AWAITING MADRID'S CONSENT. At Gen. Wheeler's headquarters, before Santiago de Cuba, July 15, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 16.—The pre-liminary basis for the capitulation of the Spanish forces in Eastern Cuba was agreed to and signed under a picturesque cleba tree, half way between the lines and shortly after midnight.

Our commissioners were invited to enter the city by those representing Gen. Toral, but the invitation was declined and the conference was held under the spreading cleba, just such a tree as that under which Columbus assisted at the celebration on his first landing in Cuba, near Havana. At the very out-owing to a misunderstand of what was said at the personal interview between Gen. Shafter and Gen. Toral at noon. At that time our interpreter, translat-ing the language of Gen. Toral, had given Gens. Shafter, Miles and Wheeldistinctly to understand that Capt. General Blanco had consented that the commissioners should have plenary powers to negotiate the terms of surrender, such terms as they agreed upon to be binding upon both parties. Something was said about a notification to the Madrid Government, but Gen. Shafter insisted that the capitulation had been actually agreed to and that no further consent of the Madrid Government was necessary. When the commissioners met, shortly after 2 'clock in the afternoon, those in behalf of Toral combated at once the idea that the capitulation had in fact actually taken place. The consent of Mad-rid, they insisted, was still necessary, but at the same time they claimed strongly that it would be forthcom-

Senor Sagasta trusts to be able to retain the Philippines as Spanish possession, the powers preferring these islands to remain in Span-

NEWS HELD BACK. Madrid, July 16 .- On leaving the cabinet council last evening, the ministers professed to be still without confirmation of the reported capitulation of Santiago. Owing to the state of slege the censorship of dispatches is extremely rigorous, and numerous messages are held back. All parts of the peninsula are officially described as "tranquil." Don Carlos is expected to issue a manifesto here. Gen. Weyler has abandoned his intended journey and will remain at Madrid.

Cadiz, July 16.-There is great excitement here owing to the expected coming of Commodore Watson's squadron. Many are leaving. A number of Barcelona steamers have taken refuge at Marseilles, fearing an American attack on Barcelona. New York, July 16.—A special to the Tribune from Washington says: The "raiding squadron" is expected to start for the coast of Spain Saturday. The navy department understands that atson has his ships coaled to the limit of their bunker capacity, and nothing should keep him anday at Guantanamo. He ought to pass Mole St. Nicholas on Sunday, and according to schedule a dispatch should be sent by him through a dispatch boat off St. Thomas next Wednesday, an-nouncing his actual departure from the vicinity upon the 2,500-mile straightaway course for the Canaries, where his formidable course should appear on Aug. 1 or a few days later, depending upon the state of weather encountered in mid-Atlantic, and the maximum speed of his colliers, which must fix his rate of progress.

New York, July 16 .- A dispatch to the World from El Caney says: More than 200 people are sick with typhoid fever, measles and starvation. One house of ten rooms is crowded with nearly 250 persons of all classes, including many white women. In this house are ten cases of sickness. The town is policed by one troop of the second cavalry. There are only four doctors and eleven priests. Clara Barton says: "I visited Caney and was shocked at the condition of the women and children. They clung to my skirts and pleaded for food. There are 1,400 tons of stores on the transports clustered thick in the harbor of Siboney but there is no way of getting then ashore in sufficient quantities. neglect of the government to provide lighters and transportation over roads deep in mud is outrageous. Lena, Little Daughter of Brakeman Samuel W. Prestley, Terribly Burned.

A serious accident happened yesterday at the residence of Mr. Samuel W. Friestly, 152 Horton street, and as a consequence, little Lena, his threeyear-old daughter, lies in bed bandaged from head to foot. The little girl was playing with her dishes and dolls, and after setting the toy table for a dolls' teaparty, she wanted hot water for tea. A few minutes later Mr. Priestly was startled by the screams of his child, who, by some means or other, no one knows just how, had set her muslin dress afire, in her efforts to get hot water. The child was immeliately enveloped in flames, but the burning clothing was soon torn away by her father, who was badly burned about the hands and arms. Lena was horribly burned all down the right side, from head to foot, the upper portion of her body, and neck and head most severely. Dr. George Wilson did all that medical skill could accomplish for the tiny sufferer's relief. She was a very pretty child, and will likely be marked for life.

LONDON WON. Chatham opened the Canadia League championship with London of Tecumseh Park yesterday. In appear ance the "baby" resembled, to a spectator's eye, the defunct Saginaw club Miles, Jones and Snyder have now be come familiar. A mixture of Bay City St. Thomas and Chatham in Popka Conklin, Humphrey, Phelps and Mogg is thrown in. The Chatham boys have yet to play a few games to get accustomed to one another's ways. As it is, they gave the home team somewhat of a scare up to the fifth inning. A small crowd witnessed the game. After the home team's absence of two weeks it was expected that the stands would be well filled. Since July 1, the last game here, several new faces appear on the club. Pop Smith is a memory of the past, and the excitable crank can no more guy his efforts. Lipp was in the box yesterday and made a hit with the crowd present. He had lots of speed, but at times could not fully control it. Sam Laroque, the new second baseman, and captain-manager, is not new to London audiences. Nearly ten years ago, on the balls grounds north, he cavorted around as nimbly as he did yesterday. He will certainly give the team the life that it has been lacking all season. Smink played his first game for London. In the two chances of throwing balls to the bases, both were delivered into the fielders' hands, one of the chances retiring a runner at second. He is of stocky build, runs fast, and should be an excellent addition to the team. Doty escaped with but slight punishment up to the fifth inning. Keenan's double in the first scored Meara, who reached first on a charity and took third on two outs at first. In the second, Carey hit for three bases, and scored on an error of Jones. Ward got a single in the fourth, and Grimshaw a chance hit in the fifth on a grounder to Popkay, who could not cover his base in time. In this inning, with the bases filled and two out. Carey hit a long fly to right field. The sixth yielded two runs. Ward took his second hit. Ruening had a gift and Lipp advanced both in a sacrifice. Meara scored them both with his single to right. The seventh was a tornado. Eleven men went to bat. Six singles, with Carey's second triple, gave London six runs, and ended the Fun-getting for the home team. Chatham took the lead in their half of the first inning. Snyder was hit by a pitched ball, going to second on a passed ball, and scoring on Conklin's drive to right. Jones, who had reach ed first on a pass, was caught at the plate on Popray's bunt to Lipp. Phelps, who hit safely, took too far a lead off first, and Reuning threw to catch him. Popkay, who was on second, kept on running, passing third in the struggle to nail Phelps between the The ball was thrown home, and Popkay eventually came to grief between the bases. Jones scored in the third on his triple and Laroque's error. In the seventh a base on balls and two singles scored a run. Lipp was hit for three singles in the ninth two runs resulting, aided by a bad throw to second by Ruening. Score:

HAMILTON'S THIRD VICTORY. Hamilton, July 16 .- Hits at opportune moments won the ball game for Hamilton yesterday, although the St. Thomas team played the better ball. The Hamiltons' fielding was a little ragged but that of St. Thomas was clean and sharp. Both errors made by the visitors were made on one play, and they allowed Phillips to score from first base. The score was tie at the end of the seventh. Then Phillips won for Hamilton by making a home run, after Congalton had got first on balls. Score: HAMILTON.

SIX STRANGE DEATHS

The Different Fates That Befell the Victims.

Killed in the Most Unexpected Ways -Description of the Fatalities.

About as peculiar an ending to a man's life as has been recorded was that of Thomas R. Rogers, of Fort Scott, Kan. Rogers was a cattleman, whose herds roamed in the bottom lands near the Neosho River. owner was injured in the left eye a sprig of ironwood, and he died in great agony three days later, with no sign on the surface to indicate that he had received a fatal injury. It was a most singular case, and caused a large amount of comment at the time, now

Rogers went out on the range with a bunch of cowboys to cut out a number of steers for marketing. He rode with his men and they soon had a likelylooking bunch ready for the train But there was one beast that was determined not to surrender its freedom without a run for it. animal made a dash for the thick underbrush and woods that skirt the river and Rogers set sail after him. Into the woods steer and pony plunged, Rogers forcing the pace.

The steer was a good dodger, and kept horse and man guessing. Finally, in making a sharp turn and a quick accident. spring. Rogers felt something strike him violently in the left eye. Of course the pain was frightful, and the grazer forgot about his steer. He returned to the home corral and turned over the bunch to his foreman. His eye was discolored, but not much blood could be seen. Rogers maintained that the wound was more than superficial, but the surgeons said it would get well in a couple of days. In three days the wounded man was dead of brain fever, the doctors said, but he was dead. Then a post-mortem was held to locate the blood clot, and a surprising state of affairs was revealed. It seems that the twig, long and pointed and as hard as steel, had penetrated the brain, passing in at the inner angle of the eye.

DEATH ON THE WHEEL. It does not require much of a blow or pressure on the aesophagus to strangle a man. This organ, the upper portion of the breathing apparatus, form a stricture, as in lockjaw, the cash prizes—V. C. Byam, Geo. Brown,
A. McLean, W. Welch, C. Race, J. GoThis is illustrated by the fate of the This is illustrated by the fate of the cyclist who died suddenly after an accident much less serious than a hundred he had experienced before. This man was riding his wheel home one evening, carrying another around his neck. He was a skillful rider, and made light of the task of holding the extra wheel and balancing his machine. But there was a latent weakness in his bicycle, which caused a collapse of the front forks. In the resultant fall the rim of the extra wheel came in violent contact with his throat, causing acute pain for a moment, with a sensation of shortness of breath. But the rider rose and placed his broken machine in a place of safety and thought no more of the matter. He never reached home alive. Before he had gone far his throat began to close and he started for a doctor's office requesting a friend to run with him. They never reached the office as the suffering man fell before he got there. But the friend secured the surgeon and returned to where the victim was still alive, but failing rapidly. The history of the accident was told, and the doctor bent all his energies to relieving the stricture. It was unavailing, for the man died within a couple of hours after the fall. No external marks of violence could be observed, the nerves merely having become excited and clasping his throat in such a manner as to shut off the breath as effectually as the hangman's rope could have done. HIS TEETH KILLED HIM. Death comes to humanity in many forms. Some by disease well known to men of medicine, some from accidents, some from no assignable cause. But of all the peculiar deaths which have ever overtaken a man, that of a drummer in Quincy, Ill., a few years ago, is about as strange as any. Technically described, it was a case of strangulation; actually it was from swallowing a set of false teeth. The unfortunate man registered at a leading hotel in the pretty little city by the Mississippi late at night. He was very weary and sought his room at once. He retired promptly, and his neighbors knew he was sleeping by the snores he sent forth. Late in the night an imperfect digestion. the drowsy clerk was roused by a furious ringing of the room bell of the drummer. A boy was sent in hot haste to see what was wrong, and met a wildly excited man, who waved his arms and made motions but uttered no sound save a curious wheezing.

The boy rushed frightened back to the office and said the man was either sick or crazy. A physician was sent for and a hasty examination made. The man struggled gamely for life, but as he could not speak, and was too far gone to write, the doctor was in the dark for a long time. He did everything he could, but without avail. The patient died. As no visible sign of the cause of death could be obtained, the coroner decided upon an autopsy. As the man constantly clutched his throat, that region was first explored.

Imbedded in the muscles and membranes of the throat, the doctor found a couple of false teeth on a small plate. They had effectually shut off the victim's breathing when the parts began to swell. The man died of strangulation because he was unable to inform his attendant what was the matter. It was supposed he forgot to remove the his mouth near the open faucet, so he could take a fresh one when agreeable. He forgot to turn it off, and also lost track of most other things as time passed away. He rolled over a time or two, and finally lodged, snoring, drunk and open-mouthed under the faucet. He swallowed a couple of times, but the whisky was coming too fast and he choked. He was too drunk to move and he literally drowned under the rain of old rye. He was found dead under the faucet, with evidences of suffocation as well as drunkenness to mark the course of his flight to another world.

HE FELL ONE HUNDRED FEET. When one of the big hotels in Kansas City was in process of construction, a structural ironworker, John Cartwright, fell from the sixth story to the basement from a steel stringer. He missed everything in his passage, and dropped to the cemented floor without coming in contact with any intercept ing beams. He lay upon the floor for a time, then slowly rose, and without asistance departed for his home. He was driven to the southern portion of the city in the foreman's buggy, went to bed, and in two weeks was apparently all right.

Everybody marveled that he escaped with his life. For two months he seemed as well as ever. An autopsy was held to determine if possible what ailment carried the man off. The spinal region was explored thoroughly from the neck to the sacrum without any serious trouble being located. Then one of the surgeons saw a deceased filament from the medulla, and caused the vertebra there to be sawed open. There the doctors came upon a pus sack, showing that the spinal cord had decayed for a couple of inches. A closer examination revealed that of all the bones in Cartwright's system subjected to the shock of his fall of nearly 100 feet, but one, and that a vertebra, had suffered fracture. A small piece of one of these had ruptured the membrane of the cord, secondary inflammation had followed, in turn succeeded by death. STRANGE DEATH IN A SLEEPING

The cables are one-fourth be remembered when the trifling accidents which result in death are conto the lower division, so the upper sidered. If the nerves controlling the berth cannot close without their breakaesophagus are startled sufficiently to ing. But the reason for this is possibly not known to every reader. It grew out of the death of a passenger in an upper berth, a suit for damages, and the loss of the action by the railroad company.

The accident happened, if memory is not at fault, over in Ohio. A passenger train was traveling at express speed, when the axle of the sleeper broke, the car lurched heavily on the ties, all the glass went out and then the vehicle settled down partly on one side. The drawhead was broken and the rest of the train escaped injury. Nobody on the sleeper was hurt so far as could be learned at first. All the passengers were accounted for, and the work of clearing the track and transferring the passengers to another car was commenced.

All at once the porter remembered that upper five had been occupied. He looked through the passengers and asked for this man, but nobody knew anything about him or where he might be. Then the fact that the berth had been occupied was verified and the trainmen rushed back into the car to investigate. The upper five was closed, jammed shut by the lurching of the car. For a long time all efforts to force it open were unavailing. Finally, when the thing was forced, the passenger was found inside, smothered to Every effort to resuscitate him failed; he was dead. This accident and the resulting lawsuit brought about the bracing of upper berths in all sleepers of modern make.

The Hawaiian Problem.

The annexation of Hawaii is the first step in the march of imperialism which the United States seems about to undertake. The acquisition was a holiday task compared with that which now faces the legislators of the republic. Their administrative abilities will be severely taxed because of the peculiar and industrial conditions of the islands. This was keenly realized by the sober and reflecting minority which opposed annexation, but the tide conquest swept everything before it.

The statement that the annexation movement was inspired by the sugar capitalists of Hawaii is undoubtedly By a reciprocity treaty which was effected in 1876, the United States gave a tariff preference to sugar imported from the Sandwich Islands. The duties remitted to Hawaiian planters amounted to about $5,000,000 every year McKinley Bill came into force sugar was put on the free list, and the price to the American consumers fell two pound. The Hawaiian about $7,000,000 in this way, the annexation movement began, with the dethronement of the native queen, and the raising of the Stars and Stripes by United States marines. Then came President Cleveland's rebuke, and the hauling down of the flag. In 1897, when the American duty on sugar was restored, the Hawaiian planters again profited to the extent of $5,300,000 on tariff remissions. They have never ceased to agitate annexation, for fear

The problem arising out of this sugar industry is the most serious the Sandwich Islands. The plantations there are worked by Asiatic cooliesimported by shiploads, under a soetition with the production of bounty sugar in the United States. Either this or the semi-slavery on the Sandwich Islands would have to be abolished. In any event, the United States Government is bound to collide ter in 1896 were $15,500,000, of which ,000,000 was in sugar. Further Chicration into Hawaii will be luded by American law, but the cannot be shut out, and the iters will not replace them by higher unless compelled to. The tract labor system in vogue there is Over 80 per cent of the trade is with the United States already. The debt, about $4,000,000, will, of course, be assumed by the republic.

Five commissioner's appointed by McKinley have gone to Honolulu to report on the legislative requirements of the islands. They have hard work before them.

Science and Other Interests. The editor of Appleton's Popular Science Monthly is naturally a defender of "Science," and in the current issue he feels called to write upon "Science and Its Critics." Some of us who seem to cherish due reverence for natural science as a large and growing body of ordered knowledge, are not at all sorry that science, which, in the person of some of its champions, during the present century, has been aggressive almost to intolerance, has, now and then, to stand upon the defensive. The attitude may not be pleasant, but It is a healthful discipline. It is not with small, ignorant, carping critics that Mr. Youmans deals, but with such great names of the present and immediate past as Brunnetiere, Tolstoi, Ruskin and Carlyle, and if these men are to be classed as "Critics of Science," then there is something about science as many specialists represent it that stands in need of criticism. For these names do not stand for any small, narrow system, but for large human interests of literature, and of the spiritual life. Some of their complaints may be unreasonable, but their protest expressed the fact that the word "science" in this connection, as for the matter of that in any connection, does not express the whole of life, or view of thought. The scientific editor complains that this statement of Tolstoi is unreasonable. Were our men of science to teach men more about religious, moral and social truths, we should not see the hundredth part of suffering and hardships and in this matter we are at one with the scientific editor. In his individual capacity each man is responsible for his character as a citizen, and his action as a moral being, but the man of science, as such, ought not to be reproached because he is not specially a philanthropist or evangelist. The question, however, is broader than this, namely, is not the present reaction against science which is a previous one-sided action which many felt to be "arrogant," and which was at least violently aggressive? arrange his literary plans to provide "data of ethics" when all other moral systems were crumbling to decay? Did not Mr. Huxley attempt to mark out the limits of rational thought and legitimate belief? Action and reaction are proportionate, a law which is perhaps illustrated most clearly in life of France. Thus it was in theory and practice, in thought and manners, people affected to deny mystery, to despise the beyond, to rely upon science alone for the satisfaction of their aspirations, as well as for meeting their curiosity. They constrained themselves to limit their outlook to the narrow terrestrial horizon. In a word, they were materialists. He then goes on to show how by the nature of man and the laws of social movement the reaction was bound to come. With Regard to the Telephone of $1,000 by the Bell Company, Mr. Business of London?

A Question for the City Council to Ducide.

The Finance Committee Approves of -It and the Bell Companys Offer Referred to the Council-Spirited be trouble.

London last night again laid before the finance committee of the city council their claim to a franchise to allow them to compete with the Bell Telethone Company, and the latter again presented their claim to a monopoly. Some spirited speeches and bits of bright repartee lent spice to the proceedings, but nothing definite was decided upon further than to submit both proposals to the council Monday night. the draft of the bylaw respecting the Peoples' company was considered in de-tail and approved of. Aid winnett presaled, and the others present were Aid. O'Meara, Graham, McCallum, Nutkins and Mcraillips, the mayor, City Solicitor T. G. Meredith, City Engin-eer Graydon and Secretary Pope. Messis. law, which had been amended to meet the approval of the city solicitor, and said it had been modeled after the street railway bylaw, which he described as one of the most perfect pieces of legislation the council had ever passed. It was most stringent, yet his company had nothing to fear because of that, he said. Mr. Bayly said he had communicated with some of the secretarles of the new State Telephone Companies of Michigan, in order to furnish the committee with information, and as a sample of the replies he had received he read that of the secretary of the Ann Arbor company, Mr. Mc-Gregor. A year ago, while the plant was being constructed, that company had 112 contracts; now they have 390 phones in use and 45 to connect. The dea that two 'phones were needed had been exploded, as some of the principal business places used only the Peoples'. Mr. McGregor has an interest in London, he says. His grandfather, McGregor, built the first house here. Mr. Bayly spoke of the Peoples' Telephone Company, which has just been organized in St. Thomas, and said there would be no delay about connecting the two towns. If London does not conect St. Thomas, St. Thomas will connect London, they say.

Mr. R. A. bayly referred to the by-

With regard to the London company, Mr. Bayly said they were local men, and their success depended entirely upon the people. If the people did not want to use their 'phone they would However, already over 100 orders had been taken, and that augured well for the success of the fu-half of the Peoples' Company. He re-called the efforts of the City Gas Com-engineer to frame. pany to get a franchise. The conditions then were the same as in the present the local company obtained a franchise to $1. An estimate of the amount of that franchise would furnish an idea of how much could be saved in this case. The arguments of the opposition were the arguments of all monopolies. Surely it was better wherever

Mr. Meredith held that there was no analogy between a gas company and a telephone company. In the case of the latter there should be no competition, he said, and claimed that New York and other large cities had but one system. More than one system in a city impeded the service. It would be absolutely necessary for each business man to have two 'phones if there were two systems, he said. Mr. Meredith argued that the new company were not in a position to give a longdistance service. They were merely a local company, and, assuming that the city were to give them an exclusive franchise, the city would be a back number-unable to telephone to outside places. The new company, he said, would not give metallic service, they would not lay their wires underground to any extent, and the construction company, he implied, would get most of the profits. He said the company would be defunct in one or two years. and he urged the committee not to give them a franchise. The Bell Company would give to the city $1,000, which benefited all ratepayers, while reduction in telephone rates benefited only the rich. He made the statement that the Detroit company had 1,800 duplicates and dummies on their list, and that very few business places used the Detroit company's 'phones. Mr. Bayly, in reply, said the bylaw called for full metallic service and for one mile of underground wiring. He produced the directory of the Detroit Telephone Company.

Graham, after examining the directory, found more than one name down for the one instrument, and Mr. Garrison said it was customary with the Bell as well as the People's Company, to put in their directory the names of different business men using the one 'phone. It was not padding.

Mr. J. R. Minhinnick said Mr. Meredith had made a lot of statements which he had not attempted to prove. "But we can prove them," said Mr.

Where is your proof?"

"Well, you should bring your proof here," said Mr. Minhinnick hotly, and went on to attack the Bell Company, saying they had abused their privil-Why should the committee ask

If the Bell Com-pany were in good faith, why did they offer as cheap rates as the People's Company have done? In answer to the argument about the payment Minhinnick said the committee could ask for $1,000 from each company, then the city would be benefited by $2,000 instead of $1,000.

FAMOUS TREE ALMOST GONE. [St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

"The famous oak tree under which William Penn, the great Quaker, made his treaty with the Indians over two centuries ago, was literally ruined by the relic-hunters and vandals," said J. F. McBride, of Philadelphia, who was attending the pattern makers' convention at the Lindell.

Board of Works Decide in Favor of Chemical Precipitation.

Scheme on Which the City Engineer Throws Cold Water-Committee's Action Opposed-Third Plan for Completing the Sewer System.

The city council will be asked on Monday night to abandon the plan originally designed for the disposal of the city sewage, and adopt a system of chemical precipitation to be constructed by the International Sewage Purification Company.

This recommendation was passed at a meeting of the hoard of works vesterday afternoon on the motion of the mayor. Dr. Campbell and ex-Ald. Skin ner, advisory members of the committee, strongly opposed such action, but had not the right to vote against it. A report by the city engineer also advised delay until further information could be obtained. A tender from the Pennsylvania Sanitation Company, to furnish a plant for the disposal of the sewage by bacteriological treatment was presented, and practically ignored. The members present were Ald. Douglass (chairman), Ald. Greenlees, Belton, Cooper, Dreaney and Carrothers, the mayor, Dr. Cl. T. Campbell, ex-Ald. Skinner and City Engineer Graydon.

CITY ENGINEER'S STATEMENT. In a report upon the proposals of the International Company, the city engineer stated that he had no doubt the purification of the sewage could be properly effected by such a plant as their representative had pointed out. Chemical plants, supplemented by filters of various materials, were in common use, but possibly in no instance is the cost of operating as low at is prom ised in London. As to whether the plant could be operated for the sum named, Mr. Graydon would not express an opinion, and thought it well to obtain fuller and more detailed information bearing especially upon the working expenses. At Melton Mowbray. England, a town of 7,000 people, the cost of purification of the sewage by this system was $1,000 a year, while at Chorley, with 25,000 people, the annual working cost was $5,500. Similar conditions here would, at the same rate, place the cost of purifying at least at $4,500 annually. "If we assume this to be so, for the purpose of illustration,"the report read, and that at the expiration of the year the plant would not fulfill the conditions required, and the deposit be forfeited, then, the first estimated cost of operating, $2,200, together with the interest on $14,000 at 5 per cent, $700, or a or otherwise, in the name of the Lon- total of $2,900, there would be left $1,600 ing interest at 5 per cent on $32,000. The event of failure would thus leave the company at a loss of $14,000, and might not result in the greatest benefit to the corporation." Mr. Graydon advised that action be deferred until further inquiries could and proceeded to point out as a suitable location for the plant, in case it be adopted, the high groun between the two coves. The estimated cost of laying the siphon to this point, together with an outlet on the river near the G. T. R. bridge, would be $9,-600, and Mr. Graydon recommended that tenders for section B be called for, and the work carried out without further This would furnish an outlet into the river.

An offer was received from Mr. L. H. Woodrop, president of the Pennsylvania Sanitation Company, of Philadelphia, to construct a plant for disoosing of the city's sewage by bacteri-The plant would ological treatment. have a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons a day, and the company also offer to construct two sedimentation basins to be used in connection therewith. The whole to be furnished complete, including all professional services and license fees, and in readiness for operation for $28,800. The company stated that it was their desire to furnish a local illustration which might bring them other business in the province. They held that their system was not only economical in existence; both as to original cost and expense of operation. tion of their system the necessity for the proposed syphon sewer outlet would be entirely obviated, and thus a saving of about $18,000 effected. Specifications of the proposed plant, accompanied the offer and contained a complete description of the work. By this process it is claimed that nitrifying bacteria are developed which consume all animal and vegetable matter, and convert it into harmless mineral products. During the whole process, it was said, there would be nothing of an offensive nature in or around the premises, and the water leaving the filter beds would be clear, odorless and up to a standard of purity of from 98 per cent to 99 per cent.
Mr. McDougall, representing the International Sewage Purification Company, again addressed the committee in the interest of his tender. The total cost of constructing the plant, he said, would be $41,300, and the annual opeings and Huron; good in Wellington, would be $41,300, and the annual ope-Waterloo, Wentworth, Prince Edward, rating expense would be $2,800. With regard to a guarantee, his company agree to deposit $14,000 for a year, and everything is not satisfactory, the deposit was to be retained by the city. Dr. Campbell thought there would be trouble in getting rid of the sludge. Mr. McDougall replied that there might be trouble at first, but when the farmers became aware of the value of the sludge, as a fertilizer, there would be no difficulty.

Ex-Ald. Skinner said further information should be obtained about the two new propositions before any action was taken. He understood the McDougall system would lead to an extra expenditure of some $40,000, and in justice to the ratepayers he did not feel that he could vote for such a system. The original system voted upon by the ratepayers was the only one city it would not weigh with him. The mayor claimed that the Mc-Dougall system would save the city $48,000 on the cost of construction, and $1,250 on the annual expense, as compared with the farm plan. He argued that it would cost $128,000 to purchase and $600 for preparing the land. Dr. Campbell said the consulting engineers had advised that 40 acres was all that the city would need for many years to come. To prepare this would cost about $24,000. As to the average purchase price of the land, he asked Ald. Carrothers what was the figure, so far, and Ald. Carrothers replied $175 an acre. On this estimate Dr. Campbell added $7,000 for the cost of

The mayor held that more than 40 Council Recommended to Adopt a acres would be needed, and presisted in the argument that the McDeugall system would be the cheaper. He moved to recommend the acceptance of the McDougall tender.

Ald. Greenlees was strongly in favor of delaying action. The Mayor-Well, I move, if I stand alone, to recommend the council to accept this tender, with the usual precautions about a guarantee of 50 per Ald. Dreaney seconded, and the motion carried. Dr. Campbell and ex-Ald. Skinner not voting.

The Shooting for the Kolapore Cup-Canadians Only 7 Points Behind.

Bisley, July 16.—Six teams competed for the Kolapore cup today, namely, England, Canada, Guernsey, Victoria, India and Jersey. Though the Canadians were defeated, they did some excellent shooting, their marksmanship being superior to that exhibited in last year's competition. Last year the cup was carried off by the Australians from Victoria—a team brought to Bisley by reason of the jubilee celebrations. Altogether ten teams were entered, the largest number ever taking part in this competition. After the Victorias for the cup at last year's matches was New Zealand, while the mother country came in third. The Canadian team ranked fourth, with 721. In yesterday's competition the cup was won by the Guernsey team, 744

WHY WE GET TIRED. [Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.] It is the general impression among athletes that exhaustion and "loss of wind" are due to the inability to consume sufficient oxygen and exhale rapidly enough carbonic dioxide. When the muscle is moving rapidly and forcibly it is true that it demands more oxygen, and gives off to the blood more carbon dioxide than when at rest. When a man is running as fast as he can make his limbs move he is able to keep up the pace but for a short distance, unless, like the hunted hare, he runs to his death. On account of the forced, vigorous and rapid muscular action in this case, the poisonous materials are thrown into the blood, to be carried to all parts of the body-muscles, nerves, brain. The heart is affected by this poison through the nerve cells controlling that organ; the muscles of respiration are similarly disturbed. The panting, distressed efforts of breathing, sidelong tumbling, anhelation and final semi-consciousness of the hunted stag. or hare are a good example of acute auto-intoxication, ending in death. This latter deplorable condition is not unknown among the annals of human strife for athletic honors even with our present advanced knowledge of physiology. Worms cause feverishness, moaning and restlessness during sleep. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant, sure and effectual. If your druggist has none in stock, get him to procure it for you.

[Helena Independent.]

The Rev. Dr. W. S. Holt, who held services in the Chinese language after the regular service at the First Presbyterian Church last evening, is one of the best known American missionaries of those who have labored in the Flowery Kingdom. He has lived and studied among the Chinese until he thoroughly understands both them and their language. He believes that the time is approaching when the Chinese will be better understood by the United States and a more friendly and closer, at least, commercial relationship will exist between them.

We are apt to judge the nation by the few Chinese we see every day," he said, when asked to speak of the social side of Celestial life. "The fact is, that only the more ignorant classes reach America, as a rule. Of course they have the national characteristics to a large extent, but through them we see but one side. The Chinamen who come to America are principally from the peasantry of their native country. They are not the low class, as you would speak of criminals, for they are law-abiding and exceedingly industrious, but as a rule they are Chinese who have not had the advantages of position or education. The Chinese are a queer people, viewed from our standpoint, and yet in their own country they possess greatness.

But as to your question. The social life of the Chinese is sui generis. There is no commingling of the sexes as with us. At an early age boys and girls are at the same table, except among the or the house. If people are wise they will not let themselves become so thin as to be noticeable, but take steps to put on flesh es soon as possible, for in this case, above all others, prevention is far beiter than cure, as thinness brings wrinkles, and these tell-tale lines are far harder to get rid of when they are firmly established than they are to smooth out and cure when they have only begun to trace their time-betraying fingers across our skin. This season the mother of 15-year-old daughters had a host of charming de-

Perhaps the era of individual rights which has dawned for children has something to do with it, for obvious make-overs or cut-downs from elder sister's frocks are not seen as often as they once were and "oft had she worn, and now Beinda wears" is no longer applicable to the present day maid's finery. A square yoke is formed by treks of the muslin and frills of lace, while a double row of lace insertion down the front is crossed just below the yoke by three tiny straps of black velvet with diamond buttons. When cucumbers are plentiful it is well to have thick slices of the softest with the soap on the washstand, and to use after the former to rub face, hands and throat, rinsing afterwards. Planchon, without its costing him another cent. Only Mile. Mauduit reserved for her own use until her death the two south rooms on the first floor.

"If these conditions, sir--" The old maid was unable to finish the sentence; she was seized with a violent fit of coughing that deprived her of the power of speech. She turned so red in the face that Plancho trembled for fear of seeing her die on the spot. Then she swooned away, lay motionless a moment, reopened her eyes

"Well, what say you?" "I accept!" exclaimed the worthy man with a burst of enthusiasm. "Very well. I shall send for the lawyer to call and draw up the contract.

Planchon withdrew, impatient to bring the good news to his wife. After examining the details of affair, he said: "Poor woman! There's nothing left of her but the breath! I'm afraid before the year is out the house will be ours!

It will not have cost us dear!" The whole family signed the deed of purchase, namely: Planchon, senior, and his wife Caroline; Planchon, junior, or Joseph, and his wife; M. and Mme. Ancelin, parents of Mme. Joseph Planchon; and Mme. Letellier, the widowed sister of Planchon, senior. Mile. Just when about to affix her signature the old for!" maid was seized with a fit of cough ing, followed by a swoon lasting nearly a quarter of an hour. Besides, being on the first floor, it would be so handy to move into Mile. Lis-beth's apartments when she departed this life, as she soon must, alas! M. and Mme. Planchon selected, then not without a sigh, the least objectionable room on the north side, leaving the other to Mme. Letellier. The Ancelins and Planchon, junior, and his wife

Two years passed. Mlle. Lisbeth appeared to grow no older. But Planchon was breaking up; and the Ancelins were complaining; their daughter, too, was fading. The hate of the four survivors vented itself freely; for anything, for an open door, Mme. Joseph would shout in the "You old pestilence!"

Mile. Lisbeth would come to her door and playfully inquire: "Were you calling for me, my dear?" That year there was an epidemic of la grippe. M. and Mme. Ancelin suc-cumbed to it together.

On the day after the funeral they found a crown with the words: "God calls his children home.' When Planchon found himself alone with his daughter-in-law, both uttered a cry in which there was more rage than grief. They had to set the Ancelins' empty rooms to rights. The and duty was almost accomplished when Mile. Lisbeth entered the house. Listening, they heard her say, "I'm all in a perspira-

The young woman took to her bed that night with a pleurisy. She recovered for the time being, but her health was gone. She lingered two years, then passed away.
'I'll wager anything," said the dying "that she has ordered crown."

True enough, there was a crown tenderly laid upon the grave with the word "Hope!" upon it. When he saw it, Planchon was seized with a convulsive tremor. That tremor lasted five years. Five rears spent on the north side of the house, envying the southward-looking rooms, and giving way to bursts of rage that aggravated his condition. Every year when paying the install-

He could hear her breathing regularly and gently. Re-turning to his wife he reassured her. "So it's all right? She must be get-ting better!" she whispered. That evening she forgot to send her a wing of the chicken. Little by little soups, souffles and preserves forgot their way to the two rooms on the south. Mile. Lisbeth was none the worse for that. On the contrary, her looks grew better, her walk brisker. A year after the sale of the again.

But the whole family looked at her, as she came and went, with silent, sullen resentment. On the day of the funeral, Planchon said to his wife: "If my poor sister had only had a room on the south, she might have been with us now! I'm not ashamed to say that death might have done better by Death Has Robbed England of One of Her Most Noted and Unique Artists -The Cult of Sir Edward Burne Jones-How He Reached Fame Though True to Himself.

By the death of Sir Edward Burne-Jones England loses one of her most noted painters, one whose position in the world of art was unique. Although few of his paintings have been seen in this country, they are known to us through reproductions, and his association with the aesthetic movement has made his name familiar to many Americans who would not have heard of him otherwise. An obscure symbolism and strong roman-ticism were the chief peculiarities of his paintings, characteristics probably fostered by his early theological studies and his intimate friendship with the leaders of the Pre-Raphaelites. He was studying at Oxford for the ministry while Ressetti was painting frescoes there, and was so impressed that he determined to become a painter. Rossetti received him as a pupil, Ruskin encouraged him, yet the British public turned the cold shoulder

His first picture, "The Legend of a Knight Who Pardons His Enemy," exhibited in 1864, was amateurish in technique, while two small canvases shown at the Royal Academy in 1870 were withdrawn by the painter because they were criticised as offensively sensuous in expression. It was not until seven years later that Burne-Jones achieved fame. The Royal Academy had no place en its walls for the works of any artist who did not conform to its rules of respectable mediocrity, and on May 1, 1877, the Grosvenor Gallery was opened by Sir Coutts Lindsay (himself a painter) as a haven of refuge for such artists as cared Burne-Jones was among the exhibitors and his work became famous on the instant. The Grosvenor Gallery became a temple of aesthetics and among the worshipers none were more enthusiastic than those professing the cult of Burne-Jones. His mannerisms they looked upon as beauties and sentimental young women affected the postures and robed themselves in the gowns exhibited by the painter's tall, angular maidens. After all, the paintings must have been a blessed relief compared to the commonplaces of contemporary English art. The aesthetic fad has had its day, yet Burne-Jones has retained his popularity despite-or perhaps because of—the morbidness that characterizes his pictures. His range of subjects was extensive. the subjects being drawn from the fables, classic, antiquity. Biblical and Christian legends and the lays of the old Trouveres. His decorative work was of considerable importance, he having developed a new are of two kinds, to hold six and ten style in glass painting to harmonize with cartridges respectively. scendant of Rossetti, but he viewed life only to aim, press the trigger, and reload from a different standpoint. See how his after six or ten shots, according to the female figures are compared with those of his master by Richard Muther:

Rossetti's women are dazzling and glorious figures of a modern and deliberately cruel beauty-sisters of Messalina. Phaedra and Faustina. He delineates them as luxurious beings with supple and splendid bodies, long white necks and snowy, gleaming breasts; with full and fragrant hair, ardent yearning eyes and demoniacally passionate lips. What they love in man is his physical strength. Only the strong man who loves them with overpowering madness, like a strong wind, can bend them to his will.

"But the women of Burne Jones know that this fervor is no longer to be found upon the earth. For these women life has lost its sunshine, and love its passion and the world its hopes. The hue of their life is pallid, their eyes are dim, their bodies sickly and without flesh and blood and their hips are spare. With pale, quivering lips and a melancholy smile they live consumed by sterile longing and pine in silent dejection, gazing into vacant space like imprisoned goldfish, or luxuriate in the vague Fata Morgana of an over-delicate, over-refined and bashfully tremulous

Burne-Jones had his limitations, his coloring is often feeble, his figures are too tall and his mannerisms pronounced; but there is a romantic charm about much of his work, and his stained-glass windows are things of beauty.

The artist lived a secluded life in his old-fashioned house in West Kensington. He saw but few visitors, and one of his was for the Tory leaders that Burne-Jones painted his famous series of pictures illustrating the legend of the Briar Rose, and they now decorate Balfour's rawing room in his home in Carlton ouse Terrace. Burne-Jones held the ost advanced radical views in politics, ugh his only appearance in political ife was when he attended the Parnell Commission daily to evince his sympathy with Parnell in defeating the Times conspiracy. He conceived the great personal admiration for Parnell, whose mysterious charm of manners and appearance appealed to his artistic sense, and he strongly pressed Parnell to permit him to paint his portrait. But, although it was explained to Parnell that this was a high semultment, as Burne-Jones sarely

The flat-footedness of the race is a fact that has been established by the inspection of volunteers who have offered them. selves for enlistment. Many otherwise perfectly eligible men have been rejected by the army surgeons solely because they have flat feet. The reason given for their rejection is that a flat-footed soldier makes

At first sight it would not seem that the effect of this departure from the normal would be very far reaching. Still, experts agree that in persons with flat feet the infirmity causes serious injury and notable derangements of nearly the entire muscular system.

Man's walking apparatus is arranged for his comfort and ease in locomotion. It is not so in the case of the man with a flat foot. To him walking is always awkward and often painful.

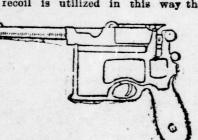

Dr. Otto Sutter of New York, who has observed many cases, said: "Man's natural walk is a process of falling. With his heel as a lever he raises himself on the ball of his foot. His body falls for. ward until checked by the return to the heel when it sinks back to earth. Thus, the normal walker is alternately falling forward and backward. When the center of the foot touches the ground the effect is different. The walker no longer has the rounded bones of his feet to act as natural ball-bearings. there is scarcely any shock to the hand and the barrel very nearly maintains its original direction. The mechanism is simple and perfect, so that when the magazine is filled the piece is ready to fire without further manipulation, and when it is emptied the shooter is notified by the action remaining open.

Another popular form of magazine pistol is known as the Bergman, which in skillful hands can be fired 30 times a minute. The cartridges are inserted five at a time, and if desired another empty cartridge can be carried in the barrel. The weapon is self-cocking and the spent cartridge is ejected automatically.

GATHERING OF IVORY

Blephants Will Soon Be Extinct Unless They Are Protected-World's Consumption.

From the time when palaeolithic man first drew the rude outline of an animal on a mammoth's tusk, ivory has always been a favorite material for the artist to work upon. The Egyptians and Assyrians used it extensively for making ornaments, and among the Greeks some of the master. pieces of sculpture were wrought in ivory. Fashion has indeed brought about a change in this respect, and ivory is not now so much used in art; but for more prosaic purposes it is still in great demand, and in the manufacture of billiard balls alone thousands of tusks are used annually. Indeed, the demand for ivery is constantly increasing, and unless legis lation interferes to put a stop te the wholesale slaughter of elephants they must soon become extinct. The world's annual consumption is estimated at something like 1,500,000 pounds, valued at $4,500,960, and to supply this amount 70,000 elephants must be killed. The consumption in Sheffield alone requires the annual slaughter of 22,000 animals. Africa supplies the great bulk of ivory, the Indian wild elephant having become so scarce of late years that India is now obliged to import a considerable quantity of ivory. A vast amount of fossil ivory is also exported from Eastern Siberia to various countries, chiefly to the Continent, where it is more highly esteemed than in England.

Africa, then, remains the happy hunt ing ground for the ivory collecter. Airi can ivory, too, fetches a higher price than any other, being denser in texture, susceptible of a higher polish, and not so liable to turn yellow when exposed to the light as the Indian kind. In Africa itself the quality is found to vary greatly, the rule being that the warmer the region the finer is the ivory found there. The finest tusks, however, are generally met with at some distance from the Equator. springless dray and that of a rubber-tired The finest pair of tusks ever bought to Europe came from Uganda, and are val-"The man with flat feet can have no ued at $940. This salary is greatly in excess of the amount which Great Britain deems sufficient for any one of her representatives in foreign countries. Our most highly-paid ambassador is the British representative in Paris, though he receives little more than half the sum Dr. Leyds is to draw-a beggarly £9,000. Britain's ambassadors to Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Turkey receivo £8,000 a year each. The representative in St. Petersburg has the next largest salary, £7,800; while £800 less is considered enough for the British ambassaor who takes up his residence in the Eternal City. For some reason, known only to the diplomatic mind, our representative in Washington is much worse off, receiving but £6,500 a year, though he has probably to work far harder for his country. The ambassader to Spain receives £5,500, while the representatives in China and Persia draw £500 each less. The heads of the legations in Japan, Brazil, and Egypt each receive £4,000; but Lord Cromer has heside £1,000 as a "personal allowance." The British agent at Pretoria, who is paid by the Colonial Office, receives only £2,000 a year.-London Tit.Bits.

Drunken Ants.

Sir John Lubbock has gone to the ant again, and, if he keeps up his visits and others imitate him, that interesting insect will become useless for Sunday school purposes. Sir John succeeded in getting fifty ants helplessly drunk, and then placed them outside an ant-hill. The sober ants came out, picked up their friends, and put them to bed to sleep off the effects of Sir John's liquor; the strangers, however, they sternly rolled over into the ditch .- New York Sun.

.....One half ounce
.....Two gallons Sugar ... ream of Tartar.... Lukewarm water..

Dissolve the sugar, cream of tartar, and yeas? in the water, then add the extract; stir until thoroughly mixed and immediately bottle in strong bottles or jugs, corking and tying the corks securely. Place the bottles in a warm place for everal hours until the yeast can work sufficiently to make the contents effervescent, then store in a cellar or other cool place.

WELL KNOWN VIOLINIST

Traveled Extensively Throughout the Provinces - Interesting Statements Concerning His Experience.

STELLARTON, N.S.-James R. Murray, well known violinist, of this place, who has traveled extensively throughout the Provinces, makes this statement:

"I was running down in health and my weight fell off from 175 to 150 pounds. Prescriptions did me but little good. My trouble was called nervous dyspepsia. I resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and after taking five bottles I was greatly benefited. I feel as well now as ever in my life, and have increased in flesh so that I now weigh 177 pounds. I am well known in this part of the country, having followed my profession, that of a violin musician for the last 26 years. I gladly tell my friends what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. Before I began taking the medicine I did not have any ambition, but now all is changed and my dyspeptic trouble perfectly cured." JAMES R. MURRAY.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, do not be induced to buy any substitute. Be sure to get Hood's. Hood's Pills are the only pills to take Terrible Stories Brought Down by Gold Hunters.

Boats Swamped and Thirty Lives Lost at Cook's Inlet.

First of This Season's Gold From the Klondike.

Tacoma, July 16.-Thirty men have been drowned in Cook Inlet, Alaska, during the last four months, according to passengers on the schooner Golden Gate, which arrived Thursday. The drownings occurred in the upper part of the inlet, where tenderfeet were trying to find new streams to prospect. At low tide the bottom of the inlet is bare in places, and boats are rowed about in the narrow channels remaining. The tides roll in with great high waves, which swamp all boats that cannot get to the shore. To this fact the large number of fatalities reported DISGUSTED PROSPECTORS. The Golden Gate's passengers, numbered thirty disgusted prospectors, including a party of ten from Troy, N.Y., and one of ten from New Haven, Conn. The Troy company was organized early this year by H. Y. Fuches to dredge for gold in creeks running into Cook Inlet. Its members say they put up from $400 to $600 each, with which dredging machinery was purchased. They found the river beds full of rocks, through which their clamshell scoops could not get to the golden sands below. The dredge was then sold for enough to bring the party down. All of the party but one had some money left. Two days ago a collection for this man was taken up on board the schooner. All contributed except Manager Fuches, seeing which some of his onal belongings were seized and auctioned off for $8, which was taken as his contribution.

SMOTHERED BY A SLIDE. While searching for Copper River gold in the interest of a number of Phila-delphians, Mr. Wm. Her Trade for 1898 Shows an Increase of $44,000,000

Last year's trade exceeded that any other previous year, but the figures for 1898 are still more satisfactory, showing, as they do, an increase of over $44,000,000 in the aggregate trade, as compared with 1897. The increase in the revenue from the duty collected is over $2,000,000. The official statement, as compared by the customs department, only shows an increase of $1,938,263, but this does not take into account the $150,000 which has already been received by the department from the Yukon, nor the $75,000 which is on the way to Ottawa. None of the duties collected in the Yukon are accounted for, and the utmost from this source will be about $250,000. The increase in the year's imports over 1897 is $19,336,000, while the exports exceeded those of 1897 by $24,723,000. The following are the official figures for 1897 and 1898:

1897 is, therefore, $24,723,678, and the increase in the imports for the same period is $19,336,174. The large increase in the duty of $1,983,263 is all the more satisfactory when the reduced tariff caused by the operation of the preferential tariff is taken into considera-

RAILWAY EXTENSION French P. D. Corsets

C. P. R. Said To Be Acquiring Connection to the Falls and New York

By Way of Brantford and Buffalo-The Move One of Great Commercial Value to London.

The recent change in the location of the divisional headquarters, from Toronto to London, by which Mr. T. W. Williams and his staff come back to this city is, in the opinion of railway men, only the beginning of a new and important order of things on the division of the C. P. R., between Toronto and Detroit. The extension of the C. P. R. through Brantford means more than appears on the surface. The Canadian Pacific, according to several railway authorities, will operate the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo, from Brantford to Buffalo, thus giving them connection with the Niagara Falls and an eastern outlet through Buffalo to New York and the Atlantic ports. This is what the C. P. R. are said to be aiming at, and if accomplished it will mean a great thing for London, as there will be four trains each wayeast and west-to every one that now runs. There will also be extensive track accommodation put in the Lon don yard; and one railway man went so far as to say that it would pos-sibly necessitate the double tracking of the road between here and Woodstock. It is believed that the freight traffic from the west to the east over the C. P. R. will be enormous when all these matters have been adjusted. When Mr. Williams and his staff remove here in August, it means that Mr. Alfred Price, at present chief dispatcher and car distributer, will be promoted to the position of superintendent of the Owen Sound, Orangeville and Teeswater branches. The changes about to take place are by some thought to be the most important since this section of the road was built. The Brantford Courier, speaking of the new C. P. R. extension through that city, says: "There are to be rapidly becoming the most popular eight trains daily on the new railway 4through trains and 4 suburban. The through expresses will not stop between Brantford and Woodstock, and one of them will run from Brantford to London without stopping. The report is reiterated that the L E. and D. R. R. Company are about to lease the E. and H. Railway and that the G. T. R. will build a track from Wallaceburg to tap the main line from Sarnia to London, and the C. P. R. will build a line from Wallaceburg to Bothwell.

We have no hesitation in saying that Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is without doubt the best medicine ever introduced for dysentery, diarrhea, cholera, and all summer complaints, sea sickness, etc. It promptly gives relief and never fails to effect a positive cure. In crossing Richmond street he picked up an envelope containing bills and silver. It was probably a pay envelope belonging to some boy or girl. Joe remarked this that this sort of luck had been with him since a boy, having found money on several occasions, and always finding the loser. On the outside of the envelope was written the name of "Ford," with the amount. Joe is not without a good share of Irish wit, and as he handled his "find" he remarked that the owner could not 'afford" to lose it. Employes' Excursion to Niagara Falls a Big One Patronized by Nearly 2,000 People-Three Train Loads-Thirty Cars Required.

Solitude pervades the Grand Trunk car shops today. The great hive is deserted. For the first time since the chanics at work, they are bathed in perfect stillness on a week day, and the reason of this unusual occurrence was the employes' excursion to Niagara Falls. Dinner palls were forgotten this morning, and at an early hour —Philip Hutchinson, of Clarence street, now in jail for threatening to station. The employes of the shops make a considerable crowd of themselves, and they have many friends. In all, nearly 2,000 people took in the excursion. Weather conditions could excursion. Weather conditions could not have been more favorable for an outing, and the inviting prospects outing, and the inviting prospects proved to be irresistible.

One large train load of excursionists pulled out at 6:30 a.m., and was so crowded at the depot down town that it did not stop at the East London station, as was expected. It was followed by another train at 6:45, and a third at 7 o'clock. In all 30 cars were required to furnish the necessary accommodation for the jolly crowd of pleasure-seekers. They are to return to London about midnight.

Washington, July 16.—It has been decided to send additional doctors and nurses and medical supplies to Santiago as soon as possible. The situation, however, was not serious, but there appears to be need for more doctors and nurses and these could be sent forward. The secretary was in the best of spirits over the situation at Santiago.

THE NEWS IN MADRID. Madrid, July 16.-The news of the capitulation of Santiago was received too late for comment by the morning papers. It causes disappointment, because it was hoped that, although Gen. Toral was in a desperate condition, the spread of yellow fever might have, in a few days, compelled the Americans to raise the siege and retire. Official information regarding the conditions of surrender is anxiously awaited. The government's usual reticence concerning the long dispatches received from Capt. Blanco causes anxiety. EXPLANATORY. Madrid, July 16 .- The official Gazette publishes an official memorandum from the president of the council to the queen regent, explanatory of the decree suspending the constitutional guarantees, and briefly sketchspecially upon the fact that the command of the sea is now completely in the hands of the enemy, and that the probability is that an American squadron will soon appear on the Spanish coast. The memorandum draws the conclusion that "the time has arrived

Early this year the Americans notified the Canadians that if they could not play the annual fixture in the early part of July it would have to be called off. The Canadian executive wrote back that it would be impossible to accept these dates. This the Americans could not agree to, and it was thought the matter would have to be dropped, until Mr. John E. Hall, secretary of the Canadian Cricket Association, and secretary-treasurer of the Parkdale Cricket Club, received a letter from Philadel phia stating that there was an open date in the last two days of August. The Canadians will be able to play at Philadelphia on Aug. 29 and 30, so the

to find out," added Valeria. Miss Cromo ceased to smile. how are they getting along?" "You ought to know better than I," was the reply. You proposed to put someone on their track. I really cannot tell you any news of them.' "You do very well not to occupy yourself with them," Miss Cromo said sharply. "It isn't nice for a lady to about such things." "I know nothing of such things except wat is forced upon my notice,' Valeria replied. "I believe that the most of my knowledge of such subjects has been communicated to me by you. No one ever hears me tell such stories You know perfectly well why I men-tioned this one to you, solely in order to have your advice on a subject which I saw you were familiarly acquainted

She rose as she spoke, and took a very cold leave before Miss Cromo had provided herself with a retort. Returning to her own apartment, she found a visitor waiting for her. was somewhat surprised at seeing this lady, whom she had met several times at Casa Passarina, but had scarcely exchanged a dozen words with; and still more surprised at finding herself greeted with the cordiality of an old friend.

Any company was welcome, however; and she was, on the whole, rather pleased, knowing nothing against this lady, except that she was a little too cordial and friendly for such a very slight acquaintance.

Mrs. Morton was an Englishwoman of middle age, who was divorced from her husband, and lived as companion with a French lady, resident in Rome. She was agreeable-looking and pleasant-mannered, though a physiognomist would have called her bad-tempered. She was exceedingly useful in questioning servants as to the affairs of their employers, and in doing little mysterious errands for certain friends of hers: two of which errands she had to do this afternoon. One of them was to come to Valeria and find out what she knew, or would say, about the Countess Belvedere.

This woman was very plous. She had a rosary on her bed-post, a Madonna in a chalet, and a shell of holy water on the wall. She went to No venas, asked people to pray for her and went frequently to confession and communion. One might accuse one's self of a feeling of curiousity to hear one of her confessions, after having known some of her doings.

When her errand to Valeria was done she was to go to a certain lodginghouse with the pretense of looking and rooms for someone else, and while examining the rooms, was to ask the mistress of the house a good many questions about a lady boarding there. Nothing was to be said against her; but the questions were such as could not fail to suggest suspicions of the per-

That was all. Satan caricatures God in all his works; and as in the church there is a communion of saints, which is defined as a communion of all holy persons in all holy things, so in the church of Satan there is a communion of all evil persons in all evil thing and this communion is a sort of freemasonry.

The members understand and aid each

"Only tell me a person's name, and I will find out everything about her," this woman had said; and she said it with an air of pride. She had lost the instinct of honor. When her second errand should be done, Mrs. Morton would be just in time to go to Sant' Andrea delle Fratte to the Novena which had begun for the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin, where, with every appearance of devotion, she would repeat her salutation to the Mother of the Love of God incarnate with the same lips that had a moment before insinuated a calumny, inspired by the father of lies. Mrs. Morton began to compliment Valeria. She was full of smiles and friendly inquiries; she admired her apartment, and begged to be allowed to see the whole of it. Valeria began to stiffen. "This woman is a little too sweet, and too much at her ease," she thought; and she ig-"You must have a view into the Mitella gardens." Mrs. Morton said presently, in no wise abashed at the tacit refusal. "Your house is partly inside the wall, is it not?" "Yes; there is one window on the garden.'

"How charming! I have always wanted a house with a garden adjoining. Even if it isn't one's own, that scarcely makes a difference. To be able to look at the flowers and fountains is about the same as to own them. I suppose you spend a great deal of your time at that window. Do you ever see "Very seldom. Naturally, when I see people in the garden I draw back. And, door to any person whom you do not indeed, though I sit near the window with my writing, I do not look out much, except when it is too dark to write, or when I want to rest my eyes for a moment. It rest's one's eyes to look at green. The ancient stonecutters looked at an emerald when their eyes were tired; I look at a tree. "Does the countess please you?" asked the visitor.

"I do not know her."
"I mean, do her looks please you? Do you think her handsome?" "She would be called a handsome woman. I saw her once or twice in Casa Passarina.' "How I should like to look into the garden! Would you allow me?" "Why do you not go to the Casino?" Valeria said. "They would probably let you go into the gardens. I presume that the family are away."

Anger flickered in the visitor's pale blue eyes, and distorted her smile; but she strove not to lose her sweetness. "It didn't occur to me that the request was an improper one, I am so very open about everything," she said. 'I never minded having ladies go to any part of my house when I had one.

I never conceal anything."
"Then, perhaps," Valeria said smiling, "since you are so frank, you will tell me what it is you wish to find out about the Countess Belvedere and her garden. I own that I fail to see why either should interest you."
"Nothing in the world! What should I wish to find out? What should make you so suspicious?" The visitor floundered in protestations, half angry, half apologetic, and, not being interrupted, rose to go. "So happy to have seen you," said Valeria, ringing the bell.

She rang it again when her visitor had gone out with a bitter-sweet smile upon her face, and gave orders that Mrs. Morton was never, on any account, to be admitted again. "There's another enemy for me!" she sighed, when she was alone. "I shall have all the canaglia of Rome upon my shoulders."

CHAPTER XXVI. It was September, and Valeria was feeling very unwell, without once suspecting what was the matter with her. Fever comes so insidiously sometimes as not to be perceived. The weather was very hot, the summer had been an extraordinary strain of heat from the beginning of May, with scarcely a shower, or a merciful tramontana to temper the scorching rays of the sun. One can stay very well in Rome through July; but after that the system becomes prostrated. She could eat nothing but fruit. Now and then her servant persuaded her to taste of something else; but she turned from it in disgust. She struggled to write, and the pen dropped from her Her trembling fingers could scarcely form the letters.

And so September passed. Bruno was back in the garden of Villa Mitella, swaggering and laughing as usual. He knew that Marco lay dangerously ill of fever, and he felt safe for the present.

Valeria always protested to herself that she did not know where Vittorio was, and that he must have found employment elsewhere. She refused to look at the thought that she had refused to utter. She scarcely ever went out now, and never alone. When she did go out, there was always some of that company near her, but their manner was changed. Their air was serious and threatening, but they never intruded too much.

Some heart's remembrance and regret Fill every street with life profound. This corner, where of old we met, To me has since been hallowed grou I never pass in sun or rain Now but I meet you here again.

We cannot go from where we dwell And leave behind no lingering trace.

Where in the past our shadow fell

A shadow of us haunts the place. Returning now, ourselves may there Disturb some ghost of what we were.

The stones are thrilled by many a tread That leaves no footprint where it strays Shades of the living and the dead In silence throng the noisy ways. Here where I meet in shower or shine Your ghost, you haply meet with mine.

The air has sounds we cannot hear, Is dim with shapes that none can see. Though dear the living voice and dear sight of living faces be, With kindlier yearnings yet we greet The friends we see not when we meet.

HIS BOAT FOR A LIFE. An Instance of Real Benevolence by Poor Kanaka.

A very curious and beautiful letter was written to President Lincoln that would certainly have given him peculiar pleasure if he had read it, but he never did. This is how it was: In 1863 some pirates from Peru captured and carried off some natives from the Marquesas islands in the south seas. One of them was a son of a powerful chief, and the father made a vow that he would, for revenge, eat the first white man who fell into his hands. A man named Whalan, the first mate of a New Bedford whaling ship, was before many months captured by the Marquesans. He it was who must furnish a feast for the cannibal chief, but all the people he ruled over were not cannibals. Among them was a native missionary from Hawaii named Kakela. Kakela had just received a present of a boat from religious people in Boston, a valuable six oared boat that he needed much in his missionary work. He set about trying to save Mr. Whalan's life, but the chief would give him up only on one condition—that he should have the new boat in exchange for the captive. Kakela bought him at that price and helped him to leave the islands.

The story came to President Lincoln's knowledge, and he characteristically found time to send a message and a present to the poor south sea missionary. Kakela wrote a letter of thanks in return, which closed with these sentences: "As to this friendly deed of mine, its seed was brought from your great land by certain of your countrymen who had received the love of God. It was planted in Hawaii, and I brought it here that these dark regions might receive the root of all that is good and true, which is love. How shall I repay your great kindness to me? Thus David asked of Jonathan and thus I ask of you, the president of the United States. This is my only payment, that which I received from the Lord-'love.' May the love of Jesus Christ abound toward you till the end of this terrible war in your

A Humane Engineer.

One never knows the value of an amiable deed till he knows all its consequences, and the merit of it is in not knowing them all beforehand.

An engineer of a passenger train on . Mississippi railroad was driving through a snowstorm, eagerly scanning the track as far as he could see, when, half way through a deep cut, something appeared lying on the rails. It was a sheep with her two little lambs.

His first thought was that he could rush on regardless of them, probably without damage to his train; but the sight of the innocent family cowering in the storm touched him, and as they paid no heed to his warning whistle he pulled the airbrake and sent his fireman ahead. In a few minutes the fireman came back with a terrified face. There had been a landslide, and just beyond the cut the track was covered with rocks. It seemed certain that if the train had gone on at full speed in the blinding snow it would have been impossible to stop in time to escape disaster.

In the absolute sense the incident was providential-as everything is-but circumstantially the passengers on that rail-way train owed their safety, if not their lives, to an engineer who was too tender hearted to kill a sheep and her lambs -Youth's Companion.

Dutch Rule In Java.

The natives of Java resemble very much in character the natives of the Philippines. It is therefore interesting to know how the Dutch have succeeded so well in governing them. A Dutch official thus explains the method:

"We pay the native priests, we support a large native police force, and we rule by the hands and mouths of the natives; but all the time we have our own people on guard, and no important move is made without our consent. Thus the people and their chiefs are contented and happy, and we keep them so by maintaining a condition more favorable than they could hope to maintain themselves."

Company J.

"Doesn't it strike you as peculiar," said he cheerful idiot, who knows everything, "that in the designation of the 12 companies composing a regiment the letter 'J' should be omitted. The companies are lettered through 'M' in each regiment, but nowhere can Company J be found." "It does seem strange," replied the boarding house philosopher. "How do you account for it?" "I expect it's because 'J' stands for 'Jonah,' said the C. I. "Uncle Sam wants no 'Jonahs' in his regiments."-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Usual Result. "Well," asked the motorman, "did you manage to collect your little bill from that conductor?"

"No." answered the disgusted passen-"I got tired trying to collect it at his house and the other day I caught him on his car."

"What did he do?" "The same thing as usual. Put me off."-Philadelphia Call. The Hindoos consider their dead as sa cred and do not allow them to be handled by alien hands, the nearest male relative -son, father or brother-preparing the body for burial, and if there be none of these relatives a son is adopted by the family for the purpose. Vast quantities of tin foil are used for

There are said to be fewer suicides among miners than among any other cleas of workmen.

FIRST SOUTHERN TORPEDO.

Used In the James River After the Fight at Seven Pines.

The story of the first torpedo which was invented and used by General Gabriel Rains during the war with the Seminole Indians, April, 1840, ended in the fighting of 16 soldiers, who had gone with Captain Rains to investigate the cause of the explosion, with some 100 or more Indians; and among the casualties the wounding of the captain and his being carried to Fort King in the arms of his men. Another and second torpedo had been previously placed at the post by him, and soon after the fight 1,000 or more troops were collected there, and it became such a dread to the whole army that a soldier guard was put over it until Captain Rains was able to go and take it up.

"Suppose," said one officer to another high in rank, "that the captain had died of his wound. What would you have done?" "I thought," said the second offi-cer, "of firing at it with a 9 pounder at a safe distance and thus knocking it to

The occasion of his first submarine torpedo was as follows: Soon after the battle of Seven Pines General Lee, commanding, sent for General Rains and said to him: "The enemy have upward of 100 vessels in the James river, and we think that they are about making an advance that way upon Richmond, and if there is a man in the whole Southern Confederacy that can stop them you are that man. Will you undertake it? "I will try," was the answer, and, observing that ironclads were invulnerable to cannon of all caliber used and were really masters of rivers and harbors, it required submarine inventions to checkmate and conquer them, so an order was issued forthwith putting General Gabriel Rains in charge of submarine defenses, and on James river bank, opposite to Drury's Bluff, his first submarine torpedo was made, the primogenitor and precursor of all such inventions, now world renowned, as civilized nations have each a torpedo corps.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle.

I saw a sturgeon here on the cannery floor measuring 12 feet by the tape and weighing more than 600 pounds. Any one wishing to deceive the public by aid of a prevaricating camera should pose beside this 12 foot fish. The man who skillfully and laboriously reduced it to sections with an ax said it was not an uncommon fish, though the biggest on the floor; that they often found them far larger and weighing as much as 1,200 pounds. Two men lifting a half ton fish into their boat is the exciting feature of sturgeon fishing. The sturgeon is not a lively fish, but when lifting hooks are fastened in his thick hide he is apt to resent it. He shakes his head in emphatic dissent, and a head 3 feet long and as big as a log, when vigorously shaken by a half ton body, is a thing to be avoided. The tail, too, is a source of danger, for it not only slaps with energy, but can cover a large surface with one application. The man new at the business is apt to get hurt the first time he helps to coax a wriggling sturgeon of standard size over a gunwale. -Victoria Letter in Toronto Globe.

A STUDY OF IDIOTS

present neofilia and great artistic activity and idiots frequently display special aptitudes in which they become superior to normal men, some of them becoming true prodigies, as is shown by Dr. Peterson in The Popular Science Monthly, October, 1896, especially in arithmetical and musical ability, with a particular inclination to imitate in models, drawings and pictures the objects which they have before them. One of the most curious examples of this is "Blind Tom," a pure blooded negro born in Georgia in 1840. Born blind he showed no intelligence, except for sounds. He could not speak a word, but he could repeat any sound which he heard.

Merely by the aid of sound he could repeat Greek, Latin, German and English texts, however long after he had heard them recited, could play on the piane from memory any piece, however difficult to follow, and had learned by memory 500 pieces of music. Among cases of extraordinary memor in idiots Morel cites a cretin who remen bered the date of the funerals of all the persons who had died in his parish within 35 years, with the names of those who had taken part in these funerals. Morel also cites the case of an idiot who could not count up to 20, but who knew the names of all the saints in the calendar with dates of their respective feasts. As to the imitative faculty the most curious cases are cited. At the asylum of Earlwood there was an idiot who constructed a perfect model of a ship with all its more minute details. Geoffry Mind, a cretin who died in 1814, drew cats with so much skill that his drawings are preserved in all the leading museums of Europe. Gideon Buxton, the famous lightning calculator, who died in 1702, was stupid, and Zerah Colburn, exhibited at the age of 6 as a lightning calculator, could never learn anything. He had six toes and many characteristics of degeneracy. Dasah was absolutely a fool, and yet he could multiply mentally numbers of eight and ten figures.-Lombroso in Monist.

Volley Firing.

An old seldier says: "You often hear the story tellers speak about the firing of 'volley after volley,' but my experience was that mighty little volley firing occurred in battle. When a regiment went into battle you might hear two volleys or perhaps three, but after that it became a go as you please, with each man loading and firing as fast as he could without any attention to rhythm. The volley firing was regarded as a test of good drilling, however. If a regiment managed to fire, say, four consecutive volleys, you might hear the men boasting about it at the close of the battle. Of course there may have been instances where the volley firing was kept up for a considerable space of time, but I never was in such a battle. After about the second volley it became a confused rattle and roar and crash, with the small guns pattering indiscriminately like rainfall on the roof."-Kansas City Jour-

Great Events From Little Causes. While staying at the court of Frederick II of Prussia Voltaire presented Mme. de Pompadour's compliments to the king, who scornfully replied, "Je ne la connais pas." Out of vengeance for so much insult, as she deemed it, madame induced the weakminded Louis XV to convert his country's long standing hostility against Austria into friendship. A Franco-Austrian army then took the field against Prussia, and as it was an easy matter for madame to enlist the practical sympathy of Elizabeth of Russia, who had been the subject of Frederick's indiscreet remarks also, half a million lives were lost. -Notes

Market Improvements Meet With the Approbation of Farmers.!

The recent changes in Covent Garden Market meet with the greatest approbation of the farming community. The new shed, where once stood the unsightly bazar, was opened this morning for the first time, and was completely filled by women, who offered for sale butter, eggs and small fruits. The seats and tables are placed along the sides, and prove a great | service. convenience. The change is one for which Ald. Hunt has contended two years, but met with considerable opposition, because some thought that the women would not forsake the west side of the market house, which has so long been used for the purpose. But very few were seen at the old stand this morning, and pedestrians could pass with ease from one end to the other of the platform, against which were backed wagon loads of small fruits. In the new shed nothing but words of praise of the new arrangements were heard. In the summer the vendors will be shielded from sun and rain, and in the winter from the snow and cold. A place of this kind is provided for the market women in Hamilton, where 2 cents per basket is charged. No charge will be made here in the summer, but it is likely a 2-cent rate will be charged in the winter, to pay for fuel to warm the place. The market clerk's office has been placed in

ANEMIA, OR BLOODLESSNESS.

Its Victims Are Pale in Color, Subject to Dizziness, Palpitation of the Heart and Other Distressing Symptoms.

[From the Echo. Plattsville, Ont.] Anemia, which literally means bloodessness, is prevalent to an alarming extent among young girls and young women of the present day, and is a fruitful source of "decline" and consumption. The symptoms of this trouble are many, but among the most noticeable are pallor of the face, lips and gums, shortness of breath on slight exertion, dizziness, severe headaches, weakness of the vital organs, palpitation of the heart, and dropsical swelling of the limbs. The more of these symptoms show the greater the necessity for prompt treatment. Among those who have suffered from anemia and found a cure is Miss Emily Webb, a young lady residing near Wolverton, Ont. Miss Webb says: "My illness first came on when I was about 16 years of age. My complexion was a pale waxy-color; I was troubled with general weakness, dizziness and palpitation of the heart. I was placed under medical treatment, but the medicine prescribed by the doctors did not appear to do me the slightest good. As time went by I was slowly but surely growing worse. I was unable to do any work about the house, and my limbs would tremble to such an extent at the slightest exertion that I could scarcely stand upon my feet. Then my stomach became so weak that I vomited almost everything I ate; I grew despondent, and feared I would not recover. While in this condition a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I followed the advice. After I had used two boxes I noticed an improvement and my heart was gladdened with the hope of renewed health. At the end of six boxes my appetite had fairly returned, and with it strength, color to my cheeks, and brightness to the eyes. I still continued taking Dr. Williams Pink Pills, until I had taken in all 12 boxes, and I can truthfully assert that I am healthier and stronger than I ever was before. I owe this to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I would urge all girls who suffer as I did to give them a fair trial. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done more to make strong, healthy, rosycheeked, bright-eyed girls than any other medicine ever discovered, and mothers should insist upon their daughters taking an occasional course of this medicine. Sold only in boxes, the wrapper around which bears the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Offered in any other form the pills are substitutes intended
