JAPAN SHOWED FAITH

Reasons War Was Declared is Announced To-day.

Peace of Far East Was in State of Jeopardy.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

In the Japanese Diet to-day, Premier Okuma, speaking briefly said regarding the war with Germany, that he believed the world thoroughly understood the reasons leading thereto.

"As all are aware of the agreement, the ally between Japan and Great Britain has for its object the maintenance of general peace in eastern Asia, insuring the independence and integrity of China as well as the principle of equal opportunities for commerce and industry of all nations in that country."

Germany's possession of a base for powerful activities in one corner of the far East was not only a serious obstacle to the maintenance of permanent peace, but it also conflicted with the interests of the Japanese empire.

"Desiring, however, to solve the situation by pacific means, the Imperial Government on August 15 gave the following advice to the German Government: (Here Baron Kato read the text of the ultimatum communicated to Germany on that date.)"

"While regretting that Japan is compelled to take up arms against Germany, I am happy in the belief that the army and navy of our illustrious sovereign will not fail to show the same loyalty and valour with which they have distinguished themselves in the past, so that all may be blessed with an early restoration of peace."

GERMAN ARROW IS PIERCED FARTHER INTO THE DEFENCE

Disappointment in Britain When it Was Thought Onward Advance of Enemy Had Been Checked - The Situation To-day.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Sept. 4.—11.55 p.m.—What has been described as the arrowhead of the German army, which has been slowly forcing its way through the Anglo-French armies toward Paris has made further progress, according to the German official issued to-day and has now driven the allies back behind Comde.

La Fere has been captured without resistance, says the German statement and with the exception of (name deleted) which is now being attacked, and Maubeuge, which the Germans have masked, the outpost forts are now in the hands of the invaders.

"The allies take some consolation from the fact that the Russian defeat of the Austrians around Lemberg, which town has fallen into the hands of the Russian emperor's army, with its immense stock of war material and provisions is apparently complete. The possession of Lemberg gives the Russians a base from which they can attack in the rear the adds. The Germans have shown no superiority in artillery or transport."

SUFFOLK HOVERS NEAR NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The British cruiser Suffolk was sighted five miles southwest of Ambrose lightship this forenoon. Observers at Atlantic Highlands said she was headed in.

Austrian army which has been invading Russian territory. In a battle lasting almost a fortnight the Austrians have suffered terrible losses, 12,000 having fallen in one place alone, while the Russian general claims to have taken thousands of prisoners and 200 guns.

Belgium, which saw so many battles during the early stages of the war, is again the scene of fighting. German advances indicate that the Germans are completing a half circle around Antwerp.

Information has reached England that seven of the German destroyers which the British fleet engaged off Heligoland Bight and which escaped in a damaged condition, when three cruisers and two destroyers were sunk, have reached Kiel.

Besides the Prince of Wales fund for the relief of the dependents of soldiers, other funds are being raised for those who have been thrown out of work through the war. Queen Mary yesterday appealed for money to provide work for women and to-day she received $100,000, among the subscribers being Lady Strathcona, who gave $25,000, Andrew Carnegie, who donated $5,000 and half a dozen others who contributed similar amounts.

LOSSES OF WAR ARE AN ENORMOUS TOTAL

LONDON, Sept. 3. 09 a.m.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Gisors, a French town near Beauvais, estimates the total losses of the allies 40,000, and the losses of the Germans at 200,000. He says a moderate estimate of the German losses places them at 20 per cent. at least.

SCHOOLS CLOSED. PARIS, Sept. 5.—12:10 p.m.—All the public schools of Paris have been ordered closed until further notice. The reason for this is the occupation of these buildings, chiefly for hospitals. The school teachers will remain in the service of the state.

WAR SUMMARY

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

The English public, hungry for news of the operations of the allied armies in the western theatre of the war, has to-day to content itself with the brief official communications issued from Paris. These only wet the appetite.

Military experts believe that the Germans are preparing for a grand assault upon Paris in the hope of battering down the defences of the capital. This is because the investment of Paris, while the huge armies of the allies is outside the city, would not appear to be a logical part of the swift German campaign.

News of the withdrawal of the German troops toward the Prussian frontier is not generally credited here, for the reason that with their supreme effort in the west as a primary object, the Germans are hardly likely to weaken their forces.

News from northern Belgium indicates that the Belgian troops are recovering from the grueling fighting inflicted upon them by the German invaders, and are resuming their activities.

In some quarters the belief prevails that the German plans of campaign may be radically changed by the Austrian disasters, but in spite of this most observers are of the opinion that Germany must try to continue her advance in the west without considering the misfortunes of her ally.

There is no indication that the allies in the west intend to assume the offensive. On the other hand the indications are that before the Germans capture Paris every effort will be made to render it a barren triumph by leading the Germans from position to position in a series of real gyaed actions until the invaders are exhausted.

The first official communication from the new capital of France at Bordeaux indicates the failure of a German flanking movement, evidently intended to cut the left wing of the allies.

SIR EDWARD GREY MAKES STATEMENT TO CONSTITUENTS

LONDON, Sept. 5.—In a letter which was read at a meeting of his constituents in Berwick last night, Sir Edward Grey, minister of foreign affairs, made the following report on the war situation: "When our sincere, strenuous efforts to prevent an European war failed, we would gladly have stood aside had it been possible but we were bound to make the observation of Belgian neutrality one of the conditions of our own neutrality. The German Government asked us to waive that condition and condone the violation of a solemn treaty. There could be but one honourary answer to such a request. Had we assented still and ignored Belgium's appeal we should, indeed, have been detested by our friends and despised by our enemies."

CAPTURED 5,000. PARIS, Sept. 5, via London 1 p.m.—How a German force of 5,000 men massed in front of a French fort at Luneville, was surprised and mowed down by the French artillery has been related to a correspondent of the Journal at Cete by the German commander who is now a prisoner at Cete. The Germans were suddenly surprised by the French artillery, the German officer relates which bombarded them for two hours with such deadly effect that only 300 men were left. The commander held a conference with the 21 officers remaining and it was ultimately decided to hoist the white flag, all resistance having become impossible.

Courier Will be Issued Monday

Owing to the pressing nature of war news and the possibility of interesting developments arising any moment in the situation in Europe, the Courier will issue a paper at noon on Monday (Labor Day). It will contain the very latest news in regard to the war situation up to 12 o'clock.

The Petrograd war office now estimates that the Russian victories in Galicia and the Serbian victory at Jadar have so crippled the forces of the dual monarchy that only ten Russian corps are needed to keep Austria in check. This releases twenty-one corps for the invasion of Germany.

If Paris is in the effect already has been more or less discounted in London, the war office has managed to convey the impression to the public that the capture of the capital means only the prolongation of the war. This phase of the situation brought home to the British public has unquestionably stimulated recruiting.

There is no indication that the allies in the west intend to assume the offensive. On the other hand the indications are that before the Germans capture Paris every effort will be made to render it a barren triumph by leading the Germans from position to position in a series of real gyaed actions until the invaders are exhausted.

NOT A RETREAT BUT A PANIC FOR AUSTRILIANS IN LEMBERG BATTLE

Hundreds of Guns and Thousands of Prisoners Were Captured by the Russians—Enemy in Utter Rout.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The correspondent of The Daily Telegraph in Moscow sends a story of the fighting in Galicia, given him by an officer who was wounded in the battles near Tomasz and Lublin. The story follows: "The battle lasted three days. The Austrian left wing with mitrailleuses took the offensive on our right flank, but in a short time our infantry put all the Austrian officers hors de combat, thus put the enemy in a panic."

Russia is now able to despatch considerable forces to Lublin and the prospect is that this will probably force the Austrians' main army to fall back on the strong fortresses of Przemyśl, Jaroslavl and Cracow, whereby the Russians will recover those parts of Poland occupied by the Austrians and the fertile eastern part of Galicia up to the Carpathians.

It is reported that the Austrians are busy fortifying the hills near Gordowa, 17 miles west of Lemberg. This is a very strong position with its front on four lakes extending 12 miles north and south, and it is probable that it is here that the remains of the beaten Austrian arm is concentrating.

HEADLONG PLUNGE TO PARIS SEEMINGLY IMPOSSIBLE TO STOP

Regardless of Loss and Risk Germans in Great Hurry to Reach City Before Berlin is Attacked by the Russian Invaders.

[By Special Wire to the Courier]

LONDON, Sept. 5.—2.50 a.m.—The correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company at Ferrieres, a town near Paris, sends the following: "Our men though cheerful are angry at the continued retreat. They don't understand the necessity for it. They are all amazed at the unending numbers of the Germans. They say: 'The more you kill of them, the more there are of them, but if we ever get them in the opening its good night.'"

"The fighting along the line of the German advance has been incessant and desperate. I sold a horse the other day to an officer of Dragoon. I showed him the only horse I had for sale with the warning that the animal was not in the best condition. 'Hang it,' said the officer, 'he will last four days, and that's about my average since the war began.' He had already had four horses shot under him."

"The war is very hard on the horses, and the condition of some of the poor beasts which I have seen passing southwards towards Paris would better not be described. Nevertheless the army is still fit in every sense of the word and its transport is intact and fills the road with a column of motor vans nearly six miles long."

"Our soldiers are all right, but the people whom we pity are the thousands of refugees who have been swept up and blown away by the marching armies like chaff before the wind. The country which the armies have passed is devastated. Dynamited bridges and tunnels mark the retreat of the allies, and blazing villages mark the advance of the Germans. The harvest is now almost in and the French would do well to destroy the crops themselves rather than leave it to the enemy."

"The weather has been splendid, blazing hot days add perfect moonlight nights—ideal holiday moon have not been wasted by the Germans, who go forward by night, as well as by day. Many a kilometre has been gained on the road to Paris under the harvest moon, but for which the men would have been sleeping."

"That the Germans are in a great hurry is evident. They advance regardless of risks and sacrifices, crushing down resistance by the weight of numbers and carried forward by the hope of striking a mortal blow at the western foe before the eastern enemy is at the gates of Berlin. The speed, the way they advance, is the cause of constant wonder, to people who know the country and the distances."

"At a village which was full of troops a few days ago, no attempt was made to halt them. The allies troops fell back and save for rear guard actions, the Germans seemingly marched from La Fore to the lines of Paris, unopposed."

"The march of the German right on Paris is notable for its straight course as well as its cyclonic speed and force. Leaving Lille, Arras, Amiens and Beauvais untouched they have marched like an arrow's flight, deviating neither to the right nor left. The official military map of military operations shows the area of German operations moving southward in a line from Lille to Compeigne, a line which is almost mathematically straight. West of the line, the Germans practically have not been seen."

At Beauvais, where I stopped this morning, the town and country sides were wrapped in infinite peace. Two stray Uhlans had been captured there a few days ago, but otherwise no enemy had ut in an appearance. The trains now run no nearer than Courmayeur-En-Bray, 17 miles west by north of Beauvais, but the road between the two places and thence to Meru and Beaumont is clear, although the enemy is so near. There was fighting at Clermont two days ago and the sound of cannonading has been heard occasionally at Beauvais. The strong French force, which has been for a long time posted along the river, left that place Tuesday."

In all the towns along the road the mobilization of the French territorial army is in full swing and the trains are packed with serivists and recruits going to war or with fugitives fleeing away from the war."

BAILEY-SHILDRICK

On Thursday afternoon, Sept. 3rd, a very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Phipps, 29 Fair avenue, when Miss Cora M. Shildrick and Mr. W. Gordon Bailey, second son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Bailey, Terrace Hill Street, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. E. E. Sheppard of Hamilton.

At one o'clock the bride who was beautifully gowned in white voile with shadow lace, and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses, entered the parlor on the arm of her cousin, Mr. J. A. Phipps, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Ena Bailey, sister of the groom. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey led the way to the dining room, where a very dainty lunch was served.

Mrs. Bailey left on the four o'clock train for Detroit, amid the good wishes and congratulations of her many friends. The bride wore a tailored costume of brown broadcloth with plush hat to match. On their return the will reside at 29 Fair avenue. The number of beautiful and costly presents showered upon the young couple testify to the system in which they are held by a wide circle of friends.

The French lines were reported to be still falling back before the Germans.

Archdeacon's Trip.
Mr. W. E. Foster, of St. Jude's church has just received word of the safe arrival on July 16th, of Archdeacon Whittaker and family at Fort McPherson. Mr. Whittaker reports that they had a most trying trip. After leaving Athabasca Landing, they were 5 weeks in going 500 miles. The weather was fine but not often nearly 90 degrees in the shade, and the mosquitoes very bad. Mr. Whittaker's new boat struck a rock, and filled with water, causing much damage to it and loss of goods. The water in the river was so low that he had to leave the boat and go on a scow. The extra expense in shipping goods was $15 per cwt. It will be remembered that Mr. Whittaker left Toronto for the Arctic Circle about April 15, thus being on the road for three months. They slept on the ground for a month and often on tables or bales of goods. Their many friends will be glad to hear of their safe and most sympathetic with them in their losses.

Owing to the pressure upon the Drill Hall at the present time the Dragoons will drill there only once a week, and that will in future be on Wednesday evening and not Thursday as heretofore.

Five Sections Now Done.
There are now five sections of the books in the public library arranged. Special prominence will be given to the medical section, which was made possible by the kindness of Dr. Kippax. His works will be kept intact in their section, which will be one easy of access.

May Go to Front.
An interesting letter received today from England from Mr. Ran Wilkes, states that his troop of The King Edward Horse are confidently looking forward to being sent to the front in the course of the next two or three weeks. He reports that Englishmen of all classes are enlisting by the tens of thousands.

Things Getting Normal.
Mr. T. E. Baker of this city, who is the foreign representative here of the big manufacturing firm of Baker & Son, London, has received letters and cables reporting that business in England is commencing to assume normal proportions. His firm expects this month to ship $200,000 worth of goods to foreign countries. All trade routes are being opened up.

Recruiting For Dragoons.
The recruiting season for the 25th Brant Dragoons is now open, and it is hoped there will be a good response to the effort to bring the regiment up to strength. As there is a shortage of non-commissioned officers, ex-cavalrymen of the Imperial Army who would be willing to qualify will be welcomed. Squadron drill starts next Tuesday at the armories.

Surplus for Fund.
The Brantford and Brant County Patriotic Association, have decided that any surplus from the annual show will be donated to the Patriotic Fund. They are in doubt as to where they will hold this year's exhibition which is usually held in the Drill Hall. It is probable that this will not be available this year and hence the members are undecided as to where it will be held during November.

Garbage Nuisance.
Inspector Glover gives a note of warning which might well be noted. He asks that all garbage cans be covered up in order to prevent rain rotting the contents. For some time the decay in the garbage cans owing to them being uncovered has been most offensive and the men are commencing to deliver in a most convincing manner, a very helpful sermon.

Patriotic League Meeting.
A meeting of those interested in the work of Patriotic relief, was held last night in the City Hall. It was originally intended to elect officers for the organized Aid Society, who had been nominated by a committee already selected for that purpose. A long discussion was held upon the means and means of relieving the distressed during the coming winter and its probable extent and expense was gone into. A duration of the city will be urged and decided upon. The election of officers, however, did not take place, as it was felt by those present that the meeting was not fully representative and that it had not been fully and widely enough advertised. Therefore the principal business was postponed until next Friday night, for which date a general meeting of all citizens interested is called, and will probably take place in the Y. W. C. A. All societies interested in the activities and desirous of uniting, are asked to be present.

WHY NOT?
LONDON, Sept. 5, 4.06 a.m.—A despatch to The Express from Stockholm says that the name of the German Emperor has been stricken from the list of nominations for the next Nobel Peace Prize.

Two More Brantford Men Got Away Last Night for Camp.

There was no band and no vast crowds to send off two more volunteers who left for Valcartier this morning. They were Sergeant Maich, and Sergeant Howarth, both experienced men of the 2nd Battery. They are both married men and leave small families. Maich resides upon Strathcona avenue and Howarth upon Park Hill Survey, Grand View. They have gone to join the Royal Horse Artillery at the camp which has been re-opening up to war strength.

They were suitably honored last night when the whole of the 2nd Battery held a convivial little supper at the Tea Pot Inn, when honor was given where honor was due.

Colonel Ashton spoke feelingly of the men and of those who had already gone, but his bright spirit and cheery manner enlivened the proceedings. Both volunteers spoke modestly of their duty, and hoped their wives would be looked after and were assured that they would be.

Two little family groups stood upon the T. H. and B. platform this morning, together with a few friends and with many fond farewells the two sergeants waved their adieu and were gone for the front.

Battery Drill
The 2nd Battery held a drill under Colonel Ashton at the armories last night when all that was left of the thriving battery took up with zest the task. They composed some twenty-five men and officers. They were put through dismounted drill and showed up well. After this practice a lecture upon artillery work was given in the battery headquarters and then the soldiers adjourned to the Tea Pot Inn, to honor two of their numbers, Sergeants Maich and Howarth, who were leaving for the front.

A very successful drill was held and four new recruits was signed in, but many more are expected to join the battery to its former strength. Several appointments and promotions were made during the evening.

British Public Should Receive Accounts of Tremendous Fighting

[By Special Wire to the Courier]
LONDON, Sept. 5.—8.02 a.m.—The Times, speaks editorially, of the lack of official war news, says:

"Premier Asquith said on Monday that the government felt that the public should be kept in prompt authentic information of what happened at the front, and that the government was making arrangements to that end. We wish we could see any sign that these arrangements were coming into force.

"The country has now been at war for a month and during that period the public has been furnished with only one adequate official statement regarding the land operations of the most powerful army in Great Britain ever sent to the continent. During the remainder of this week, no further important information has been vouchsafed.

"In time of an unprecedented crisis, the press has a great patriotic duty to perform. It has to stimulate and deepen the public interest in this struggle which sounds its trumpet long time and on which the fate of the empire exists.

"Germany is well aware of the potent influence of the press and uses it to the uttermost."

"We commend to attention the fact simile we publish to-day of a communication purporting to come from a member of the Times staff, a person who has never existed. This unscrupulous communication has been published in hundreds of newspapers in Western America."

"We could quote innumerable examples of the kind. One reason why Turkey is on the verge of war, is that Constantinople is swamped by Germany with fabrications about alleged British and French reverses. Another example we quote to-day shows that the German and Dutch press is now being mobilized for efforts to detach France from the entente."

"Germany has even approached The Times and other English newspapers offering for publication the reports of her general staff upon the military operations."

"Our government has done nothing to counteract these activities. In a month we have had only one statement of any value. We have received from Petrograd infinitely more information than from our own war office."

Tremendous losses have been sustained by the fourth German army corps in France.

SAYS NEW POPE.

PARIS, Sept. 5, 4.20 a.m.—A despatch to the Havas Agency from the Bologna La Tribuna says that Benedict XV, the new pope, in a letter on August 30, wrote that he regretted the war, and would prefer that an armistice should be made for one or the other of the belligerent nations. My idea is to have it understood that they should ask God for a cessation of the war of war without indicating the means.

AUSTRIA IS IN COLLAPSE AFTER DEFEAT

Servians and Russians Both Inflicted Most Terrible Losses.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] NISH, Servia, Sept. 5 - 8.50 a.m. - According to the official organ Srpski Novine, the following spoil was captured by the Servians in the battle of Jadar:

"A hundred cannon, of which 90 were field guns, 8 siege guns, 2,500 horses, 3 hospitals of 5,000 beds, 37 mitrailleurs, 37,000 Mauser rifles, 174 full caissons containing 500 shells for each cannon, ammunition and 4,600 prisoners, including a large number of officers and one military band with its conductor. Three Serbian cash boxes full of money and one aeroplane was also taken.

The Austrians dead are estimated number between 30,000 and 32,000.

General Yovanovitch reports that he alone had 10,000 of the enemy's bodies buried. Other Servian generals reports of their successes have not yet been received.

25,000 LEFT ON FIELD Paris, Sept. 5 - 12.30 a.m. via Paris, 8.20 a.m. - Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian foreign minister has telegraphed the Russian embassy here that the Austrian defeat near Lemberg was much greater than at first appeared.

The Austrians in escaping, left on the battlefield besides 25,000 men, nearly 200 cannon, flags, ammunition carriages and thousands of horses.

The Russian minister adds that the Russians have also invaded Austria from Tomazow.

As a whole the Austrian division was practically annihilated. Among the killed were the general-in-chief and his staff. A large number of prisoners were taken, including several officers.

SUPPLY OF ENTIRE ARMY WAS CAPTURED

Russians Entered Lemberg Right at Heels of the Runaways.

[By Special Wire to the Courier] LONDON, Sept. 5 - The Petrograd correspondent of the Post, describing the Russian advance on Lemberg, says:

"The Austrians were concentrating two more army corps towards the east of their position to face the Russian Kiev district army, but the Russians attacked before the concentration was completed.

"On Wednesday morning the Russians were established all around the northern, eastern and half of the southern face of the capital. Lemberg stands high above the surrounding country, its obsolete defences being supplemented by modern entrenchments.

"It would seem that the rout of the Austrian army, whose double duty it was to cover Lemberg and also the right flank of the Austrian forces in Poland, was so absolute that the Russians must have entered Lemberg at the heels of the runaways, for at 11 o'clock Thursday morning Lemberg was entirely in Russian possession. The military stores of every kind, explosives, powder magazines, complete wireless and telegraph installations, in short, the whole equipment of the important military centre, fell intact into the hands of the victorious Russians.

"The capture of Halicz, which was protected by thirty small forts, entailed a harder task, as the Russians were obliged to capture all the forts, and the Austrians made desperate resistance.

"The Russians had been fighting continuously for eight days after a previous week or ten days of marching. The fighting and marching troops of the Russian left wing covered nearly a hundred miles in seventeen days, capturing Halicz on the seventeenth, after two days of hard fighting.

All towns in Russia with a German form of name were changed to the Slav form. This is not due to the fact that Russia is at war with Germany, but in Russia's opinion it gave the Russians consistency displayed towards helpless.

A considerable sensation was caused here by the discovery aboard the German Cruiser Magdeburg, which was recently captured by a number of cat-o-nine tails, which were found in every officer's cabin, all bearing signs of long and hard usage.

WAS VERY IMPORTANT ROME, via Paris, Sept. 5 - M. Krowczynski, the Russian ambassador to Italy, commenting to-day on the Russians into Galicia, said the possession of Lemberg and Halicz was exceptionally important.

It gave the Russians command of the whole of Galicia on the left bank of the Dniester River, he said, with the possibility of extending their offensive operations to the south of the Carpathian Mountains. The Russian objective was the complete defeat of the Austrian army the ambassador declared; they would thus be enabled to center all their strength against Germany.

A Presentation Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., is leaving for the camp at Valcartier tomorrow to say farewell to the Brantford boys going to the front.

On behalf of the Brantford Golf Club, he will make a presentation to Lieut. T. Percy Jones, of the 38th Regiment, of a handsome gold signet ring with the monogram "T.P.J." in the inscription from "The Brantford Golf Club." Lieut. Jones is a well known golfer. Accompanying the ring is the following letter: Brantford, August 29th, 1914. Lieutenant T. Percy Jones, Camp Valcartier, Quebec:

My Dear Percy: - On behalf of the Brantford Golf and Country Club I have very much pleasure in asking you to accept the accompanying signet ring as a slight remembrance from your fellow golfers.

We know that at the front as on the links, you will always play "the game" fairly, squarely and successfully; and that you will be present at the final victory at the "last hole," which will, of course, be Berlin.

With all good wishes and looking forward to welcoming you and your brave Brantford comrades back to your old home town in the not far distant future, when this disastrous war which has been thrust upon the Empire has been brought to a successful conclusion.

Believe me, on behalf of your admiring Brantford golfing friends, Yours very sincerely, H. W. FITTON, Pres. Brantford Golf and Country Club.

RED SOX TAKE BOTH GAMES FROM SAINTS

Chase is Looked Over by Scout Eberfeld of Brooklyn and Pitches a Two Hit Game While Big Nick Outpitches Hughey in Second Fixture - Burrill Features at Bat With Five Hits.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 4.—Ruben Deneau's Red Sox, secured a double victory over the Saints here yesterday afternoon. In the first game, Chase outpitched Harry Howick, and let St. Thomas down with two hits, while Big Nick pitched a 7 to 4 victory. In the second game, Chase overcame the Saints' pitcher, Hughie, and also outpitched the St. Thomas pitcher, scoring a 7 to 4 victory. Errors were committed by both teams during both games and kept the pitchers in tight places at the time. "Burrill" Burrill featured both games by his stick work, managing to connect safely five times out of seven trips to the plate. Kid Eberfeld on Hand. Kid Eberfeld, Brooklyn scout, was in the stand looking Chase over. He was favorably impressed with his work. He expects to go to London and watch Bobby Heck. The scores:

THE STORY OF Waitstill Baxter

By KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN. Copyright, 1913 by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

"I only cut the door through to please mother, so she'd favor my getting married, but I guess I won't do no good. You see, father, what I was thinkin' of is, a girl would mebbe jump at a two story, four roomed place when she wouldn't look at a smaller place."

"No kind of an idee," responded his father with a quizzical wink that was lost on the young man, as his eyes were fixed upon his whittling. "Does she belong to the village?"

"I ain't picked out till I get a little more forrarder," responded Cephas craftily. "Say, father, it's all right to ask a girl twice, ain't it?"

"Well, if trainin' is your object you'd better take my advice an' keep it dark before marriage. Cephas, it's establisht in an all just to marry a com'ny keeper for mother," responded Cephas happily. "I want to be No. 1 with my girl and start right in on trainin' her up to suit me."

"Let them do the trainin'," responded his father, peacefully puffing out the words with his pipe between his lips. "Some of 'em's mild and gentle in discipline, like Parson Boone's wife or Miss Timothy Grant, and others is strict and firm like your mother and Mrs. Abel Day. If you happen to git the first kind, why, do as they tell you, and thank the Lord 'tain't any worse. If you git the second kind just let 'em run the bladders on you and trot as straight as you know how, without shyn' nor kickin' over the traces, nor bottin', 'cause they've got control o' the bit and 'tain't to use fightin' ag'in' their superior strength. So far as you can judge, in the early stages of the game, my son—why ain't you fur—the whole bladders on you picked out."

"Cephas whittled on for some moments without a word, but finally, with a sigh drawn from the very toes of his boots, he responded gloomily: "She's awful spunky, the girl is; anybody can see that; but she's a young thing, and I thought bein' married would kind o' tame her down."

"You can see how much marriage has tamed your mother down," observed Uncle Bart dispassionately. "However, though your mother can't be called tame, she's got her good points, for she's always to be counted on. The great thing is to know exactly what to expect. Your mother's gen'ally credited with an onsartin temper, but folks does her great injustice in so thinkin', for in a long experience I've seldom come across a temper less onsartin than your mother's. You know exactly where to find her every mornin' at sunup and every night at sundown. There ain't nothin' you can do to put her out o' temper, 'cause she's all out aforehand. You can jest go about your reg'lar business 'bout any fear o' disturbin' her any further than she's disturbed a'ready, which is consid'ra- ble. I don't mind it a mite nowadays, though, after forty years of it. It would be of a female's disposition day by day, wonderin' when she was got'n' to have a tantrum. A tantrum once a year's an awful upsettin' kind of a thing in a family, my son, but a tantrum every twenty-four hours is jest part o' the day's work."

There was a moment's silence, during which Uncle Bart puffed his pipe and Cephas whittled, after which the old man continued: "Then if you happen to marry a temper like your mother's, Cephas, look what a pow'ful worker you gen'ally get! Look at the way they sweep an' dust an' scrub an' clean! Watch 'em when they go at the dish washin' an' how they whack the rollin' pin an' main the eggs 'till the flies out o' the house! The mild and gentle ones likely enough will be settin' in the kitchen rocker readin' the almanac when there ain't no wood in the kitchen box, no doughnuts in the crock, no pies on the swing shelf in the cellar an' the young ones goin' round without a second shift to their backs!"

Cephas' mind was far away during this philosophical dissertation on the ways of women. He could see only a sunny head fairly rioting with curls, a pair of eyes that held his like magnets, although they never gave him a glance of love; a smile that lighted the world far better than the sun, a dimple into which his heart fell headlong whenever he looked at it.

"You're right, father; 'tain't no use kickin' ag'in' 'em," he said as he rose to his feet preparatory to opening the Baxter store. "When I said that 'bout trainin' up a girl to suit me, I kind o' forgot the one I've picked out. I'm considerin' several, but the one I favor most—well, I believe she'd fire up at the first sight o' trainin', and that's the gospel truth."

"Considerin' several, be you, Cephas?" laughed Uncle Bart. "Well, all I hope is that the one you favor most—the girl you've asked one o'—is a 'ready-to-consider' you!"

Cephas went to the pump and, wetting a large handkerchief, put it in the crown of his straw hat and sauntered out into the burning heat of the open road between his father's shop and Deacon Baxter's store.

"I shan't ask her the next time till this hot spell's over," he thought, "and I won't do it in that dog-eared hat, I shan't go tongue tied outdoors, an' I kind o' think I'd be more in the spirit of it after sundown some night after supper!"

Waitstill found a cool and shady place in which to hitch the old mare, loosening her checkrein and putting a sprig of alder in her headstall to assist her in brushing off the flies.

One could reach the Boynton house only by going up a long grass grown lane that led from the high road. It was a lonely place and Aaron Boynton had bought it when he moved from so simply because he secured it at a remarkable bargain, the owner having lost his wife and gone to live in Massachusetts. Ivory would have sold it long ago had circumstances been different, for it was at too great a distance from the schoolhouse and from Lawyer Wilson's office to be at all convenient, but he doted on the place, and he had been accustomed to doubt whether she would be able to care for a house to which she had not been wonted before her mind became affected.

Here in this safe, secluded corner, amid familiar and thoroughly known conditions, she moved placidly about her daily tasks, performing them with the same care and precision that she had used from the beginning of her married life. All the heavy work was done for her by Ivory and Rodman; the boy in particular being the fleetest footed, the most willing and the neatest of helpers; washing dishes, sweeping and dusting, laying the table, and so on, she was content to let Mrs. Boynton make her own simple dresses. Ivory made her own more hidden than St. Philip, are more of these powerful structures. Antwerp, the great stronghold of the Belgians, which is rightly termed the Liverpool of the Continent, was described by Napoleon Bonaparte as a "pistol pointed at the heart of England!"

The recent removal of the seat of government from Brussels to Antwerp, following the development of Germany's plan of campaign, is not a hasty step, but absolutely in accordance with Belgian intentions formulated some years ago, when the menace of a German invasion cast its shadow over the country. Events now taking place would go to show that the great port on the Scheldt is destined to play an important part in the war.

Antwerp is mentioned as early as the 8th century; in the 12th and 13th it gave signs of considerable prosperity and in the beginning of the 14th century it was the commercial capital of the world. Its government was free, and its people prosperous and well educated. When in 1576 it was seized by the Spanish soldiery it is estimated that 8,000 human beings were murdered; and the city hall and nearly a thousand fine buildings were burnt. The effect of this and the assault of the Duke of Parma in 1585 caused Antwerp to sink into decay and its population was scattered. From 1734 till 1814, while it was held by the French, Napoleon attempted to make it a great military and commercial centre. The union of Belgium with Holland in 1835 was very favorable to the commerce and general prosperity of Antwerp. By the revolution of 1830 it was linked to the destiny of Belgium, but when the revolutionary party gained possession the Dutch commandant, General Chasse, retreated to the citadel, and, exasperated by the breach of truce, commenced a bombardment which destroyed the arsenal and many houses. Two years later a French army of 50,000 men, under Marshal Gerard, appeared before Antwerp to demand the surrender of the citadel, which was refused, but after the interior of the citadel had been reduced to ruins by the French artillery, General Chasse capitulated. The city was handed over to the Belgians and since the treaty of 1839 Antwerp has had a singularly prosperous career.

Key to Low Countries. Whether Napoleon was strategically justified in describing Antwerp as "a pistol pointed at the heart of England" is still a controversial subject with military experts. The best judges do not concur in the description. As a naval port Antwerp itself is open to numerous and weighty objections, and it is a question whether any amount of money and labor would render it suitable for such a purpose. But Antwerp has always been and will always remain the key to the Low Countries, a fact which accounts in some measure for the elaborate fortifications by which it is encompassed. Some six miles from the quays of Antwerp down the devious and treacherous river, Scheldt two grim looking armoured turrets come into view on the light bank, half concealed by earthworks. These works are Fort St. Philip, and are reputed to be armed with heavy artillery of somewhat obsolete design. Half a mile lower down on the opposite bank, but more hidden than St. Philip, are more of these powerful structures. The turrets are so placed that their guns command a wide stretch of the river in either direction, and are even capable of shelling Antwerp. Labor Notes

The Hour

We've shut the gates by Dover Straits,
And North where the tide run free,
Cheek by jowl, our watchdogs growl,
Grey hulks in a greyer sea,
And the prayer that England prays to-night—
O Lord of our destiny—
As the foam of our plunging prow,
is white,
We have stood for peace, and we war for the right,
God give us victory!

Now slack, now strung, from the mainmast flung,
The flag throbs fast in the breeze;
Strained o'er the foam, like the hearts at home
That beat for their sons on the seas,
For mothers and wives are praying to-night—
O Lord of our destiny!
But we've no time, for our lips are tight,
Our fists are clenched, and we're stripped to fight,
God give us victory!

The west winds blow in the face of the foe—
Old Drake is beating his drum—
They drink to "The Day," for "The Hour" we pray
The day and the hour have come.
The sea-strewn Empire prays to-night—
O Lord of our destiny!
Thou didst give the seas into Britain's might,
For the freedom of Thy seas we smite,
God give us victory!

Ready for Labor Day

Labor Day in St. Thomas
All indications point to a record-breaking celebration in the Railroad City on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 7th, when the trades organization of London and St. Thomas will run off a monster demonstration in Pinafore Park. The strong committee from the two cities is a sufficient guarantee in itself that every possible effort will be made to make this the greatest celebration of its kind ever held in Western Ontario.

In Berlin.
The celebration of Labor Day in Berlin will be right up to date, and if the weather is at all favorable, there is sure to be a great crowd of visitors from Waterloo, Preston, Galt, Brantford, Guelph and nearby places. A splendid program of attractions has been provided for the entertainment of the public, and there will be something doing every hour of the day from 9 a.m. until 10.30 p.m. The Berlin and Waterloo bands have been engaged for the occasion, and, as is well known, they are both first class musical organizations, and strictly union all through, and can put up an article that can compare favorably with the best of them.

In Toronto.
With Labor Day only a little more than a day ahead, and arrangements practically completed, all that now remains to ensure a record breaking success for the big celebration in Toronto is favorable weather.

The various local organizations of that city have co-operated most heartily with the committee and it is now a certainty that this year's parade will easily outclass any of its predecessors.

It can be confidently predicted that not less than ten thousand men and women will be in line on September 7th, and the different unions are devoting all their energies to the task of making the best possible showing on this occasion.

The programme of sports and athletic events is far in advance of any previous year, while the prize list is the most valuable that has ever been offered in connection with a Labor Day celebration in the city.

In Hamilton.
Labor Day will be duly celebrated in Hamilton on Sept. 7, with the holding of a monster parade and demonstration in the park there, when a splen-

"Our Great Patient General", Horatio Herbert Kitchener

Never eager to shine as a brilliant military strategist but always victorious because of practical ability, Lord Kitchener, Minister of War was appropriately dubbed by the relictious Earl of Rosebery, "Our great patient General."

He is operating now against the Germans for the second time in his life, having served with General Chang's Army of the Loire, in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71. He was then a lieutenant of 21, and was deprived of the chance of winning glory by an attack of pneumonia.

After that he served with that band of Royal Engineers, who, by actual surveys in Palestine completed the task of proving the falsity of Colenso's charges against the veracity of the Scriptures. Then he first acquired that marvellous knowledge of Eastern character, which, coupled with his native ability in disguising himself, added so greatly to his usefulness in Africa.

This cleverness at disguise, coupled with the knowledge of Arabic which he had picked up in his wanderings in Syria, gave Kitchener a brilliant power in his early years in Egypt. It was he, as chief of the secret service, who discovered the conspiracy which led to the death of Gordon and the fall of Khartoum.

Divulging His Secret Knowledge.
Kitchener had managed to find his way, dressed as an Arab, into the Dongolese camp. The Mudir of Dongoleh had around him several thousands of followers, who were suspected of sedition.

The next morning one of the Arab leaders was examined before Lord Wolseley. Kitchener sat by his side, and it was clear the prisoner recognised the British soldier, now in full staff uniform, with an expression which could not be mistaken. Then Kitchener spoke and in an instant the prisoner, now sure of his man, rushed upon him and seized him by the throat. Kitchener was being overpowered, and he was about to draw his sword when the guard came to the rescue.

In ten minutes the Mudir of Dongoleh was surrounded, and the conspiracy was broken.

The story of how the Sirdar outwitted two Arab spies, which is a matter of history, shows the same quality of resource put to very different use. The spies had feigned deafness, and Lord Kitchener could get nothing from them.

They were detained in a tent, and in half an hour another spy was arrested and bundled into the tent with the other two. They were left for an hour talking briskly at the time, and then the door was thrown open and the third spy demanded to be taken to headquarters. It was the Sirdar himself who had done this. Found out all he wanted to know.

Slow Promotion for Him.
Kitchener's rise to notice was slow, because his army for a long period was only engaged in little fights. It was not until 1888 that he had trained his Egyptians until they could fight. In 1888 he attacked Osman Digna at Handub, the battle ending in a retreat. Kitchener himself leaving the battlefield with a bullet in his face. Later in the year he led a brigade of Soudanese over Osman's trenches at Genaizeh.

Two years afterward he began the exploit which had the foundation of his great fame, the slow conquest of the Sudan, accompanied by the building of a railroad, which enabled him to hold the territory from which he swept the Dervishes.

In 1892 he succeeded Sir Francis Grenfell as Sirdar or Commander in Chief of the Egyptian army, and entered upon the years of campaigning which utterly subdued the wild tribes of Egypt, pushing ahead his railroad to catch up with his military victories.

In 1896 he won the notable action of Ferket and advanced the frontier and railway to Dongola, and was made a British major general. A series of victories and advances, with the railroad always building in his rear, brought him across the Nile to the desert before Khartoum, the stronghold of the Mahdi, the semi-civilized tribes which had overrun Egypt. Here the victory of Omdurman finished the conquest and placed the Egyptians and English in Khartoum.

Unpopular in South Africa.
So, too, he went to South Africa. Within a month Britain was flooded with letters that conveyed words of disgust and well as admiration. "Kitchener is making himself hated everywhere," "Kitchener is insulting voluntary officers of noble birth daily," your health is sound, so keep constantly on your guard against any excesses.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

ARTILLERY SURPRISED
LONDON, Sept. 5. 4.10 am.—The Havre correspondent of The Express gives the story of a wounded artilleryman who has arrived there. It seems that his battery had taken up a position behind the German gun pits when it was surprised by the German artillery and its gunners were greeted with a storm of shrapnel. It was while turning their guns that they met this new attack. Two German spies, one dressed as a clergyman, the Havre correspondent says have been captured there and executed in the customs house.

WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR REMEDY.
This is a safe, reliable, regulating medicine. Sold in tubes of 60 cents strength—No. 1, 75¢; No. 2, 85¢; No. 3, $1.00 per tube. Sold by all druggists, or by mail on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE WYETH MEDICINE CO., TERRELL BLDG., CHICAGO, ILL.

She made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to bring back color, gloss, thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready to use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge and soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant. PARIS, Sept. 5.—The official communication issued to-day mentions two armies with new designations, the army of Paris and the army of the northwest, which leads to the supposition that the bulk of the allied forces is divided between positions in the region of Paris and Compeigne, the front having the region of Verdun for its center, while only covering troops are left in Alsace.

Two German Aviators Were Rescued by a British Submarine.

(By Special Wire to the Courier)
LONDON, Sept. 5.—The correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Harwich sends an amplified statement of the rescue of German aviators by a British submarine while engaged on patrol duty.

The submarine was sailing on the surface thirty miles off the German Island of Borkum, when it detected the aeroplane, drew alongside and took off two men, who were in an exhausted condition. The bombs they carried were thrown overboard. After the rescue, the submarine rammed the aeroplane which sank.

The aviators, it appears from this account, were spying for British warships when the engine broke down. The machine descended quickly and smoothly, and the officers aboard dived into the sea when the machine was near the surface. The pilot, however, was trapped in and had to remain. The officer climbed back on the machine and he and the pilot made unsuccessful attempts to repair the engine. The drifted about for twenty hours before the submarine appeared and welcomed it with shouts of joy.

CLOSE ORDER FIGHTING IN FINAL TEST AGAINST TACTICS LEARNED FROM INDIAN AND BOER

German infantry in skirmish formation. On the firing line it will be observed that they carry full kit and advance shoulder to shoulder with no appreciable space between the men.

The remarkable photograph is an illustration of the massed formation mode of fighting which dates back to the Napoleonic era. Here are seen Serbian infantrymen preparing to repel attack.

Mr. J. S. Stewart Richardson, though only in his thirties, participated in the Boer War, during which, between fights, he acted as correspondent of an Edinburgh newspaper. More recently he reported phases of the Mexican internecine warfare and was at the taking of Vera Cruz by the United States.

By J. S. Stewart Richardson.
THE greatest lesson whether these militarists were right or in the art of warring war after the others. Of course, it was shown in Manchuria that the Japanese and Russians clashed in many engagements in massed formation, but it is known that in both armies the field service regulations have been subsequently revised. With others, the military experts of these nations have agreed that with the remarkable evolution of artillery and other arms advanced troops in close formation against a perfectly entrenched or concealed foe is suicidal. Army commanders of to-day, when so high in the ranks of the army of the United States, while attention was directed to the fact that while there is likely to be a radical rearrangement of frontiers and a transfer of territory at the close of the great European internecine conflict an even greater change will be wrought in the fighting machinery of the nations. That which will be laid in the tactical balance will be the separate and distinct modes of fighting being demonstrated in the present war in the utilization by the armies involved of the highly improved armaments with their vast lethal possibilities. According to the American military strategist and the British, warfare's art has been carried back more than a century by the adoption of the high powered rifle, so that the trained skirmisher of to-day emulates the American Indian in his every movement. The American soldier's teacher was the Indian. The tutor of the English trooper was the Boer, who instinctively went back to first principles in defending his country against the invader. The result is that, like the American, the British soldier to-day carries to the firing line a minimum of weight, consisting of little else than his rifle, ammunition belt, water bottle and first aid package. According to military authorities of Great Britain and of the United States, the disposition of troops in mass formation within effective range of rifle or artillery fire would be unthought of save in the direst expediency. It is with interest therefore that further demonstration of the German method of having great forces of men in close formation against formidable fortifications is awaited. The attack upon Liege, in which the assaulting force manifested no less gallantry than did the plucky defenders, was a frontal onslaught such as had been considered impacticable for many years by militarist authorities of other nations. The present conflict will reveal spacious mark. After which he dismounts and devotes his spare time between firing to giving as correct an imitation of an inert and invisible object as he may in the course of the manoeuvre toward the enemy. It is a strange fact that with the development of the rifle and heavy calibre gun and the consequent possibilities of enormous loss of life in any action, small forces of men are used to better advantage to-day than ever. Of course, these forces cannot be operated as independent units. Superiority in force of numbers no longer is regarded as essential to turn the tide of battle. In the late South African campaign an army of 10,000 Boer farmers, few of whom had had experience in military tactics other than being trained to a high degree of efficiency in handling a rifle and to cover after the fashion of the American Indian, held back for nearly two months a force of artillery, infantry and cavalry nearly three times its size, and every man of which had been made expert in the then most approved manner known to European tacticians. At the Tugela River this was done, when Sir Redvers Buller, the stolid British commander, hurled his entire strength repeatedly at the Boer front, to be repulsed each time in a manner that almost broke the old fashioned English commander's heart, as it shattered many units of his command. His infantry and artillery brigades suffered heavily. It was only as a last resource that the veteran General yielded to the advice of his juniors and turned the Boer flank in a series of skirmishes in which his men operated burgher fashion—which was really Indian fashion. It has been written that the tradition ridden General of the Boer commander was as surprised as the Boer commander upon the completion of the manoeuvre. It is held by advocates of the open order mode of fighting that the Germans are equally loath to adopt it as were the British in the dark and doubtful days of 1890 and 1900. Then British generals were almost scandalized to see cherished ideals concerning the proper methods of subduing England's foes discarded in favor of the tactics of men who had not been taught from the latest guide books the proper way to encounter and engage an enemy in the field. However, after Tommy Atkins had received a few more

Six gun Russian battery in position for indirect fire. As the guns are concealed from the enemy, so is the enemy screened from the gunners by the elevation immediately in front of the guns, which are pointed by direction from the officer (indicated by arrow) at the point of observation. According to the most approved method, indirect artillery fire is a trigonometrical proposition.

United States, while attention was directed to the fact that while there is likely to be a radical rearrangement of frontiers and a transfer of territory at the close of the great European internecine conflict an even greater change will be wrought in the fighting machinery of the nations. That which will be laid in the tactical balance will be the separate and distinct modes of fighting being demonstrated in the present war in the utilization by the armies involved of the highly improved armaments with their vast lethal possibilities. According to the American military strategist and the British, warfare's art has been carried back more than a century by the adoption of the high powered rifle, so that the trained skirmisher of to-day emulates the American Indian in his every movement. The American soldier's teacher was the Indian. The tutor of the English trooper was the Boer, who instinctively went back to first principles in defending his country against the invader. The result is that, like the American, the British soldier to-day carries to the firing line a minimum of weight, consisting of little else than his rifle, ammunition belt, water bottle and first aid package. According to military authorities of Great Britain and of the United States, the disposition of troops in mass formation within effective range of rifle or artillery fire would be unthought of save in the direst expediency. It is with interest therefore that further demonstration of the German method of having great forces of men in close formation against formidable fortifications is awaited. The attack upon Liege, in which the assaulting force manifested no less gallantry than did the plucky defenders, was a frontal onslaught such as had been considered impacticable for many years by militarist authorities of other nations. The present conflict will reveal

German lancers advancing at the charge. The Kaiser's mounted troops have been considered the finest in the world, and the present campaign will reveal the tactical advantages to be gained by manoeuvring cavalry in force. Lances were discarded by the British army after the South African War.

While the soldier carries a bayonet to the firing line the weapon is regarded by many experts merely to be used in an emergency, after the manner of the knife which was carried by the medieval knight and the dirk worn in the hose of the Scottish clansman, who was primarily armed with a claymore, or heavy sword. The modern rifle has practically caused the spectacular bayonet charge to be relegated to the past, as it has compelled the soldier in defence to obtain shelter which, offering him opportunity to sweep and cover the approaches to his position from his front, and if possible from his flanks, will utterly conceal him from attacking snipers. The fact that infantrymen, well entrenched, caught by surprise by heavy artillery fire was demonstrated repeatedly in the Cuban campaign between American and Spaniard, in the South African conflict between Britain and Boer, in the Manchurian campaign between Japanese and Russian and in the late Balkan wars. To drive the enemy from a position, therefore, it becomes necessary to carry that position by strategy. If it is essential that the position must be carried by infantry, supported by artillery fire, the commanding officer must assume that the storming party will be subjected to a withering fire. While recent wars have caused to be developed to a remarkable degree the artillery arm, cavalry, which for centuries, tions of the enemy by advancing Indian fashion—squirring through the long grass from cover to cover, offering as little as possible of themselves as a target to the vigilant Spaniards, and firing from every point of vantage reached. In his description of the battle, Richard Harding Davis, the war correspondent, wrote:—"The Eastern men broke at the word and ran for the cover they were directed to take like men trying to get out of the rain, and fell panting on their faces, while the Western troopers and hunters slipped and wriggled through the grass like Indians; dodging from tree trunk to tree trunk, and from one bush to another." As in the subsequent battles of the campaign, the men in employing the tactics of the original inhabitants of their country followed their individual inclinations and instincts rather than any special orders that were issued regarding their mode of seeking cover. Now the American soldier is trained explicitly in the art of proper concealment while advancing. In the many expeditions which have been participated in by United States marines, observers have remarked the almost uncanny emulation of the Indian by the enlisted man of the Marine Corps. At Vera Cruz they showed how to "bug" the ground on the firing line, and when the order was given to extend, instead of crawling or running in a crouching position to assume the new formation, the men gripped their rifles close to their sides and rolled. The movement is a recent innovation in the general field service orders. It appeared novel to many who saw it, but it was familiar to Americans Indian tribes more than a century ago. Whether the Indian mode of warfare will be adopted generally after the European conflict, or whether it will give place to the more recent mass formation manner of advancing in force, is a question to which military experts the world over await an answer.

FORTY-FOURTH YEAR

ARE GERMAN CUT OFF

Belief is Growing Enveloping Movement Progress—They Battle at Verdun

[By Special Wire to the Courier]
LONDON, Sept. 7.—The belief is growing that the great decisive battle is being fought at Verdun, the strong fortress at France on the Meuse near the south frontier. If the fourth German army marching southward, cuts off the retreat of the French eastern armies, which recently have been holding the Germans in check between Toul, a fortified town 14 miles west of Nancy and Epinal, a strongly fortified place and near the Alsace frontier, it might repeat the coup which in 1870 drove General Charles Denis Sauter Bourbaki and his army of 150,000 men into Switzerland. "Hopeful critics are speculating on the possibility that the German swing around to the south may mean an effort on the part of the invaders to make sure of their retreat through the Meuse district, but more likely it is a scheme to strike such a paralyzing blow to the French army as to render the investment of Paris a safe operation. The southerly movement of the Germans may effect a junction of the crown prince's army and that of Barbaric, which has been held in check in Lorraine. Thus the Germans give evidence from the east and north in a vast enveloping destined to crush the allies right wing by their weight of numbers, their left was pushed

RUSSIAN STRENGTH WAS DARK WHICH

Two Huge Armies Austrians and Allies at Right is Not Far Away

[By Special Wire to the Courier]
LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Petrograd correspondent of The Post in an article dealing with the capture of Lemberg and Halicz says:—"The establishment of Russian authority in this region is being enormously facilitated by the fact that the native Slav population, which recently has been the beneficiary of the German policy of Germanism in time of peace, welcomed the advent of the Russians even under the stern conditions of war. The Lemberg victory is a signal triumph for the daring strategy of the Russian commander-in-chief and entirely reconciles the public to the severe censorship which enabled him to carry out protracted operations over a vast territory without the enemy getting a single hint to give them alarm. Until the two Russian armies operating in a direction that met almost at a right angle, succeeded in effecting a junction in the enemy's country, they were offing, during the whole fortnight, a magnificent opportunity to vigorous enemy to get in between them and deal with them separately, and by extreme secrecy, could have justified this task. "That the Russian forces dur-
