This has been the crucial collision between you and Asquith. Throughout he sought to carry labor with him. You in an apocalyptic vision of yourself as the Saviour of Europe turned to compulsion. You were one of the chief architects of the fallen Liberal Government and the establishment of the Coalition, but the new Government was not what you intended. Asquith, Grey and Kitchener remained, and it was subjected from the outset to that bitter, relentless attack which you are assuming you have been in close intimacy with the chief assailants of the Government?"

HUNGARIANS WANT PEACE.

LONDON, To-day. The Daily Telegraph's Milan correspondent says that a significant symptom regarding Hapsburg Monarchy is shown by an outbreak of Hungarian newspapers in favour of peace. Asquith's recent speech regarding peace conditions, the despatch says, has been commented by Hungarians, who are anxious on account of German aggressiveness, respecting small nationalities at the end of the war.

GERMANS SEIZE DANISH SHIP.

COPENHAGEN, To-day. The Danish steamer Esbjerg, bound from Bordeaux for Copenhagen with a cargo of wire, has been seized by a German cruiser in the Cattegat and taken to Swinebunden. This is the first time the Germans have captured a Danish vessel laden with goods in an enemy country and bound for Denmark.

MORE HUN TRICKERY.

LONDON, To-day. The Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Mail cables that the crisis in Holland continues to cause great anxiety. It is understood, he says, that Germany has informed Holland that Great Britain intended to attack her, and offered to send German troops to Holland.

ANOTHER ADVANCE FRUSTRATED.

PARIS, To-day. An intense bombardment of the French front before Verdun between the Meuse and Fort Vaux was followed last night by an attempt on the part of the German troops to advance. The War Office announcement this afternoon says the advance was prevented by artillery fire of the French which inflicted heavy losses on the Germans.

ARMS SEIZED BY POLICE.

Self Poisoning by Food

The food which is taken to nourish the body and keep up vigor and strength becomes a poison to the system when digestion fails. You feel drowsy after meals, lose appetite, suffer from constipation, have pains in the bowels and through the body. Instead of being digested, the food ferments and gives rise to gas or wind on the stomach, which crowds about the heart, causing suffocating feelings and derangements of the heart's action.

Resort to aids to digestion cannot afford more than temporary relief, for the trouble is caused by torpid, sluggish action of the liver and bowels. These organs must be awakened so that they will filter the poisons from the blood and remove from the system the accumulating waste matter.

Here lies the cause of indigestion and dyspepsia, and neglect only leads to chronic and complicated derangements, which destroy all comfort and shorten life.

The ideal treatment for indigestion is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because they promptly and positively remove the cause of trouble. Acting directly and specifically on the liver, kidneys and bowels, they cleanse the system of all impurities, and their occasional use keeps these filtering and excretory organs regular and active. The blood is purified, pains and aches disappear, and such derangements as indigestion, constipation, biliousness, back-ache and kidney derangements are cured.

One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be misled into accepting a substitute. Imitations disappoint.

Good Friday Service.

At Wesley Church Rev. H. Royle delivered a very fine discourse from Romans 8: 3.—"But God commendeth His love toward us, in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us." His theme was the boundless love of God. We must not think of resurrection in connection with it, as that would imply it could be measured. "For the love of God is broader than the measure of man's mind," and no plummet can reach its depth or sounding lead find its bottom; in width it is limitless, for as far as the east is from the west he can remove our transgressions from us. He referred to the change of mind of the talented editor of "John Bull," a splendid English magazine. Horatio Bottomley had strong atheistical opinions that very often obtruded in his articles like ugly rock in rich gold-bearing quartz. Now this gifted man writes that only Christianity and the teaching of the love of God through Christ can transform men and women from the vice of intemperance and sin, and from the slums to a better life. All the points were forcefully applied as he urged for the surrender to God's service because of the unparalleled love of His Son in his death upon the cross. The choir sang "There is a green hill far away," and all the hymns were appropriate for a solemn service.

Judge Not.

By RUTH CAMERON.

At the next stop a woman with a little boy got on and sat down beside me.

The little boy wanted to kneel on the seat and look out the window (it was one of the old-fashioned cars).

His mother permitted it, and I saw the little boy get on and sit down beside me.

The lady of the lovely coat could stand it no longer, but rose to her feet.

The mother of the little fellow at once made him sit down, grown-up fashion.

He didn't like it, and his lip quivered. He was an engaging little fellow, and it was plain the sympathy of the car was with him.

"Stuck Up People Shouldn't Ride On The Trolley."

"People that are so terribly stuck up shouldn't ride in the trolley car."

heard the woman on the other side of the mother remark.

"Yes," sighed the mother; "people that have plenty of money and fine clothes don't seem to have much use for children. I suppose she has a lap dog instead of a baby in her home."

The woman with the lovely coat flushed. It was plain to see that she sensed the criticism of the car.

For myself, I felt that she had been a little more obviously nervous than circumstances required. The child's shoes were not muddy.

As it happened, we got off the car at the same stop and I had to ask my way of her. She answered very graciously and walked along with me.

She was silent for a moment, and then spoke out impetuously.

"The Lady Of The Lovely Coat Justifies Herself."

"I feel as if I must tell you something," she said. "I hated to act as I did on the car. That was a dear little boy, and I love children. I have four myself. But you see—well, that coat wasn't my own. A friend insisted on my taking it for a special occasion when it was really important I should look right. I didn't have anything suitable to wear myself—you know how it is when there are four children growing up—and she insisted that I leave my coat with her and wear this and wear it back to day. And I've been positively miserable for fear something would happen to it. If it had been my own coat, I shouldn't have acted like that."

She paused. "I don't know why I tell you this," she went on, "except that I knew I was being judged and I felt as if I must defend myself."

I said that I did, with all the cordiality I am mistress of. You see I felt her debtor for a little object lesson that I evidently needed.

You can't judge any act by itself alone. You should know all the circumstances leading up to it, all the motives of those concerned. That is a warning I have often sounded in these columns. I seem to need it myself.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggist."

Divers Reach S. S. Tubantia.

Pieces of Metal From Torpedo Are Found in Life Boat.

The Hague, April 13, via London, April 14.—The minister of marine today made public the following communication:

"The favorable weather has enabled divers to enter the steamer Tubantia, whose damaged starboard side is only ten metres below the surface. No remains of a torpedo or mine have been discovered, but more pieces of metal have been found in another Tubantia lifeboat picked up near Terschelling, one being part of the mechanism of a torpedo, punched with a number which probably will definitely fix the identity of the torpedo which hit the Tubantia. The Government has asked the co-operation of the German Government to this end."

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X Lamp and GASTREAM Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.

REV. CANON SMITH'S The Resurrection

So much has been written of the Resurrection that it is almost impossible to say anything new about it.

True Easter joy is joy in the fact that glad spirit can be obtained without careful fasting, prayer, alms giving, and other good works.

Hence the season of Lent, with its fasts, prayers, and other good works, is not wiffully to sin again.

These during the week preceding the Easter Sunday stand at the foot of the cross, there learn the only way to safety through the valley of life into eternal life.

This dread war is, as the Empire are concerned, the performance of our duty to the performance of our duty to the performance of our duty.

OUR EASTER MESSAGES.

It is our privilege again to present a page of Easter Messages. We asked Clergymen of all denominations for messages, and regret that in some instances the many duties of the Lenten Season prevented contributions.

REV. CANON SMITH. The Resurrection Call.

So much has been written in the way of comment upon this great day and the manner in which we should conduct ourselves in connection therewith, that I had entertained serious thought of being silent about it for a space, and content myself with reading of its progress as recorded in the press. But as you, sir, have thought that I could say something about it that would just now be helpful to my fellow countrymen, and have asked me to do so, I must rise myself and try to comply with your request.

True Easter joy is joy in the Lord, and that glad spirit can not be attained without the careful preparation being made for its reception. Hence the season of Lent with its fasting, prayer, alms giving, humiliation of soul in deep penitence for sin done and resolution by God's grace not wilfully to sin again. Then during the week immediately preceding the Easter festival we stand at the foot of the Cross and there learn the only way to pass on safely through the valley of death into eternal life. In a word, we are to arise "from the death of sin to a life of righteousness." The call is "Awake thou that sleepest, arise from the dead and Christ shall give thee light."

This dead war is, as far as we of the Empire are concerned, a visitation of all by Almighty God Himself. Therefore to us it brings with it its own resurrection call to a full performance of our duty in connection with this war.

The Lord is going on before us, and His call is "Arise, let us go hence" to the performance of our duty. If like Me in its performance you have to pass through dark Gethsemane and journey on the hard road of the bitter Cross right down to the foot of the cross in order to share in My Resurrection. We may be sure of this, viz: that "the Lord is mindful of His own," and He has not forgotten to come to the aid of those who are obedient to His call but have fallen nobly in this dread fight.

But what shall we say of those young men physically fit for service but who will not come to the colours, or their either selfish or faint hearted conduct even excusable, much less commendable. Certainly not. Nothing greater for condemnation is the despicable conduct of those able-bodied young men who have recently run away to the United States in order to escape conscription which they thought was impending. And of quite a number of other young men who I hear are about to attempt climbing into supposed safety through the same "LUBBER'S HOLE." These and some other of our young men need to be reminded that the only way of duty is the only way of safety for them, as well as for others. Any other road but that leads to condemnation and death.

It is certain that, live as long as we may, and take as much care as we can of our pitiful carcasses, death must surely come to all of us, and there is no escape therefrom. "Be the day short or be the day long—At length it ringeth to Evensong!"

For the whole world and all its inhabitants. Happy then is he who tries to do his duty while yet he has time to do it, since for him death will have no terror for he will know it to be but the gate that opens into eternal life. The Easter call is the Resurrection call, and it is this.

"Awake! Awake! put on thy strength O Zion. Arise! shake thyself from the dust, and put on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem."

For "the King's Daughter is all glorious."

REV. F. R. MATTHEWS.
Hope for Two Worlds.

Easter is not a national event. Platte wrote his inscription in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, to-day that inscription is written in many hundreds of tongues. To-morrow it will be written in every language that is taught in a school.

Easter speaks of hope for the life that now is. It was Platte who said that "if ever the Divine love appeared on earth, He would not be a tender, sleek and beautiful person as many supposed, but lean, ill-favoured, shaggy and homeless, a poor penniless wanderer, sleeping on the bare ground, in the street or on the wayside." How tenderly the Greek Philosopher pictured the Incarnate Love who came as the Son of Man, who had not where to lay his head. Christ had a heart so great that he could love to the uttermost and make the meanest member of our race sacred with the glory reflected from His personality. Christ solved the problem of how a being so degraded as man with such selfish aims, such devastating passions, whose little life of fretfulness and folly often seemed beneath contempt to be loved. Platte tells us that He so identified Himself with humanity, so utterly laid down His life in sacrifice that no further proof of Divine Love is needed. Platte evidently by his prophecy idealized such a life and in heart joined the great company who have attached themselves so close to Christ that they could say, "I live yet not I but Christ lives in me." Admiral Beatty and others have been often quoted as saying the great need of the hour for Britain is to fit herself in spirit for peace. They call on us to repent and turn ourselves from our transgressions because we are not submitting ourselves to the truth of the Passion and the Easter Hope. They speak truly but they do not speak the whole truth. Our foes have the same need that we have. To pray for ourselves and not wish the same for them is only a refined sort of selfishness. It has been said "Pray for them that despitefully use you." Our first prayer is not to be victorious, we are first to seek the Kingdom of God and His righteousness. Any other stimulus is false and carries peril. We cannot narrow down the Easter Hope. It is international. Nationalism in trade may mean success, it may be an axiom of worldly policy, religion, it means spiritual blindness. Christ dethroned in a nation's heart when in faith and hope He is anything less than the Son of Man the Redeemer of the World. Narrow views in the end mean an empty heart devoid of the Easter spirit.

It has also been said "If we have hope only for this life we are of all men most miserable." If Easter means anything for this world it means hope for the life to come. If we then be risen with Christ seek those things which are above where Christ's Cross right down to the foot of the cross. Easter springs forth from every grave on land and sea with a flower of promise, "as He is so are we to be." Such is the hope that waits to light up the sorrowing world. Death and hell and the grave are conquered in Christ. In Him our loved ones are safe, death for those who are obedient to His call is not this the hope that dimly lights the final hours of the dying soldier and sailor? We are called in these days to heroic action and to combat ourselves anew to Christ. He says, Fear not! I am the first and the last, I am He that liveth and was dead, behold, I am alive for evermore. Full of comfort is the gospel to the trusting soul. When Jesus raised the daughter of Jairus, He would have no one present but the household, and instantly said, "give her something to eat." He made it homelike for her and shut out the curious, waiting words of mourners, the young man who arose from the dead. He delivered to his mother, and one imagines Jesus taking Lazarus by the arm and walking away with him to his home. Easter speaks of the "God of all comfort."

It may not be amiss to give a somewhat lengthy quotation from Browning's Pauline:—
"O Thou pale form so dimly seen, dead-dead? I have denied thee calmly—do I not Pant when I read of thy consummate And burn to see Thy calm, pure truths outshout
The brightest gleams of earth's phantasies? Theosophy? Do I not shake to hear aught question Thee?
If I am erring, save me, madden one, Take from me powers and pleasures, let me die
Ages, so I see thee! I am knit round As with a charm by sin and lust and pride
Yet though my wandering dreams have seen all shapes Of strange delight, oft have I stood by Thee—
Have I been keeping lonely watch with Thee
In the damp night by weeping Olivet, Or leaning on thy bosom, proudly less, Or dying with thee on the lonely cross, Or witnessing Thine outburst from the tomb?"

REV. A. B. S. STIRLING.
Spring, the Season of Hope, comes to us pregnant with teaching. The supreme lesson which Nature would impress upon the minds of men, as she throws off her Winter garb and arrays herself in Summer verdure, is that of the close connection between Life and Death.

In the midst of decay, little bits of beautiful green catch an eye. Tucked in between shrivelled up old leaves and dead blades of grass, are baby-buds that have just burst and allowed tiny leaves to peep out, while the green tender blade, that teareth the chilling blast, and warm a well.

REV. H. J. READ.
An Easter Message of Hope.

Every Easter Day is greeted by all Christians with gladness, and with a sense of renewed hopefulness. The thought of the Lord's Resurrection fills every heart. It brings to those in trouble its own message of comfort and sustaining help.

The Easter cry is a cry of triumphant victory after a battle fought as a Master Himself, is the basis of the Christian's hope, because of His glorious triumph over death and the grave, the Christian can now exclaim, "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory." On Good Friday hope had almost ceased to exist. As we stand beneath the Cross and gaze into the mystery of the self-sacrifice of our Blessed Lord, as we watch the successive scenes which brought to its climax the drama of our Redemption, as the long hours of suffering slowly pass, and we watch the agonizing, "My God, My God why hast Thou forsaken Me," as we think of the final struggle and the commendatory prayer, "Father into Thy Hand I commend My Spirit," we wonder what it all means, and we might well ask what is "In the midst of Life we are in Death," and equally true is the inscription found on a tombstone, "In the midst of Death we are in Life. Easter, the Queen of Festivals, compels us to acknowledge this truism of the close connection between Life and Death."

The great Bishop Wescott used to teach that "We must keep together in closest union the Resurrection and the Passion, Easter Day and Good Friday, Life and Death."

Let us not lose sight of the fact that the keynote of both Good Friday and Easter Day is VICTORY.

We must keep the same note, Christ, the Living Christ, reigning from the Cross, Christ, the Living Christ, rising from the grave—the triumph song of Good Friday growing into the Easter Alleluia.

How closely connected are Life and Death!

"Man . . . learns from Death alone The dreadful secret, that he lives forever."

REV. DR. CURTIS.

The event celebrated at Easter was probably the most important and momentous witnessed during the history of man upon this planet. The resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead was heaven's seal of approval upon His mission to earth and an absolute confirmation of His divine authority as a religious teacher. When he broke the bonds of death and came forth as its conqueror, with his foot upon its skull, he became the first human being that sleep, and flung open to all the doors of the world's tombs, in the perpetuity of his resurrection life, sharing our humanity forever.

The resurrection power and adis force and fullness to the meaning of the words of Jesus, "Because I live ye shall live also." His resurrection life is to be eternal and our poor humanity has a God-given claim to a share in that resurrection life.

This message of Easter hope must ever be welcome to a world in which death seems to reign supreme. We see not yet the complete victory of the resurrection power. The human family forms an endless procession whose march to the grave never halts. And present, owing to the carnage of this world war, it is kept as a fearful acceleration. The world has grown accustomed to the death of frail infancy, unmanhood and advanced and decrepit old age; but now the strongest, the noblest, the bravest and the best are falling. Must the life of all these be forfeited to themselves around the altar, who lived amongst them; their love had shown itself in their tender services to a broken world, but their lives, a symbol of disappointed hope, blighted heart forever bleed. But all this darkness and despair are dispelled before the brightness of Easter light.

The Christ was crucified as a young man, and only then did he "enter into his glory." Let no broken column be erected to the memory of the broken life of one young man who for honour, truth, civilization and righteousness, pays the last full measure of devotion by laying down his life in this great war. If any monument be erected, let it be a trophy whose pedestal represents the life lived here, serving but as a base upon which to raise a symbol of the more glorious and fully developed life, in the bright beyond.

Oh I could wish it were possible to plant a flower of Easter hope upon the graves of all our brave dead in France and Flanders, Gallipoli and the depths of the greedy ocean; and that white every home darkened by death in our Great Empire, the light of Easter may shine in all its supernatural brightness. To the man whose soul illumined by Easter radiance there is no death. With Addison he can triumphantly exclaim—
"The soul, secured in her existence, smiles
At the drawn dagger and defies its point
The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age, and Nature sink in years,
But thou shalt flourish in immortal youth,
Unhurt amidst the war of elements,
The wreck of matter, and the crush of worlds."

REV. H. ROYLE. A Message of Hope for Men and Nations.

The night was dark. Gloom had set in upon the spirits of those who were in the closest touch with the Master. Their expectation had been ruthlessly frustrated by the crucifixion, and they were in a state of despair. They should be the King of Israel. Their hopes for the individual realization of a life worth-while had been crushed. National ideals had been suddenly snatched away by the grave. All was darkness, failure, defeat, death. When unexpectedly out of the gloom and darkness of death Christ arose, He appeared to them and spoke to them: "Peace be unto you." A great light shone the light of a great glory, and upon them came a great calmness of soul: Peace.

To many in this day, night has come. Hopes crushed. The grave has snatched away the loved one. War has brought a sense of unrest, grief, hopelessness, fear, and thousands mourn in our Empire. The Master appears to them, He rises, Lord, He declares: "I am the resurrection and the life." "In me ye shall have peace."

The background of the picture is black, but out of it shines with growing intensity, the glow and glory of a coming day. "The Day Star" has arisen with healing in His wings.

REV. C. W. HOLLANDS. An Easter Message.

The church places before her children these words in the second lesson for the Easter Service: "I am He that liveth and was dead, and behold, I am alive for evermore." Here there is no uncertainty. The Blessed Saviour has given up His life and in the Vision recorded to St. John, He tells him "I am still living" and still more "I am alive for evermore."

Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and day and for evermore." These words give comfort. They speak the everlasting message: "The good that we do, that we do for evermore." And to all who have in their minds the fearful tragedies enacted in Europe at this present moment and to those who have dear ones out there representing them and taking their part for King and Country, there comes the thought "I am alive with you." Even now that I am at My Father's right hand in heaven, I am with you, directing, supporting and encouraging you with My till, Easter Day, this year, is also the festival of St. George, the Patron Saint of old England. This day, twelve months ago, we were assembled in church, interceding with God for the welfare of our boys at the front and in training. That same day, the resurrection of Jesus sleeping place, because His bloodshedding was to be the pledge of safety and of Eternal Life.

Truly it has been said, "In the Easter empty tomb is the Christian's hope." How often our hopes are blighted here, our expectations dashed down. The Resurrection of Jesus proclaims the recovery of lost hopes. The brightest hopes were blighted on Good Friday, when Jesus died, but when He rose on Easter Day they all revived.

You fathers and mothers who at this time are mourning the loss of your heroic soldier and sailor sons, whose mortal remains lie buried in the sands of the Gallipoli Peninsula, or in the dead bodies of your sons, soldiers, or in some cemetery in the Home Land, or those who have found a resting place in the mighty ocean, your hope may be buried in some far off land, but there comes to you this Easter tide the great consolation. There is a Resurrection Day coming. The happy day when Jesus will rise again. It awaits you in the glorious hereafter. With Christ it rose, with Him it ascended, and He is now seated at the right hand of His Father, and He will send the Holy Spirit to you. He will say to you, "I am alive for evermore."

REV. CANON NOEL. The Easter Message is Pre-eminently a Message of Hopefulness.

The Easter Message is pre-eminently a Message of Hopefulness. Hope is an expecting virtue. It is not wholly an expression of a more glorious certainty. Nor assuredly is it pessimistic. Rather, like its emblem "the bright and morning star," it springs from a condition of gloom, darkness and uncertainty; a period of trial, sorrow, and it may be of bereavement. The "night is dark," but there comes a sweet ray, however pale and weak, that inspires a hope of better things to come.

So it was with the little band of red-eyed mourners, full of sorrow and sad uncertainty, but not in despair, who wended their way on a dark and misty morning "before the rising of the sun," to a rent and empty sepulchre. Happy Easter! that brought in it its most glorious message: the world has ever known: "I am He that was dead, and behold, I am alive for evermore, and have the keys of Hell and of Death." How that Message is repeated year after year, and century by century!

What a gloom this savage and relentless warfare has created over millions of human breasts, when for a time no light has broken through. Therefore, therefore, it is that we feeble band, brightening into sure and certain Hope, that the dear ones themselves, who are the subjects of our grief, may catch a ray of peaceful expectation that the night of affliction will pass, when the "Righteousness" shall be arisen and have ushered in a day of blissful re-union and inexpressible joy.

"Rest comes at length: Though life be long, and weary, and dark,
The day must dawn, and darkness
The night be past;
Faith's journey ends in welcome to the weary,
And Heaven's, the heart's true home will come at last."

REV. C. A. WHITEMARSH. The Easter Triumph.

The frost came early, and caught the land, from east to west, in its cold and chill embrace. There was no escape, for it flung its long icy arms around forest, garden and field, and the silence of a long and bitter winter settled down upon the earth. There was no stir in the forest except the occasional moaning of the winter wind, and no murmur from the purling brook which but yesterday danced eagerly and merrily past the open field. A deathly quiet lay upon it now, as if some monster had attacked and crushed out its life and work forever. The garden was a drab and common brown until the white snow came and covered it, and the silence of the winter was broken by the sound of the long months passed the land lay stiff and desolate with never an indication of a return to life.

But with the coming of the April dawns, and the soft winds rushing from the southlands, the snow was transformed into a soft and common brown until the white snow came and covered it, and the silence of the winter was broken by the sound of the long months passed the land lay stiff and desolate with never an indication of a return to life.

prattling on its way, while little children played with joy and gladness upon its sunny banks.

The garden grew gay with lovely flowers of myriad hues, and life and movement proclaimed that winter had been conquered, and that the glorious resurrection of nature was complete. It was the old, old triumph of life over death—new and marvellous though it always is, and our hearts bounded with the glory of the natural Easter dawn.

2.—OVER NATIONAL CALAMITY.

The land lay waste and desolate in the morning light. The iron hoof of cruel war had ridden rough shod over its smiling fields and through its waving forests, over its beautiful little hamlets and quiet villages, and through its busy towns and cities, and trampled down its beauty and laid its wrecks in the dust. The great cathedrals were in ruins, the busy factories dismantled and destroyed; and beautiful and costly homes as well as less pretentious ones, laid low by devastating and quiet villages, and through its waving forests, over its beautiful little hamlets and quiet villages, and through its busy towns and cities, and trampled down its beauty and laid its wrecks in the dust. Our Easter Messages.

REV. H. GODFREY.
The Souls of the Brave.

I am grateful to the Editor for asking me to write an Easter Message, because of the opportunity it affords of addressing a few words of comfort to the friends of those who have laid down their lives in connection with the great war. I want to speak directly to you as though I were holding a quiet conversation with you. This is Eastertide and you are wondering what is the message of Easter to your heart bereaved, what is the Easter Hope concerning the souls of the brave. They were instructed in the teaching of the Church in which they were brought up, and you often talked to them about personal salvation and the claims of Christ, but they said very little in return. And although they continued to quietly observe the outward form, they never gave any evidence of vital relationship to Christ. At length they heard the cry, "Your King and your Country need you!" and sacrificed everything to obey that mysterious inward challenge to defend the honor of their country, the safety of their loved ones, in a word, to fight for the holiest things in life they knew. To-day they sleep peacefully in a strange land, of blood-stained fields and desolate homes, or they lie beneath the surface of the deep sea.

On what ground scriptural or otherwise, you ask, dare we affirm that our brave boys, who showed no evidence of accepting Christ here, have, by laying down their lives, entered the blessedness of His Kingdom. In the first place, let me say, that there is one thing of which we are absolutely convinced, and that is the fact of the immortality of the soul. If a man die shall he live again? Instinct and reason, apart from Creed and Bible, help us to unhesitatingly answer yes. Some time ago a German theologian ventured on this prophecy, "For the religious consciousness of the present, the hope of immortality falls ever into the background and becomes secondary, so that one has no difficulty in prognosticating for this dogma an easy and natural death." This prophecy is about as mistaken and false as the anticipation that Britons will soon become a vassal state of Germany. The belief in immortality is a native instinct in the human soul. As far back as we can trace the records of history or archeology, the funeral arrangements of human life testify to a belief in the continuance of life after death. This war is altering many of our doctrines, some of them will have to go, but the last belief the race will let go will be the doctrine of the immortality of the soul. What we are witnessing to-day is not the death of, but the resurrection of that faith. Therefore the souls of the brave are not annihilated. If not annihilated do they enter upon a life of highest bliss and service? A catechism of one of the churches affirms, "The souls of believers, at their death made perfect in holiness and do immediately pass into glory." But those of whom we are speaking were not believers in the conventional sense. How can such enter a life of "perfect holiness and immediately pass into glory?" such a state is for those who are prepared for it.

If not granted perfect holiness and bliss, do they go out to an existence of eternal woe and punishment? Woe! Think of it! They sacrificed everything to obey the call, they laid down their lives in a great cause, they shed their blood to cleanse the life of this old world and because they had not accepted Christ in the conventional sense, some would dare to assign them to eternal doom.

A good deal that is said in the name of Evangelical Christianity reminds one of the saying of Rodhe, "You dress up Christianity in a coat which turns it into a caricature and then you wonder indignantly why people turn their backs and scoff at it." Of course there is such a thing as instantaneous acceptance of Christ and it may have been so in the case of your boy. A thought, a look, an attitude may be changed in an instant. Much may go before the act of instantaneous acceptance but, in the twinkling of an eye—between the call of the bugle and the clash of arms, or in the very act and crisis of death, a man may surrender himself to God, and by so doing pass out of death into life.

"Betwixt the saddle and the ground was mercy sought and mercy found. Yea, in the twinkling of an eye. He cried, and Thou hast heard his cry. Between the bullet and his mark. Thy face made morning in his dark. And while the shell sang on its path. Thou hast run, Thou hast run preventing death. Thou hast run before and reached the goal. Gathered to Thee the unhoused soul."

But suppose there was no instantaneous acceptance. Speaking for myself I am driven to hope that there will be a second probation after death, an opportunity for those brave souls who sacrificed so much for us here to surrender themselves to Him there. You ask me to prove that by quoting some passage of scripture, but such a hope is not built upon isolated bits of scripture, it can only be founded on the whole truth of the Bible and the character of God. But there is one verse of the New Testament which I will ask you to ponder over: "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends." (John 15-13).

And if He said to a thief dying by His side, "To-day thou shalt be with Me in Paradise"; and if He will say at the last, "Come ye blessed of My Father." (Matt. 25.) To those who never knew Him, but succored the needy and comforted the sad, what will He say to those who have given their lives for home and country?

While we cannot make light of life's awful responsibility, nor evade distribution, we do know how far the loving spirit of God has gone with the soul of the fallen soldier. I would say to every poor, troubled mother to-day, "Christ came into the world to care, He will at any rate do for you boy the best that may be done for him. He will not forget him. Trust Christ with him.

"Through all the depths of pain and Sinks the plummet of His Cross; Deeper than that Cross could sound." When I hear of a careless boy as he charges into battle, "putting up what he can remember of a little prayer, not for himself but for the dear mother at home in case he should die; when I see him steadfastly facing death for the sake of duty, or comforting the last moments of a dying friend, I know that God is near him. When I read of a man killed because he rushed out amid a hail of bullets to bring in a wounded comrade, I feel that such deeds are done under the influence of the Spirit of God. When I read of a boy who at home was indifferent to the demands of Christ, who, as he lies upon the ground, his blood flowing, as he knows for a great cause, exclaiming just before death: "This is the best thing I have ever done!" I also seem to hear the voice of Christ who died for men, saying, "Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends." This is the message of Easter to the hearts of the bereaved, this is the Easter Hope for the souls of the brave.

Back From the West.
The S. S. Prospero, Capt. J. Kean, arrived back from the western route yesterday, bringing a large freight and a few passengers. The Prospero will now lay up for her annual overhauling and be made ready to resume the northern service May 1st. The Portia, which is now in first class condition, will take up the western route, leaving here Wednesday next.

BANKING OPERATIONS.
All the banking feet along the South West Coast are back with their spring trips. Practically all were well. The last to reach the home port, Harbor Breton, on Thursday last were the Ornae, 500 qts.; Lizzie M. Stanley, 500 qts.; Francis B. Smith, 300 qts. On the whole the spring catch was exceedingly good. Most of the schooners are refitting now for the Grand Banks voyage and some vessels will be ready to leave within a few days.

SALT BULK FOR FRANCE.
Some fish exporters to the Westward intend sending shipments of cod in salt bulk to France this season. Messrs. Patten and Forsey, of Grand Bank, we understand, will send the first cargo and one of their fish carriers is now loading. A new purchase they made recently will also load for the French market shortly.

Obituary.
WM. SAVIN, JR.
There passed to the Great Beyond at 7.30 o'clock Thursday evening, Mr. Wm. Savin, Jr., at his residence, Temperance Street, after an illness lasting five months. Mr. Savin was for upwards of twenty years employed in the Anglo-American Telegraph Service where he was held in high esteem by his co-workers. He was well known to the general public as an obliging official, often inconveniencing himself to oblige others. His wife, a Miss Davis, of Fox Harbor, P. B., predeceased him a few years ago. The Telegram joins with the general public in offering deepest sympathy to the sorrowing relatives.

A Soldier's Thanks.
The following letter was received by Miss S. Duffitt, Gower Street East, from a soldier in Hospital at London, thanking her for a pair of socks which he received from her. The socks among others were knit at the Presbyterian Hall, King George Hospital, Stamford St., London, S.E., 26/16.

Dear Miss Duffitt,—I am wearing a pair of socks knitted by you, for which many thanks. They were issued to me from the gift store of this hospital to go to the King's Tea Party. Naturally you want to know what I have been doing, so will give you a brief account of my part in this war. Arrived in Belgium (at Ostend) on the 8th October, 1914 from South Africa, where my regiment was stationed before the war. I have accounted for some of the Huns in the 1st and 2nd battles of Ypres, Neuve Chapelle and Loos, besides the usual periodical turns in the trenches when nothing is doing. I have been wounded twice, and now am in hospital with what is known as Shell Shock. I was blown up by a mine and buried for 7 1/2 hours about 20th January last, and am now just beginning to walk a little although I have very little use of my legs. Again thanking you for the socks, which I shall remember as being one of the presents sent me to give comfort to those "doing their bit."

Yours very truly,
(Sergt.) HENRY DAVIDS,
1st Royal Dragoons.

Graduates at Edinburgh University.
Mr. Andrew Wilson received a letter from his daughter, on Thursday, who is a second year medical student at Edinburgh University, saying that Mr. Chester Harris was capped as a Bachelor of Surgery and Bachelor of Medicine at the graduation ceremony, which recently took place. The Rev. Chester Harris, B. A. (Sackville), M. B., Ch. B., (Edin.) is a son of Mr. Samuel Harris, Grand Bank. Mr. Harris is a member of the Newfoundland Methodist Conference and for some years did conscientious work. He has had a distinguished and successful University career both at Sackville, Canada and Edinburgh, Scotland. To the clergyman-doctor and his father we extend congratulations.

News From Gulf More Encouraging.
On Thursday night a wireless message was received by Mr. J. S. Mann from Capt. Wm. Bartlett, of the S. S. Viking intimating that he had got on board all the old seals killed in the early part of the week and was now on the hunt for another patch. He gave his catch as 6,400 y ung harps, 600 bedlamers, 2,500 old harps, a total of 9,500, equivalent in weight to about 15,000 ordinary pelts. This latest news from the Gulf put a more encouraging phrase on the voyage in that territory in as much as the Viking has a saving trip now and the outlook is yet bright. The Ranger, it is supposed, is also getting a good share while the Diana was accounted for a saving load a fortnight ago.

Private Arthur Batson Wounded.
The friends of Arthur Batson will regret to learn that his father, Mr. H. G. Batson, of English Harbor, Trinity Bay, has received the following telegram from the Adjutant General at Ottawa, dated April 15th:—"Sincerely regret to inform you $0.013. Pte. Arthur Richard Batson, infantry official, yesterday admitted 23rd General Hospital, Etaples, France, April 8th, gunshot wound in head, and further particulars will be sent when received."

Private Arthur Batson whilst residing in St. John's was employed in Ayre & Sons dry goods department and left here for British Columbia about six or seven years ago. He enlisted with the 31st Battalion at Calgary, crossing with the Second Division and was sent to Flanders in September last. He has recently been transferred from the ranks and sent on Scout duty, and probably while doing his "bit" near that much fought over ground, received his wound.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Will you please give me space in your paper so as to explain something which happened at George St. Methodist Church, after my lecture there Tuesday night. Mr. White-way, who moved, a vote of thanks, read a letter from a friend of his re something I had done at Ypres. I just want to say that anything I did at that fight was small in comparison with deeds performed by all the boys in that great battle. My reason in writing this, Mr. Editor, is to let my friends know I am not spouting about myself, and that we fellows who come back, if we wish to talk about anything should talk about boys still out there, whether from Terra Nova or other parts of our great empire.

Yours truly,
Pte. P. J. JENSEN.

PROGRESS. When I was young I had to go and till the cornfield with a hoe. Ah, it was weary work, indeed; I paralyzed the noxious weed, and scraped the dirt around the corn, and yearned to hear the dinner horn. I'd toil all day to beat the hand, till blisters came on hoof and hand, and then the husbandman would say, as he dug up my meagre pay, "Was that the best that you could do? You must have loafed, the whole day through!"

What Easter Means.

'Twas midnight. While I slept I dreamed The earth was cold and chill, And somewhere through the darkness came A Voice, "all life be still!"

The scene grew dark with mystery; The gray world sat enthralled; But no one dared to question,—each Obeyed the Voice that called.

The sad world took me by the hand, And looked into mine eyes; Yet, it told me not the meaning, Or even made me wise, But led me to a distant hill, Where, filled with silent awe I stood amazed—for standing near, A lonely cross I saw.

And as I stood in wonder there, My heart was taught to say: The answer to this wonder, is "A glorious Easter Day." O cross! teach us the wider life, That all may know, and see, The story of the Easter joy Means immortality. BEATRICE M. CHAUNCEY, Easter, 1916.
