LONDON POLICE FIND 20 CASES ON NOON TRAIN

Box Labeled "Glass With Care" Proves To Be Scotch Whiskey. WEIGHED 800 POUNDS Names of Consignor or Consignee Not Discovered by Authorities.

Twenty cases of one of the best brands of Scotch whiskey was seized by the provincial and city police at the C. P. R. station today when the 11:15 o'clock train from Montreal arrived. This is the first seizure of liquor shipped by rail made by the local authorities in several months. Inspector Thomas Lucas, Provincial Officer R. Y. Stratton, Constable George Pilgrim and Constable Chester Langford made the seizure. The liquor which was shipped in four large packing cases marked "Glass, handle with care," is believed to have been destined for points west of London. Police have not obtained the names of the consignor or the consignee yet. One case which was opened before being seized contained scores of oblong-shaped bottles labelled "Scotch Whiskey." The entire shipment weighed 800 pounds. The consignment was turned over to the local dispensary to be forwarded to a Toronto government warehouse. This shipment is believed to be only the first of many which are expected to be sent through by rail this winter.

All summer not one case of liquor has been taken from trains, all the shipments being made by truck or motor car. However, bad roads have forced rum runners to discontinue their activities of Western Ontario highways, and to take the greater risk of sending their supplies through by rail.

PROMISE DEATH FOR DE VALERA

Rebel Leader Sought as He Announces Irish Republican Government.

Special Cable to The Advertiser. Dublin, Nov. 28.—Eamon de Valera today, from his hiding place, declared the Free State by naming a new Irish Republican government of his own.

The "rebel" cabinet, most of whose members are in jail, includes: President and minister of foreign affairs, de Valera; minister of finance, Stanislaus O'Connell; minister of justice, Liam Mellows; minister of labour, James Conboy; minister of agriculture, Sean O'Kelly; and minister of education, Robert Barton.

With the announcement of the cabinet, the Free State is expected to be proclaimed in some quarters, a rebel force of 10,000 men is expected to be raised, and the Free State troops are expected to be sent to the aid of de Valera.

The Irish Republican "president" may be executed if captured. This was indicated in an interview by President Cosgrave of the day. "Executions will not cease until the rebels have surrendered their arms," said Cosgrave's ultimatum. "There can be no exceptions made in inflicting the death penalty for carrying arms."

BRITISH COLUMBIA TURNS DOWN ANTI-DUMPING BILL

Fruit Growers Seek Re-Enactment of Clause Closing Loss of Market.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 28.—By a vote of 25 to 16 the legislature yesterday turned down the resolution introduced by Col. Fred Lister, Conservative, Kasia, calling upon the federal authorities at Ottawa to re-enact the anti-dumping clause in the interests of the fruit growers of British Columbia, who it was claimed, by Opposition members, have been losing the market. The amendment of Hon. F. B. Barrow, minister of agriculture, to the effect that the matter be referred to the agricultural committee, was approved.

BERLIN DEPLORES ATTACK ON OFFICERS OF ALLIES

Paris, Nov. 28.—The German government has made a formal apology to the inter-allied commission of military control in Berlin for the Stettin and Passau incidents in which allied officers were attacked by mobs and browbeaten by the German authorities during the course of the officers' performance of their duties in inspecting military barracks.

MRS. HALL BEFORE JURY. Somerville, N. S., Nov. 28.—Mrs. Francis Stevens Noel Hall, widow of Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, who was slain on Sept. 14, with his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, appeared today at the county courthouse, where a grand jury is considering the double murder.

CLAIM FARMER SUFFERING BY BUSINESS CHAOS

Financial Experts Repudiate Predictions of Boom in Near Future.

CANADA BASICALLY SOUND Declare Policy of "Watchful Waiting" Being Generally Followed.

The improved economic position of the Canadian western farmer is the conditions in Canada. It gives lustre to the opinion of local businessmen that a gradual recovery is being registered in financial circles throughout the Dominion. Harold Clarke, manager of the Standard Bank, in common with others in close touch with financial conditions, repudiated the predictions of certain industrial optimists that a general boom was in the making. A great business revival is unlikely for months at least, but all indications point to slow and steady repatriation of savings made on Canada through the unstable European situation. The farmer has enjoyed a remarkable yield in all varieties of grain. Transportation and labor costs, however, are so high that it is doubtful if any shall emerge from the season in pocket. Agriculturists who break even on the year's business are fortunate. Disproportionate living expenses have prevented the farmer from making money as he would have done during normal times.

Chaos Reflected. Present financial chaos in Europe has reflected itself in a general depression on this side of the Atlantic. There will be no material improvement for months. If next year's crop proves as bountiful as that of 1922 Canada shall be restored to an era of old-time prosperity. If not, it will be a reduction in the price of grain.

Representatives of banking institutions in London are inclined to believe that Canada will be the first to get back to normal conditions. Exchange rates are being stabilized. The fact that Canadian money funds were quoted at a small premium last week shows that the Dominion is basically sound. Exchange operators agree with Sir John Aldrich that sooner or later the Canadian dollar will return to a substantial discount in the United States. But the fact that Canadian money is the first in the world to recover its 1914 value is the most favorable sign that has been seen in some time.

The local manager of the largest banking house in Canada summarized the business situation in these words: "The fact that New York funds were quoted at a small premium last week shows that the Dominion is basically sound. Exchange operators agree with Sir John Aldrich that sooner or later the Canadian dollar will return to a substantial discount in the United States. But the fact that Canadian money is the first in the world to recover its 1914 value is the most favorable sign that has been seen in some time."

THINK VESSEL LOST IN STORM

Marine Men Hold Out Little Hope for Missing Schooner.

Special to The Advertiser. Kingston, Nov. 28.—Local marine men hold out little hope for the schooner Katie Eccles, reported missing yesterday on Lake Ontario, with coal. It is thought that she went down in the terrible gale, which raged all Sunday night. Inquiries have been made at various ports and no trace can be secured of the missing schooner. Captain Henry Fitch of Portmouth, Ontario, was in command of the vessel, and he had a crew of two men, but they are not known here. Mr. Norman Lloyd of Kingston, was engaged on the vessel as cook.

CONSTABLE AND BANDIT DIE IN COLUMBUS FIGHT

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 28.—Two men are dead, a Columbus policeman and an unidentified automobile bandit, as the result of the attempt of two Columbus policemen to arrest four men here this morning who are said to have been driving an automobile stolen in Cleveland last night.

CLAIMS RURAL CHURCH UNION IS NECESSARY

Secretary of Home Missions of Methodist Church Addresses Meeting.

WOULD SOLVE PROBLEMS Sees Big Financial Saving Through Co-operation With Presbyterians.

"The solution of the rural problem, the greatest issue facing the church today, is organic union, with the right man on the right job, and the doubling up of small congregations, one Methodist and one Presbyterian, all over the Dominion," declared Rev. Dr. C. E. Manning of Toronto, secretary of home missions of the Methodist Church in Canada, addressing the missionary banquet of the London Methodist district meeting held in Wesley Hall Tuesday morning. Dr. Manning's reference to the rural problem came as a result of his explanation of the serious financial situation in which the missionary department of the church finds itself today, and he pointed out that the support given small rural congregations had always created one of the greatest problems of the home mission department.

"In Ontario alone, $100,000 has already been saved in salaries and other expenses through this movement. Would you or would you not consider that a step toward the solution of the rural problem?"

"The reduction in number of preachers does not necessarily mean a reduction in preaching, but rather the joining together into one substantial congregation, two small congregations, either of which is unable to support a minister."

Dr. Manning's address was an urgent plea to the hundred representatives of the Methodist Church gathered to stand behind the missionary department in their financial campaign. "We are in a bad way financially. Last year we went behind $226,000, and a deficit for several years past has eaten away practically all of our surplus fund. Our reserve fund is far from adequate, and a reserve fund is imperative to the carrying on of a business involving a million and a quarter dollars annually."

HARDING WILL DISCUSS PROHIBITION WITH CABINET

Secretary Mellon Admits Inability to Enforce Existing "Dry" Laws in U. S.

Special to The Advertiser. Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Prohibition was expected to be discussed by President Harding and his cabinet at their meeting today. Secretary Mellon, who has threatened an investigation of alleged drinking by Annapolis midshipmen at the Army-Navy game last Saturday, will probably go over the situation with the other cabinet officials. Government officials claim the present situation cannot continue. Secretary Mellon believes it would take an army to enforce the present statute strictly. In fact, he is inclined to believe that strict enforcement is impossible, and he has no plan to tighten up on the current violations.

WOULD BAR AIRPLANES TO CURB RUM-RUNNING

New York, Nov. 28.—Prohibition enforcement officers here announced yesterday that plans were under way to ask the United States congress to pass laws restricting airplane flights from Canada. This, they declared, had become necessary, because there is an extensive system of rum-running by airplane in operation between Montreal and points in the vicinity of New York. Some of these planes are being used by wealthy men, who have adopted this means of replenishing their dwindling stores of alcoholic beverages.

Predict Col. I. Leonard As New President of Canadian Club

A banquet will be held at the customary preliminary to the customary preliminary to the annual election of officers for the Canadian Club. It is said that the Canadian Club president for the ensuing year will be Col. Ibbotson Leonard, an unidentified automobile bandit, as the result of the attempt of two Columbus policemen to arrest four men here this morning who are said to have been driving an automobile stolen in Cleveland last night.

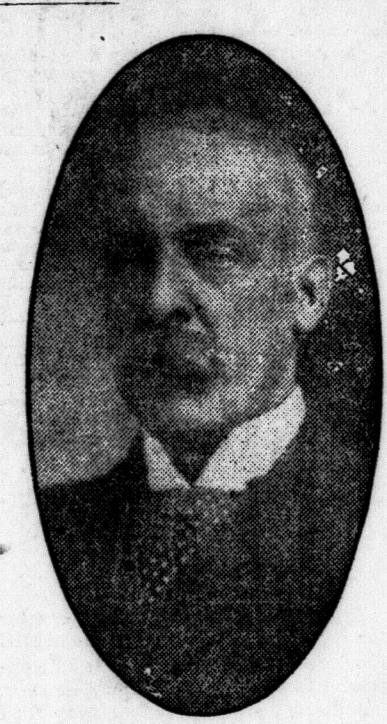

Ryerson School Tenders Farewell to Alex. McQueen, Loved ex-Principal

The staff of Ryerson street school will tonight make a presentation of a "log," tastefully bound, to Alex. McQueen, former principal, who makes his official farewell to the city this evening.

Mr. McQueen, who has conducted the affairs of Ryerson for many years, kept his personal "log," recording the happenings of his school ever since he first filled the position of principal. It is this "log" which shall be presented tonight by appreciative members of the staff that worked under him.

Through his connections with many of the fraternal and church organizations in London, Mr. McQueen has won a host of friends, and he will be sorely missed by all those who were fortunate enough to make his acquaintance during his sojourn in the Forest City.

The popular principal was an especial favorite with the children of Ryerson School and his pupils were ever ready and willing to co-operate with their principal in any school undertaking. The parents of the children, too, have always spoken highly of his ability as a teacher and his worth to the community as a man and his well-wishes will go with him, as well as those of his friends and the members of the educational profession in the city, to his new home.

ALEX. McQUEEN.

Mr. McQueen leaves immediately to reside with his daughter in Kitchener.

Mystery Lurks In Darkened Dens In City's Yellow Town

Reports Weave Fantastic Tale of Secret Passages, Wherein Strange Characters Stalk To Commit Dirty Work—Locate Idol of Society.

No longer must mystery-loving Londoners travel to the underworlds of New York and San Francisco to satisfy their appetite for the bizarre. Romance, twinkling in the green lights of Clarence street, may be observed almost at dark evening. The "Heavenly Chinese," Handsome Hank, the slouch-capped crook and Brazen Belle, the Bowery vamp, are no longer monopolies of Mot street, New York. They have come to Little London to stay. Yes, verily—mystery stalks on our own Clarence Boulevard.

Skeptics may prove it for themselves any time after midnight. Glimpses of the garb, the flapping kimono and hat in ominous skull caps, move stealthily from "den" to "den" every night when the rest of the world snore on. Dirty work is often done in the darkened dens of the underworld. It has not been discovered just what nature of dirty work prevails, but the ways of the yellow man are subtle and subtle. The fact that the local police have not made an arrest in these hives of iniquity for years. It is said that subterranean passages, a veritable network of underground tunnels, creep beneath the thoroughfares of our city, all originating from the luxurious hovels on Clarence street. These passages usually terminate under the pillars of our most puritanical citizenry. Sometimes they are constructed in the form of obscure manholes, where the infidel Oriental pops his head up to look at the white folk that are looking and viciously jabs him in the leg with a hypodermic needle. This is claimed to be the reason for so many of our traffic officers being asleep at the switch. They are doped.

LIBERAL RANKS PATCH QUARREL

Lloyd George Bows to Asquith to Bring Forces Together.

By HENRY SOMERVILLE. Special Cable to The Advertiser. London, Nov. 28.—Asquithian and Georgian Liberals got together at a peace-making meeting yesterday, but Asquith, Lloyd George and other leaders tactfully stayed away so back benches could more freely speak their minds.

The convenor of the meeting was Maxwell Thomson, the new member for Tavistock, who started the meeting by announcing that Lloyd George was willing to serve under Asquith. There was a proposal to appoint a Unity Committee with powers to negotiate terms for a reunion but the general sense of the meeting favored leaving the two groups to get accustomed to working together in the chamber on behalf of Liberal principles before a formal pact is imposed at another joint meeting to be held next Tuesday.

FIND DEAD MAN IN CAR OF COTTON

Local Grand Trunk officials received word Tuesday morning from Port Huron that while employees in that city were investigating a fire in a car of cotton shipped from the south the body of an unknown colored man was found.

Road officials believe that the man boarded the car in one of the southern states and was suffocated, when, through an undetermined cause, the cotton caught fire while the train was en route to Port Huron. The car of cotton was destined to pass through London in a day or two.

Invention Makes Possible Crossing of Sahara by Airplane

Paris, Nov. 28.—By means of a buried cable it is now possible for aircraft to cross the Sahara desert safely, the Academy of Sciences was told today by Admiral Fournier. An electric current flowing through the cable influences delicate apparatus on the plane or airship, so that the pilot is able to tell his exact position at a glance. The invention has been successfully tested by army and navy officials, Admiral Fournier said. It is the work of Engineer Loth.

OPINION TURNS TO APPROVAL OF STREET CAR BUY

Opponents Begin to Line Up Solidly in Favor of the Scheme.

HOLMES TAKES STAND Mayor Wilson Claims City Is Absolutely Protected in Deal.

The proposed purchase of the London Street Railway Company, upon which the citizens must express an opinion Dec. 4 next, finds scores of new supporters daily.

At each public mass meeting opponents of the undertaking are being won to the cause, and the most notable addition to the ranks is Ald. L. S. Holmes, Ward 4, who at Monday's meeting in the Boyle Memorial School lined up solidly for the project.

Since the contemplated purchase was first broached in the city council, Ald. Holmes has viewed with certain disfavor any suggestion that the citizens move to secure the local transportation lines. He was more inclined to favor the inauguration in London of an up-to-date motor bus service.

At Monday's gathering he explained, however, that from information he has obtained from New York and other communities, respecting the motor bus systems, he had become convinced that the only thing for Londoners to do to solve their transportation problems would be to purchase the road under the terms of the franchise now existing.

McKay Favors Buy. The purchase also finds many supporters who are prominent in labor circles. Speaking at the Port Huron school meeting at the same evening, Frank McKay, president of No. 1 Branch of the London Labor Party, urged his hearers to vote to this effect.

Aside from the established fact that municipal ownership is a plank of the Canadian Labor Party, McKay form, he felt personally that the only alternative for the citizens would be the purchase. His only real objection was he explained the manner in which the question had been presented to the people. He thought that the proposition should have been put to the voters by the city. However, he felt that the citizens would be acting wisely if they voted now to take over the lines.

MARY MACSWINEY FREED FROM CELL

Given Liberty on 23rd Day of Hunger Strike—Dublin Surprised.

Dublin, Nov. 28.—Miss Mary MacSwiney, who was released from Mountjoy prison yesterday, the 23rd day of her hunger strike, met her sister Annie in a private hospital in this city last evening. Annie, weakened by several days of fasting outside the prison gates, collapsed when she saw her sister, but quickly recovered and was taken to another hospital on a stretcher.

The order for Mary MacSwiney's release was issued by the provisional government to the military authorities, who acted promptly, and she was removed in a Red Cross ambulance. The release came as a surprise to the city. It was held that her case would be treated as an exceptional one, and its precedent limited to women whose brothers had perished through hunger strikes.

The popular surprise over the release of Mary MacSwiney was largely because of the fact that she was a member of the Provisional Government and was a member of the Provisional Government and was a member of the Provisional Government.

BRITAIN MAY BREAK OFF RELATIONS WITH GREECE

Threatens Move in Retaliation for Execution of Former Officers of Greek Army, Defeated by Turks—Athens Resents Stand of British.

London, Nov. 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Greek former ministers condemned to death by the military court in Athens have been executed, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens this afternoon.

It was stated in official circles this afternoon that the immediate withdrawal of the British minister at Athens will result from the executions.

The precedent of such action by the British, it was suggested, would probably be the break in diplomatic relations with Serbia in 1903 as a result of the murder of the Serbian majesties by revolutionaries.

It was pointed out, however, that if the sentences given the former Greek ministers have not yet been carried out, and that there was still hope that the Greeks would not take such extreme action.

Early in the trial the British government made representations against possible imposition of the death sentence. Dispatches to London said that the British action had been generally resented in Athens and that the fall of the Zaimis ministry a few days ago could be traced directly to the British stand.

PASS DEATH SENTENCE. Special Cable to The Advertiser. Athens, Nov. 28.—Six members of the former Greek cabinet, held responsible for Greece's defeat by the Turks, have been sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Among those condemned to die is former Premier Gounaris, architect of the Venizelos-Panagoulis restoration in 1920. Upon the overthrow of Venizelos, he succeeded to the premiership under Constantine.

Others to be executed are former Minister of War Theodoris, former Minister of Finance, and former Minister of Finance Protopapadakis and M. Adianestis.

ASKS FOR HELP ON IMMIGRATION

Hon. Charles Stewart Appeals To Canada's Financial Interests.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—Canada's financial interests were appealed to, to assume a share of the burden of carrying out the Federal Government's new immigration policy by Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of interior and acting minister of immigration, speaking at the Canadian Club this afternoon.

Two outstanding features were traced by the minister in the new program. First, the western United States will be combed and made the target of an intensive advertising campaign, and propaganda campaign to attract tenant farmers, or renters who are paying exorbitant rentals for farms. Most of these farms were bought at war-boom prices and are now commanding rents from seven to ten times greater than are paid in Western Canada.

Second, a similar intensive publicity campaign will be conducted throughout Great Britain, and certain of the northern states of Europe, to attract the most desirable type of settlers. While an especial effort will be made to secure immigrants who will bring sufficient capital with them to establish themselves on the land, a plan similar to that decided upon by the United States will also be followed, i. e., tenant farmers will be sought.

To further aid in a better development of land already available for cultivation, an appeal will be made to the larger western landowners to release a portion of their holdings to tenants on a crop payment, or other co-operative basis.

In his appeal to the financial interests to aid in the solution of the scheme, Hon. Mr. Stewart emphasized the fact that he was not appealing for easy credits, simple a more sympathetic co-operation by financiers, which while it might take the form of easier credits, would not suggest the disastrous credit liberalism of the war-boom.

Brantford Hotelman Fined $500 For Having Liquor in Unauthorized Place

Special to The Advertiser.

Brantford, Nov. 27.—A fine of $500 with the option of three months in jail was imposed this morning in the police court on Alec Patterson, proprietor of the St. Julien Hotel, Market street.

The hotelman was charged with having liquor in an unauthorized place, the case having come up before Magistrate John R. Blake some days ago, when evidence was taken and judgment was withheld.

Police found a half-dozen bottles of beer in Patterson's establishment. The liquor was proved to be over strength, and the conviction ensued.

"This man has been selling liquor for months," declared Police Chief Donnelly.

Herbert Taylor, arrested at the Grand Opera House on a charge of having a bottle of liquor on his person, was remanded for a week.

Fred Read and Albert Read were severely lectured and permitted out on suspended sentence when they appeared on vagrancy charges. They were given until Wednesday to get work or make themselves scarce.

Fred Read admitted that he was out on parole from the Guelph prison farm. He was supposed to be working on a farm, but Detective Stanley had found him loitering around local pool-rooms. The pair proved so objectionable that neither their father or pool-room proprietors wanted them.

Fred Read was given until Wednesday to get farm work. Failing this he will go back to Guelph reformatory.

Albert Read, who has appeared in police court seven times in the last three years, said that he was incapacitated, because of wounds received in the war, from doing violent work. He was given until Wednesday to prove he had really turned over a new leaf and intended behaving himself.

PREMIER SEES 'DRIER' ONTARIO

Drury States Legalized Sale of Liquor Will Never Return.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—Speaking before a mass meeting held in Massey Hall tonight by the World League Against Alcoholism, Premier Drury of Ontario gave it as his carefully considered conviction that prohibition had come to Ontario to stay, that there was no danger of reversion to the legalized sale of liquor in any way, shape or form, that neither government control nor the selling of beer and wine would ever receive the sanction of the Ontario electorate, and that before many years had passed prohibition enforcement officers in the United States would not be harassed by the presence of a partially "wet" Canada on their northern boundary.

Backing up his assertion with a barrage of statistics relating to the history of the prohibition movement in this province and the results of its enforcement, the premier declared that prohibition in Ontario had been a success and would continue to be a success. It had come only after long and bitter struggle, and he was confident that the world league nor anyone else need have any fear that the people of the province would nullify its success by a hasty and unconsidered change in the existing prohibitory laws.

Once, only, did the premier make direct reference to the political side of the issue and that was to pay tribute to former Premier Sir William Hearst, who, he said, had the courage to stand up to the liquor lobby when he enacted the Ontario temperance act.

In a brief reference to the rum-running trial and struggle over the co-operation of the United States to put an end to the evil. Half in jest he told the United States delegates to the convention that if they wanted to help the government of this province they should show a little more energy in keeping the "stuff" out of that those on this side of the line would not have to expend so much energy in keeping it in.

Mrs. Deborah Livingston, Boston, superintendent of the department of Christian citizenship of the World's W. C. T. U., declared that after traveling the world over she found that a law was a devastating, destroying agency, mentally, spiritually and socially, in every race under the sun.

Rev. Arthur Egan, general secretary of the Anti-Saloon League of America, said the policy of prohibition did not come about by accident or legersim, but was the result of the public conscience that had been a century in the making. It was born in the hearts of men and women who placed a higher value on human welfare than on personal comfort.

Judge Declares Man Still Head of Household

Detroit, Nov. 27.—Despite woman's "emancipation" she still must live where her husband wishes, she would retain a legal claim to support, Judge Henry A. Mandell ruled today.

Mandell granted freedom to William Gilhooley, 2121 Sixth avenue, who had been arrested on a fugitive warrant sworn out by his wife in Scranton, Pa., who charged abandonment.

Gilhooley and his attorney, Carl M. Weidman, proved to Judge Mandell's satisfaction that Gilhooley had lived here six years and that his wife left him, taking their two small children. Gilhooley said that he had gone to Scranton last Christmas and tried to induce his wife to return to Detroit.

"A man is still head of the household," declared Judge Mandell, "and may choose his residence. Gilhooley chose Detroit, and since he hasn't been from Detroit he is not a fugitive. He may be discharged from custody."

PLANS TO EXTEND INQUIRY'S SCOPE

Quebec Legislature To Amend Order-in-Council Concerning Garneau Probe.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—(By Canadian Press).—The order-in-council appointing the royal commission which was instructed to investigate the conduct of the attorney-general's department in connection with the murder of Blanche Garneau, a young Quebec girl, who was found to be about two years ago, will be amended. The commissioners will also make all possible inquiries and hear all available witnesses who may be able to supply information which might lead to the discovery of the real guilty parties.

Alme Geoffrey, K.C., one of the lawyers for the attorney-general's department, announced this afternoon that the commission resumed operations and that the government would amend the order-in-council as to make it possible for the commission to attempt to discover the murderers.

"This will mean not only extending the scope of the investigation, but will also require the production of more witnesses, and, as a consequence, the commission will be forced to sit for several weeks."

At today's sessions there was little in the way of surprise or sensation. The sort of news that the commission were again rehearsed by a number of witnesses. How the various clues were followed up, and the police were explained, and only incidents of minor nature which occurred immediately after the murder and during the trial of the accused and Palmer were brought to light in the course of the evidence.

The Street Car Vote.

Some of the critics of public ownership are pointing out that London is going to blind in buying the London Street Railway at a figure of 2,600,000 with the promise of four-cent fares.

It is advisable that any figures set in regard to the purchase price in 1925 shall have a reasonable amount of elasticity attached to them. The price mentioned is an estimate, and it has been arrived at after careful figuring. It includes the purchase price and the amount necessary to put the road in shape with a much greater carrying capacity than at present.

Residents of London find it easy enough to take a look at the rolling stock of the London Street Railway and the general equipment and make the deduction that they are not getting their money's worth for the price they will be asked to pay.

That is really not the big question. If London does not buy the road the company retains possession.

If there is a better solution than the city taking over the road it has not been advanced.

It is estimated in the report of the auditors that in 1925 London will have 64,000 population. To handle this number of people it is proposed to increase the carrying capacity of the road 35 per cent and make it a monopoly. Fares will be five cents and six tickets for a quarter.

This makes it clear that competition from independent bus lines will not be permitted. To permit it would be the equivalent of a firm inviting competition where it could have a monopoly. Such procedure would be contrary to the spirit of the private or public ownership.

Neither is it necessary that there should be such a hard and fast agreement put to the people in purchasing the road as the vote on an extension with the present or some other company. Experience has shown that it is necessary when making an arrangement with a company to put things down in black and white in such a way that the municipality at once refer to the line and cause of any part of the agreement that is not being carried out.

If the people buy the road for the people it is not necessary to do this as such a hide-bound form, because the idea will be to give service first without the thought of paying dividends. The advertiser believes there is enough public spirit in London to look at the question of service in a broad way, so that no advantage of the city shall have an element in it if it is found that the system is not flexible enough to apply the reasonable demands of various parts, then the matter of supplementing the cars by other means could be considered, but in such an event the city would have control of the whole transaction with the single idea of providing transportation for all sections.

The issue in London can hardly be classed as a fight between private and public ownership. The outstanding fact is that the very best solution of an unsatisfactory situation for the people of London to take over the system and then proceed to make it what it should be, and if possible the taking over would be accomplished at once.

Paul Peel's Picture.

Paul Peel, London boy, painter of one of the world's greatest pictures, "After the Bath," sold this masterpiece to the National Art Gallery of Budapest for a large figure. Today, through the ravages of post-war bankruptcy, this picture is on its way back to London, Ontario, the town of this great artist, who passed away shortly after crossing the threshold of world-wide fame.

The whole story reads like a romance picked from some other age. Comes Colerick of this city, an artist and a lover of pictures, has attached the picture, and realizing the possibilities of depreciated currency in Austria found it possible, with the assistance of friends here, to see the realization of an ambition that has long cherished of having that Paul Peel picture back in Paul Peel's own.

It is a wonderful painting, the original being Paul Peel's two children, as they stood after their bath in the ruddy glow of an open fire. Jacques, the great French master, told of them, "they breathe—they glow—they warm themselves. They are exactly as nature has made them."

It is not easy for us to imagine that it means to the artistic soul of the Austrian people to get it necessary to strip the walls of its national museums in order to further spin out of fast diminishing credit. These people paid fabulous prices for their pictures; they loved them because they were the embodiment of the artist in his finest moment of expression. They were there to inspire, lead, and to fire the artistic soul of the nation. Canada, as well as London, can welcome home the picture of Paul Peel. He went forth to become a great artist, and the world of art has bowed its recognition to his worth.

Ontario's Two Winter Fairs.

The Royal Winter Fair at Toronto is an established fact. The inception of the undertaking was not the most encouraging, when last year it was found, after going on with the arrangements to quite an extent, that it was impossible to proceed with the exhibition.

This year everything was in readiness. The buildings are commodious, and there is excellent accommodation for the spectators.

There was a feeling, and it may have had some reason for existence, that the Toronto Winter Fair was being put on to take the place of the established Winter Fair at Guelph. Naturally the promoters of the Guelph Fair resented what they had come to consider their special and particular premises, because they had established a Winter Fair, after it had failed in many of the other centres of the province.

This feeling is departing, if it has not altogether left already. Stock breeders and poultrymen agree now that instead of having one fair at which to exhibit, they have two of outstanding merit, and, of course, welcome the chance to exhibit at both and participate in the prize money, accordingly.

Both fairs have an opportunity to emphasize the importance of basic industries in Ontario. They both have the chance to draw to the attention of breeders everywhere the outstanding and peculiar characteristics of the herds of Ontario, many of which will bear the closest scrutiny.

The Jerseys, Holsteins, Ayrshires, Shorthorns and others—all of them excellent when bred true to type—have their advocates, and we will probably never see a time when a herdsman who is in love with his particular choice will admit there is anything superior.

These exhibitions, where performance records for the year, and for a given period at the exhibition, are all taken into consideration, serve to carry on educational work in such a pointed and demonstrative way that it is bound to have an educational value that can hardly be secured otherwise.

Time was when a pall of milk was a pall of milk and little else, but that period has gone, and dairymen have realized it. The man with the testing apparatus has come into existence and a pall of milk is measured and valued and weighed by its content in butter fat and other necessary ingredients. Breeders who have paid heed to this tendency have found it to their financial advantage. In fact, to ignore it means that they are taken out of the class of worth-while herdsman.

Reports from Guelph indicate that the Winter Fair there, despite the handicaps of inadequate housing and arena capacity, will be greater than ever. Ontario can well stand two winter fairs of the type staged in Toronto and that which has always been maintained at Guelph.

Cutting Off the Frills.

Some of our grand old customs are fast passing away.

For instance, here we have notices posted up in the meat markets now warning the public not to handle the meat under threat of a $20 fine.

Not so very long ago buyers used to have a chance to handle all the cuts of meat spread out on the counter. It provided an excellent opportunity to paw them about and more or less get acquainted with the assortment. A person could buy with so much more certainty after such a feeling around process.

But that's all done away with now, and the buyer must trust to luck and the word of the butcher.

Then, too, how easy it used to be to sample the crocks and prints of butter with the thumb-nail. By that direct method one knew exactly what sort of butter was being purchased. Some of the more fussy ones used to take a dime instead of the thumb-nail, but the latter was healthier than the dime, and then also there wasn't the danger of swallowing the coin.

It would likewise be interesting to know how many pounds and tons of cheese have been silvered off in slices to be tasted by prospective purchasers.

But now none of these things be. We buy our meat by faith, and the butter is wrapped, with the exception of the genial soul on the market who has a spoon tucked away among the odd implements of merchandising. And as for cheese, we can stand nearby. If it is strong enough to wink at us we know all is well, but if it is green as grass we simply take the chance. There is no chance at all to have a light lunch on the strength of buying half a pound of cheese.

Thus do our fine old customs pass away. And they've taken away the broken biscuit box from the grocery counter. Sad fact, but true, shopping is not the attractive occupation it used to be.

The Farmer As a Buyer.

Prices for the things the farmer has to sell, and out of which comes all the buying support he can give to wage-paying industries, are too low for the burden presented to him in the prices of the things he has to buy.

That is the way the Independent of New York sizes up the relation between transportation company charges and the revenue of the farmer in the western states. Conditions are much the same on both sides of the line, and Canadian farmers have faced the same problem. Western grain growers received some measure of relief, but the inequality still exists in this country.

When the war peak prices subsided farm produce values had about the same relation to other commodities as in 1913, but in September of this year figures showed farm produce prices 13 per cent below the relative value of other commodities, many of which the farmer had to purchase for his own needs.

The purchasing power of the farmer was, therefore, one-eighth less than it was before the war.

Wages earned by men employed in transportation companies in United States, and also in Canada, are fixed for certain periods. In that way they become a non-flexible quantity. The wages, or prices, the farmer receives are set by world conditions and foreign markets, and he has no control over them—he can simply abide by the results.

The restoration of the purchasing power of the farmer is a good phrase. Financiers use it glibly, and it is a fine-sounding expression, making quite a mouthful for the man who wants to have a veneer of economics. It is probably the outstanding feature of business right now—that is how big it is.

Until the farmer has enough money in his pocket to start buying on a liberal scale we are not going to step very lively toward our much-wanted complete financial recovery.

Note and Comment.

THE LONG AND SHORT.

Montreal Gazette—We have referred to short wills. The longest will on record is said to be that of Thomas Cubitt who, from a working carpenter rose to be the greatest building contractor of Victorian days. Cubitt's will, which was proved in 1886, contained 34,760 words, and covered 30 skins of parchment. The shortest will preserved at Somerset House is written on an envelope and runs: "All for mother. C. T." This was drawn up by an English gentleman named Thom, and was duly proved after his death.

Try Thinking Hard.

By H. Addington Bruce.
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

You tell me you wish you could get on in the business world a little faster than you have been doing. You lament that the high hopes and bright dreams with which you began business life seem as far from realization as ever.

Perhaps you are overimpatient. A good many young people in business are. More likely, though, the trouble is that you are not taking your work seriously enough, are not devoting to it anything like the thought you ought to give it.

Certainly I should suspect this, in view of your further statement that other men who started in the same line of business about the time you did have made more headway. This of itself would suggest that they have done better than you.

When at work, do you really concentrate on your work? Do you ever think about anything but your work—when away from it?

Your response that you have always understood that one should relax and completely forget one's work in hours of leisure is scarcely satisfactory. A certain amount of relaxation is necessary, that is true. But the really ambitious, the sincerely desirous of progressing, by no means regard leisure as wholly a time for relaxing and forgetting.

Nor do they find that to spend some of their leisure in thinking hard about their work is hurtful to them. They experience, on the contrary, goes to show that, provided one does not wholly deny one's self recreation, the use of leisure as a thinking period is helpful in every way.

Recall, if you please, that sage observation uttered long ago by the greatest of American psychologists, William James:

"Our organism has stored up reserves of energy that are ordinarily not called upon, but which are called upon; deeper and deeper strata of combustible material ready for use by any one who probes so deep. . . . Most of us continue using unnecessarily near the surface."

And apply for yourself the advice offered by another psychologist: "Determine accurately by experiment the proper relation between periods of work and periods of rest in your own case, then increase your efficiency by maintaining the relation."

That is to say, besides making it a point to concentrate on your work during your working day, form the habit of thinking business problems during part of your leisure. Gradually increase this leisure-thought until you know that you are overdoing it.

Then let down a bit in order to determine your thinking-relaxing normality. Before long, you will find that you are working far more purposefully and with more satisfaction than you ever before.

More than this, it is quite possible that, as things now stand with you, your devotion to the principle of work while you are engaged in it, at all events that is what happens to a good many workers, and perhaps it is the one thing necessary to shift failures to the choice company of eminent winners of success.

The Evening Story

THANKSGIVING FOR THREE.
(Copyright, 1922, by W. Werner.)

The last rays of the setting sun shone slantingly over the red-roofed barn as the light farm wagon swung through the wide gate into the barnyard.

The boy sitting stiffly beside the driver on the high spring seat twisted his neck in the endeavor to get a better view of the weather-beaten farmhouse half hidden by a clump of tall evergreen trees on the other side of the lane.

"Here we are," said Farmer Sanford, springing lightly from his perch. "You just wait around a few minutes till I give old Dexter his oats; then we'll go in and see what mother has for supper. The tone was meant to be cheery and reassuring, but in his heart Peter Sanford felt anything but sure of a real welcome for the boy he had brought home; and the boy, shivering in his light weight jacket, felt rather than heard the note of uncertainty in the voice.

"I guess it'll be all right, though," he tried to assure himself as he waited in the open barn door. "I didn't really want to stay, anyway. It's only a trial. The matron said when we started she'd expect me back." He plunged his hands into the pockets of his trousers and attempted to whistle as evidence of indifference, but it fell flat. "I do like Mr. Sanford, though, and things look homey around here. I wish—"

Further reflections were cut short by the farmer's voice. "We'll go in now, sonny, and don't you be scared or uneasy about anything. You'll have a good time out here for a few days anyway, and that's all we'll try to figure on just now." To himself he added: "I can depend on Martha for the much, anyway. She's got the best heart in the world, only she's sort of mistaken—just now."

A tall, sad-faced woman turned from the cook stove over which she was bending as the two entered the kitchen.

"I've brought a visitor, Martha," the farmer said, laying a hand on her shoulder, with a look in his eyes that was almost beseeching. "This is Tommy Harding. I thought he needed a little chinking up out here."

The woman, after one moment of hesitation, in which she cast an accusing look at her husband, rose to the occasion. She turned to the shivering boy, and said in a voice that in spite of her evident effort at friendliness held a chill: "How do you do, Tommy? I was not expecting you tonight, but you are welcome. Did you get cold coming out in this morning? You must be hungry. Take this chair by the stove. Supper'll be ready pretty soon."

There was no hint in the even voice of the agitation beneath—agitation aroused by the mere thought of a boy in the home—a boy, but not Robbie, in the vacant chair at the table and in the empty bed upstairs. After all her objections Peter had turned out his own way. He had brought a boy from the orphan's home in a neighboring city to take the place of Robbie, who for eight months had been sleeping in the country churchyard a mile down the road. As if anybody could ever fill Robbie's place! She was not deceived by the allusion to a "visit." She knew that Peter's real hope was to take the boy for his own. They had talked it over many times. Peter seemed to think she needed someone in Robbie's place to help her to forget Robbie, that little he knew her, after all. But it could not be! The boy should have his visit, but that was all.

According to all traditions regarding the appetite of a growing boy, Tommy should have eaten heartily of the tempting food piled up on the plate before him, but Tommy was not hungry. He made a polite attempt to conceal his lack of appetite, and courteously answered the kind questions put to him from time to time. But the atmosphere surrounding him was more potent than any boyish hunger. His freckled face was quite pale, and it was only by the strongest effort that he kept his lips steady. He was telling himself over and over again that it could never happen. This home was not for him, in spite of the farmer's kindness.

After the meal Tommy sat quietly by the stove while Mrs. Sanford did the supper work and Peter finished doing the chores at the barn. Tommy wanted to help both at the barn and house, but he didn't know how to go about offering. Martha talked to him at intervals, but nothing seemed to lessen the tension that bound him. He was glad when the farmer brought in the old brown suitcase that had been left in the wagon, and he was taken to the little room upstairs where he was to learn later.

As the days slipped by Tommy found many ways in which to make himself useful to both the farmer and his wife. At first Martha rebelled; she did not want to allow or accept any service that might make the boy feel at home, "only to be disappointed at the last," she told herself, "for I'm sure he thinks he's going to stay." But there was no resisting the willing courtesy of the homeless boy.

On Monday before Thanksgiving, Martha spoke plainly to Tommy: "He must be taken back," she said firmly. "He's had a long enough visit."

"I thought maybe the little chap could stay over Thanksgiving," Peter ventured. "I reckon a real home Thanksgiving would be a treat to him. I'm going to miss him, Martha; he's sure a good boy to work, and smart too."

"Yes, he is," Martha consented. "But we can't keep him, Peter, and more than all, I don't want him here Thanksgiving Day. I couldn't stand it. Last year Robbie—"

"Yes, yes, I know," Peter interrupted hastily. "I've got to go to town on business on Wednesday, and I'll take him then. Don't you fret, Martha. And to himself Peter was saying, "I ought to have known she couldn't do it. And it's too much to expect of her to think anything about keeping Thanksgiving when she feels the way she does. But my, how I wish she could!"

It was not until Tuesday evening that Martha could bring herself to say anything to Tommy concerning his departure the following morning. Somehow the motherless boy had managed to get very close to her heart. She dreaded his disappointment.

But Tommy surprised her. He showed no disappointment, but only a cheery acceptance of his fate. He had not allowed himself to expect to stay. "I knew from the first that you couldn't stand it to have me here always—specially after Mr. Sanford told me about Robbie," he said, as for the first time they talked frankly.

"Why, Tommy, I thought you expected to stay," Mrs. Sanford said, wondering, "and that was why you tried so hard to please us?"

"Oh, no, ma'am, that wasn't the reason. I didn't have to try and please you. It was easy, because I liked you from the first, but I knew I couldn't stay. And I'm so sorry for that. I wish there was something I could do to help you, but there isn't."

Long after Tommy was asleep that night his words came back to Martha. "I wish there was something I could do to help you," he had said. Her heart ached in a new way, and Robbie seemed very near. Was she so sure, after all, that there was nothing Tommy could do to help?

It was not until the gray dawn crept in at the window that she awoke. She was lying on her side, her head resting on her hand, and she was thinking of the meal in her usual quiet way. After the meal was over, she stopped in the little room that had been Robbie's. Putting his few belongings in the old brown suitcase, "Unpack it, Tommy," she said, "for you're going to stay here. Not in Robbie's place, but in your own place—the place you have made for yourself in our hearts and home. And we're going to have a real Thanksgiving—we three."

"Yes, Peter, we're going to keep Thanksgiving in the old way, if that's what you mean. And, Peter," she said, "I guess you better not take Tommy to town with you tomorrow. There's a good bit to do."

Peter lingered only a minute, then: "God bless you, Martha," he said. And with a quick brush of his hand across his eyes, he started for the barn.

Upstairs in the little room that had been Robbie's Martha knelt with her arms around the boy, who was putting his few belongings in the old brown suitcase. "Unpack it, Tommy," she said, "for you're going to stay here. Not in Robbie's place, but in your own place—the place you have made for yourself in our hearts and home. CLAWS TO STR
PEOPLE OF U. S.*Clemenceau Rolls Pill More
Bitter Still For Middle
West.*CHICAGO GIVES WELCOME*Friends of Frenchman Expect
New Angle in Speech
Today.*BY FRANK GETTY.*Special to The Advertiser.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—George Clemenceau today had a new and still more bitter pill for America to swallow.

Those "close to the jungle" forecast that the Tiger's rumble will rise to a roar in his third formal American address at the auditorium at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Up as the dawn's icy blasts swept in from Lake Michigan and most of the city slept, Clemenceau was at work, polishing off the potpourri he will invite America to take for its own good, and for "the peace of the world." In his black skull cap and dressing gown, he was not unlike a chemist, working with starchy fountain pen instead of pestle and mortar.

Two reasons are assigned to the Tiger's determination to make today's speech stronger than any he yet has delivered:

It may be, his friends say, that he feels his message, that message from his heart, which he came personally, at the age of 81, to deliver, is not "getting across." Or it may be the reaction of a fighter to the suggestion of his friends, voiced on all sides, that he "ease up," and sugar coat his pills. Whatever the reason, Clemenceau is a statesman, as he was a physician, of the school "treat 'em rough," he once said laughingly, and now he is going to put his training into practice.

Chicago Welcomes.

There has been a lighter side to the Tiger's reception in the ample, homely, hospitable home of the "Windy City." The city that was so tiny when last Clemenceau saw it, more than half a century ago, paid homage to its distinguished guest today. Chicago, in the Tiger's own words, has grown beyond all recognition since those days in the 60's when young Clemenceau stood on its threshold; but then, so has the Tiger.

Leading citizens, in tribute, recalled the empire he has shaken, and the new maps of Europe he has drawn with his own hand since the school teacher days of the last century.

At the thought of the old man, the Tiger's reception in the ample, homely, hospitable home of the "Windy City," where Clemenceau rested and prepared his speech, the Tiger thought gratified him, he felt something new, something perhaps startling, will be in the message delivered at the auditorium, close friends and counselors of the veteran statesman say.

Remains Adamant.

The Tiger has remained adamant on the point that his message must ring clear; he has his claws unsheathed for battle; soft pads such as a great friendly, jovial Tiger might deliver, he has no use for. He is adamant, despite sincere counselling of friends.

When a tiger of the Indian jungles feels death coming, he does not fight the odds. Something of this is in the gallant, old Frenchman's attitude, he admits.

Clemenceau's speech today will be in a measure tuned to the ear of the middle west, whose voice, Chicago roared him welcome upon his arrival here late yesterday.

Gen. Pershing met Clemenceau at the station, and the old man, Frenchman, hurled himself into "Black Jack's" husky arms, exclaiming: "How glad I am to see you again." Just as though they had not met since the armistice, although the same scene was enacted at the Manhattan Opera House less than a week ago.

Mayor Thompson, not always over-sympathetic towards France, made the Tiger come to his city's official welcome. Clemenceau rode around by way of city hall and rode eleven flights in an elevator to say "Hello" to the mayor in the latter's office.

Senator Myers, Montana, Defends Policy of France and Clemenceau.

Special to The Advertiser.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27.—France and Clemenceau found an outspoken champion today in Senator Myers of Montana. Senator Myers declared that Clemenceau was right in saying that the United States should have entered the League of Nations, and should do so now, and should ratify the triple-tight agreement under which Great Britain and the United States guaranteed France from invasion by Germany.

France's fear of another attack from Germany was one of the justifications for Senator Myers' opinion, and unless other nations guaranteed her territorial integrity, France had no choice but to defend herself. He said he was sick of the German whine that they could not pay the reparations. If he had his way, he would have the Kaiser every day in a treadmill instead of eating, drinking and making merry. As to the colored troops on the Rhine, Senator Myers pointed out that ten times the number of colored soldiers had been quartered for years on the people of British state. These colored soldiers on the Rhine had perpetrated none of the atrocities which German soldiers had perpetrated in Belgium and France.

He reminded the senate that it was Germany, not France, which had submerged the Lusitania and sunk numbers of American ships and killed thousands of American citizens while proceeding to be at peace with the United States.

France to Ratify Washington Pact—Powers May

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—Special to The Advertiser.—There are now visible some disturbing developments in the field of international affairs which will require the very close attention of the King government, and which cannot be neglected with safety, because they concern us much more closely than the Near Eastern problem, and any European squabbles.

A little less than a year ago there were concluded at Washington, as the result of disarmament conference, most important treaties which seemed to relieve the burden of the nightmare of the ruinous competition in naval armaments which was proceeding, and also to relieve the acute tension which had grown up in connection with the problem of the Pacific and seemed to be dragging the United States and Japan in the direction of war.

By one treaty the plenipotentiaries of the United States, the British commonwealth, France, Italy and various minor powers agreed to accept a settlement of some minor matters for their respective countries. By another treaty known as the Four-Power Pacific pact, the British commonwealth, the United States, France and Japan entered into certain arrangements which seemed to remove probable causes of conflict. The Washington conference also achieved a settlement of some minor matters of a contentious character.

France Stands Alone.

Of course, all the countries whose delegates had committed them to the Washington conference, and then with the solitary exception of France. Our own federal parliament performed the operation last session without a dissenting voice. But France has held back for almost a year, and has taken no steps to ratify the treaties. The excuse has been advanced that business conditions have prevented the French chamber giving the ratification, but no one accepts it as plausible.

Viviani and his colleagues came to the Washington conference determined to believe it, and did their best to get France to ratify the treaties. They took up a most intransigent attitude on the subject.

In the end they grudgingly agreed to the treaties, but there was obvious reluctance. The report from Paris that George Laygues, an influential French politician who holds the important position of minister of foreign affairs, has declared ratification will be refused.

Denies Report.

He has since denied the report, but it is admitted on very high French authority that the naval disarmament treaty is not acceptable in its present form to the French government, and fear is expressed that amendments will be inserted which will completely destroy its value.

It may be all part of the gigantic game of bluff and blackmail which the French politicians have been playing. They cannot overstate the failure of the United States and consequently of Britain, to implement the famous guarantee treaty which formed the basis of the French position at the Washington conference, and which was rejected by the senate.

They know that the Washington treaty is the only entry on the credit side of the political ledger possessed by the Harding administration. They know that Britain is anxious for a naval treaty, and that a refusal to ratify the Washington treaty would be a political blackmailing may be effective, and are trying by the refusal to ratify the Washington treaty to force Britain and the United States into reconsideration of the guarantee pact.

MINERS WANT SIX-HOUR DAY AND FIVE-DAY WEEK

United Workers Submit Plan to Every Organization in Canada.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sydney, N. S., Nov. 28.—Headquarters of District 26 of the United Mine Workers of America at Glace Bay, have been active for some days mailing to every labor organization in Canada copies of the new platform adopted recently by the district executive in special session at Sydney Mines.

On its purely industrial side the platform's most important plank is a demand for a six-hour day and a five-day week. From other standpoints its most important provision is that it calls for a central council empowered to take any action it may deem necessary to enforce the demands of the members at any time. This would, it is pointed out, empower the central council to call a general strike of all trades and crafts under its jurisdiction.

The British at least are quite alive to this game, for some days there was issued a semi-official dispatch from London which hinted that if France hung back much longer the other powers would simply count her out, and regard themselves bound by their own ratifications towards each other. But the situation has some disturbing aspects.

Anglo-Jap Alliance.

Carter Glass, formerly secretary for the treasury in the Wilson cabinet, and now Democratic senator from Virginia, has been commenting on the situation in a speech and has asserted that the failure to secure ratification by all parties of the Washington Pacific treaty had been automatically brought back into existence the Anglo-Jap alliance.

Now it was largely Canadian hostility to the Anglo-Japanese alliance which prevented its renewal by the British foreign office and paved the way for the summoning of the Washington conference by the U. S., who were also anxious to end the alliance. It was generally understood that the ratification of the four powers pact would automatically terminate the alliance and if not to be terminated it was held to recall the two views held about its duration.

One view held that unless denounced there was an automatic renewal of the alliance, the original term of the alliance. The other view was that the alliance could be only terminated by the denunciation of the other party a year in advance.

Refuse Long Term.

If the first view is accepted the alliance has already lapsed automatically. If the second prevails and the alliance will continue indefinitely until denounced. The British government about a year ago published after conversations with the Japanese ambassador in London a memo on the subject of the alliance, but the cloudiness of its wording left it open to various interpretations.

It did definitely state, however, that the British government had no intention of renewing it for a ten-year period and at the same time prominent British statesmen took pains to declare most explicitly that the U. S. should be exempted from all its terms. There is a belief that the British objection to ratification of the four power treaty as it stands, but that they are not prepared to agree to giving France any benefits unless she assumed the obligations imposed by the naval agreement.

American and British opinion are one on that point. American opinion is also becoming alive to the tricks and stratagems of the French politicians, who are bent on running everybody for their own benefit. There seems little doubt that Clemenceau has had a much cooler reception than he expected.

Makes No Impression.

There is no sign that he is making any real impression on the American people and his speeches, interesting as they are, carry no conviction.

However, there can be no denial of the fact that the automatic revival of the Anglo-Japanese treaty would prove a source of great embarrassment for the King government. A prominent Liberal member in B. C. has lately made a resolution in the local house which would demand the total exclusion of all Asiatics in British Columbia.

Conclusions.

As we are bound by ties of alliance to Japan the federal government cannot pass an exclusive legislation on matter how fierce the agitation for it grows. It will be a bitter setback for the friends of international peace and co-operation if through the selfishness of France the Pacific problem with all its perils and complications, comes to life again.

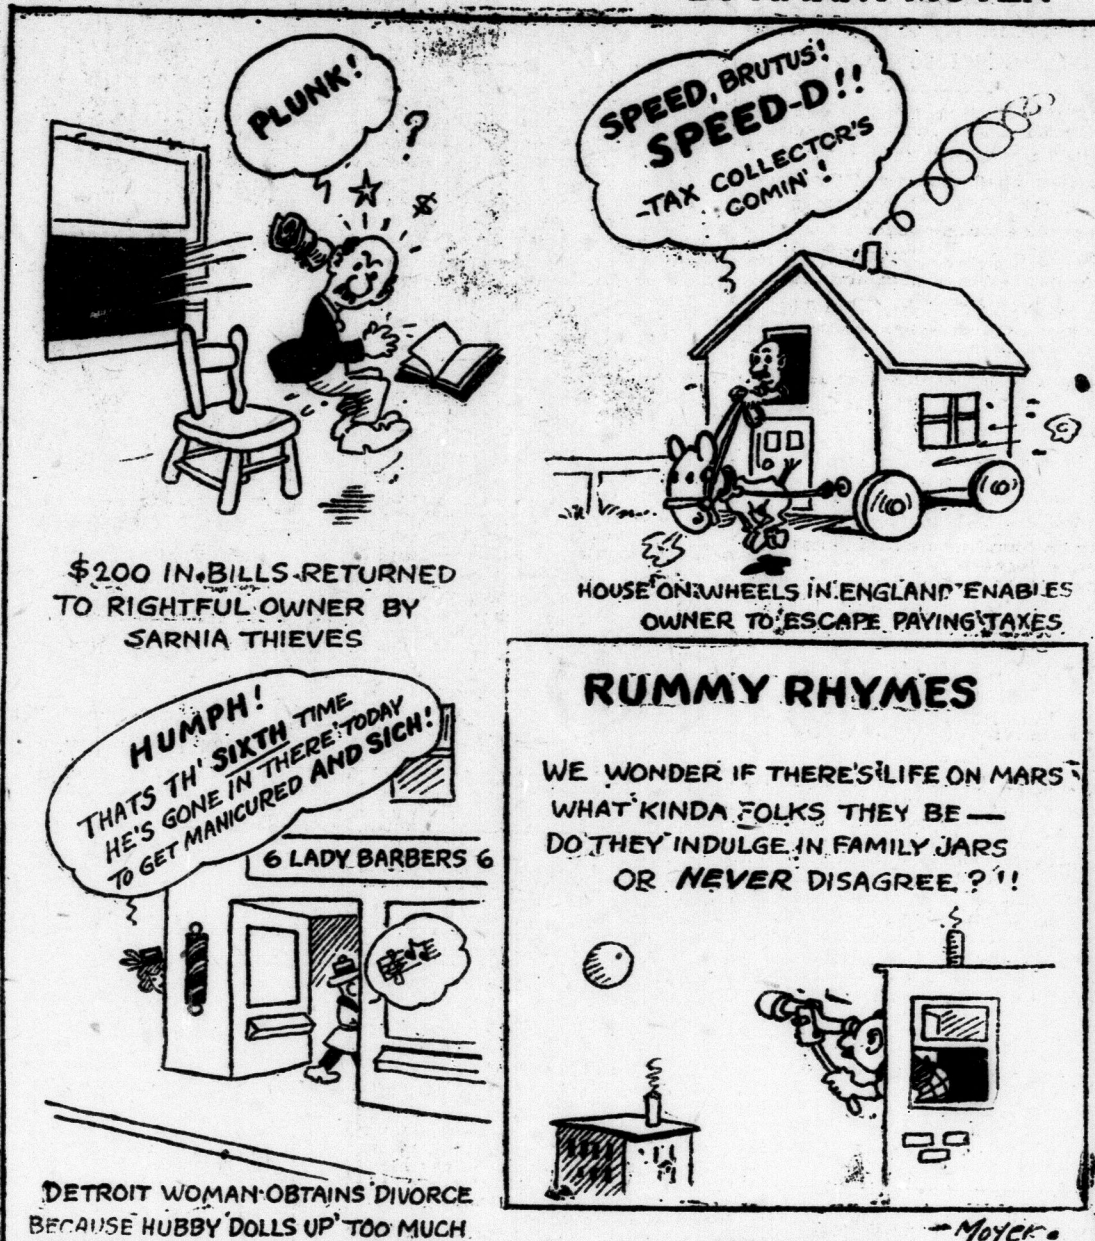

The proposed pact between the United States and Nationalist Turkey is to be a treaty of amity and commerce, establishing an up-to-date basis for relations between the two countries in the light of the changes of the world war and the victory of the Nationalist Turks.

Some of the most important points to be covered in this treaty, at least, so far as American desires are concerned are as follows:

1. Guarantees for the "Open Door" freedom of opportunity, with discrimination or special privilege, for commercial enterprise.
2. Maintenance of capitulations, and territorial rights in Turkey, necessary to safeguard non-Moslem interests.
3. Indemnity for American losses in Turkey as a result of arbitrary and illegal acts.
4. Protection of minorities and of philanthropic educational and religious institutions.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—The Near Eastern Peace Conference at Lausanne is about to mark another break in the policies of the United States and the great Allied powers it was evident in official and diplomatic quarters here today.

The United States government will not be party to the treaty of peace to be worked out between the Allies, Greece and Nationalist Turkey, but on the contrary is seeking a separate treaty with Turkey at Lausanne. The main reason why the United States is not to be a party to the treaty of peace being framed at Lausanne is because this country was not at war with Turkey and hence this government does not feel warranted in maintaining such settlements as those affecting boundaries.

Ambassador Childs has not yet been given powers to negotiate the treaty with Turkey, but it is believed that he is in a position to do so. The United States is not a party to the treaty of peace being framed at Lausanne is because this country was not at war with Turkey and hence this government does not feel warranted in maintaining such settlements as those affecting boundaries.

On a motion calling for copies of all correspondence between any person and the Quebec Liquor Commission in the months of July and August last, with respect to licenses in the county of Labelle, Mr. Sauve attacked the liquor commission. PAUL PEEL WAS ECCENTRIC BOY*Little Understood by Neighbors While Youth in This City.

How Paul Peel, the famous artist, was given a lecture for his "eccentric carrying on," and how he used to smear the neighbors' fences and gates with drawings, are incidents graphically told by persons still living in London, who knew the master during his boyhood days.

Mrs. Thomas Galpin, reminiscing on past pleasures, told The Advertiser that "Young Paul" was a most peculiar youth. Mrs. Galpin's sister-in-law, Sarah Galpin, now living in Detroit, was accustomed to withholding the proverbial bread and jam from the youngster destined to become one of Canada's great painters, as a punishment for sketching pictures on her front door.

"We remember as if it were yesterday, Paul playing jacks with the other youngsters who attended St. George's school. Every birthday and Christmas members of our family received little paintings from the boy as birthday gifts. These were all collected by Sarah Galpin, and accidentally burned some years ago. Paul was a popular lad, but peculiar. None of us quite understood him."

Paul's father was a monument maker, owning a small workshop on the site now belonging to the London Granite and Marble Works, 483 Richmond street. His uncle, who also lay claim to the elements of art in his vocation, being a watchmaker, had the place where the Catholic Record now stands. In early manhood Paul Peel went to Paris, where he exhibited his pictures, then little thought of. There he met his destined wife, a Danish girl, who was also an artist. Mrs. Peel is now living in Copenhagen with her mother. They had one child, a son, whom a local woman recently met coming to America on the George Washington, the German-American liner. The boy was a Texan cowboy.

That the genius that characterized all Peel's work was inherited cannot be gainsaid, when it is considered that his sister Daisy, wife of Sir George Ross, was a noted sculptor. Lady Ross died in Santa Barbara, Cal., some years ago. The entire family was engaged in work that required the talent of the artist. Two uncles, the last surviving members of the family in Canada, are now residing in the western provinces.

Although Paul Peel died at the age of 32, his work is internationally known. All of it is considered to be a masterpiece. He was born in Paris at the art school he attended, and where he met his future wife. Paul Peel is said to be teaching painting now in Denmark.

Cut Garbage Workers.

"There was another thing that he did not tell you, and that was that the cut was effective only for the garbage workers and the lowest paid ones in the city's employ, who were given such an undertaking when the very local of which he was a member was at that moment fighting a 6 per cent reduction by the street railway company."

While many of the electors who gathered in the Boyle Memorial School were "asleep," a capable chairman, who announced when the session opened that no personalities would be allowed, presented such scenes of disorder as have been witnessed at other meetings since the campaign opened.

A serious disturbance was but narrowly averted, however, just at the close of the meeting in the Pottersburg school.

The presence of three police constables perhaps alone saved one spectator from a beating following a personal remark that he made to one of the mayoralty candidates, ex-Ald. Wenige, just as the electors were filing from the room.

The man responsible for the ill-timed remark quickly made his escape with two companions who had stood lurking in the doorway and had previously shouted into the meeting once or twice.

Ald. H. J. Childs, mayoralty candidate, is investigating the claim submitted at the Pottersburg public school mass meeting Monday night by W. S. Webster, contractor, that "sidewalks, curbs and gutters and pavements cost more in London than in any other community in Western Ontario."

This was the first time that the candidate had been directly challenged in this respect since the campaign opened, and his reply was that "he was not aware that such was the case, but would investigate."

Mr. Webster submitted figures for sidewalks. "They were 35 cents in London," he said, "11 cents in Sarnia, 21 cents in Woodstock, 18 cents in St. Thomas, etc."

Not on Works Board.

"I don't understand that," said Mr. Childs. "I am not on the board of works, but I can furnish figures now on the paving enterprises during the year."

While one man in the audience, who explained that he held no brief for either candidate, asked Mr. Childs if it was not a dirty piece of business to publish pictures of one-armed city employees, the latter explained that "he proposed to conduct his campaign as a gentleman and wished to refrain from personalities."

Ex-Ald. George Wenige, the next candidate to address the meeting, stated that he was glad to hear this, as all the personalities had started in Mr. Childs' camp.

Ashton Defends Stand.

Defending his action with respect to the 10 per cent salary reduction and the annexed school issue, Ald. John Ashton, who has a considerable length at the Pottersburg school.

The councillor from Ward 3 was insistent in his contention that all members of city council were given to understand that the reduction was to apply to all persons in the employ of the city and not to garbage workers and sewer men.

Ald. Ashton defended his stand on the annexed school issue, and in conclusion urged the purchase of the school site, believing that the local transportation facilities could be satisfactorily and economically handled by the citizens.

Frank McKay, aldermanic candidate on the Labor ticket in Ward 2, took direct issue with Ald. Ashton on the salary question.

"It never was a question to me," he said, "what Ald. Ashton thought about the matter, but I held that he should have at least let some attention to the Labor party, of which he was a member and who brought him out."

"The wage reduction was not a matter of economy. I want to give an instance of that. While the board of health recommended a $500 increase for the medical officer of health, his salary was eventually boosted by $1,500. He may be worth the cost of health, but I do believe that the increase was justified at the time when it had to be taken from the lowest paid worker."

The speaker devoted several minutes to a discussion of the street railway issue. He said that he was in a hurry to get to the question of the corporation. Replying to the question of the suggestion that the board of health recommended a $500 increase for the medical officer of health, his salary was eventually boosted by $1,500. He may be worth the cost of health, but I do believe that the increase was justified at the time when it had to be taken from the lowest paid worker."

"There should be nothing to prevent a vote," declared Mr. McKay. "I have considered Bylaw 918 carefully, and I feel that the city is well protected. The only penalty for us if we decline to accept the figure would be to allow the franchise to extend another five years." (Applause.)

Ex-Ald. John Colbert explained that he had not intended to take up the salary issue until it had been discussed by Ald. Ashton. He said that all the aldermen were unanimous for the 10 per cent reduction. I would like to ask him how he could favor such an undertaking when the very local of which he was a member was at that moment fighting a 6 per cent reduction by the street railway company."

There was another thing that he did not tell you, and that was that the cut was effective only for the garbage workers and the lowest paid ones in the city's employ, who were given such an undertaking when the very local of which he was a member was at that moment fighting a 6 per cent reduction by the street railway company."

While many of the electors who gathered in the Boyle Memorial School were "asleep," a capable chairman, who announced when the session opened that no personalities would be allowed, presented such scenes of disorder as have been witnessed at other meetings since the campaign opened.

A serious disturbance was but narrowly averted, however, just at the close of the meeting in the Pottersburg school.

The presence of three police constables perhaps alone saved one spectator from a beating following a personal remark that he made to one of the mayoralty candidates, ex-Ald. Wenige, just as the electors were filing from the room.

The man responsible for the ill-timed remark quickly made his escape with two companions who had stood lurking in the doorway and had previously shouted into the meeting once or twice.

Both mayoralty candidates, Mayor Wilson and several aldermanic and board of education candidates delivered addresses at both gatherings, the mayor dealing exclusively with the proposed purchase of the London Street railway.

Ald. Childs and ex-Ald. Wenige both dealt with the several issues in much the same manner as at the Talbot street school.

Wenige Speaks First.

Mr. Wenige spoke first at the Boyle Memorial School. He again outlined the four crimes that he explained that he had been accused of. First, he had not been born in London, but had no control of that situation, but had done the best thing and had moved here many years ago.

In the second instance he had made a success of his personal business, in the instance of the street railway, he had received the O.K. of the so-called "citizens' committee." "There are many men in this city for whom I have a great deal of respect," he said, "but there are others whom I would be ashamed to have on mine."

Lastly, the candidate read extracts from the city hall minutes, citing the following: "This is no reflection upon the person who has employed him. It is ridiculous to have a man with one arm shoveling gravel when a better job could have been found for him."

"Those are the crimes. Am I to be convicted upon them?" he questioned. "The answer is no. You are all right. Go to it," etc., etc.

Urges Commission Form.

Ex-Ald. Wenige urged the inauguration of a commission form of government, an equitable adjustment of salaries for civic employees, the employment of the city hall before all others, while the wages of the workers should not be tampered with.

"The moment you cut the wages you lower the efficiency," he said. "The wages have been left alone and a little more efficiency has been secured. They started out to reduce all salaries at the city hall, but they did not continue the job. Why? Because they did not dare. The tail wagged the dog. The city hall is a little fellow, who had to take it or go to it."

The speaker urged a readjustment of city hall salaries, and a man in the audience shouted, "the man and wife arrangement, eh?"

Mr. Wenige said that it would only be fair for them to have the final sanction of the purchase price of the street railway.

In his preliminary remarks Ald. H. J. Childs dealt with the street railway situation. "I do not believe that there is a man here who is not in agreement with the service," he said, "I agree with those who ask how we can get rid of the company. I am not a member of the company. I cannot say whether bylaw 916 is a scrap of paper, as my opponent has said. I do know, however, that if you desire to purchase the street railway, you must give one year's notice."

"There is only one way to get the company off the streets. Take proper procedure and order it. If the streets by arbitration. If, however, you enter into this you must abide by the decision of the arbiters. There is no other way."

Lauds Bunnell Appraisal.

The speaker lauded the Bunnell appraisal of the road, and said that there had been considerable talk about a 4-cent fare. "There are two things that may govern this," he said: "the city can save about $10,000 each year by receiving hydro at cost, and the L. S. R. and the L. & P. S. may be co-ordinated."

"I would not think for a moment of the city council handling the road if it were construction company business," from a member of the audience, while many cheered and the speaker continued.

"There has been considerable talk about the inefficiency of the city engineer's department," he continued, "but during my term of office I haven't seen it. I know that my opponent brought in several complaints when he was a member of the council, but when they are moving into the job to another, you can't always patch up work here and there without losing time."

The speaker held that the city's payments were of a superior quality. "Well, we pay for them, they ought to be," shouted one of his hearers.

While Alderman Childs contended that the city's payments were laid much cheaper than in other communities, the speaker challenged.

When he subsequently addressed a meeting in the Pottersburg school, Mr. Webster of the Construction Company disputed the candidate upon several points, denying that "contractors were being favored" as asserted in Mr. Childs' propaganda, and submitting figures far below the London figures, purporting to be the cost of sidewalks, curbs and gutters, etc., in Sarnia and many other places in Western Ontario.

CHICAGO GIVES COOL WELCOME TO CLEMENCEAU

Mayor Keeps Tiger Waiting, Then Greets Him With Hand in Pocket.

FILED BY HITCHCOCK

BY FERDINAND TUOHY.
Special to The Advertiser.

Chicago, Nov. 27. — Clemenceau's welcome here was tepid after Boston. It seemed as if Mayor Thompson's pre-planned rigidity won over Pershing's attempt to live things by personal presence.

Mayor Thompson kept Clemenceau waiting full five minutes, then received the Tiger in the mayor's rooms without any word of welcome, official or otherwise. He kept one hand in his pocket throughout the Tiger's visit and introduced Clemenceau to the aldermen in the most casual way. I learned later that the mayor considers the Tiger's foreign propaganda a nuisance, and intends replying to him Tuesday, when Clemenceau speaks.

When told by the reporter that Senator Hitchcock again had charged that black troops are still being kept on the Rhine, the Tiger flushed and exclaimed: "It's all lies, and let Hitchcock go and attend to his own group at Boston of Colonel Shaw with his black soldiers; it may give him something to think about."

Give Tiger's View.
As this black troops question seems to be arousing such interest, I will give the Tiger's view in full.

Firstly, he says, the following can be officially confirmed from Paris: That there are no more African negroes or Senegalese in Germany. There remain Algerians and Annamites. The Tiger is a keen student of race, and it is a source of some wonder to him that senators should be so insistent in this matter, as he holds that France has a racial problem similar in some respects to America's.

If colored Frenchmen, who almost outnumber white Frenchmen, were to be branded as unfit to mingle with whites on the Rhine, there might be serious opposition in the French cabinet, as legally French as Touraine, and that deputies from Algeria sit in the Paris chamber. Annamites he considered the racial equal at least of Japanese. He thinks this color scare "much ado about nothing," and the charges brought against colored French troops grossly exaggerated.

A report should be obtained from General Allen. He says that the colonial troops are billeted throughout France without scandal, and he does not see why they should not be quartered in Germany. Finally, he paid the highest tribute to the French colonial corps, saying that without it France could not have held on in the early stages, and that in consequence the Allies would have lost the war.

Scored One Success.
The Tiger has scored one success which should not be overlooked. The semi-official Le Temps organ of the Poincare government has gone out of its way to stroke the Tiger's back. This shows that when Clemenceau combats the notion that France is militarist, and proclaims that France is not going to disarm in existing European conditions, he is speaking for an overwhelming majority back home. I may add that Clemenceau has something extremely interesting up his sleeve in connection with the menace of future wars in Europe.

British Sportsmen To Give Dinner To Honor Memory of Racing Horse

London, Nov. 28.—An event that is of interest to lovers of thoroughbred sportsmen throughout the world will take place tomorrow night, when the York Gimcrack Club will give its annual dinner and renew for another year the name and fame of Gimcrack, a most remarkable horse of a century and a half ago, who, through his gameness and speed, earned a place in the annals of English racing that no other horse has since been able to wrest from him.

Gimcrack was foaled in 1780, and was an exceptionally small grey colt, but he never exceeded 14 hands and 4 inches in height, and did not begin his racing career until he was nine years old. Before he retired, however, he won some 28 races, and his gameness and speed, coupled with his small stature, made him popular with racegoers of those times.

CLAIMS HE SHOT MAN IN DEFENCE OF WOMEN

Huntington, N.Y., Nov. 28.—Slaying of John J. Letich, 29, after he was alleged to have shot and probably fatally wounded his fiancée, Landriss, 18, was probed by police and the coroner here today.

Edward Scudder, in whose home the double tragedy occurred, declared, according to authorities, that he killed Letich after the latter had snapped the gun from his hand and attempted to shoot him.

"We heard a shot in the room where Letich and Miss Landriss were, and rushed in and found her lying on the floor," police quoted Scudder as saying. "I drove him from the house with a shotgun, after he snapped the gun from his hand and attempted to shoot me. After I fired once over Letich's head he dashed outside into his auto and began to circle the house."

Scudder said he then fired again, the charge striking Letich in the heart, according to authorities. Miss Landriss lived at the Scudder home.

BIG MOVIE MAN VISITS LONDON

Ernest Shipman Says London May Be Film Producing Centre.

Ernest Shipman, credited with being the pioneer picture producer of Canada, and probably the first to successfully establish the "silver sheet" as a recognized Canadian industry, arrived in the city this morning.

The Rev. Dr. Gordon, who was expected to come with him to address the annual meeting of the Canadian Club tonight, failed to turn up. Nothing definite could be learned as to whether Dr. Gordon will arrive in time for the banquet to be held at the Tecumseh Hotel.

Every effort is being made to bring him here from Toronto this afternoon. Mr. Shipman, however, will furnish the club with an interesting outline of Dr. Gordon's screen versions of his novels, and will portray the screen adaptation of Dr. Gordon's famous story, "The Man from Glenary." The Central Collegiate this evening at 8 o'clock.

Expressed this morning, Mr. Shipman expressed enthusiasm for the initiative of several provincial companies that have been organized for the exploitation of Canadian films through moving pictures.

Canadian companies and taken from the fiction of Canadian novelists, in demand for cinematograph reproductions of such noted stories as "The Man from Glenary," "The Sky Pilot," and many others. Practically all the provinces boast of corporations that have produced national pictures of great merit.

Produce Canadian Films.
More than thirty typically Canadian spectacles are under production at the present time, and the subject of "The Man from Glenary," "The Water," "The Rapids," shall be released for Canadian distribution on Dec. 10.

Among others, Bertram Sinclair's "Poor Man's Rock," and film adaptations from the works of Robert Stead, Hood and Wallace, will be available for Canadian patrons.

Mr. Shipman, in discussing the various phases of picture making in Canada, stated that it will be a universal policy to adhere only to the truthful aspects of Canadian life.

Very little work is being done in Canada, since the great beauty of the country is being depicted in graphic pictures, so peculiar to this country.

It shall further be the aim of producing companies under the supervision of Mr. Shipman to portray the ideal living conditions of Canada, and the Canadian talent, both literary and dramatic, shall be encouraged to the utmost.

It shall be the policy of Canadian picture producers to eliminate as far as possible the element of stardom. Actors are chosen not because of previous notoriety, but owing to their ability.

Concern in London.
In discussing the possibility of a moving picture concern being established in London, Mr. Shipman stated that he had heard it expressed that the value of the value of the name London in advance publicity would be more than $50,000.

He predicted that Canada's "Way Down East" and "The Old Nest," when produced, will have for their locations sections of London and Western Ontario. "The first million-dollar Canadian presentation will have its scenes set in the fertile farm gardens of Western Ontario. Here it is that delightful pastoral effects can be obtained in all their natural beauty. And here it is that the opposing elements of comedy and tragedy can be reproduced to best advantage."

Canadian clubs in all centres have energetically taken the project sponsored by Mr. Shipman. Dr. Gordon and Mr. Shipman have delivered a number of addresses on the subject and all were accorded the best approval.

It is altogether likely that Dr. Gordon will be on his way to address the Canadian Club tonight, but in his absence, members are assured of an equally interesting talk from Ernest Shipman.

DEFENDS BRITISH EMPIRE EXHIBITION FROM ATTACKS

Duke of Devonshire Claims Show Will Be Devoted to Products of Empire.

London, Nov. 28.—Canadian Press Cable.—The Duke of Devonshire, who is chairman of the executive of the British Empire Exhibition, has a letter in the Times with reference to recent criticisms of the management of the big show that is being prepared for 1924.

The duke says that "although their proceedings have been systematically misrepresented to an extent that almost passes belief, the exhibition has never deviated from the policy that, to the utmost limit of practicability, the materials and supplies for the exhibition shall be produced within the empire."

Further, the duke says: "To insure this, a special sub-committee has been appointed, consisting of three representatives of the legislative council, two members nominated by the high commissioners of the dominions resident in London, and one representing the colonies and protectorates, to deal with the whole problem of imperial supplies of materials."

Consulate Requests Probe in Brutal Death of Pretty U. S. Girl in Paris

Special Cable to The Advertiser.
Paris, Nov. 28.—Burial of Miss Rose Shannessy, pretty American girl of Minneapolis, was delayed at the request of the American consulate today, pending further investigation of her mysterious death in the apartment of a prominent bachelor here.

Miss Shannessy was found dying of bullet wounds, at first thought to have been self-inflicted. The death apartment is owned by the nephew of a Paris evening paper publisher.

Although she is said to have been originally from Minneapolis, the girl's parents show she came here from Hong Kong. The state department at Washington was asked to ascertain whether passports previous to that were issued.

Paris police sealed Miss Shannessy's own apartment immediately after her death, and although her body was taken to the morgue Nov. 21, the tragedy was not made public here until Nov. 23.

Local Humane Society Feeds Horses of Owners Unable to Care for Them

Inspector George Tustin of the local Humane Society, reports that this organization is at the present time caring for nine horses, whose owners find it impossible to care for them owing to their straitened circumstances.

It is costing the Humane Society over $20 a week to feed the abandoned equines now numbered on their rosters, and the expense of looking after an additional nine horses until their owners are in a position to care for them themselves is greatly increasing the cost.

Mr. Tustin will be grateful for any donations of money or feed for these animals, and wishes it to be known that these nine horses are being cared for only temporarily until the people who own them are in better circumstances.

DECIDE AGAINST AUTO FOR USE OF CHILD WELFARE

Union Mothers' Club Committee Not in Favor of Innovation.
Mrs. John Rose, president of the Union Mothers' Club, stated at a meeting of the sub-executive held Monday evening at the Technical School, that the committee in charge of the purchase of a car to be used in child welfare work, had decided, that the car should not be purchased, as all the clubs were not unanimous, and the matter would be dropped.

A discussion took place, led by Mrs. John Gemmell, over several changes brought up at the next open meeting in the constitution, which will be of the Union Club.

It was decided that the club would co-operate in every way possible with the social hygiene committee in the work they are doing, and would ask Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst to speak at the January meeting on this subject.

Inspector V. K. Greer is leaving the school open to visitors on election day, and Mrs. Rose, the president, has asked the mothers to be present at the schools on this day.

Acting upon a letter received from Miss McGregor of the staff of The Canadian Child, the club will send a delegation to this publication, which will appear on a special page for Mothers' Clubs.

He said that the appointment of missionary supervisors in the mission fields, have been at the petition of the conferences concerned, and achieved only after the most strenuous opposition from the department heads in Toronto.

The noon banquet followed a business meeting of the district in the morning, when the district committee on social service and evangelism were appointed, financial and statistical reports read and an address, "Impressions of General Conference," delivered by Rev. W. L. Hiles of the Robinson Memorial Methodist Church.

Appointed on the committee were Rev. A. E. M. Thomson of Centennial Methodist Church; Rev. W. L. Hiles of Robinson Memorial; Rev. John Garbutt of Dundas Centre, and Henry Pocock and John Elliott, laymen.

An optimistic spirit prevailed through the general conference prevailed through Mr. Hiles' address.

He spoke of the clamor from many districts, for a general overhauling of the machinery of the church, everywhere, it was claimed, not a to considerate belief that the church was falling in its mission, but rather to the general feeling of depression which followed the war.

"By the success of the conference," he declared, "all illusions that we have been going, as some would have us believe, to the well-known 'bow-bows,' were dispelled, and the church was given new incentive by the general prosperity, and the nearness of organic union."

W. L. Hiles of the Robinson Memorial Methodist Church.

Appointed on the committee were Rev. A. E. M. Thomson of Centennial Methodist Church; Rev. W. L. Hiles of Robinson Memorial; Rev. John Garbutt of Dundas Centre, and Henry Pocock and John Elliott, laymen.

An optimistic spirit prevailed through the general conference prevailed through Mr. Hiles' address.

He spoke of the clamor from many districts, for a general overhauling of the machinery of the church, everywhere, it was claimed, not a to considerate belief that the church was falling in its mission, but rather to the general feeling of depression which followed the war.

"By the success of the conference," he declared, "all illusions that we have been going, as some would have us believe, to the well-known 'bow-bows,' were dispelled, and the church was given new incentive by the general prosperity, and the nearness of organic union."

MONKTON

Special to The Advertiser.
Monkton, Nov. 26.—On Thursday evening the members of the Epworth League visited the Monkton League in the Methodist Church. The former gave a splendid program. Mrs. Arthur Francis, the president, presided.

On Tuesday evening the young people of Monkton visited the league at Willow Grove where they put on a debate: "Resolved, that Western Canada afforded more opportunities than Eastern Canada." The affirmative was supported by Mr. W. Trombly and Miss Frances Goughly, the negative by Mr. Ed. Bettiger and Miss Irene Shilme. Music was also furnished by Miss Winifred Young of Dorchester and Messrs Frank Osborn and G. W. Butt.

Pleasant evening was enjoyed by a few of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bettiger, who celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding on Monday evening.

SEEK FUNDS TO DEVELOP BOYS

One Thousand Lads Sell Shares To Aid Tuxis Movement.

More than 1,000 of London's teen age boys are engaged this week in selling shares in the "Better Boyhood" campaign instituted a few weeks ago by the Provincial Boys' Work Board to raise funds so that the 1,200 Tuxis and Trail Ranger groups in Ontario may be properly looked after during the coming year.

The objective of the campaign is $5,000 and London is asked to contribute $550 of that amount.

Charles Plewman, the provincial executive secretary, has invited each boy to buy one share himself, and then by interviewing the people interested in the development of boy character sell nine other shares.

Many citizens of the city are being approached by the lads this week and asked to support the work that has meant so much towards the development of real citizenship since the inauguration of the Tuxis and Trail Ranger programs in 1914. London has always been looked upon as a staunch supporter of boys' work, and those selling shares report that the Forest City is upholding her past record by giving the campaign every support.

A. R. Kennedy, chairman of the boys' work board, has asked the lads to go over the top by Dec. 6, and judging by the enthusiasm of all the groups and the fine example being set by each of the mentors, every confidence is being expressed that the objective will be reached before that date.

London has 60 Trail Ranger and Tuxis groups, all carrying out the fourfold program as laid down by the provincial boys' work board, made up of representatives from all the Protestant denominations and the Y. M. C. A.

FINE ST. THOMAS RESIDENT $200

Judging from the brief session of police court today, crime in London is apparently almost nil.

Charles Locker, a St. Thomas resident, who has faced Magistrate Graydon on several occasions on charges of violating the Ontario Temperance act, and who has been repeatedly warned to stay in his own city when he becomes intoxicated, pleaded guilty to having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling. He was fined $200 and costs.

Charles Smith charged with assaulting Henry Froude failed to appear. The case was adjourned.

A SIN TO LET HAIR FALL OUT

35c "Danderine" Saves Your Hair—Ends Dandruff! Delightful Tonic

Hurry! It's your duty! Each day you see a little more hair falling out and you are making no effort to avoid baldness. What a pity. Falling hair means your hair is weak, sick—possibly—dandruff is strangling it, or the hair root pores in the scalp are not firm and tight, thus wasting the hair-growing oils.
Danderine almost instantly stops falling hair of men or women and keeps every particle of dandruff away, then the hair takes on new vigor and strength to grow long, thick and long.
Danderine is delightful—not sticky greasy. Go to any drug store now and get a bottle. Use it. Have healthy, heavy, beautiful hair and be proud of it.—Adv.

MAYOR RAVEN AGAIN ELECTED AT ST. THOMAS

Chief Magistrate of Flower City Returned by Acclamation Route.

LIVELY FIGHTS PROMISED

St. Thomas, Nov. 27.—At one of the quietest nominations on record, Monday morning, Charles E. Raven was re-elected mayor of St. Thomas for 1923 by acclamation. No opposition appeared on the scene and none was discussed. One prominent elector was heard to remark that there was unlikely to be any person enter the mayoralty field to get slaughtered.
The mayor's was the only acclamation, however. There promises to be lively fights for the vacancies on the hydro-electric and water commissions and the Amasa Wood Hospital Trust. Lieut.-Col. William J. Green, the retiring hydro commissioner, is in the race again and is being opposed by Michael J. McManus, Rosebery Place, a conductor in the employ of the Pere Marquette Railroad. For the water commissioner, three candidates were nominated, ex-Mayor George Geddes, the retiring commissioner; James L. Thompson, merchant tailor, Ross street, and Frederick C. Bell, lumber merchant, William W. Scott, Michigan Central Railroad engineer, was nominated to oppose ex-Mayor E. A. Horton for the vacancy in the Amasa Wood Hospital Trust.
It is believed that all the candidates who have been nominated will remain in the field. They have until nine o'clock Tuesday evening to qualify. City Solicitor W. B. Doherty reported.

Trades and Labor Party.
Officers and members of the St. Thomas Trades and Labor Council were largely responsible for the opposition that has been placed in the field, the president, Walter Peterson, being present throughout the meeting. The organization, however, will issue a slate of candidates, but will require all their candidates to run on their individual merits.
It looked very much as if ex-Mayor Horton would be returned to the hospital trust by acclamation. Mr. Scott's name being placed in nomination two minutes before the closing hour, and a second for Mr. Thompson's nomination for the water commission did not appear until the time limit had nearly expired. Aid. William Stokes seconded Mr. Thompson's nomination, which was moved by Mr. Peterson.

Ex-Mayor's Nominate.
A pleasing tribute was paid to Mayor Raven in his nomination. Ex-Mayor Horton was the first to sign the paper, while ex-Mayor William Trotter seconded it. The mayor's was the first nomination made.
For Mayor (Acclamation).
Charles E. Raven, shoe merchant, by E. A. Horton and William Trotter. For Hydro-Electric Commission. William J. Green, lumber merchant, by A. E. Horton and William Trotter.
Michael J. McManus, railway conductor, by Zack Rowland and Walter Peterson.
For Water Commission. George Geddes, insurance agent, by William Trotter and E. A. Horton. James L. Thompson, merchant tailor, by Walter Peterson and William Stokes. Frederick C. Bell, lumber merchant, by James P. O'Dell and Zack Rowland.
For Amasa Wood Hospital Trust. E. A. Horton, miller, by George Geddes and W. B. Coulter. William W. Scott, railway engineer, by James P. O'Dell and Zack Rowland.

BAYFIELD STORES TOTALLY BURNED

Loss in Main Business Section of Village Totals $10,000.

Special to The Advertiser.
Bayfield, Nov. 27.—Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed one of Bayfield's principal business sections on Sunday night.
The Bayfield postoffice, the store of Henry Drehmann, the bakery and confectionery of Thomas King and the vacant store, until recently occupied by George Greenslade, all fell a prey to the flames.
The loss is estimated at $10,000, partly covered by insurance.
The entire block of stores was frame construction and burned with great rapidity, the flames were fanned by a high southeast wind.
The heavy snow afforded protection for roofs of buildings nearby, and prevented the burning embers that were carried for rods by the wind from igniting these places.

Special to The Advertiser.

PETER SCHWEITZER DIES

Asks Railway Company to Slacken Speed of Trains at Level Crossings

Special to The Advertiser.
Woodstock, Nov. 27.—The occurrence of a serious accident on the level crossings of the St. Thomas branch of the C. P. R. here last Friday has aroused a protest from the city council at the speed at which the C. P. R. trains go over the crossings, and at tonight's meeting the council passed a resolution asking the railway company to take steps to have their trains slacken speed at the crossings.
A telegram was read from the Northern Ontario Fire Relief Committee asking that the council raise a sum equal to half a mill on the assessment as a contribution for the relief of the fire sufferers. The mayor pointed out that the contribution already sent would be deducted from this amount, and that the half-mill would produce a sum of $3,300, and the city had already sent over $2,000, a balance of $700 only remained. The matter was referred to the finance committee of the council.
A request by the G. W. V. A. for a remission of the taxes on the building was also referred to this committee.

BRITISH HOUSE APPROVES OF IRISH MEASURE

Antagonism Against Constitution Bill Is Quickly Dissipated At Quiet Session.

London, Nov. 27.—The House of Commons tonight, without division, passed the second reading of the Irish constitution bill after a debate in a single sitting without striking incidents.
That it has fallen to the lot of a Conservative government to put through parliament final legislative action to measures granting Ireland such complete autonomy is one of the ironies of political fate. The Conservative party for two generations has stoutly resisted the granting of self-government to Ireland, in even the mildest form, and no political question during that long period has provoked anything like the bitter animosities and conflicts in parliament, on platform and in the press which accompanied the fight around Irish home rule.
Now the fight is apparently ended, and parliament, with a large Conservative majority, quietly accepts the principle of the new Irish constitution without even challenging discussion. This is all the more remarkable, as it was mainly the revolt of the "die hard" section of the Conservatives against the Coalition government for setting up a treaty with the Sinn Fein which led to the rebellion of the Conservatives against the Lloyd George leadership, and so overthrew the Coalition government. Antagonism hardly took a serious form. Its rejection was moved by a newcomer in parliament, the Laborite, S. Saklatvala, who represents Battersea. He opposed the bill on the ground that the Irish treaty was signed under duress, and was therefore a greater mockery than was the act of union.
Predicts Undoing of Act.
The Communist, J. T. W. Newbold, seconded the motion, which was negatived without division after receiving no support whatever from any quarter of the house. Mr. Saklatvala, in the course of his speech, predicted that within five years parliament would find itself under the necessity of undoing this act.
Colonel Wedgwood, one of the Laborite leaders, appealed to Mr. Saklatvala not to press his motion to a division, arguing that whatever the circumstances of the signature of the treaty, parliament could not go back on it.
Premier Bonar Law, in his speech, dealt in an interesting way on the question of the relations between the mother country and the dominions. He moved the second reading of the bill and set the pace for the house by the frank adoption of the standpoint that no matter what opinions were held, parliament could not go back on the treaty.
J. Ramsay MacDonald, for the Laborites, and Sir John Simon, for the Independent Liberals, expressed complete concurrence in the prime minister's attitude. Thus, all the great parties in the house found themselves on common ground in favor of ratifying the constitution.
Mr. MacDonald said he thought the less said about the bill the better, because to criticize it was useless and to sympathize was dangerous. He hoped the time would never come when any attempt would be made to define in rigid legal formulae the regulations between the different parts of the empire. The safety of the empire depended on the close relationships remaining organic rather than legal.
Voices "Die-Hard" Dislike.
Colonel Gretton voiced the "die-hard" dislike for the treaty, but admitted it was too late to challenge its terms. He criticized some points in which he believed the constitution did not comply with the treaty.
Sir John Simon expressed the opinion that the constitution was finally within the terms of the treaty. Ronald McNeill, another "die-hard," took the same position as Colonel Gretton, that while he regarded the treaty policy as disastrous he had to recognize that the mischief was done beyond repair and that parliament had no choice but to carry it to a conclusion, and the treaty could not be abrogated. Parliament's duty now was a pure formality.

WATFORD PASTOR SENT TO HOSPITAL

Rev. W. K. Hager To Undergo X-Ray Examination in London Institution.

Special to The Advertiser.
Watford, Nov. 27.—As there was no improvement in his condition the Rev. W. K. Hager, B.A., pastor of the Methodist Churches of Watford and Zion, Warwick, was sent by his physician to Victoria Hospital, London, yesterday morning, to be examined by a specialist and have X-ray photos taken.
The regular services were held in the Presbyterian Church yesterday, when the pastor, Rev. H. V. Workman, gave two helpful and inspiring discourses.
The various young people's societies in the village are withdrawing their regular meetings on Tuesday evening in order to give their members an opportunity of attending the lecture by Jack Miner in the Lyceum.
At Zion Methodist Church, Warwick, Rev. A. De Courcy Rayner of the Congregational Church, Watford, preached yesterday afternoon in the absence of the pastor through illness.

Warns Citizens To Secure Supply of Substitutes, Fearing Shortage of Coal

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—(By Canadian Press). In a statement issued this evening the federal advisory fuel committee once more warns householders that there is little anthracite coming into Canada from the United States, and that it is important to lay in a supply of substitutes. Dealers as well as consumers, it is said, are facing a situation which may lead to difficulty and possible hardship "unless the attitude of the public towards substitutes greatly alters."
The shortage of anthracite, according to the statement, is likely to continue throughout the winter, and in the United States the public has been warned to lay in a 20 per cent emergency supply of either bituminous coal, coke or the smaller sizes of anthracite, such as pea and buckwheat. It will be the middle of February before the shortage of anthracite can possibly be caught up with, it is said, by which time winter transportation difficulties are generally at their worst.

offer an original version of an old act, with a picturesque singing number as a feature.
"Connelly and Radcliff," and "Vento and Nina" provide two adequately enjoyable numbers.
"Seeing's Believing," the film feature starring Viola Dana, offers this sparkling youthful star an excellent vehicle for the display of her effective talent, telling an interesting and at all times plausible story.
The star is cast in the role Diana Webster, a charming millionaire orphan, who makes her home with her aunt. When Diana and her aunt's suitor are caught in a storm on their way to the city, they are involved in a situation which leads to a maze of complicating circumstances, chief of which is the fact that they are obliged to register at a country hotel as man and wife. The resulting difficulty of explaining away a seemingly inexplicable situation leads to near-tragedy, and withal on the part of the spectators, a great deal of mirth.
A clever and animated young star, with one of the silver screen's most charming personalities, Viola Dana is immensely satisfying as the much misunderstood young lady.
Completing this splendid bill is a Pathe Review, a reel of Topics of the Day, and a screamingly funny one-reel Roach comedy, "The Bride to Be."
RESUME LAKE TRAFFIC.
Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 27.—The vessels at this end of Lake Superior do not appear to have been much affected by yesterday's snowstorm, though some took shelter at Whitefish. Today, with clear weather, traffic is moving freely.

Fine Bill Starts Off New Policy of Popular Playhouse.
Viola Dana in a clever, feature picture, with five acts of successful vaudeville formed the major part of the attractive bill, opening at the Grand Opera House, Monday night, as the commencement of the theatre's new policy of showing three performances a day, a policy which is to continue without interruption for several weeks.
Heading the vaudeville performance are "Black and Lynn," eccentric acrobat comedians, with a really laughable and dexterous offering. Shean and Beaumont offer a clever imitation of "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Sheehan," together with some good laughs and a barn number.

CLAIMS RUSSIA IS ANXIOUS TO RETAIN PEACE

M. Rakovsky Makes Eloquent Appeal For Soviet Participation.

STATES ARMY REDUCED

Lausanne, Nov. 27.—The United States' insistence for the open door and equality commercially in the Near East, which follows her traditional demand for equal commercial privileges in the Far East, was cited today by the Russian delegation as supporting an official communication forwarded by the Russian delegation to the conference asking for the right of speech on all matters before that body.

Russia objects vigorously to any attempt to limit her activities in the discussion of the future status of the Dardanelles; she claims that all copies on the Lausanne agenda are closely related to the supreme object of the conference, and that stable peace in the Near East can only be attained by allowing the Russian delegation free participation on the same basis as the other great powers.

In their official petition the Russians affirm that only by following the principle of equality can the conference hope to reach the goal of greater equity in the relations between nations—a wish expressed by the opening of the conference and the representatives of the United States.

England, through Lord Curzon, is understood to have ratified it completely, and the French spokesmen have expressed approval of the American stand.

M. Rakovsky seems distinctly more conservative in utterance than at Genoa; that was distinctly evident tonight when he expounded Russia's demands for admission to the conference on a footing of equality.

He brought a message of peace and good will and tried to give the impression that all Bolsheviks were of this view. He even chided an enterprising correspondent from the Balkans who wanted to know what Russia would do if Jugoslavia adopted a menacing attitude.

To this Rakovsky replied: "That is a false note to strike here, and gives rise to an undesirable sentiment. What talk of possible trouble, when everybody in Europe wants peace?"

Lausanne you always arrive at the problem of the straits, he said today. "Take the disputed city of Adrianople, and the fortress of eastern Thrace, which commands the economic and political interests of Russia. There are no differences between us; we both want free waterway to the Black Sea."

"Freedom of the Dardanelles is necessary to the interests of the states bordering on the Black Sea and vital to our defence. We object to possible naval control by any one power."

Speaking of the Turkish demand for the removal of the capitulations, he said: "Turkey is right; she should have her own house as we are in ours. Some people fear that the Mohammedan Turkey will one day endanger Russia. We do not believe it. Nationalism always becomes a force rather than religion. Russia does not fear the English, and the Arabs we will probably be found on the side of the Arabs, because they want to be on good terms with our neighbors."

WATER PUMP IS NEARLY READY

New Station At Kitchener Capable of Producing 150,000 Gallons Daily.

Kitchener, Nov. 27.—In a few days the new gasoline-driven water pump at the new Strange street station will be put in operation. The gigantic pump is capable of pumping 150,000 gallons a day, Superintendent Pequegnat stated today that the pump will be operated at capacity for a few days as a test, when it will be slowed down to keep up with the requirements of the city. The completion of this pump puts Kitchener in the best position in its history as far as water supply is concerned.

Ice-making started today at the Kitchener Auditorium, and indications point to the fact that there will be skating in a few days if the cold weather keeps up. Manager Rooks conditions would last long enough to give skating a real winter impulse, he was of the opinion that a few days of skating may be enjoyed before softer weather sets in.

The hockey team of the city will at least have a chance to get in a practice, and with colder weather tomorrow it is expected skating will be allowed by the park board.

Announcement was made here today of the appointment of three more men to the local district No. 3 staff of the police.

Mr. T. Jones, with headquarters at Owen Sound; H. A. Shaw, with headquarters at Walkerton; and F. M. Lester, with headquarters at Orangeville. The new men start their duties tomorrow. All of the newly appointed officials are returned men, having seen service in France. Before being assigned to duty in this district they graduated from the course of instruction given provincial policemen in Toronto.

THINK FIRES IN MONTREAL STOCKYARDS BY MANIAC

Montreal, Nov. 28.—That the fires which have occurred from time to time in sheds belonging to the Montreal Stockyards Company were the work of a maniac was the opinion expressed in the fire commissioner's court yesterday when Commissioner W. F. Ritchie held an investigation into the outbreak which occurred Wednesday last.

No fewer than five fires had occurred in the plant since May last, but inquiry into each outbreak has failed to throw light on the cause.

St. Thomas Topics

Staff reporter and local representative of the St. Thomas. Local office 648 Talbot street. For information, news items and address, phone 1510; night phone 1819.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 27.—The store of Mr. Lewis Jones, 189 Talbot street, completely ransacked late Saturday night by thieves, and the entrance from a rear window.

A number of valuable furs were missing, and Mr. Jones states that it will be necessary for him to take stock before the total loss can be ascertained. No clue to the thieves as yet.

Investigation is being made by the local police. It is thought the theft has been the work of local talent.

ALD. N. H. PENHALE, chairman of No. 4 committee of the city council, reports that the construction of open-air rinks with board inclosures, on the site of the old town hall, West Talbot street, and the Kiwanis playground, Flora street, will commence within the next few days. It is understood that rinks are to be prepared also at Arthur avenue, Erie street, Market square, and St. Andrew's street, for the accommodation of the young people of the city.

DOVER FARMERS PAY ROAD SHARE

Surprise County Treasurer by Quick Settlement of Cost.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, Nov. 27.—Farmers of Dover township, who live on each side of the Painscourt road, sprang a surprise on County Treasurer Fleming this morning when every one of them who had signed a note for the construction of the permanent pavement paid up his share of the cost in cold cash.

Some payments were made by money, but the most was in checks, the total amount handed over being $23,805.55. The advance amount represents 20 per cent of the cost of the road which the farmers agreed to pay when they asked to have the road paved. The total cost of the road, which is 6 miles in length, is approximately $180,000.

GORDON REGRETS CHASE FOR GOLD

"Ralph Connor" Addresses Members of Canadian Club At Toronto.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—Dr. C. W. Gordon delivered a thoughtful address at the Canadian Club luncheon today. His subject was, "The Pathway to Industrial Peace," a pathway which he surveyed and delimited with severe logic, precision, but did not border on dogmatism, and any reader of his book, "The Pathway to Industrial Peace," would find it a novelist.

He discussed the theoretical bases of economic and industrial stability, but disclaimed being a mere industrial or economic theorist. "I am not an economist," said Dr. Gordon. "My conclusions have been arrived at by the result of intensely interesting practical experiences, the last two years as chairman of the council of industry for Manitoba. The rules for industrial stability I now propose have worked out excellently in actual practice."

Industrial stability, he said, depended upon a perfect balance between four factors, the four points of the quadrilateral of industry, capital, management, labor and the community. Capital was potential energy, management was directing energy, labor was physical energy in action, and the community, the last had taken three, and now I feel like a different woman.

My husband also took it and it has built him up."

To Avoid Rough, Coarse, Chapped, Blotchy Skin

Most skins require constant grooming at this season to keep them from becoming unduly red, blotchy, coarse, rough or harsh, or if such condition has developed, to overcome it. In such cases it is particularly inadvisable to keep piling on cosmetics, which clog the pores and make the complexion worse than ever.

It's a lot more sensible to use ordinary mercolized wax, which literally absorbs a spoiled complexion. Apply the wax, like cold cream, before retiring. Next morning, in washing it off, you'll wash away fine, flour-like particles of the unsightly crud. Repeat for a week or more and you'll have an entirely new skin—soft, white, spotless and beautiful as a child's. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any druggist's, is all you'll need.

Some skins wrinkle easily in winter. There's an excellent remedy in a harmless wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This will quickly eradicate all lines and furrows.

SULPHUR CLEARS A PIMPLY SKIN

Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out.

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur and use it as soon as—Advt.

Learning Promptness
Children easily learn the habit of dallying, so I train mine to know that a task must be finished on time. I draw a picture of a clock on a paper, making the hands read the time that the clock will show when the task should be finished. The paper clock is pinned up on the wall, and by comparing it with the real clock they can tell how nearly they are making it. Promptness becomes a jolly game. (Copyright 1922, Associated Editors)

Miss M. Wilkie, soprano, and Miss Cora Brennan, violinist.

Mrs. A. D. Jordan, The Grange, received Monday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Miss Margaret, one of this season's pretty debutantes.

The large room decked with flowers and ferns, looked doubly cheerful in contrast with the gray out-doors. Ferns and bronze mums tastefully arranged and cheery grate fires made an attractive setting for the young debutante, who received with her mother.

She wore a becoming gown of sapphire blue panne velvet, with silver slippers and carried pink rosebuds and Mrs. Jordan was gowned in black canton crepe with touches of white. The tea-room was decorated with pink mums arranged in a bowl on the tea table, which was covered with an Italian flit lace cloth. Tea was poured out by Mrs. Charles Glass, who wore a gown of black lace, with a black hat, and Mrs. E. C. Mitchell, gowned in gray georgette, beaded with steel beads, and wearing a large black velvet hat. The many guests were ushered to the tearoom by Mrs. W. E. Saunders, wearing a navy blue canton crepe gown, with a black hat, and Mrs. J. F. Reynard, gowned in black velvet and a black hat. In the tearoom a number of young girls, frocked in gay dresses, assisted. They included Misses Shirley Johnson, Alice McLean, Mary Attili, Eileen Boomer, Marie Loughlin, Grace Allen, Buchner and Sterling Westland. Miss Jordan received many lovely clusters of flowers, which were arranged throughout the rooms. Mrs. Jordan is receiving again on Wednesday of this week.

Sends Thankoffering.
Dear Miss Grey—I will take just a minute to send my thank-offering (20 cents), also I have a little parcel I got ready to send Moss Rose, and my children were taken sick so I never really got it off. I saw where English Lass was wanting help, so if you would just send me her address I could hurry it away to her, for she surely must be in need.

This is lovely weather and I am trying to make the most of it, so must get busy. ERIK M.

Thank you for the thankoffering. Did you see where the offerings together with our other mites raised the fund to $821. I am mailing you English Lass' address. It was good of you to offer to send the parcel to her. I hope your babies have fully recovered by now.

Calamity Anne is a Brick.
Dear Miss Grey—it has been a long time since I have written. I have been so busy. I am sending my Thanksgiving donation, which is a little late. I have a birthday on July 11. Inclosed please find self-addressed envelope for the address of English Lass. I will do some-thing to help the dear lass. I am also sending a small amount I collected for the Sick Children's Hospital fund. I saw Calamity Anne's letter in the paper, she certainly is a brick to undertake a cook book. I will send some recipes along later.

Many thanks for the donations you sent for the Mail Box, July. I am mailing English Lass' address now. Many thanks for offering to help her. Calamity Anne is certainly very brave to accept the responsibility of the cook book, isn't she?

The Cook Book.
Dear Miss Grey—Will you please send me "In Need's" address, for I am sure she will need help more than any one else just at present. I have some things that could be made over if she would care to have them. I do not think that the Cook Book would sell very well, and it is so much work and expense to get it ready. The printing of it would cost a lot, also we would have to get advertisements to help pay for the printing of it. I think the idea of sending in a cent for every year of your age is great, therefore, I am inclosing 36 cents for my own and 4 cents for Betty, who will be a next week. BETTY'S MOTHER.

Many thanks for the delayed Thanksgiving offering. I quite agree with you that the Cook Book will mean a great deal of work, but at it will not fall on "Cynthia's" I am not saying very much, I think Calamity Ann is perfectly wonderful to undertake it, and as she is so brave to do it I think we should back her up. Am mailing you "In Need's" address. It is very good of you to help her.

Gives Shoes Away.
Dear Miss Grey—I am writing a note to let you know that I have sent away the shoes I offered. I wish one of the flower lovers would tell me when I should start an Easter lily to have it in bloom by Easter. I am sending a plaster for the fund.

CRIPPLED ANNIE.
Thank you very much, Crippled Annie, for the "plaster" for our hospital fund. I think it is wonderful the way the fund has grown recently. Did you see where it has amounted to $821? You should have your lily bulb started by now. After you have potted it it is a good idea to put it in the dark for four or five weeks. Hope it blooms for Easter.

Beauty Specialist Tells Secret

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Orleat Compound and 4 ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off—Advt.

WEDDINGS

WILLIAMS-ARSCOTT.
A pretty winter wedding took place Monday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother in Piccadilly street, when Gladys Irene, daughter of Mrs. Arscott and the late Samuel Arscott, was married to Lieut. Gordon J. Williams of the R. F. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of this city. Promptly at 3 o'clock, to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by Miss Dorothy Davis, wearing a black velvet gown, the bride entered the drawing-room with her uncle, Mr. Frank Arscott of this city, who gave her in marriage. Miss Joan Williams, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of black velvet which fell in an uneven hem line and caught at one side with French flowers. She carried pink roses. The bride was lovely in a smart gown of African brown velvet with a train of black satin with touches of drapery, and she carried a cluster of Madame Butterfly roses. Mr. George Stevenson acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James MacKay. Stately palms and ferns, with clusters of baby mums, were in the drawing-room. The front of which the ceremony took place. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served, and covers were laid for 30. The table was adorned with pink roses and tall pink candles held in silver sticks, and was centered with a low basket of rosebuds. Mr. and Mrs. Williams left on a honeymoon, motoring to St. Thomas, and from there taking the train to Buffalo and New York. The bride wore for traveling a black Marline suit with a squirrel collar caught at the side with a cabochon. Her hat was of black satin with touches of drapery. Upon their return they will reside at 835 Dundas street. Many out-of-town guests were present from Kitchener, Detroit, Hamilton and Toronto. Four lieutenants who served overseas in the Flying Corps with the Lieutenants were among the guests: Lieut. James Shaw of Toronto, Lieut. Irvine Erb of Kitchener, Lieut. L. Ashton of Detroit and Lieut. J. Wagstaffe of Detroit.

Note to the Public

"No person shall ship eggs or cause eggs to be shipped or delivered or displayed for sale in cases or containers which are marked or labelled with the name of any class and grade specified in these regulations, unless the quality and weight of the eggs contained therein is equal to or better than such class and grade."

Extract from Clause 3 of the Egg Regulations, Live Stock and Live Stock Products Acts.

"Fine! Couldn't be better."

FRESH EGGS for breakfast and no mishaps. No unpleasant remarks. No suspicions. No sniffs, no criticisms. Dad is usually so particular, too. He cannot enjoy an egg unless it is above and beyond the shadow of doubt. Naturally, his report was eagerly awaited by the family. Graded eggs were proved a success by his verdict—"Fine—couldn't be better!"

Wives, mothers, heads of households throughout Canada—get behind the demand for graded eggs. It is the solution of your problem,—how to get good eggs? We have standard grades for eggs. These grades have been in force for export for four years. Domestic consumers can also have the advantage of buying eggs by grade if they will.

Go to your grocer or your provision dealer and ask for graded eggs. Tell him you are no longer satisfied with "fresh laid" eggs which have no real guarantee that they are really fresh. Brands and labels mean little if the eggs are not classified according to the Canadian Standard Grades. All stores will be better stores when they sell graded eggs. The way to bring this about is to go to your dealer and ask him to sell you eggs by grade. Ask him today. Ask him every day.

OUTLINE OF HISTORY

By H. G. Wells.

WE have spoken of the Aryan language as probably arising in the region of the Danube and South Russia and spreading from that region of origin. We say "probably" because it is by no means certain that that was the center; there have been vast discussions upon this point and wide divergences of opinion. We give the prevalent view. It was originally the language of a group of peoples of the Nordic race. As it spread widely, Aryan began to differentiate into a number of subordinate languages. To the west and south it encountered the Basque language, which was then widely spread in Spain, and also possibly various other Mediterranean languages.

The Conquering Kelts. Before the spreading of the Aryans from their lands of origin southward and westward, the Iberian race was distributed over Great Britain, Ireland, France, Spain, North Africa, South Italy, and, in a more civilized state, Greece and Asia Minor. It was closely related to the Egyptian. To judge by its affected the Irish population is a matter of debate at the present time: in that island the Kelts may have been a mere caste of conquerors who imposed their language on a larger subject population. It is even doubtful if the north of England is more Aryan than pre-Keltic in blood. There is a sort of short dark Welshman, and certain types of Irishmen, who are Iberians by race. The modern Portuguese are also largely of Iberian blood.

The Kelts spoke a language, Keltic, which was also in its turn to differentiate into the languages of Gaul, Welsh, Breton, Scotch and Irish Gaelic, and other tongues. They buried the ashes of their chiefs and important people in round barrows.

A Widespread Aryan Invasion. While the Nordic Kelts were spreading westward other Nordic Aryan peoples were pressing down upon the dark white Mediterranean race in the Italian and Greek peninsulas, and developing the Latin and Greek group of tongues. Certain Aryan tribes were drifting towards fair-complexioned Aryan speakers who pushed eastward into India some-when between 3,000 and 1,000 B. C., and conquered dark Dravidian peoples who were then in possession of that land.

From the original range of wandering, other Aryan tribes spread to the north as well as to the south of the Black Sea, and ultimately these seas shrank and made way for them, to the north and east of the Caspian, and so began to come into conflict with and mix also with Mongolian peoples of the Ural-Altaic linguistic group, the horse-keeping people of the grassy steppes of Central Asia.

Learning to Ride the Horse. From these Mongolian races the Aryans seem to have acquired the use of the horse for riding and warfare. There were three or four prehistoric varieties or sub-species of horse in Europe and Asia, but it was the steppe or semi-desert lands of Central Asia that first gave horses of a build adapted to other than food uses.

All these peoples, it must be understood shifted their ground rapidly. A succession of bad seasons might drive them many hundreds of miles, and it is only in a very rough and provisional manner that their "beats" can now be indicated. Every summer they went north, every winter they swung south again. This an-

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

THE DANGER POINT.
By Thornton W. Burgess.
When near a danger point watch out! Stop, look and listen all about.

Peter Rabbit, who, as you know, has many narrow escapes from danger every day, and therefore has been continually watching out, was almost nervous of Paddy the Beaver and Mrs. Paddy as he watched them towing food logs through their new pond on their way to the old pond. When their food pile was to be, while they were swimming they were safe from all enemies. Peter, you know, never is really safe outside his dear Old Briar-patch, and even there he must watch for Shadow the Weasel. It seemed to Peter that his two friends in brown had nothing to worry about and somehow it didn't seem quite fair.

They are bigger than I and stronger, and so better able to fight. Yet they can go and come in safety with nothing to worry about. I must be on the watch for danger every instant," thought Peter. "That doesn't seem fair to me. No, not at all. But things are not always as they seem. There was one danger point which Peter had overlooked, but which Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were fully aware of. It was the place where about and to draw their logs over the new dam to float them down the Laughing Brook to the old pond. There, of course, they had to come out of the water. But if Peter had overlooked this danger point Paddy and Mrs. Paddy had not. They knew it was the one place where such enemies as Yellow the Bob Cat or Old Man Coyote might have a chance to spring on them, and they knew, too, that sooner or later Yellow or Old Man Coyote or both would discover that place and lie in wait for them. So they had to be on the watch for danger at that spot where they came ashore. But they dragged across the dam. They meant to take no chances. They chose a place in the middle of the dam and where the water in the pond was deepest.

When they reached this point they never scrambled out hastily or heedlessly. They first listened beyond any suspicious sounds, and tested for air with their keen noses for any strange scent. Of course, at the same time they used their eyes and their ears and their noses they were sure that no enemy was lurking on the other side.

As soon as they were sure of this they would work as fast as they could to get the logs and branches over the dam and down into the water on the other side. But while they worked they never forgot to stand for to watch out. This was the danger point and they knew it. This was the point where carelessness might cost them their lives. Special to The Advertiser.
Ailsa Craig, Nov. 28.—The union evangelistic services being held in the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches are well attended. The speaker, Rev. Mr. Louis, is a returned missionary from India, having spent his first year and a half in Africa, but owing to the climate was transferred to India, where he labored for a good many years, but finally had to return home, and has taken up farming for the last ten years.

Last night he dressed in the native costume of India and spoke mostly to the children. His talk was very pleasing and instructive to both old and young.

This week the services were in the Presbyterian Church while next week they will be held in the Methodist Church.

The Young People's Club postponed their meeting Friday night on account of the union services in the churches, but intend holding their next meeting on the usual night, Friday, December 1. The making of it, Scotch night, when the program will be along Scotch lines, the meeting commencing at 9 o'clock. The club expect to have very interesting meetings this winter.

DECLARES BRITISH SEEK TO KILL SUBSIDY BILL
Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 27.—British and other foreign interests and journals are engaged in a studied campaign of misrepresentation and propaganda to defeat the American ship subsidy bill, Edward C. Plummer, commissioner of the United States shipping board, declared in a speech prepared for delivery today before the midwest merchant marine and foreign trade conference.

CRANBERRIES
BY BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH.

WHEN the New England colonists began to use the wild red berry known as the cranberry they added much to the dinner of turkey and chicken, both as to flavor and color. The cranberry ripens in the fall, and now that it is possible to ship food materials from coast to coast all states may enjoy it.

Quite the most common dish is a sauce or jelly. Some people always with the sauce strained, saying that they object to the tough skins. But if the berries, with half as much sugar as berries, and half as much water as sugar, are cooked in a covered dish a covered with water, the water begins to boil the skins will be quite tender, and the sauce will jelly and may be molded.

Excellent Conserve.
A very excellent conserve to eat with meat is made with cranberries, raisins and nuts.

Cranberries and raisins cooked together make an excellent filling for pie, having some of the flavor of cherries.

Cranberries are good with apples, and now that they are much higher in price than formerly it is advisable to try this combination. Sections of pared and cored apples cooked in cranberry juice and sugar are very attractive, especially when served in glasses with a spoonful of whipped cream on top. Serve with cake.

Mid-Dinner Ice.
Sometimes it is very refreshing to have a water ice or frozen fruit juice in the middle of dinner. It used to be quite the correct thing to serve just after the roast and before the game and salad. But now that dinners have fewer courses the serving of an ice is not correct. However, cranberry sauce may be packed in molds (one-half pound baking powder) and served in glasses with a spoonful of ice for two hours. Turn from the mold, cut in slices and serve with the turkey. Or freeze sweetened cranberry juice and water to a mush and serve in sherbet cups with the turkey course.

Cranberries strung on a thread are sometimes used as a garnish for the turkey when it is to be sent to the table to be carved.

TRIUMPHS OF M. JONQUELLE

By Melville Davison Post.

THE WOMAN ON THE TERRACE BEGINS HERE TODAY.
The handsome woman in the invalid chair had been talking angrily with her companion when M. JONQUELLE, greatest of French detectives, entered the beautiful Italian terrace. The woman introduced her companion, MARTIN DILLARD, an American, and learned that the great detective had come from Paris to learn why the house in France, owned by Dillard, had burned to the ground.

She explained that the house was filled with priceless etchings which Dillard was copying. During Dillard's absence, when she was in charge, she went to the cellar where the masterpieces were stored. The flame of her candle ignited the cobwebs on the ceiling, and in a moment the whole place was in flames.

GO ON WITH THE STORY.
CHAPTER III.

"In terror, I let myself out of the flaming house," the woman continued.

"As the basement of this house was without windows, the fire was not discovered until I had gotten entirely out of the neighborhood of the Faubourg St. Germain."

"I was so overcome, so numbed by this incredible disaster that I did not stop to consider any result. I wished to escape from Paris—to conceal myself somewhere. I thought of this villa, but I did not dare take the train from the Gare de Lyon. I traveled in a motor, winding southward from France, not directly, in order to confuse anyone who might endeavor to follow."

Again she touched her mouth with the lace handkerchief. There was a faint red stain on it. She looked at the stain, but without emotion, and presently added:

"But I did not succeed. Monsieur Dillard and Monsieur Jonquelle have been able to trail me here with an equal facility. It seems, and within almost the same period of time, I cannot have managed my travel with discretion."

She stopped abruptly. For a moment there was silence. The two men beside her did not move, but their aspect changed. The American seemed to relax—his tense energy ebbed. The menace in him changed to an aspect of disaster. On the contrary, there came into the posture of Monsieur Jonquelle a certain tenseness.

He spoke, addressing the American.

"Monsieur," he said, "is it true that the basement room of this house was hung with cobwebs?"

The man replied as though his jaws were stiff.

"Yes," he said. "The whole rotten ceiling was hung with them. I always went in with an electric flashlight. What an accident!"

Monsieur Jonquelle arose.

"Monsieur," he said, "this was no accident. The villa had been long closed. Insects had had their will with it. He went over to a shutter, unhooked a curtain, and in a moment, removed an immense cobweb, and came back to the border of the terrace.

The American stepped, and in a profound interest, moved to where he stood on the border of the terrace before the woman in the chair. The woman also stepped beyond any concern. She neither moved nor spoke. She smiled vaguely, maintaining the posture of repose. The American could not conceal his profound interest.

"Not an accident?" he said. "What do you mean?"

Monsieur Jonquelle held the web up in his fingers, struck a match, and touched the web with the flame. There was no flash. The filaments of the web shriveled a little under the heat.

"I mean," said Monsieur Jonquelle, "that a spider-web is not inflammable, and, therefore, the woman who came here before the fire, had taken fire from the flame of a candle."

After that two events seemed to happen almost before they were timed. The woman laughed, and the infuriated American lunged toward her; but Monsieur Jonquelle's foot caught his ankle with a swift outward turn, and the man plunged headlong on the terrace. He got up heavy feet, for all the vigor of the infuriated creature was in action.

What followed seemed to attend with an equal swiftness. The two footmen of the Princess Kitzendorf were over the prostrate figure. Instantly his hands and feet were secured; a gag was in his mouth, and they had removed him.

It was all like a flawless scene in a drama, rehearsed to a perfection of detail. In thirty seconds it was ended.

"Monsieur," said the woman in the chair, "you are very clever, and your agents are perfect."

She did not move during the whole violence of the scene, and her voice was now in no whit changed. It was the same detached, unemotional voice. She removed her hands from the arms of the chair and extended them. The slender wrists together.

"Do you wish me, also, to accept the gaze d'amour of the Service de la Surete?"

Monsieur Jonquelle did not at once reply.

He went back to his chair. He lighted a cigarette, and he remained for some moments like a man at ease. Then he spoke.

"Tell me, madame," he said, "why did you destroy this house in the Faubourg St. Germain?"

The woman replaced her hands on the arms of the chair.

"Monsieur," she said, "at the end of life, in the face of death that is inevitable, I have suddenly come to realize a thing that has been an insupportable mystery to me."

was a plain, narrow, worn, gold band.

"This bracelet," she said, "worth perhaps, a dozen francs, was given to me by Paul Verlain, a boy who loved me. He was killed at the Marne."

She moved her hand, taking up an immense necklace of pearls, matched and priceless, that hung almost to her knees.

"This necklace," she said, "was given me by Count de Lamare. He was killed in the great allied advance on the Somme."

She extended her hand to include the place about her.

"This villa," she said, "was given me by the Marquis de Nord. He died at Verdun."

She paused.

"Monsieur," she said, "I, a child of Montmartre, an apache, called 'Casseque d'or' from the effect of my yellow hair, which I have been taught to put up as though it were the head-dress of Minerva; I, who had faith in nothing, realized that these men—Paul Verlain, Count de Lamare, who loved me, and who also loved pleasure; the Marquis de Nord, who loved me, and who also loved power—these men loved something more than me, or life, or pleasure, or power; loved it infinitely more; loved it beyond any measure of comparison, for they left these things and went eagerly to death for it."

"I thought about it, monsieur. It obsessed me."

She suddenly rose as with a single gesture, as though she had been lifted to her feet by invisible hands.

"Then suddenly, monsieur, with a flash of vision on that night when I was alone in the house in the Faubourg St. Germain, I understood this thing—I saw that the work in which Monsieur Dillard was engaged—with the prints with which the house was literally packed—would help to destroy the very thing which these men, Paul Verlain, Count de Lamare, and the Marquis de Nord, had given their lives to save."

"It would help to destroy France—and therefore, I took a candle in my hand and burned it. Do you know what the valuable prints were with which this house in the Faubourg St. Germain was crowded on that night?"

"I do," replied Monsieur Jonquelle. "Or I should not have taken these elaborate precautions to secure the American Republic, printed by this man, from plates etched by the German engraver, Wagnheim of Munich."

"The Girl in the Picture," another brilliant triumph of M. Jonquelle, will begin in our next issue.

How prettier teeth came to millions

Have you noted the glistening teeth you see everywhere today? And the open smiles that show them?

You can see that some great change has come in teeth-protecting methods. If you don't know what that change is, we urge you to make this test.

They combat the film
These people—millions of them—are now combating film. Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It absorbs stains, then forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

These troubles had been constantly increasing. Beautiful teeth were less often seen than today. And all because no old-time tooth paste could effectively fight film.

The problem solved
Then dental science, after long research, found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. Then these two great film combatants were embodied in it.

MONOXIDE GAS WARNING GIVEN

Men Killed in Garages—U. S. Tells How To Revive Living Victims.

Detroit, Nov. 27.—"The exhaust gases of gasoline automobiles contain from 4 to 12 per cent of carbon monoxide and in closed garages men are not infrequently found dead beside a running motor."

This fact together with a method of saving the lives of those ill with this poisoning was given to the public by the Detroit News radio broadcaster on request of the United States Public Health Service. Three doctors of the bureau joined in issuing the following message:

Carbon monoxide poisoning is caused by breathing atmosphere that contains carbon monoxide. This gas is a product of incomplete combustion.

This gas is found at blast furnaces, flues, oil refineries, in exhaust gases from gasoline engines in general, in illuminating gases, at coke ovens, in mine fires, in the Leblanc soda process, in cement and brick plants.

Beware Leaky Pipe.
It may be found in a building having a leaky furnace or chimney or a gas stove without flue connections, such as are found only too often in tenements, tailor shops and boarding houses.

Miners sometimes call it "white damp" or "sweet damp," but carbon monoxide itself is without color, odor or taste. The sweet odor sometimes attributed is not due to the carbon monoxide, but to other substances in the atmosphere which accompany the gas. Carbon monoxide can be detected by the use of small animals such as mice or canaries or by the use of a carbon monoxide detector, a chemical apparatus developed during the war.

Carbon monoxide exerts its extremely dangerous action on the body by displacing oxygen from its combination with the coloring matter of the blood, known as hemoglobin, which normally absorbs oxygen from air in the lungs and delivers it to the different tissues of the body. The affinity of carbon monoxide for hemoglobin is about three hundred times that of oxygen.

Because of this effect, when even a small amount of the poisonous gas is present in the air breathed into the lungs much of the hemoglobin is locked up in combination with carbon monoxide and so cannot keep up its usual work of carrying oxygen to the tissues. These tissues because of the lack of oxygen, cannot do their work properly. If the tissues are smothered long enough the cells of the tissues become damaged and injury to the cells may be permanent even if the patient survives.

Headache is Symptom.
The victim of acute carbon monoxide poisoning usually experiences certain definite symptoms. Yawning, sleeplessness, weariness and a feeling of constriction across the forehead, frontal headache, at first dull and intermittent, later continuous and more severe. This headache is replaced or masked by the typical headache of carbon monoxide poisoning at the base and back of the skull which causes the sufferer to hold his head as far back as possible in an effort to obtain relief. Dizziness and nausea also occur. The pulse is at first normal but later becomes full and rapid. The skin is flushed. The respiration becomes more rapid as exposure to the gas continues, and later becomes irregular. If the exposure is sufficiently great confusion and unconsciousness develop. If the victim recovers he remains weak for some time, especially the legs.

All of the symptoms are heightened by exercise, eating and stimulation and high temperature and great humidity.

In chronic exposures carbon monoxide poisoning produces a tired feeling, headache, nausea, palpitation, of the heart, sleeplessness and sometimes mental dullness. There are probably many more chronic cases than are usually recognized.

The first thing in curing for a case is to get the poison out of the blood as rapidly as possible. Get the patient into fresh air; every moment during which the oxygen is shut out of the hemoglobin is a chance of failure of heart and respiration. Every minute during which the tissues are supplied with only a part of their needed oxygen increases the danger of their subsequent degeneration and permanent injury. Both to save life itself and to prevent ill-health in the future it is of vital importance to eliminate carbon monoxide from the blood as rapidly as possible.

Where There's a Tank.
The next step is to supply him with oxygen. One-fifth of air is oxygen. If a tank of pure oxygen is available, use it. The oxygen should, if possible, be given through an inhaler fastened over the patient's mouth and nose or entire face. If no inhaler or nasal catheter is available, the oxygen can be sprayed directly from the tank upon the patient's face. This should be kept up for at least 20 minutes.

When the victim is discovered it may be found that breathing has stopped or is very weak. In this case artificial respiration should be administered at once by the Schaefer method.

The person should be placed on his abdomen. Remove from the mouth any loose objects or material found there and see that the tongue is forced forward. Turn the patient's head to one side and rest it on one of his forearms. If the patient is a woman, she will not come in contact with the ground, and extend the other arm along the ground. If the patient is of slight build, put a pad of folded clothing or blanket under the lower part of the chest. Do not wait to remove the victim's clothing, but begin artificial respiration without delay. An assistant may remove all tight clothing from the neck, chest and waist and place blankets, hot water bottles, or hot bricks about the patient.

How To Do It.
Kneel, straddling the person's thighs, facing his head. The palms of your hands should be placed over the short ribs with your thumbs parallel with the spine about two inches apart and your fingers spread out as much as possible, the ends of the little fingers just below the last ribs. With arms held straight, swing forward slowly so that the weight of your body is gradually brought to bear on the person. This operation, which should take about two seconds, must not be violent lest the internal organs be injured. The lower part of the chest and the abdomen are thus compressed and air is forced out of the lungs.

Immediately swing back slowly to remove the pressure, but leave your hands in place. Through their elasticity, the patient's chest expands, and the patient's lungs are thus supplied with fresh air. After two seconds swing forward again and repeat deliberately about 15 times a minute. Continue if necessary for at least three hours without interruption or until natural breathing has been restored or a physician has arrived. Even after natural breathing begins, carefully watch that it continues. If it stops, start artificial respiration again.

Although the administration of oxygen is by far the most important factor in the treatment, other things should be done to help the patient. He should be kept quiet and forced to lie flat in order to help his weakened heart.

When he is better he should not be allowed to walk about or in any way exert himself.

Heat from hot water bottles or warm bricks, the rubbing of arms and legs, and keeping the patient well covered with blankets all help circulation and aid in tiding the body over a period of low vitality.

Other stimulants, such as hypodermics may be used only by a physician, for the physician must consider the possibility of over-stimulation and collapse.

The patient should be kept in bed for at least a day.

GIRL 20, DRESSED AS MAN, GETS 30 DAYS

Taken in Custody At Montreal With Two Male Companions.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—Alive Martin, a 20-year-old girl, who claims she is from Winnipeg, was arrested by the Westmount police last night for masquerading in male attire in the company of two Ottawa men who gave their names as Peter Trudeau and Rene Oullet.

Brought before Magistrate Raddon in the Westmount police court this morning, the masquerader received a 30-day sentence, while her companions, neither of whom had a cent, were sentenced to 15 days in jail, with the option of a fine of $20. The girl's sex was not discovered until her strenuous objections to being stripped and searched aroused the suspicions of the police.
