Aggressive Venezuelans. Venezuelan forces are reported to have crossed the Yurevrie territory and occupied the Cuyuui Valley region, driving off the British police. The terrorized settlers and miners are impatiently awaiting assistance. Georgetown, the capital and principal town of British Guiana, is greatly agitated over this sudden move on the part of the Venezuelans. The Venezuelan consul at Georgetown denies that it is the act of his Government.

Gladstone Declines to Indorse It.

LONDON, Oct. 14 .- Mr. Gladstone has written to the Statist with reference to the prize of £1,000 offered by that paper for the best scheme for an imperial customs federation. In his letter the ex-Premier says he does not feel qualified to take part in the proceedings now contemplated until he can see a better prespect of obtaining a practical result and until he is satisfied that a mode can be found offering such a union without involving any concession to the principle of protection.

Universal Suffrage in Belgium. BRUSSELS, Oct. 14 .- Belgium's first Parliamentary election with universal suffrage was held today. Excited crowds have surrounded the city hall since 3 o'clock, but at nightfall had learned little of the result. It was known then that the Clericals had made gains in many districts and that the Liberals had suffered heavily on a scount of strong support given to the Socialist candidates. No disturbances reported. The figures for Brussels, as far as completed at 10 o'clock, were: Liberals, 18,600; Catholics, 18,550; Socialists, 12,500. They indicate that a second ballot will be ne-

BRUSSELS, Oct. 15 .- At present it appeers that the Liberals have been crushed between the Clericals and Socialists. It is known they have lost 31 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and these have been chiefly gained by the Socialists. The Catholics have lost seven seats, five of which were captured by the Liberals and two by the Socialists. As numerous re-ballots may alter the position, it is impossible in the meantime to state exactly the ultimate composition of the Chamber.

The Radicals demand a separate Ministry of Foreign Affairs for Norway as the first step in the direction of home rule in that country. London, Oct. 14 .- Sunday's demonstration in Dublin over Parnell's grave attracted more than usual attention here, argely owing to the frantic "Soul of my Soul" inscription upon a huge floral cross sent by Mrs. Parwell, and given a principal place on the leading car in the street procession. There was a good deal of doubt among the Parnellite managers about the prudence of displaying this, and although it was finally decided to do so they agree upon the desirability of choking this lady off from further manifestations of the sort. Her present claim of a share in the proceeds of the Paris parliamentary fund is extremely embarrassing to them, and there are other reasons not financial for their wish-

A Social Purity Campaign. LONDON, Oct. 14.-The most notable thing in connection with the past theatrical week has been the action of the licensing committee of the county council in refusing a "drinking auditorium" license to the Empire Theater and requiring the closing of its promenades. "A High Old Tory Dodge." LONDON, Oct. 14 .- The bill prepared by Mr. Joseph Chamberland for introduction at the coming session of Parliament is approved by the Unionists, but is looked upon with suspicion by the Radical workingmen for whose benefit it is designed. It is looked upon as a high old Tory dodge, which will result in the shelving of the questions of the abolishing of the veto power of the House of Lords; the disestablishment of the church and various land reform. The scheme proposed Mr. Chamberlain's measure of bat the malady from which he suffers, for the purchase, the state advancing the other four-fifths at such a rate of interest as it is supposed will enable the borrower to pay off the debt incurred in five years. The Economist characterizes the proposal as a sheer illustration of the beguiling of men into the fallacious idea that the state will endow them with houses of their own. without the least additional expense to themselves. An analysis of the plan proves that Mr. Chamberlain has omitted from his calculations the payment of rates, the cost of keeping the house in repair, the ground rent, charges, the cost of insurance, the loss of interest on the capital invested by the workingmen, and the possibility of the loss of this capital in the event of the vissicitudes of trade compelling the investor to change his place of residence.

The genuine Socialist Laborista have evolved snother sort of programme, which has been formulated by Tom Mann for the behoof of the independent labor party. It provides, among other things, for the furnishing of remunerative work to the unemployed; for taxation to the extinction of all unearned incomes; for the collective ownership of property, and for the control of production, distribution and exchange. These subjects are made the basis of the chief planks in the party's plactorm. In the meantime, however, the independent labor party cannot boast of its solidarity. The Drag-Weight on Reform.

London, Oct. 14.-The successive declarations made last week by the Right Hon. George Shaw-Lefevre, President of the Local Government Board; the Right. Hon. Herbert Gladstone, First Commissioner of Worke; Sir John T. Hibbert, M.P., and Sir George O. Trevelyan, Secretary for Scotland, that the Government had definitely decided to deal with the question of abolishing the voto power of the House of Lords has prepared the public mind for a statement from Lord Rosebery on the subject upon the occasion of his making a speech at Bradford on Oct. 27. Expectant interest in this matter has become so keen that the Premier will not dare to omit from his address an explicit pronouncement of the Government's policy. In his recent declaration Mr. Herbert Gladstone said the Kaffir natives have captured a part of the time was near at hand when the Government would publicly announce its intention in regard to the House of Lords, and expressed his opinion that the Prime Minister'a statement would undoubtedly meet with the entire concurrence of the rank and file of the Liberal party. Sir John T. Hibbert, though not a member of the Cabinet, has a close confidence of Lord been en route for that place for some time Rosebery. His forecast of the course to be and concerning whose safety much anxiety adopted by the Ministry in dealing with the House of Lords question is that the first action will be taken through a resolution introduced in the House of the Commons immediately upon the reconvening of Parliament, affirming the principle of limiting the veto power of the Peers and next through a bill to be introduced later, in which the same principle shall be embodied. The grest advantage of this plan lies in the fact that the resolution could be carried after a debate of not more than a week's duration, while the consideration of the bill would be apt to take up the time of the entire session, and might then be rejected. With the resolution thus passed the Government could Mystery.

STARTLING STATEMENTS

A Woman Confesses to Having Done the Dreadaul Deed.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 14 - "Clarence Robinson did not do it. It was I who committed the murder. I killed Montgomery Gibbs." Such was the startling statement made by a woman in the matron's room of the central police station yesterday morning. The woman's name was Sarah Robinson, wife of Clarence Robinson, alias Meses Stone, the convicted burglar, who so eloquently pleaded his own case in the criminal court the other day, and who on Saturday was found guilty of

On the night of April 28 Montgemery Gibbs, a prominent young lawyer of Buffalo, was found dying on Delaware avenue, Buffalo, with an ugly bullet hole in his head. He died without regaining consciousness. Gibbs was a single man, and all sorts of theories were advanced. The most promising elew was the marks of a women's shoe on the sidewalk near where the body had been found. The footprints were such as to indicate that the woman whose shoes had made them was in the act

The second chapter of the story begins in a traveling minstrel show of which Clarence and Sarah Robinson were the managers and proprietors. Early last spring at Jamesown, N. Y., the combination went to pieces. That was just two weeks before the Budalo mystery. From Jamestown the pair went to Buffalo "strapped" financially. They remained there a short time and later it developed that Robinson wanted to come to Cleveland with his wife and in order to do so he was compelled to pawn his watch and overcoat. For some reason or other it was suspected that he knew something of the murder of Gibbs, and when he came to Cleveland he was questioned closely. He claimed that on the night of the murder he was sick in bed in Buffalo and his wife was with him.

Early in the summer there were a number of daylight burglaries committed here in the east end. Evidence pointed to the guilt of Robinson, and he was arrested and has been in the county jail ever since await-

A week ago reports of daylight robberies in the East End came to police headquarters again, all committed in private residences. Among the last of the homes was one in which Mrs. Robinson had been engaged as servant. She insisted that she was innocent. On Friday the woman was again questioned, and this time about the Buffalo murder. She finally broke down and said: "Neither I nor my husband committed the Buffalo murder, but I can tell you who did." And another question elicited the information that an acquaintance of hers named Flannigan, now in the county jail under a two-years sentence for burglary, was guilty of the Buffalo murder. Yesterday morning Deputy Chief Cusack, of Buffalo, arrived in the city. Mrs. Robinson had an understanding with the police officers that she would be at a certain place in town at a certain hour. The hour arrived, but Mrs. Robinson was not at hand. Two policeman called for her then and took her to the police station, when she denied her previous statements.

Clarence Robinson was then brought to the central. He did not know that his wife was in the building, and the wife was ignorant of her husband's presence. Robinson was questioned about his wife's allegations concerning Flannigan, and finally Cusack charged Robinson directly with the murder. Robinson claimed that he was sick on the night of the tragedy and his wife was with him.

The party then went to where Sarah Robinson was confined. Cusack said to her he was confident that Robinson was the one who committed the murder. At that the woman broke down, cried like a child and made the confession as given.

BUFFALO, Oct. 14. - Mrs. Sarah Robinson, the woman brought here last night from Cleveland charged with the murder of Montgomery Gibbs, made a statement to the police today. According to her story she and her husband set out that night to hold up someone. They selected a long dark block on Delaware avenue and walked up and down laying in wait for the first well dressed man who came along, Gibbs was the map. When Robinson demanded his valuables Gibbs struck at him. and Robinson fired two shots, one of which inflicted the fatal wound in the temple. Chief Detective Cusack believes that he has

Mrs. James said she made one of the mistakes of her life-she signed the deed-and ofter that they lived together two and a half days. Later James drove his wife from the city to a party at her father's place, but he never returned. On another occasion James took his wife for a drive, and when returning to Mrs. James' father's he bade her good bye, saying he was going away on the midnight train and would see her no more. He didn't keep his word. They went for another drive—the last one—and James told his wife she could go to -, now that he In Regard to a Buffalo Murder | had got what he wanted. The complainant never received any money for her support during their separation, and didn't see any of the proceeds from the sale of the farm. Herr Strauss replied modestly. The applause lasted several minutes. PULLING IN VAIN.

Dr. Talmage's Weekly Sermon on "The Oarsmen Defeated."

The Men Rowed Hard to Bring It to the Land; But They Could Not"-Wholesome Lessons From the Text -Illustrations From the Sea.

BROOKLYN, Oct., 14. - Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is still absent on his round-the-world tour, has selected as the subject of today's sermon, through the press, "The Oarsmen Defeated," the text chosen being Jonah i.,

13 and 14, "The men rowed hard to bring it to the land, but they could not; wherefore they cried unto the Lord." Navigation in the Mediterranean Sea always was perilons, especially so in early times. Vessels were propelled partly by sail and partly by oar. When, by reason of great stress of weather, it was necessary to reef the canvas or hanl it in, then the vessel was entirely dependent upon the oars, sometimes 20 or 30 of them on either side the vessel. You would not venture outside your harbor with such a craft as my text finds Jonah sailing in; but he had not much choice of vessels. He was running away from the Lord, and when a man is running away from the Lord he has to run very fast.

God had told Jonah to go to Nineveh to preach about the destruction of that city. lough disobeyed. That always makes rough water, whether in the Mediterranean, or the Atlantic, or the Pacific, or the Caspian Sea. He knew that the tempest was on his account, and he asked the sailors to throw him overboard. Sailors are a generous-hearted race, and they resolved to make their escape, if possible, without restoring to such extreme measures. The sails are of no use, and so they lay hold on their oars. Oh! how they did pull, the bronzed seaman, as they laid back onto the oars. It is of no use, no use. There comes a wave that crashes the last mast, and sweeps the oarsmen from their places, and tumbles everything in the confusion of impending shipwreck, or, as my text has it, 'The men rowed hard to bring it to the land; but they could not; wherefore they cried unto the Lord."

As those Mediteranean oarsmen trying to bring Jonah ashore were discomfited, I have to tell you that they were not the only men who have broken down on their paddles, and have been obliged to call on the Lord for help. I want to say that the unavailing efforts of these Mediterranean oarsmen have a counterpart in the efforts we are making to bring souls to the shore of safety and set their feet on the Rock of Ages. You have a father, or mother, or husband, or wife, or child, or near friend, who is not a Christian. There have been times when you have been in agony about their salvation. And there may have been days of sickness in your household, when you feared it would be a fatal sickness; and how closely you examined the face of the doctor as he came in and scrutinized the patient, and felt the pulse, and you followed him into the next room, and said: "There isn't any danger, is there, doctor?" And the hesitation and the uncertainty of Observe the following symptoms resulting from diseases of the digestive organs: Constipation, it was a will be the reply made two eternities flash before patien, it will go to school, he solbed. In the reply made two eternities flash before fact, he was quite anxious to go to school patien, it will go to school, he was quite anxious to go to school fact, he was quite anxious to go to school fact, he was quite anxious to go to school there and then the reply made two eternities flash before fact, he was quite anxious to go to school fac and the other part of the household on the other side of the line! Two vessels part on the ocean of eternity, one going to the right and the other to the left-farther apart, and farther apart until the signals cease to be recognized, and there are only two specks on the horizon, and then they are lost to sight forever !

I have to tell you that the unavailing efforts of these Mediterranean parsmen have a counterpart in the efforts some of us are making to bring our children to the shore of safety. There never were so many temptations for young people as there are now. The literary and the social influences seem to be against their spiritual interests. Christ seems to be driven almost entirely from the school and the pleasurable concourse, yet God knows how anxious we are for our children. There are parents who are almost discouraged about their children. Where is your son tonight? He has wandered off, perhaps, to the ends of the earth. It seems as if he cannot get far enough away from your Christian counsel. What does he care about the furrows that come to your brow, about the quick whitening of the hair; about the fact that your back begins to stoop with the burdens? Why, he would not care much if he heard you were dead? What are you going to do? Both paddles broken at the middle of the blade, how can you pull him ashore? I throw you one oar now with which I believe you can bring him into the harbor. It is a glorious promise, "I will be a God to thee, and to thy seed after thee." Oh, broken-hearted father and mother, you have tried everything else. now make an appeal for the help and omnipotence of the covenant-keeping God! and perhaps at your next family gathering -perhaps on Thanksgiving Day, perhaps next Christmas day-the prodigal may be home; and if you crowd on his plate more luxuries than on any other at the table, 1 am sure the brothers will not be jealous, but they will wake up all the music of the house, "because the dead is alive again, and because the lost is found."

Again, I remark that the unavailing effort of the Mediterranean oarsmen has a counterpart in the effort which we are making to bring this world back to God, his pardon and safety. If this world could have been saved by human effort, it would have been done long ago. John Howard took hold of one oar, and Carey took hold of another oar, and Adoniram Judson took hold of another oar, and Luther took hold of another oar, and John Knex took hold of another oar, and they pulled together until they fell back dead from the exhaustion. Some dropped in the ashes of martyrdom, some on the scalping knives of savages, and some into the plague-struck room of the lazaretto; and still the chains are not broken, and still the despotisms are not demolished, and still the world is unsaved. What then? Put down the oars and make no effort? I do not advise that. But I want you, Christian brethren, to understand that the church, and the school, and the college, and the missionary society are only the instrumentalities; and if this world is ever done at all, God must do it, and he will do it, in answer to our prayer. Again, the unavailing effort of those Mediterranean oarsmen has a counterpart in every man that is trying to row his own soul into safety. When the Eternal Spirit flashes upon us our condition, we try to save curselves. We say, Give me a stout oar for my right hand, give me a stout oar for my left hand, and I will pull myself into safety." No. A wave of sin comes and dashes you one way, and a wave of temptation comes and dashes you in another way, and there are plenty of rocks on which to founder, but seemingly no harbor into which to sail. Sin must be thrown overboard, or we must perish.

But while I have shown your helpless. ness, I want to put by the side of it the power and willingness of Christ to save you. Oh, the grace of God! I am overwhelmed when I come to think of it. Give | who has been associated with many scenes me a thousand ladders, lashed fast to each of robbery and bloodshed, other, that I may scale the height. Let the line run out with the anchor until all the cables of earth are exhausted, that we may touch the depth. Let the archangel fly in circuit of eternal ages in trying to sweep around this theme. Oh, the grace of God ! It is so high. It is so broad. It is so deep. Glory be to my God, that where man's oar gives out, God's arm begins! Why will ye carry your sins and your sorrows any longer when Christ offers to take them? Jesus has the ring of his love all ready to put upon your hand. Come now and sit down, ye hungry ones, at the banquet. Ye who are in rags of sin, take the robe of Christ. Ye who are swamped by the breakers around you, cry to Christ to pilot you into smooth still waters. I remember that a vessel went to pieces on the Bermudas a great many years ago. It had a vast treasure on board. But the vessel being sunk, no effort was made to rise it. After many years had passed, a company of adventurers went out from England, and after a long voyage they reached the place where the vessel was said to have sunk. They got into a small boat and hovered over the place. Then the divers went down and they broke through what looked like a limestone covering and the treasures rolled out-what was found afterward to be, in American money, worth $1,500,000, and the foundation of a great business house. At that time the whole world rejoiced over what was called the luck of these adventurers. Oh, ye who have been rowing toward the shore and have not been able to reach it, I want to tell you tonight that your boat hovers over infinite treasure! All the riches of God are at your feet. Treasures that never fail and crowns that never grow dim. Who will go down now and seek them? Who will dive for the pearl of great price. Who will be prepared for life, for death, for judgment, for the long eternity? See two hands of blood stretched out toward thy soul, as Jesus says, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

Suitings and Overcoatings. 179 DUNDAS STREET.

A Little Colored Boy Who Would Not Go to School-Wanted to Sign the Pledge. Albert Marshall is a little colored lad whose curly head could scarcely reach up to the railing of the police cage this morning. He was arrested on Saturday night while sleeping in a barn. His mother, with tears in her eyes, told the court that she could do nothing with the boy. He would not go to school, but ran away and beat his way from place to place on the trains. She had tried him for the last fitteen months and she now wanted him to be sent to the reformatory. The little fellow in the cage was pleading to be let go while his mother was talking. "I will go to school," he sobbed. In and promised never to be naughty again.

"I think you might try him this time," pleaded Mr. Parke with the mother. "You see. I cannot send him to the reformatory until he is 13 years old." Albert hardly waited to hear his mother say that she would try him again. He was feeling for the knob on the door of the cage. "Now is the time to give him a lecture," suggested Mr. McKillop aside to the magistrate. "What's the good ?" asked that gentleman. "I find it no use. He was down in jail vesterday and got lots of good advice." By this time Albert was out of the cage and on his way home at his mother's heels, and the court stood adjourned. Charles Armstrong, a 9-year-old Oxford street lad, appeared for riding a boy's bicycle on the sidewalk. The boy's father appeared for him, and the magistrate dismissed the case with a warning.

Eugene Moriarity was told to stand up. He was a young man about 20 years of age, and had been drunk. "This is Moriarity's son, your Worship," said Sergt. Jenkins, as he introduced him to the court.

"You have been in jail two nights, have you not?" "Yes, sir." "That will do for you. You can go." Wm. Coyne was charged with drunkenness and vagrancy. P. C. Egelton met

He could give no account of himself further than that he was out for a walk. "If you let me go this time I will take the pledge and quit drink," said the prisoner. Disastrous Railway Collision. NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 14 .- Fifteen people were more or less injured and $40,000 worth of railroad property destroyed in a collision at the junction of the Louisville and Nashville and New Orleans and Northwestern tracks about two miles from the city, which occurred just before 9:30 this morning. The colliding trains were the Louisville and Nashville excursion and the East Louisiana, Covington excursion train. T. P. Simpson, engineer of the East Louisiana train, is under arrest, charged with criminal negligence.

The Recent Train Robbery. NEW YORK, Oct. 14.-The Richmond. Fredericksburg and Potomac Railway train which was held up and robbed by a gang of train robbers near Quantico, Va., arrived in Jersey City yesterday morning. The officers of the Adams Express Company refuse to give any information at present as to the amount of money taken by the robbers, except to say that it would not amount to $180,000 as reported. One of the clerks said there was no means at present of finding out the loss, as the robbers had taken away all the way bills. Rewards amounting to $11,000 are offered for the arrest of the outlaws. An examination of the manifests of the company show that there was at least $182,000 in the express car at the time of the hold up.

There is every reason to suppose that the leader of the gang which perpetrated the bold train robbery at Aquia Creek, Va., on Friday night, has been identified. He is George Carter, 31 years old, a former resident of the neighborhood and ex-convict of Sing Sing, a railroad engineer, and a man

BRECKINRIDGE TABOOED.

He is Suspended From Communion by a Church.

PARIS, Ky., Oct. 14.—Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge has been suspended from communion by Mount Horeb Church in Fayette county. The pastor of the church, Rev. Charles Thompson, has given publicity to the following statement of the action of the church:

"On last Sunday morning at Mount Horeb Church the pastor read publicly the action of the church concerning Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, who made to them a conession of his guilt, and asked the prayers and love of his brothren in leading a Christian life. The unanimous decision of the officers was that while accepting his repentance as sincere and heartfelt, the great publicity of the sin demanded some public action, so he was suspended from the saccaments till Feb. 1, 1895. The law of the Presbyterian Church Book of Church Orders, paragraph 158, is 'definite suspengion is administered when the credit of religion, the honor of Christ and the good may have given satisfaction to the court."

A Brant ord Compositor Has Diabetes -He Drops Forty Pounds in Weight in a Short Time -How He Was Cured.

BRANTFORD, Oct. 15 .- Thomas Hazelhurst, a compositor in the Courier office in this city, has seen some ups and downs in health within the past few months. Last spring he found himself suffering from diabetes in a very severe form. In a few weeks he lost 40 pounds in weight. His system kept on running down and Mr. Hezelhurst was very naturally alarmed. After trying many remedies without benefit, he began using Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes made a big change in his condition, and six bexes worked a complete cure. Mr. Hazelhurst is today better than he has been for years. Add one more to the list of diabetes cases cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She avers that these defendants conspired with others and have injured her feelings and financial standing to the amount for which she has brought suit by pretending to have mortgages on her property here. Question for Parliamentary Candidates -A Convention for the Maritime Provinces.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Dominion Alliance, held at the secretary's office, Toronto, on Thursday afternoon, proposed questions to be asked by Prohibitionists of Parliamentary candidates were framed. Dr. J. J. Maclaren, Q.C., presided.

Secretary F. S. Spence reported that in accordance with instructions given at Montreal a special circular had been sent to all delegates to the convention urging action in accordance with the decision then made and asking what had been done in different localities to carry out the conclusions arrived at. He submitted a number of letters from different part of the country in reply, some of which showed that organization had

1. Are you in favor of the prohibition of the liquor traffic? 2. If elected to the House of Commons will you support and vote for a prohibitory liquor law?

3. Will you co-operate with the other members of Parliament who favor prohibition to secure the introduction and enactment of such legislation at the earliest possible opportunity?

A prohibition convention for the Maritime Provinces will be held at Annapolis Royal, N. S., on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 17 and 18. It will be wide in its constitution, all churches, lodges, divisions, councils, W. C. T. U.s and religious and temperance societies of whatever name being requested to send representatives. The object of the gathering is to prepare the temperance forces for action in view of the near approach of a general election; to consider the advisability of putting independent candidates in the field in certain constituencies, and to complete the formation of a central bureau on political action, thus securing uniformity of method and effort among our workers. The need is said to be pressing at this juncture because of the attitude of the Thompson Government, as indicated in the answer given the temperance delegation, and the policy of the Liberal party as laid down by the Ottawa convention, and more recently indorsed by Mr. Laurier. The greater influence of the electorate, as shown in the Patron movement, is taken as an encouraging sign of the times, and that the time is propitious for pushing the prohibition question to the front, independent of party.

The idea that is held by many people that a plebiscite is at hand in the Northwest Territories is erroneous, Mr. F. S. Spence said. The real state of the question Robert Neely has purchased Thomas J. is that a straight prohibition resolution was Neely's farm in Dorchester of 190 acres for introduced in the Legislature up there. It is that a straight prohibition resolution was was defeated in favor of a resolution declaring for prohibition when the people should have expressed their desire for it. But nothing was done to provide for the plebiscite which was understood to be imolied if not promised. Now the elections are coming on nothing can be done.

KINGSTON, Oct. 14 .- The investigation of Cadet Plummer's case at the Royal Military College shows that hazing was practiced, and it was stated that one of the amusements of the gentle seniors was to hold a boy over a gas jet till his clothing was burned through and his flesh blistered. The commandant, however, denies that gether an enjoyable and profitable evening barbarous story, and, as he says the college is lighted with electricity, the repor appears to be misleading.

THE SCHOONER RAN AWAY. DR. CHASE'S

A Curious Incident of the Storm Off Nova Scotia.

With All Sails Set, but Not a Soul on Board, the Lord Eldon Disappears in the Darkness.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 14 .- With all sails set, laden with a full general cargo, but with not a soul on board, a schooner ran away to sea during the recent storm, eluded pursuit by another vessel, and disappeared in the gloom at nightfail, still plowing an independent course under full headway, with no guiding hand at the tiller or any human agency to control her movements.

Somewhere out on the Atlantic the truant vessel is probably sailing along merrily yet with all her canvas spread, a rich prize for the lucky skipper who may overhaul her, and a promising subject for the fanciful pen of some future Clark Russell.

The runaway is the schooner Lord Eldon, whose commanding efficer, before she took to navigation on her own account, was Capt. Hadley. He started from here for Guysborough on the vessel, with a full crew. When the Lord Eldon was off Canso Tuesday, a stiff gale was blowing and a nasty sea running. The Canso neighborhood is a dangerous one for sailing craft, under even more favorable conditions, hidden rocks abounding. One of these the Eldon found without difficulty.

With the weather thickening and his vessel hard and fast on the rock, as it seemed, Capt. Hardley deemed it the part of prudence to seek a place of greater her sails set. Not long after their departure the wind shifted, and, under the freshening breeze, the vessel was twisted off her resting place. She evidently had not, as her captain had feared, received serious damage below the water line. She at once turned her head seaward, and began to slash along at racing

The schooner Diamond gave chase. Mile after mile the race was kept up, with the crewless Lord Eldon always in the lead. Once the Diamond drew near enough for her men to have boarded the runaway, but the sea was so high that the Diamond's boat was smashed in getting it over the side. Still the chase was continued, in the hope that the sea would subside and enable the Diamond to come alongside. The hope was not realized, and darkness came on. When last seen by the Diamond the Lord Eldon, all her sails drawing and the foam dashing high at her prow, was standing out toward midatlantic.

Annual County Convention at Watford -Officers Elected. WATFORD, Oct. 13.—The second annual meeting of the Lambton County W. C. T. U. Convention was held in the Methodist Church here yesterday. There were present about 150 delegates and visitors from Sarnia, Forest, Wyoming, Petrolea, Copleston and Alvinston.

The address of welcome, given by Mrs. Thomas, Watford, was ably responded to by Mrs. Burns, Forest. The president, knots for box stoves cheap. A trial solicited. Mrs. (Dr.) Ovens, Forest, gave an interesting address, showing the growth of the so ciety and of its influence, and the encouraging results that were crowning their efforts. Interesting and suggestive papers were read, dealing with the various branches of the work by Mrs. Broughton (Forest), Miss Dibb (Petrolea), Mrs. Chalk (Alvinston), Miss Bedal (Copleston), Mrs. Clark (Sarnia) and Mrs. Macken (Forest.) Reports of the various committees show the work in nearly all its branches in a flourishing condition. There are eight societies in the county with a membership of 350. The band of hope membership is about 500. Over $400 were raised during the year for different purposes, and over 27,000 pages of literature were distributed. A lively discussion followed the moving of a resolution proposing to modify the constitution so as to allow honorary members the privilege of voting. The wives who espoused the cause of their disfranchised husbands succeeded in carrying the motion. A resolution was passed condemning the importation of wines which will result from the French treaty. A resolution was also passed recommending that the union undertake to supply the Sabbath schools with temperance literature and that the teachers be asked to instruct their classes in temperance work on those Sundays set apart by the Sabbath school lesson committee for temperance lessons. Officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. (Dr.) Ovens, Forest; vicepresident, Mrs. Gillespie, Alvinston; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harley, Petrolea; recording secretary, Mrs. Mitchell, Watford; treasurer, Mrs. Coughill, Wyoming. The convention adjourned to meet in Forest in September, 1895, when it is proposed to hold a two-day meeting.

British Admiration for the Late Dr. Holmes-Bull Fighting in France a Political Issue - Curious Insurance Action in Germany-Protest Against Deer Hunting in Windsor Park, LONDON, Oct. 15 .- It is past the time advertised for British politics to wake up, but nothing yet is heard except snores. All the small fry are obviously waiting for Lord Rosebery's long announced speech at Bradford. On the character of this will depend the spirit in which the Liberals will undertake the work of the coming session. There is a bye-election at Birkenhead Wednesday which may turn out to be important. It has been a safe Tory seat ever since its creation, 33 years ago, but a combination of personal circumstances renders a Liberal success possible now, and the effect of such an event would be far-reaching. It might even inspire the Cabinet with the resolution to precipitate a sharp fight with the House of Lords and dissolve Parliament in the middle of it this winter.

English Admiration of Holmes.

The outburst of sympathy exhibited by Great Britain upon the death of Dr. Holmes, and the excellent taste which is displayed, cannot fail to be highly appreciated by American citizens. The feeling has not been limited to a single class, whether political or literary. Mr. Holmes' writings are so widely read and cheap editions are so largely distributed that his name has become as popular in every English household as the most generally known authors of English birth. The Irving or Motley. He appealed to every and ever-ready sympathy secured him as many admirers on this side of the Atlantic

The Late Earl Grey. The death of Earl Grey has removed one of the ablest but most cantankerous of public men. The present generation knows him only as a critic, who continued to livein order to pour cold water upon hearing of Lord Grey's death, possibly because Earl Grey was one of the few public men of his own early times, and his passing away closely followed the departure of one whom he greatly admired-Dr. Holmes.

The Prince and the Baby. The German newspapers have been telling a pretty story of a prince and a baby in connection with the recent army maneuvers near Garzweiler. One afternoon, after hours of hard work, Prince Adolph Schaumburg, brother of the German Empress, entered a peasant's cottage and asked the housewife if she could give him something to eat, for he was starving. The woman replied that she would willingly do so if she could find somebody to mind her baby while she looked for some eggs. The prince promptly took charge of the infant and was skillfully amusing it when several astonished officers of his staff came up. The prince, for the moment, is the most popular member of the royal family among the women of Prussia. The Political Gladiators.

Lord Rosebery having promised to make a big political speech at Bradford on the 27th inst., Lord Salisbury, who is a good fighter, has decided to reply to it at a were in Latin: "Here rests the ashes of Toronto, Mrs. Eliza Guiness, aged 68, opportunity for a rejoinder on the occasion | because he became humble."

of the Lord Mayor's banquet, to which he has accepted an invitation. These three speeches will serve to clear the issues and point the way for the winter oratorical campaign, which promises to be unusually lively and prolonged, as is fitting, seeing that the next session of Parliament will decide many great questions of policy.

A Curious Insurance Dispute. A curious action arising out of a remarkable accident at the Muelhausen chemical works is about to occupy the German courts. It will be remembered that Conrad Wuchner entered the works with a lantern at 5:30 a.m., and that an explosion occurred order. almost immediately, followed by the bursting of the acid tanks. Nothing has since been seen of the man, not even a shred of his clothing or a fragment of his body. Wuchner's life was insured and the widow claims the amount of the policy, but the company declines to pay on the ground that there is no proof of death. The chemical analysis in the flooded works after the exolosion revealed traces of animal matter, such as dissolved bone, but the insurance company declines to accept such a novel proof of death because, among other things, the analyst cannot swear that the liquefied bone was the bone of a human being. The unhappy widow was not compelled to pay the expenses of the funeral, but in every other respect she is a most hardly used woman, and there is much public sympathy for her, which is taking the form of subscriptions to help her fight the insurance

A Royal Reminiscence.

Count James Mirafiori, half-brother of King Humbert, is said to be at the point of death in Turin as the result of a riding accident. His name recalls one of the most curious of modern kingly romances. Victor Emanuel, King of Italy, in the latter years of his stormy life, made the acquaintance of Rosina Mirafiora, a humble laundress and daughter of a sergeant in the army. Rosina was of singular beauty, but not educated nor refined. The old king fell madly in love with her, made her his mistress, and subsequently contracted a morganatic marriage with her, greatly to the scandal of Church and State. The dying count is the offspring of that strange His accident also recalls the mysterious affair about two years ago, when the little chapel wherein was interred "La Bella Rosina," as the Piedmontese always called her, was almost destroyed by a fire from some unknown cause. The massive coffin was burned and the body was partly carbonized. Rumor at the time declared that the fire was due to a longcherished vendetta, but this was never

A Cruel Royal Sport.

The Royal Buckhounds have just commenced the season of hunting the tame deer in Windsor Park and the adjacent country, although over a year ago the Government promised to consider the advisability of abolishing this misnamed sport, and, although the Queen herself is known to regard it with anything but favor. The "Humanitarian League" has again taken up the subject, and to Lord Rosebery will shortly be presented a petition in favor of prohibition not only of tame stag hunting but of all kinds of socalled sport other than fair hunting. The practices aimed at by the petitioners include pigeon shooting and coursing hares and rabbits within inclosures. The petition is signed by 9,000 humanitarians, headed by George Meredith, the novelist, and the list contains the names of all the best-known poets, artists, writers, and dreamers, with a good mixture of practical politicians like Timothy Healy and John

"Died Broke." The death is announced of Sir John Astley. He was the nearest approach to Squire Western of all living public men. He also proved a frightful example of too great love for sport. Sir John Astley inherited large estates. He married a rich wife. He won £30,000 in one single year, and, to use his own language, he died stone broke. Yet amidst all these fluctuations of fortune his recently published book shows what thorough enjoyment he had of life. IN THE year 553, A. D., while workmen were engaged in trenching the salt mines in Prussia, they unearthed a triangular building in which was a column of white marble. At the side of the column was a tomb of freestone and over it a slab of agate inscribed with these words, which gathering of London Tories on Nov. 7, and Poleg, grand architect of the Tower of mother of Mr. Guiness, of 356 Rusholm two days later the Premier will have an Babel. FOOTBALL.

LONDON DOING WELL. The London Intermediate Football Club is making a record for itself this year, and if the present gait is continued will stand at the top round of the ladder when the season closes. Two games played and none lost is already recorded, and this at the expense of Petrolea's kickers. The London boys had gone to the Oil City on the 6th and found no difficulty in defeating the men with the long hair and Sing Sing sweaters. The Petroles team came to London on Saturday to even up, but all their running, kicking and talking did not do them a particle of good-they were defeated worse than before. It was the opening game of the season in London. About noon the weather promised fine, but as the hour for the game approached rain began to fall, and continued with little interruption until 6 o'clock. The number of spectators was consequently small, and the interest in the game was lessened to a certain extent. The teams lined up at 3 o'clock, and with the word the pigskin was given an anmerciful kick, and for three-quarters of an hour this treatment was liberally bestowed upon it. It was here, there and every. where, with the players in hot pursuit. Petrolea held the home team in check for awhile, and then things began to get interesting. "Doc" Sippi warmed up for the occasion, and with the ball under one aim he fought his way through the visitors' lines with the other, and secured a touchpoints. This performance was quickly repeated by Stringer, and a rouge by Petrolea made London's score at the end of the first half 9, while Petrolea made 4 on a touchdown.

Almost drenched with rain and with their clothes sticking to them the players entered the second half with vigor. Even with a little partiality on the part of the referee the visitors could do very little either to prevent the home team from scoring or to add to their own figure. "Doe" Sippi and Stringer each secured another touchdown, and a third was secured for London after the breakup of a scrimmage. Petrolea scored two points before time was called.

Thus, with a victory of 21 to 6, the London team marched off the field, after three cheers had been given for the visitors and responded to. Mr. Harry Pope, the new captain, has, to say the least, a splendid team. Every least, a splendid team. Every member knows his duty and does it to the best of his ability. He is especially satisfied with the work of "Doc" Sippi, and feels confident that St. Catharines will be defeated on their own grounds next Saturday. If London can do this she will be entitled to play in the finals.

The officers of the game were: Referee-E. G. Reid, Toronto. Umpire-S. Shittick, Ottawa. Goal judges-Messrs. Walker (London) and Bazan (Petrolea). Touch judges-Dr. Jento, London, and J.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oot. 14.—There is a lispute between the Unite States and Great Britain over two boundary lines, and as a work preparatory to the settlement of this controversy, various engineering and surveying parties have been in the field for a year or more making surveys. Their labors have been completed, but they decline to discuss the result of their work until it is made public. The statement published that Mount St. Elias, in Alaska, which has alwas been held to be on United States soil, had been found to be in British territory, is stated to be at least premature and made without authority of any one in possession of the facts. One boundary line dispute is that between Alaska and British Columbia. The other is the water line be tween Maine and New Brunswick, formed v the St. Croix River.

MYSTERY SOLVED!

Startling Story Told by an Ex-Brakeman,

In Regard to the Wrecking of the Grand Trunk and Chicage Train at Battle Creek, July 16.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Oct. 14.—The mystery surrounding the wreck of train No. 6 on the Chicago and Grand Trunk here last July, which was the outcome of the great strike, has probably been solved. Four men who it is alleged planned and executed the crime are now in custody, and the evidence egainst them is said to be very strong. They are Stanley Knowles, John Bodewig, George W. Johnston and Ernest M. Jewett. A reward of $1,000 was offered by the Grand Trunk and Sheriff Wakenshaw for the guilty party's arrest. hunt the matter up. A force of men were wes anything but pleasant for me. The G. T. R. also employed detectives to sent here on the case, and they were given work in the shops and on the road. In ashort time one of the officers suspected Stanley Knowles, who finally told the story of the whole plot. Bodewig was arrested in Kansas City, Mo., Knowles in Chicago, Johnson in this city, and Jewett near here on a farm. Knowles has been at work for the company ever since the wreck. He was reinstated because it was supposed he could tell something of the wreck.

Knowles claims that John Bodewig was the suggestor and leader of the plotting. Knowles stole the tools from the Michigan Central target house at Nichols Crossing. The Thursday night before the wreck took place the men started out to make an attempt at wrecking. They met deputies on the track and fled, and were obliged to give it up for that night. The next night they made a second trial, but on this occasion were prevented by track-walkers. They took to the woods and secreted themselves and hid the tools in some brush near Mary street. Knowles told Bodewig where the tools were. That was the Saturday before the wreck, and that day Knowles went on a visit to his father, who resides near Bellevue, and remained on the farm until Tuesday. It was Tuesday morning that he first heard of the wreck. When he met Bodewig again Bodewig told him the story of the wreck. Bodewig rode to the place where the wreck took place, west of Battle Creek, on top of a grade, on a bicycle, and the other men implicated walked. They loosened the fish-plates with a wrench and took the nuts off, and had just completed their work when they heard the express train coming in the distance. They scattered and were well out of the way when they heard the crash of the wreck. Had they been a few moments, say half an hour earlier they would have wrecked a special that was running at a high rate of speed, and then the loss of life would have been terrible. As it was only the fireman was killed and several of the passengers were injured. Knowles says that the leaders of the strike knew nothing whatever of the intended crime, and the only ones who were to carry it out.

Detectives claim that the facts in this case when made public will unearth one of the greatest train-wrecking conspiracies

SINKINGTHEKOWSHING

CAPT. GALESWORTHY TELLS HOW IT WAS DONE.

Her Commander Describes How the Much-Talked of Steamer Was Sent to the Bottom-Banged About Between Two Lines

Capt. Galesworthy, who commanded the British troop transport ship Kow Shing at the time she was sunk by the Japanese, tells the following story of the affair:

At about 9 a.m., when we were about one and one-half miles from an island named Shopoint, we met three Japanese warships and were ordered by signal from one of them to stop and anchor, which we did. She was the Naniwa, a protected-deck cruiser built in England. She lowered a boat and sent two officers on board to see my ship's papers and to ask me several questions, such as how many troops I had on board, where was I bound for, etc., and also if I would follow the Naniwa. I answered yes, that as she was a man-of-war we were in her power.

The officers then went back to their ship, which soon after signalled to me to heave up my anchor and follow them. This I fully intended to do, but when the two generals in charge of the Chinese - pops

CAPT. GALESWORTHY. learned what the signal was they objected and told me that they would not follow the Japanese warship. I then explained that it was useless to resist, as one shot from her would sink the Kow Shing. They answered they would rather die than obey the orders of the Jap; that they had 1,100 men and the Japs only about 400, so that they could fight the Japs.

I again pointed out the foolishness of this idea and also told them that if they wanted to fight 1 and my crew would take a boat and go ashore. They answered that if I made any attempt whatever to follow the Jap or leave the ship in any way they would kill me at once, making gesticulations representing the cutting off of my head and shooting me with rifles. This

I holsted a signal to the Jan. boat; I wish to communicate personally." The boat soon came and I told the officers in it that the Chinese generals would not permit me to follow the Naniwa, and that the only terms I could make with them was to take them all back to China, also that the Kowshing was a British ship and had left port before war was declared. The British ensign was flying at the time, and the ship went down with it still flying.

The Jap officers then returned to their ship, which soon after hoisted the signal to me, "Quit the ship immediately," answered "We are not allowed to," and "Send a boat." They then signalled "Boat cannot come," and shortly after hoisted a large red flag at the fore.

This meant that they were going to fire at us. The Chinese generals in the mean time became very excited and were threatening me in many ways with death. Some few minutes elapsed, not at all comfortably with me, as I knew there were several soldiers with loaded rifles and swords watching for an opportunity to shoot or otherwise do for me.

When the Naniwa fired a torpedo at us I watched it coming along in the water, making directly for the middle of the Kowshing, and fully realized the serious nature of our position, but fortunately the torpedo passed right under the ship, doing us no damage. The Japs, when they saw this, immediately fired on us with their five heavy guns and their Nordenfeldts, which must have taken effect.

I was on the bridge at the time, and seeing none of my officers about on board, and several people in the water, I made for the wheel-house for a life-belt (how I dodged those Chinese soldiers I don't know) and jumped overboard.

Just as I was jumping I heard a tremendous report or explosion, and when came to the surface the water was quite black. It must have been caused by the explosion of a shell striking the boilers and bursting them, the black stuff on the water being burnt powder and fine coal. I then struck out manfully for the shore one and one-quarter miles distant.

When I was a few yards from the ship a bullet splashed in the water close to my right ear, and several whistled over my head; in fact, they were falling like hail about me. I knew I was protected from the Naniwa's fire by the Kowshing, and I turned on my back to see who it was firing at me. It was from the Kowshing; several soldiers were then blazing away at my head. On seeing this I immediately protected my head with my life belt, and swam as low in the water as possible, but could not get along very fast, having all my clothes on. However, I escaped.

It is worth noting that the Bank of England has fewer notes in circulation than it had 15 years ago and the total acgreater than when the act of 1844 was passed. Bank notes are used much less in business than formerly, other means of exchange having taken their place.

His Theory. A writer in Harper's Weekly says that the upper great lakes were once drained by way of the Illinois river, and that the bed of the Illinois is now but 30 feet higher than the Niagara river. To cut the Illinois 50 feet deeper would therefore turn the flow of the lakes into the Mississippi and leave Niagara dry.

Its Effects.

Solitary confinement is calculated, doctors state, to produce melancholia, suicidal mania and loss of reason. Nine months of absolutely solitary confinement are almost certain to result in the mental rain of the convict.

The great lung healer is found in the ox cellent medicine sold as l'ickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

London, Saturday, Oct. 13.—The meeting of the London cheese board today saw another gradual decline in prices compared with last week, and factorymen who a fortnight ago refused good figures for their offerings are now beginning to regret their actions. August cheese could have been readily secured at 10c, but the quotations by cable would hardly justify that price being paid. The Thames factory sold at 10c on the first call, and the buyer afterwards said he would not have bid so high had he seen the cable. September make was in demand, and Evelyn secured the highest bid—10 5-16c, but refused to sell. Only the one sale was effected. The total offerings were 3,735 boxes, the factories being represented as follows:

"A Little Boy for Sale."

The Children's Aid Society have not exactly got a little boy for sale, but they have several neglected children of both sexes for whom they would like to find homes. Under the Act for the Prevention of Cruelty to and the Better Protection of Children the law gives them this power. Last week the agent of the society found a little boy and a girl wandering around the city streets. The mother was in jail and the father in liquor and the youngsters had nowhere to go. The probability of losing their children through the interference of the society has already spurred many drinking and neglectful parents to take better care of their little ones. A Children's Aid Convention will be held in Toronto on Oct. 18 and 19. Messrs. S. R. Break (vice-president), T. R. Parker (treasurer), Inspector Sanders and Mr. P. H. Bartlett (secretary) will be delegates from the society in this city.

Died of Lockjaw. Lizzie McGloine was vaccinated recently by Dr. Graham. On Thursday she died in the rity hospital from tetanus, the result of a cold contracted while the vaccine was working on her system. The girl was sick for nine days and on the Sunday before her death she was taken to the hospital. Before her jaws became set the child did everything in her power to force them apart, and even tried to pry them open with a spoon. She suffered great agony, and was twisted double by the spasms of the disease. The hospital doctors think that the disease was contracted through the agency of dirt getting into the wound, but as the arm did not fester or swell Dr. Graham believes it to have been brought on purely by a cold contracted during the damp weather. The remains were buried on Saturday at Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The family lives on South street. Arming a Policeman.

The members of the police force assembled in the station this afternoon to bid farewell to Mr. John M. Alton. Mr. Alton has been on the force for about five years and during that time was respected by his comrades. He is going to Parry Sound to engage in farming, and feeling that in those wild districts Mr. Alton might come in contact with something harder to conquer than here, the policemen presented him with a Winchester repeating rifle of 44 caliber, on the butt of which was engraved "Presented to John M. Alton, by the police force of London, Ont." The presentation was accompanied by an address in which regret; at his departure was expressed, and that he might have the greatest degree of success was the wish of the members. The document was handsomely prepared, was read by Sergt.-Major Adams and signed by the committee, composed of Major Adams, P. C.s Egleton, T. Howie, R. Johnson and Chas. Tuke. "Well, I'm off," said Mrs. Gass. "I hope with all my heart that your senses will come to you. And I say it for your own

"They've not left us - that we knows on," grumbled a man in a suppressed, halfinsolent tone, as if he were dissatisfied with things in general "I hear you, Jack Allen. If you men think you know your own business best, you must follow it," concluded Mrs Gass. "The old saying runs, A willful man must have his way. One thing I'd like you to understand; that when your wives and children shall be left without a potater to their One thing I'd like you to undermouths or a rag to their backs, you needn't come whining to me to help 'em. Don't you forget to bear that in mind, my men."

Waiting for her at home, Mrs. Gass found Richard North. That this was a very anxious time for him, might be detected by the thoughtful look his face habitually wore. It was all very well for Mrs. Gass, so emply provided for, to take existing troubles easily; Richard was less philo-sophical. And with reason. His own ruin - and the final closing of the works would be nothing less - might be survived. He had his profession, his early manhood, his energies to fall back upon; his capacity and character both stood pre-eminent; he had no fear of making a living for himself, even though it might be done in the service of some more fortunate firm, and not in his own. But there was his father. If the works were permanently closed, the income Mr. North enjoyed from them could no longer be paid to him. All Mr. North's recurces, whether derived from them or from Richard's generosity, would vanish like the pists of a summer's morning. "What's it you, Mr. Richard?" cried Mrs. was when she enterd, and saw himstanding pear the window of her dining room. "I vouldn't have stopped out if I'd known you were here. Some of the men have been hearng a bit of my mind," she added, sitting down behind her plants and untying her bonnet-strings. "It's come to pawning the women's best gowns now."

"Has it?" replied Richard North, rather abstractedly, as if buried in thought. "Of course it must come to that, sooner or

"Sconer or later it would come to pawning themselves, if they could do it," spoke Mrs. Gass. "If this state of things is to last, they'll have nothing else to pawn.'

Richard wheeled round and took a chair in front of Mrs. Gass. He had come to make a proposition to her; one he did not quite approve of himself; and for that reason his manner was perhaps a little less ready than usual. Richard North had received from Mrs. Gass, at the time of her late husband's death, full power to act on his own responsibility, just as he had held it from Mr. Gass; but in all weighty matters he had made a point of consulting them; Mr. Gass whilst he lived, Mrs. Gass since then.

"It is a question that I have been asking myself a little too often for my own peace how long this state of things will last, and what will be the end," said Richard in answer to her last words, his low tone almost painfully earnest. "The longer it goes on, the worse it will be; for the men and for

"That's precisely what I tell 'em," acquiesced Mrs. Gas, tilting her bonnet and anning her face with her handkerchief. "But I might just as well speak to so many

"Yos; talking will not avail. I have talked to them; and find it only waste of words. If they listen to my arguments and feel inclined to be impressed with them, the influence of the Trades' Union uno it all again. I think we must try something

"And what's that, Mr. Richard!"

"Give way a little."
"Give way!" repeated Mrs. Gass, pushing her chair back some inches in her surprise, "What! give 'em what they want?"
"Certainly not. That is what we could not do. I said give way a little.'

"Mr. Richard, I never would." "What I thought of proposing is this; To divide the additional wages they are stand-ing out for. That is, offer them half. If they would not return to work on those terms, I should have no hope of them."

"And my opinion is, they'd not. Mr. Richard, sir, it's them Trade Union people that upholds 'em in their obstinacy. They'll make 'em hold out for the whole demands or none. What do the leaders of the Union care? It don't touch their pockets, or their comforts. So long as their own nests are feathered, the working man's may get as bare as boards. Don't you fancy the rulers 'li let our men give way half. It's only by keeping up agitation that agitators live." I should like to put it to the test. I have come here to ask you to agree to my do-"And what about shortening the time that they want?" questioned Mrs. Gass. "I should not give way there. It is impracticable. They must return on the usual time; but of the additional wages demanded I would offer half. Will you assent to this?"

"It will be with an uncommon bad grace," was Mrs. Gass's answer. "I see nothing else to be done," said Richard North. If only as a matter of conscience I should like to propose it. When it ends in a general ruin — which seems only too certain, for we cannot close our eyes to what is being enacted all over the country in almost all trades — I shall have the consolation of knowing that it is the men's own fault, not mine. Perhaps they will accept this offer. I hope so, though it will leave us little profit. If we can only make both ends meet, just to keep us going

Mrs. Gass, to make this proposal. "Mr. Richard, sir, you know that I've always trusted to your judgment, and shall do so to the end; anything you thought well to do, I should never dissuade you from. You shall make this offer if you please; but I know you'll be opening out alcophole for the men. Give 'em an inch and they'll want an cll."

"If they come back it will be a great thing," argued Richard. "The sight of the works standing still; the knowledge that all it involves is standing still also, almost paralyzes me."

"Don't go and take it to the heart at the beginning now," affectionately advised Mrs. Gass. "There's not much damage Richard bent forward, painfully earnest "It is of my father that I think. What will secome of him if all our resources are "I'll take care of him till better times come round," said Mrs. Gaas, heartily.

"And of you, too, Mr. Richard, if you won't be too proud to let me, sir.'

Richard laughed: a slight, genial laugh; partly in amusement, partly in gratitude.

ficiently good times to allow business to go on as usual. If the men refuse this offer of mine, they are made of more ungrateful stuff than I should give them credit for."
"They will refuse it," said Mrs. Gass, emphatically. "As is my belief. Not them, Mr. Richard, but the Trades' Unions for 'em. Once get under the thumb of that despotic body, and a workman daren't say his soul is his own." And Mrs. Gass's opinion proved to be correct. Richard North called his men together, and laid the concession before them; pressing them to accept it in their mutual interests. The men requested a day for consideration, and then gave their answer; rejection. Unless the whole of their demands were complied with, they unequivocally refused to return to work.

"It will be worse for them than for me in the long run," said Richard North. many a thoughtful mind believed that he spoke in a spirit of prophecy. (To be Continued.)

BOTHWELL.

Agent for the ADVERTISER-James Fleming. Rev. Alex. Burrell, formerly pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, dropped in amongst his old parishioners on Tuesday last. His outward man seems to be well cared for; and being without any permanent charge he longs for missionary work.

Wednesday evening Miss Mary Mc-Gregor, of Bothwell, and W. H. Bradley, of Canton, Ohio, were united in marriage at the Methodist Church by Rev. W. Fansher in the presence of 35 invited guests and a vast assemblage of the fair lady's companions and friends with whom she had been associated for years as teacher in the common school, and also in Sabbath school work. At 6 o'clock precisely the entrance of the nuptial party, preceded by Ushers Jerome and Couch with their insignia of office, into the church, was the signal for Miss Pope, who gracefully presided at the organ, to strike up the deliclous strains of the "Wedding March." The bride and bridegroom were just then the center of attraction-the former being elegently appareled in blue and red shot silk, carrying a lovely bouquet of white roses, accompanied by her bridesmaid Miss Fanny Batt, of Toronto), who was dressed in cream, and also carried a handsome bouquet. Mr. George McGregor, the bride's brother, supported the bridegroom, and the invited guests being gathered around the altar the officiating clergyman entered upon his duties whereby he speedily declared them man and wife until death doth them part, Amongst the visitors and invited guests we noticed Miss Glover, of London; Miss Holland, of Ingersoll; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Batt, of Toronto; Miss Matron, of Detroit; and of our townsfolk, Miss Cook, Miss Bailey and Miss Sussex were prominent, also Mr. and Mrs. Simcoe Thomas. The happy couple, who were the recipients of many tokens of sincere friendship, left on the 8:15 train for their home in Canton,

At Death's Door .- Dyspepsia Conquered.-A Great Medical Triumph. GENTLEMEN, - My medical adviser and others told me I could not possibly live, when I commenced the use of Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY for Dyspepsia. My case was one of the worst of its kind. For three years I could not eat meat and my weight decreased from 219 to 119 pounds. All the food I took for thirteen months previous to taking the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY consisted of milk. I am now entirely cured and have regained my usual weight, can eat anything with a keen relish and feel like a new man. I have sold over 30 dozen VEGETABLE DISCOVERY since it cured me, as I am well-known, and people in this section know how low I was, and thought I could not possibly be cured. They are during these unsettled times, we must be satisfied. I am sure I shall be doing right, eager to try this grand medicine. It certainly saved my life, as I never expected to recover when I first commenced using it. I am not exaggerating anything, but feel glad to be able to contribute this testimonial and trust it may be the means of convincing others of its merit as a certain JEAN VALCOURT, cure for Dyspepsia.

TEACHERS TALK.

Closing Session of the E. M. T. Association.

How to Teach Geography-Book-Keeping for Advanced Scholars - The Subject of Grammar.

SATURDAY MORNING. The East Middlesex Teachers' Association resumed this morning at 9:30, Mr. Plewes presiding. Besides the Model School students there were about 100 teachers present and a few trustees. Miss Bella Nichol, of Glanworth, had been assigned the duty of reviewing the course of geography that should be taken up in the second class. She treated illustratively how she would guide the observations of the young learners. She would by questions direct them to observe the habits, uses and kinds of animals, birds and plants, the changes of the seasons, the industries of the people, the natural and artificial productions of the neighborhood, the transportation of these products, the surface of the country-in short, the experiences of the children with earth, air, water and the activities of commerce should be explained. These topics come under observational geography. Map-making and teaching from the map were briefly touched on.

Mr. Dearness quoted from the celebrated report of the Committee of Ten and read the findings of that committee upon the kind of work that should be taught as geography in the junior classes. The report is very emphatic in its conclusion that the teaching of the subject should be based upon the observations and experiences of the children in what might be called elementary physics, physiography, meteorology, geology, botany, zoology and ethnology. The steps are: first, see; second, reproduce in words, drawing or modeling; third, study the productions of others, and throughout reason and ponder upon all.

A lively discussion ensued, chiefly as to what kinds of questions are suitable to test training in and knowledge of geography in elementary classes. Miss McKellar, of Glanworth, J. H. Downing, W. T. Amos, Geo. Bloomfield, Miss K. Woods, Miss Davidson, Miss Duffin, J. W. Atkinson and others discussed different points raised in the paper.

Among the question proposed as types by Miss Nichol were: Describe the duties of the farmer, of the blacksmith, of the storekeeper; trace as far as you can articles you have seen raised on the farm forexportation; describe and tell the use of postoffice, telegraph, railway; why do ponds go dry, creeks and rivers overflow; origin and movement of clouds, signs of rain; comparison of shadow lines at different times of the day and different seasons of the year; describe the maple, tell ways you have seen it used; describe trips, namirg Ohio, amid the hearty good-byes which directions, to well-known places in the neighorhood.

> Mr. F. Bryant, principal of the Hyde Park school, exhibited a set of single entry bookkeeping suitable for fifth classes and advanced fourth classes in public schools. He also dictated a number of typical entries especially intended to afford the basis for a variety of correspondence and business forms. He showed how various kinds of notes, drafts, due bills, etc., should be entered in and carried through the different appropriate books.

Miss Alice Hodgins, No. 3, McGillivray, Miss McKellar and others discussed Mr. Bryant's treatment of this useful subject. Mr. J. H. Downing took the chair while Mr. J. W. Plewes, Delaware, took up the system of classification of sentences in grammatical analysis, and proposed a method that would overcome confusion that arises from the usual classification into simple, compound and complex sentences. He calls every sentence either primary or compound and then classifies the parts as simple or complex. Various teachers proposed sentences to illustrate the application of his method.

The association decided to hold its next meeting in May rather than in March. Mr. Piewes was elected a delegate to the Provincial Association to be held in Toronto next April.

This closed an interesting and well attended meeting. Every section whose teacher was present could not help but be benefited, and the few whose teachers were absent were corresponding losers.

London West's Assessment. Though London West has had troublous times this year the village seems to have been steadily growing in population and wealth. The assessment rolls laid before the council show that the real and personal property is assessed at $338,205, an increase over 1893 of about $21,000. The returns of a year ago showed 1,991 persons residing in the village, now the number is 2,097, an increase of 106.

offer of 25 cents per light per night had been made by the company, lights to be turned off at 12 o'clock. The previous price was 334 cents. Deputy Reeve Scarrow raised objections to the new offer and moved, seconded by Councilor Hamilton, that a committee wait on Mr. Hunt and offer to accept a service for six months at the 25 cents rate, and that if the offer is refused the service be discontinued. Anderson, Ind., Oct. 15 .- Judge Elliason has granted Mrs. M. Smith a diverve from Rev. Dr. Smith, who is well known throughout Indians. Two years ago, while preaching in Winchester, Rew. Mr. Smith became infatuated with Mrs. Fred Helm, a member of his congregation. She also became infatuated with him. Mr. Helm then fell in love with Mrs. Smith, and the result was a trade in wives that raised a commotion and necessitated Mr. Smith's retirement from the puipit. All four persons involved moved to this city, where two applications for divorce were filed one year ago. The positions were not granted. Smith and Mrs. Helm are in Ohio, where he is preaching.
