Flag the Fall Fair

A prominent Watford gentleman writes the editor as follows:—"Everyone is agreed that Watford Fall Fair takes a high stand among those of the County but there always seems to me one serious lack, and that is the absence of our nat-nonal flag. Would the Agricultural As-sociation accept the suggestion that at least one flag of a size in keeping with the importance of the Association, be unfurled in some conspicuous part of the grounds, and numerous smaller ones be also used in the decorations?

In this important time in the annals of our nation's history it does seem that we should give a prominent place to the emblem which represents our country's strength and honor.

BLACK LIST OF DEAD-BEATS

There are dead-beats, but who made them? Nature in some cases and the business methods of business men in others. When a man is found out to be wilfully dishonest by a business man every other business man in the community should be made cognizant of the fact. If a business man gets "stung" by a deadheat he should not be ashamed to tell it, so as to save others from getting in the same box. To lose a dead-beat from a list of customers is not a severe loss, and the business man who warns others of the dangers is a public benefactor to others of his kind. To expose a dead-beat in the start, nip his dishonesty in the bud, will do more good than harm. It might force him to be honest when he was on the verge of becoming dishonest, and a man who is honest even by pressure, is better than a dishonest man. The man who proves himself wilfully dishonest should be treated by everybody on the cash-in-advance principle, and as soon as he learns that he can get nothing till the cash is on the counter, he will soon realize his position in the community. It takes courage and back-bone on the part of the bus-iness man to say "no" to the oilytongued dead-beat with the earmarks of dishonesty, but it will pay to brace up. The credit system is a common evil to business, and there are people, who would buy the moon if they could do it on credit. Blacklisting dead-beats would save a lot of trouble.-From the Durham Chron-

BARALONG REPRISALS

At the time correspondence over the Baralong case was exchanged by the British and German governments some months ago, the German government ended the discussion with a threat of reprisal. According to a wireless from Berlin yesterday, a white book has been sent to the reichstag, informing that body that the reprisals will take the form of Zeppelin raids on England. The dispatch contains this characteristic sentence: "In the future Zeppelins raiding English towns will have no consideration for the lives of civilians, other than that demanded by international law.'

As Zeppelins never have shown any consideration for the lives of civilians that anybody could notice, the meaning of all this is merely that the alleged refusal of the Baralong's crew to give quarter to the crew of a German submarine which was caught while sinking a neutral ship is to be regarded by the German government as a sufficent atrocity to justify the bombing, past and future, of the homes of English women and children. The frightfulness probably will be no worse than it has been from the beginning, because it could not be, but the excuses offered for it will be little worse.-Buffalo Express.

Morning on the Farm

Get up my lad! the sun is rising, it is a most majestic day; Aurora's beauty is surprising, you should be glad to quit the hay. Get up, get up, the dew is gleaming, like priceless jewels on the grass; it is a sin to lie here dreaming, while morning's transient glories pass. Get up, my son, the light is stealing athwart the summit of the hill, and I can hear the porkers squealing for buckets of refreshing swill. The oriole's already soaring, the mocking bird begins to mock, and you, O sluggish youth, are snoring, although its nearly four o'clock. When I was young my sainted father ne'er had to rouse me from my bed-I thought it shame to cause such bother-I rose before the East was red. Before the wren began its carols, or cat bird raised its solo fine, I went and carried seven barrels of slop to feed the humpbacked swine. I went about my labors singing, as I would see you do, my son, and when the breakfast bell was ringing, the morning chores were always done.

Get up, get up, the world is wak-The morn is grand, but soon it fades! And in three shakes I will be breaking this slat across your shoulder blades!

Declining Birthrate in Britain

The commission appointed over three years ago in London to investigate the declining birthrate of the nation has just issued its report in the form of a book entitled, "The Declining Birthrate: Its Causes and Effects." The commission included in its ranks men and women doctors, religious and social workers, and others, and evidence was given by a number of well-known doctors, ministers and public officials.

The report shows that the commission regarded the following five propositions as definitely established: 1 That the birthrate has declined to the extent of about one-third within 35 years. 2 That the decline is not apprec iably due to alternations in the rate or age of marriage or kindred causes. That it is not uniformly distributed.

4 That it is on the whole more marked in the well-to-do classes. 5 That the greater infant mortality among the poor ones does not reduce their effective fertility to the level of that of the wealthier classes -or in other words that although the children of the poor die in greater numbers, their families remain larger than the familes of more fortunate parents.

To the foregoing conclusions the commission adds, less positively, two others:

1 That conscious limitation is widely practiced in the upper and middle classes, while, in addition to other means of limitation, illegal abhortion occurs frequently among the industrial population, and:

2 That there is no reason to believe that the higher education of women diminishes the power of child-bearing. .

That, at least, has been the experience of an Edinburgh denizen. Once, in the remote and shadowy past, he took that which was not hisone apple-from a stand in the Cowgate. The fruit was enjoyed, but the memory of the furtive meal proved to be anything but pleasant. The consumer left the Scottish capital and in time Fate carried him across the Atlantic. Fresh scenes and activities engaged him, but the thought of that apple dogged him everywhere. He might have been a second Eve. At last his overloaded conscience could bear the strain no longer. Nothing short of written confession to the Lord Provost of Edinburgh would appease the gnawing at his heart. So-40 years after the dark deed had been done-the letter was written and conscience money to the extent of one dollar paid.

Arkona's Civic Holiday Celebration

Arkona, August 24.—Arkona's civic holiday yesterday took the form of a celebration at home, and the results were celebration at home, and the results were very satisfactory to her citizens. It is many years since so large a crowd was entertained by Arkona in so pleasant and profitalle a manner. The dav was divided into three sections—forenoon, afternoon and evening—with special emphasis on the latter two.

The afternoon program consisted of two fast games of ball between Strathroy and Arkona, in which the home team defeated the visitors by a shut-out, 6 to 0, in the first game, and 5 to 1 in the second. The games were witnessed by thousands work, were a credif to the game.

The only censure that was heard passed on the game came from a woman, who has several sons at the front. She remarked that if these splendid eligible athletes were clad in khaki and were throwing bombs at the Germans with equal skill, they might turn the tide of battle against the kaiser on some battle front, where their chums from Lambton and Middlesex might be hard pressed. front, where their chums from Lamon and Middlesex might be hard pressed.

Tea was served by the Red Cross workers in the exaporator plant, adjacent to the sporting field. The laying out was all that could be wished for, and the patronage was good.

In the evening the crowd gathered in thousands and were entertained by a program in the hands of Chairman John Farrell. The Forest Band, in varied sections, provided the music.

THE SPEAKERS

Addresses were delivered by C. Jenkins, president of the Petrolea Board of Trade; J. C. Elliott, M. P. P., of East Middlesex; R. Stirrett, mayor of Petrolea; Wm. Hall, warden of Lambton; R. J. McCormick, ex-M. P. P.; H. J. Pettypiece, of Forest, and others.

The fireworks were very attractive, and were put off skillfully by those in charge.

The large number of people who arrived in autos was an indication of the prosperity of the farmers of this part of the county,

FOOTGEAR.

A Vivid Comparison of This and Last Year's Styles.

Anybody who predicted that so called "fancy footwear" would be out of fashion this spring made a wrong guess. It may be true that last autumn many of the extreme styles of ornate footgear that had been worn luring the summer were discarded, but it is also true that they were discarded simply to make way for other styles of fancy footgear.

This spring the shops are as far from showing plain black boots and shoes as they were last year. Yet the boots and shoes of this spring are quite unlike those of last.

To begin with, a novelty is the return of the colonial pump. It is here in all its glory of tongue, and most women are thankful to see it again, for surely the colonial pump is comfort itself. It stays on without rubbing at the heel, which is something few other cuts of pump do.

Colonial pumps are made in patent leather, in black kid and in colors. Tan kid in various shades shows buckles of brown enamel or brass. Some of the black kid pumps have cut steel buckles, and the colored ones have either silver buckles of true colonial pattern—which also grace some of the smartest dull black kid pumps—or buckles covered with the colored kid.

Buckskin shoes are worn this spring. There are some very good high cream and light tan buckskin boots, both buttoned and laced, with French heels, that are admirable for street wear with

The blind evelets are still used for laced boots and the round laces. Cut work is shown on some of the white-kid and buckskin boots and also on those of black patent leather. It forms a decorative band on each side of the front lacings.

Although leather or kid of two colors is not combined so much as it was last year, there are many sport shoes of white buckskin or canvas and tan leather. The combinations differ. Sometimes tan heel and toe caps on white boots with tan laces are found. Sometimes the vamps will be tan, with a white top and toe.

There are high buttoned or laced suede boots in violet, dark blue, green and other colors to wear with silk frocks of the same color. Three buckled straps are found on some of the new low shoes. The buckles, of nickel, are small, but heavy. Sometimes the straps come from the edge of the sole.

bow fore and aft. On the left side is a fruity cluster in gay colors. This hat answers the prime need of durability for everyday wear.

Women Make War Machines. An exhibition of the work women are doing to replace the men who are at war is being held in Kensington, England. All that is best in women's industry is shown, including what is done in the home, in the munitions and Red Cross work and women's ability to provide new careers for others. One woman, a consulting engineer, demonstrates how the aeropiane depends on women. Careful and responsible workers are necessary, for the safety of the aviator depends on the women's work. In Glasgow the women are instructed in tram driving so that as male employees leave for enlistment their places may be filled quickly.

Fresh Gloves. Soiled gloves are an abomination, especially in the spring. There may be a day when we shall look back upon the soiled white and colored gloves of which some of us are guilty occasionally with as much distaste as we now look on soiled shoes. Work out some scheme now whereby your gloves can always be fresh. Wash fabric gloves. wash kid gloves and silk gloves can all be kept spotlessly fresh without much

To Cream Hard Butter. If butter is hard to cream don't warm ft. This changes the texture of it. Instead run it through the vegetable ricer. This breaks it into small pieces, and it can then be readily creamed.

A FLOATING FORTUNE.

The Right Kind of Whale Is Heavily Freighted With Wealth.

First let us dispel the popular idea that a whale is a fish. It is not a fish, but an animal. It feeds its young with milk. And even though it lives in the water it can be drowned. A fish extracts oxygen from the water and takes it through its gills. But the whale has to rise to the surface and get a supply of oxygen from the air. When it does this it spouts water to make room for air, and the fishermen say, "There she blows!" A whale has a large, flat tail, about eighteen feet across. Every fish has an upright tail. That is because fish need their tails only to act as rudders. But a whale, when he needs oxygen, has to beat down the water and get to the surface in bounds. That's the reason his tail is flat.

The baleen, or whalebone whale, carries all the whalebone in his mouth. It hangs down from his upper jaw in a vast network. He eats the smallest sort of jellyfish, etc. Having no teeth, he swims right into a shoal of things that form his food, and the network of whalebone acts as a huge fishing net. Whalebone is worth $10,000 a ton, and one whale may carry one and a half tons of it. Besides whalebone, we get tons of oil from the whale. It is used for ointments and very fine candles. And from a certain species of whale we get ambergris, which is worth from $10 to $30 an ounce. The whale is a floating fortune.-

Knife Duels In Mexico.

A duel between cattle herders on the Mexican plains is about as savage and deadly a manner of fighting as one could possibly imagine. Each opponent extends his left arm, and a third party who has been selected to act as referee binds their wrists together with a thong of rawhide. He then places a knife in the right hand of each, and the fight is on. Needless to say, it does not last long. Every stab may be cal-culated upon to do damage, and it often happens that both duelists receive fatal wounds. Wet, in spite of the severe rules of the game, there are men who become experts and terrorize a whole neighborhood. They pride them-selves on being able to strike so quickly and so surely that they can kill an opponent with the first blow and get away unscathed .- Exchange.

When Tea Was Dear

tea should turn for consolation to the records of its price in early times. At its first introduction into England, about the middle of the seventeenth century, tea fetched anything between £6 and £10 a pound, and though a fall in price quickly took place the East India company still had to pay over £4 for the two pounds of tea which it presented the king. However, even thus it is doubtful if the tea merchants got very fat, seeing that the importa-tion of some 4,000 pounds in 1678 was enough to glut the market for some years.—London Chronicle.

The Missouri River.

The Missouri river is one of the great drainage channels of the United States. measuring in total length about 2,400 miles. It drains 527,155 square miles, a territory as great as that embraced in the states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Delaware, Maryland, Viryama, Olin, Delawie, Maryand, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippia.

Although Missouri river may never again be utilized as a means of communication and transportation, it destined to play a large part in the better development of its drainage basin by furnishing water for irrigation and for generating power.-Geological Survey.

Ancient Baths of Caracalla. The Romans appear to have been well off in the matter of bathing places in the first and second centuries. In the baths of Caracalla 1,600 bathers could be accommodated at one time. The inclosed area was 360 square yards, but it included a course for foot racing. The bathing establishment was 240 yards in length by 124 wide. The remains of the walls are eight and ten feet thick and in some places as much as fifty feet high.

CURIOUS WAY TO FISH.

Samoans Use a Cocoanut Leaf Chair Half a Mile Long.

A Samoan fishing bee is a unique sight to witness. Cocoanut leaves are gathered in abundance and secured, doubled and tripled, end to end, to form a long prickly chain, round in appearance and about three feet in diameter. These leaf chains are often woven to a length of half a mile. When the chain is complete all the men of that particular village turn out en masse with their "paopaos," or Samoan canoes.

When the tide is high the chain is stretched across some convenient place, supported by natives in their paopaos or simply wading where the shal-lowness will permit. The cecoanut seine is then submerged and slowly forced shoreward, the prickly points driving the fish before them. the point is reached where the chain can rest upon the bottom and still protrude slightly from the water the natives after securing the ends to the beach retire and wait for the tide to recede, leaving the fish high and dry.

It is often found that large fish are driven and caught in this manner, but since they are caprble of jumping the barrier they are dispatched with spears at once. The catches of fish thus made are sometimes enormous and often number thousands.

Worms however generated, are found worms however generated, are found in the digestive tracts, where they set up disturbances detrimental to the health of the child. There can be no comfort for the little ones until the hurtful intruders have been expelled. No better preparation for this purpose can be had than Miller's Worm Powders. They will immediately destroy the worms and corimmediately destroy the worms and cor-rect the conditions that were favorable to their existence.

As the tourist walked along a quiet highland road he saw a cottager chopping, wood with a very ancient looking ax.

"That's surely an old hatchet you have there," he began. "Ay, it is," replied the cottager, pausing in his labors. "Aince it belanged to the great Sir William Wallace himsel'." "Indeed!" exclaimed the tourist in surprise. "I should not have thought it was as old as that." "Aweel," came the cautious reply, "ye ken it's had twa new heids and fower new haun'les sin' then."—London Globe.

The devout in all lands have their own particular way of giving outward demonstration to their piety. In Russia it frequently takes the form of wearing miniature Bibles as charms on the watch chains. They are got up in attractive form about an inch square and three-eighths of an inch in thick ness and contain the first five books of the Old Testament. The text of the book is in Hebrew and the titles in Latin. It is true that the book could erful magnifying glass, but that does not trouble the Russian "unco guid." WATFORD, SEPTEMBER 1, 1916

The End of Kaiserism

The war grows more impressive as it advances. Everyone admits now, as they must admit, that no temporary peace will satisfy the allies. If we are to have victory, and it looks very much like that now, then it must be complete victory. If the kaiser is the chief aggressor and if Prussianism is the dominating spirit of that aggresion, then the allies will insist on the disappearance of the kaiser and the substitution of something other than Prussianism in the government of Germany. A hundred years ago, Europe was deluged in blood by a great war to put down Napoleon and French domination; but if the allies succeed now it will not be merely St. Helena for the Napoleon of today. The kaiser and all his family have got to walk the plank in some way that means their end for ever.

And so the war must go on and we must send forward our forces and spend our money and stand all our loss, whether of men or means, in the one fixed determination that similar conditions shall never again pre-

The International Institute of Agriculture reports that the world's wheat harvest this year will be approximately 25 per cent, under that of last year, though about up to the average since 1900. What the world needs is a constant increase in the size of crops. That would help to reduce the cost of living.

German army doctors are using sugar with great success in the treatment of wounds. It is reported. The method is simple. The wound is dressed with granulated sugar, and then bound. The sugar does not act as a disenfectant, and must not be applied until bleeding has been arrested. But when applied to a clean wound surface healing proceeds with astonishing rapidity. No washing of the wound is necessary when redressing, which is merely a matter of renewing the application of sugar every second or third day, sugar dressing has also the advantage that there is no adhesion to the flesh.

PALE, WEAK GIRLS

Grow Into Weak Despondent Women-How to Overcome the Trouble

Healthy girlhood is the only path to Healthy girlhood is the only path to healthy womanhood. The passing from girlhood to womanhood lays a new tax upon the blood. It is the overtaxing of the blood that makes growing girls suffer from headaches and backaches, from paleness and weakness and wearness, from languor, despondency and constant ill health. Unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood and a life of misery. Nothing but the blood building qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can save a girl when she undertakes the trials and tasks of womenhood. That is the time when nature makes new Pills can save a girl when she undertakes the trials and tasks of womenhood. That is the time when nature makes new demands upon the blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new, rich blood to meet these demands. In this simple, scientific way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give growing girls new health, and make their dawning womenhood bright and attractive. Miss A. Sternberg, Haileybury Road, New Liskeard, Ont., says: "I have much reason to be grateful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they restored me to health, if, indeed, they did not save my life. In 1914 I began to feel run down, and the doctor who was called in said that mine was a bad case of anaemia. I lost flesh, always felt tired, and I got so nervous that I could scarcely hold a cup to take a drink. My heart would flutter alarmingly. The doctor did not seem to be able to help me at all and my family and friends all thought that I was in a decline and could not recover. I was in bed for some weeks when an aunt came to see me and urged that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My father got a supply, and by the time I had taken three boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and from that on I steadily progressed toward recovery. I continued using the pills for some time longer, and they restored me to my old time health and strength. I shall never longer, and they restored me to my old time health and strength. I shall never cease to praise this medicine, and to urge all weak run down girls to give it a frair trial, as I have proved in my own case their great merit."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockwills Ore. their great merit."

Wyoming Enterprise;—A hitch has taken place in the process of installing the Hydro Electric in the municipality during the past week. The men engaged in the placing of metres in the wired building found conditions in some of them which prevented them from completing the work, and as both the London and Sarnia men who installed the wiring had left the village, the men were obliged to leave the work undone. In the meantime the connection of the power to the buildings will be deterred until the defects shall have been remedied. We are at a loss to know why the Government inspector had not noticed the omissions when he made the inspections after the wiring had been done. Toronto, August 29.—Receipts at the Union stockyards to-day were 620 cattle, 162 calves, 1,354 hogs and 846 sheep.
Cattle moved very slowly again this morning at the Union stockyards, dealers appearing somewhat reluctant to close transactions. The result was that the market dragged along till a little later than usual and early sales were few and far between.

later than usual and early sales were few and far between.

The market was generally steady, with prices ruling unchanged for most animals. Spring lambs were a little firmer, the best grade selling up to 11½c. Hogs were plentiful, but held their price well. Choice grade steers moved freely and were firm. Bulls were draggy and other classes slow though steady.

How England Started The War

(From the Hartford Courant.) As the German Emperor so convincingly says, England, after making all her plans, selected the day for the war to begin, and she selected it when she knew that Germany was prepared for war in absolutely every respect and that she herself had only a handful of soldiers and ammunition enough to last about a week, with no provisions for increasing the supply. The circumstances provide all the evidence the emperor needs for his argument although his armies were invading Belgium even while the British ambassador at Berlin was begging Germany to refrain.

Mr. Dingee's Dinner

Story of a Marriage Anniversary.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The day Silas Dingee married Mand Ball he declared that never before had he known real happiness. He swore that the anniversary of that blessed day which ended his bachelor loneliness would be more to him than all the holidays in the calendar together. A cynical friend at his farewell bach-elor dinner the night before had said to him:

"Si, I'm sorry for you. Tomorrow you go to serve your life long term of regulation. Farewell independence. Farewell a jolly night at the club. Farewell cocktails; they'll taint your breath. Farewell cigars; they'll make the curtains smell. Goodby, Si. The matrimonial prison doors will soon close behind you." "You dried up old bach," was Dingee's reply, "tomorrow will be the hap-plest day of my life. And let me tell you whenever the anniversary of my wedding comes round I'll have some delicate memento for the dear girl who is to furnish that happiness. I shall on that day remain at home from business and devote it to celebrating my escape from such crusty old bachelorhood as you represent.'

When Mr. and Mrs. Dingee were driven away after the wedding fes tivities, followed by showers of rice and old shoes, it looked as if his promises would be kept. If ever there was one year passed. Mr. Dingee had been made over by his wife from a bachelor to a married man. He had learned to live for some one besides himself. The first anniversary of his wedding had come round, the day that he had vowed he would celebrate above

As Silas Dingee shrugged on his overcoat that morning preparatory to making a dash for the nearest subway station his pretty wife spoke from the dining room door.

"If I'm not at home when you come,

dear""Going out this afternoon?" interrupted Dingee peevishly.

"Just to Mrs, Wright's for bridge, honey," she soothed him. "If I'm not here the moment you arrive just get a bite to eat from the refrigerator and read your paper until I come. It won't take me fifteen minutes to get dinner after I arrive-steak and mushrooms, Silas—it's Hilda's afternoon out."

"Seems to be always Hilda's afternoon out and yours, too," grumbled Dingee as he kissed his wife farewell and departed.

As he opened his newspaper on the train he was still thinking of his dislike of being alone It was one of his peculiarities that he was a restless mortal indeed when Maud was away from the apartment. Maud was an inveterate card player and belonged to two bridge clubs and a band of pinochle enthusiasts. On the evenings when he knew Maud would be late in coming home Mr. Dingee usually went from his office to his club and remained there until his wife's frantic telephone messages assured him that she was home and that dinner was waiting.

On such occasions he usually called a taxi and sped home on the wings of love and rubber tired wheels.

Today everything went wrong. In the mail he found several misdirected letters, which had been returned to him. One of them was an important matter, which involved the loss of considerable money.

So he discharged the careless stenographer, scolded his chief clerk, scared the office boy into a state of humility and lunched at his club.

After luncheon things went better. He telephoned to Chicago and found that he wouldn't lose the money after When the tearful stenographer came for her money he gave her another trial, and the office boy was emdened to ask for a raise in his pay,

Whether he received it or not is not part of this tale, but at 4:30, when Mr. Dingee closed his desk, he was feeling in high good humor with himself and the world.

He had quite forgotten all about the lonely apartment he must return to and stopped to buy some violets for Maud. While he stood there who should rush up to him with hearty greeting but Tom Finch, Maud's Bo ton cousin and a particular chum of Silas Dingee's.

"Just going up to your place," remarked Tom.

"Mighty glad to see you!" cried Dingee heartily. "Maud's out this after-noon at some whist bat or other, but she'll be home by 6:30. We can have a bite to eat as soon as we get there." GILLETT'S LYE

Good! I'm hungry. Had a little accident coming down. The buffet car and one coach derailed. Nobody hurt. Haven't had a bite since 10 this morn

"Man alive, hurry!" Dingee hustled Tom into a taxi, and they whirled up-

"It's 6 now. Maud will be home in a few minutes," said Dingee as he opened the door with his latchkey. But the rooms were dark until he switched on the lights and revealed the warm coziness of the place.

"We'll have to forage a bit," said bingee as they left hats and overcoats in the hall and entered the dining room, "Til make you a cup of coffee, hey?"
"Just the thing. I'm starved, old man." They entered Hilda's spotless kitchen and investigated the refrigerator.

"Cold chicken! Not bad for a handout," commented Tom Finch as he pounced on the platter. "What's that,

"Yes, and here's the mayonnaise. Take 'em along. Maud certainly has, got some goodies put away for me. Let's try the pantry."

The pantry gave up a remarkably dainty loaf of bread and a huge round cake thickly iced with white. When the men had set the table in the dining room there was a feast in-

"This is a regular birthday party," chuckled Tom as he carved the chick-en. "Maud needn't bother about getting any dinner. This is good enough for me!"

"Suits me down to the ground," agreed Silas Dingee. "I suppose Maud will scold when she finds I've treated you to a picked up meal when she likes to put on company frills when you come down."

"Humph!" sniffed Tom Finch, who was more interested in the good things before him than he was in the elabo rate preparations for any meal. "Seems to me you live pretty high. Didn't I see a steak and mushrooms and some kind of pudding in the icebox?"
"You did," said Silas cheerfully.

Those are for dinner." "What is all this food for then?" "Search me!" retorted Silas. "Have a piece of this perfectly 'splendiferous' birthday cake?"

Tom Finch looked rather startled and laid down knife and fork. "You are sure it isn't anybody's birthday?" he faltered.

Silas meditated. "Not mine or Maud's. It may be Hilda's or the cat's birthday. They don't count, though, What's that?"

"That" proved to be the buzzer from the dumbwaiter, and Silas Dingee hastened into the kitchen and fussed around a bit. Presently he returned and sat down again.

"Ice cream," he explained. "Maud's evidently going to have it for dessert. Funny, though, she should have or dered such a quantity."

A feeling of apprehension settled over the two men as they consumed the delicious cake, which was rich with fruit.

"If ever I tasted a birthday cake"-Tom was beginning when Silas Dinges interrupted impatiently. "Hang it all, man, can't you stop croaking? What if we have eaten every hanged thing in the house, eh? It's my house, isn't it? I'll eat the ice cream if I want to!" he ended reck

"Let's save something for Maud," grinned Tom Finch as he pushed back his chair. As he spoke the door opened hastily, and Maud Dingee, flushed and rather excited from her hurried trip home came in, followed by a remarkably pretty girl with ermine furs snuggled

"Tom Finch!" cried Maud, falling on er cousin's shoulder. And over his shoulder her eyes surveyed the remains of the feast.

Silas Dingee looked at his wife and saw horror in her gaze. She came for ard and looked at the remains of the chicken, the evidences of salad, the bare half loaf of bread and finally the damaged cake.

"Refreshments for what?"

"For my party."

"Your party? When?"

"Tonight, goose!" she sobbed angrily.
"Didn't you know that this is our wedding anniversary and it's Polly's birthday, and I was going to have the love-liest surprise for you? The Campbells are coming and the Lanes and the Treats.' Silas Dingee was pale, but he held his ground. "How was I to know, Maud?" he explained. "You might have remembered the day," she reproached him.

"I did," he prevaricated. "Didn't I bring you violets?" Triumphantly he produced the box of flowers. Still Maud eyed him suspiciously. "You often bring those on ordinary oc-casions," she said, but her husband's chagrined face quite melted her heart so that presently she smiled and said it didn't matter and remembered to introduce Tom to the pretty Polly in the Everything turned out beautifully, after all. Dingee frantically telephoned to a caterer and a florist, and Maud and Polly dashed around and straightened up the rooms for the expected company. They ate a hurried meal in the kitchen, Tem Finch skillfully making sandwiches for the two girls. It was a most delightful party. Still. Dingee saw there was one tiny cloud which even the sight of Tom's devo-tion to Polly could not lift from his wife's heart.

Although he did not ask for an explanation, Silas Dingee is quite sure that Maud was more hurt because he had forgotten that it was their wedding anniversary than she was over the stolen dinner.

However, to be on the safe side, he has carefully noted on his desk calendar the important date for next year. and there isn't any likelihood that he will forget it, especially as Tom and Polly have selected the same date for their own wedding.

Lore of the Clover.

Any one who carries about a four leaved clover will be lucky and will have the power of discovering ghosts or evil spirits. With it under the pillow the lover may insure dreams of the beloved one. A fragment in the shoe of a traveler insures a safe journey. The power of the four leaved shamrock for good is familiar to all from Lover's pretty and once popular song, the speaker in which pictures what she would do should she find the magic plant:

I would play the enchanter's part and scatter bliss around, And not a tear or aching heart should in the world be found.

SUCCESS OF A NEW REMEDY FOR BACKACHE, KIDNEYS, RHEUMATISM

Dear Mr. Editor—I suffered for year with backache. Last March I tried "Anuric" and have used this new kidney medicine recently discovered by Dr. Pierce, and it was wonderful the way it eased the pain and gave merelief in such a short time. I have tried several medicines, but "Anuric" is the only one that gave satisfaction. I feel it my duty to recommend "Anuric Tablets" to any one who suffers as I did. (Signed) MRS. MARGARET E. SNIDER

(Signed) MRS. MARGARET E. SNIDER.

Note: Folks in town and adjoining counties are delighted with the results they have obtained by using "ANURIC," the newest discovery of Dr. Pierce, who is head of the INVALIDE' HOTEL and SURGICAL INSTITUTE, in Buffalo, N. Y. Those who started the day with a backache, stiff legs, arms and muscles, and an aching head (worn out before the day began because they were in and out of bed half a dozen times at night) are appreciating the perfect rest, comfort and new strength they obtained from Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. To prove that this is a certain uric acid solvent and conquers headache, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism, if you've never used the "Anuric," cut this out and send ten cents to Doctor Pierce for a large sample package. This will prove to you that "Anuric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid—and the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector. If you are a sufferer, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50-cent box of "Anuric." You run no risk for Dr. Pierce's good name/stands behind this wonderful new discovery as it has for the past half century for his "Golden Medical Discovery," a general tonis made from roots with pure glycerins which makes the blood pure, his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women and "Pleasant Pellets" for liver ills.

THE CANARY ISLANDS.

In Ancient Days They Were Thought to Form the Real Heaven. You know, of course, that the Canary islands are northwest of Africa and that they belong to Spain. You may happen to remember, too, that three very interesting things have been given to the world by that group of is-lands—Canary wine, the Canary dance and the lovely little yellow song bird that has a place in so many homes. To be sure, they are the Canary islands, because that is where canary birds come from.

But hold! The horse is behind the cart. The birds got their name from the place of their nativity, and the group of islands took its name from the largest and most important member, Gran Canaria island. Curiously enough, the name means "big dog" instead of "little bird."

There was a time when these islands were of far more interest and impor-tance than they are now, a time when they called forth a special government edict. It was the senate of Carthage that passed a law forbidding the citizens to make those islands the objective point of their summer vacation.

From time immemorial the world had believed that somewhere beyond the pillars of Hercules there was a group of islands so beautiful, so replete with everything to make men and women happy, that they constituted the real heaven. They were called "Is-lands of the Blest." When the Carthaginian fleet returned from its first expedition to the Canary islands there was danger that all the population of Carthage would emigrate to that realm of song birds and tempered sunshine; hence the edict-

Eggs That Can't Be Found.

The eggs of some common birds of the present day have never been found. There is the robin snipe; its eggs have never been seen. An English zoologist kept a man going up and down the coast of Labrador for weeks purpose-ly to get a robin snipe's egg, but it was in vain. The bird is known by thousands of people, but it breeds so far north and so remote from any civilization that no scientific observer can ever get to its nest ere the young are hatched and have taken to wing. The frigate bird that is so commonly seen at/sea on the Pacific and off the West Indies is such a solitary bird and is a seldom seen in the next bird. and is so seldom seen in its nest during the hours of daylight that its egg

A Terrible Affliction.

At an exhibition of paintings a lady and her daughter took much interest in a picture which represented a soldier with hollow cheeks and staring eyes. It was called "After the Attack of Lutzen."

"What is 'Lutzen,' Mary Anne?" asked Mrs. Crockett in a whisper. Mary Anne admitted that she did not know.

"Well, anyway," said Mrs. Crockett, with conviction, "it's a terrible disease. I can see that easy enough without anybody telling me." — Youth's Com-

The Early Drum.

Drums are probably an eastern idea introduced by the crusaders into Europe. They are frequently mentioned accounts of the first crusade. Edward III. of England and his queen made triumphal entry into Calais in 1347 "tambours" were among the instruments which were played in their honor. Another of these was called a "nacaire," or kettledrum, taken, to-gether with its name, from the Arabs. The poet Chaucer also mentioned this instrument in his description of the tournament in "The Knight's Tale." The king generally kept a troop of these bandsmen or minstrels in his employ, and we read that Edward II. on one occasion gave a sum of 60 shillings to Roger, the trumpeter; Janino, the nakerer, and others for their performonces.

German Opinion of Englishmen

"The shooting of Capt. Fryatt is a necessary and wholesome lesson for England; she must learn for once that mere descent from English parents does not entitle anyone to an exclusive position as against all other nationalties. Suppose Fryatt had been merely sentenced but not executed; the English would have thought, and perhaps even exclaimed triumphantly:—'Yes, the Germans are bold enough!' to threaten, but they dare not carry out their threat; they have too much respect and secret fear for the "civis Britannicus sum"! Faith in his unconditional superiority and the prerogratives of his nation is the chief persuation of any Englishman, even one of those who are far re-moved from the scolding, baseness and brag of the yellow press. He does not realize what an amount of arrogance is contained in his conduct. There nobles, who in personal inter-course are charming folk, who do not boast of their origin, who conduct themselves in a much simpler way than an enriched pig-dealer, who are always friendly towards and ready to help their humblest seryet an occasion aries when suddenly you discover that this modest and polite person puts between himself and the rest of humanity an insurmountable barrier. So what with an educated Englishman is only a quiet haughtiness appears among the masses of the people who lack any judgement of their own about foreign countries as a bull-neeked pride. An Englishman in his own eyes can do no wrong to other nations, for by reason of his special position in the universe his interests are precedent to those of all other peoples, and any means are permitted of pushing his interests."—Koeinische Zeitung.

The Prophecy Came True

A good many years ago, when the present Kaiser was a youth, he was on a visit to his grandmother, Queen Victoria, and while walking in the grounds of a certain Royal domain he was boasting of the rise of the Hohenzollerns and the future greatness of his house. Among the ladies who accompanied him was one who had certain powers of clairvoyance, and it was noticed that after the Prince had made his boast as they stood on the side of an ornamental lake, the lady, pointing to it, said "When they cut hay from the bot-tom of that lake the Hohenzollern dynasty comes to an end." This year grass has grown on the bottom of that lake and has been cut for the Ontario Department of Agriculture is ever ready to render any assistance to the drainage work in the County. Numerous drainage surveys are made throughout the year, in and out of season. At the present time extra assistance has been secured to complete all the drainage surveys requested. A qualified man is to come to the Department to help to make drainage surveys throughout the County. The conditions on which the surveys will be made are: Accomodation while on the job and furnished with the necessary assistance for the work; assistance in getting to the next place of working and the farmer pays a proportion of his railway expenses. As several surveys are usually made on one trip this cash outlay seldom exceeds two or three dollars.

GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE THAT MAY BE SECURED

On the statutes of Ontario is what town, village or township may pass payable within twenty years, bearing interest at 5 per cent. per annum. Anyone wishing to take advantage of this act, a person assessed as owner and being the actual owner of land in the municipality desiring to borrow money, may make application

Further information and the wording of the act may be obtained by writing or calling at the District Representative's office, at Petrolia, A fact which the writer wishes to make clear to a great many who are not familiar with the act and its working is that "a farmer can pay off his indebtedness in respect of money borrowed under the Tile Drainage Act at any time if he so desires less

While working on the hydro line at Petrolea, Lineman Roy Flood, of Wyoming, came in contact with a live wire, burning his hand badly. Flood was strapped to the pole and through that was prevented from falling to the ground. During a storm last week a bolt of lightning struck a willow tree near The Waverly, Port Frank. Passing down, it ran along a wire fence knocking several posts into kindling. Geo. Hurdon, who was walking near the fence, was knocked down by the shock.
