Heart of Mine.

Oh, heart of mine, the longest night
Has somewhere in its pulsing breast
A ray of love divine, of light
That lights the way to future rest!
I know that night is full of fear,
And goblin shapes, that awesome rise;
But now, oh heart, that dawn is near,
When vanquished doubt and terror flies!
He still, be still, oh heart of mine,
Trust love divine!
Oh, heart of doubt, why flatter so;
In safety passed thou yesterday.
Can't thou not see the beacon glow
Of suns in the west way?
The longest day must have a close,
A sweet dim twilight fall of peace,
That o'er the languid spirit throws
The mantle of a sweet repose.
Be calm, be calm, oh heart of doubt,
Trust love without!
I know glad earth, oh heart of mine,
Is hidden and in the winter snow.
I know the icy hand like death,
Has stilled the tuneful brooklet's flow;
But summer, with the soft south breeze,
And zephyrs like a sweet heart's breath,
Will sway the orchard's blossomed trees,
Dil earth will smile, oh heart of faith!
Be patient still, oh heart of mine,
Trust love divine!

THE OLD STONE HOUSE.

"Where is Alice?"
"In the old house, Charley—where she always is. I was going to say. But she does come out for her meals, and to sleep."
Charley Burnett looked somewhat surprised as his sister Eunice answered him thus.
The pretty face, half averted from him, bent over the needle, that she plied with a hasty, trembling hand.
She looked disturbed, grieved and rather angry, he thought; and there had been a tone of offense in the words she uttered.
All this was new to him. His sister Eunice was noted, among her own girl-friends and in her own family, for the gentleness of her temper and the sweetness of her disposition.
As for their orphan cousin, Alice, no one had welcomed her more warmly than Eunice, when, at her father's death, she came to them from the West, homeless and friendless, but for the home and the affection she had found with them.
It was at the death of winter that Alice arrived at the Burnett farm. Summer would soon be upon them now. And here was Eunice, her fast friend, her almost sister, so changed, so cold to ward her, after the lapse of a few happy weeks.
Intensely happy weeks they had been to Charley Burnett. If ever he had thought farm-life dull and tame, he thought it no longer. If ever he had wished to leave his home and go out into the world to seek his fortune, the wish was forever gone.
To live and die at the old homestead was all he craved to do; to toil each day, and find a poetry in such toil; if only his pretty cousin Alice would share the home thus won!
But half this happiness—to which he looked forward with such simple faith—would be lost to him if Eunice could not, as he phrased it, "get along well" with his wife.
He loves his orphan sister as dearly as she loved him.
There were but two of them. And on his death-bed, his father had exacted a promise from him to give Eunice a good home beneath the old roof, so long as she should need it.
"That will be till James Stoughton is ready to take her to his home. And James cannot marry for a year or two yet, unless business takes a sudden start. I wonder what has gone wrong between the girls? If Eunice would only say!"
Musing thus, and keeping his eyes unconsciously fixed on "the old house," as he stood by his sister's side at the open parlor window, Charles Burnett suddenly started and leaned forward, straining his eyes through the window like one in doubt of what he saw.
No, there could be no mistake!
There, stealing out at the side door of the old house, with a cautious, fearful tread, was the very man of whom he was at the moment thinking—his sister's lover—his sister's pledged husband—James Stoughton himself!
The young man glanced keenly at the east end of the house, where the sitting-room generally used by the family was located. Eying no one at either window of that room, he turned back, said a few laughing words to some one in the old house, and stole away, around the corner of that house, into a path that led across the fields to his home in the village, half a mile away.
Pale as death, Charles Burnett turned to his sister.
"Is this the reason why you dislike Alice?" he asked, sternly.
Eunice burst into tears.
"Charley, I have tried not to hate her, but I cannot help it. We have done by her, and only see how she is repaying us! She knows that James is engaged to me; and for ten days, Charley, he has not been here, to this house, but every afternoon, at this time, he has met Alice, and spent two hours or more with her out there. I have been mean enough to stay in here to watch them. I know that James would never look for me here. Oh, Charley! I am afraid that you and I both will have good cause to rue the day when she came to our home! What can I do? Shall I send for James, and ask him what it all means?"

"Don't send for him, dear. Never exchange another word with the pitiful wretch!" said Charley, hotly. "As for her, if she is keen and sharp enough to carry on an intrigue so cunningly, she needs no advice from you or me."
"But is this to go on?" asked Eunice, wondering. "I cannot endure it, Charley! And only think of the scandal, if any one else should happen to see what it all means!"
"I will send Stoughton a letter to-morrow that will keep him away, Eunice. I won't meet him at present. For your sake, I don't wish to quarrel openly; and if I see him, I shall do it. As for her, I cannot see her."
Charley's voice trembled.
"You must tell her, Eunice. She will not wish to stay here, once found out. But don't send her away penniless. Give her that from me, and tell her always to apply to you if she is in need. Let her be what or where she may, I will always help her. For I did love her, Eunice, very dearly."
There was a long, sad silence.
"And to-morrow is my eighteenth birthday, and all the things are ready for the birthday feast," said Eunice, bursting into tears. "You can't think how I was looking forward to it, Charley."
"We can have no rejoicings now," said Charley; "but I will ride into the city and get the gift I promised you, all the same. Break it to her as soon as I am gone, dear; and don't let her be here when I get back. You and I will spend the evening alone. But let us have no more of this shameful treachery and falsehood here in our home—our home that was so happy before she came!" he added, wiping the tear away from his own eyes, as Eunice, quite heart-broken at the task assigned her for the morning, sobbed her heart out, lying with her head upon his breast.
At ten o'clock, the next morning, Charles Burnett mounted his favorite bay horse and rode away from the farm, with a heavy heart. Alice, at her chamber window threw him a kiss, and a gay "good-bye, Charley!"
He lifted his hat and he bowed profoundly, but neither looked up nor spoke.
"Good-bye, Charley!" "Aye, it might be 'good-bye' forever! And she knew it not."
He left a sealed letter with the clerk at James Stoughton's law office for his master, and went on to the city, where his business kept him till the chilly evening was fairly ushered in.
Arrived at home, he lingered in the stables for some time, watching over the comforts of his horse.
At last he was forced to go in. He took a little box from his breast pocket, containing a small golden locket, and opened the door of the sitting room.
Eunice was there—not in grief and tears, as he had expected to find her, but nicely dressed, and radiant with happiness, for Stoughton sat at her side.
He sprang up and caught Charley by the hand.
"You recast! write me such a letter!" cried he, pretending to threaten him with his clenched fist. "What have I ever done that you should give me up so easily?"
"Yes, Charley, we were wrong, and James and Alice were not," said Eunice, taking his other hand. "What is this? Oh, you dear, good, generous Charley! What a love of a locket! with a revolving case in it for four photographs. Only look at it, James! It is just the thing for a copy of the portrait; and Alice and Charley shall give me their pictures, too."
"But you haven't explained things to Char— to your brother yet, Eunice," said a sweet, but anxious voice.
And the bewildered young farmer saw in the further corner of the room a little portrait of James Stoughton, mounted on a tall easel.
Behind the easel, Alice, looking lovelier than ever, in her gala dress of white muslin, with blue ribbons in her light-brown hair, stood in the shadow, blushing deeply as she met his ardent gaze.
"That was their work in the old house, Charley," said Eunice, penitently. "James' portrait, taken by dear Alice, as a surprise for my birthday. I don't know how she can ever forgive me!"
Charles Burnett sprang forward, caught Alice by the hand, and whispered something in her ear.
And certainly she must have forgiven him; for Eunice now wears in her locket the pictures of her own husband and child, and those of Charley and his wife.

The cattle exports from the United States in the past six years were of the value of nearly $23,000,000.

Cotton Possibilities.

One-half of the entire crop of the merchantable cotton of the world is grown in the United States. The cotton trade is watched more closely than any other. There are daily reports of the amount of cotton received at the centers of distribution, and how much is sold and exported. Great pains are taken to get at the exact facts regarding the supply and consumption of this great staple. As a gentleman once expressed it, a cotton statistician would chase a single bale all over the country to see what finally became of it.
The figures that express the growth and use of cotton are astounding. The best authorities place the production annually at from 4,500,000,000 to 5,500,000,000 pounds, or from 2,250,000 to 2,750,000 tons. There is no surplus. What is produced is all used from year to year. Mankind uses an average of fully three pounds of raw cotton every year for every man, woman and child on the face of the globe.
When, however, we inquire how much land is needed to raise this vast crop, the reader will be surprised when we say that there is land enough, exactly suited to the production of cotton, in the State of Texas alone, to supply the whole world.
The average production of cotton fiber in Texas is about one-half a bale to an acre. The highest estimate of the world's crop is 12,000,000 bales, of 480 pounds each. An area of 24,000,000 acres is therefore all that is needed, and that is but 37,500 square miles. The area of Texas is more than seven times that number of miles, and the part that could be profitably devoted to cotton-growing is many times greater in size than would be required.

The cotton that is used for manufacture is the wing of the seed. It corresponds to the light filament that carries the seed of the thistle, that pest of the farmer. There are about two and a half pounds of seed to every pound of cotton fiber. How much cotton seed, then, is raised every year in the world? Between six and seven million tons!
The uses of cotton seed are many, and yet it is only lately that the great value of the article has been recognized. When pressed, the kernels will yield about one-eighth of their weight in oil, which can be used for many purposes. Indeed, it is more than suspected that a large part of the "pure olive oil" from Leghorn, is either pure cotton-seed oil, or a mixture of cotton seed and other oils.
What is left after the oil is expressed is "seed-cake." This is sent in vast quantities to Europe, where it forms the best known feed for cattle, and no better fertilizer is known than the manure of cattle fed upon it. The hulls of the cotton seed have usually been thrown away, but now it is known that they are as good for feed as the seed itself.
We are just beginning to use economy in the cultivation of cotton, and in the use of the other products of the plant. The production of cotton is increasing from year to year. The crop of 1879 was the largest ever gathered. But the consumption of the staple is also increasing.

In the United States we consume more than thirteen pounds of raw cotton a year for every person in the country. The average amount for each person in Europe is only four and a half pounds; in Asia about three pounds; in Africa less than one-third of a pound. As enlightened civilization extends and wealth increases, the consumption of this article of trade must also grow; and it is the mission of America to supply it to the whole world.—Youth's Companion.

A Tale of a Hat-Trap.

She was a woman of Bloomington, Ind. Her husband was a mechanical genius with a hankering after a perpetual motion machine, and her son was a live boy with a taste for hunting rats. The son one day set a steel trap in the cellar and went away to borrow a rat dog. The woman went into the cellar with a requisition for rations, and her searching gaze fell on the trap. "Oh, dear," she sighed, "John Henry has made another perpetual motion machine," and prompted by a womanly curiosity she picked it up by the trigger to see how the old thing worked. She saw, with hideous howls she climbed the cellar stair like a whirlwind and went wailing through the house, and fled into the street, wailing the echoes with dissonant shrieks, while the neighbors shouted fire and thronged into her house and began pitching into the furniture. Order once more reigned in Bloomington, but that woman has posted a placard on the doors notifying all to whom these presents may come greeting, that hereafter it is to be all perpetual motion machine or all rat-trap about that house, she don't care a cent which, but she isn't going to have the thing mixed any more.—Burlington Hawkeye.

How Spools are Made.

Drummondville is situated on the St. Francis river, and the northern division of the Southeastern railway, Canada, passes through it. Several years ago the prevailing wood which grew in the vicinity was white birch, which does not, we believe, make first-class firewood, but which appears to be best for the manufacture of spools. This probably was the reason why Drummondville was selected as the place in which to locate these factories, and the farmers in the vicinity can always find a ready market for this kind of wood at about $2.50 to $3 per cord. The wood, after being delivered to the factories, is first sawed into pieces about four feet long and from an inch to an inch and a half square, according to the size of the spool it is desired to make. These pieces are put into a dry-house and thoroughly dried, from whence they are taken into the factory and given to the roughers, who, in an incredibly short space of time, bore a hole in the center a couple of inches deep, turn about the same space round, and then cut off the length required for a spool. The machines used for this purpose are revolving spindlers, in the center of which is a revolving gimlet or bit, and immediately to the right a small circular saw with a gauge set to the proper size for the spools. The roughers receive one and a half cents per gross for their work, and experienced men an turn out from 100 to 130 gross per day. The round blocks pass from them to the finishers, who place them in machines which give them the shape of spools and make them quite smooth. It is quite interesting here to notice the men at work. A man stands with his left hand upon a small lever, and with the right he places the blocks one at a time in the lathe, then draws the lever toward him for an instant, and the work is done; the lever is pushed back, and the spool drops into a box below, while the right hand is ready with another block. These blocks are handled at the rate of twenty-five or thirty per minute. The finishers also receive one and a half cents per gross, and they each turn out from 100 to 130 gross per day. The spools are thrown loosely into a large cylinder, which revolves slowly, so that the spools are polished by the constant rubbing upon each other for some time. On being taken out of the cylinder they are placed in a hopper which they pass down a slide for inspection. Here the inspector sits and watches closely to see that no imperfect spools are allowed to pass, and a very small knot or scratch is sufficient to condemn them. The spools then pass into the hands of the packers, who handle them very lively. They are packed in large boxes, made the proper size, so that the layers of spools exactly fill the box, and no additional packing is needed. These boys receive one-quarter cent per gross for packing, and a smart boy who is accustomed to the work can pack about 300 gross per day. One proprietor ships over 5,000,000 spools per month to England, and another firm ships over 1,000,000 spools to Glasgow, Scotland.

As much as warts and corns may be thought to resemble each other, they are quite different in origin, character and means of cure. A corn is simply a thickening and hardening of the scarf-skin, or epidermis. It is always caused by pressure, and is removed only by the removal of the pressure. And we may here state that, so absolutely are they thus removed, a protracted period of sickness will gradually lift them wholly out of the flesh.
A wart, on the contrary, belongs to the skin proper—the vera cutis—and consists of an abnormal growth of one or more papillae, in which the nerves and blood vessels terminate. For this reason, while the substance of a corn is as insensible as that of the finger-nail, the substance of a wart is peculiarly sensitive beneath the scarf-skin which covers the head of the papillae, and which they carry with them as they push upward.
In most cases, as the equalized action of the parts is restored, they go off by themselves. They can be speedily removed, however, by touching them repeatedly with nitrate of silver, or by applying nitric acid to their extremities. Care should be taken not to touch the adjacent skin.
Many superstitious notions prevail respecting the cure of warts among the people. They have been handed down from the remotest times, when superstition had more to do with medical methods generally than true science.
In the aged, when the cuticle is hard, the epithelial cells, instead of developing upward, develop downward into the tissues, and give rise to painful tumors, which the physician alone can eradicate.
Sometimes moles tend to enlarge and become painful. A little nitric acid applied to them a few times will arrest the tendency.—Youth's Companion.

TIMELY TOPICS.

The recent decision of the United States circuit court holding that a State may impose a tax on commercial travelers without violating the Federal constitution is one of no little interest to the commercial world. The case arose under a statute of Nevada, passed in 1877, which requires that "every traveling merchant, agent, drummer or other person selling or offering to sell any goods, wares or merchandise of any kind to be delivered at some future time," or carrying samples and soliciting orders, shall get a license and pay twenty-five dollars a month for it; and provides that whoever sells or tries to sell in violation of the statute shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to a fine not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars.

The latest discovery intended to preserve butter is the production of the continent of Europe. It is called ozonia. It is vouched for by Dr. Cameron and Prof. Sheldon, British chemists. It is said that there is no other known substance approaching it in efficacy and utility. It is also stated that the utility of ozonia is not restricted to butter. It is claimed that it is equally applicable to milk, eggs, bacon curing and fish preserving. As overhauling in the instances of butter, hams, bacon and other articles in which salt is used as a preservative is the chief cause of their depreciation, such a discovery as it is claimed ozonia is must be an immensely valuable one. America is especially interested in it. The great objection to our butters and meats in Great Britain is in their over-salting, and the great point with our packers is to obtain what is called a "mild cure" that will at the same time preserve the meat.

Henry H. Hadley, secretary of the New York city business men's moderation society, has made his first annual report, and the following figures show some of the work done during the year: Number of public meetings held, 39; number of letters written, 1,003; number of circulars distributed, 135,000; prominent gentlemen visited by invitation, 56; inebrities visited, 70; number of pledges distributed during the year to applicants, 22,616. The pledges were divided as follows: The red pledge, or total abstinence, 5,661; the white pledge, not to drink during business hours, 4,100; the blue pledge, not to treat or be treated, 12,855. In addition to this many were distributed at meetings and otherwise, probably bringing the whole number signed to more than 25,000 during the year. The society is free from debt. No salaries have been paid, the labor as well as money having been cheerfully contributed. Letters from clergymen and others, encouraging the movement, are appended to the report.

A short time ago George L. Taylor, a well-to-do citizen of Denver, Col., began to feel a weightiness in his cheeks. The muscles appeared to be growing stiff and the skin certainly had become hardened. Mr. Taylor's friends made jocose remarks about his "cheek" when the hardening began, but the sufferer himself was in no mood for fun. Before the expiration of a week both sides of the man's face had assumed the solidity of marble. He was unable to hold up his head. His eyes took a stony glitter. One side of the neck also grew hard, and in another week the victim died. The Denver physicians pronounce the case one of decided petrification. Mr. Taylor was eighty-two years of age, and just before the appearance of the singular disease weighed sixty-five pounds. After death the petrification continued, so that the weight of the old man's body is now six hundred pounds. Mr. Taylor had the use of his tongue until the hour of his death, and, realizing the oddity of his taking off, requested that his body be sent to the Smithsonian institution.

Words of Wisdom.

Ability and necessity will dwell near each other.
A good article is always worth the money you pay.
There is nothing so imprudent as excessive pride.
Men may be ungrateful, but the human race is not so.
By over-sugaring of all good qualities you may turn them to acidities.
Success in most things depends on knowing how long it takes to succeed.
No man can end with being superior who will not begin with being inferior.
Blushing is a suffusion—least seen in those who have the most occasion for it.
Knowledge without justice becomes craft; courage without reason becomes rashness.
If mortals could discover the science of conquering themselves, we should have perfection.
Cheerfulness or joyousness is the heaven under which everything not poisonous thrives.

The Happy Season.

The season that I love the best of all,
Is when sweet April sobers her life away,
And weeping dies upon the breast of May.
When luscious cowslips bloom and oxlips fall;
When mated songsters warble, coo, and call,
From greening hedgerows all the lengthening day;
When frisking lambs on daisied hillocks play,
And cattle bask where genial sunbeams fall,
Flash the bright streams, valleys and woodlands ring,
All nature's revels then in life's excess,
Her cup o'erflows with new-born happiness,
Spring's glamour lalleth upon everything,
Blossom fair flowers in every sunny spot;
Ah! sad the spirit that rejoiceth not.
—John Ashham.

There is in Hart county, Ky., what is known as the "Sun-down spring." The water of this spring flows incessantly during the day in a stream the size of a man's arm, but as the sun nears the western horizon it grows perceptibly less, makes a peculiar sound heard at a distance of fifty feet, and then, just to the minute the sun sets, stops running. This phenomenon occurs daily.

M. Seguin, about 1850, placed several loads in an equal number of vessels and inclosed them with plaster of paris. After an interval of several years the vessels were opened and one of the imprisoned loads was found still living, although the extremely hard cement had become exactly molded on the animal, leaving no vacant place between them. On liberation the creature crept out into the light of day.

"I Never Take Medicine."

During the short administration of President Taylor, a young man visited Washington to sell cholera medicine. Thinking it would aid him in his business, he called at the White House while a public reception was being held, to present the President with a bottle of the medicine.
He had rehearsed a little speech with which to preface the presentation. But when he found himself face to face for the first time with a live President, his nerves were too much disturbed for him to speak it. He, therefore, mumbled a few words, more amusing than elegant, about the medicine being "a dead shot," and pulled out the bottle—only to hear the President say, in a tone loud enough to be heard through the room:
"I thank you; but I never take medicine, cholera or cholera."
The young man almost fainted from mortification. But in less than ten days General Taylor died of cholera, caused by his own indiscretion in eating.
On a very warm fourth of July the cornerstone of the Washington monument was laid. President Taylor participated in the ceremony, and drank freely of ice-water.
On his return to the White House he complained of feeling hungry, and ate freely of cherries, washing them down with iced milk.
At dinner, against the remonstrance of a physician, who was present, he again partook heartily of cherries. In an hour's time he was attacked by cholera-morbus and died within four days.

The St. Andrews Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, MAY 12, 1880.

The Session of the Dominion Parliament being over, a glance at the proceedings, changes etc., may not be unprofitable.

A noticeable fact is the high and mighty hand with which the Government carried its measures, with their large parliamentary (not popular) majority.

The most extravagant measures were passed, running the country into enormous debt, thereby increasing the heavy burden of taxation under which it has been groaning.

Ministerial trips to Great Britain, costing $3,000 each, no less than six having been made within twelve months, footing up the nice little sum of $18,000, exclusive of the amount paid for Abbot, Galt, and other government officials trips to England.

To add to the expense another office has been created, Canadian Commissioner, who will reside in London, at a cost of $20,000 per annum.

Then there is the Canadian Pacific Railway with its untold millions to be expended in a distant part of the Dominion—the vast expenditure for the North West Indians—the greatly increased number of government employees, who draw large salaries from the country, and other extraordinary expenses which the people are taxed to pay.

Is it any wonder then that so many thousands are leaving the country every week, rather than remain and have their hard earnings go towards paying the salaries of political hacks.

And last but not least, the National Policy taxation, which increases the burdens of the country, but does not increase the revenue, and has led to such extensive smuggling.

The people see and feel that they have been deceived, that the Government gained their position by deception, and hold office for their own personal benefit.

The constituencies look forward to the "good time," when it will be in their power to reverse the vote of September 17, 1878, in those Provinces where the N. P. argument prevailed, of which there is not a shadow of doubt they will accomplish.

It is also apparent that they want men who have the prosperity of the country in view, rather than their personal aggrandizement—men who will administer its affairs economically—who care not for titles, show, and extravagant trips to England.

Such men as the hon. Mr. Blake, who refused the Chief Justiceship of the Supreme Court, a title, and high offices—Mr. Mackenzie who rejected an offer to enter a government whose policy he could not support, and who also refused a title—Sir A. J. Smith who declined the Governorship of this Province or to enter the present cabinet—and Mr. Burpee, who declined a Senatorship.

These are the men the people want to govern the country, and will have them when the present Parliament is dissolved, should an election not come on earlier.

However, ere then, an enormous debt will have been saddled on the Dominion, and perhaps direct taxation resorted to.

It is also apparent that they want men who have the prosperity of the country in view, rather than their personal aggrandizement—men who will administer its affairs economically—who care not for titles, show, and extravagant trips to England.

Topics of the Week.

Mr. Edbert Brownrigg and wife from Leadville Colorado, and his brother Turner, from San Francisco, sons of Mr. John Brownrigg, are on a visit to their parents here, after being absent for several years.

We are pleased to learn that these young men have been successful, and have realized a competence. Much as they love their native Province, they love that country better where they have found scope for their energies, and remuneration for their services.

Mr. Brownrigg and wife return to Colorado, on Monday next. Their many relatives and friends here were pleased to meet them.

The Graduates of Queen's University Toronto have elected Sanford Fleming, C. E., E. M. G., of Ottawa, Chancellor of the University for the next three years by a majority of four over Hon. V. C. Blake.

The indications are that the question of Commercial Union with the United States will be the battle cry at the next general elections.

It will be interesting to see which party will adopt it. Some think that Sir John A. Macdonald in his last campaign and sessionary speeches is irredeemably committed against Commercial Union with the United States.

Others, however, who know Sir John better, think him so much of a statesman that he can afford to change his views, and certainly will change them if he thinks it best to do so, and his party will follow their leader.

The London "Advertiser," liberal, has the following remarks on the recent change of leader:—"Mr. Mackenzie takes with him into the ranks the hearty good will of the Reform party. Mr. Blake is unquestionably the first man in the Canadian Parliament. He is in almost every respect the superior of the First Minister, Sir John Macdonald. He is beyond all doubt beyond any other specially fitted to cope with the peculiar talents of the Tory leader, and no one appreciates this more keenly than Sir John Macdonald himself."

We in Canada are endeavoring to work out the question of the future supremacy of the Empire mainly on our own responsibility and through our own resources.

Imbued with a spirit of loyalty to the Mother Country, confident in the opportunities presented to us, relying upon the enterprise of our people and the splendid resources of our land, we have undertaken to build up on this continent a Dominion which shall be at one and the same time, an integral portion of the Empire and independent of the great nation to the south of us.—Gazette.

EQUITY SALE.

There will be sold at the Weigh Scales, in the Market Square, St. Andrews, in the County of Charlotte, in the Province of New Brunswick, at twelve o'clock noon, on FRIDAY the twenty-eighth day of May next, pursuant to the decretal order of the Supreme Court, in Equity made on the twenty-seventh day of January last past, in a certain cause therein pending, wherein Joseph Hamblett and Eliza Hamblett are Plaintiffs, and Warren DeWolf, Maggie B. DeWolf, Emma DeWolf, William B. Hammond and Louisa Hammond his wife, Benjamin F. DeWolf, Lucy L. DeWolf, Charles R. DeWolf, Kate B. DeWolf and Annie Mable Porter DeWolf are Defendants, with the approval of the undersigned Registrar, the following mortgaged land and premises described in the Plaintiff's bill:

"That certain piece or parcel of Land, situate lying and being in the Parish of St. Andrews in the County of Charlotte aforesaid, bounded and described as follows—being the South East part or moiety of the Herriott farm, so called, commencing at a cedar post placed on the dividing line between land owned by Thomas Berry, and the South-eastern part of said farm at a distance of seven rods in a southerly direction, along said line to the east corner of the said Thomas Berry land, thence in a South Easterly direction along said Thomas Berry's line to low water at Katy's Cove (so called), thence along the bank or shore at low water in a north Easterly direction, crossing the Railroad to low water mark, thence following the course of the shore at low water mark, to the south-eastern line of land owned by Richard M. Andrews, Esquire, and thence along the said last mentioned line to the place of beginning; together with all the buildings and improvements thereon, subject however to certain covenants and reservations with regard to a road, made and to be made through the said piece of land to the Railroad, contained in a deed made by Richard M. Andrews to the said Howard Trenholm, bearing date the twenty-seventh day of May in the year of Our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty seven, as by the said deed of reference thereto being had, will more fully appear." With the exception of that portion thereof conveyed by deed bearing date the fourth day of March, in the year of Our Lord One thousand eight hundred and fifty eight; by Howard Trenholm and Elizabeth his wife, to Wellington Hatch, and described therein as:

"All that piece or parcel of Land or Water Lots and privilege, situated at Katy's Cove, so called, in the Parish of St. Andrews, bounded as follows: Commencing at the Northern extremity of Katy's Cove Bridge, so called, thence Easterly to low water mark, thence Northerly following the shore of Passamaquoddy Bay at low water mark, thence following the course of the dividing line of land owned and in the possession of the said Trenholm and Richard M. Andrews, thence Easterly along said line until it strikes the line of the St. Andrews and Woodstock Railway, and thence Southerly to the place of beginning aforesaid; and premises hereby conveyed, to include all the Water Lot land and privileges lying to the eastward of the Railroad line aforesaid."

For terms of Sale and other particulars, apply to the Plaintiff's Solicitor.

HOLD ON!

We will surprise you with the
NEW AMERICAN SEWING MACHINE,
THE ONLY SEWING MACHINE WHICH HAS A Self threading Shuttle, being ready to work as soon as the bobbin is placed in it. If the machine accidentally turns backwards it does no harm, and breaks no thread or needles. The construction of the shuttle and shuttle race is such, that no wear comes on the shuttle as in other machines; consequently, the shuttle does not wear sharp and cut the thread. Also the wearing points of the machine are adjusted on steel centres, thereby avoiding friction, and adding greatly to its durability.

EFFICIENCY.

The feed can be quickly raised or lowered to adapt it to thick or thin material; also the length of stitch can be regulated from above, while the machine is in motion. The tensions are easily, evenly, and perfectly adjusted, the under tension being self-regulating, and no threading up required in the shuttle. The underthread is drawn from a short, deep bobbin, giving a perfectly even tension, never breaking the thread, making the Lock Stitch, the strongest and best. It runs lightest of any shuttle machine. Makes the least noise. Has self setting needle. Has the most room under the arm. Never skips stitches or breaks threads. Is most easily learned. Can be instantaneously adjusted to work from No. 300 to No. 10 cotton. Is thoroughly made in all its parts of the best material, and every machine is warranted by the Company and its Agents.

IT IS SOMETHING WONDERFUL.

Attractive and useful. Beautiful in design, simple in construction, and perfect

IN OPERATION.

Examine these celebrated machines before purchasing elsewhere. They possess more good points than any other machine in the market; in fact, they are just what we claim for them.

BEST IN THE WORLD.

These machines may be seen in J. M. HANSON'S Shoe Factory.

In the whole history of Medicine no preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by timely use in the throat and lungs disorders of children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every house. No person can afford to be without it, and those that have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, Physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and Clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

Nothing short of Unmistakable

Benefits conferred upon thousands of suffering men and women, and the reputation which AYER'S Sarsaparilla enjoys, is a compound of the best vegetable and mineral ingredients, with the addition of Potassium as Iron, and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofula, impure, or impure blood. Uniformly successful and certain in its remedial effects, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Blisters, Hemorrhoids, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all diseases arising from impurity of the blood. By its purifying effect it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Febrile Weakness and Irrregularities, and a patient restorer of vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal; it tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For those who have been in excessive use, and in the most valuable medicine for the suffering, ask, everywhere. No. 2 ap-2-no. 14.

Vicious causes—advancing you? re, sickness, disappointment, and hereditarily disposition—all operate to the detriment of either of them inclines it to the permanent. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded, gray hair and red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action, and removes dandruff and humors. By its use, long hair is checked and a new growth will be developed in all cases where the follicles are not decayed or glands decayed. Its effects are certainly shown on the scalp, which is healthy and which a few applications will produce the vigor and freshness of youth. It is a safe and sure operation, and is recommended as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft hair and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither mercuric, nor arsenic, and will not color white hair; it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it bright and vigorous.

In the whole history of Medicine no preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by timely use in the throat and lungs disorders of children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every house. No person can afford to be without it, and those that have once used it never will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, Physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and Clergymen recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

GARDEN AND HOUSEHOLD

FARM NOTES

Thown snuff put into the wool of kept in ticks. Look well to the lambs, to be ticks will draw vigor from them, except a small amount of food can counteract it.

Thyings hens need a great deal of lime, keep order that their eggs may have the proper thickness of shell. Nothing bet- ter can be given than raw bones crushed to powder.

To. They are of special value on ac- count of the fatty matter contained in and on cells.

been moderately fat animals are the most profitable. Every fat animal has been at a loss during the latter part of its confinement.

port. In making a new orchard, says a fruit- grower, systematic matters by setting for apple trees so that your summer on the way will be together, then your fall harvest, then your winter apple, and so on.

dent. As soon as I have my poultry houses cleaned I take the manure and spread it on my meadow, and a man with one bed can soon see where I put it.

to. Pigs need dry beds as well as other animals.

to. Jun Feed the sheep well, give them fresh timothy water, and keep them out of the mud.

to. Soils which are heavy and contain much inert vegetable matter are in England called deaf, which is a good young poetic characterization.

to. To REMOVE IRON RUST OR INK SPOTS. Another way is to moisten with lemon juice, sprinkle on salt, and lay in the sun.

to. TURPENS FOR THE GRIDDLE.—I had seen for some time a statement going the rounds of newspapers, that a turpentine in rubbing the griddle, while cook- ing griddle-cakes, would give the de- sired smoothness, and do away with the unpleasant smoke.

to. "Did you sell him anything?" asked the proprietor of his clerk, as the door closed on the retreating form of a shopper.

FOR THE FAIR SEX.

New York Fashion Notes.

Waistcoats are going out of vogue. Colored bunting will again be worn. Sliding rings on parasols are revived.

Mitts will be more worn this summer than ever. Seed pearl embroideries are very fashionable.

Hats as a rule are large and turned up at one side. Shirred trimmings are more fashiona- ble than ever.

Unlooped box plaited back draperies are much worn. Capote bonnets, with protruding brims are favorites.

Ostrich feather fans will be the high novelty of the summer. Cream-white cloth jackets, orna- mented with ivory buttons, are much worn.

Mock pearls are very fashionable, but they must be of very small size to look real. Very small ruffles on the bottom of plain round skirts give the required dressy effect.

A great deal of jet and colored bead embroideries appear on full dress sum- mer toilettes. The small, soft coil of hair worn low on the head is becoming only to very young ladies.

White and cream-colored cordurette is the material for children's seaside jackets and wraps. Fashion at the moment decides upon light tints for garments, both for out- door and indoor wear.

Wood colors appear in all kinds of gloves—black, lilac thread, and silk—and also in net and lace mitts. Polka dots and diamond-shaped dots in silk embroidery appear on the instep of much of the new silk hosiery.

English suitcases are made dressy, with linings of facings of red, blue, old gold, heliotrope, and black satin. White chudda cloths, white nun's cloth, white challie, and white berage will be much worn in midsummer.

Cashmere embroideries appear on the instep of fine silk hosiery, the grounds being in all the dark, bright, and pale fashionable colors. The most striking summer evening dresses are of cream-colored blonde or Indian mulin, profusely trimmed with Languedoc lace.

The Jersey costume, being a partly worn garment, closed at the neck with elastic, clasps the figure as a lisle thread glove does the hand. A summer novelty is cotton satin almost as lustrous as silk, with white or tinted grounds sprinkled over with tiny flowers and leaves.

The stately coiffure for ladies no longer in their teens is composed of waved bandeaux in front and large Roman braids in the back. High wired collars for evening toilettes rise to the hair in the nape of the neck, but are cut narrow and opening low and square on the bosom in front.

foot as the boys. Her appetite is good, her cheeks rosy and her movements un- consciously graceful. But all this must cease. Behold her again at twenty.

No more does she run jump or roll hoop, run races or slide on the ice. It is not proper now nor lady-like, and she couldn't if she would, for she is fettered by long skirts, tight shoes and tighter stays.

Her movement has no longer the freedom and unconscious grace of child- hood, for now when she walks abroad she walks to be looked at, which now in her estimation is the main object of walking.

She is already in delicate health, and has a doctor who prescribes expensive advice and prescriptions for her, and ascribes her complaints to anything and everything but the real cause. That is simply the lettering of her body with fashionable clothes.

Physically she is now a prisoner. At eleven she was free. The doctor advises travel, but he doesn't advise her to take off and keep off her fashionable fetters.

She wouldn't do so if he did, and she wouldn't advise her if he knew it would bring relief, for she would no longer be in a doctor who would make her dress like a guy; and being dressed like a guy is dressing differently from the style prescribed by a Paris modiste.

He Turned the Tables. There is nothing like presence of mind after all. One dark, rainy night, old Dr. Botts, who lives on Van Ness ave- nue, San Francisco, was trudging home- ward when he discovered that he was being dogged by a burly ruffian, evi- dently latent on robbery. They were in a lonely part of the town, and the man was just at his heels, when the doctor buttoned his coat up to his chin, sud- denly turned back and said to his pursuer:

"Please, sir, give me a dime to buy something to eat. I don't want to get whisky, indeed I don't; haven't had anything to eat for two days."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the footpad, repeating his slingshot with profound disgust, "to think here I've been piping off a pauper for over a mile."

And he walked off swagging at his luck.

The hats of natives of British Colum- bia are adorned with figures resembling tattoo marks. These marks all have a definite meaning, being in fact records of the events which have taken place in the lives of the wearers. Each indi- vidual thus displays his history upon his head.

Superior to any Family Medicine. DOCTORS GAVE HER UP. Vegetine Cured Her.

MONTREAL, P. Q., Oct. 21, 1879. Mrs. M. R. STEVENSON. Dear Sir—About sixteen years ago I was troubled with Scrofulous Humor, which settled on my lungs and brought on a severe cough. I consulted five or six of the best physicians in Montreal, but they gave up treating me, and I was in the house of a cure, and they could do nothing more for me. A friend who had used VEGETINE in his family recommended me to try it. I procured three bottles, and before finishing the third bottle found myself entirely cured, and had no further attack of scrofula for nine years. I can vouch for the above statement in every particular, and consider VEGETINE the best Family Medicine now in use.

FOR SKIN DISEASES. H. R. STEVENSON, Esq. I was troubled with a bad skin disease, breaking out into little sores over my face, in my way, what a good medicine Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup was, what had cured her of a very severe cold.

KIDNEY WORT

THE ONLY MEDICINE That Acts at the Same Time on THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, and the KIDNEYS.

These great organs are the natural cleansers of the system; if they become clogged, general diseases are sure to follow with TERRIBLE SUFFERING.

Biliousness, Headache, Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Constipation and Piles, or Kid- ney Complaints, Gravel, Diabetes, Sediment in the Urine, Stricture, or Ropy Urine; or Rheu- matic Pains and Aches, are developed because the blood is poisoned, with the humor that should have been expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT will restore the healthy action and all these cleansing evils will be banished; neglect them and you will live but to suffer. You will add one more to the number. Take it and health will come. Why suffer longer from the torment of an aching back? Why dream of distress from Constipation and Piles? Why be so fearful because of dis- ordered urine? Kidney-Wort will cure you. Try a pack- age at once and be satisfied.

It is a dry vegetable compound and One Package makes six quarts of Medicine. Your Druggist has it, or will get it for you. Despatch upon having it. Price, $1.00. WELLS, HIGGINS & CO., Proprietors, (over west end) Burlington, Vt.

Don't Delay to Cure that Cough. DON'T DESPAIR because all other remedies have failed; but try this remedy and you will not be deceiv- ed. It will cure when all others fail.

DIRECTIONS FOR USING ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. ACCOMPANY EACH BOTTLE. For Sale by all Medicine Dealers.
