PRAYER MEETING

Additional reports of the Tuesday Neighborhood Prayer Meetings have come in this morning to the Brantford Evangelistic Headquarters, totalling an attendance of 485. The average attendance being nine, and in some cases as many as sixteen or seventeen at one meeting. Great interest is being manifested in these neighborhood prayer meetings. Prompt return of prayer meeting report cards and care in filling them out will greatly help in this important department of the campaign. Many reports come in too late to publish the homes indicated.

PRESENTATION

On Tuesday evening an enjoyable time was spent at the home of Mrs. Norman Andrews, 20 Nelson street. Several weeks ago, Mrs. Andrews organized a club to work for soldiers who have gone overseas from Grace church choir. Good progress was made and this week the club assembled to pack the boxes. Each box contained socks, home-made candy, Xmas cake, jam, gum, tobacco, cigarettes, face cloth and soap, and neck scarf. A dainty lunch was prepared, and afterwards Mr. F. O. Thomas, the chairman, explained that there was other business to do, that of presenting Miss Emily Sparks, (a choir member) who is to be married in November, with a nickel and white casseroles. At a late hour the club broke up with thanks to Mrs. Andrews, who has, together with other members, worked untiringly.

PEACE, PERFECT PEACE

Yesterday was a success in some respects, and a flivver in others, notably in the variety of offerings served up by the weather man, but it is doubtful if greater satisfaction is felt in any part of the city to-day than that which brought the happy smile to the face of Chief Slemin this morning. After a busy day in the celebration, on the watch for pickpockets, undrestables and other disturbers of the peace, the doughty chief and his stalwart staff were able to sit down, fold their arms and sigh in relief. "The end of a perfect day." Not a single malefactor was taken in over the holiday, and a row of empty benches greeted Magistrate Livingston in the court this morning, the only case upon the docket being that which contained the customary white gloves presented to His Worship. The police had made adequate arrangements for the preservation of law and order in the city, even to importing two perfectly good provincial detectives for the occasion, but the crooks just naturally waited at the sight of the weather yesterday, and sought the seclusion of their friends, rather than following their profession.

ADDRESS TO MONTESSORI MOTHERS' CLUB

Mrs. Graham Bell Spoke To Women of the City This Morning

This morning, The Montessori Mothers' Club held a special meeting in the drawing room at The Conservatory, when Mrs. Graham Bell, wife of Dr. Bell, and her daughters, Mrs. Grosvenor and Mrs. Fairchild addressed the mothers. Mrs. Bell gave a very interesting little talk, stating that when her children were young she sent them to the kindergarten, but was far from satisfied with the result; the children seemed nervous and under a strain, and after visiting the kindergarten, she decided the work was too fine and exacting for little people, and so endeavored to train her children at home, with more or less satisfactory results. Dr. Bell had very decided ideas about training children, and in fact, had exactly the same ideas as Dr. Montessori later evolved, but Dr. Bell did not have the materials which Dr. Montessori later invented to carry out the educational ideas which he had in mind.

Many years later, Mrs. Bell visited the first Montessori school, conducted in the States in Tarrytown, N.Y., where Miss George, the first pupil of Dr. Montessori, was teaching the new method. Mrs. Bell was delighted with the system, she said, she found the children so happy, playing about and doing just what they wanted to, and yet so orderly. Later she persuaded Miss George to come to Washington, where the first Montessori class was established in her home several of her grandchildren attending. Dr. Bell also took a great interest in this school and lent not only moral, but financial support. After two years the class outgrew Mrs. Bell's home and they moved to a larger building, there are now two private Montessori schools in Washington with an attendance of seventy children and also one Montessori class in the public schools. Mrs. Bell was instrumental in forming a Montessori Association, of which she is the president, and through the generosity of that association a Montessori class was started in the "Foundlings' Hospital," in a short time the physical and mental development in these children was so marked that the doctors were delighted and the only difficulty has been that the children were adopted so fast that it was hard to keep the class together, the prospective parents picfering those trained by the Montessori method.

Mrs. Fairchild, the younger daughter of Mrs. Bell, then made a short address, going over the work of the Montessori School in a detailed way. She remarked that it was largely owing to her mother's faith in the Montessori method that the system had such a firm foothold to-day, as Dr. Montessori, like all geniuses, was full of quirks and quibbles, and most erratic in her ways. Classes had been formed by her and then abandoned for apparently no definite reason, but through it all Mrs. Bell had been unwaveringly faithful to the system, and this was the first year that the Montessori schools in Washington had been able to stand alone financially, without Mrs. Bell's assistance.

Mrs. Fairchild related one very interesting incident, quoting from a recent letter received by her mother from a young English teacher of the Montessori System, who had taken her "class" of soldiers orphaned children from the school room during a recent Zeppelin raid, and without the slightest confusion, had marched them to the basement, singing one of the songs which had become familiar to them at their Montessori games during the entire raid, though the noise outside was deafening.

Mrs. Grosvenor also spoke a few words on the Montessori training for older children, her daughter attended the advanced class until ten years of age and when she had grown up as the Montessori teacher could take her, she was obliged to place her in a private school, but to her astonishment she found she was so much in advance of children of her age that she had to be put in a much higher form. She dwelt especially on the remarkable concentration which this method develops. Miss Quarry, the Montessori teacher here then spoke a few words, stating that children trained in the Montessori way were almost universally far in advance of children of their age trained in the public schools, in fact, in Chicago they had established a Montessori class in the public schools and had compared the children with those trained in the lower grades and found them in advance in every respect.

Mr. Andrews then remarked that the Ontario Department of Education had so far acknowledged the Montessori system as to have it placed on its syllabus, but could not say if they had actually established the system in the public schools as yet.

Red Cross. Ardent workers of the Red Cross were in evidence on the grounds from an early hour, this morning. Vendors sold tags and meals were provided in large tents. The warm meals and hot drinks tastefully served by the ladies in charge and their assistants proved a welcome feature of the day.

Thirteen women's institutes of the county were represented, St. George, Mayle-Tranquility, Alford and Park Road, Tutels, Terrace Hill and Grand View, Cainsville, Echo Lake, Langford, Onondaga, Blue Lake, Middleport, Paris and Glenmorris. The ladies in charge were Mesdames G. T. Wood, A. B. Rose, Burke, Hurd and Miss Callahan. They were ably supported by a corps of energetic young ladies who devoted their best talents toward ensuring a successful day for the Red Cross.

Where the Match and Demonstration Take Place. The Oak Park Stock Farm, owned by Mr. W. S. Bailey, is characteristic of the fertility, productiveness and prosperity of Brant county. It comprises five hundred and forty acres of the best arable land, situated four and a half miles from Brantford and about two and a half miles from Paris.

Buildings, equipment, stock and management are in every detail of the most modern. Excellent connection with outside centres exists for three lines of service, the Brantford Municipal Street Railway, the Lake Erie and Northern and the Grand Trunk all stop at the farm. Hydro electric service is provided, and the family residence and out-buildings are all lighted with electricity.

The farm specializes in stock—every variety of thoroughbred—with particular attention to Holstein cattle, for which W. S. Bailey is noted. The proprietor has a firm admiration for thoroughbreds, and cattle, horses, and hogs are all purebred. Among exhibitors at the most prominent fairs in Ontario, Mr. Bailey and his cattle are well known and respected. At London and Toronto this year he swept everything clean in his class and encountered no serious opposition. At present there are now 75 head of cattle at the farm.

Speaking in general, the farm presents a beautiful aspect to the visitor. For location, beauty and utility it cannot be surpassed in Brant county and without exaggeration may be classed with the best farms in the Dominion. Some years ago a delegation of English tourists, travelling through Canada, visited Oak Park Farm, and when their report of their inspection from coast to coast was compiled, special mention was made to the gem of Brant county, which was pronounced without exception the best party had seen in this country.

The house itself is a beautiful exhibition of architecture, founded on the characteristic, rangy country pattern, roomy and comfortable, yet with all modern appliances. Two barns, both over one hundred feet in length, one large hog pen about the same length and two new silos, with other minor structures, comprise the outbuildings. Fresh spring water from the banks of the Grand, 3,600 feet away, is pumped to the house and outbuildings by a hydraulic pump. Running water is conveniently at hand in every stall in the barns. All cutting and all work that can possibly be done by electrical energy is done in this manner. Included in the equipment is a large electric motor, which is

MASS MEETING AS CLOSING CEREMONY IN MOMENTOUS DAY

Professor Bell and Others Were Speakers at Rally Last Evening

A fitting finale to the ceremonies attached to the unveiling and dedication of the Bell Memorial, was observed in the Opera House last night, in the form of a mass meeting commemorating the historic event celebrated, at which Professor Bell and numerous other distinguished visitors were speakers, delivering powerful addresses, at once instructive and entertaining, to a fairly large audience, which had not been daunted by intermittent rain.

Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, chairman of the evening, while deploring the inhospitable weather which had militated against a larger attendance, held forth hope for a splendid program to be offered those present. Professor Alexander Graham Bell, he declared, combined within his person, the best qualities of the Scottish Canadian and American nations. "It is indeed a pleasure," declared Professor Bell, "to return to Brantford, the home of my early manhood and the scene of the telephone's invention. It forms a striking contrast for me to compare the past and the future. There was once a time when I had to be very quiet to the possibilities of speech transmission, before my theories were proven."

Going on to recall his early experiments, the eminent scientist produced a duplicate of the original instruments with which he sought to achieve the transmission of speech. The birth of the telephone, he admitted, was recorded as taking place in Boston, but the invention was conceived in Brantford, in July, 1874.

Dr. Bell gave an interesting resume of the now famous transmission of speech from Brantford to Paris, on the night of Aug. 10th, 1876, when telephone conversation over a long line was achieved for the first time, and the means arrived at by which the practical development of the invention was reached.

When comparing the crude apparatus with which he had made his experiments, with the efficiency of the modern day telephone, Professor Bell considered that modestly behoved him in claiming the present status of the telephone, for the present day phone is the co-operative work of many minds and in pace the handmaid of all and in war indispensable to the belligerent nations.

"Yet," demanded the speaker, "who shall say that we have reached the limit? What of the future? Only recently, by the attachment of a telephone to wireless apparatus at Fort Arlington near Washington, D. C., a scientist talked by word of mouth a distance of thousands of miles. And, more, in the Honolulu. Does this not foreshadow the day when a man will be able to talk to any part of the world without wires or batteries?"

"Professor Bell's words are historic beyond measure," declared Mr. Cockshutt, as the scientist resumed his seat, "and Brantford is highly honored in his presence here today, which is a privilege which none of us should lightly esteem."

He went on to add a few words of praise for the sculptor of the Bell Memorial, Walter Allward of Toronto, who, during the past five years had worked on practically no other task save the monument, into which he put his life, producing a work of art to be handed down to posterity for generations. Mr. Cockshutt then called upon

Sir Edmund Walker, Chairman of the Canadian Arts committee. Sir Edmund was one of the judges who selected the design for the Bell Memorial from a field of nine applications, and he proceeded to outline to the gathering the true symbolism of the statue, the genius of humanity, none other than Professor Bell, whispering into the ear of mankind the secret of speech through the air. The bronze casting of the memorial was the largest of its kind ever cast in North America, if not the world, and Mr. Allward, a capable man in every respect of his art, had thus produced a great work destined to outlast by many generations any other physical structure

IT'S YOUR LIVER! YOU'RE BILIOUS HEADACHY, SICK

Don't stay Constipated with Breath Bad, Stomach Sour or a Cold

Enjoy Life! Liven Your Liver and Bowels To- night and Feel Ripe

To-night sure! Remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, breath offensive and stomach sour. Don't stay bilious, sick, headachy, constipated and full of cold. Why don't you get a box of Cascarets from the drug store now? Eat one or two to-night and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. You will wake up feeling fit and fine. Cascarets never gripe or bother you all the next day like calomel, salts and pills. They act gently but thoroughly. Mothers should give Cascarets to their sick, bilious or feverish children. A whole Cascaret any time. They are harmless, and children love them.

The most remarkable invention ever known," Lord Kelvin had declared forty years ago, of the telephone, and the speaker declared that the instrument had increased personal efficiency in modern business life a thousand fold. The citizens of Brantford, he considered, owed a deep debt of gratitude to Professor Bell, the Governor-General, Sir John Hendri give credit, and to the others who had contributed to the success of the ceremonies, and to Professor Bell in particular, all Ontario testified its personal regard and appreciation of his service to humanity.

Recitations.
"The telephones has demonstrated its usefulness in time of peace and war alike," declared Sergt. W. E. Turley of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Great War Veterans' Association, who illustrated his point with a story from the front, and recited a poem of Kipling's. Mr. Robert Bell, nephew of the scientist, who is at the head of the military and naval department in the United States, also favored the gathering with two vocal selections from the works of Service.

Gilbert Grosvenor, editor of the National Geographic magazine, called the attention of the gathering to Professor Bell's invention of the telephone probe, for the scientific detection of bullets, which had played a big part in three years of war and done much to alleviate suffering. America, to-day he declared, was in the fight with Britain the last man and the last dollar of the English speaking races of the world were united, one alliance for the first time, an alliance which the speaker hoped would endure as long as the language was spoken. The erection of the Bell Memorial had required self sacrifice and work on the part of all concerned, and to all these he, on behalf of the Bell family, extended devoted thanks.

W. H. Griffin.
"I am glad Professor Bell is here on this occasion," declared Walter H. Griffin, mayor of Kalamazoo, Michigan. "I don't believe in distributing my flowers on the dead." He went on to illustrate his view point by the recitation of a poem, interspersing his remarks with quaint flashes of original humor and personality. Mr. Griffin, a former Brantfordite, was active in Professor Bell's first telephonic experiments in the city.

Miss Marjorie Jones gave a most acceptable violin solo during the evening, while Miss Raymond contributed a very pleasing vocal number. The gathering closed with the singing of the National Anthem and the cheers for Professor and Mrs. Bell and Mr. Cockshutt.

LIBERALS TO FIGHT FOR TORONTO SEATS

Will Hold Conventions For All of the Local Ridings

DISOWN UNIONISTS Denounce Lloyd Harris a Traitor to the Masses

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Toronto Liberals will nominate their own candidates for the forthcoming Federal election, and will fight the Government on straight party grounds. This was decided upon at a meeting of the executive of the Central Reform Association of Toronto held yesterday in the office of the president, Mr. C. W. Kerr, in the Lumsden Building. A statement was issued when the meeting adjourned, as follows:

"The Liberal organization of Toronto will hold conventions for the Toronto ridings beginning Tuesday, Nov. 6, and look to the Liberal organizations throughout Ontario to place at once Liberal candidates in the various constituencies to fight the battle of the people and not allow the moneyed interests to become entrenched in Ottawa. Under the guise of a Union Government, the Toronto Liberals," the statement continues, "oppose being led in Dominion offices by any self-constituted provincial leaders, and claim such leaders have no right to divide the representation of Toronto or elsewhere to suit their own individual achievement. The masses in Toronto know to their own sorrow how they the financial and profiteering crowd have been using the masses during these trying war years. The masses know that sawing off seats in the province will result in the interests getting a bigger strangle hold on the Borden Government than they have had even during the past six years."

"The Liberals advocated increased pay to the soldiers, increase of pensions and increased allowance to dependents, but Sir Robert Borden turned a deaf ear to such appeals, although he knew failure to act kept many a worthy citizen from enlisting. Now that he finds so many claiming exemptions he finds it desirable on the eve of an election to increase the interest getting a bigger strangle hold on the Borden Government than they have had even during the past six years."

Lloyd Harris denounced.
"The moving spirit in the so-called Liberal convention in Hamilton in November is Lloyd Harris. This gentleman led the Liberal party along with Sir Clifford Sifton in 1911 because of the stand taken by the Liberal party to lower the high cost of living by removing the protection to Sir Joseph Wesley Flavell and other kindred interests. Labor and Liberal workers of 1917 who are against the high cost of living contend that this Brantford millionaire should at least purge his first betrayal before attempting to betray the masses in the name of Liberalism or Unionism in 1917 to the interests of the millionaire Government."

COUNTRY SEAT AS HOME FOR PREMIER

Gift to the Nation is Made by Col. Sir Arthur Ham- ilton Lee

London, Oct. 25.—(Correspondence)—Colonel Sir Arthur Hamilton Lee, who married Miss Ruth Moore, daughter of J. G. Moore, of New York, in giving his country seat, "The Chequers," to the nation as a residence for British Prime Ministers, makes it a condition that he and Lady Lee may, if they desire, remain in occupation as tenants of the trustees as long as they shall live.

"The Chequers" estate covers 1,500 acres, is the reputed birthplace of Caractacus, in the year 1, and has records dating back to the reign of Henry, the Second, when it was the residence of Elias de Scarario, Chancellor of the Exchequer. The house is Tudor in origin and design, was largely built in 1588, and restored in 1909. Sir Arthur in his bequest asks that no alteration or addition be made to the principal features of the house, as he wishes to protect it against such outrages as were inflicted on it by the late Georgian Goths and Vandals."

In a memorandum outlining the conditions of the trust which is being created under the Prime Minister, Sir Arthur says that the scheme is not a mere whim, but a carefully considered policy based on a long experience of political life and official conditions, and of the beneficial effect that the climate and atmosphere at "The Chequers" invariably exercise on hardworking men of affairs.

He has foreseen that it is impossible to foretell from what classes or conditions of life the future wielders of power in this country will be drawn. They may be men of wealth and famous descent, they may belong to the world of trade, or they may spring from the ranks of manual toilers. He believes that to the City-bred man, periodic contact with rural life would help him to preserve a just sense of proportion between the claims of town and country, while to the revolutionary, the antiquity and calm tenacity of the place would exercise a check upon too hasty appeals. Sir Arthur also lays down the maxim, "The better the health of our rulers the more sanely they rule."

In order to preserve the trust in perpetuity, steps have been taken to constitute a board of ex-officio trustees with the Prime Minister at the head.

"Chequers" is situated on Coombe Hill, the highest point of the Chilterns, is 28 miles by road from Hyde Park Corner and is about one hour rail journey from London.

COAL ALLOTMENT TO THE DOMINION

2,700,000 Tons to Move Across Border in Next Two Months

MORE THAN HER NEED U. S. Fuel Administration To Limit Aggregate Tonnage

Washington, Oct. 24.—Under a definite allotment of American coal for Canada, announced to-night by the fuel administration, about 2,700,000 tons of bituminous and 700,000 ton of anthracite will be permitted to move across the Canadian border during the next two months.

The allotments which will materially reduce the volume of exports, were arranged in consultation with the Canadian authorities, and after a review of statistics showing the Dominion's fuel consumption during the past year and the future needs of its industries and domestic consumers.

"Figures now available," says the administration's statement, "reveal the fact that during the first nine months of this year coal has been shipped into Canada in much larger quantities than in former years, so that the allotments now being made for the different provinces of Canada will involve a limitation not only of the amount to be exported by individual shippers, but of the aggregate tonnage going into Canada during the balance of the winter."

"In order to effectually control the situation the fuel administration is notifying individual shippers of the amounts of coal each will be permitted to export to Canada during November and December. From this time forward the shipment of coal into Canada will be under definite control of the fuel administration, and only shippers with permits from the fuel administration will be allowed to export coal to that country."

The Sealed Valley

By HULBERT FOOTNER

Author of "Jack Chanly"

(From Wednesday's Daily).

The rapids followed each other with short intervals between. The river having taken in several little tributaries during the day was less tumultuous now, but no less charming. It was a jolly little stream that loved to surprise them with new tricks around every bend.

It was not without its element of danger, too, at least to their baggage. Rounding a bend, Nahnya suddenly shouted a command to her brother, and leaped overboard. The water reached to her knees. Bracing herself against the tearing current, she held on grimly to the gnarled of the dugout.

The startled Ralph looking around saw that Charley was likewise overboard, and saw the reason: A pine-tree undermined by the current was toppled over to the opposite bank, and lay trailing its branches in the current, and completely blocking all passage.

Ralph, though Nahnya forbade it, joined them in the icy water, and between the three of them they edged the boat ashore. Charley quickly chopped a way through.

They camped for the night on top of a bluff, about fifteen feet above the river. There was a little clearing and the remains of old campfires.

The view up-stream in the lingering twilight was enchanting. As time went on Ralph noticed that all the regular camping-places along the river had been chosen with a discriminating eye for beauty of outlook.

That evening Ralph's spirits blew a whole gale.

He could be friendly enough with Charley now. By degrees he apprehended that the strange aloofness was that of children; they had to be won, that was all. Since Ralph had a good deal of the child in him, his instinct taught him how to set about it.

To do his share of the work with a right good will, to put off the least suspicion of "silly" and "stupid," was his simple method. Ralph played the fool with all his might.

Charley was easy to win. Charley was just the boy in the concrete: simple, undisciplined, and hard-headed; limited in outlook, therefore prone to scorn. Nahnya was more complicated. Ralph's wiles enticed at first only made her more skittish and distant.

Ralph redoubled his efforts. "I'll make her laugh or break a leg," he vowed.

And obliged to laugh she was, finally, at the sight of Ralph flipping cakes in the pan to the accompaniment of a double shuffle.

"You're foolish!" she said scornfully, but her eyes were kind.

After supper, the mosquitoes biting in abeyance, they lay for a while in a row beside the fire, before turning in under their respective mosquito quito bars. By this time all constraint was melted. Ralph was accepted as one of them.

It appeared that Charley knew more English than he had been prepared to confess to a stranger, so that he was not altogether shut out from their talk.

Nevertheless Nahnya really unbent, and proved for once that she could talk and laugh as easily as any girl. Ralph often looked back on that hour. They gave him his first lesson in Cree: topikow—to-night; moonkiss—white man; pawkwishan—bread; and soforth, laughing endlessly at his efforts to pronounce.

In return Ralph offered to explain Charley's knowledge of the English tongue, and set forth as his first exercise the ancient limerick:

A tutor who tooted the flute
 Tried to teach two young tooters to toot.
 Said the two to the tutor
 It's easier to toot or

DAVID AND THE THUNDER KITTY

Mamma, what makes that dreadful roar?" asked Little David, as a clap of thunder shook the house.

"Why that must be the Thunder Kitty, I guess!" replied mamma, and she went upstairs to close the windows.

David curled up in the big arm chair before the fireplace and closed his eyes to keep out the lightning and just covering up his ears when he heard some one singing.

Away, away to the North Wind's home,
 Yes, up in the clouds, I'll soar,
 Where the thunder kitties roam—
 If you'll listen, you'll hear them roar.

When the Thunder Kitty I hear!
 Out of the fumes in the fireplace tumbled a tiny Flame Boy.

"Hello, David!" he cried, when he saw Little David in the chair. "Are you afraid of that noise?" He laughed when David nodded his head.

"Why that can't harm you! It's only Thunder Kitty playing with the Flame Boy. Put on this yellow coat and cap and come on up with me."

RUTH YEASE CAMERON

A FAMILY JUBILEE

I was in town shopping with a friend of mine the other day, and when we had finished our shopping she said:

"Well, I must get some candy and then go up to the florists and get a few flowers."

"Somebody's birthday?" I asked.

"No," she said, "but Bess is coming home to-night."

Bess is her sister. She had been away for about three weeks and her return was evidently to be made the occasion of a little family festivity.

"I like that. Don't you?"

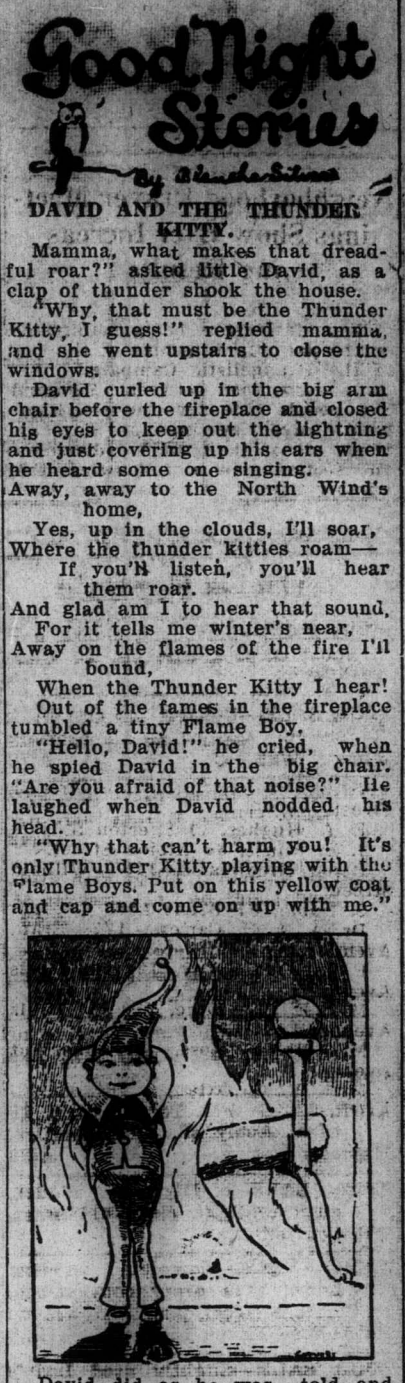

To be sure we miss the old home—

I think if more families did that sort of thing we should have more of the family spirit, more of the love of home in which our younger generation seems to be somewhat lacking.

Of course the atmosphere of an apartment with all its modern improvements differing in no whit from the eighteen other apartments in the building, is not so favorable to the development of family spirit as the atmosphere of an old fashioned homestead, but it can be cultivated if you only care enough.

Little family institutions and customs will produce a family spirit even in a hotel, and more one cannot say.

Make More of the Birthdays. Birthdays always bring a family closer together. Why not make more of them? Not by giving bigger gifts but by having more of a celebration. Have a cake not only for the real children but for the child of thirty or sixty or eighty. He will appreciate the little attention even if he laughs at it. Try to

SOLDIER POLICEMEN.
 (Associated Press).

Paris, Oct. 25.—Some of the soldier-policemen, veterans of the Marne, of the Yser and of Verdun, have made their appearance in the streets of Paris after having done their share at the front, and they are showing themselves quite capable of doing their bit in the keeping of peace.

All of these men are more or less decorated with the various military medals or other ribbons. All of them wear upon their sleeves the record of the time they have served at the front and the ribbons and chevrons seem to have a great calming influence upon turbulent spirits.

Cabmen, taxi-cab drivers, chauffeurs generally, even street peddlers, the sworn enemies of everything in uniform, treat their orders with deference.

THE LADIES OF HELL.

(As the Highland regiments are called by the Germans.)
 There's a toss of the sporrán,
 A swing of the kilt,
 And a screech frae the pipers
 In blood stirring lilt;
 They step out together,
 As the pibroch notes swell—
 Oh, they're bonnie, braw fighters,
 The Ladies of Hell.

They are far frae the heather
 And far frae the moor;
 As the rack of their hill-sides
 Their faces are dour.
 Oh, "The Campbells are coming!"
 Frae corrie and fell—
 What a thrill to the organ,
 These Ladies of Hell.

As they charged at Culloden
 Like fire o'er the brae,
 Their brothers are charging
 In Flanders to-day.
 And one lesson in manners
 The boche has learned well:
 It's nalkie way for the ladies—
 The Ladies of Hell.

CHILD'S ROMPERS.
 By Anabel Worthington.

A very cleverly designed pair of rompers is given in pattern No. 8477. The upper part is cut in kimono style, with long sleeves. The neck is finished with a little round collar. The lower section is in two pieces and is plaited at intervals to fit the yoke. The rompers are to be slipped on over the head, and they button between the knees. Gingham, romper cloth, percale, chambray or crepe is suitable for the rompers.

The children's rompers, pattern No. 8477 is cut in two sizes, 1/2 and 1 year. The smaller size requires 1 3/4 yards of 22 or 27 inch or 1 yard of 36 inch or 40 inch material.

"To obtain this pattern send 15 cents to The Courier, Brantford. Any two patterns for 25 cents."

Rippling Rhymes

In times of peace my robes are rent o'er every statesman's blunder; I clamor that our government for boneheads, is a wonder, for congress then I rip and snort, to wrathful frenzy driven; It is a harmless indoor sport, to which most men are given, it doesn't jar our Uncle Sam, this pessimistic harping; he doesn't care a hinkie sam for criticism carping. In times of peace such talk will go, no voter it disgraces; it serves to let our statesmen know that we are keeping cases. But when our country's in a fight, and loyalty's essential, how good men hate the grouchily night, with dirges pentential! Now, I am backing Uncle Sam, though all the gouches' hoot and sneer; and I am silent as a clam if things don't chance to suit me. I still am talking much, by jings, but talking circumspectly; my Uncle Sam is doing things, and doing them correct. By my Uncle Sam is wise and great and all he does is proper; and I detest the sort of skate who's a dialoy wapper.
