

The Charlotte Mercury

NEW SERIES

CHARLOTTETOWN PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND WEDNESDAY SEPTEMBER 30 1914

VOL XX NO 43

The Charlottetown Herald
—is published—
Every Wednesday
—BY—
Jas. McLeas, Editor & Proprietor
FROM THE "HERALD" OFFICE,
CONNOLLY'S BUILDING,
Queen Street, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Subscription: One Year, in Advance, $1.00
Advertisements—50 cents per inch for first insertion, and 20 cents for each continuation. Special notices 10 cents per line for each insertion.

Contracts made for Monthly, Quarterly, Half-yearly, or Yearly Advertisements, on application.
Remittances may be made by Draft, P. O. Order, or Registered Letter.
Correspondence should be addressed to THE EDITOR OR TO THE "HERALD."

With British and Mercantile

FIRE AND LIFE

INSURANCE COMPANY

—OF—

EDINBURGH AND LONDON.

ESTABLISHED 1869.

Capital Assets, 1898, - - - $50,370,000.

TRANSACTS every description of Fire and Life Business on the most favorable terms.

This Company has been well and favorably known for its prompt payment of losses in this island during the past twenty-two years.

FRED. W. HYNDMAN, Agent

Old Merchants Bank of P. E. I.,
Water St., Charlottetown, Jan. 21, 1891.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

THE Farm, formerly owned by Mr. Peter McLeas, at Mill View, in Queen's County, consisting of about 315 Acres of Land.

With the Dwelling House, Barns, Cows, Cattle and Saw Mills thereon. This property is situated in a fine farming settlement convenient to Churches, Schools, &c. It will be sold as lot, or in lots to suit purchasers.

For terms and particulars apply to C. E. MacNeil, Solicitor, Charlottetown, a July 25, 1910.—17

Farmers & Farmers' Wives
BRING YOUR EGGS TO
Beer & Goff's Store,
Where you will get the highest price in Cash for them, or one cent a dozen extra if you take Goods in exchange.

Our Goods will be found to be first-class in quality and the price as low as the lowest.

We will take your eggs from you right along all summer so that you need not take them into the market at all but bring them direct to us.

BEER & GOFF,
QUEEN & KING SQUARE STORES
April 8—17

McLeod & McKenzie

We always keep on hand a large and varied assortment of the best cloths to be procured in the market. At present we have a large stock of the best Summer Goods and warrant that we can please all our customers. Of our abilities as cutters and fitters we shall say nothing; our work speaks for us. We invite you to call and examine our workmanship, and be convinced that we can cut a suit of clothes in a style to please the most fastidious.

McLEOD & McKENZIE,
QUEEN STREET.

Mark Wright and Co
(LIMITED),
—ARE GIVING—
GREAT BARGAINS
—IN—
FURNITURE.

NEW STORE.
NEW GOODS.
KELLY & McKENNA

Have just opened a Choice Stock of GROCERIES PROVISIONS and CROCKERYWARE, in the Connolly "Old Stand," Queen Street, where they will be pleased to see their friends and the public generally. All those who may be pleased to favor them with their patronage can depend upon getting the very best value for their money, as the Stock has been bought for cash and will be SOLD AT BOTTOM PRICES.

September 16, 1914.—20.

READ THIS!
IT WILL PAY YOU.

$150 worth of sponges. Samples bought at 15 per cent discount.
$75 worth of Tooth Brushes. Samples bought at 15 per cent discount.

Will give our customers the benefit of above discounts. All our Fancy Goods and Toilet requisites are of the best quality and bought for Cash. The prices cannot be underbid.
REDDIN BROS.,

Highest of all in Leavening Power—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

Special and General News.

Improve the nutritive functions of the scalp by using Little's Vegetable Balm. It is a hair restorer and a hair preserver, and will keep the hair from falling and becoming gray.

More cases of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, can be cured in less time, with less medicine, and for less money, by using Carter's Little Liver Pills, than by any other means.

Niagar's Limestone cures Burns, &c.
Niagar's Limestone relieves Neuralgia.
Niagar's Limestone cures Blisters.

A COMMON CHIEF.
A skin disease of whatever name or nature is a disgrace to the sufferer. It is a disgrace to the sufferer, and a disgrace to the family. It is a disgrace to the family, and a disgrace to the community.

THE VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.
The voice of the people is the voice of God. It is the voice of God, and it is the voice of the people. It is the voice of the people, and it is the voice of God.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

Chicago has a child that possesses a mania for remaining out of doors. Often in order to satisfy it the man runs from his home, staying only for a few hours, up to two years ago, he was a family life in Dakota, and there the wild wanderer into the woods and live for days until found, on horse and foot.

A NERVOUS ESCAPE.
I would probably have been in my grave today had not been for Dr. Fowler's Kidney Pills. Five years ago I was afflicted with a severe case of nervous prostration, and my health was fast slipping away from me.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

McLeod & McKenzie
QUEEN STREET.

A Grand Feast in Rome.

While the sounds of Vesper bells from the towers and bell-towers of the many churches in Rome were filling the air—those bells which every evening seem to mourn the dying of the day—Leo XIII. was descending to the Vatican Basilica on the eve of the Apostles of Rome to pray at the tomb of St. Peter.

At 8 o'clock the last of the many thousands of worshippers who visited the church during the day had departed, and the doors were closed. The vast empty space was dimly lighted by large wax torches, rendering the gloom of the distant chapels still more profound.

A brilliant light, however, shone upon the altar, and the golden lamps in gilded bronze that burn always there, with the exception of Good Friday. The Pontiff, accompanied by a few of the Noble Swiss Guards and some members of the Pontifical Court, entered the Basilica by the door leading into the chapel of the Blessed Sacrament.

Here he knelt in adoration for a short time and then proceeded to the bronze statue of St. Peter, arrayed for this occasion in rich cope and jeweled tiara, where he laid his hands on the foot of the statue, and bowed his head in prayer.

Then he descended into the richly-decorated space beneath the level of the floor, and went forward to the shrine immediately beneath the high altar, and knelt there on a falstool.

In this space, at the foot of the double stairs leading from the Basilica, is Canova's colossal kneeling statue of Pope Pius VI., the first Pope who died in exile since the present church was built. A richly wrought grille of gilded bronze, which covers the tomb of St. Peter.

HERE LEO XIII. KNELT above the resting-place of the Prince of the Apostles. His stillness and silence, the white robe he wore, the pale hue of his complexion, all contributed to make him look like a statue, and persons present were reminded of the contrast between the living Pontiff and the marble statue of Pius VI., the latter in the warm light of the surrounding lamps, looking the more life-like of the two.

For close upon two hours the Pontiff knelt there in silent prayer over the remains of the glorious Apostle whose feast Rome celebrated with full-hearted joy on the morrow.

"The body of the Apostle Saint Peter," writes Mgr. Barbier de Montault, "reposes at the bottom of this Confession, at a depth of about twenty feet, corresponding to the lower floor of the Vatican Catacomb, and it is enclosed in a bronze casket. Here, in the old Basilica, the pilgrims of the Middle Ages might look down upon the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"On Saturday and on Sunday nothing could be done towards restoring the cross except sketches and plans and calculations. The English College lads with great pride upon the cross of the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"The power of the bed-bug has been singularly exhibited by the curious decision of a Justice of the Peace in Paris, who has declared the lease of a house broken because the lessee produced before the court a single bed-bug captured in a bed hired for the tenant's convenience by the lessee. The court gave a somewhat remarkable judgment that, article 1,719 of the Civil Code guaranteed the peaceful possession by the lessee of the house; and that no man could be in a forcible possession of a house which contained an active and well-developed bed-bug in the working order. This tribute to the power of the bed-bug, recalls the charming little poem on the same interesting insect by an American poet:

"The June-bug flutters a gaudy wing,
The Fire-bug flies for fame;
The Bed-bug has no wings at all,
But gets there 'all the same.'"

A Triumph of the Cross.
CELEBRATING THE SEVENTH CENTENARY OF THE FOUNDING OF PAVIA.
A correspondent in the Eternal City writes as follows:

"Frascati, the miniature city resting in the lap of the lovely Tuscan Hills, at just an hour's journey from Rome, is now celebrating the seventh centenary of its stormy birth. It was in 1191 that stately Tusculum, older than history, beautiful beyond description, and apparently impregnable, fell from its mountain throne, never to rise again. For the Romans, rude, remorseless conquerors of old, laid hardly a stone upon a stone, and treated the citizens with as little mercy as they treated the city. Such as escaped the cruel Roman steel assembling as near as they could to the old, beloved, but decolored, heights, built themselves a temporary shelter with twigs of trees, whence the name 'twig-bush,' or Frascati. The city is no longer of twigs, but of solid stone and brick, and fine hotels rival at various vantage points proclaim it to be the fashionable summer refuge of the scores of Romans.

Leo XIII. praying at the tomb of St. Peter for the world.

While the sounds of Vesper bells from the towers and bell-towers of the many churches in Rome were filling the air—those bells which every evening seem to mourn the dying of the day—Leo XIII. was descending to the Vatican Basilica on the eve of the Apostles of Rome to pray at the tomb of St. Peter.

At 8 o'clock the last of the many thousands of worshippers who visited the church during the day had departed, and the doors were closed. The vast empty space was dimly lighted by large wax torches, rendering the gloom of the distant chapels still more profound.

A brilliant light, however, shone upon the altar, and the golden lamps in gilded bronze that burn always there, with the exception of Good Friday. The Pontiff, accompanied by a few of the Noble Swiss Guards and some members of the Pontifical Court, entered the Basilica by the door leading into the chapel of the Blessed Sacrament.

Here he knelt in adoration for a short time and then proceeded to the bronze statue of St. Peter, arrayed for this occasion in rich cope and jeweled tiara, where he laid his hands on the foot of the statue, and bowed his head in prayer.

Then he descended into the richly-decorated space beneath the level of the floor, and went forward to the shrine immediately beneath the high altar, and knelt there on a falstool.

In this space, at the foot of the double stairs leading from the Basilica, is Canova's colossal kneeling statue of Pope Pius VI., the first Pope who died in exile since the present church was built. A richly wrought grille of gilded bronze, which covers the tomb of St. Peter.

HERE LEO XIII. KNELT above the resting-place of the Prince of the Apostles. His stillness and silence, the white robe he wore, the pale hue of his complexion, all contributed to make him look like a statue, and persons present were reminded of the contrast between the living Pontiff and the marble statue of Pius VI., the latter in the warm light of the surrounding lamps, looking the more life-like of the two.

For close upon two hours the Pontiff knelt there in silent prayer over the remains of the glorious Apostle whose feast Rome celebrated with full-hearted joy on the morrow.

"The body of the Apostle Saint Peter," writes Mgr. Barbier de Montault, "reposes at the bottom of this Confession, at a depth of about twenty feet, corresponding to the lower floor of the Vatican Catacomb, and it is enclosed in a bronze casket. Here, in the old Basilica, the pilgrims of the Middle Ages might look down upon the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"On Saturday and on Sunday nothing could be done towards restoring the cross except sketches and plans and calculations. The English College lads with great pride upon the cross of the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"The power of the bed-bug has been singularly exhibited by the curious decision of a Justice of the Peace in Paris, who has declared the lease of a house broken because the lessee produced before the court a single bed-bug captured in a bed hired for the tenant's convenience by the lessee. The court gave a somewhat remarkable judgment that, article 1,719 of the Civil Code guaranteed the peaceful possession by the lessee of the house; and that no man could be in a forcible possession of a house which contained an active and well-developed bed-bug in the working order. This tribute to the power of the bed-bug, recalls the charming little poem on the same interesting insect by an American poet:

"The June-bug flutters a gaudy wing,
The Fire-bug flies for fame;
The Bed-bug has no wings at all,
But gets there 'all the same.'"

A Triumph of the Cross.
CELEBRATING THE SEVENTH CENTENARY OF THE FOUNDING OF PAVIA.
A correspondent in the Eternal City writes as follows:

"Frascati, the miniature city resting in the lap of the lovely Tuscan Hills, at just an hour's journey from Rome, is now celebrating the seventh centenary of its stormy birth. It was in 1191 that stately Tusculum, older than history, beautiful beyond description, and apparently impregnable, fell from its mountain throne, never to rise again. For the Romans, rude, remorseless conquerors of old, laid hardly a stone upon a stone, and treated the citizens with as little mercy as they treated the city. Such as escaped the cruel Roman steel assembling as near as they could to the old, beloved, but decolored, heights, built themselves a temporary shelter with twigs of trees, whence the name 'twig-bush,' or Frascati. The city is no longer of twigs, but of solid stone and brick, and fine hotels rival at various vantage points proclaim it to be the fashionable summer refuge of the scores of Romans.

Leo XIII. praying at the tomb of St. Peter for the world.

While the sounds of Vesper bells from the towers and bell-towers of the many churches in Rome were filling the air—those bells which every evening seem to mourn the dying of the day—Leo XIII. was descending to the Vatican Basilica on the eve of the Apostles of Rome to pray at the tomb of St. Peter.

At 8 o'clock the last of the many thousands of worshippers who visited the church during the day had departed, and the doors were closed. The vast empty space was dimly lighted by large wax torches, rendering the gloom of the distant chapels still more profound.

A brilliant light, however, shone upon the altar, and the golden lamps in gilded bronze that burn always there, with the exception of Good Friday. The Pontiff, accompanied by a few of the Noble Swiss Guards and some members of the Pontifical Court, entered the Basilica by the door leading into the chapel of the Blessed Sacrament.

Here he knelt in adoration for a short time and then proceeded to the bronze statue of St. Peter, arrayed for this occasion in rich cope and jeweled tiara, where he laid his hands on the foot of the statue, and bowed his head in prayer.

Then he descended into the richly-decorated space beneath the level of the floor, and went forward to the shrine immediately beneath the high altar, and knelt there on a falstool.

In this space, at the foot of the double stairs leading from the Basilica, is Canova's colossal kneeling statue of Pope Pius VI., the first Pope who died in exile since the present church was built. A richly wrought grille of gilded bronze, which covers the tomb of St. Peter.

HERE LEO XIII. KNELT above the resting-place of the Prince of the Apostles. His stillness and silence, the white robe he wore, the pale hue of his complexion, all contributed to make him look like a statue, and persons present were reminded of the contrast between the living Pontiff and the marble statue of Pius VI., the latter in the warm light of the surrounding lamps, looking the more life-like of the two.

For close upon two hours the Pontiff knelt there in silent prayer over the remains of the glorious Apostle whose feast Rome celebrated with full-hearted joy on the morrow.

"The body of the Apostle Saint Peter," writes Mgr. Barbier de Montault, "reposes at the bottom of this Confession, at a depth of about twenty feet, corresponding to the lower floor of the Vatican Catacomb, and it is enclosed in a bronze casket. Here, in the old Basilica, the pilgrims of the Middle Ages might look down upon the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"On Saturday and on Sunday nothing could be done towards restoring the cross except sketches and plans and calculations. The English College lads with great pride upon the cross of the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"The power of the bed-bug has been singularly exhibited by the curious decision of a Justice of the Peace in Paris, who has declared the lease of a house broken because the lessee produced before the court a single bed-bug captured in a bed hired for the tenant's convenience by the lessee. The court gave a somewhat remarkable judgment that, article 1,719 of the Civil Code guaranteed the peaceful possession by the lessee of the house; and that no man could be in a forcible possession of a house which contained an active and well-developed bed-bug in the working order. This tribute to the power of the bed-bug, recalls the charming little poem on the same interesting insect by an American poet:

"The June-bug flutters a gaudy wing,
The Fire-bug flies for fame;
The Bed-bug has no wings at all,
But gets there 'all the same.'"

A Triumph of the Cross.
CELEBRATING THE SEVENTH CENTENARY OF THE FOUNDING OF PAVIA.
A correspondent in the Eternal City writes as follows:

"Frascati, the miniature city resting in the lap of the lovely Tuscan Hills, at just an hour's journey from Rome, is now celebrating the seventh centenary of its stormy birth. It was in 1191 that stately Tusculum, older than history, beautiful beyond description, and apparently impregnable, fell from its mountain throne, never to rise again. For the Romans, rude, remorseless conquerors of old, laid hardly a stone upon a stone, and treated the citizens with as little mercy as they treated the city. Such as escaped the cruel Roman steel assembling as near as they could to the old, beloved, but decolored, heights, built themselves a temporary shelter with twigs of trees, whence the name 'twig-bush,' or Frascati. The city is no longer of twigs, but of solid stone and brick, and fine hotels rival at various vantage points proclaim it to be the fashionable summer refuge of the scores of Romans.

Leo XIII. praying at the tomb of St. Peter for the world.

While the sounds of Vesper bells from the towers and bell-towers of the many churches in Rome were filling the air—those bells which every evening seem to mourn the dying of the day—Leo XIII. was descending to the Vatican Basilica on the eve of the Apostles of Rome to pray at the tomb of St. Peter.

At 8 o'clock the last of the many thousands of worshippers who visited the church during the day had departed, and the doors were closed. The vast empty space was dimly lighted by large wax torches, rendering the gloom of the distant chapels still more profound.

A brilliant light, however, shone upon the altar, and the golden lamps in gilded bronze that burn always there, with the exception of Good Friday. The Pontiff, accompanied by a few of the Noble Swiss Guards and some members of the Pontifical Court, entered the Basilica by the door leading into the chapel of the Blessed Sacrament.

Here he knelt in adoration for a short time and then proceeded to the bronze statue of St. Peter, arrayed for this occasion in rich cope and jeweled tiara, where he laid his hands on the foot of the statue, and bowed his head in prayer.

Then he descended into the richly-decorated space beneath the level of the floor, and went forward to the shrine immediately beneath the high altar, and knelt there on a falstool.

In this space, at the foot of the double stairs leading from the Basilica, is Canova's colossal kneeling statue of Pope Pius VI., the first Pope who died in exile since the present church was built. A richly wrought grille of gilded bronze, which covers the tomb of St. Peter.

HERE LEO XIII. KNELT above the resting-place of the Prince of the Apostles. His stillness and silence, the white robe he wore, the pale hue of his complexion, all contributed to make him look like a statue, and persons present were reminded of the contrast between the living Pontiff and the marble statue of Pius VI., the latter in the warm light of the surrounding lamps, looking the more life-like of the two.

For close upon two hours the Pontiff knelt there in silent prayer over the remains of the glorious Apostle whose feast Rome celebrated with full-hearted joy on the morrow.

"The body of the Apostle Saint Peter," writes Mgr. Barbier de Montault, "reposes at the bottom of this Confession, at a depth of about twenty feet, corresponding to the lower floor of the Vatican Catacomb, and it is enclosed in a bronze casket. Here, in the old Basilica, the pilgrims of the Middle Ages might look down upon the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"On Saturday and on Sunday nothing could be done towards restoring the cross except sketches and plans and calculations. The English College lads with great pride upon the cross of the Thursday of the Assumption, but they should be held by a Catholic population in the shadow of the Cross was more than 'free thought' could stand, so the sacred sign was overthrown."

"The power of the bed-bug has been singularly exhibited by the curious decision of a Justice of the Peace in Paris, who has declared the lease of a house broken because the lessee produced before the court a single bed-bug captured in a bed hired for the tenant's convenience by the lessee. The court gave a somewhat remarkable judgment that, article 1,719 of the Civil Code guaranteed the peaceful possession by the lessee of the house; and that no man could be in a forcible possession of a house which contained an active and well-developed bed-bug in the working order. This tribute to the power of the bed-bug, recalls the charming little poem on the same interesting insect by an American poet:

"The June-bug flutters a gaudy wing,
The Fire-bug flies for fame;
The Bed-bug has no wings at all,
But gets there 'all the same.'"

A Triumph of the Cross.
CELEBRATING THE SEVENTH CENTENARY OF THE FOUNDING OF PAVIA.
A correspondent in the Eternal City writes as follows:

"Frascati, the miniature city resting in the lap of the lovely Tuscan Hills, at just an hour's journey from Rome, is now celebrating the seventh centenary of its stormy birth. It was in 1191 that stately Tusculum, older than history, beautiful beyond description, and apparently impregnable, fell from its mountain throne, never to rise again. For the Romans, rude, remorseless conquerors of old, laid hardly a stone upon a stone, and treated the citizens with as little mercy as they treated the city. Such as escaped the cruel Roman steel assembling as near as they could to the old, beloved, but decolored, heights, built themselves a temporary shelter with twigs of trees, whence the name 'twig-bush,' or Frascati. The city is no longer of twigs, but of solid stone and brick, and fine hotels rival at various vantage points proclaim it to be the fashionable summer refuge of the scores of Romans.

THE HERALD

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1891.

All matters for publication in the HERALD should be in this office by noon on Tuesday. Persons wishing their advertisements changed must advise us Saturday forenoon.

THE CHARLOTTETOWN HOSPITAL.

The officers of the Charlotetown Hospital have been re-elected for the coming year. The good work done in our midst, for suffering humanity, by the good City of Charlottetown, in charge of the City Hospital. All know, that the hospital has been re-elected, not only for the good work done in our midst, for suffering humanity, but also for the necessary large expenditure incurred in its maintenance. Besides the patients who are treated both in the hospital and outside, who are unable to pay anything, to make up the deficit the good citizens, not only in our midst, but also for the necessary large expenditure incurred in its maintenance.

His Lordship Bishop McDonald is a generous patron of the institution; not less devoted to it than was his illustrious predecessor, Bishop McIntyre, the present incumbent of the hospital. This year, however, he has to meet the expenses incurred in the erection of a new building to which the hospital will soon be moved, and in consequence, cannot otherwise assist the hospital to such an extent as might wish. In years past a collection was taken up in aid of the hospital, by the ladies of the city, devoted to the institution, who cheerfully gave their time and attention to this work. Our citizens from year to year, generously responded to the appeal thus made. The good Sisters have undertaken the obligations they are under to all who have liberally contributed towards the hospital, and wish to return their sincere and heart-felt thanks to the donors as well as to the ladies who so kindly solicited the donations.

As announced in the Charlotetown Standard last week, the good Sisters themselves undertake the task of collecting this year. We feel sure that they will respond as generously as they can to the appeal made to them by the Sisters in person. These good ladies have sacrificed everything of charity. It is not for themselves they undertake the task of going from door to door to solicit aid; it is for the sick poor. They look for no earthly reward for their devoted and untiring labors.

The inadequate accommodations for our sick, afforded by the present hospital, has long been felt; and it was only by means of the generous gift of Mrs. Connolly, in donating to the Sisters the beautiful establishment on the Esplanade, that a solution of the difficulty was at length found. The fine new building now in course of erection adjoining that of the Esplanade, will be fitted up with every conveniency necessary for a first class hospital, and will, besides, be an ornament to the city.

The erection of this building at a large expense, should serve as an additional stimulus to the generosity disposed to give liberally. Let all, who contribute according to their means to this charitable work, and let them remember that those who assist the Lord's poor shall receive a reward exceeding great.

THE REPORT ADOPTED.

As intimated in our last issue, the debate on the report of the Committee of Privileges and Elections, on the case of the Hon. Mr. McGowan, took place in the House of Commons, during last week. The vote was taken on Friday night, or, more correctly, early on Friday morning. The debate was one of the most lively or perhaps the most lively of the session. Mr. Girard moved the adoption of the majority report. He made a moderate speech, and pointed out that the evidence did not show that Sir Hector was guilty of improper conduct. Mr. Amyot and Mr. Cameron of Huron made only partisan speeches. Sir Hector made a good speech, and condemned the extreme views expressed by Mr. Amyot.

This brought Laurier, Leader of the Opposition to his feet, who went far out of his way, in his appeal to the French members of the Commons. He so far forgot himself, also, as to slander Sir John McDonald, the late Premier. His speech all through lacked vigor and dealt in generalities and appeals to sectional prejudices. He was severely taken to task by Dalton McGowan, who pointed out to the House that Laurier had evidently not read the evidence, or having read it did not understand it. He clearly showed that his references to Sir John McDonald's speeches were disingenuous, and his questions therefrom gaudy. In the worst way Laurier was witty with rage and he and his friends did their best to interrupt McGowan. The latter, however, was not to be put down, and badly scored the opposition. He pointed out that Laurier's alliance with Macleod was a corrupt and mercenary one.

Mr. McCarthy, however, would not accept either the majority or minority report. He thought they did not go far enough and he moved an amended motion to the majority report, to the effect that Laurier, the Comptroller, and others should be subjected to criminal prosecution. His amendment was seconded by his brother-in-law, Col. O'Brien. When a division was taken on this amendment, the mover and second were all who voted for it. The vote stood 184 to 25. Mr. McCarthy had made a lengthy speech as the report was taken up, and he had intended to speak on the subject, but he was so tired that he could not do so.

The vote on Mr. Davie's amendment or motion was taken when the amendments were debated by a majority of twenty-one. The main motion was then put, when the majority report was adopted by a majority of twenty-one. Mr. O'Brien voted against the majority report, and Mr. Davie voted against the report and against the Government.

PRINCE COUNTY EXHIBITION.

The Prince County Exhibition at Summerside yesterday was largely attended. The town was crowded with visitors, and the hotels were almost completely full. The exhibition was well attended, and the public were very much interested in the various exhibits.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Remember the spirit of party ethics which binds the Liberals in Ontario to Messrs. Laurier and Laurier's colleagues there. It is the English and English speaking for the advocates of abuse which the Liberal press in this province has turned on the head of Lieutenant-Governor Anger. There are, it must be remembered, a few bye-elections to be fought in Quebec during the week, and the Liberal press in this province has turned on the head of Lieutenant-Governor Anger. There are, it must be remembered, a few bye-elections to be fought in Quebec during the week, and the Liberal press in this province has turned on the head of Lieutenant-Governor Anger.

The National Civil Service Reform League is a society of workers in the United States who have banded themselves together for the object stated in the title of their organization. Some of the most brilliant and influential men in journalism are members of the league. The president is Mr. George William Hoar. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.' It is the object of the league to see that the Government is run as efficiently as possible. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.'

The National Civil Service Reform League is a society of workers in the United States who have banded themselves together for the object stated in the title of their organization. Some of the most brilliant and influential men in journalism are members of the league. The president is Mr. George William Hoar. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.'

The National Civil Service Reform League is a society of workers in the United States who have banded themselves together for the object stated in the title of their organization. Some of the most brilliant and influential men in journalism are members of the league. The president is Mr. George William Hoar. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.'

The National Civil Service Reform League is a society of workers in the United States who have banded themselves together for the object stated in the title of their organization. Some of the most brilliant and influential men in journalism are members of the league. The president is Mr. George William Hoar. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.'

The National Civil Service Reform League is a society of workers in the United States who have banded themselves together for the object stated in the title of their organization. Some of the most brilliant and influential men in journalism are members of the league. The president is Mr. George William Hoar. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.'

The National Civil Service Reform League is a society of workers in the United States who have banded themselves together for the object stated in the title of their organization. Some of the most brilliant and influential men in journalism are members of the league. The president is Mr. George William Hoar. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.'

The National Civil Service Reform League is a society of workers in the United States who have banded themselves together for the object stated in the title of their organization. Some of the most brilliant and influential men in journalism are members of the league. The president is Mr. George William Hoar. They have for their motto, 'to bring about a more efficient and economical government.'

THE TROT AT SOURIS.

Yesterday was a fine clear day, and the trotting race at Souris was well attended. The race was a very interesting one, and the public were very much interested in the various exhibits.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

The first business of the House of Commons on Monday afternoon, of last week, was the reception of the reports from the committees of privileges. The majority report was moved by Mr. Girard, chairman of the committee, who requested that the House should be informed of the results of the investigation.

LOOK HOPE

We have just received our New Stock of FALL and WINTER Overcoatings. They are, without doubt, the finest lot we have ever shown. They consist of Meltons & Beavers, Elysians, Naps Pilots and Cheviots.

ANOTHER OPPORTUNITY.

We have secured One Case of sample WOOL KNIT SHAWLS - German make - which we shall offer for a short time at VERY MUCH below their value. A few of them slightly soiled will be sold for half price.

We are offering the balance of our SPRING SACQUES, DOLMANS, CAPES and FICHUS at prices reduced sufficiently to please the shrewdest buyer.

As we are anxious to completely close out these lines to make room for our immense Fall stock, we shall not allow price to interfere with sales.

REUBEN TUPLIN & CO., KENSINGTON.

Are receiving New Goods daily, in all Departments. Our Goods are made up in the most modern style; for Fits we cannot be beaten, and our prices are always moderate. We guarantee satisfaction.

Boots & Shoes - one of the largest stocks on the Island. Factory Tweeds, Imported Tweeds, Worsteds, Overcoatings in Beaver, Naps, Melton, &c. Men's Knitted Shirts, Top Shirts, &c.

The Largest display of Dress Goods and Mantle Cloths we have ever shown. Trimmings to match. MILLINERY - The newest and most stylish Hats, Shapes, Feathers, Ribbons, &c. Trimming done after the latest New York Fashions, which are received as soon as usual.

The Hardware, Grocery & Crockery Departments are kept full of the choicest goods. Fine Teas a specialty. The highest market price paid for all kinds of produce.

REUBEN TUPLIN & CO., LONDON HOUSE, KENSINGTON.

Watches that will last. Watches repaired. Special discounts on all Watches sold to teachers at G. E. Taylor's.

WATCHES

Watches that will last. Watches repaired. Special discounts on all Watches sold to teachers at G. E. Taylor's.

Watches that will last. Watches repaired. Special discounts on all Watches sold to teachers at G. E. Taylor's.

Watches that will last. Watches repaired. Special discounts on all Watches sold to teachers at G. E. Taylor's.

MAIL CONTRACTS.

Contracts for mail service between Charlottetown and various points. Includes routes to St. John's, Halifax, and other locations.

Contracts for mail service between Charlottetown and various points. Includes routes to St. John's, Halifax, and other locations.

Contracts for mail service between Charlottetown and various points. Includes routes to St. John's, Halifax, and other locations.

Contracts for mail service between Charlottetown and various points. Includes routes to St. John's, Halifax, and other locations.

QUESTION ANSWER.

Where can you buy the best and cheapest School Books in the city? At the Diamond Bookstore, Queen St., you will always find the greatest bargains to be found on P. E. Island.

USE Everybody's Pills.

The Best Family Medicine. Woodill's German Baking Powder. Safe, mild, certain. Guaranteed PURELY VEGETABLE. For indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headache, etc.

The Best Family Medicine. Woodill's German Baking Powder. Safe, mild, certain. Guaranteed PURELY VEGETABLE. For indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headache, etc.

The Best Family Medicine. Woodill's German Baking Powder. Safe, mild, certain. Guaranteed PURELY VEGETABLE. For indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headache, etc.

Fresh, Wholesome.

Woodill's German Baking Powder. Safe, mild, certain. Guaranteed PURELY VEGETABLE. For indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headache, etc.

Woodill's German Baking Powder. Safe, mild, certain. Guaranteed PURELY VEGETABLE. For indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headache, etc.

Woodill's German Baking Powder. Safe, mild, certain. Guaranteed PURELY VEGETABLE. For indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headache, etc.

Woodill's German Baking Powder. Safe, mild, certain. Guaranteed PURELY VEGETABLE. For indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headache, etc.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

LOCAL AND

News items from the local community, including mentions of local businesses and events.

