For Love of a Woman; OR, New Romeo and Juliet.

A TERRIBLE THREAT.

Half an hour later Jeffrey was making his way along the foot-path through the woods, his thin, bent figure throwing a fantastic shadow on the tree-trunks, as he walked with his head projected and drooping, his eyes fixed on the ground. Every now and then he raised his head, looking about him as if he remembered that he had asked Doris to meet him; but he almost immediately again relapsed into his preoccupied manner. Once he stopped and took the papers from the pocket in his breast and looked at them with a deep and thoughtful frown.

"Yes, to-day!" he murmured. "I will tell her to-day! Why should I be afraid? It will make no difference; she will be my child still; it will make no difference." He took off his hat and wiped his brow and sighed. "Yes, I'll tell her to-day. I'm not so strong as I was, and one can't tell what may happen. If I died before I'd told her—"

The muttered words stopped suddenly, and he looked up with a startled air which swiftly changed to one of fierce anger. A dapper, comfortably rounded figure stood before him, with placidly smiling face and serene benevolent air.

"Spenser Churchill!" exclaimed Jeffrey, hoarsely, his hands closing with a gesture at once threatening and repressive.

"My dear Mr. Flint!" purred Spenser, his head on one side, his hand extended benignly. "My dear Mr. Flint! What a delightful coincidence! After all, nothing is more true than the rather hackneyed assertion that the world is a small place."

Jeffrey, glaring at him fiercely, waved his hand.

"Pass on—pass on!" he panted. "I will have nothing to say to you!"

"Now really, my dear Jeffrey," murmured Spenser Churchill, remonstratingly, "is it—I put it to you as a sensible man—is it really worth while to nourish these—un-Christian-like resentments? Look at me." It was quite an unnecessary request, for the fierce, deeply sunken eyes had never left the smooth, supple face. "Look at me, my dear Jeffrey. I, too, have

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

May be Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—This Letter Proves It.

West Philadelphia, Pa.—"During the thirty years I have been married, I have been in bad health and had several attacks of nervous prostration until it seemed as if the organs in my whole body were worn out. I was finally persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made a well woman of me. I can now do all my housework and advise all ailing women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will guarantee they will derive great benefit from it."—Mrs. FRANK FITZGERALD, 25 N. 41st Street, West Philadelphia, Pa.

There are thousands of women everywhere in Mrs. Fitzgerald's condition, suffering from nervousness, backache, headache, and other symptoms of a functional derangement. It was a grateful spirit for health restored which led her to write this letter so that other women may benefit from her experience and find health as she has done.

For suggestions in regard to your condition write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years' experience is at your service.

had my trials; but—er—I sink them. I let them drop, I bury them, and I make it my principle to forget and forgive."

"Let me pass you!" panted Jeffrey, his whole frame shaking with an effort at self-control.

"To forget and forgive," repeated the other, as if the words were a sweet morsel he was turning over his tongue. "Believe me, dear Jeffrey, that is far, far the wiser plan."

"You think so?" said Jeffrey, hoarsely. "You can forget, Spenser Churchill; I cannot, for it was you who wronged, I who suffer! So you have forgotten, and you dared to think that I had done so? That you may say how will I remember, villain—No, stop!" For Spenser Churchill had backed a few steps, and glanced round, as if meditating a retreat.

"Stop, Spenser Churchill, while I remind you why, when the devil sends you across my path, that it would be wiser for you to crawl on one side, lest I crush you, you smiling, fawning reptile. You forget! You forget the life you ruined. Look on me and remember! I was young, rich in health and hope, blessed with the love of an honest, tender-hearted girl, when that devil—your master—the Marquis of Stoylo, the beast for whom you jackalled, employed you to entice her from me. You succeeded, Spenser Churchill, and have forgotten her misery, and mine; all, save perhaps the sum your master flung you."

His hands were so near the delicate white throat opposite him that Spenser Churchill drew his head back sharply, and turned pale.

"My dear Jeffrey!" he murmured, soothing. "Now, come, come. Now, really, you know! If anyone were listening—which I am thankful, for our sake, is not the case—they would gather from your—er—really extravagant language that I had, like the bad man in a play, contrived the ruin of the usual virtuous young lady; whereas I must, in justice to myself, remind you, my dear Jeffrey, that the young lady in question was only guilty of the remarkably bad taste of flitting you for the Marquis of Stoylo, who, like an honorable gentleman, made her his lawful wife and sharer of his exalted rank."

"Yes," said Jeffrey, hoarsely. "Because, by no other means could he get her in his power! Made her his wife! Yes, that he might crush her the more easily! enough, Spenser Churchill!"

"Pardon me! One word more! You appear to have forgotten that the lady, marchioness as she was, preferred to return to her first admirer—There, there!" he broke off, putting up his hand to ward off the threatened blow; "as you say, it is not worth talking about, and, as I say, it is as much wiser to forget. The poor lady is dead, and the child—"

"Is dead, too!" said Jeffrey.

"Is playing Juliet at the Theatre Royal, Barton," put in Spenser Churchill, smoothly. "Miss Doris Marlowe, otherwise Lady Mary, daughter of the Most Honorable the Marquis of Stoylo—"

Jeffrey staggered, and sank trembling down his white, wrinkled face.

Spenser Churchill took out a cigarette and lit it, smiling blandly down upon the stricken figure.

"Upon my word, my dear Jeffrey," he said, pleasantly, "I am almost inclined to cry 'Fie, for shame!' and to retort one of the ugly words which you so liberally applied to me. To afford shelter to the wife of the dear marquis is one thing, but to steal his child—"

"She—she died!" gasped Jeffrey, hoarsely.

"So it was stated, and so it was believed by all excepting the gentleman who has the honour to stand before you." He laughed unctuously. "I had my suspicions from the first, and I found them justified when I saw Miss Doris Marlowe in her charming performance the other evening, and, on enquiry, found that she was the daughter of Mr. Jeffrey Flint."

Jeffrey wiped the sweat from his forehead and opened his lips, but he seemed deprived of the power of speech.

"You must permit me," continued the softly mocking voice, "to congratulate you upon the result of your excellent training. The young lady is a most talented actress—most charming! But, my dear Jeffrey, does it not occur to you sometimes that it is, to use the vulgar slang of the day, rather rough upon her? To deprive a young and helpless girl of her rank and position—"

BUNIONS

Relieved by
Dr. Scholl's
Bunion Reducer Shield

This appliance has a peculiar concave shape purposely so formed to fit snugly over joint and eliminate friction and pressure from footwear, and at the same time also presents the enlarged joint from forcing shoe out of shape.

Is superior to old-fashioned leather and felt protectors, as it is made from antiseptic rubber, and being worn right on bunion inside hosiery it excludes air, forms and retains a moisture pocket which keeps the joint soft and pliable, removes that hard skin or callous that so often accompanies and increases the irritability of the enlargement, also reduces inflamed condition.

Made in three sizes, right and left foot.
Price 50c each, $1.00 per pair.

SCHOLL Eases the Feet

Jeffrey extended his trembling hands entreatingly.

"Stop—stop!" he panted. "I—I did it for the best! I did it for her good—"

Spenser Churchill laughed mockingly.

"Yes!" cried Jeffrey, rising with sudden despair. "For her good! You saw her—you saw how happy, how innocent she is! All her life has life been happy and free from care. What would it have been if I had yielded her back to the man who broke her mother's heart, the man who would have hated her for that mother's sake? Man! man! don't torture me with your devilish smile! I did it for the best!"

Spenser Churchill laughed again.

"Dear, dear!" he murmured, "how dreadfully easy it is to deceive one's self! Now, here are you, a most excellent man, I have no doubt, my dear Jeffrey, actually persuading yourself that in robbing another man of his only child and depriving her of her rights, you have been committing a noble and virtuous action! Now, I am sorry to say that I don't agree with you. I've no doubt you have become attached to the girl—"

Jeffrey put up his hand.

"Silence!" he said, hoarsely. "It is not for such as you to understand the love I bear—my child, my child!"

"Pardon me, the Marquis of Stoylo's child!" said the sneering voice.

Jeffrey raised his head and confronted the smiling, mocking face.

"Enough. You know my secret, and you alone—"

"Are you sure of that?" said Spenser Churchill, smoothly. "Are you sure that no one else shares it?"

Jeffrey made a gesture of assent.

"No one else. Not even she. To-day I had resolved to tell her."

A flash came into the watchful eyes.

"To-day—ah, yes!"

"Yes," said Jeffrey, with a sigh that was almost a groan. "I have brought myself to it at last, after such a struggle as you cannot understand. To-day she was to be told, was to take her future into her own hands; to choose—his voice broke—"between one who has loved her like a father, and the man who drove her mother from his house and broke her heart!"

"Hem! Yes," murmured Spenser Churchill, "and you flatter yourself she will remain with you, of course?"

"You do not know her," was the tremulous reply. "You do not know her! My child, my child!"

Spenser Churchill watched him in silence from under his white, smooth lids.

"By the way, my dear Jeffrey," he said, he said, softly, "did it ever strike you that, supposing Lady Mary decided to return to her father—Jeffrey winced—her after—that the marquis might refuse to acknowledge her?"

Jeffrey looked at him as if he scarcely understood.

"You see," continued Spenser Churchill, resting his foot on the tree, and leaning forward with a subtle smile; "it is such an extraordinary story. The marquis might be inclined to remark that he would require some proofs. I need scarcely remind you that he is not the most credulous of men; in fact, that he is rather inclined to be suspicious."

Jeffrey nodded grimly.

"I know him," he said, almost as if to himself. "I have thought of that, and am prepared with proofs." He put his hand to his breast-pocket mechanically, and drew out the papers, and Spenser Churchill's eyes darted to them with a swift eagerness.

"If—if Doris chooses to—to go to him and leave me, it will not be in his power to repudiate her. These—and he touched the papers with his forefinger, and then put them in his pockets again—"these will establish her birth beyond dispute."

"I am delighted to hear it. That is quite satisfactory—quite. And so, my dear Jeffrey, you expect the young lady to renounce her father, the marquis, her rank and title and all that would become hers—think of it—and remain with you; all will go on as before, and the father and his adopted child will be happy ever afterwards, like the people in the fairy story?"

Jeffrey nodded, and the deep lines in his face grew lighter.

"Yes," he said in a low voice again, as if he were communing with himself rather than answering the other man's question; "yes, we shall take up our lives as before, my child—my Doris and I! She will be my Doris still, mine to love suppressed eagerness. There was truth in what you said, though you meant it insultingly; she will be a great actress—great! And it is I who have taught her—I who loved her mother! You taunted me, Spenser Churchill, with selfish aims in keeping from her the knowledge of her birth. It was unjust. Hide my child from him always—always, Jeffrey!" she said. They were her last words. Poor Lucy!"

كتاب متنوع للاسنانيه New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandria leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

German States Rati- fication Necessary.

Trans-Atlantic Steamship Competition--Berlin Protestants want Wrongs Righted -- New York Marine Strike Ended--Erzberger's Startling Statement.

MAY ASK GERMAN STATES TO RATIFY TREATY.

PARIS, July 26. The question whether it would be necessary to obtain separate ratification of the German Peace Treaty by the federal states of Germany, such as Bavaria and Prussia, was considered today by the Chamber of Deputies' peace commission. The commission also took up the problem of the future status of Rhineland, including the question of the matter given by Marshal Foch. It was decided to hear Premier Clemenceau.

BRITISH COMPANIES WILL COMPETE.

NEW YORK, July 26. The British steamship companies, Cunard and White Star, are considering the establishment of a terminal at Montauk Point, Long Island, in order to compete with the United States Shipping Board's projected four days' trans-Atlantic service with two new thousand foot liners to be built for operation out of Port Pond Bay. It was learned today when steamship officials returned from a trip to Montauk.

A CLASH AT STRASSBURG.

BERLIN, July 26. Disorderly conditions in Strassburg are reported in advices received here. Sanguinary conflicts between French military and civilians are alleged to have occurred.

CAUSES OF ITALIAN DISASTER.

ROME, July 26. The findings of the government commission appointed to inquire into the Caporetto disaster in October 1917, when the Italian line was broken by the Austro-German attack, were published here today. The commission's report attributes the Italian defeat to three sets of causes, which were, first, the powerful influence of unfavorable propaganda which seriously affected the morale of the Italian troops; second, political meddling with military plans; third, the military's lack of vision, necessary in modern warfare, underestimation of the enemy forces and lack of preparation and material.

RIOTING IN TRIESTE

VIENNA, July 26. Reports have reached here of rioting at Trieste between Jugo-Slavs and Italians in which a few persons were injured.

ANSWER THE GERMANS.

PARIS, July 26. The Temps publishes a note which the Protestant Federation of France has addressed to President Poincare in answer to a letter sent him a few days ago by the Protestant community of Berlin, asking "democratic France to right its wrongs toward the legions driven out of France in 1870 by their benefactors, the Hohenzollerns." The notes of the French protestants express stupefaction that the Berlin Protestants, claiming to be of Huguenot extraction, can raise their voices in favor of the former German Emperor in an attempt to protect him from having to face the verdict of the civilized world. What occurred several centuries ago, the note says, does not disprove the fact that the Kaiser had committed a gross crime for which he must personally answer. "We are astonished," the note concludes, "that German Protestants have not remonstrated against the horrible devastations in northern and eastern France, the destruction of cathedrals and the deportation of old men, women and children."

U. S. RELAXES TRANSPORT RESTRICTIONS.

WASHINGTON, July 26. The relaxation of restrictions on the assurance of passports to European countries, except Germany, Austria and Russia, was announced today by Secretary of State Lansing.

A REBUKE FOR THE A. P.

NEW YORK, July 26. The Associated Press has received the following message from former President Taft: "Your Association yesterday gave out two letters written by me to Will Hays on July 20th, last. These letters were personal and confidential and were so plainly marked, and were published without the knowledge or consent of Mr. Hays or myself. It is only fairness to Hays and me at once to give the same publicity you gave the letters signed 'William H. Taft.' It should be said that the Associated Press was furnished the letters referred to by one who had received copies of them and felt himself under no obligation to regard them as confidential. The letters had reference to six stipulations respecting the League of Nations."

SEAMEN'S STRIKE ENDED.

NEW YORK, July 26. The end of the strike of forty thousand marine workers which had tied up shipping in Atlantic and Gulf ports for the last three weeks was announced here today by Gustave H. Brown, General Secretary of the International Seamen's Union.

ASQUITH ON RUSSIAN POLICY.

LONDON, July 26. The former Prime Minister, H. H. Asquith, speaking at Edgeware today said: "I regard with bewilderment and apprehension the part this country is playing in Russia. The country wants a cleaner definition than has been given of what are our commitments, definite and prospective. I sincerely hope that the attempt to commit us further in Russia will be successfully resisted. The future Government of Russia is a matter for the Russian people and no one else. The economic conditions of the world and our own country were never more menacing."

PROVIDING THE GUARD.

PARIS, July 26. The size of the force required for the occupation of Rhineland under the terms of the German Peace Treaty was the question under consideration by the Supreme Council at today's session. For the present, it is said, a force of 150,000 men is likely to be considered necessary on the left bank of the Rhine.

SAYS ENGLAND AND FRANCE OFFERED PEACE.

BURLIN, July 25. Peace overtures to Germany by Great Britain and France were made through the Vatican in August 1917, according to the declaration of Matthias Erzberger, Vice-Premier and Minister of Finance in the German National Assembly. These overtures, he added, were rejected by Germany.

ADVOCATES OCCUPATION OF MEXICO.

WASHINGTON, July 26. Military occupation of Mexico by the United States was advocated by Representative Hudspeth, Democrat, Texas, in an address today in the House. He urged withdrawal of American recognition of the Carranza Government, and said American troops should be kept in Mexico until a stable government had been established.

WANT RECIPROcity ACT REPEALED.

WASHINGTON, July 26. Repeal of the Canadian Reciprocity Act of 1911 was recommended today by the House Ways and Means Committee. Some Democrats joined with the Republicans in voting for repeal, but others said that action should be deferred pending further investigation.

GERMANY NEEDS LOAN.

BERLIN, July 25. The question of the necessity of a forced loan by Germany of 2,000,000,000 marks has been raised, according to the Lokal Anzeiger. There has been considerable discussion in dispatches from Germany within the last fortnight of possible levies on property, some of the advices stating that a sliding scale which contemplated reaching ten per cent. for property valued at 50,000 marks and rising to 65 per cent. on property above 3,000,000 marks, the levy being payable in instalments extending over thirty years.

R. C. School Report.

A printed report of the public schools of Newfoundland under Roman Catholic Boards of Education, for the year ending December 31, 1918, has reached us. A perusal shows much of interest. Doctor Burke, the Superintendent, is enthusiastic in his advocacy of a Newfoundland University, to be publicly-owned and government assisted. He also advocates the organization of a "University Correspondence School to help our ambitious youths from the remotest districts." Altogether the report is very instructive.

The following figures are contained in the report:

Kilbride Garden Party.

Despite the threatening aspect of the weather all yesterday afternoon, the above party was very successful. The C.C.C. band was in attendance and delighted all present. Various sports and amusements were wisely arranged and kept the onlookers interested throughout the evening. The Garden Party, beyond doubt was the best of its kind ever held at Kilbride, the gate receipts exceeding by far all previous ones. Among those present were Sir M. P. and Lady Cashin, Hons. J. R. Bennett and W. J. Higgins, several of the city doctors, besides many of the clergy and Christian Brothers. The Kilbride Committee beg to thank most heartily all who in any way helped to make the day so successful; especially the C.C.C. band; Hon. Mr. Higgins and Messrs. Hartnett and French for arranging and superintending the sports. Also the "sports" themselves as well as all the kind and generous friends of Kilbride who donated, or in several other ways, contributed to swell the funds of the party. And last but not least, the city and parish ladies have the deep gratitude of all for their untiring labor in catering to all and thus making the outing as pleasing as possible.

St. John's Harbour.

For a long time past the port of St. John's N. F. has been a haven of refuge for every kind of vessel in need of repairs that has been engaged in North Atlantic traffic, with the result that the dry dock there—which is one of the largest on the Atlantic—has not been idle for over two years. Indeed the pressure has been so great that local vessels have frequently had to go without the attention they would ordinarily have received, in order that the requirements of ocean-going ships could be adequately dealt with. It is unlikely that conditions at St. John's will become normal again for another two years at least.—United Empire Magazine.

Warfare Under Water.

(By RUDYARD KIPLING.)

They bear, in place of classic names Letters and numbers on their skin. They play their grisly blindfold games

In little boxes made of tin. Sometimes they talk the Zepplin, Sometimes they learn where mines are laid

Or where the Baltic ice is thin. That is the custom of "The Trade."

No one knows how the title of "The Trade" came to be applied to the Submarine Service. Some say the proper names for things. Whatever the truth, the Submarine Service is now "the Trade"; and if you ask them why, they will answer: "What else could you call it? The Trade's 'the trade,' of course."

It is a close corporation; yet it recruits its men and officers from every class that uses the sea and engines, as well as from many classes that never expected to deal with either. It takes them; they disappear for a while and return changed to their very souls, for the Trade lives in a world without precedents, of which no generation has had any previous experience—a world still being made and enlarged daily. It creates and settles its own problems as it goes along, and if it cannot help itself no one else can. So the Trade lives in the dark and thinks out inconceivable and impossible things, which it afterwards puts into practice.

Four Nightmares.

Who, a few months ago, could have invented, or having invented, would have dared to print such a nightmare as this: There was a boat in the North Sea who ran into a net and was caught by the nose. She rose, still entangled, meaning to cut the thing away on the surface. But a Zepplin in waiting saw and bombed her, and she had to go down again at once, but not too wildly or she would get herself more wrapped up than ever. She went down, and by slow working and waving and wriggling, guided only by guesses at the meaning of each scrape and grind of the net on her blind forehead, at last she drew clear. Then she sat on the bottom and thought. The question was whether she should go back at once and warn her confederates against the trap, or wait till the destroyers, which she knew the Zepplin would have signalled for, should come out to finish her still entangled, as they would suppose, in the net. It was a simple calculation of comparative speeds and positions, and when it was worked out she decided to try for the double event. Within a few minutes of the time she had allowed for them, she heard the twitter of four destroyers' screws quartering above her;

ed the rendezvous in time to turn her friends.

And since we are dealing in nightmares here are two more—one genuine, the other, mercifully, false. There was a boat not only at, but in the mouth of a river—well home in German territory. She was spotted, and went under, her commander perfectly aware that there was not more than five feet of water over her conning-tower, so that even a torpedo-boat, let alone a destroyer, would hit it if she came over. But nothing hit anything. The search was conducted on scientific principles while they sat on the silt and suffered. Then the commander heard the rasp of a wire trawl sweeping over his hull. It was not a nice sound, but there happened to be a couple of gramophones aboard, and he turned them both on to drown it. And in due time the boat got home with everybody's hair just the same color as when they had started!

The other nightmare arose out of silence and imagination. A boat had gone to bed on the bottom in a spot where she might reasonably expect to be looked for, but it was a convenient jumping-off, or up, place for the work on hand. About the bad hour of 2.30 a.m. the commander was wakened by one of his men, who whispered to him: "They've got the chains on us, sir!" Whether it was pure nightmare, an hallucination of long wakefulness, something relaxing and releasing in that packed box of machinery, or the disgusting reality, the commander could not tell, but it had all the makings of panic in it. So the Lord and long training put it into his head to reply: "Have they? Well, we shan't be coming up till nine o'clock this morning. We'll see about it then. Turn out that light, please."

He did not sleep, but the dreamer and the others did, and when morning came and he gave the order to rise, and she rose unhampered, and he saw the grey, smeared seas from above once again, he said it was a very refreshing sight. Lastly, which is on all fours with the gamble of the chase, a man was coming home rather bored after an uneventful trip. It was necessary for him to sit on the bottom for a while, and there he played patience. Of a sudden it struck him, as a vow and an omen, that if he worked out the next game correctly he could go up and strafe something. The cards fell all in order. He went up at once and found himself alongside a German, who, as he had promised and prophesied to himself, he destroyed. She was a mine-layer, and needed only a jar to dissipate like a cracked electric-light bulb. He, was some impressed by the contrast between the ascent, the attack, the amazing result, and when he descended again, found his cards just as he had left them.

The Exploit of E 11.

E 11 "proceeded" in the usual way, to the usual accompaniments of hostile destroyers, up the Straits, and meets the usual difficulties about charging-up when she gets through. Her wireless naturally takes 'his opportunity to give trouble, and E 11 is left, deaf and dumb, somewhere in the middle of the Sea of Marmora, diving to avoid hostile destroyers in the intervals of trying to come at the fault in her aerial. (Yet it is noteworthy that the language of the Trade though technical, is no more emphatic or incandescent than that of top-side ships.)

Then she goes towards Constantinople, finds a Turkish torpedo-gun-boat off the port, sinks her, has her periscope, smashed by a six-pounder, retires, fits a new top on the periscope, and at 10.30 a.m.—they must have needed it—pipes "All hands to bathe." Much refreshed, she gets her wireless linked up at last, and is able to tell the authorities where she is and what she is after.

Back to the Base.

In due time E 11 went back to her base. She had discovered a way of using unspent torpedoes twice over, which surprised the enemy, and she had as nearly as possible been cut down by a ship which she thought was running away from her. Instead of which (she made the discovery at 3,000 yards, both craft all out) the stranger steamed straight at her. The enemy then witnessed a somewhat spectacular dive at full speed from the surface to 20 feet in as many seconds. He then really did turn tail and was seen no more." Going through the Straits she observed an empty troopship at anchor, but reserved her torpedoes in the hope of picking up some battleships lower down. Not finding these in the Narrows, she nosed her way back and sunk the troopship, "afterwards continuing journey down the Straits." Off Kilia Bahr something happened; she got out of trim and had to be fully flooded before she could be brought to her required depth. It might have been whirlpools under water, or other things. (They tell a story of a boat which once went mad in these very waters, and, for no reason ascertainable from within, plunged to depths that contractors do not allow for; roched up again like a swordfish, and would doubtless have so continued till she died, had not something she had fouled dropped off and let her recover her composure.)

An hour later: "Heard a noise similar to grounding. Knowing this to be impossible in the water in which the boat then was, I came up to 20 feet to investigate, and observed a large mine preceding the periscope at a distance of about 20 feet, which was apparently hung on by its moorings to the port hydroplane." Hydroplanes are the fins at the bow and stern which regulate a submarine's diving. A mine weighs anything from hundred-weights to half-tons. Sometimes it explodes if you merely think about it; at others you can batter it like an empty sardine tin and it submits meekly; but at no time is it meant to wear on a hydroplane. They dared not come up to unhitch it, "owing to the batteries ashore," so they pushed the dim shape ahead of them till they got outside Kum Kale. They then went full astern, and emptied the after-tanks, which brought the bows down, and in this posture rose to the surface, when "the rush of water from the screws together with the stern-way gathered allowed the mine to fall clear of the vessel."

Not Afraid to Tell 'Em. African Taste in Necklaces. Hon. John Oliver, premier of British Columbia, has been telling the people of his province a plain truth or two. "We had to raise your taxes," he said, "and we are going to do it again. It may not make me popular to tell you this but I do not very much care whether it does or not. If you don't like the government, or don't trust it, you can put another one in, and I would not mind being relieved of the burden." Now we know one reason why the coast calls him "Honest John."—Sydney Record.

SOME ODORS I LOVE.

Don't you love the smell of fresh strawberries, with the warmth of the sunshine still upon them? I like to sniff the fragrance of strawberries just about as much as I like to eat them. It seems to me that no flower has the spirit of the woods and the fields, of sunshine and west wind, concentrated in its fragrance quite as much as this berry.

One inevitably associates fragrances with flowers, and yet I must confess that there are several fragrances—or perhaps I should not try to dignify them by that name, but frankly call them smells—that I love as much as the flower smells.

The Smell of Fresh Cut Wood.

The smell of strawberries is one such smell. Another is that of fresh wood. I love to come upon a pile of freshly cut logs in the woods. I love the more subdued wood smell of a lumber yard or a new house. Incidentally, I know that I am not alone in this particular fancy. I know one whole race of creatures that appear to share it to a high degree. I am sure anyone who has lately moved into a newly built house can guess what I mean. Or do I go astray in assuming that it is the smell of the new wood which fascinates this best of all insects to such an extent that he leaves his building and spends hours talking about, first my new house, next year my new porch, and next year my addition. The author insists that I do; he declares that we have built on top of the ant's house and that he is simply investigating to see what this structure is.

The Smell of Leather.

To return to the main road, another odor which one could hardly call sweet, and yet which I delight in, is the smell of leather. I love to go into a leather shop not only because the things that are made of leather are so fascinating, but because I love, that queer primitive smell of the hides. That is my quarry with all these substitutes for leather in bags and suitcases and so forth—they may look the same and wear the same, but they don't smell the same.

Another variety of shop whose distinctive smell commends it to me—especially on a hot day, for there is something cool about this odor if an odor can be cool—is the drug store.

I have tried over and over again to analyze that smell and I can't. The mingled odors of many drugs must be in it and a whiff of cool sweetness from the soda fountain. But that is not all. Perhaps some other specialist in the pleasures of the sense of smell provides, can enlighten me.

The Greenhouse Smell.

I also love the smell of a greenhouse. I suppose that seems natural enough since, presumably, the smell of the greenhouse is the incense of many flowers. But is it not only that—it is the smell of many flowers and, as an underlying motif, the smell of the damp moist earth steaming in the heat and sunshine. It is not either of these alone that I love, but the peculiar harmony that they make together.

And now here's hoping I have not been writing in the Greek of unshared fancies, but in the good plain English of sensations you too have known.

GLORY GIVES NO GUARANTEE.

That you shall be trouble free, And the gold you strive to keep Cannot say you shall not weep. He that walks the ways of earth Must at times be lost to mirth; Each must have his share of rain And it's useless to complain.

Envy no man's costlier dress It may cover keen distress; In the rich man's home may be Loneliness and misery And the great man, brave and good, If we only understood, May be suffering bitterer woes Than his humbler brother knows.

Each must feel the hurt of pain Each must take his share of rain None can go through life without Coming face to face with doubt, And the price of fame and gold May be bitter griefs untold; Trouble comes to every man Though he live the best he can.

HIS PREFERENCE.

Dr. Rathbone Gough, at a "bone-dry" banquet in Boston, said:

"What a change we shall see when all America goes bone-dry! Why, friends, America will seem like Heaven, then."

"I don't know about that," the soldier heckler shouted.

"You, a soldier, to talk so," exclaimed the noted temperance lecturer. "Least of all men should a soldier express such pernicious doubts. Why, don't you know, my young friend, that whiskey has killed more people than bullets have ever done?"

"Maybe so," said the soldier. "Maybe so. But, all the same, I'd rather be full of whiskey than bullets."

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other Liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

Newspaper English.

To what extent are newspaper headlines responsible for the determination of English? The necessity to compress the path of things into a few words leads to many strange corruptions. A word of any length necessarily suffers. An aeroplane becomes a "plane," a photograph a "photo," a telephone a "phone," and so on. "Big" is often used, because it is a little word, when it doesn't accurately convey the degree of size. Short, snappy words, in fact, are sprinkled all through the headlines of our papers, to the detriment of many words of dignity. These words have become so familiar to people's minds that they pass into speech and writing when even the sub-editors' excise cannot be put forward, and the cinema threatens to make the evil more serious by adopting the same elliptic form for the catchwords that tell about the pictures.—Manchester Guardian.

WILLIARD

Fell 380 Feet and Lived.

(From the London Chronicle.)

The miraculous escape from death of the boy who fell 350 feet over the North Foreland cliffs recalls perhaps the most wonderful of such happenings. It is recorded on a board on the beach at Lulworth Cove, Dorset, as follows:—"This marks the spot where E. H. L., aged eleven years, fell from the summit of the cliff, a descent of 380 feet, September 7th, 1892. She miraculously escaped without sustaining lifelong injury."

The girl fell with her back to the cliff, and Sir Fredk. Treves, who was on the beach at the time and attended to her injuries, stated afterwards, that she owed her life to her clothes being caught by projecting rocks, which checked the fall, though all her clothing was torn to ribbons.

BACK TO NATURE.

Willard journeys back to Lawrence, to his priceless Kansas farm; holding strife in deep abhorrence, husbandry has added charm. Now among his pigs and chickens he will find a calm delight, and he'll wonder why the dickens men should wish to train and fight. For his heart was never burning with a lust for blood or foes; he would rather far be churning than be punching some one's nose. When the white race lost its laurels, and the soul Caucasian sighed, and we undermined our morals cussing Johnson's brunet hide, Jess was butler of a stable, feeding hay, and blame the cost; and he said, "Methinks I'm able to bring back the bays we've lost." Though his heart was not in fighting, he went to the work with vim; now that epitaphs we've writing, let's remember that of him. Now that he is whipped and gone, son, this much to his credit place: In the days of too much Johnson he redeemed the poor white race. On his costly farm in Kansas he is packing swill to swine, and I hope, in flowing stanzas, that his future may be fine. Let the men who lust for battle gain their triumphs in the ring; Jess is chasing errant cattle and is happy as a king.

A Case for Alibi Experts.

(From the New York Herald.)

Wilhelm Hohenzollern, according to cable despatches, has stopped giving advice to the Almighty and has taken to praying. This has given rise to fears in some quarters that the mentality—so-called—of the recent All-Highest is giving way and that he is in danger of becoming a fanatic. It is known, of course, that he always was a paranoiac. The difference between a paranoiac and a paranoiac will be for the alibi experts to decide at the much-advertised but, so far, very nebulous trial. This praying device, however, shows the utter hypocrisy of the man. It's the old, old story of the devil and the monk. With no desire to be sacrilegious one still cannot avoid the suggestion that the Almighty, even if He does not smile, surely must see the sad humor of the situation wherein His late self-declared partner and general advisor has turned into a whining supplicant for the help he not long since so splendidly scorned.

"To Be or Not to Be?"

A subject which appears to be fraught with much importance, is being widely and extensively discussed by the press of the world, and the discussion hinges upon the suggested trial of William Hohenzollern, ex-Kaiser of the German Empire, the man who is charged with the bloody responsibility of the late war. Opinions expressed on the bringing to trial of the European megalomaniac are diverse. Many claim that to arraign him before the judicial bar, would but be to make of him a martyr in German eyes, and tend to cause an allegiance to his honor that might be a source of trouble in the coming years. Others claim that he should be placed in the dock as a common felon, charged with his crimes, and dealt with according to the evidence of the witnesses against him. William Hohenzollern, says one writer, is one of the world's arch criminals, and if he should be allowed to escape trial for his crimes, what is the message that would be given to the future? The message would be that the royal criminal who offends against the world, does not suffer the punishment of any tribunal no matter how many his crimes or how bloody, and to hold no trial and inflict no punishment would be encouragement to future rulers in forcing another war in the hope of satisfying a vicious ambition. There does not appear to be any parallel in history to the trial of the ex-Kaiser, nor does there appear to be any precedent for a guide. The nearest is the semi-trial of King Charles I. of England, 270 years ago, though he was arraigned as an Englishman for acts of treason against the realm, and did not have a real trial, the remnants of the then House of Commons, upon Cromwell's instructions, adjudging him guilty, and he was sentenced to death by Act of Parliament, the judges of the high court refusing to take any part in the proceedings. Should the ex-Kaiser be brought before a tribunal in Westminster Hall, the judicial form will be, in every case, scrupulously observed, and an International Court of Justice will be specially constituted by the Peace Conference.

Lord Curzon, in the House of Lords, recently, compared the ex-Kaiser to some of the condemned sovereigns of history to the disadvantage of the former. Those mentioned stood by their principles to the last, but the German ruler fled ignominiously immediately his country got into difficulties, and was unimaginable as a hero or a martyr, and should be brought to trial without any delay, and if found guilty, punished. The ex-Kaiser will have but few apologists, though doubtless there will be some who will claim that the war was not of his making, and that he but followed the counsel of his advisors, but the world knows the truth, and it is now only a question of time when the man, who was the claimant of Divine attributes and of alliance with the Almighty, will be haled before the bar of an International tribunal and tried, without fear, favor, or affection for the crimes, which at his instigation were committed against all humanity.

He is not to be tried for his life, but as a warning to future offenders of his quality. His trial will also lay bare the root causes and main instrumentalities of the war, and his sentence will provide judicially and formally for his safe-keeping hereafter.

Special Holidays.

Monday and Tuesday of next week, August 4th and 5th, have been, by proclamation, set apart as special holidays for the public Peace Celebration in this dominion, and the arrangements and announcements of the various functions to be held on those days will be given out for information later. Wednesday, August 6th will not be a holiday, but Wednesday, August 13th—Regatta Day will be proclaimed a full public holiday, not alone because of the Annual Aquatic Sports, but in honor of the visit of His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, who will attend the Regatta on that day.

After Many Years.

In Saturday's issue of the Telegram Mr. H. F. Shortis published the history of the Atlantic cable, and amongst other historical incidents he mentioned the names of several students who learned telegraphy with him, in the old New York-Newfoundland and London Telegraph Co. (afterwards the Anglo-American Telegraph Co.) One of his associates mentioned was Mr. P. H. Glendenning of St. John's, who studied with Mr. Shortis in the Grace Telegraph Office. Mr. Glendenning left Newfoundland in 1874, forty-five years ago, and has been employed in Montreal, and other cities of Canada and the United States, but more particularly in Missouri, U.S.A., for many years past. Mr. Glendenning arrived on a visit to his brother Andrew, the farmer, on Thursday last, and saw the article in the Telegram on Saturday. Mr. Shortis received a welcome surprise this morning when a knock came to his door, and upon opening it, there appeared before him his old associate of forty-eight years ago, hale and hearty, and it is needless to say that the two old friends had much to talk over in connection with their early days, and the days when telegraphy was in its infancy in this country. We feel sure it would be of great interest if the two old friends would give us some of their reminiscences. The early days of telegraphy are brimful of interesting anecdotes, adventures and general historical events. The Telegram welcomes Mr. Glendenning back to his native city, after his absence of forty-five years. He will probably remain here until the end of September.

INDUCTION OF RECTOR.

After the saying of the third Collect at Matins yesterday, the ceremony of inducing the newly elected Rector of the Cathedral Parish, Rev. Leonard Lambert Garnet Jeeves, was performed by Rev. Dr. Jones, of St. Thomas's, Rural Dean of Avalon, in the absence of His Lordship Bishop White, when the annexed form of service set forth by authority was used:

Rural Dean:
"Dearly beloved brethren—The Rev. Leonard Lambert Garnet Jeeves, appointed Rector of this Parish, is present here to enter upon his office. Wherefore it is thought good that before he is inducted thereto, there shall be read in your presence the License to officiate as Priest, given to him by the Bishop of the Diocese and also the Declaration of his assent to the Doctrine and Discipline of the Church of England."

The Rev. Canon Bolt, Diocesan Chancellor, having read the Priest's License, the new Rector read the Declaration of Assent and Consent as follows:

"I, to be inducted as Rector of this Parish, do solemnly make the following Declaration of Assent and Consent:—I believe the Holy Scriptures to be the Word of God; and in Public Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, I will use the form in the said Book prescribed, and none other except so far as shall be ordained by lawful authority."

The Rural Dean then delivered the keys of the Church to the new Rector, saying:

"In the name of the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, I acknowledge you as Rector of this Parish, and in token thereof give into your hands the key of this Church."

Then the new Rector answered:
"I receive this key of the House of God at your hands, as a pledge of my induction and of your recognition, and I promise to be a faithful shepherd over the flock committed to my charge in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

The Rural Dean:
"Almighty God be thy helper in these and all other good things."
V. The Lord be with you.
R. And with thy spirit.
V. Let us pray.
Lord have mercy upon us.
Lord have mercy upon us.
Lord have mercy upon us.

Our Father, etc.

"O God, the Father and Guide of all Thy people, look favourably on Thy servant, Leonard Lambert Garnet Jeeves, whom Thou hast willed to preside as Pastor over Thy Church in this Parish; grant, we beseech Thee, that both by word and example he may profit those over whom he is set, that together with his flock he may attain life through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen."

Then the Rural Dean standing up and addressing the Rector, who remains kneeling before him, shall say:

"I, Rural Dean of Avalon, acting under Commission from the Bishop of Newfoundland by the authority committed to me, do hereby give thee,—Induction and Mission as Rector of this Parish, and authority to preach the Word and administer the Sacraments herein."

Then putting a Bible into the hands of the new Rector, before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and dead at His appearing and Kingdom, preach the Word, and administer the Sacraments, and exhort with all long suffering and doctrine.

He shall then conduct him to a seat in the Chancel on the north side, and inducting him therein, say:

"O, praise the Lord for His goodness, and declare His praises to all the children of men. Exalt Him also in the congregation of the people and praise Him in the seat of the Elders."

Following this, the Induction Rev. Dr. Jones preached the sermon, the text being taken from Genesis 13 chapters 1-4.

In his introductory remarks the preacher said that every man of intelligence had a ruling passion. Abram's ruling passion was the building of altars as a survey of his history will show. And the rebuilding of an altar meant to Abram a reconsecration of the Rector in his remarks to his congregation was then dwelt upon. And it was pointed out that there were two things that a congregation expected of a Rector, and in turn two things that he expected of his people. They asked for leadership, particularly in the present instance. The Cathedral congregation should lead the country not only in matters Churchly but in all things pertaining to the social and moral welfare of the same. "What is the attitude of the Cathedral in this question?" he ought to hear it asked, and it is not enough that this Cathedral should be right on all moral questions, the Cathedral should lead. But if the congregation ask for leadership, it is only fair that the Rector should demand loyalty. "What will you do," asked the preacher "if your Rector should give a new emphasis to some truths, or should introduce new methods of work, or should change the routine of your Church life? Will you be loyal to him? In the next place the congregation expects their Rector to be a man with a message, one that would vivify religion for them. He asks in turn that, his people give him a consecrated support. "Rebuild your altar, then to-day," said the preacher. "Reconsecrate your lives and then pastor and people will build up the kingdom of God in this city."

Held Over.

Owing to extra pressure on space to-day several interesting articles are unavoidably held over, so we can assure the contributors, that they will appear to-morrow.

Rev. S. H. Soper, B.A., at Wesley Church.

The announcement that a returned missionary from West China would speak at Wesley Church last evening drew a large congregation; and after the usual prayers and lessons, this talented and devoted St. John's boy, formerly of Gover St. Sunday School but for ten years past in training at Victoria, but lately, Toronto and later engaged in preaching and teaching at Jenchow, Szechwan, China, delivered an excellent address. As he told of the proclamation of poor boys by gathering them into the mission schools, where having been taught proper habits and to read, write, and trades and agriculture and other avocations; and of the unfortunate little girls, whose lives are considered worthless in China; and of the placing them in schools and training them for nurses in hospitals and as teachers for elementary schools, etc., the audience listened with keen interest, and as he continued on the blessing the medical missionary, and the hospital has been to China and Korea, all present felt that their offerings for maintenance of several institutions, and the salaries of the men and women who devote their lives for the uplift, and healing of thousands who suffer and perish among the dense populations of these Oriental countries, is money well spent.

NORRIS'S TRAP HIGH LINER.
The Messrs. Norris of Grates Cove are taking more fish in their trap than they can handle, the lowest catch a day for the past week being seventy quintals, and they are giving away all that they cannot put under sail. WHEN YOU BUY A Chevrolet 'Four-Ninety' TOURING CAR you purchase a fully equipped car at the very lowest price that any all-equipped up-to-date car sells for.

The Chevrolet "490" has inbuilt the Auto-Lite Electric Starting and Lighting system. This same system is fitted to cars selling at twice the Chevrolet price. It is most reliable and simple in construction, and can be depended upon to crank efficiently for many years.

Demountable rims is another up-to-date feature; with an extra rim for carrying a spare inflated tire secured to a tire carrier at the rear of the car gives the motorist a feeling of relief in case of puncture.

Another valuable feature is the One-Man Top. Apart from the ease in which one man can put up the top, it has another advantage over the ordinary type by giving added refinement.

Chevrolet "Four Nineties" are fitted with three speed gears forward and one reverse. The lower gears are only used for starting, because with the powerful Valve-in-Head Motor, very steep hills can be ascended with ease on top gear. The second gear has a speed of twenty miles per hour easily.

To insure absolute reliability the "490" has for standard equipment a Simms High Tension Magneto. This is independent altogether of the electrical starting and lighting system, and no matter what might go wrong, the car cannot fail to operate on the High Tension Magneto.

Fuel economy and low cost of upkeep is the Chevrolet slogan. 25 miles per gallon is the usual consumption. Chevrolets in St. John's are averaging this standard, and many are giving bigger mileage.

Ask any of the many users in St. John's what they think of the Chev. and you will be told that it is the best all round car that money will buy.

Write for catalog or call at our Service Station and inspect one of the new models.

Methodist Outport Educational Campaign.

GAINING HEADWAY.

CARBONEAR THE FIRST TO PUT ON CAMPAIGN.

Since the close of the big Educational Drive in St. John's, work has been going on in the interest of the Outport Drive, which is to take place in some seventy Towns over the entire of Newfoundland. The entire country is divided into Districts, and these Districts subdivided into groups of Towns. There are five Districts in all, and twenty-four groups in all, each District being headed by a Chairman and each Group by a Leader. The Groups are made up of the various Towns, which in turn have their own organizations. These organizations being made up according to the local conditions in each place. At the present time a great many of the Towns have their organization under way, and expect to come out over the top in their Campaign just the same as St. John's has done in its Campaign.

A great deal of interest has been manifested by the people in the various Towns all over the Island, and if they continue to carry on the work as they have up to the present time there is no question at all, but that the first big Outport Campaign in Newfoundland will be a success.

Intensive campaigns are being put on in a few of the larger places, the first of these being at Carbonear. During the past week the work of organizing has been going on at Carbonear, and is gradually gaining momentum. At the present time Carbonear has as its Town Chairman, Mr. Joseph Maddock, and as its Division Chairman, Mr. John Rorke, for the men's Division, and Mrs. John Maddock for the women's Division. These two Division Chairmen are now working to secure their Captains, and by Tuesday, July 29th, expect to have their Teams all completed. Judge Penney is Chairman of the Carbonear District.

The same plan is being worked out under the Hockenbury System as was worked out in St. John's and the people are becoming very much interested and enthusiastic over having a chance to play the game as St. John's played it, and they are bound to win out.

The dates of the Carbonear Campaign are, July 30, 31, August 1 and 2.

Immediately upon completion of the Carbonear Campaign, the plans of the Outport Campaign Executive Committee, of which Mr. Albert Soper is Chairman, are to continue at once to Burn and Grand Bank, and there put on an intensive campaign in August. After these campaigns are completed, all time will be spent in the remainder of the towns, however, and during August the organization of these Towns will be continued.

Regatta Prizes.

We wish to draw the attention of the Regatta Committee to the prizes for the Press race which we understand are Gold medals for 1st place and a money prize for second place. With the 1st prize we have no complaint, but think that the second should be silver medals instead of money. Our reason for asking this change is because of the fact that anyone competing for money prize is immediately placed in the professional class and could not, in the future, compete in amateur sports. The Telegram's crew, for Regatta Day, are all amateurs and will, without doubt, barring accidents, win the gold medals; but still in the interest of the members of the crews who may not have noticed the restrictions we ask that the change be made.

Obituary.

JAMES MILLER.

Topsail was shocked on Saturday evening at 9 o'clock, when the news spread through the settlement that one of its most prominent and respected residents in the person of James Miller, had suddenly passed away, at the age of 61 years. Mr. Miller had been speaking to friends a few moments previously and then appeared to be in his usual good health. He leaves to mourn a wife, one brother and 5 sisters, who will have the sympathy of the whole community at his sudden demise.

Household Notes.

Add a little lemon peel and juice to prunes when cooking.

Rubber shields left in silk waists sometimes crack the silk.

Pots of mignonette in a room are said to discourage the flies.

Salt beef requires carrots, turnips, parsnips and cabbage.

Get the stair rods lacquered if you wish to save them polishing.

When fringed doughnuts, etc. do not wait till the fat smokes.

Manuels Garden Party.

On Sunday next the annual Garden party at Manuels will be held, providing the weather is fine, and a most enjoyable afternoon will be spent by all who will patronize it. It will begin in the early afternoon and a fine programme of sports is being arranged by Mr. H. M. Wall, of this city. Amongst other interesting items will be a relay race for members of the various societies, and in the road race young chaps under 20 will compete. The Star Athletic Association are taking deep interest in the fete. The Rev. Fr. Kelly, P.P., has an energetic committee working with him so that it is expected this year's event will be far more enjoyable than any yet held at Manuels.

Took Flat Island Men.

The steamer Wren left for Northern Labrador Saturday night, taking the Flat Island men who had been brought down by the Ingraham. They will be placed aboard their schooners so that they will be able to prosecute the fishery.

Train Movements.

Saturday's westbound express arrived at Port aux Basques 6.45 p.m. yesterday.

Yesterday's westbound express, left Bishop's Falls 7.50 a.m.

What the President Has to Say.

Since 1914—the first year of the Great War—the gross earnings of the Halifax tramways, lighting, gas and power system have doubled, notwithstanding the fact that in compliance with military and naval regulations, the street lighting was temporarily discontinued, and lighting generally was interfered with. Owing to naval precautions, the City was largely kept in darkness.

In connection with the recent attractive issue of 3 year 7 p.c. Coupon Gold Notes, the President of the Nova Scotia Tramways and Power Co., Ltd., has written:

EARNINGS:

"The growth of the Company's business for the past five years has been consistent, as will be seen by the following figures, viz: Gross earnings 1914 .....	$ 645,241.00
" " 1915 .....	718,840.00
" " 1916 .....	759,726.00
" " 1917 .....	859,667.00
" " 1918 .....	998,702.00
" " 1919 .....	*1,325,500.00

*On basis of earnings ascertained to date.

"After an extended and practical experience in the operation of Tramways, Electric Light, Power and Gas Companies, and careful study of the situation here, and after having myself carefully considered the layout and topography of the City, and having further caused the equipment and layout of the Company to be examined by recognized experts, I am confidently of opinion that the Nova Scotia Tramways and Power Company, Limited, has an unusually attractive opportunity in Halifax. Improvements and betterments are, however, greatly needed; additional cars are urgently required, the track has to be improved and extended, and other facilities added. These it is now proposed to provide, thus making for improved service and returns.

"At a later date when financial and commercial conditions become more normal, it is proposed to refund, or pay off, these short term Coupon Gold Notes from the proceeds of the sale of long term bonds, or other securities, as may later be decided upon and approved. Considering the attractive interest yield to be had from these notes, and considering also the nature and permanency of the Company's business, and the enduring character, and rapid growth of the City of Halifax, with its magnificent location and assured position as the gateway of the Dominion, I believe that the Company's securities are valuable, and that these three year Coupon Gold Notes, in particular, are a safe and highly profitable investment."

A copy in full of the President's letter will be furnished on request.

Our Head Office has notified us that this issue is being rapidly subscribed. We are now telegraphing our orders. We recommend that investors apply early in order to ensure allotment and delivery. We will include your subscription on request.

Christened With Blood.

QUAINT CEREMONIES AND SUPERSTITIONS.

SOME interesting stories of the sailors who have been engaged round the coast during the war were recently told by Mr. Edward Lovett, Hon. Curator of the Folklore Section of the Imperial War Museum.

A story went round in the early days of the war, he said, that in the Helgoland Bight "scrap" a sailor spat on a shell, and that shell sank a German ship.

Nobody ever stopped to ask the man did it. The custom was very ancient. Pliny mentioned it. The saliva was supposed to be a part of a man's soul, and this custom was a sacrifice to the God of Battles. Fishermen always spat in the trawl before lowering it into the sea.

People talked about education destroying superstition, but there was more widespread belief in charms and amulets to-day than ever.

A child's caul, supposed to be a charm against drowning, could be bought for eighteen pence before the war. But after the submarine war started thirty shillings would hardly buy one.

Coins for Luck.

When a warship was launched a bottle of champagne was broken on her bows. That was quite wrong. It ought to be port; the survival of a blood sacrifice. In some cases even now a live cock was taken, and his blood dashed on the boat. This must not be washed off except by the sea. Why was a bottle with money and papers put under a foundation stone? It was said to fix the date. In fact, it was the survival of a sacrifice, the original sacrifice being a live child. Even the laying of the foundations of London Bridge was accompanied by a living sacrifice to appease the Earth God.

On all the pole corbes of fishing nets there were coins pushed in for luck. There was hardly a fishing boat without a coin, generally a gold one, under the mast as an offering to the sea for the protection of the ship. No fisherman ever mentioned rabbits or called another by his proper

One of Nelson's "Touches."

It was in the abortive attack on Santa Cruz in the early morning of July 25, 1797, that Rear-Admiral Sir Horatio—afterwards Lord Nelson lost his arm. A thousand men were to land from the boats of the British squadron under cover of the darkness, and Nelson went in one of the boats.

At about half past one in the morning, the boats were discovered by the Spaniards, and a very heavy fire of musketry and grape-shot was opened on them, by which several were sunk. Nelson was in the act of drawing his sword, when a grape-shot shattered his right elbow, but his stepson quickly bound up the lacerated arm with his handkerchief. Meanwhile they were surrounded with danger, but by steering close under the guns of the battery, the balls passed over their heads.

In spite of the heavy fire, the British seamen stormed and captured the Mole Head, though the fire from the Citadel mowed them down by scores. But Captain Troubridge managed to land, and after a severe struggle advanced to the Prado or great square, when, finding that the whole of the streets were commanded by field guns, and upwards of eight thousand Spaniards approaching by every avenue, he sent Captain

To Open Trade With Arctic.

NOVEL EXPEDITION STARTS NORTH.

New York, July 17.—The most novel expedition ever started for the Arctic sailed from New York this week on the staunch ketch-rigged auxiliary whaling but a commercial expedition planned for the primary purpose of establishing trade.

The Finback, formerly a large yacht, has been stoutly re-rigged and sheathed outside with extra planking to protect her from injury by ice.

The head of the expedition is Christian Leden, Arctic explorer and ethnologist, who has six assistants in his commercial and scientific work.

The skipper is Capt. George Cromer a Canadian by birth but a naturalized citizen of this country, who has had much Arctic whaling experience. He has a crew of eight men, including the cook.

In addition to explorers and crew, the Finback carries four men, who are to remain in the Arctic belt to look out for the business interests of the enterprise, for it is planned to be not an ephemeral but a permanent experiment. The vessel will return to the United States next fall, only to go north again the following summer.

The lumber with which she is loaded is intended to build houses for accommodation of the men who will remain.

Money No Good in North.

Besides the lumber the hold is well stocked with goods for trading purposes. The Eskimos with whom the expedition will have to deal are not much impressed with money, either coin or paper. Money, it is said by those who know them, is about the most useless thing one can offer them.

Mr. Leden has been into the Far North on four previous expeditions. Three of these have been to Greenland and one to the far north of Canada. On the last he discovered copper, iron and gold, which he now proposes to exploit for commercial purposes.

Scientific Purposes, Too.

There will be a scientific as well as commercial side to the expedition. For ethnographical purposes, Mr. Leden will have an equipment of instruments for taking measurements for recording the music and language of the people. Their customs will be recorded and specimens of utensils, household objects, clothing, etc., be brought back. Speaking of the trip, he said:

"We shall have little worry for food, for anybody with a gun and the energy to go out and hunt will not be in danger of starvation. For instance, on my last expedition the little sailing boat I was using was wrecked and I lost nearly all of my supplies. For eight months of the year I lived on raw frozen meat, which is just as easy to digest as cooked meat, especially if there is fat in it. It is better than cooked meat, for the cooking takes out certain salts that have then to be supplied by the use of vegetables."

"Caribou, which exists up there in great quantities, is the best venison I have ever tasted. Whale meat and walrus are very good eating and are extremely nourishing. Seals and bears exist in plenty, while splendid stamox can be caught all summer. The eggs from wild geese and duck and from the elder duck and sea gulls are palatable and nutritious. However, the birds themselves are not eaten unless big game becomes scarce.

Take Movie Outfit.

"I shall take with me a moving picture outfit with which I shall show the Eskimos how the white man lives. The films will give him an idea of city life and country life. He will see trains and motor cars and airplanes. The only difficulty about some of these is that the Eskimo idea of an evil spirit is a sleigh with harness but no dogs. He calls it the 'torrak' and he is very likely to think the motor car is a torrak."

Capt. Cromer has had many years experience voyaging along the north Canadian and Newfoundland coasts. He is a member of the Explorers' Club and a long time acquaintance of "Old Doc" Cook. He is expected to bring the Finback home in the fall, while Leden and his commercial and scientific companions will make their way overland.

The sponsors of the expedition are said to be Boston capitalists and Americans of Norwegian extraction.

Women as Prize-Fighters.

A FAIR PUGILIST'S ORIGINAL METHODS.

Records are made and broken every day, and in these go-ahead times nothing seems more certain than uncertainty.

This was brought forcibly to mind during a conversation recently overheard on a bus-top. The protagonists became heated as they discussed the female invasion of what was once regarded as man's peculiar domain.

One agreed that in the matter of such sports as were until recent times exclusive to the male sex, the advent of women as wrestlers and footballers had ceased to excite comment. But of one thing he was certain. The fair sex had not taken, and never would take, prize-fighting seriously, much less enter the ring.

The writer made mental note of the subject of the argument with an inward resolution to investigate whether any such entry into the arena of fist-cuffs would to-day constitute a record.

And the verdict is in the negative. Less than thirty years ago such a meeting took place at the Grand Theatre, Brooklyn, U.S.A.

The combatants were Hattie Leslie, who styled herself "the female John L. Sullivan," and Gussie Freeman, better known under the sobriquet of "Lonely."

Hattie, we are told, was attired in black fighting tights and a white silk tunic, while Gussie favoured lights and tunic of virgin white. The chronicler describes the sparring as having been very scientific until the third round, when Gussie violently resented having her head in chancery.

She became enraged, and invited her own undoing by casting science to the winds. Straight left leads, half arm jabs, and right hooks were discarded in favour of scratching, clawing and biting. Then the referee stopped the proceedings and awarded the fight to Hattie. Both women bore visible evidence of the conflict.

In still earlier times, in our own country, boxing matches between women occasionally took place, some at an amphitheatre in Islington.

Campers—Take Notice.

During this very dry season there is extra need for observing the utmost vigilance and precautions against the starting of forest fires. The following rules prepared by the United States Forest Service for the prevention of fires are of timely value:

1. Matches.—Be sure your match is out. Pinch it before you throw it away.
2. Tobacco.—Throw pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stumps in the dust of the road and stamp or pinch out the fire before leaving them. Don't throw them into brush, leaves or needles.
3. Making Camp.—Build a small campfire. Build it in the open, not against a tree or log or near brush. Scrape away the trash from all around it.
4. Leaving Camp.—Never leave a campfire, even for a short time, without quenching it with water and then covering it with earth.
5. Bonfires.—Never build bonfires in windy weather or where there is the slightest danger of their escaping from control. Don't make them larger than you need.
6. Fighting Fires.—If you find a fire, try to put it out. If you can't, get a word of it to the nearest forest ranger at once.

Far too many forest fires are due to carelessness. If every man who went into the woods observed these simple rules, there would be a marked reduction in the annual waste of our forest wealth.

Don't follow a heavy meat course with a rich dessert. Charcoal powder is excellent for polishing steel knives. Honey added to flour/paste will do for labelling tin cans.

Smoke-Loving Camels.

Curious stories are told by soldiers who have returned from the East of the extraordinary love of tobacco possessed by camels and dromedaries. It is said that they can be made to do almost anything under its influence.

The driver carries a triangular piece of wood, which is pierced at one point like a cigar-holder. This is inserted in the beast's mouth, the cigar being then lit and pressed into the hole. The camel immediately closes its eyes and puffs away through his mouth and nostrils till the cigar is entirely consumed. It seems thoroughly to enjoy the experience.

It Never Happened.

It was the same old story. He had got the wrong number on the telephone. Only this time he received a shock. "I'm sorry I gave you the wrong line," said a sweet voice over the wire.

"It doesn't matter a bit," he replied, not to be outdone in courtesy. "I'm sure the number was much better than the one I asked for; but it just happened that I wasn't able to use it."

Queen Mary "Rocks the Cradle."

A nation which can provide nearly eight million pounds a day for the conduct of a war is rich enough to see that slums shall not exist within its borders, and that all babies born shall have a chance to live and grow amid healthy surroundings. This is the opinion that Queen Mary is said to hold very strongly.

For a long time, the Queen has been devoting several hours each day to careful and systematic consideration of the manner in which some of her subjects live. She has visited the slums of London, and has paid visits to the hospitals and centres where London's slum babies are looked after. And the slights she has seen have touched her heart.

"These things must not be," she said emphatically, when shown some dwarfed and stunted children who had been gathered from the high-ways and by-ways. And she has set about putting her words into effect. Dr. Addison, President of the English Local Government Board was called into conference at Buckingham Palace, and the Queen personally went into the clauses of a bill which has since been laid before the House of Commons.

Will Tour All England. But London is not alone in the possession of slums, and the Queen realizes this. She accordingly enlisted the ever ready sympathy and interest of the King, and as a result His Majesty held an informal conference at Buckingham Palace, to which representatives of all the municipal bodies in the kingdom were summoned, together with those societies interested in the housing question.

It was a momentous conference, and from it the Queen was able to learn just what was being done, and along what lines, also how far aid was needed. The Queen now plans to tour England, and examine personally the condition of some of Britain's great provincial cities.

THE MIDDLE-SEXES.

While some Scottish regiments were disembarking in France, some French officers were watching them. One observed: "They can't be women, for they have mustaches; but they can't be men for they wear skirts." "I have it," said another. They're that famous Middle-sex Regiment from London.

Kitchener's Monument.

(From the London Times.) The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's have approved a design submitted by the Kitchener Memorial Committee, of which Lord Plymouth is chairman, for a memorial chapel to be constructed in the Cathedral. Canon Alexander stated that the design had only been considered in rough outline, and that the details were not yet settled. It will include, however, a recumbent figure of Lord Kitchener, and an altar with the figures of St. Michael and St. George. The chapel is to be situated at the base of the southwestern tower at the entrance to the Cathedral. The architecture is entrusted to Mr. Detmar Blow and the Cathedral architect, Mr. Merwyn Macartney.

Dominion Home Rule.

(From the Morning Chronicle.)

The warning which General Smuts addresses to the British people with reference to Ireland cannot but fail to impress all thoughtful men. The Irish question, as the distinguished South African says, has become a chronic wound, which is spreading its infection throughout the whole Imperial system, and is beginning to poison our most vital foreign relations. The Irish situation is to-day more dangerous than it ever has been within the memory of man. Now that peace has been signed, it has become the most imperative of domestic problems for the government of the United Kingdom. The conclusion of peace itself makes it urgent since, within six months of the signing of the Peace Treaty, a decision one way or the other must be taken on the Home Rule Act, which, though in suspense, is nevertheless on the statute books. But there are to-day above all else international reasons why the Irish problems should be solved. Ireland in unrest, or as it threatens to be, in revolt, will be a source of grave international embarrassment as well as a serious domestic handicap and burden. If the Irish administration is to be maintained only by military force, as it is to-day, bitterness will grow and violence is bound to increase. If ever there was a time when the Irish situation should be composed and settled, now is the time. To delay is to invite peril and disaster.

Omnious as the situation appears to be in Ireland, there is, however, encouragement in the fact that recently the new "Irish Dominion League," with which Sir Horace Plunkett and a group of Irishmen who have hitherto been regarded as moderates are associated, has come forward with a scheme of responsible self-government for Ireland on the model of the Overseas Dominions. These men are not extremists or revolutionists. They have no part or parcel in the idea of the Sinn Fein propaganda for an Irish republic, which they declare to be impossible and undestorable in the interests of Ireland, but they believe that Irish good-will can be secured and the question of Irish government practically settled by giving Ireland the status of a Dominion.

Great Loss of Revenue.

FALSE INVOICES THE CAUSE.

A business man on Water Street said to the Trade Review yesterday: "I estimate that the Custom House loses $100,000 a year by the trick of false invoices." It would pay the Government to give an expert $10,000 a year to get over these rogues. He should be a man who would not need to look at the invoices at all to tell the value of the goods. His orders should be to these tricksters, "I don't want to see your goods, and will make you open every bale of it. And if the law does not bear him out in this way to levy the duty, the law should be amended to do so. These men are laughing at our Customs, as well as are their principals in New York, etc., who say they have struck the easiest thing yet. They make a pile of money in a few years, then 'fold their tents like the Arabs,' and do as they have been doing all the time, viz., 'silently steal away.' It is hard on the legitimate business man who is trying to do an honest business, and paying on bona fide invoices in the same line of goods. And there are big houses as well as mushroom houses who are into the game, and they would be horrified at the word 'smugglers.' There it is all the same, and they are on no higher level—not so high—than the man who gets in a keg of rum from St. Pierre. Treat their invoices with the contempt they deserve, and get down to the goods. 'I bet you won't put that in your paper.'—Trade Review, to-day.

Sawing Wood With One Arm.

Buffalo Express: For some months now no despatch on the life of the former German Emperor at Amerongen, Holland, has omitted to say something about his favorite exercise, which is said to be sawing logs of wood. The faithful correspondent who sends out these stories, or the loyal secretary who gives them to him, evidently is not sufficiently familiar with manual labor to know that sawing logs is an occupation which requires the use of two arms. The retired Emperor, unfortunately has but one. Is it mere vanity which directs that the world be offered this characteristically German camouflage or is there a more sinister political design back of it?

Life, at Least, is Cheap.

Out in Chicago, where things are happening all the time, a seventeen-year-old girl walked into the office of a lawyer who, according to her claim, had wronged her, and calmly shot him to death. At the inquest, where she was confronted not only by the dead man's mother, but by his wife and child and another girl who considered herself his fiancée, the girl-murderer giggled constantly. It was evidence of a subnormal mentality, no doubt, but to what a pass are we coming when murder is followed by girlish giggling? The man seems to have deserved what he got, but can even his sorry record of trifling with the affections of young girls excuse the act and the attitude of his killer? Human life is about the only thing regarded as cheap these days. It will not do to permit its value to fall much lower.—Buffalo Commercial.

The following news item from a Canadian exchange is an indication of the prosperity of Newfoundland, during the four years of the war, and up to the end of the fiscal year, which terminated June 30.

"Newfoundland's great fishing industry was the means of bringing the Colony through the war financially unscathed. Estimates made public recently indicated that notwithstanding generous provision for all public services, the surplus revenue for the year ended June 30, would be at least $2,160,000, or nearly double the surplus of the year previous, and three times that of 1916-1917. Every attempt will be made to develop further the world market for the fishery products but the return of pre-war fishing activities in Europe is expected to put an end to the trade advantage enjoyed by Newfoundland during the past five years."

McMurdo's Store News.

MONDAY, July 28, 1919.

Red Cross Oil as a pain cure is well in the front rank of this numerous class of general remedies. The formula is one that has been in use for a good many years, and some people regard it as the most potent and useful thing of its class.

Whenever pain—external or internal—exists it may be employed and it will always give relief, and often a full cure. Those who are going on a vacation or a fishing trip should take a bottle of this oil with them. For pains, cramps, chills, colds, it will be found simply beyond value. Price 25c. a bottle.

C. L. B.

The Battalion yesterday morning paraded at 10 a.m. for the last Church Parade before camp. Lieut. Col. R. F. Goodridge in command with Capt. J. A. Winter, Adjutant, and the following officers attached to the companies: Lieut. Phil Rendell, Frank Miles, Rev. and Lieut. Pike, Captain Avalon Goodridge, Battalion Paymaster Ash and Walter Williams. The Shannon Munn Memorial Company, under Lieut. Pittman and squad from C. Co. were also on duty. The Old Comrades, in Khaki and mufti, under Sergt. Wiseman, also paraded in good strength. The band, under Lieut. Morris, and bugle band under Armourer Sergt. Bursell were also present. The Colour Party was in command of Lieut. R. G. Ash. The church was crowded and the service was taken by Rev. Arthur E. S. Stirling, Rector of the Parish. The hymn music was furnished by Lieut. Morris and his brass band musical artists. A feature of the service was the rendering of the Hallelujah Chorus by the full band and we have never heard it executed better. We congratulate the bandsmen and regret Captain Snow, the founder of this band, did not parade with the "Old Comrades" and hear the music yesterday. The sermon or address to the lads by the Rector was perhaps the most practical one the lads have ever listened to in the annals of the Brigade. It was the first occasion the Rev. A. Stirling addressed the Battalion and his appeal to the lads to practice courage, courtesy and cheerfulness, with illustrations from every day life and out of the famous book written by Judge Hughes, "Tom Brown's School Days," went straight to the lads' hearts and we feel sure will do good. Rev. (Lieut.) Stirling, C.L.B., is a very fluent preacher, has a good voice and the Brigade hopes he will give a lecture to the lads on some wet night in

Camp in the big mess tent! The Rector is also a Lieut. in the Battalion and will no doubt do his duty. After parade the Lieut.-Col. presented the following officers with their commissions: Major Geo. R. Williams, Captain Avalon Goodridge, Rev. and Capt. H. L. Pike, Lieut. R. G. Ash, after which Capt. J. A. Winter, Adjutant, addressed the Brigade on behalf of the "big educational drive" and distributed pledge cards and asked every lad to do his bit. A meeting of N.C.O.'s and camp officers was also held to arrange final camp matters. Lieut.-Col. Goodridge addressed the Brigade at the close of the parade and specially welcomed the "Old Comrades," and was delighted to see Sergt. Chas. Peckham of the American Flying Corps, in the ranks of the ex-members. Charlie was one of the early members of the Brigade some twenty years ago. He also welcomed Pte. A. Bishop, who was in A. Co. seven years ago. The lads parade with kit bags at the Armoury to-morrow night at 8 p.m. On Wednesday the Battalion will march to Camp at 10 a.m. Lieut.-Col. Goodridge will take command in person, marching over the route. Camp funds had a handsome voluntary subscription of fifty dollars during the week from one of its former prominent officers. It was very welcome, considering the high cost of living and the big crowd of all ranks going to Topsall this year attacking the rations. This morning at 10 a.m. the first truck goes to Topsyall with tents and equipment and the pioneer squad. Another goes at 5.30 p.m. this evening. All the boys want now is ten decent fine days and we wish them good luck. Heart's Content and Wabana Companies are coming, so it will be a case of "Hail, hail, the gang's all here."

"H. C. of L." in Nelson's Day.

The returned soldier, who is disgusted to find how horribly dear everything is, will enjoy this story of Horatio Nelson. The Admiral was dining with Beckford, the author of "Vathek," and a very rich man. Owing to the great scarcity of wheat, even such folk often denied themselves bread at dinner. Lord Nelson asked for bread, and when told by a servant that bread was not served at Mr. Beckford's table, he looked angry, drew from his pocket a shilling, and sent his own servant to buy a loaf, observing that, having fought for his bread, he was not going to be denied it by his fellow-countrymen.

Seaman Suicides.

The schooner Nina Lee, Capt. J. Wiseman arrived yesterday morning, after a 22 day run from Oporto, with salt cargo to Messrs. A. E. Hickman & Co. The passage was exceedingly rough, gales of wind from N. W., W. N. W., and S. W. prevailing. The only damage done to the vessel was the loss of her top and jibstays. On entering port the Ensign was flown at half mast, announcing the loss of one of the crew, Roland Reddy by name, a native of Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, who while suffering from a nervous attack jumped overboard on the fifth day out from Oporto, and despite the efforts of those on board the ship to rescue him, was drowned. Captain Wiseman in endeavouring to launch the ship's boat at the time was somewhat injured about the chest by being caught between the boat and the mainboom, but luckily not seriously.
