HAS MAFEEKING FALLEN.

There was Hand-to-Hand Fighting There on Saturday Last.

London, May 16.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Lorenzo Marquez, dated Tuesday, says:—"There is now no doubt that there was desperate fighting at Mafeking Saturday, but it is believed to have gone in favor of the garrison. All that can be ascertained of a reliable character follows:

"The Boers, using artillery, attacked the town Saturday. Very soon the Kafir location was in flames, some say as the result of shell fire, and others as the result of treachery. Fighting at close quarters became general, and, in the midst of the confusion, the Boers gained possession of the Kafir location, from which point of vantage they brought guns to bear on the town at close range.

"By an adroit move the garrison, despite its attenuated numbers, succeeded in actually surrounding the party of Boers who had captured the Kafir location. Severe fighting followed, but, according to the latest reports, the Boers still hold the location, in which they are probably surrounded.

"The truth is, I believe, that the Pretoria authorities knowing of the progress of the relief column, gave orders to Gen. Snyman to storm the place. As soon as the location was in flames the Boer bulletins of victory were flying about everywhere to encourage the weak-kneed burghers. Boers who came down yesterday from Pretoria produced for the edification of incredulous Britishers two telegrams by officials, one of which was signed by Snyman and said: 'I was lucky enough to capture Baden-Powell with 900 of his men.'

"There is no doubt about the heavy fighting. A telegram from the Portuguese consul to the governor-general here confirms this, and there is little doubt of the occupation of the Kafir stadt. But similar things were published at Pretoria about Ladysmith, and quite recently about Wepener, just before Col. Dalgety was relieved.

CONTRADICTORY REPORTS.

Lorenzo Marquez, May 15.—Telegrams received here report very heavy fighting at Mafeking. Pretoria reports that Mafeking has fallen, and the Netherlands Railroad Co. has issued a statement that Col. Baden-Powell has captured a large force of Boers.

A war bulletin posted at Pretoria May 12 announced that the British were advancing to the relief of Mafeking. The Boers Saturday occupied the Kafir location at Mafeking. They were in turn attacked during the night of Saturday, and on Sunday found themselves surrounded. The Boers lost seven killed and seventeen wounded. The British loss is reported to have been heavy.

RELIEF NOW DUE. London, May 16.—"Food will last until about June 10," is the latest official word from Col. Baden-Powell, the British Commander at Mafeking, sent to Lord Roberts under date of May 7. Five days later the Boers attempted to storm the town, and it is possible that they succeeded, although nothing is known of the attack or its results except through Pretoria sources which have no countenance here.

The British relief column is due there now. Ten days ago Gen. Snyman was having difficulty in keeping the burghers together owing to the approach of the British, and when the last Associate Press despatch left Mafeking, on May 7, the Boers had killed, on the previous day, one of the horse guards and had captured several horses.

Maj. F. D. Baillie has sent to the morning the Boers attacked us. Report of May 7, this message: "This morning the Boers attacked us. Result as usual. There is an aching void here. Pass the loaf."

The war office has received the following from Lord Roberts, dated Koonstadt, May 15, 1 p. m.: "Baden-Powell reports, under date of May 7, all going well. Fever is decreasing the garrison is cheerful, and the food will last until about June 10."

The war office has received the following from Gen. Buller:

MULES AND LOCUSTS. London, May 16.—Lady Sarah Wilson has wired to her sister, Lady Georgina Curzon, from Mafeking, under date of May 8, saying: "Our breakfast consists of horse sausages and lunch of minced mule and curried locusts. All well."

Excellent "brawn" is being made from horse and ox hides and is eaten by whites and blacks. The garrison is very cheerful, very dry and very hungry.

THE WRECKED RAILWAY

Will be Repaired in Three Days and Then Roberts can Advance.

London, May 16.—Lord Roberts' infantry are still at Koonstadt. The railway laborers are hard at work, and the engineers hope to have the line repaired within three days. The prairie has put on a russet winter coat. The nights are bitterly cold, but the days are hot.

The Free Staters are surrendering in larger numbers than after the occupation of Bloemfontein. One officer of the Transvaal artillery says: "There will be no serious fighting this side of Pretoria and Bovenburg on the Vaal is indefensible. Heavy guns are being mounted at Pretoria."

"But Gens. Botha and Linnem are agreed that ultimate success is impossible. President Kruger is obstinate, and a majority of the Transvaalers hold firmly with him."

It is estimated that the Transvaalers can still muster 80,000 men on the fighting line.

Gen. Buller's advance, as his telegrams indicate, was by the instructions of Lord Roberts, and it will cease to go forward as Lord Roberts may direct. Certain commentators affiliated to the war office say that Gen. Buller's orders to keep the Boers employed have been supplemented by an order to drive them completely out of Natal and then to move on Harrismith.

Gen. Buller and Gen. Buller are taking possession of the wide regions around Ladybrand almost without opposition. They find the country plentifully supplied with cattle, horses and fowl. Gen. Buller is reducing his transport and feeding his men and animals largely off the country.

The Boers in that quarter surrendered and it is the expectation of the correspondents on the spot that the eastern section of Free State will soon be as tranquil as the western.

Lord Roberts' front is 80 miles long, but his forces are disposed so that if any point be attacked the troops there could be quickly reinforced.

STEIN'S PREDICTION.

Lord Roberts contributes a line to the discussion going on in the press as to when the war will end by the following telegram, dated Monday, and sent through a correspondent who had made the direct inquiry: "I regret that I cannot give any reply to your question, as it is impossible at present to predict when the campaign may end."

The view of the other side is reported by a correspondent to whom President Steyn said: "Sooner than leave this country to fall into the hands of the British I would destroy all our homes and leave it a desert."

The relations between the Transvaal and the Portuguese appear to be strained. The Portuguese consul at Pretoria, according to reports from Lisbon, has been ordered by President Kruger to leave the country. The Portuguese declaration making food and clothing contraband has nearly destroyed the usefulness of Delagoa bay to the Transvaal.

Sanhor Joquin Machado, governor-general of Portuguese East Africa, is being entertained at Beira, and the British officers who are passing through are showing him courtesies. The Lieben cabinet is understood to count on British protection in the event of Boer aggression.

All the morning papers give long accounts of the reception of the Boer envoys in New York, but none comments editorially except the Daily Chronicle and the Times, the former of which says: "To give a parallel instance, suppose that, during the course of the Hispano-American war, the Spaniards had asked England to intervene, and had sent a deputation to Queen Victoria. Would the Spanish delegates have been received with cheers and presented with the freedom of the city of Southampton or of the nearest township in that vicinity? This difference between the temper of the English populace toward America and that of the American populace toward England will take a good deal to explain away."

HAY MAY MEDDLE.

London, May 16.—The Lorenzo Marquez correspondent of the Times says: "Among the prominent burghers in Pretoria there is a feeling that their only chance is to make the most of threats to destroy the Johannesburg mines in the hope of securing intervention."

The United States consul is interesting himself in the detention by the Boers.

GLENCOE TAKEN.

London, May 17.—Following upon the occupation of Dundee, it is reported that Gen. Buller has captured Glencoe. Gen. Buller's despatch to the war office says that the Boers have evacuated the Biggarsburg range.

A MURDEROUS SOCIETY

Depredations Committed by the Chinese Boxers.

MURDER OF MISSIONARY BROOKS

Futile Attempts of the Chinese Government to Punish the Bandits—Their Numbers Estimated at Over 11,000,000—Foreign Troops May Have to Suppress Their Lawlessness.

Chinese officials who are in a position to secure accurate data estimate that 11,000,000 Chinamen belong to the society of boxers, or, this same organized band of ruffians was once known, the "Society of the Great Sword."

For the last quarter of a century this society has terrorized the great central provinces of the downy kingdom, and wrought death and destruction in the homes of the Christian missionaries. It was their latest atrocity, the murder of a young Church of England missionary named Brooks, that called for the collective note of the ambassadors and ministers of the powers. In response to that note the Chinese government has sent an armed force against the Boxers, but it is said of this force of soldiers that more than one-half belong to the society, and consequently but little good is expected from it.

Of all the atrocities of which this society of ruffians has been accused none are more terrible than the torture and death of this young Church of England missionary. At the time of his death he was on his way to join a brother missionary at Shan-Tung. On this journey he passed through a village where a number of the members of this society were attending a native feast, and the cry of "foreign devil," started by a little Chinese girl, announced his presence to the blood-thirsty villains.

Almost before he had time to realize what was happening they had surrounded him and began the torture that ended in his death. They pushed him about from one to another, called him all the vile names of which they could think, beat him with clubs, and finally one of the villains brought a hook to which he had attached a long, stout cord, and this he fastened in the poor victim's nose, and in this manner he was pulled about the streets. When he attempted to escape he was literally cut to pieces with swords.

This is but one in a long list of crimes for which this society should be called upon to answer. Several years ago they attacked and destroyed an American mission at Shan-Tung. The head of this mission at that time was Rev. J. H. Laughlin, now of New York city. Other members of the mission were Rev. R. H. Bent, and Dr. J. L. Van Schoick. "We lived in three houses all surrounded by a high wall. The first evidence of trouble was a gunshot outside the gate, whereupon the gatekeeper peeked out. Instantly a pistol was shot off in his face so that the powder blinded him, although he received no other wound.

"The man fell, clanking to the ground, and the bandits rushed over his body and into the courtyard. Mr. Bent saw them coming and retreated into his cottage, but the robbers smashed in the door and shot him in the thigh. The missionary seized a piece of the splintered door and ran out, striking right and left. One of the bandits slashed at him with a sword and cut his head, and he other wounded him on his arm, but he at last escaped with his life.

"I was romping with my little girl in our dining-room and ran out to investigate. I found Mr. Bent's quarters surrounded by a mob of bandits, and heard them shouting 'Kill! kill!'

"I ran back to my quarters, got my wife and children over the fence and helped them to a place of safety. Mr. Van Schoick did likewise. When we returned the mission safe lay literally smashed to bits on the ground. The bandits had scattered it with immense stones and then piled it apart with crowbars. The absence of money secured when the plunder does not equal their expectations they seize the person of one of their victims, blindfold him, lead him about in a circle and at last carry him off to the mountains where they send messages demanding a ransom."

Another attack on Christian missionaries which called forth a protest from Germany, and which lost to China the valuable port of Tsin-Tau, which was seized by that government in default of the prompt payment of an indemnity, was that which resulted in the murder of some German priests and the looting of a German mission at Shan-Tung.

The trouble which led up to this murder started in May, 1891, when two puns who belonged to this mission were maltreated by a mob of Boxers, who charged them with bewitching children. The naps escaped with slight injuries, but the depredations were continued, and the mission stations throughout the province were plundered, and then came the murder of the priests.

dispatched to punish them had returned victorious; he degraded the officers of the troops and sent a report to Peking in which he said that the so-called rebels which the troops had attacked were merely an aggregation of honest country people who had been massacred without right or warrant upon the instigation of the foreign powers.

"Thus, at a single stroke," writes Henry D. Porter, of Peking-Chung, in a communication to the Outlook, "the governor paralyzed the action of every official, making it impossible for them to act as they clearly saw was best. The leaders who had slunk away after the fight quickly discovered that the governor was on their side, and within two weeks every man of them was in his place again."

But little better results can be looked for from the present attempt to suppress this society of bandits and murderers now with far more than one-half of the force of soldiery that is moving against them composed of members of the society that is committing the outrages, and the day may not be far distant when foreign troops will be landed to guard foreign missions in China and another step in the disintegration of the ancient empire will have been taken.

So far the only punishments meted out has been to a few of the leaders whose heads have been cut off and hung in cages on the highways as a warning to others to desist from their plunderings, but it would take thousands of such punishments to prove an effective cure among a society with 11,000,000 members.

A Boy and a File.

If a boy has any "mechanical faculty" if it comes to him to use tools, let him be thankful. Such a gift of nature—"gumption" it is sometimes called—should be cultivated. It will serve its possessor many a good turn, though it may never serve him quite as well as it served a man who tells his story in The Cleveland Plain Dealer. He opened a door for himself in a really striking manner.

"When I was 14 years old," he says, "it became necessary for me to go out in the world and earn my share in the family expenses. I looked about with small success for a week or two, and then I saw a card hanging in a store window, 'Boy Wanted.'

"I pulled down my hair, brushed the front of my jacket, and walked in. 'Do you want a boy?' I asked of the clerk.

"'Back office,' he said. 'I walked back to the little den with a high partition around it, and pushing open a door, which I noticed was slightly ajar, cap in hand, I stepped in.

"It was a chilly day in November, and before I spoke to the proprietor, who was bending over a desk, I who was slightly ajar, cap in hand, I stepped in. It was only last fall that this attempt was made to put a stop to the atrocities of the society, and the futile attempts at that time promise to be repeated. Now, the governor of the province who was ordered to proceed against the bandits proved more of a friend than enemy to them, for after the troops which he had

BURDENED WOMEN.

We look in amazement at the burdens some women carry upon their heads. Yet how light they are compared with the burdens some women carry upon their hearts. There are countless women whose hearts ache ceaselessly because of the childless home. That burden of childlessness has been lifted from the heart of many a woman by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Many of the obstacles to maternity are removable. Such obstacles are entirely removed by "Favorite Prescription." It contains no alcohol nor narcotic.

Married Six Years and Childless.

"I have never written you how grateful I am to you for your help in securing good health and one of the sweetest, dearest, thirteen pound girls that ever came into a home," writes Mrs. M. Vantine, of 44 South Liberty Street, Galesburg, Ill. "I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the Golden Medical Dietetic Food, and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Before I had taken four bottles of the Favorite Prescription I was a new woman. I cannot make pen describe my heartfelt gratitude, so will close by saying if any one doubts the value of Dr. Pierce's medicines I will be pleased to confirm the truth of all I say if they will enclose stamped envelope for reply."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a ladies' laxative. No medicine equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

ROUGH ON CROKER

An English Paper Scorches the Tammany Boss

For Permitting the Reception to the Boer Delegates in New York.

London, May 15.—The Express advocates the ostracism of Richard Croker in England in revenge for Tammany's attitude on the Anglo-Boer war. It says: "It has not escaped notice in this country that American welcome to the Boer delegates has been inspired by Tammany Hall, controlled by the notorious Richard Croker. The records of Tammany are already black enough without the addition of this new infamy. But what makes the action of Tammany peculiarly infamous is the fact that Croker claims the hospitality of an English domicile, passes as an English country gentleman and runs race horses on the English turf, thus aiding and encouraging the worst of England's enemies. Croker's position is practically on all fours with that of the Duke of Orleans, except that perhaps he does not gaily that taint of personal uncleanness which made his highness of Orleans unfit to associate with his respectable fellow-creatures."

"Croker apparently desires to qualify as an English land-owner by encouraging the voters whom he controls in New York to express sympathy with men who are engaged in shooting the sons and brothers of other English land owners. This may be American politics, but it may be doubted whether it will commend itself to the members of those clubs which Croker has hitherto frequented or Englishmen who live in the home. If Croker finds that the brazen air of the United States does not invariably suit his constitution, he should secure the calm seclusion of an Italian villa."

Hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Henry Marshall, entered St.
Joseph's hospital on Saturday. Her friends will be pleased to learn she is better to-day.

Thos. Brady, Jr., a student of the Detroit College of Medicine, has entered the office of Drs. Holmes & Mc-Keough, in order to continue his studies in the practical branches of the profession he has adopted.

A congregational meeting was held in Christ Church, lecture hall last night, which was well attended. The auditor's report was received, and adopted, and the salaries fixed at the same as last year. A plan for increasing the annual revenue by $1,000 a year was discussed and approved of.

Geo. Moorings, in the employ of the New York Equitable Life Insurance Co., is in Ontario appointing agents for the company, he represents. In Chatham yesterday he fell in with Lewis Andrews and J. E. Johnston. In the rainy days of Port Arthur the three gentlemen named were amongst its leading citizens and they spent an agreeable time recalling their old business associations in the town on the north shore of Lake Superior.

MRS. RONALD DEAD.

The remains of the late Mrs. James Ronald, Sr., were brought to this city from Windsor this afternoon and reverently laid to rest in Maple Leaf Cemtery. Mrs. Ronald was well known in Chatham, she having resided here for some 35 years. About 40 years ago James Ronald, a retired Detroit merchant, and his family came to this city to live. The boys of the family engaged in business and the name is still well known here.

The children surviving are John G.
Ronald, of Brussels, and James Ronald, Mrs. Robert Adams, and Mrs. Andrew Hyslop, of Windsor. There is another sister, Ellen, married, near Brussels, and the youngest of the family is married to a wholesale crockery merchant of Milwaukee.

BOERS ARE GONE.

They Have Abandoned the Defence of Biggersberg.

More Abuse of the White Flag—Mafeking is Still Safe.

London, May 16.—The war office posts the following from Gen. Buller:
"Dundee, May 16.—We occupied Glencoe yesterday. The Transvaalers have now evacuated the Biggersberg. The Frontiers of the Drakensberg are much reduced in numbers. The Carolina, Lydenberg and Pretoria commandoes trekked north from Hat-kulu May 13 and 14. Eleven guns were entrained at Glencoe. The last train, with ambulance, left at dawn May 15.
This result has been largely produced by the action of the fifth division, which, during the last few days, has done a great deal of very hard work, marching, mountain-climbing and reconnoitering. Trains are now running to Weesels nek station."

MORE BOER TREACHERY.

The war office also gives out this from Roberts:

"Kroonstadt, May 15.—Two officers and six men of Prince Albert's Guard, being arranged, at which prominent local speakers, including the trustees, will deliver addresses. The observation of the day at the Central school promises to be an exceedingly fine one."

BIG FIRE AT ST. CATHARINES.

St. Catharines, May 16.—The Wellandvale Works were burned here to-day, entailing a loss of about half a million dollars.
This concern which manufactured axes, garden tools, bicycles, etc., was principally owned by Wm. Chaplin and employed about 400 hands who are thrown out of employment.

At Ronciglione, Italy, on the Lake of Vico, during a celebration of the feast of St. Lucie, two boats filled with young people capsized while returning from the chapel, within 300 yards of the landing stage. Thirty or forty people were drowned.

The inquest into the death of Mrs.
Christina Charlton, who died at Carlisle last week, was conducted by Coroner Anderson, of Ailsa Craig. The jury's verdict was—"That the deceased, Christina Charlton, came to her death by reason of the improper medical treatment administered by Victor
B. Hall." Hall calls himself a "vita-list," whatever that is.

What a Tale it Tells.

If that mirror of yours shows a wretched, sallow complexion, a jaun-diced look, moth patches and blotches on the skin, it's liver trouble; but Dr.
King's New Life Pills regulate the liver, purify the blood, give clear skin, rosy cheeks, rich complexion. Only

Apparently, Lord Roberts is still waiting at Kroonstadt, preparatory to making a swift movement on the Vaal river.

DR. THOMAS O'HAGAN AT "THE PINES."

On Tuesday, the well-known lecturer, poet and lecturer, Dr. O'Hagan, M. A., Ph.
D., of Toronto, delivered a most interesting and brilliant lecture on "Charles Dickens, before the sisters and pupils of the Ursuline Academy of 'The Pines.' From one of Dr.
O'Hagan's delighted audience we have the following—

"The members of the 'Reading Circle' at The Pines were beginning to feel that they had at last broken the ground for the sowing—that they had put their spirits in touch so to speak, with the world-enobling subject—literature, when to their great joy, it was announced that Dr. O'Hagan had come to give his accustomed lecture in St.
St. Cecilia's Hall.

In the treatment of his subject, which was as sympathetic as it was broad and scholarly, the gifted lecturer gave an instructive and admirable literary perspective of England and America at the time that the famous novelist and moralist, Dickens, was born. In an interesting and charming manner Dr. O'Hagan contrasted the works of Dickens with those of Scott and Thackeray, and pointed out the great novelist's intimate and profound knowledge of human nature, his wonderful power of characterization and his accurate description of things. The doctor's vocal interpretations of character were particularly admired and nothing is more deeply etched upon our minds than the delicate pathos with which he read from "Bleak House" the death of Little Joe.
While paying the highest tribute to Dr. O'Hagan as a writer, philosopher, linguist and literary critic, we must not fail to add that he charmed us most of all by his simplicity of manner and diction, which, after all, forms the true element of greatness and makes us appreciate the more the wisdom of Aristotle, who was wont to say, "Think with the learned and speak as the simple."

Edith Norton

One of Life's Tangles
By Josie R. Nicholls.

"But," he added bitterly, "it was destined to be disappointed. Dreams! foolishness! the deceiving hopefulness of youth! And yet, if it were not for these illusions which one of us could endure to live an hour?"
He spoke with bitter vehemence. "Oh," she said gently, "you have had so much more to bear than I. I am impatient under a little suffering when perhaps there is a reason why it should be."
"Child," exclaimed Egerton passionately, "if I had met you a few years ago perhaps these dreams would not have been mere illusions, perhaps the dawning trust in humanity, based upon a firm foundation, would have strengthened, perhaps I would not have yielded to a blind infatuation and rushed madly on the eve of parting with her made him seize this last chance of pouring forth his real feelings unrestrained, and almost effected a disclosure."
She saw the stern contraction of feature relax under his forcible self-control, and presently he turned to her with a smile.

"Little girl," he said tenderly, "you have made me think, and I thank you again as I did before, though it has wakened memories which had best be left in oblivion. Aspirations had better die than stumble upon ungenerality. And yet you have stirred in me thoughts which I feel cannot be hushed into silence. I have long lost sight of what you are seeking. I should like to hear of it when I am far away. I should be glad to know another had attained what it is now too late for me to seek."
He did not observe how pale she had grown at this hint of separation, but continued meditatively.
"Strange! but I feel as though you were kin to me, nearer perhaps than the ties of blood. Do you know I came here this afternoon hoping to find you alone, for I could not but be good by before the evening. I have long forwarded from Florida which demands my immediate return to Booneville."

"She did not move while he pronounced the words," she cried, shuddering as if some specter was near. She had sunk upon the camp-stool once more, hiding her face in her hands. The shadows of evening, as well as the dense foliage of the orchard, screened them from observation. Egerton knelt down beside her, saying in a whisper: "If we are so much to each other why need we be separated long?"
But she started at his touch, the movement towards appropriation revealing that she might no longer receive his consolation and yet conceal her secret.
"No, no," she cried, drawing away. "You must not—I cannot—I cannot tell you!" for the confession of her unconscious love had placed her in his power, and he claimed his own.
"Speak to me, dearest. You must!" and with the gentleness was mingled an authority that was irresistible. Disregarding her refusal, her protestations that she could not tell him her reason, slowly, cautiously he drew from her the truth. Almost without words he read the meaning, and meeting the heart-sick weariness with loving response, won her in that hour of excitement to reveal those facts in her history which she thought she could never breathe to any one for her burning shame. Little did she dream how that childish confidence added fuel to the passion of the man she trusted, removing the last scruple from his hesitating conscience. She only realized that to him the shadow that lay upon her life did not matter, that it could make no change in his affection, and she clung to him with a passionate fervor.

"Dearest," he said, when she had wept herself quiet in his arms, "we are bound to each other by every law of affinity. We were destined for each other from the first moment we met, and nothing shall keep us apart, nothing!" He set his teeth firmly together and was silent, as if laying some plan of resolution. When he spoke again his words were calm and collected.

"I must go to Booneville to-morrow, but I shall not be absent more than a few weeks. Some matters there require my personal superintendence. There are some things," he continued, as she looked up inquiringly, "that I cannot tell you, some things whose existence I wish I could obliterate. But let us not dwell upon what is disagreeable. For the present I must ask you to say nothing of our—our engagement to your family. They have no claim upon you, and besides, when I come again I may be forced to come in secret. Will my Edith be prepared to meet me when and wherever it may be?"

His voice trembled as he put the question, and she looked up inquiringly again, while a shadow of perplexity crossed her face. The next instant it cleared, and in a triumph of faith and self-resignation she laid both hands in his. "I have promised. You can do what you please, Dr. Egerton."

Never did Egerton thrill with such exquisite happiness as when her soft hands rested in his, but he stooped to avoid the trusting light of her eyes. "Say, Dudley, my darling," he whispered, and with a half-sweet, half-unlawful pleasure echoing in his ears, they rose from that parting embrace and walked together to the house.

There was nothing to betray what had passed between them except the vivid flush in Edith's cheeks as they approached.
Mr. Steele was standing upon the piazza.
As if a thunderbolt had fallen at his feet Egerton started at sight of the minister, but he turned to the minister, and with a half-sweet, half-unlawful pleasure echoing in his ears, they rose from that parting embrace and walked together to the house.

what a fateful experience she was entering that night as she stood with her elbows resting on the bureau, gazing at her own reflection in the mirror. It was not herself she was looking at, but something he had called his own. A consecrating touch had been laid upon her features, and murmuring "Mrs. Egerton," she turned away with a deep blush.

Could the doctor have heard that low whisper his face would have glowed with real shame for the trust he was betraying.

CHAPTER X.
A STARTLING REVELATION.

When Edith awoke next morning after a night of happy dreams, it was with the feeling that she had been touched by a divine hand. She had waked to womanhood in that short period, and was laying hold of the mystery of life through meditation upon the personality of the man she loved, the being who represented to her all humanity. Every distinctive trait in Egerton's character was studied and lingered over rapturously, the exquisite tenderness towards herself in opposition to those sterner moods of which she had caught glimpses, dark shadows of the soul which made her tremble. There was an intangible something about their relationship which made her afraid. Her bosom fluttered as if terrified by its own deep joy, and between the alternating of the shrinking and yearning, the meaning of the lesson Love was teaching, that only in his arms might these unreasoning emotions subside into confident happiness and rest.

The identity of this experience was enhanced by long devoted letters from the minister, abounding in protestations of the repose he found in her nature, of the inspiration her religious enthusiasm had exerted upon his unbelief, and more and more she yielded up her soul through the easy medium of letter-writing, and not once did she question the right to this private correspondence with the doctor. She held herself responsible to him alone, and since he had wished nothing said about their engagement she had promised him to obey, trust him and wait. To this end she contrived to receive the mail before any one else by wandering out into the cotton fields to meet the carrier on the days he passed.

If Egerton had thought her lovely before he should have seen her face as she leaned across the fence in eager anticipation of his letter, or, when having dispatched her attendant waiting maid to the house down the other mail, she would sink down beneath the nearest tree to read her own treasure, while the evening breeze kissed her glowing cheeks and blew the tending little curls about her forehead. The chorus of negro voices would rouse her finally from her reverie, and through the twilight would emerge the plantation wagons laden with cotton, drawn by the heavy, swaying motion of the oxen. Then Mr. White would appear, walking with his swinging gait to the gin house, the keys in hand, to receive and weigh the produce of his negro fields. Another day had come to its close, to most a day of commonplace events, but to her an era of dreaming bliss. If those four weeks, so brief, yet spanning their impress indelibly upon the future, were sweetness was full of growth and development. The agencies of Pain and Pleasure are so inextricably blended in their operations that they cannot be separated. Though the tender leavens of spring must lie dry and withered at last, yet for that reason, will say that spring should not put forth its power! As the plant is strengthened and enlarged by each tendency outward of the vital force within, though these beautiful emanations are destined to fade and perish each year, yet their office of nourishment has been fulfilled, so the heart is fed and matured by each reaching out of the affections. Through these its elements leaves, its growth, the sun, the shine and dew of existence, and though forced to yield the instruments up one by one their work is not lost, even in death they continue to enliven its existence, and returning again to their source, prepare the soul for nobler duties and higher loves.

THE TREATMENT THAT CURES

Drs. Shultz and Camelon's New Treatment, that has lifted the darkness and blight of the word "incurable" from hundreds of these cases of disease in the Throat, Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, works its curative action for two reasons:

(1) It reaches every sore spot, from the orifice of the nose to the innermost recesses of the middle ear.
(2) Instead of irritating, inflaming and feeding the fires of the disease, it soothes, quiets, heals and cures.
What is the treatment that cures these conditions, once regarded incurable? By what process does it restore diseased membranes, remove the poison and relieve the soreness of disease? Let the experience of persons cured and being cured, tell.

BLOOD BELCHED
From the Lungs of John C. Loss, of Vassar, Mich.

"I became so weak," says Mr. Loss, "that the least excitement would throw me into a cold perspiration, and I would take additional cold. While sitting at my desk one afternoon something seemed to give way, and I felt my lungs fill up. I gave a little cough, and threw out GREAT MOUTHFULS OF BLOOD." Mr. Loss will tell enquirers that after he had been reduced to what he believed a hopeless condition, through frequent hemorrhages, he submitted his case to Doctors Shultz and Camelon, who soon restored him to perfect health.

REV. MOSES C. STANLEY;
Aged 71 years, of 31 Milwaukee avenue, was cured of severe deafness by Doctors Shultz and Camelon.

MRS. M. BRAUER.
of 25 Second street, had a hairbreadth escape from being killed by a street car, because she was so deaf she didn't hear it coming. She has been entirely cured of deafness and chronic catarrh.

P. B. BRAZEL, of Cheboygan, Mich., got little sleep, because of catarrh of the head. Doctors Shultz and Camelon removed 12 polyps from his nose without pain to him, and he has been relieved of all the miseries of catarrh.

ENGINEER C. B. MAXSON, of 163 St. Antoine street, thought he heard whistles and bells when he didn't. Since treating with Doctors Shultz and Camelon he can hear as well as ever.

AUGUST SCHULTZ, of Wyandotte, was choking and gasping with asthma, when he went to Doctors Shultz and Camelon. He hadn't had a good night's sleep for 10 years. Now he is as well as ever.

MRS. ALEX. RIVARD.
New Baltimore: "I had been a long and great sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia. Bread soaked in milk was about all that I could eat. I frequently had fainting spells and convulsions. I have been entirely cured and I have gained 33 pounds in weight."

DOWN COMES BREAD.

The bakers at their meeting last evening decided to make pound and a half loaves and sell them at 3 1/2 cents to the grocers and retail them at 4c. It was decided to adopt this course to complete successfully and undersell the London bread. Although it had been decided not to sell at 3 1/2 cents till tomorrow, a number of bakers took the initiative this morning, and as a result, are selling 2-lb. loaves to-day for 3 1/2 cents to the grocers and 4c retail.

SOME STATISTICS

Which Favorably Compare the C.C.I. With Similar Institutes

In Other Cities—The Maximum of Results for the Minimum of Expenditure.

From the report of the minister of education for the year, 1899, with the statistics of 1898, we glean the following:—The city grants to the following Collegiate Institutes and number of pupils enrolled respectively, for the year 1898, were as follows:

Brantford, $9,000; 336 pupils.
Peterboro, $7,300; 276 pupils.
Brookville, $6,300; 331 pupils.
Windsor, $5,701; 294 pupils.
St. Catharines, $5,500; 292 pupils.
Guelph, $5,382; 263 pupils.
St. Thomas, $5,271; 394 pupils.
Chatham, $5,025; 347 pupils.

The average city grant for the seven Collegiate Institutes above, not counting Chatham, is $6,350; Chatham's grant was $5,025, i.e., $1,325 less than the average. The average number of pupils enrolled for these schools is 310; Chatham had 349, pupils, i.e., 39 more pupils than the average. The examination record in the second year in the province. In the same year Chatham C. I. pupils won 15 first class honors at the University Matriculation examination—a record surpassing that of all the other schools in the province but London C. I., which has 17 to its credit. The first class honors were, three in English, three in mathematics, two in classics, four in history, two in French, and one in German. Besides, Chatham had 22 successful candidates at the Junior leaving, or second-class teachers' examination, ranking fourth in this respect among the 37 collegiate institutes of the province. This result may fairly be called "a maximum of results and a minimum of expenditure," and reflects credit upon the staff of our Collegiate Institute.

FOR A LICENSE

North Chatham Business Men Unanimously Sign a Petition to the Commissioners.

The business men of North Chatham have prepared a petition which has been largely signed and will be forwarded to the license commissioners to-night. Thos. O'Rourke, of the firm of Blonde Bros. & Co., has the petition in hand. It reads as follows:

To the License Commissioners of West Kent, Chatham:

Gentlemen,—We, the undersigned, regret to learn that your honorable board has seen fit to refuse license to Emily A. Bechard, of the Aberdeen House, situate at the corner of St. Clair and Head Sts., North Chatham. This being the only hotel near this thriving part of our city, where we have quite a large delivery of grain and farm produce, doing a large trade in merchandise, lumber, lime, coal, etc., with the people of the townships of Dover and Chatham, and while they are trading with us, and bringing in their grain and farm produce, it is the only public house where the farmers can get their meals, stabling for their horses, etc., and we feel that if this house should be closed up it would be a great detriment to our business, and we would most respectfully request that your honorable board would reconsider and grant license to the said Aberdeen House in favor of the said Emily A. Bechard.

Trusting you will grant our request, and thereby confer a favor on this (Signed)

Early Closing

The general public is not supposed to care what a store does so long as it don't neglect its business.

There is no established rule of authority,—nothing to bind any merchant to traditional ways and methods and new ideas are always welcome, we have found, in over a dozen years of experience, provided they are practical and further the general good.

We believe from experience that early closing brings about better store service, and, believing this, we close our store every night in the week at six o'clock, except on Saturday and the day before a holiday.

There are times when this general rule requires an exception, but that's the general rule here as firmly adhered to as our rules in violate of cash and one price and no misrepresentation.
