WHO TOOK IT?

"Will you take charge of £20 till toorrow morning, Marian?"
"Take charge of £20, Harold" echo-

I settled myself down to an explana-tion. Explanations are things I hate, nevertheless they are necessary some-times. One was due on this occasion. nevertheless they are necessary sometimes. One was due on this occasion. "You know, my dear Marian," I began, with a business-like air, "that the failure of Hardinge Brothers threw scores of men, women and children in this neighborhood out of work, in the very hardest part of a very bad year. This evening a meeting was held, with a view to enlisting the sympathy of the public. A subscription list was got up, and a collection made there and then to the tune of £20. As nothing else could best physicians of Boston had taken my case in hand.

On consultation between several of the leading physicians, they concluded my complaint was sthma and general debility. I had great difficulty in breathing and an inhaler was required to afford me breath. Through the treatment of one physician is took from 75 to 100 boxes of calomelpills, and faithfully tried all the medicine that each physician prescribed. From my long sickness, and the vast amount of medicine two everomes the great pain, my kidney a became badly affected, and I sufficed excruciating pain in the small of my back, with great difficulty in passing my urine.

One physician self I was diseased all through my system, and he regretted that he could give me no-hope for health. Hy suffering from indigestion was so great that it was impossible to keep any solid food on my stomach, and the whole nature of my food was broth from catmeal.

I also took a prescription from a celebrated English physician, who said my trouble was Brondits and Dyspepsia. I took is bottless of medicine especially prepared for Dyspepsia, and I have used a great deal of medicine from apothecaries' prescription. I have taken Saraparilla until you could count the bottless by the dozen, and indeed. I have given nearly all the popular advertised modicine a fair trial I had a dreadful cough, and did not average over two hours' sleep a night for 8 years.

A brother policeman urged me to try Vezering.

you until I get rid of it."

"And so free your mind from all responsibility," added my wife, with a smile. She knew that one of my chief weaknesses was a dread of responsibility. smile. She knew that one of my chief weaknesses was a dread of responsibility.

We immediately went into a consultation as to where the money should be put. I suggested the meat-safe, as a place to which thieves would never dream of going for money, but my wife pooh-poohed the idea, as well as several other suggestions of mine, which I thought were not so bad. At last an idea struck her in the shape of the winedrawer, in the cupboard of the ideboard. By this means the money would be doubly safe, she argued, for the drawer might first be locked, in addition to locking the door. I looked rather contemptuously on the plan, for, if the text hand I delay in the contempt of the idea to the contempt of the plan, for, if the text hand I delay it were not, if the text hand I delay it were not into locking the door. easy now that all danger was over, that I began to laugh at my nervous fears. How stupid it would have been to have gone down stairs in the middle of such a bitter night! Thank goodness I had been strong-minded enough for that. I fell off into another doze, and, as a natural consequence, was late for breakfast. That meal was a hurried one, and when it was over, and I had my cost and hat on, ready to start off to an important case, I reminded Marian of the money; and begged her to get it out quickly.

"I had quite forgotten it," she ex-

In a moment she returned, bringing the purse, and Marian ran into the dining-room. Two or three minutes passed, and Marian was still fumbling about at the sideboard. I entered the room impatiently. Marian looked at me crossly.

You must answer me that question before you leave this room," I added more sternly; for her evasion of my question disquieted me.

She looked me steadily in the face for a minute, then dropping her eyes, and clasping her hands tightly together, she exclaimed

"I see now the drift of your question.

The money was lost at the same time PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

"Indeed I cannot," Marian replied. "Indeed I cannot," Marian replied.
"It could not be a housebreaker, for the locks were just as I left them; nothing had been touched, apparently."

"You admit that it could not be any one outside the house, so it must be Martha; that is plain logic," I said, with as much evenness of temper as I could command at the moment.

"It isn't Martha," replied my wife, stubbornly. "I'll never believe it."

For my part, I felt sure that it was a Martha. And as it was quite impossithat she could have got rid of it yes a hoped I could easily discover it.
But she denied the charge so emphatically that it was with a very anxious heart I betook myself to the bedside of my patient. The case was a complicated and peculiar one, and my mind soon became so interested in the progress of the various symptoms, that my own became so interested in the progress of the various symptoms, that my own cares became as things of nought. Af-ter paying one or two minor visits, I re-turned home. Martha opened the door, and immediately retired to the kitchen, without a word. Marian was nowhere to be found. I went up stairs in search of her. She was not there, but a little table in the corner covered with writing materials betrayed her rewith writing materials betrayed her re-cent presence. An open letter in a handwriting I knew and detested attracted my attention. Husbands have certain prerogatives. I asserted one at that moment, and read the letter. If you care to do the same, here it is, i not skip it: "Dear May:—If you don't contrive to send me E10 before this day week, it will be ruination for me. If you send it, you will enable me to retrieve my former position and become a credit to my family. Yours affectionately,

Both of us failing to hit upon any thing better, the wine bin was agreed upon, and as I looked over my evening paper, I watched her place the black japanned box in the drawer, lock it, lock the sideboard, and place the key in her own purse.

In the meantime other cares were pressing hard and fast upon me. In spite of a rigid examination I could discover no clue to the lost money. Of course I had been obliged to make it good, and in order to do this, had drained myself of every available farthing. These events happened at a time of year when it was impossible to call in many outstanding debts; so after a while of desperate struggle against our about at the sideboard. I entered the room impatiently. Marian looked at me crossly.

"This is quite too bad, Harold. What have you done with the box?" I exclaimed "I see now the drift of your question. The money was lost at the same time that I sent some to Frank. Harold, you suspect me—your own wife—of being the thief, and you have sent that money, and then tease me like this?" "What on earth is the woman talking about?" I cried, bewildered. "Say what you mean in plain words, I beg." "The money's not here. It's gone, box and all," Marian replied, with a white face. "Gone!" I cried, "gone! Where's it gone, how's it gone, or who has taken the rawing. Let me come and look." Marian moved aside, and I knelt down to the drawer. No sign of a box was there. Catarrhal Deafness Permanent-ly Cured with One Bottle. Gentlemen,-About two and a half years ago, I Gentlemen,—About two and a half years ago, I commenced treating my little granddaughter, aged 8 years, for Deafness caused by Catarrh, with your Rabical Couze. She was relieved by a half bottle taken in inhalations. She continued using it until the bottle was finished, and we find that she is permanently cured, as she has no return of the Deafness. She has been deaf from her third or fourth year every time she had a cold, and we feared that it was incurable. I think it was a wonderful cure, and write this that others so afflicted may be helped in the same way.

I was beginning to wonder, too, how I could have suspected my own Marian. It was beginning to wonder, too, how I could have suspected my own Marian. Circumstances and my mother were more to blame than I, however.

In answer, I mornured, something about Frank.

"Ah, hast letter to Frank—I remember it. Kou wars always so hard upon him that I didn't like to tell your about it. He really had been trying to keep on steadily at the post your kinden had obtained him, but old debts were constantly coming in, and his limited alary would not meet them, and keep him as well. There was one man who pressed him hard for £10. He had spent his last quarter's salary within a pound or two, and more would not be coming for some time. He wrote and told me this, saking me to help him, but I could not. He wrote again, and add he must draw on his salary, but I begged him not to do so, so soon. I was sure his amployers would think it as had sign. The man threatened to expose his former habits to the firm, which you know might have roined him with them. I resolved to help him bits once, and in order to do so, and in order to do so, and in was and in order to do so, and in was and hill playfully halipathetically. "O, you abandoned man," she said, shaking her head at me; "to suspect me, when all the time you had stolen Carrots, your own money !"

A Story with a Moral.

There was once a man with the shadow of crime upon his life.

He was obliged to go from place to place because he would not reform.

Well-disposed people were inclined to help him by giving him employment, because he had a family of young children and they did not want to see them suffer for food and clothing.

But as soon as he would get respectable employment and begin to be trusted he would be detected in dishonest practices, but he always escaped prosecution because of his little children. People disliked him because he had a believed you then, if you had said this to me: but you know you never deigned me a word, and what was I to think?"

that was exactly what the old merchant who was so wicked, had done.

If also tried to set the working people belonging to the place against the good merchant by publishing that he was encouraging strange workmen to come into

"I am not going to exonerate you quite, little wife, but I am going to own to my fault. I was a brute to doubt you. Marian, you must forgive me, dear." in the books; they should be graveful to those who spare them, when they might invoke the aid of law to punish them; they should never allow themselves to be hired to slander anyone and especially dear."

"O, Harold! we will be so happy again now, shan't we?" the little woman replied; and then she wound up ow reconciliation in truly womanly style with tears and smiles and kisses.

But the mystery of the money was still more dark after Marian's explanation, and it was months before we penetrated it. We did so at last, however-Our piano being sadly in want of reconciliation.

TO THE FARMERS OF MIRAMICHI. We have been Manufacturing IRON FRAME MOWERS

r the last four years, and are now offering to the BEST MOWER, combining greater excellence of mechanical simplicity together with greater durability and entire reliability for all the requirements of the field, than any other Mower extant.—In construction they are similar to the celebrated. Water A. Weod's Iron Frame alower, and the Richardson Buckeye, both 2000 in Macchines. Of the former there are over 20,000 were manufactured extraordinary number of 20,000 were manufactured to the same of which (no exceptions) stands as a monument of the grand and unprecedented success of home manufacture and our enterprise. A list of our Agents in this section of the Province will be found appended, and farmers are requested to ask information of them relative to our Mowers in use in their respective localities, which will establish beyond doubt their unquestisnable superiority over any other mower to be had in our narket.

The facility of procuring all parts or pieces within a nominal length of time must show beyond the shadow of a doubt the claims such an enterprise has upon the farmers of the Maritime Provinces.

For the coming harvest of 1877 we will manufacture LARGLY in excess of our numbers of last season, and trust that our growing enterprise may find such inducements held out to it as will be commensurate with its merits.

Let it be remembered we have no hesitation at all times, in entering into a friendly competition in the field with any other machine in our market. WE GUARANTES OUR MOWERS TO BE INFE-RIOR TO NONE. Farmers would do well to enquire prices and terms before purchasing elsewhere.
