General News.

John Morrissey is amusing the gentlemen at Saratoga by taking their money from them.

Oxford has conferred upon the poet Browning, its degree of Master of Arts by diploma—an honor hardly conferred once in a century.

A Chicago wife fired at her husband for taking another woman to a picnic. She then fired at herself but failed to kill either.

French editors are the principal duellists in France. One of them, M. Sainte Beuve, has lately set a good example by refusing to fight when insulted.

The Jews have resolved to establish a college in Philadelphia. It is not, however to be confined to their own people; but to be open to Christians of all shades of views.

The Queen has commanded (says the Owl) that the "Life of the Prince Consort" should be forthwith undertaken, and to the pen of Mr. Theodore Martin, the accomplished translator of Goethe's ballads, Her Majesty has committed the task.

The annual loss by the wear of coin is estimated at one-tenth of one per cent, and the consumption by the arts and by fire and shipwreck at $3,000,000 a year.

Major Pallister is to receive an immediate bonus of £15,000, and £5,000 next year, to encourage the continuance of his services in connection with the chill shot system which has put Great Britain in a better position than any other nation so far as regards artillery.

Late correspondence states that more victims are to be slaughtered in Mexico, and adds: "Their fate has not yet been decided upon, but the taste of the Mexican people has become fearfully craving for human blood and victims, and hardly any doubt exists that most of the generals will be tried and condemned as traitors.

One of the Good Templar excursionists from Detroit to Walpole Island on Friday, thought to enjoy himself by a good bath, and while he was in the water a thieving Indian stole all his clothes. He was compelled to borrow a suit of the fireman of the Morning Star before making his appearance on board the boat.

A distinguished New York divine, pressed to go to Europe, is angry upon his return to find his substitute so much preferred by his parishioners that they propose to retain him and let the "original Jacob" go. Such action will stop a great deal of bronchitis, says an irreverent American paper.

Travellers see funny things. A Kingstonian saw in the window of a post office at Neuchatel, in Switzerland, this summer, among lost letters, one addressed "Kenneth Mackenzie, Esq., Toronto, C. W." The post master didn't know any such country! The Kingstonian, of course, enlightened the Swiss official, and received his thanks.

Spurgeon's great efficiency as a religious leader is said to lie in his administrative ability. He not only works himself, but inspires others to work with all their might. It is said that a commercial firm in London were so impressed with his administrative ability that they offered him $15,000 a year to embark his influence in their enterprise. He manages a church of 3,800 members; a theological seminary of 100 students, publishes a monthly magazine, a weekly sermon, has just issued a monthly hymn book, and is about to establish an orphan asylum. He has infused this spirit of work into his church. Six hundred young men go out every Sunday to preach wherever they can get a hearing. Prayer meetings are held in fifty or more places every evening. A Bible class of 300 young men is conducted by one of the elders. Mrs. Bartlett, a member of this church, has a class of 900. Spurgeon's success is owing to his well-directed efforts. The most shining abilities cannot dispense with active labor.

Says a sensible exchange—"It matters not how many newspapers a man takes, his list is incomplete without his home paper. If that paper is not such as he would wish, he should feel that himself, and neighbors are responsible, in a measure, for its shortcoming. Give a paper a liberal support, an active sympathy, and it will instantly respond to such manifestations. Let an editor feel that his efforts are appreciated, and he is the most responsible being on earth; his paper being part of himself, he is as sensitive to praise or censure as a dotting father. Nothing can supply the place of a home paper. It is the mirror in which the town and neighborhood news are reflected; in social, political and religious circles it fills a place no other paper can. When a need of economy compels you to curtail your newspaper list, strike off every other one before you say to the publisher of your home journal—"don't Excursion.—A larger number availed themselves of the opportunity of enjoying a cheap ride to Hamilton and back again today, by the Great Western, than what was anticipated would do so. The day is agreeable and there is nothing to mar their enjoyment, if they will only be at peace with themselves and their neighbors.

HARPER'S WRITING BOOKS.—We are in receipt of copies of the above from W. E. Tunis & Co. They are the best copy-books we have ever seen, and if they have a faint deal more care and taste than is absolutely required. For Sale at Day's Bookstore.

ALICE FORBES OF HOWLEIGH.—This is a republication by the Harpers of one of George Macdonald's beautiful and fascinating stories. The "Annals of a Quiet Neighborhood" "Guild Court" and "The History of Robert Falcoeur" and other works by Mr. Macdonald are so well known, and so highly appreciated that we have only to state that "Alice Forbes" is now published in a cheap form to insure for it a large sale. Messrs W. E. Tunis & Co. are agents for Canada, and copies may be had at the Bookstore of T. J. Day, Market Square.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE.—We have received from the Leonard Scott publishing company the July number of this able periodical. The contents are as interesting as usual. The Brownlows is continued, and Cornelius O'Dowd parades his wisdom and racy humor as of old. The other articles are, the American Debt and the Financial Prospects of the Union, the Easter Trip of Two Oculophobists, a New History of Napoleon I, the Royal Academy and other Exhibitions, Praxiteles and Phryne, the Death of Sir Archibald Allison. For Sale at the Bookstore of Messrs. Sheehan and Day.

Pic-nic.—From appearances this morning there will be no paucity of attendance at the picnic at Pustich Lake today. Early this morning the artillery men had donned their costume, and vehicles drawn by four horses, and fitted up for the commodious conveyance of a large number of passengers were rattling over the streets, and soon left town with their living, animated freight. How the day was spent we shall be able to inform our readers to-morrow.

THE ALGONA ALL RIGHT AGAIN.—Mr. and Mrs. Boyd and Mr. John Bigli arrived in town to-day, having come to Collingwood in the Algona on Tuesday forenoon. The Algona was got off the rocks by the assistance of two tugs without having sustained any injury. She sails again to-morrow. The passengers give Capt. Perry and the officers of the boat the highest praise for their kindness and attention during the passage, and also during the time they were detained at the Small's Shoals. The expenses of living there while the boat was lying on the rocks were generously, and without solicitation, defrayed by the Company.

Mr. Drew's Election Meetings.

On Friday and Saturday last Mr. Drew, one of the candidates for the House of Commons, for the North Riding of Wellington, held meetings in the northern parts of the Township of Arthur. The first meeting was largely attended, as it was generally expected that the Hon. M. H. Foley would be there to meet his opponent. This Mr. Drew made impossible by appointing his meetings at times when Mr. Foley had previous appointments made for other places.

Mr. Drew commenced an hour and a half's oration by stating that he did not intend referring to the political history of the past—and at the same time the first half hour was occupied with simply telling his audience that the peculiar state of the great political parties before Confederation was the means of bringing it about. He then stated that the only question before the electors was the success of the Union, alleging that the only government likely to perfect Confederation was the present one, which had promoted and carried out the scheme to fit with the the anti-Unionists of the Lower Provinces. At this particular stage an elector asked whom he meant by disunionists? His reply was that he did not know the names of any but Mr. Howe. He was then asked if he referred to the acts of these parties before Confederation or not, as showing them disunionists? His reply was as before. The question was then put, "What were Mr. Sandfield Macdonald and Mr. M. C. Cameron's views before Confederation as to the advisability of Union?" He said he believed they were opposed to it. Then it was added, "What was to prevent others opposed to it at first to enter into it with the same feelings as they did now?" "Nothing," was his reply. Mr. Drew then went on to show that charges were made against the government that were unfounded. The Governor General's salary they had nothing to do with, and at any rate it was a mere trifle as compared to the great interest in the proper carrying out of Confederation. In reference to the charge against Ministers, that they intended claiming $8,000 per annum, he said it was untrue, and if they attempted to obtain it he would vote against them.

An elector asked, "If the government attempts to obtain $8,000 per annum for Ministers, will you vote want of confidence?" His reply was, "Yes."

Then, said his interrogator, "if the present government is the only one to carry out the Confederation scheme, and the sum of $50,000 to the Governor General is only a trifle, why put the government out of power for paying simply $3,900 additional to ministers?" "O," said he, "I would look around for ministers that would take less."

Altogether, Mr. Editor, it was the poorest effort I ever heard made by an aspirant for political distinction on such an occasion. At his first meeting, four to one declared themselves in favor of Mr. Foley. At the second meeting of about forty he had only one supporter, and at the third, where only eight were present, he had four.

It was with the greatest difficulty that the whereabouts of his meetings could be discovered. He publishes them in no papers, puts up no notices in any of the public thoroughfares; and when challenged publicly to meet his opponent, or advise him of the whereabouts of his meetings, that they might come face to face, he positively declined.

Analysing for trespassing on your columns so largely, I will send you, if I can find them out, a report of the proceedings at subsequent meetings, which must be shorter than this, as at each he makes, verbatim, the same speech.

Yours, &c., AN ELECTOR. Arthur, 30th July, 1867.

Sale of Thorough-bred Stock in Halton.

On Wednesday the 24th of July, Messrs Kirby & White, near Milton, in the County of Halton, disposed of a large number of thorough-bred stock by auction.

The animals consisted of Durham cattle, and sheep of the Leicester, Cotswold and Lincoln breeds, some of which Mr. Kirby imported from England. Several eminent stock breeders, residents of Halton, as well as many from various and remote parts of the Province, were present at the sale. The following were disposed of:

BULLS.—"Candidate," four months old, sold to William Colwell, Halton, for $85; "Confederation," 3 months old, sold to D. Sturton at $75; "Blair Athol," 2 months old, sold to Alex. Waldie, Halton, at $65.

COWS AND HEIFERS.—"Florence," aged, sold to F. Huxton at $65; "Bracelet," yearling, to John Snell at $60; "Modesty," six months old, to John Snell, at $140; "Melody," 5 months old, to John Arthur at $86; "Rosebud," yearling, to John Snell, $150; "Butterfly Bloom," 2 months old, to Wm. Colwell, $60; "Virtue," one month old, to Wm. Colwell, $66; "White Rose," 11 months old, to D. McNair, $110; "Young Duchess," 23 months old, to Wm. Elliott, $170; "Duchess Bloom," 3 years old, with calf at foot, to Wm. Colwell, $240; "Mersey Cow," 7 years old, to Mr. Hardy, $290; "Phoebe," 6 years old, to Wm. Colwell, $205.

SHEEP.—Ram, imported, 2 years old, sold to Robert Stevenson, $72; ram, imported, 2 years old, to D. Sturton, $80.—Some 10 or 12 shearing rams were sold at prices varying from $30 down to $15, the purchasers being mostly from the neighboring Township of Nassagaweya. Mr. Robert Kirby of Pustich Plains, purchased three shearing ewes at the respective prices of $50, $46 and $44.—The sale, as a whole, was very successful, and the treatment tendered to those attending it was of the most praiseworthy character.

THE DOMINION STORE.—Mrs. Robinson, late of the Post Office Store, has removed to the premises next door to the Wellington Hotel, Upper Wyndham-st. To an improved stock of such goods as she formerly kept, she has added groceries of the foremost quality. She has now cigars and tobacco of the best brands, toys handsome and abundant, the fruits of the season in profusion, and a large quantity of maple sugar for the gratification of those who have a relish for the article. Mrs. R. has had some new front put in her

MR. HOWLAND IN GUELPH.

The Hon. Mr. Howland came up to Guelph from Toronto yesterday, Tuesday, and was closeted some hours with two prominent Coalitionists in town. Afterwards, we hear, he visited some other parties in town, among the rest Dr. Clarke. He left for Toronto by the evening train, but we understand he is coming up again, and proposes to visit all the three Ridings in the County in the interest of the Government and the Coalitionists. The current rumour about town today is, that Mr. Howland, after a long conference with Dr. Howitt, has indicated that gentleman to come out in opposition to Dr. Parker for the Centre Riding. It is also said that Mr. Howland has been doing his best to get out an opposition to Mr. Stirton and Mr. Gow in this Riding. Possibly his visit to Dr. Clarke had something to do with this.

We give these rumours as they are circulating, but at present are unable to say whether there is any foundation for them. It is evident, however, that Mr. Howland had some special object in view in coming to Guelph, and there is little doubt he came up to see what chances there are for Coalition candidates in this county. The way in which our Ministers are at present travelling through the country to drum up candidates, to gain over some weak Reformers, and heal all differences among the Conservatives, would be very amusing if it were not very discreditable. John A. and John S.—the two premiers—are lovingly trotting round the country like brothers, while Mr. Howland—now John A.'s obsequious tool—is sent off on a special mission to try and get out opposition to his old Reform friends. All this shows to what desperate straits the Coalition Government are put, so as to secure all the possible strength they can in order to keep them in power. Ministers have descended from their high position—are daily neglecting the important business of the country—and have come out as common canvassers and political agitators of the most rampant character. Verily the Coalition Government have made a bad beginning—a sure sign of a worse end.

Female Suffrage in Kansas.

The New York papers publish the following letter from Mr. John Stuart Mill, the distinguished philosopher:
Blackheath Park,
Kent, Eng., June 2.
DEAR SIR,—Being one who takes as deep and continuous an interest in the political, moral, and social progress of the United States, as if he were himself an American citizen, I hope I shall not be intrusive if I express to you as the executive organ of the Imperial Suffrage Association, the deep joy I felt on learning that both branches of the Legislature of Kansas had, by large majorities, proposed for the approval of your citizens an amendment to your constitution, abolishing the unjust political privileges of sex at one and the same stroke with the kindred privilege of color.

We are accustomed to see Kansas foremost in the struggle for the equal claims of all human beings to freedom and citizenship. I shall never forget what profound interest I and others who felt with me watched every incident of the preliminary civil war in which our noble State, then only a Territory, preceded the great nation of which it is a part, in shedding its blood to arrest the extension of slavery.

Kansas was the herald and protagonist of the memorable contest, which at the cost of so many heroic lives, has admitted the African race to the blessings of freedom and education, and she is now taking the same advanced position in the peaceful but equally important contest which, by relieving half the human race from artificial disabilities belonging to the ideas of a past age, will give a new impulse and improved character to the career of social and moral progress now opening for mankind. If your citizens, next November, give effect to the enlightened views of your Legislature, history will remember that one of the youngest States in the civilized world has been the first to adopt a measure of liberation destined to extend all over the earth, and to be looked back to as its most fixed conviction as one of the most fertile in beneficial consequences of all the improvements yet effected in human affairs. I am, sir, with the warmest wishes for the prosperity of Kansas, yours very truly,
J. STUART MILL.

The Water of Salt Lake.

All travellers, writes a correspondent, have mentioned with astonishment the peculiar buoyancy of the waters of Great Salt Lake, and it is truly surprising. No danger of shipwreck need ever cross the mind of those who ever navigate the lake, for it would be simply impossible for them to sink if thrown overboard. With my hands clasped together under my head, and my feet crossed, I floated on the very surface of the lake with at least one-third of my body above the water. Upon a warm summer's day, there would not be the slightest difficulty in going to sleep upon the lake, and allowing yourself to be blown about as the wind permitted; only one would need an umbrella to keep off the rays of the sun. It has been stated that three buckets of this water will yield one bucket of solid salt; but, inasmuch as water will not hold above twenty-five per cent of saline matter in solution, and if more be added it is instantly deposited at the bottom, this estimate is, of course, too large. On enquiring of the Mormons engaged in procuring salt, they unanimously stated that for every five buckets of water they obtained one bucket of salt, which gives the proportion as not less than 20 per cent. No visitor to the lake should omit the bath; the sensation to the water is most luxurious, and leads one to think himself floating in the air—the way back to the city, it will be as easy as the bath to stop at the superb baths just outside the town, and the saline incrustations which are deposited upon him, by a plunge

Mr. Whipple on Shakespeare.

Mr. E. P. Whipple continues his subtle criticisms on Shakespeare in the Atlantic Monthly, discussing the "Growth, Limitations, and Toleration of his Genius." The limitations of Shakespeare, Mr. Whipple urges, are to be found in the comparative weakness of his religious instincts and sentiments, and in his want of sympathy with those phases of human character which stand for the reforming and philanthropic sentiments of humanity. He has created no character in which the religious nature is predominant. Nor was he inspired with any courageous hope for the fortunes of the race. He was too profoundly impressed with its disturbing passions to have faith in its continuous progress. Here is a marked distinction between his genius and that of Bacon. He had no comprehension of the benign spirit of the faith in man which both atone and account for so many of Bacon's moral defects. No character in his plays illustrates the elements of such a man as Hildebrand or Luther. Though the broadest individual nature which human nature has produced, human nature is immensely broader than he. His greatness consists not in including the whole of human nature, but in taking the point of view of the large classes of human nature which he did include. He dealt fairly with the worst criminals and the weakest minds. His unbounded tolerance is a proof of his wonderful superiority. Most men, no matter whether they are virtuous or vicious, wise or foolish, are impatient of other individuals. Mr. Whipple's remarks on this point are as profound as they are novel, or, if not novel, as illustrative of a truth that is habitually lost sight of in the relations of society. People are uncharitable by defect of sympathy and defect of insight. They are engaged for much of the time in the agreeable occupation of despising each other. For one association of mutual admiration there are twenty for mutual contempt. But while conversation is mostly made up of strictures on individuals, it rarely evinces any just perception of individualities. Each person feels himself to be misunderstood, though he never questions his power to understand his neighbour. The vision is distorted when one mind directs its glance at another, by a mean delight in refusing to recognize the superiority of others. For one person who is mentally conscientious there are ten who are morally honest. The result is a vast massacre of character. This depreciation of others is the most approved method of exalting ourselves. The savage conceives that the power of the enemy he kills is added to his own. Shakespeare more justly conceived that the power of the human being with whom he sympathized was added to his own. The generous tolerance, without which an internal knowledge of nature is impossible, Shakespeare possessed beyond any other man recorded in literature or history. The marvel of his comprehensiveness is his mode of dealing with the vulgar, the vicious, and the low, with persons who are commonly spurned as dolts and knaves. He had none of the pride of virtue, either in its noble or ignoble form.

CATASTROPHE NEAR PRESCOTT.—On the 15th of July a terrible catastrophe occurred in the township of Augusta, whereby a Mrs. Lavery, the wife of a pensioner was burnt in their house with four children, to ashes. The oldest boy, 17 years of age awoke first and made desperate efforts to break open the windows and doors on the lower floor, but could not succeed. The mother remained in the house with her four children, while the father and son ascended to the upper story and leaped from an open window there, and went to procure the assistance of some neighbours. They returned quickly, but found only a pile of blazing logs. The house had burnt like tinder, and all that was recovered of the five beings left alive in it was some children which were gathered and put into one coffin. The fire originated from the stove.

A CARD FROM The American Watch Company, OF WALTHAM, MASS.

THIS Company beg leave to inform the citizens of the new dominion of Canada, that they have made arrangements to introduce their celebrated Watches to their notice. They are prepared to prove that their watches are made upon a better system than others in the world. They commenced operations in 1850, and their factory now covers four acres of ground, and has cost more than a million dollars, and employs over 700 operatives. They produce 75,000 Watches a year, and make and sell not less than half of all the watches sold in the United States. Up to the present time, it has been impossible for them to do more than supply the constantly increasing home demand; but recent additions to their works have enabled them to turn their attention to other markets.

The difference between their manufacture and the European, is briefly this: European Watches are made almost entirely by hand. In them, all those mysterious and infinitesimal organs when put together create the watch, are the result of slow and toilsome manual processes, and the result is of necessity a lack of uniformity, which is indispensable to correct time-keeping. Both the eye and the hand of the most skillful operative must vary. But it is a fact that, except watches of the higher grades, most European watches are the product of the cheapest labor of Switzerland, and the result is the worthless Ancre, Lepin, and so-called Patent Levers—which soon cost more in attempted repairs, than their original price. Common workmen, boys and women, buy the rough separate parts of these watches from various factories, polish and put them together, and take them to the nearest watch merchant. He stamps and engraves them with any name or brand that may be ordered—whether London, Paris, Geneva or whatnot; and many a man who thinks he has a genuine "M. I. Tobias, of Liverpool," (whose only fault, is that he can never regulate it to keep very good time), is really carrying a cheap and poor Swiss imitation.

How American Watches are Made.

The American Waltham Watch is made by no such uncertain process—and by no such incompetent workmen. All their operations, from the reception of the raw materials—the brass, the steel, the silver, the gold and the precious stones—to the final completion of the Watch, are carried on under one roof, and under one skillful and competent direction. But the great distinguishing feature of their Watches, is the fact that their several parts are all made by the finest, the most perfect and delicate machinery ever brought to the aid of human industry. Every one of the more than a hundred parts of every watch is made by a machine—that infallibly reproduces every succeeding part with the most unvarying accuracy. It was only necessary to make one perfect watch of any particular style and then to adjust the hundred machines necessary to reproduce every part of that watch, and it follows that every succeeding watch must be like it. If any part of any American Waltham Watch should be lost or injured, the owner has only to address the Company, stating the number of his watch and the part wanted, whether it be spring, pinion, jewel, or what not, and by return mail he would receive the desired article, which any watchmaker must adjust to its position. The Company respectfully submit their watches on their merit only. They have fully succeeded in overcoming popular prejudice in the States in favor of European watches, and solicit a thorough examination and fair trial for their manufactures elsewhere. They claim to make

by their improved mechanical processes than can be made under the old-fashioned handicraft system. They manufacture watches of every grade, from a good, low-priced, and substantial article, in solid silver hunting cases, especially adapted to the wants of the farmer and lumberman, to the finest chronometer for the navigator; and also ladies' watches in plain gold or the finest enamelled and jeweled cases, but the indispensable requisite of all their watches is that they shall be good Timekeepers. It should be remembered that, except their single lowest grade named "Home Watch Company, Boston," all watches made by them

New Advertisements. THE RUSSELL WATCH!

A FEW REASONS THAT MAKE IT SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS.

- 1st—It proves itself a reliable time-keeper beyond all question.
- 2nd—The RUSSELL WATCH being made on correct and scientific principles, it must follow as a natural consequence that it will keep time.
- 3rd—Each part of which the RUSSELL WATCH is composed is a reflex of the perfect machine by which, under skillful direction, it is produced.
- 4th—Truth is the essential of each part.
- 5th—Uniformity and conformity must therefore characterize the several parts in fulfilling the purpose for which they are made and brought together.
- 6th—Reproduction, as regards watch work, is simply an application of the principle that "things which are equal to the same things are equal to one another," and if there is any merit, the RUSSELL WATCH possesses that merit to a demonstration.
- 7th—The greatest variety of price, quality and size, that confidence and perfection will admit, afforded by the RUSSELL WATCH.
- 8th—The RUSSELL WATCH stands pre-eminently above all competitors for public favor and patronage.
- 9th—Proofs of the foregoing—the universal testimony of all Watchmakers who have sold, and the positive statements of the thousands in Europe, the United States and Canada, who have worn the RUSSELL WATCH.

TESTIMONIAL.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JULY 31.

NORAH CUSHALEEN

OR THE HAUNTED CASTLE.

CHAPTER IV.—THE SMUGGLERS' CAVE—THE DISCOVERY.

'Ah me, sighed Hargreave. The old story is true in Ireland as well as else where—'Love, betrayal, shame, and death.' This is evidently some poor victim of man's perfidy, who has sought for herself and the offspring of ill-placed love an eternal resting place in the depths of the sea.'

'Mair likely she's been murdered,' remarked Andrew. 'Nae woman could gang sae far frae land ta' droon herself.'

'You are right,' said his master, in a tone of horror and vehement indignation. 'A cruel, a monstrous crime has been committed.'

At this point Terry advanced with a black bottle in one hand and a glass in the other. He poured out a small quantity of liquor, and set it down till he lifted the tresses of hair from her face.

'I could swear she's beautiful afore I do it,' he murmured. 'It's beauty and love together that brings a girl—'

'What's the matter?' asked Hargreave, as Terry, the moment he uncovered the face, gave a great start.

Terry did not seem to hear the question, for with distended eyeballs he was gazing or rather glaring, at the white, death-like countenance.

'No, no,' he wildly exclaimed, 'it cannot be; and yet she has her features—Six years haven't changed them much, and never another girl round had her beauty. Ah, the mark. Is the mark there?'

With frantic haste he lifted the wet hair still further from the left temple, and disclosed a purple mark something in the form of a heart. At sight of that Terry uttered a loud cry of agony, clasped his hands together, and shrieked—

'Holy Mother! it is my sister, Norah Cushaleen!'

'Most astonishing,' said Hargreave, greatly shocked. 'Are you certain of this, Terry?'

'Certain of it, yer honour,' moaned the stricken man. 'There's not a boy at Dundara, or five miles round it, but could tell at a glance whose beautiful face that was, and sure her own brother ought to know it. It was the terror that struck me that made me doubt it at first; but the mark! She got that many years ago, and she'll carry it to her grave.'

Hargreave'll wildly repeated with sudden vehemence; 'ai! sure she'll go there immediately if we don't get her round.'

Andrew lifted the glass from the floor, and was about to put it to her lips, when Terry suddenly grasped his arm.

'Stop!' he gasped; and his face was whiter than hers. 'If she's got the shame upon her, she'll never lift her head more; and it's better that the sea should have it's will. What's that? He added, as he grasped one of her hands; 'a ring. Then she's married. Oh, what do I deserve for thinkin' that my own darling Norah would bring disgrace on herself and the name of Cushaleen.'

He tenderly raised her head, and as the tears streamed from his eyes he took the glass from Andrew's hand and put it to her lips. She swallowed its contents with a spasmodic jerk, and a long, heavy sigh came from her bosom. Gently Mr. Hargreave untwined her arms from the infant, and Andrew took it from her bosom, and, with something like a mother's skill and tenderness, removed the wrappings, and revealed a round, chubby face, from which the colour had not yet gone.

Breathing could not be detected, but there was a little heat in the child's body, and its own underclothes were not drenched with the salt water.

While Hargreave and Terry were busy in their efforts to restore the mother to animation, Andrew quietly undressed the infant, and rubbed its body with the strong liquor which was contained in the black bottle. As he proceeded, a stronger heat came into the little frame, a warmer glow mantled on its cheek, and he thought he could even detect a faint heaving of the chest.

He carried it to one of the beds, wrapped it up in a blanket, and left it there. Then he went to a corner where the fire had been formerly burning, and piled up a quantity of wood, applied a torch, and soon a cherry blaze warmed the atmosphere of the cavern.

Terry and Hargreave had now removed the wet garments from Norah, and they laid her in another couch, covering her carefully up with wollen wrappings. A faint heat was beginning to creep slowly over her body, and the rising and falling of her bosom was plainly discernible; but her eyes still remained closed, and she continued unconscious.

Terry watched the hopeful symptoms in breathless agitation. An utter revulsion of soul had him seized when he saw the marriage ring on her finger. Had she been fallen and degraded, he would rather have had her restored to her sea grave than to a life of shame; but that circle of gold witnessed to her purity and honour, and, while it enlisted all his brotherly affection in trying to restore her, it also filled his heart with dark suspicions of treachery and betrayal, and he longed to know who was the monster who had murdered such a fair, helpless victim—longed to know that he might visit him with a brother's vengeance.

It was not long before Norah became restless and moved her arms nervously. 'She's fannin' for her hair,' remarked Andrew; 'I'll bring it.'

'Oh, no!' said his master. 'It would be cruel to put the dead body of her child in her arms.'

A faint cry made them turn quickly round, and they beheld Andrew coming forward with the child now warmed into life, and conscious of its wants.

Canadians in the United States.

We have received the following from a Western subscriber, and may state that it is a fair sample of many others on similar subjects, which have reached us from subscribers and Canadians in the United States. The correspondent encloses his subscription and says—

Sir—I have never seen your paper but admire some extracts which I have seen in papers which I take. I have spent four years in Yankeedom, and in that time I have scarcely seen a Canadian whose heart and soul was not in Canada, and many a tear of gladness is shed as we read of the progress of our dear Canada.

The more a Canadian stays here, the more he loves Canada—the very efforts brought forth to make Canadians hate their country only make them love it the more, and I assure you that in the hour of her trial she can rely on thousands of loyal hearts and strong arms now beyond her border. The feeling of Canadians here towards Canada is similar to the feelings of the boy towards his mother and sisters the first time he leaves home to seek his fortune in the world.

Every cobbler in the United States thinks that Canada is dreadfully oppressed and would be glad to be annexed to the United States. I wonder at many of our Canadian papers sending forth glowing accounts of the United States, especially when they have a tendency to make our people dissatisfied with home, and emigrate to Minnesota or somewhere else.

Now that the Dominion is a reality, it is to be hoped that those in authority will act with a disinterested love for the whole people and country. You must excuse me for writing so much; I have only partly expressed the feeling of Canadians here.—Trade Review.
