When Fall

The hot days will be succeeded by cooler ones. Already the evenings have been shortened up. The leaves are covering the lawns and the boulevards. All the conditions point to an early approach of the fall season. And with its coming it is well to be ready to meet the changed conditions. That light summer suit will not answer many days longer.

longer.

Our purpose in drawing your attention to this is that you may have the satisfaction of promptly meeting the coming change and to point out that a fall suiting costs no more now than later on in the season. The only difference is that an early call gives opportunity for seeing one of the most complete stocks ever imported to London. We are aware that many of our offerings will not long remain with us.

Chamberlain's Note TO BOYCOTT THE

The Real Dispute Left to the Suggested Conference.

Matter of Suzerainty Passed Over or Ignored.

Indications That a Peaceful Solution of the Trouble Is Probable.

London, Sept. 13 .- Owing to the understanding that Mr. Chamberlain's note is to be published simultaneously in London and Pretoria only an inadequate summary has yet been telegraphed. The London papers are inclined to withhold comment until the text is available. Despite the fact that TWO OR THREE GENTLEMEN CAN the note is described as an ultimatum, the balance of opinion tends to regard it as a rather moderate document, since apparently, it does not fix a definite time limit, leaves the real crux of the dispute for the proposed conference, and does not raise the question of suzerainty. In a word, the note seems to leave the way open to further negotia-tions. The Times, which considers the 100 ACRE FARM FOR SALE—ONE OF the best in Western Ontario, within five miles of city of London. Al buildings, good road. Everything to the Queen's taste. Terms liberal. Otherwise her Majesty's Government will immediately take the whole situation under reconsideration, and will act so as to bring about a sétflement." PEACEFUL SOLUTION PROBABLE. Various unofficial reports have been received from Pretoria predicting the Transvaal's acceptance of the terms of the latest dispatch, which is understood to furnish a basis for negotia-tions which will possibly lead to a peaceful settlement. itzburg, capital of Natal, says: President Kruger, it is asserted in reliable quarters, is prepared to attend the proposed conference at Cape Town unconditionally, provided he is assured that Mr. Chamberlain's latest dispatch represents all that will be demanded by Great Britain. A peaceful solution, therefore, is highly probable.

The Daily Friend (Bloemfontein, Orange Free State) says it has excellent authority for predicting that the government of the South African Republic will accept the suggested conference at Cape Town. The delegates will probably be Commandant Gen. P. J. Joubert, vice-president of the Transvaal; Mr. J. M. A. Wolmar, and one of he two non-official members of the Transvaal Council, and Mr. Fischer, who has figured prominently in some of the recent negotiations as the special agent of the Orange Free State.

RECEIVED SILENTLY. The reading in the Volksraad of the eply of the British secretary of state without foundation. for the colonies to the latest Transvaal note was greeted with silence, except considerable excitement there. is no indications yet of the view held regarding it. Mr. P. G. W. Robler, the foreign secretary, has gone to Bloemontein on official business.

The miners are being offered $125 to remain on duty until ordered to leave.

London, Sept. 13.—The London solicitors of the French consulate have resigned as a protest against the verdict of the Dreyfus court-martial. CEMETERY SWINDLER. At Aberdeen, the trial of ex-President Coutts, of the Nellfield Cemetery, charged with disinterring bodies, sell ing graves over again, and other illegal practices, was brought to a close. Lord McLaren, the justice presiding, advised the jury to accept a plea of guilty, made to some of the charges by the defendant. The jury accepted this suggestion, saying the publicity given to the case would prevent a repetition of such practices. The prisoner was then sentenced to six months' imprisonment. AUSTRALIAN FEDERATION. The confederation scheme of the Ausralian colonies provides that an adiress to the Queen from three colonies, asking for power to form a confedera-tion, shall be sufficient for its formation. As New South Wales, South Australia and Victoria have voted addresses on the subject, the imperial parliament, upon reassembling, will, it is presumed, take the matter up, whether the other countries in the confederation are willing to its agreement or not. Queensland's final vote is not known. Tasmania's vote carried the federation. West Australia has not yet voted. New Zealand has nothing to do with the federation question. If Queensland, Tasmania and Western Australia eventually decide for it, they will be taken it. It is thought they will favor it.

TURF. MR. GRAYDON LOST ARQUEBUS. Toronto World: When G. W. Graydon's good horse Arquebus won the other day, a selling race in which he was entered for a couple of hundred dollars, other owners threatened on the next occasion to take advantage of the selling race rules and make it expensive to run the horse in that class. Mr. Graydon declared that he would run the horse at whatever price he chose. He was as good as his word, and ran him today at $400. The race was the better division of the mile event and Arquebus won in a gallon in 1:40% When Judge Pettingill asked for a bid on the winner higher than the owner's $400 an offer of $500 came quickly from Stover, and another $5 from the owner. Smith then bid $600 and Graydon $5 more. "Seven hundsaid Stover, and Graydon said, "Take him at that," but Jackson Smith was still to be reckoned with. His bid was $750, and Stover finally got the horse at $755. Half of the increase going to the owner of second, he thus really bought Arquebus for $575, and this for a horse worth a couple of Each went to his corner, but the error was rectified in less than twelve seconds, and the boys resumed hostilities in the center of the ring, at the command of Referee Siler. Later the odds were increased to 100 to 70. At this price very little money was wagered. In the closing part of the only round fought, after breaking away from a clinch, McGovern threw his right hard over the heart and hooked his left to the point of the jaw. Her coal capacity is about 6,000 tons. She consumes about 500 tons of coal daily. The ship has two funnels, each of 20 feet diameter, and 80 feet above the fire grates. Her passenger accommodation is for 625 cabin and 1,000 steerage, and she carries a crew of 450 men.

It was cabled when she left Queenstown on the present trip that she had on board 2,044 souls. So much larger is she than the other White Star steamers that the line built a new dock on North River to accommodate her. The Ocean-

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Association of Executive Health Officers of Ontario opened in the city had this morning at 11 a.m. This convention invitation was extended to the association to come to London in 1899. The proready appeared in The Advertiser. The papers are exceedingly interesting to the public at large, being in the interests of the preservation of health.

The first session was opened by prayer by the Ven. Archaeacon Davis, followed by an address of welcome from the city council through ex-Ald. Chas. COPP BROS.' STOVES. The approach of the winter season makes every thoughtful housewife turn her mind to the question of heating. Much help in settling this important question may be had from an inspec-tion of the display at the Western Fair was held last year at Ottawa, when an by the Copp Bros. Company, Limited. Here, too, are found the heavy English and American walking boot, the rubber sole winter boot, the strong leather and high rubber shooting and sporting boot, and the celebrated seal grain waterproof working boot, all built in the most substantial manner. Located near the fountain, the handsome glass showcases inclosed by a white railing and decorated with palms and colored lithographs, it is certainly one of the most attractive spots in the main building. No visit-or to the Fair should fail to see or to the Fair should fail to see Brown's exhibit, and there study the handiwork of Nettleton, Keith, Florsheim, Williams, Kneeland & Co., Gray Bros., Burt & Co., Utz & Dunn, and other celebrated American and Canadian manufacturers.

THE WAGGONER LADDER.

The lightest, strongest, handiest ladder ever put on the market is being shown on the Fair grounds by the Waggoner Ladder Company, Limited, of London. The exhibit is at the southern end of the midway. Mr. S. T. Wag-goner is in charge. He is one of the busiest men on the grounds, showing ladders and taking orders. The celebrated Waggoner Extension Ladder is in use all over Canada and the United States. During the week orders have been received from Brooklyn, N. Y., and Saginaw, Mich. By means of a heavy strand of steel wire let into the back of the ladder, under 1,500 pounds pressure, extraordinary strength is obtained without any material increase weight. The Waggoner Company also manufacture on incomparably fine extension ladder. Over 100 cities and towns in Canada, including the city of old schoolmate, Dr. Meldrum, of this London, are using them. BLUE RIBBON TEA. The Blue Ribbon Tea display in the main building was decidedly the busi-est place on the very busy grounds today. Immense crowds pressed close to the exhibit throughout the day, wait ing their turn for an opportunity to get a cup of delicious Blue Ribbon Ceylon. A large staff of young lady assistants prepared and served the tea in dainty cups to all comers. The Blue Ribbon Tea Company believes in demonstration. GLADSTONE'S SHADOW

How the Great States man Didn't Fool a Detect ve.

The retirement of Inspector Conquest will mean the disappearance into private life of a most efficient officer, well known to parliamentarians, who had much to do, in his official capacity, with public men. He it was who was deputed to "shadow" Mr. Gladstone dur ing the dynamite scare of 1881 and 1882. Mr. Gladstone, as everyone knows, was absolutely devoid of physical fear, and chafed under this ceaseless supervision. Moreover, as might be expected, he was fertile in expedients to avoid it. Once, at least, he succeeded. Walking into one of the government offices at Whitehall, he escaped at the back by a basement exit, and it was only after waiting more than an hour, that his "shadow," on making inquiry, learned to his chagrin, that he had been outwitted by a simple trick. Mr. Gladstone, however, who thoroughly en-

The ruse did not deceive astute Inspector. Conquest for a moment. He quietly walked up to the supposed Mr. Gladstone and tapping him on the shoulder, said: 'Pardon me, sir, but I think you are wearing another gentleman's hat, coat and umbrella."

"Well, old Mark!" he said, glad enough to see his brother, to forget for the moment what brought him there. "George! What! You here! Impos-

"Not at all. I suppose you didn't expect Norman would sit quietly down expect Norman would sit quietly down under the imputations cast upon him; and as he has managed to smasn some of his bones, or rather has got them smashed by the evil genius of the piece, the lady-like, but emotional aunt—vou remember her—I've come out in his stead."

Mutual explanations, long and detailed were necessary before Mark tailed, were necessary before Mark was brought to the point of the story at which the reader has already ar-rived. George painted picturesquely all the circumstances of his re-en-counter with the personages of the Ashdew wedding, and then begged Mark to tell him, as they walked on to Mr. Hunter's house together, what had made him send the letter of warn-

Mark said that he became acquainted with the Hunter family when they were spending some months in Montreal; but that he had heard nothing of the young assistant, until he came up to Atalanta for his holiday, when Mrs. Hunter, "a most friendly woman, who has been indeed like a mother to me," had told him that her daughter Sadie, a most charming girl, equal to any English "lady," had many admirers, and among others, a young man, whom her father was thinking of taking into partnership, Gerard Wentworth-Norman.

"Then did Miss Sadie accept Nor-man's attentions?" asked George. "Well, no. You see, she is well used to admiration, and she's not a girl to be easily won. Far, very far, from it. But her family thought they saw a likelihood, indeed, I think they wished for such a result, and there's a—a what you might almost call a spirit of mischief about her, a love of teasing. you know, which makes it difficult to know whether she is in earnest or not."

But, you said in your letter that he "I was quite afraid of it, anything might come of such unprincipled bebavior; but since I—I—well I hope, that what she said to me about him was prompted more by girlish galety than anything else."

George began to receive a new light, but he put it aside for the present, and Mark went on. "But, of course, as soon as ever I realized who he was, and at first, as they called him Norman, it did not strike me, of course, it was my duty to tell Mr. Hunter about him. He was much shocked, and very angry that the young fellow should have sailed under false colors; but he had started for Europe, and nothing could be done in five minutes to singe his wings at but to write at once." "But about the money. What's all

"Well, Mr. Hunter is exceedingly perplexed about a payment. He gave a check to Norman, to be paid to a certain firm, and it has never been received. The other young man in his office knows nothing about it. He would have taken for granted that there was some mistake, only his confidence being so much shaken by what I told him, he felt that there was no trusting a person who had played such a part. He wrote most moderately to Norman, who sent an angry telegram in reply, saying that he had paid the money and that the receipt ought to have come the day after he left. Then he wired to say he was coming back, directly, to explain mat-

By this time the large wooden house, well painted and ornamented with verandahs and a large porch, was reached, and George was introduced to the Hunter family, and had to tell the long story all over again. Mr. Hunter was a sensible, middle-aged man of business; his wife a lively, talkative Canadian: and Miss Sadie one of the prettiest and most mischievous looking girls that George had ever seen. It was as difficult to suppose that Norman could have been long in her company without some passages taking place between them, as that her happiness had been in any way injured took a truer coloring than in Mark's somewhat blundering narrative. Mr. Hunter was forced to say that silence on the subject did not imply any want of straightforwardness. He evidently did not mean to bring his daughter's name forward, though Mark had writte no in a hurry or righteous indignation, and had so far infected him that "posing as a bachelor" had formed part of his indictment against Norman.

As for the money, considerable amounts had passed through Norman's hands immediately before his departure for Europe. Most of these had reached their proper destination and had been acknowledged, but the £150 leads to the standard potential to th due to the timber merchant had not, it was declared, been received by him, and certainly no receipt had reached Mr. Hunter. The clerk said that he knew nothing about it, and though Mr. Hunter avowed that he had not intended his inquiry to Norman to be taken with so much effense, it was evident that in the shock of Mark's communication he had lost confidence in his intended partner.

"Though, mind you," he said, "all I did was to ask him to clear it up. I Experience

Mark's brother was welcomed with the greatest hospitality. He was begged to take up his quarters with them at once; his things were sent for, and every attention shown him.

They took him out skating on a neighboring lake, and he soon had a chance of a tete-a-tete with Miss who was by no means unapproachable, and proceeded to tell her the romantic story of the young man, who went home hardly knowing whether to regard himself as married or not, and at once fell in love with his own wife, and would have, ere this, openly claimed her, but for the cloud that had come upon him. Sadiswas very sympathetic, wanted to know what Helena was like, and declared that she had never thought that Gerard Norman could be to blame.

Presently, however, Sadie started a new topic—Mr. George Gladwyn's mother and sisters. Mr. Gladwyn had told her so much about them. She had seen a photograph of Mabel, which was perfectly sweet; so English; she dored everything English.

George took the hint quickly, and expatiated to a most willing listener on the charms of his family and on the essentially "English" character of Corners. All the time he was watching the beautiful skating, the picturesque scene, the novelty of everything, with involuntary pleasure.

"Who is that?" he said suddenly, as an oddly familiar face and figure glided past all the strange ones in his

Various changes had brought him into Mr. Hunter's employment, and there, where antecedents do not come to the front, he was in a position to be received as an equal, and as George perceived Sadie's brilliant little flame.

He wheeled round her and executed spread eagles and gradually widening circles all the time that she was spendly up to her, and invariably, as George pipe. erved, got his inning. The situation was extremely comic-that especially delighted him.

Tom Repton had to go back to his train, and soon he and George took off their skates, and walked off together to renew their old acquaintance. George was soon informed of all the outward incidents of Tom's career since they parted, and after a while, of his inward experiences also, of the books he had read, of his present attitude towards various fundamental problems and generally of his course rather pessimistically, and with a certain bitterness of tone, and presently George spoke of Norman, and vividly, as he knew how, told the young man

(To be Continued.) There is to-day a crying need of a ref-ormation in the treatment of the body. The basis of this reformation is to be found in the thesis of Dr. R. V. Pierce: "Diseases which originate in the stomach must be cured through the stomach."

In the thirty odd years of Dr. Pierce's experience as chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., he has treated more than half a million people, with a record of ninetyeight cures in every hundred. The theory

held by Dr. Pierce

No other medicine acts so powerfully and as perfectly on the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Thomas A. Swarts, of Sub-Station C., Columbus, Ohio, Box 103, writes: "I was taken very sick with severe headache, then cramps in the stomach, and my food would not digest, then kidney and liver trouble, and my back got so weak I could scarcely get around. At last I had all these at once, and I gave money to the doctors whenever I thought they would do me any good, but the more I doctored the worse I got, until six years passed. I had become so-poorly I could only walk in the house by the aid of a chair, and I got so thin I had given up to dig, thinking that I could not be cured. Then I saw one of my neighbors, who said. Take my advice, and use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery du make a new man out of yourself."

The first bottle helped me and after I had taken eight I was weighed and found I had gained 27 pounds. I have done more hard work in the past eleven months than I did in two years before, and I am heafthy to-day and do not feel anything I've dying. I cannot give Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery too much praise."

Mrs. Pritchett reads The Advertiser (8,300 people buy it every day), and saw an advertisement in Thursday's issue, inserted by a party living at 142 Bathurst street, stating his loss. FROZEN IN FOR TWO YEARS. Montreal, Sept. 13.-An interesting story of the sea was told by Captain Beatty of the Furniss Line steamship Enterprise, which arrived in port yesterday. When seven miles west of the Straits of Belle Isle the Enterprise met a schooner flying signals of distress. It turned out to be the Eva of New Bedford, Mass., which was 27 months out from that port, and had been frozen in Hudson Bay for two years. The captain of the schooner was sick and in need of medical at-tendance, which Captain Beatty supplied. The schooner then went on her way to New Bedford.

LOST HIS LIFE

by Opening a Switch While the Car Was in Motion.

William Decker, a motorman employed by the Detroit Street Railway, lost his life Monday. He tried to save time by making a "flying switch." In attempting this he did not shut off the current as he approached the first point of the Y, but let the car go slowly while he ran in front of it to open the switch. His object was to save time. In some unknown manner Decker tripped as he was crossing the track in front of his car, and the front wheels ran over his chest. His chest was crushed, one side of his face was bruised, both arms were broken and his scalp was badly cut. His clothes were almost torn from his body. The car was reversed and Decker was lifted up and carried to one side. Before the arrival of Harper Hospital ambulance he died. Decker leaves a widow and one child. The deceased, who was 35 years of age, was a brother-in-law of Mr. Chas. Brown, pressman, this city.

THE STANLEY PIANO. It is quite impossible to pass the stanley Piano Company's exhibit at the Fair. Eye and ear are challenged the moment one comes within sight of the display. The full, resonant tone of the instrument, and the light, graceful touch of the performer appeal to every musician, while the artistically designed and exquisitely finished cabinet cases delight the artistic sense. The Stanley Piano is comparatively a new comer, but it has already forged its way to the front rank, and bids ed its way to the front rank, and bids fair to secure a big lead in the competition for excellence and popularity. Mr. H. Wellington Burnett, formerly of this city, is here from the Stanley Manufacturing Company's Toronto warerooms, assisting Mr. James A. Keenleyside, the local manager. The London warerooms are at 178 Dundas. London warerooms are at 178 Dundas street, where the Fair exhibit is dupli-cated, and where visitors are always BUTER SCOTA.

At least every other visitor to the Fair, regardless of age or sex, may be seen chewing taffy. It's quite the fad this year. And the remarkable thing about this fad for sweetness is that all its devotees carry the taffy in the same kind of a package-a handy little box marked Buter Scota. The reason for the immense popularity of the fad becomes apparent in a moment, when one has exchanged a nickle for a box of the bons-bons and has transferred one of the seductive sweets to his or her mouth. The name calls up fond recollections of Butter Scotch, but the confection itself makes one forget that there was ever any other kind of candy in the world. The teeth sink deliciously into the pure essence of sweetness unalloyed. The more Buter Scota you eat the more you want, and there is always the comforting assurance that Buter Scota, even in unlimited quantities, is not hurtful but beneficial. F. A. & F. M. Smith, of London, have been manufacturing this de-licious confection for many years. It has grown continually in popularity, and the sales to the trade throughout the country are simpy enormous. THE KARN PIANOS.

The D. W. Karn Company (Limited). of Woodstock, have, as usual, a large and attractive display at the Western Fair. The demand for Karn pianos has been so great this season that the large factory at Woodstock, notwithstanding its enormous capacity, has been unable to keep pace with the demand, and is two months behind the orders. It says a good deal for Mr. Karn's public spirit that under such circumstances he should be willing to contribute to YOU SHOULD SEE the success of the Western Park, to do so involves no small business sactifice. Some of the local manufacturers were not so patriotic. But Mr. Karn is a man of large ideas. He carries them out in his business. PENINSULAR STOVES. Clare Bros. & Co.'s display of Peninsular Stoves and Ranges and of Pres-ton Hot Air Furnaces and Hot Water Boilers is one of the most important as well as one of the largest in the main building. That Fair visitors generally recognize the value of this splendid display is evident from the interested crowds that daily surround the exhibit. There's nothing about the kitchen so important as the stove, and there's nothing so important about a stove as its make. All stoves may look alike to the average man, but there is a vast difference in them nevertheless. The Peninsular Steel Oven Ranges and Baseburners are the most economical stoves on the market. The Peninsular Range, with aerated oven, cooks and bakes perfectly, and burns but half a ton of coal per month, running day and night. Over 200,000 of them are in use. The Peninsular Range is on exhibition at Thompson's Stove House, 424 Richmond street. A large stock of the ranges and heaters is kept constantly on hand.

Proof—incontestable proof—can be obtained by calling at the company's factory, 69 to 75 Sherbourne street, Toronto, and a hearing of the instruments can also be obtained at the warerooms of W. McPhillips, 229 Dundas street, London, and also in the main building at the Fair. Visitors at the exhibition will do well to note these important suggestions. The presence of the Gerhard Heintzman piano in the most elegant London homes is in a measure explained by the above facts.

THE CANNOM STOVES AND HEAT-

The Cannom Stove and Oven Company, Limited, of London, have a dis-play in the main building that by its novelty is attracting a great deal of attention. There are few housewives in Western Ontario who have not heard of the famous Quick Baker Oven, in which eight dozen biscuits may be baked for 1 cent, and of the Economy Gasoline Stove, in using which there is no dust, no dirt, no ashes and no waste. Just at this season, however, the Can-nom parlor and bedroom heaters are receiving the greatest share of attention from the visitors. Three heaters may be carried easily, and will heat a room and boil water at the same time. They may be attached to a gas-jet, a gas, gasoline, or oil stove, with equally and barley, selected and so handled in satisfactory results. With a Cannon heater an ordinary room can be made comfortable at a cost of one-half cent an hour. The Cannom stoves and heaters may be seen in operation in connection with the display at the Fair or at the warerooms, 197 King street, city.
