

THE CONCEPTION-BAY MAN.

with a note condemnatory of the same. Mr. Morris at my request gave me the manuscript, which with many others, I still retain, to use as I may deem proper; so that your rhetorical flourish about 'a burning speech' &c., was like many others by the same orator, based on smoke.

Again, you assert that this Speaker's speech was the only one which I reported, this could not have been a mistake, for you—yourself explained to me the nature of what you were pleased to term trifling errors in Mr. Prendergast and Mr. Carters speeches previously reported by me, and which you further observed, arose in both cases, from the improper use of the negative. Mr. Hoyle can further testify that at his office door I offered to submit a speech of his previous to publication, which he declined, saying, we must take our chance for that; the speech was published without correction. Mr. Ellis was pleased to express himself satisfied with his speech in reply to Mr. Hogsett, in Mr. Bennets case, Mr. Parsons, also approved of my report of his speech, and neither Mr. Winsor, nor Mr. March, complained of the several I reported for them. I speak not now of those which I filled up for Mr. Emmerson, but those only which were reported solely by myself, and yet you delicately stated that I reported no other speech—'Can such things be and overcome like a summer cloud?'

It would appear that Hon. Members are not better satisfied now, than when I had the honour of reporting, and by way of diverting them from their just grounds of complaint; You, referring to Mr. Talbot's observations would appear to have arrived at the conclusion that I was the tattling delinquent, without further questioning your motives, I simply meet your assertion with an emphatic and solemn denial of its truth, during the whole course of the session, I did not exchange ten words with Mr. Talbot upon any subject, I was not sufficiently acquainted to address him familiarly, he was in fact a stranger to me, but once I remember exchanging a few words with him in the clerks room, upon general subjects but no reference was then made to the Reports, Mr. Talbot will I feel assured confirm this statement, I believe him to be a plain honest Politician, and he will not allow this character for Candour to be compromised in this matter.

Under such circumstances, I respectfully request that you will retract the injurious assertions which you have thought proper to make against an absent and undefended person. I shall be anxiously into the reports for such extraction and should I be disappointed in this regard, expectation, I trust that there is still sufficient honour and humanity in the Legislative Assembly to call upon you either for confirmatory evidence or an acknowledgement of the injustices complained of.

I remain Sir
Your obedient servant
George Webber.

This Company added to its permanent capital, for the increased retention of its business. This step amply shows that the Company has always acted upon the principle enunciated by the directors at the last Annual Meeting—the proprietors—that the interests of the assured have a paramount claim on the assets—a claim superior even to that of the shareholders themselves.
From that moment, as might be expected, the Company attained the highest position throughout the country and retained it ever since. The result is shown in the annexed fact that its Fire revenue alone rose in about five year run to more than £30,000 to about £130,000!

A further cause of this rapid growth is somewhat more below the surface, but yet of importance. From inquiry we learn that no fire office possessing half the above revenue annually deposits its accounts with the Registrar-general.
The resources and balance-sheet of this great Company are, on the contrary, annually registered, and unmistakable evidence is thus given periodically of its ability to meet its engagements.—Morning Herald, December 26 1856.

Indeed, the bonus of the 'Royal' may be pronounced to be large than any yielded by the mass of the English office. There is an office which yields a fair and wholesome reversionary bonus of 6 per centum in its Life Branch, and if regard to fire operations, can make this very valuable boast, that it has exceeded the Fire business of all but two of the London Fire Offices—viz.: the receipt of nearly £130,000 per year in Fire premiums alone—some of which ancient office have been in existence for a century! Equally successful and singular in both departments. Indeed, the Life Department may be said to present results equally worthy of mention.—Morning Chronicle, November 28, 1855.
