Healthy Boys need good Bread

When little lad comes in, cheeks aflame from his romp in the open, what will more quickly reconcile him to the indoors than a big slice of bread and butter and sugar, or a bowl of bread and milk?

But for nutriment's sake have bread made of Rainbow Flour.

In wheat there is fibre, skin and a little embryo germ where sprouting starts.

All of these things should be removed in the milling of the flour.

In Rainbow Flour this elimination is carried out completely. Only the pre-st nutrients remain. These are ground to a surpassing fineness which ensures even baking. No other flour sold in Canada is milled with such painstaking care.

Try some.

Sold in 7-lb., 14-lb., 24-lb., 49-lb. and 98-lb. bags and in barrels.

CHAPTER XXVII.

A SELF-WILLED RACE.

"Well, well, my child, you shall never have to blame your old father for anything; we must hope it may all come right in the future."

My father does not argue with me any longer; he sees it is useless; and an hour later we have turned our backs on the grand old house of which I am the rightful mistress—of which I ought to be the loving chatelaine.

I go back to the old life, but not the listless, indifferent, useless existence I led before. I have now important work to occupy me, the preparation for the birth of the child who is, I hope, to be the heir to the old name. I find endless delight in turning over the wee garments and arranging new beauties in the matter of robes and cloaks, and Loys is just the best girl in the world to aid in my choice. And so two months pass away during which time I have never once mentioned Adrian's name, except it be in my dreams. I have never even asked if he has fully recovered from the effects of his accident. More than once one or other of the family has broached the subject, or—no, I must not say that; but they have beaten about the bush, as if trying how far they could venture without offending me. But to all their hints I turn a deaf ear; I will not listen to any one of them, charm they ever so wisely.

Then "daddy"—poor, dear, innocent man—adopts a new method; he leaves letters in Adrian's large, careless writing lying about, just where I am most likely to see them. I smile at his harmless, little plan, and one day say:

"Daddy, it's of no use your leaving these letters lying about, for I don't read them."

"I wish you would," he says, wistfully.

"But I won't," I answer; "and you are on dangerous ground, so I warn you."

He sighs—a sigh full of impatience and sorrow—and I am vexed that he is so worried; and yet what can I do? I am not quite so love-sick that I will go humbly to the feet of a man who calls me a wicked woman—wicked which I am not—foolish, perhaps, but not wicked—and says that he knows me to his cost. I cannot do that, even to oblige my dear father, for whose sake I would stretch a dozen points to their utmost limit.

"The old Duke of Idlemaster is dead," says Loys, one afternoon, when we are sitting together.

"Then the colonel will be leaving?" I say, indifferently.

"Yes; he wouldn't have remained after the marriage. Theo does not like the idea of what she calls 'trailing about at the tail of a regiment. She wasn't very long in forgetting Lasselles, was she?"

"She seems to have a grand bump of forgetfulness in general," I answer, "for she had the impertinence to write to me this morning."

"To you? What about?"

"Well, you see, she can hardly have Col. Cardyllion staying at Park Royal just now, and she wants to come down here."

"What did you say? Have you answered her?"

"Oh, yes! I answered it at once. I suggested that Thornton Charteris would be more appropriate, and on a scale more suited to her tastes, than Sea View. I said I was quite sure Adrian would be charmed."

"Adrian, you never said that!" exclaims Loys, in a shocked tone.

"I did, indeed," I say, coolly.

"I think it is a pity; it is unwise—"

I do, indeed!"

"Well, Loys," I say, with a great sigh, "I am only eighteen, a mere baby, who ought to be still in the schoolroom; and it's not to be wondered at if I haven't, conducted my affairs with brilliant success."

"I think you might make them all right even yet," says Loys, in a tender, pleading voice.

"So daddy seems to think," I say, dryly.

"Women ought to forgive," she says, with an air of wisdom; "it is more especially the province of our sex to be gentle and free from anything like vindictiveness."

"Loys," I say, pathetically, "you don't know what it is; you've had nothing to make you other than gentle little mouse you are. You don't—how should you?—understand the agonies of unrequited affection."

I end with a wild burst of laughter which frightens poor Loys and completely exhausts my small amount of strength, leaving me panting for breath and strongly inclined to hysterics.

My answer to Theo's letter has apparently satisfied her that her presence at Sea View would hardly be welcome; or perhaps the sudden death of the old duke has somewhat altered their plans. Yes, considering all things, I should say that is the most probable reason for her staying away. I am sure no dislike or sarcasm of mine would have prevented her from coming if her mind had been made up to do so. She would have enjoyed with keenest pleasure the gratification of seeing me in my state of widowhood, and of parading her happiness and her pomp before my sad eyes. However, I am mercifully spared this. And so the days glide slowly by, and I am less and less able to get about; and one day when I am sitting in my own room I become aware that something is going on downstairs.

"What is all that bustle?" I say to Loys, when she comes in after a while.

"Bustle, dear?" she says, inquiringly.

"Yes, bustle," I answer. "Has anyone come to stay? It surely is not Theo?"

"Oh, dear, no! What foolish fancies you take into your head!" she says, with a laugh.

"But I heard the sound of wheels," I persist; "and I am sure some one is come!"

"Nonsense; it is the butcher, or the baker, or perhaps Teddy going for a drive. Yes—going to the window and looking out into the dusk—the dogcart is at the door now. It's only Teddy, and I'm sure he is harmless enough!"

CHAPTER III.

The girl bent over the edge of the rock for a minute, looking into the ravine into which horse and rider had been precipitated; then she sprang to her feet, upright as a dart, and listened. All was silent below her. She stood motionless for a time, then with firm and steady steps descended by the narrowest of tracks down the rock.

A stream ran at the bottom of the gully, and beside it she saw the horse struggling to rise. She sprang lightly from stone to stone, and cleared the bridge, which had got round his leg, and the horse, shaking and trembling, rose. Holding it, she peered round for the man. He lay a few feet from her, his face turned up to the angry sky, his tall form stretched its full length. She hesitated a moment or two, but after a while, leading the horse, went toward the man. The scurrying clouds left the moon clear for a space and lighted up Vane's face and form.

The girl looked, started slightly, then bent down over him. She looked at his face, at his hands, at his clothes, and on her own face dawned an expression of surprise and slowly gathering horror. She drew back and looked at him thoughtfully for a time, then she dropped the bridle, and scooping up some water in her hands, flung it on the white face.

Presently she drew nearer, and sitting on the ground beside him, raised his head and unfastened his collar and shirt, and after a moment's hesitation placed her hand on his heart.

As she did so, the fine texture of the linen, the gold Albert, the thick ring on his little finger, seemed to attract her attention, and her dark brows met in a puzzled frown. She reached for some more water, and laid her cold hand on his forehead and presently her primitive effort or his recovery were rewarded.

Vane Tempest drew a long, painful breath, and slowly opened his eyes. There was no intelligence in them at first, but they began to clear and his lips opened and quiveringly muttered:

"Sen, what's happened?"

The girl bent over to catch the words, and at the sound of his voice or expression of surprise and heilderment grew intensified.

As he came still nearer consciousness, she gently put her hand on his knee and laid it on the grass, and drawing a little way from him, sat half crouching, and watched and waited.

Vane sighed and stretched himself, then he painfully raised himself on one elbow and looked around with dazed inquiry.

Presently his eyes fell upon the figure opposite him, and he stared at her with blank amazement.

The moon was clear and bright enough for him to see her quite distinctly; and her loveliness, her half-wild, barbaric attitude, the silent, intent gaze of her splendid eyes, fascinated him and drove the wandering sense almost out of him again.

In that moment he noticed that her eyes were not really black, as he had thought, but a dark, brilliant gray. This fact, in his half-delirious condition, seemed to attain most ridiculous importance in his mind.

She looked at him fixedly, remaining as motionless as if she were a carved image, but for the tresses of dark hair which moved with the wind.

Vane found his voice at last.

"What has happened?" he asked.

"Where's—where's my horse?"

She raised her hand and pointed to the horse, who was limping and grazing at a short distance; then her hand fell into her lap.

Are Panic Stricken.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Panic! Panic! was written largely over the utterances of the News and Herald yesterday. They have received a frightful jolt at the possibility of Sir Robert Bond uniting forces with the F. P. U. Evidently their only hope of success lay in a divided opposition. They see that hope now in a fair way to be shattered and hence the panicky articles of Morris in the News and McGrath in the Herald. They feel their grasp weakening on the loaves and fishes, no more plenas, no more big fees, no more spurs for sale; the reign of corruption and extravagance draws to a close.

Still they keep on bluffing. A few weeks ago and the English language would not have contained words strong enough to land Ex-Premier Bond, if he would only retire from politics and give them another four years to complete the wrecking of the country, if Sir Robert would permit "Morris to finish his work." The halo was ready and with fitting ceremonies Sir Edward Morris was prepared to place it around Sir Robert's head. His henchman, McGrath, and that servile hypocrite, Robinson, were gradually working up to a final paean of praise on his retirement. Sir Robert's virtues were not seen in such a light by the Government for the past four years. But it didn't come off and the darling bit is kept up that a statesman of Sir Robert Bond's reputation should not ally himself with Coaker!

We should like to ask the ordinary fair-minded, common-sense business man if he would not prefer Coaker to Morison, the man whose grabbing stinks in the nostrils of every decent citizen? Would not his interests, his public interests, be as safe to say the least, in the hands of Coaker as in that of Morison, whose knowledge of timber law is of such a flimsy character; or of that of Crobie, made famous by the contracts and his spurs. Who have Morison and Crobie, not to mention Morris, the big Picnic Chief, Cashin and Piccot and the rest been looking after? Every one knows it has been themselves. What has Coaker been doing? Any sealer who secured better conditions at the ice and Union fishermen who can buy his food and clothes cheaper and sell his fish dearer will answer that question.

But we recognize it is great folly to answer these fools of the News and Herald. The readers, Tory and Liberal, of these papers can easily see their drift and the panicky state a possible alliance of Bond and Coaker has thrown them. So frightened are they of the consequence that they have already started to make a manifesto for Sir Robert Bond, and in the Change Islands letter, which any one can see was inspired, a letter which Mr. Cowan has proved to be a tissue of falsehoods, they insinuate that Sir Robert Bond will retract his well settled convictions and declare for non-spectacular education. After thirty years' adherence to the principle of denominational schools Sir Robert is not likely to change his views at this hour. No letter from Change Islands; no concerted production of the Tory Clique, no comments, insinuations or deductions of Morris or McGrath will make the people of this Island believe he has done so.

INDEX.

King George is Skilled Carpenter.

London, Aug. 16.—During the recent tour of King George and Queen Mary through the great industrial centres of the Midlands, His Majesty often surprised his guides and the workmen by the technical knowledge he displayed.

In one case he took a carpenter's plane from an astonished "hand" and did two or three "swipes" with it in a most professional style. As any one who has tried it knows, planing is by no means as easy as it looks and the average novice bungles badly. King George, however, is no amateur, for as a boy he was a proficient carpenter, and can still handle plane and chisel in the deffest style. In his younger days in a fit of temper he once kicked his foot through the panel of a door at Osborne, but later on, seized with ramses, he procured a bit of wood, cut, and planed another panel and made good the mischief.

One of the Prince of Wales' treasures is a bookcase made by his father, who now seldom has time to indulge his hobby.

It is well known that His Majesty is strongly in favor of some such practical knowledge, with the result that many men and women of note are studying arts and crafts and there is likely to be a great revival of the craze for poker work, wood carving, enamelling and so forth.

A Mile With Me.

O who will walk a mile with me
 Along life's merry way?
 O comrade blithe and full of glee,
 Who dare to laugh out loud and free.

And let his frolic fancy play,
 Like a happy child through the flowers gay,
 That fill the field and fringe the way
 Where he walks a mile with me.

And who will walk a mile with me
 Along life's weary way?
 A friend whose heart has eyes to see
 The stars shine out o'er the darkening sea.

And the quiet rest at the end of the day,
 A friend who knows and dares to say,
 The grave sweet words that cheer the way,
 Where he walks a mile with me.

With such a comrade, such a friend,
 I fade would walk till journey's end,
 Through summer sunshine, winter's rain,
 And then?—Farewell, we shall meet again!

Electric Smelters.

When Charles M. Schwab, then President of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, visited Sydney some years ago, he expressed surprise that electric smelters were not part of the Dominion Steel plant. Mr. Schwab contended there were many deposits of ore in Eastern Canada containing a high percentage of Titanium and other acids which could be successfully worked under the electric system of smelting. He mentioned particularly the enormous mountain of ore, located some years ago at Georges Bay, Newfoundland, which he claimed could be manufactured into pig iron by the electric process.

An eminent geologist who visited Sydney a couple of weeks ago, and is at present attending the International Congress at Toronto, speaking on this subject said:

"Swedish, German and French engineers and mining men are surprised to find in Canada no traces of electric smelting—a process which Canada practically introduced to the world, thanks to the researches of certain of her scientists.

Haanel's Experiments.
 "It was a Canadian Dr. Eugene Haanel, director of your Geological Survey at Ottawa, who conducted the experiments and made the reports upon which the European engineers afterward based their electric smelting practice. Largely owing to your Dr. Haanel the refractory iron ore deposits of Switzerland have been made commercially valuable—just as your refractory ores in Central Canada would be if you had electric smelters. Since Dr. Haanel's report 160 electric furnaces have been constructed and are in operation in Switzerland. Yet Canada, which seem in all other things so progressive, lags behind."

Ores Not Used.
 Geologists explain that the magnetic ores so far discovered in Ontario and Quebec are for the most part so sulphurous that they cannot be treated successfully in the blast furnace. Consequently the vast quantities of iron ore which Ontario possesses lie unused. The electric furnace is the one and only means of treating this sulphurous matter. In order to prove that electric furnace could be designed which would smelt the ore at a commercially sound cost of production, Dr. Haanel secured an appropriation from the Ontario Parliament and carried on extensive experiments at Sault Ste. Marie.

"His reports on these experiments," said the geologist, "were eagerly read by European scientists, with the results above mentioned. Yet to-day, despite the market waiting, the ore at hand and unbounded water power at hand to develop the electricity, Canada, the pioneer in electric furnace treatment of refractory ores, has not one."

Cured Eczema Like Magic

Suffered for Years—Tried All Kinds of Treatment—Surprised at Results From Dr. Chase's Ointment.

You can soon tell when people are enthusiastic about medical treatment by the language they use. After experimenting with all sorts of ointments in a vain effort to obtain relief and cure, the wife of this factory was astonished at the quick and satisfactory results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. "It worked like magic," she writes. Indeed, it is surprising the healing that is often effected in a single night by this great ointment. The itching and itching are relieved at once, and cure is only a matter of time and patient treatment. Mrs. Clement, 23 Strange Street, Toronto, Ont. writes: "I have suffered from eczema for years, and after using all kinds of ointments, at last tried Dr. Chase's Ointment. It worked like magic and proved a God-send to me. I would advise anyone suffering from eczema to try one box and be convinced." Write to Geo. E. Bates, 235 Queen St. W., Toronto, Ont., Limited, Toronto.

Securian Firebugs.

To what desperate steps the Morris-Morison combination has been driven is shown by the malicious charges to which currency was given yesterday by an anonymous correspondent in the Daily News and which was repeated parrot-like editorially in the Evening Herald. The charge is that an agreement had been arrived at between Sir Robert Bond and Mr. Coaker to make the killing out of the present denominational schools a part of the policy of the Liberal Party, and to establish in its place a system of non-sectarian schools. The object of the circulation of the falsehood is obvious. It is a Sectarian Appeal pure and simple, and the irony of the incident is, considering those to whom the appeal is made, that it should first appear in the organ of Mr. Morison, who has gained an unenviable notoriety in the past on account of his sectarian appeals to electors. Yesterday Mr. Peter Cowan who was present when the statement was alleged to have been made came forward voluntarily with a categorical denial that any such statement was made. He nailed it as a "lie," pure and simple. The statement that any such agreement had been made we knew to be absolutely false, for we had full knowledge of what had been done and what had not been done. We know in the first place that there had been No Agreement.

Further, we know that no negotiations on the matter of establishing non-sectarian schools have ever been opened by Mr. Coaker or any one on his behalf with Sir Robert Bond or any other member of the Liberal Party. Such a policy is not the policy of the Fishermen's Protective Union. Such a policy is not the policy of the Liberal Party. There has been no desire on either side to negotiate for such a policy, and no negotiations of such a nature have been entered upon. The retention of the present denominational school system is the policy of the Liberal Party. It is also the policy of the Fishermen's Protective Union. The publication of that letter in the Daily News has done the Liberal Party

One Good Turn.
It has in the past been a noisome pestilential snake which has been throwing out its venom in the dark. It has now dared to raise its head in the open and given us an opportunity of killing it. Mr. Peter Cowan did excellent service yesterday in nailing fast the falsehood, and now any further repetition of it will convince those who hear of the added malice and malignity which would give it additional circulation. It is a wicked and malicious falsehood, circulated to stir up sectarian bitterness and all good citizens will frown it down.

Since writing the above we have received a letter on this subject from the President of the F.P.U., which we publish in this issue.

The Police Court.

Five drunks were fined $1 or 3 days; another was fined $2 or 7 days. An assault case was withdrawn. A butcher was summoned for a breach of Sections 1, 3 and 12 of the Public Health Rules. The case was postponed until next week.

Invermore's Report.

"Arrived at Seal Islands at 10.30 a.m.; wind south by east; raining. No improvement in fishery. Passed Kyle at Grady yesterday at 8 p.m."

President Coaker's Visit to Sir Robert.

Yesterday we announced that Mr. Coaker, President of the F. P. U., was visiting the Grange at Whitbourne to lay before Sir Robert Bond the wish of the people of the North that he should take the lead in the fight to turn out the Morris Administration from office. The Liberal leader received the President in his well-known gracious manner, entertained him at lunch and showed him over his beautiful house, grounds and farmstead. After lunch Mr. Coaker conveyed the wishes of the union and non-union men of the northern district to Sir Robert, and the whole political situation was discussed at great length with much detail, with a view to a thorough understanding of the aims of the Union. This lasted until it was time for Mr. Coaker to catch the train, when Sir Robert escorted him to the station to see him off. Mr. Coaker is well pleased with his visit. He was well received and the interview was of a full, free and cordial character. The above shows up the stupid falsehood that Messrs. Coaker and Lloyd were holding a pistol at Sir Robert's head on Saturday, and we need say no more, except perhaps this that Sir Robert yesterday wrote us for additional copies of Saturday's Evening Telegram. Sir Robert is expected in town in a day or two, when we hope to be in a position to make an announcement.

Fire at Bay Roberts.

During the midnight hours of Wednesday last the residence of Mr. John Brown, on the old Barracks Road, Bay Roberts, was totally destroyed by fire. The inmates barely escaped with their lives. Mrs. Brown, Sr., who was in the house ill at the time, was taken out and brought to a neighbour's house. Commenting on the necessity of a fire brigade the Bay Roberts Guardian says:—

"This fire is another proof of the necessity of a fire brigade, an engine, ladders and hose for Bay Roberts, something we have been advocating for the past four years. It is a shame for a community the size and importance of Bay Roberts, with hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property, to be without a fire fighting apparatus. We have had enough property destroyed here during the last four years to pay for an engine, ladders, hose, etc. And what if a fire started in sections where houses are built closely together? Wouldn't the conflagration possibly be a serious one—a conflagration that may be averted if we had such an apparatus?"

Seeking Bait.

Scarcity of squid for baiting is a material handicap to bankers which are now paying a visit to every port on the S. W. Coast, seeking the useful fishes. A few of the vessels that were fortunate in getting quick though short haulings, did well. But for the absence of squid, or the delay in getting them the banking voyage this year would be one of the largest on record.

Prof. Hay, of Girard College, Philadelphia, who is now in the city on a visit, has kindly consented to give a lecture for the benefit of the Alexandra Workers on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Methodist College Institute. Prof. Hay is a well known lecturer, and those who attend are assured of hearing something good.

Two Beautiful Songs.

Are Beautifully Rendered.
The hundreds who attended the Nickel Theatre last evening pronounced it one of the finest shows they had ever attended. It proved once again that Nickel patrons always get full value for their money. The pictures were excellent and the singing and playing was all that could be desired. "The Williamson Animated News" which take the place of Gaumont Graphics and Pathe Weeklies, proved most popular. St. John's audiences prefer British made films and it is hoped that the Nickel Theatre will continue them. There were a dozen or more different scenes and each was watched with interest. President Poincare's Visit to London, and His Majesty presenting the new colors to the Irish Guards at Buckingham Palace, were exceptionally good. The other pictures were also enthusiastically received. Mr. Myers sang the popular British nautical song, "Wrecked and Saved" which was rendered in a charming manner. The audience was delighted with it and showered great applause on the vocalist. "Wrecked and Saved" when sung by an ordinary singer arouses the feelings, especially of an audience such as St. John's, but when sung by such an entertainer as Mr. Myers it creates a profound impression. His illustrated song, "I always knew the girl I'd love would be a girl like you," was also a beauty; the singing was sweet and the slides exceptionally pretty. Prof. McCarthy's playing was also praiseworthy. It pleased the singer and gave delight to the audience as well. This evening the programme is being repeated. Mr. Kitley is arranging a big bill for tomorrow.

Portia Returns.

The a.s. Portia, Capt. J. Kean, returned from the westward at three o'clock this morning. Conditions were favorable going to Bonne Bay, but on the return trip fog was continuous. In consequence the ship was over a day hung up in Burgeo Harbor. She brought the following passengers: Miss Coult, Miss Easterbrook, Miss A. Rose, Miss M. Fournoux, J. Benning, Miss Benning, Master Benning, Sisters Francis and Aloysius, Miss Curtis, Miss R. Power, C. and Mrs. O'Keefe, Mrs. A. Ryan, Rev. Bros. Pennessy, O'Connell and Ryan, E. Parsons, H. Parsons, H. LeMessurier, W. H. Butler, Mrs. Butler, Dr. Fernis in saloon and 35 second class.

Fishery News From the Westward.

Now that trapping is over on the Southern Shore, after a successful voyage, handling is being engaged in by the fishermen and with success. The Portia brings word that yesterday codfish were very plentiful at Renewes and all the boats that were on the grounds, loaded and were back with their cargoes before noon. Many bankers are now on the S.W. coast seeking squid, which is a scarce article. One Lunenburg vessel got a short baiting and after five days fishing on the banks returned with 350 quintals.

C. C. C. Dance.

Last night there was an unusually large attendance at the British Hall where the C. C. C. supporters held a dance in connection with the Maritime Garden Party. The evening was successful in every respect. The Cadet Band supplied the music which was of a high order and elicited much favourable comment. During the evening refreshments were served by a band of ladies to whose untiring efforts the success of the affair was mainly due. At two o'clock this morning the dance terminated.

MILNARD'S LINIMENT CURES GOUT IN COWS.

Women Hit By Law They Invoke.

New York, Aug. 16.—The progressive society women of Arverne, L. I., toured the streets of the village a few weeks ago and returned horror-stricken.

"Garbage is collected here only three times a week," they said, "and it is awful. The streets are littered with refuse. We'll have to remedy this."

A "clean-up" league was formed. Mrs. Morris Berkowitz of Jessica ave. and Story Place Avenue, was made President. They invited other residents to contribute $1 a piece to have the garbage removed from the city every day. Several contributions were received. After the plan was well under way Borough President Connelly of Queens, who had been criticized for not making the city do the work, was invited to inspect Arverne. This he did.

A few days ago inspectors from the department of health interested in the work of the "clean-up" league, went to Arverne. Yesterday five women, including Mrs. Berkowitz and three other members of the league, were brought by summons to the Jamaica police court to explain why they had left their garbage cans uncovered in front of the homes.

And Magistrate Miller found them all guilty, suspending sentence after a warning.

"Spite work," the women declare.

Stimulants.

A stimulant is something which people take to increase their voltage. Some people have so little natural voltage that they have to fire up on stimulants about five nights a week, after which they are able to walk home with the aid of a picket fence and nineteen telephone poles. There are several kinds of stimulants, all of which serve a useful purpose. For instance, the old-fashioned stimulant known as a sound spanking has kept more boys out of the reform school than all the moral precepts of the ages. The moral precept is all right, but it does not seem to reach the spot with so much thoroughness as a conscientious spanking mixed with short, bristling words of admonition. Many a boy has been stimulated into eschewing profanity after a determined mother has rinsed out his mouth with wood ashes and appealed to his manhood with the limb of a willow tree.

Tobacco, tea, coffee and malt extract are mild stimulants which are used with great freedom by doctors who point out their injurious qualities and urge their patients to go at once to a diet of malted milk tablets and peanut butter. It is a touching sight to see a doctor with the cigarette habit advising some old lady to cut out Oolong tea and build up her system with two pints of hot water at each meal. Nevertheless, it is a recognized fact that uninterrupted contact with a cob pipe and coffee made in a lye bucket has cut off thousands of people in their 103rd year and caused the relatives to ask for that familiar hymn, "I Would Not Live Alway."

Nearly all the stimulants have the faculty of giving out at a critical juncture and demanding more rope. Where one man limits himself to three cigars a day, a thousand make way with twenty and top off with four pipest before retiring. When the family physician feeds morphine to sciotic rheumatism, the patient usually recovers just in time to invest in a hypodermic needle. The boy who goes the beef route is lucky if he doesn't wind up on lemon extract. Stimulants never made a clear head and a clean eye or a happy marriage or a captain of industry, and the more they are abused the harder they sting.

Please send me by mail 1 large bottle of Stafford's Prescription "A". Enclosed you will find 50 cents, also 10 cents for postage. You sent me a trial size a few days ago and it almost cured my wife. Another 50 cent bottle will make a cure. I have tried doctors and all kinds of medicine, but I don't believe that there is any medicine that cures a bad stomach like STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION "A".

I am more than thankful that ever you advertised that medicine. Please forward it as soon as possible, as I am waiting anxiously for it.

President Coaker Denounces the Sectarian Fire-Bug.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—In reference to that infamous scrawl signed "One who was there," dated Change Islands, which appeared yesterday in the News and Herald, permit me to say that the contents of the whole letter is a pure concoction, as no such remarks were made by me at that or any other meeting. The scoundrel who wrote the falsehoods was not present at the meeting, he is a civil servant, and a pure and simple Morris heeler well known all over the district of Fogo. Two years ago he applied to the Union for a position, which was refused him by the Councils concerned, he afterwards applied to me for the position of Union Candidate for Fogo District, which application was of course ignored.

The concocted statements regarding the character of this scoundrel, such a statement would have but little effect in the Union Districts, as Union men are well aware that up such things as sectarian schools has ever been discussed in any Council of the Union, such a question being debated from consideration in the Councils of the P. P. U.

The speech delivered at Change Islands dealt with the social and moral aspects of the aims and objects of the P. P. U. In closing I briefly referred to the political situation, stating that the Liberal and Union forces must co-operate in the coming election. I thank Mr. Coaker for his prompt reply to the lying concoctions published in the News and Herald.

Nothing that money can buy, no vile concoction or trick or scheme or plot that devilish ingenuity can plan will be wanting in the fight that is to be put up by the Grab-balls against the Union the coming Fall. Let all beware of Grab-balls tricks and snares. Everything emanating from the News, Herald, Enterprise, Western Star, Twilights, "Sun" and "Times" should be treated with contempt by every voter, for those papers are prepared to sink to any depths in order to secure the return of the Grab-balls next November. The sneaky editor of the News to-day needs more than Mr. Coaker's denial to convince him that the Change Islands letter was false. Mr. Moff, the acting editor is so accustomed to "forget" and lying barefaced falsehood in high places that he imagines Mr. Coaker must be one of the "lapse of memory gang," but the Rev. A. Young, Methodist Minister at Change Islands, occupied a seat on that platform and he wonders if that gentleman will be silent and permit such a vile falsehood to be circulated against an innocent man. Then, again, we will see what the chairman of that meeting has to say about the falsehoods. Perhaps the sneaky News editor will regret that he reflected upon Mr. Coaker's veracity.

Yours truly,
 W. F. COAKER,
 President P. P. U.

Dominions Win Championship

In Bell Island Football Series, 1913.

The fourth game of the Bell Island Football series for this season took place at the Nova Scotia Athletic Grounds on Saturday evening, August 16th when the Dominion Athletic Association came off victors over the Scotias by the score of 2-0, and in so doing carried off the championship for this year; Mr. E. S. Pineson, Treasurer of the St. John's Football League was the guest of the Bell Island League for the occasion and acted as referee giving entire satisfaction. The game was not as fast or so good an exhibition as previous ones, which can be accounted for by the fact that the evening was somewhat one for football and several of the Nova Scotia regular team were absent from their line up. In the first half the Dominion played with the wind and worked hard in endeavouring to score. The Nova Scotia defence was however almost impregnable, and it was not till near half time when Pearce the Dominion full back sent a neat shot from almost center and thus drew first blood for the evening. A few minutes later half time sounded and the teams crossed over.

DOMINIONS 2, SCOTIAS 0.

On resuming the Dominions made a vigorous rush, but were soon repulsed and Thomas for the Scotias made a brave effort to score and several rushes were made by the Scotias forwards, their Captain Cahill keeping his forwards well down. The Dominion defence especially that of their goaler Wafali was certainly a stone wall and with a very heavy breeze against them they managed to keep the Scotias from scoring. Burnham for the Dominions however made a splendid rush up the right wing and carrying the ball up field landed No. 2 for his team amidst much applause. This stirred the Scotias to greater efforts and they again made a bombardment of Dominion territory but to no avail. W. Martin of the Dominion half division then received an injury which prevented him from finishing the game. Nothing further was done in the way of scoring and a few minutes later the final whistle sounded leaving the score DOMINIONS 2, SCOTIAS 0.

Notes on the game.

Congratulations to Captain Noonan and his team for carrying off the championship honours. They certainly worked hard throughout the season and had a splendid victory in winning every game played. Better luck next time Scotias and Captain Cahill. You played the game

Minimise The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimise the loss, due to a backward and cold season, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 25 per cent better than Nitrate of Soda as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops per acre may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.

We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The Huerta Government's rejection of the suggestion made by the States for a peaceful solution of the Mexican revolution, reached Washington late yesterday. President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Councillor Moore, of the State Department, discussed for two hours the dispatches of John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico, describing the attitude of the Huerta officials. The President and his advisers are plainly disappointed at the turn of events but announced the American Government would have nothing to say to-night. Instead of the American communication appealing for a suspension of hostilities and a constitutional election, together with the statement that under no circumstances would the States recognize the Huerta regime because it was set up by an irregular force instead a constitutional order will be made public to-day in view of the rejection of the suggestions contained in the communication presented by Lind. Its publication to-day will constitute a reiteration before the world of President Wilson's ideas as Constitutional Government in Latin America. In all likelihood events mean the end of any dealings with the Huerta officials. The position taken by administration officials last night was that the States had done all that a friendly neighbor could do without using force. They pointed out that from the beginning of the trouble in Mexico, the States has had but two alternatives, friendly mediation, or armed intervention. No sentiment exists in this country to justify intervention or war, they said, and no foreign government would insist on the sacrifice by the States of a thousand lives, and gigantic financial burdens merely to adjust an international dispute in which the States are not a direct party, and over which it can have no jurisdiction without infringing on the sovereignty of another republic, which it is by treaty obliged to maintain. The only interest, it was pointed out, that the States can have in Mexico, is the protection of lives and property. Financial losses can be met by indemnities. It is believed here the lives will be best protected by the withdrawal of Americans from the danger zone. To this end officials are considering the removal of Americans and payment of transportation for the destitute. A strong sentiment in favor of giving the constitutionists a chance to fit them in an equality with the Huerta faction, exists in the Senate. President Wilson said he would be opposed to such a measure as it is not a move in the direction of peace, but has not definitely made up his mind on the subject.

MEXICO CITY, To-day.

The United States Government was given until midnight last night by President Huerta to recognize Mexico. It is officially stated that the Government is not specific in its public announcement as to what course will then be pursued, but it is understood it means severing all relations between the two countries.

JUNEAU, Alaska, To-day.

Twenty-five passengers, seven members of the crew of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co's steamer "State of California," perished on Sunday morning at Campbell Bay, ninety miles south-west of Juneau, when the vessel struck an uncharted rock. She sank in three minutes with many passengers imprisoned in their staterooms. The steamer left Seattle last Wednesday night for Skagway way points. The purser lost his records and it is not possible to give a complete list of the missing. A great hole was torn in the bottom of the vessel. The cargo and the mail boxes are a total loss. The ship was valued at $400,000. The steamship Jefferson, Alaska Steamship Line, south bound, heard a wireless call from the sinking vessel, and turned back to rescue the survivors who had taken to small boats and life rafts.

MONTREAL, To-day.

The ice of Belle Isle Straits is fast thinning out, according to reports made by officers of the Donaldson liner Athenia, which arrived here from Glasgow. They state the difference of conditions passing through the Straits this time is most noticeable compared with those prevailing only a month ago but the report of ice being met with much farther this year than ever before. During the voyage which has just ended the Athenia encountered the first ice 250 miles to East of Belle Isle, whereas it is distinctly unusual for it to be met with until 200 miles east of that point.

LONDON, To-day.

The situation between Bulgaria and Turkey is becoming critical. Prince Said Halim, Turkish Grand Vizier, admits the Turks occupied Demodolice, twenty-five miles South of Adrianople, and other strategic points on the right bank of Maritza River, but explains this was done only for the protection of the railway which runs along the right bank of the stream. Said Halim denies that the Turks occupied Dedegatch the terminus of the railroad in the Gulf of Enos, or that they are advancing on Thumallina, about 25 miles North West. The Porte clearly has not the slightest intention to abandon Adrianople where Enver Bey has 25,000 troops and which number will soon be increased to 40,000. Despite official denials it appears only too probable the Turks are projecting, if they have not already begun an advance against Bulgaria. Note of protest against this, the Bulgarian Government presented to the Foreign Legations on Sunday. This note said the Turks had advanced to 45 miles West of Maritza River, and were marching towards Jirfall and Jumallina. The populace of Athens gave King Constantine a tremendous ovation on his return to the Capital.

An Unfair Deception.

BY BETH CAMERON.

If you had to take a very long journey into a distant land to be gone a long, long time, perhaps forever, how would you like not to be told that you were to go until a day or even a few hours before the time to start? Especially when everyone about you had known for a much longer time that you were going to take that journey, or at least were likely to take it.

Wouldn't you say, "But how can I get ready in this little time? Why, I ought to have had weeks to arrange my affairs for my absence make all my preparations, and say goodbye to my friends?" And wouldn't you be very much displeased that your family and friends had kept this important information from you?

Or, worse still, supposing, if it were possible, that even while you slept you were carried aboard a ship, and without a chance to make the least preparation, to leave a single instruction on the winding up of your business, to say one farewell, were started off on a journey, so long that no one knew when it would end.

Such things are almost impossible, aren't they?

And yet, just this thing is being done every day. Or rather, something far worse. And done by people who dearly love those whom they treat so treacherously and unfairly.

In a hospital not far from here a young girl lies on her death bed. The nurse and doctors, and her family have known for at least a week that she cannot possibly live, and yet no one has told her that she is about to start on the long, long journey to that far off shore from which no traveler returns. She is not suffering any pain, she thinks she is going to get better, and they do all they can to encourage her in that thought. They make agonizing efforts to appear cheerful when they are with her. They tell her she is looking better and they make plans for the coming winter. The doctor says she will soon lapse into unconsciousness, and they are determined to keep this up until then.

Do you know, whenever I think of that poor girl being so deluded, and about so important a matter, I am sick at heart. Undoubtedly they mean the best, but don't you think they are making a cruel mistake?

We cannot tell a soul that is to be born, and it has always seemed to me that to summon a soul out of eternity is rather a terrible responsibility. But when "that which draws from out the boundless deep turns again home," we can tell the departing soul that it is about to set sail back into the eternity from which it came and I think that when we fall to do it we shrink a solemn duty.

P.S.—Since writing the above I have talked with two or three friends on the matter, and I wonder if I have not been too emphatic. One woman said she had done just this same thing; that her motive was to save her mother from suffering as she would if she had known that death, which she greatly feared, was at hand. Of course this point of view must be taken into account, but unless there is some such extreme fear of death it still seems to me it is fairer to let the traveler know of the journey he is to take.

Red Cuman

Outing at King's Point, Newfoundland.

(By S. Archie Matthews.)

Among the many arms and inlets which indent the coast around Notre Dame Bay, there is one particularly picturesque stretch of water running ten miles inland, and is walled by a great mountain on each side, between which it appears but a narrow stream. This inlet is known as South West Arm, called so, because it runs in that direction.

The water at certain places is known to be as much as two hundred fathoms in depth, and large steamships can lie close beside its cliffs, which run up perpendicularly from the sea.

At the extremity of this arm of water, it widens out into a little basin; the south side being clothed with green trees of different kinds, while on the north side, the beautiful settlement of King's Point, with its green meadows and white houses,

FARMER'S WIFE ALMOST A WRECK

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — Her Own Story.

London, Ont.—"I am a farmer's wife and a very busy woman. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back so bad that I could not get up or scarcely move without pain, and my periods were painful. My husband called in a good doctor and I was under his care for some time, but he did me little or no good.

One day a friend of mine told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had been greatly helped by it. I began taking it and soon got well, and my periods became natural again. Since then I have had perfect health. In fact I have never felt so well in my life. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine many women need. If you think this letter will help other women please publish it."—Mrs. K. C. Young, Tambling's Corner, London, Ontario, Canada.

Women who suffer from those distressing and peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidentially) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

In a short time we were at the "mine" looking at the bright copper on its banks and enjoying a general view of the works and surrounding country.

After selecting a large forge as a place for cooking dinner and a small office building near it for dining, Eddie, Pat and myself started for the nearest pond, about half a mile distant. We tried for fish on both sides of it, but without success.

The wind was blowing moderately from the southwest and we were using both files and bait.

Getting impatient, we left for another pond, half a mile from the first, and while on our way, Pat wandered away from Eddie and myself, but as we knew he was familiar with the country, concluded that he went alone to fish at another pond.

I used the fly, while Eddie used the bait, and I soon found out that the bait was the right thing here, as he soon pulled up three big trout on the bank, while I was getting nothing. I changed a hook, putting on one bait hook and leaving a fly on the line. The first trial with this arrangement I got one on each hook at the same time.

We both caught them quite steadily now, until our baskets began to feel heavy, when we thought it wise to return to the "mine," or we would find it difficult to travel over the rough country with our load. We reached the house where the ladies had the lunch ready to serve. They viewed our fine catch to their hearts' content, then served lunch up on the verandah.

Pat arrived half an hour before Eddie and myself and his catch was quite equal to ours.

It being now 2 p.m. and not having lunched since breakfast, we were well able for a good solid meal. All of the delicacies, of course, were left till the last, including the pudding, which in a short time had shown itself on the table in a very different form. The ladies explained to us that they had to change it to three pots while boiling it; also mixed it over after taking it from the first, but we needed a solid meal, so this did not daunt our appetites in the least for a pudding cooked in a one day's outing, therefore it soon vanished.

After we heartily thanked the ladies for the pleasant meal, we took several snapshots views.

We then inspected the mine which was opened and operated for the purpose of prospecting, by a few enterprising men of Notre Dame Bay. The operations were closed this season after three years' mining that proved to have excellent results which we ourselves could easily see by the great piles of shining copper on its banks. The prospectors are now trying to effect a sale of their valuable mine to any large mining company, who will comply with their reasonable terms and begin operations afresh.

We believe that this will shortly come to pass and then the beautiful village of King's Point will soon develop into a flourishing mining town.

We secured some samples of the copper from the banks of the mine, and then went back to the house.

Miss Pitman suggested that we rename the place for ourselves, as the "mine" would suit a prospecting party much better than a happy party of holiday makers, so we chose "Happy Valley" as a name for the place of our day's outing.

While the ladies were packing up the cooking outfit, Eddie, Pat and myself entertained ourselves by making a target of the empty bottles left from dinner, and smashing them with stones. When we were sure that all the glassware was leaving behind us had been smashed, we left for home; it was now 5 p.m.

As the land was very much down grade, we did not feel it tiresome travelling out. In a short time we were rowing across the water, taking in a good view of the mining locality where we had an unusually good outing.

Before parting to go to our homes to take a much needed rest, we unanimously decided that our ideal spot for outing while we are spending holidays at King's Point would be "Happy Valley."

Woman Acts Strangely

A woman named Aspell, who lives at the North Battery, causes no small amount of sensation in that locality each evening. She takes a customary fit of screaming and it is not an unusual thing for her to tear up her clothing, run about sparsely clad and finally spend a restless night in the woods. Such was the experience of the unfortunate creature on Sunday night last. Surely this woman must be of unsound mind and it is up to the authorities to find out what her defect is. A pitiable phase to the case is that she is living almost in abject poverty, deprived of all the common necessities of life, and perhaps it is hunger that is making the woman act strangely.

When Mrs. Smith Said "O Dear."

Mrs. Smith was a pretty woman. She loved fun, she loved good clothes, she loved good living. And Smith was the kind who always brought home the money. He earned more than any other man within four blocks. He was successful.

Yet there was only one topic of conversation in the Smith household, and that was money. There wasn't time for anything else.

Mrs. Jones' husband wasn't so fortunate. He earned about half what Smith earned. Yet Mrs. Jones was also fun loving, clothes loving, and in fact a lover of all good things of life.

Now comes the singular part of our story.

Mrs. Smith had fun, and bought clothes spasmodically with long lapses of dreariness and dowdiness in between. Mrs. Jones always had fun, and always had clothes.

And so, as is usually the case, Mrs. Smith, who was considered so fortunate, finally found herself going for help to Mrs. Jones.

"How do you do it?" said Mrs. Smith. "How on earth do you do it?"

And Mrs. Jones, having a kind heart as well as a shrewd mind turned to her richer friend and spoke as follows:

"I think we are wearing the same kind of shoes," said Mrs. Jones. "How much did you pay for yours?"

"I paid $7.00," said Mrs. Smith.

"That is strange," said Mrs. Jones. "I paid $3.85 for mine."

"How much did you pay for that little evening wrap? I have one almost like it."

"I really don't remember," said Mrs. Smith, "but I think it was $35.00."

"How odd," said Mrs. Jones. "I think I bought mine for $16.75."

And so the two women went through the list of wearables, until finally Mrs. Smith said in exasperation:

"Oh dear, how in the world did you do it?"

Mrs. Jones laughed a good untroubled laugh.

"Why," she said, "I do what every money making man in the world does. I watch my markets and I buy when the prices are down. You do what every spendthrift man in the world does. You merely follow your next whim and buy when the prices are up."

"I have my next year's shoes, stockings and underwear all bought from these Clearance sales. Next year you are going to pay two or three times as much as I have paid for the same things, just the same as you did for your shoes and your wrap."

"Oh dear," said Mrs. Smith, "how in the world do you know when prices are down?"

"Why," said Mrs. Jones, "with another laugh, 'I read my marketing reports. I read my advertising and I know everything that is going on in every store. Here, take this paper, 'The People's Paper,' 'The Evening Telegram,' she added. 'Try it yourself.' Turn to the advertising and see what you find to-day. The Clearance sales are on in every store, and every store worth while is advertising here."

Mrs. Smith gave one final "Oh dear."

"I guess it isn't how much money you have, but the way you use it," she said.

Morris's Invitation.

To the Acting Editor of the 'News,'
Will you walk into my parlour?
Says Ned Morris to H. Y. Mott,
I notice in this morning's 'News'
You wrote a lot of rot.
You'll have to drop that kind of work
It will never do, you know,
Or I'll make you take your tuiting fork
And play Doh Sol me Doh.
Last evening in the Telegram
You got a dressing down,
Harry, you were handled bad
By honest Peter Cowin.
That letter from Change Islands,
Which you thought a grand surprise,
Sure, Peter told you plainly
That it was a pack of lies!
You wrote of combinations
Which had taken place before.
Which shows your want of judgment
Harry must be very poor.
For they were anti-liberal
And made up of Tory freed.
And I was one amongst them
When they sold the land to Reid.
Now walk out from my parlour,
Or I'll change your name to Lick the Spoon
Instead of Harry Mott.

Hr. Grate Notes.

Yesterday was a disagreeable day which was very unfortunate, as we were to have a big parade of Brigades—the Highlanders, two Carbonar brigades and our two Harbor
Grace brigades—through our streets.
Owing to the downpour of rain the Highlanders alone turned out and attended service at the Kirk.
The many friends here of Mr.
Grant Paterson were very pleased to have him here for a few days last week of his holidays. He leaves for St. John's to-day, where he expects to remain four or five weeks before returning to his studies in the Old Country. We wish him a continuation of his success.
The farmers are looking forward to an extra good turning crop this season, and one farmer told us a day or two ago that the crop in this neighborhood would be in the vicinity of 4000 bbls.

The Highlanders left by this morn-ing's train for St. John's, having thoroughly enjoyed their 1913 outing.
The visit of the Highlanders is always looked forward to with pleasure by our people young and old.
They are always welcome, this being made particularly so by their gentlemenly manners to all they meet.
We would take this opportunity of wishing them all, including the gentlemen, a very successful and pleasant season, and we will be glad to welcome them again to Harbor
Grace next year.
Mr. W. A. Munn, Mrs. Munn and Munn were in town last week, and left for St. John's by this morning's train.

Mr. George Gordon, of the General
Post Office staff, St. John's, and Miss Ethel Ash, daughter of the late John Ash, were united in matrimony at St.
Paul's Church on Thursday evening last. The interesting ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Noel in the presence of a large number of friends. After a reception at the home of the groom's parents, Mr.
and Mrs. John Gordon, the happy young pair left by the afternoon train for Placentia where the honeymoon was to be spent. The many friends of this popular young couple wish them much happiness and long life together.

The sad news was received in town by telegram this morning, of the death at Elliston, T.B., of Mrs.
James, wife of Rev. T. H. James, Methodist minister. Mrs. James was well known and highly respected in this town and her death was learned with very much regret. The sorrowing husband has the sympathy of this community in his great loss.

Household Notes.

To relieve aching eyes from a burning sensation, bathe them in hot water into which a dash of witch-hazel has been added.
Saut put on a cloth saturated with kerosene will clean the enameled bathtub. Afterward rinse the tub with warm soapy water.
To clean brass trays, sprinkle with coarse salt, cover with sufficient vinegar to wet the salt, rub thoroughly and polish with leather.
To clean feathers put them into a bag with a cupful of Indian meal, half a cupful of flour and three teaspoon-fuls of borax. Shake.
By using various colors to mark clothing, each child having his own color, much time may be saved in sorting and putting away clothing.
Skimmed milk is a good substitute for starch and it will not stick to the iron. Wash and rinse the garment as usual and then rinse in the milk.
To clean brass so that it will retain its brightness for several days, use a paste made of powdered rotten stone moistened with turpentine.
A good method of cleaning tennis balls is as follows: Scrub them with soap and water. Do not rinse the soap out, but put them in the sun to dry.
The most nauseous physic may be given to children if first you allow them to suck a peppermint lozenge, a piece of alum or a bit of orange peel.
After putting colored clothes through the wringer, rub the rollers with a cloth saturated with paraffin.
This will remove the color from them.
To whiten finger nails and improve the hands, use a fresh lemon in two and rub well at night. Wash off in warm water the next morning.
Never cover up nail or brittle brush on the washstand. The brushes will soften and be unwholesome if not allowed to have the air blowing over them.
Yolks of eggs which have been left over from cooking, from which the whites have been used, can be kept three or four days if covered with cold water.
Do not hang white china silk up to dry after washing, but wrap after wringing slightly, in a piece of white goods. Iron dry and it will not turn yellow.
A little kerosene is good for white enameled woodwork. After washing the woodwork in the usual way, put a little kerosene on a cloth and rub over the woodwork.
If you have trouble with the milk
curdling when you put it on to boil, try adding a pinch of bicarbonate of soda to each quart of milk before putting it on the stove.
Sponge ribbon and silk with a mixture of equal parts of alcohol and highly rectified benzine. Great care should be taken to do this away from the fire or gas burner.
We can recommend to our lady patrons a visit to the Showrooms of G.
Garland. You will find some new and very attractive and elegant costumes and one-piece Serge Robes, Jackets, etc., at remarkably low prices, being made in samples.

Magnate's Wife to Manage Railway.

Atlanta, Aug. 14.—Trained by her husband during his four years of invalidism in all the intricacies of the many businesses in which he was interested, Mrs. Cora Williams, widow of Capt. Jesse P. Williams, is now prepared to carry on the work.
By the recent death of Capt. Williams who so far as was known left no will, Mrs. Williams comes into possession of a property reputed to be worth $10,000,000.
This includes $2,200,000 worth of bonds of the Georgia, Florida and Alabama Railway, a 200-mile inter-state line and 90 per cent. of the stock, together with 250,000 acres of rich farming and timber lands in South Georgia and Florida and numerous other investments.
Capt. Williams' interests were chiefly centred in his railway, and it was to keep this that he insisted on his wife acquiring a thorough knowledge of all details of railway work.
Knowing her husband's wishes and policies, she, with their faithful lieutenants, carried them out. It is the belief of her close friends that it is her purpose to handle the large properties just as Capt. Williams would have done so, in other words, to continue to carry out his wishes, and especially to so direct the railway that it shall steadily grow to be a stronger factor in the development of south-west Georgia and West Florida.

Solid Comfort

I sit me down in the inglenook with a loaded pipe and a corking book of the rattling Rex Beach kind, and I do not care what the steamships do, what plans they form or what routes pursue, to any of their tricks I'm blind. At the tariff grind they may break their backs, they may sustain themselves at the income tax as often they have before. I'm reading now of a man who goes on carriage bent through Alaska snows with a gun and a pair of gore. I'm reading now the heroic tale of mighty men in the arctic gale a-making their fearful trips; I'm all worked up over these stalwart chaps and I do not care what the jumping Japs may do with their stinky ships. I'm tired of facts, though they're Vital Things, I'm tired of measures that congress springs, I'm tired of the White House news; it's good to roam in the desert place with a husky team and a frozen face, and a pair of willow shoes. It's good to travel with Rex E. Beach away, away to the snowy reach of the far Alaska strand, to leave awhile by the action road the daily grind and the heavy load and this sad fact ridden land.

Orders now taken for our New Pack Island Brand BONELESS CODFISH.

A Constantinople despatch to the Times, reports the Russian warships Rostetav and Kagme, stationed on the Bosphorus, left last night for an unknown destination, probably Sebastopol. The news of their departure was not believed in Constantinople until it was confirmed by officers of warships in the Black Sea toward midnight, steaming northward. The Russian Ambassador ordered the Admiral yesterday to sail for an unknown destination, adding that instructions would reach him on the high seas. The belief is expressed that the departure of the warships is probably connected with the Adriatic question.

Throws Babies From an Auto.

Tarrytown, N.Y., Aug. 12.—One woman was hurt badly, two others were injured and three children were saved by a mother's presence of mind, when a big seven passenger automobile got beyond the control of the owner, Lee Levy, of Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon when coming down the Arch Hill. The accident happened directly in front of William Rockefeller's estate. Mr. Levy, who is a real estate dealer in Brooklyn, started for Poughkeepsie yesterday morning from his Brooklyn home with his wife, three children, Mrs. Rosses Baird, Robert Baird and Miss Lena Perski. Just before Mr. Levy reached the Arch Hill brick road a rain fell, making it slippery. Near the bottom the automobile kept gaining momentum, and Mr. Levy, who only had had the automobile three weeks, became frightened and put on the brakes.

The result was that the automobile skidded, spun around three times on the pavement and then turned completely over into a ditch. Mrs. Levy, who sat in the tonneau, was tossed over a stone wall into the grass her infant child, her daughter Clara and Robert Baird, and her act saved their lives.

The women and children were taken to the Tarrytown hospital. Miss Perski had a broken collarbone and arm. Mrs. Baird, who was sitting beside Mr. Levy was only shaken up, but Mrs. Levy was badly bruised.

LONDON, August 18.
According to the Daily Express, while the police were making enquiries concerning an Egyptian at Oxford, recently, an undergraduate revealed a plot to kill Lord Kitchener, through the medium of an Egyptian secret society. The matter was taken to the Foreign Office, which made investigations and found that certain Oxford students had been prominent in seditious circles in London. Kitchener has been warned.

LONDON, August 18.
The Morning Post commenting on Canada and Imperial Defence, supposes that Sir Ian Hamilton's report means that if the scientific paper organization does not hang fire, the Canadian school boy will be given a compulsory training. If the boy, the paper asks, why not the man. School teaching while valuable, does not create recruits, and if Canada is satisfied with this sort of thing there will be a rude awakening should war ever break out. It is a serious sign of the times, it adds, when an officer of such responsibility as an Inspector General makes such opera bouffe recommendations.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well, you did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late then to talk of prudence; too late then to say: "If I had only, etc., etc." That "it" means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible. Can you call your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

Tariff Bill Makes Very Slow Progress.

Washington, August 12.—Democratic leaders in the Senate are considerably perturbed over the failure to make progress on the tariff bill, and for several days informal conferences have been held with Progressive Republicans and regular Republican leaders in the hope that some means to hasten consideration of the measure might be found. It is stated, however, that nothing definite has been accomplished. Meanwhile consideration of the bill drags on. Yesterday little progress was made, several paragraphs of the metal schedule being under discussion, chiefly lead and cast iron pipe, which the Senate finance committee transferred to the free list, striking out the House rate of 12 per cent, was discussed by Senator Clark of Arkansas. He said this product was so controlled by combinations that unfair prices were artificially maintained. He urged that a free market be given to foreign manufacturers to break up the controlling American combination.

Garden Party To-Morrow.

The Garden Party to be held at Ferryland to-morrow, in aid of the new convent of that place, will give the lovers of nature a splendid opportunity for viewing the varied scenery of lake and wood, and bay, which abound on the new Trepansey Branch. While the Garden Party will afford an opportunity for a most enjoyable and health-giving outing, those who participate in it will have the gratification of knowing that they are contributing towards the advancement of a most desirable object, namely, that of education. The old convent and school in which the devoted and self-sacrificing Sisters have been teaching since the establishment of the Order at Ferryland, has outlived its day, and it becomes an absolute necessity to replace it by a new one. To this end the venerable and popular Parish Priest of the district, the Rev. L. Veriker, is devoting his best efforts and for some time has been working unceasingly for its accomplishment, and no doubt those in the city who can afford to do so will co-operate with the zealous pastor in so praiseworthy an object. It is not necessary to speak here of the good work of the devoted women, the teaching Sisters. Wherever they are established the character of their work is impressed upon the children, whose moral and social welfare is the sole object of their life work. No doubt a great number from the city will be present at Ferryland to-morrow where a most enjoyable programme is outlined, and the pleasure will be the greater by the knowledge that the undertaking is in the interest of education.

Sensation in Montreal Police Circles.
Montreal, Aug. 14.—Application it is reported has been made to the Provincial authorities for a complete investigation of the Police Department of Montreal and its methods. Further, it is announced that it is more than likely an investigation of the John H. Roberts charges against Chief of Police Campeau, which the Board of Control has decided shall be a judicial affair, and the charges which will result from the twelve affidavits, will be heard together if possible. This will result in an immediate investigation of the department, and will be used as a lever toward getting the Provincial Government to probe the whole system. Intense excitement reigns at police headquarters this afternoon owing to the reported disclosure of a system of alleged graft in connection with disorderly houses in Montreal. Twelve affidavits connecting twelve members of the force have already been made out accusing those mentioned of levying toll on disorderly houses in return for police protection. These men are also charged with making a regular practice of going into disorderly houses and ordering free drinks. Chief Campeau stated that the charges were not at all beyond his credence. "There are some 800 men on the force, and it is not improbable that among them there are some dishonest persons. For my part," he continued, "I would have the thing cleared up as soon as possible."

girl Takes Strychnine and is Removed from Crowded Trolley Car.
Yonkers, N.Y., August 9.—A refined appearing, stylishly dressed girl, about twenty years old, lies at the point of death in St. Joseph's Hospital here to-night as the result of swallowing strychnine on a South Broadway trolley car in this city, about six o'clock this evening. In a brief conscious interval she said she was Miss Elsie Wilmer, of No. 119, West 118th Street, Manhattan, and admitted that she had swallowed poison. She said she wanted to die because of the turn a love affair had taken.

While she lies delirious in the ward she sings snatches of love songs in a sweet soprano voice. The girl was a passenger on a car bound from the Van Cortlandt Park subway station to Yonkers. The car was crowded. Near Cortlandt Park in the same seat with the girl, noticed that she looked ill. As they started to question her she swooned. George Bruce, a trolley inspector, had the car stopped when it reached the hospital, at Starb street, and the girl was

Twice Proven Cure for Nerves

Irritable, Hysterical, Sleepless, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Restores Health.
There is a message in this letter for thousands of women who are suffering from broken-down, nervous systems. Sleepless nights, much irritability over little things, spells of dizziness and nervous sick headaches are among the symptoms. You may not realize the nature of your ailment until nervous prostration comes upon you. But, in whatever stage you find yourself, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is ready to help you. Mrs. W. J. May, 83 Annette street, Toronto, writes: "Some years ago I suffered from nervous trouble, and took Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which completely cured me. About six months ago I received a shock which again shattered my nervous system to such an extent that I was irritable and hysterical, and could not sleep nights. I began to use the Nerve Food again and was not disappointed. Improvement was apparent from the first box, and now I am entirely well." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers.

gained consciousness for a few minutes. She answered a few questions, but was delirious when Coroner James P. Dunn arrived to take an ante-mortem statement. He sent a message to the New York address the girl had given. Dr. Larkin said that the girl probably had taken the poison in tablet form. No one on the car saw her swallow the tablet. She had none in any form in her effects. Dr. Larkin said she might have taken it an hour before she succumbed to its effects. He stated that it was evident she had taken enough to cause death, and that the dose undoubtedly will prove fatal. The girl is a prepossessing brunette. Her clothing is of good quality and modest. Only some change and keys were found in her handbag. She wore no jewellery. As the time passed to-night the girl continued to sing love lyrics, but her condition failed to respond to treatment. At the Manhattan address given by the girl she is not known.

We used POLARINE exclusively and found it superior to any other oil which we had previously tested, and while the cars were operated under all sorts of climatic conditions, we were so well pleased with the results obtainable from the use of POLARINE OIL that we propose to use nothing else on the eight Winton Cars which we will operate this year.

"Stella Maris."

Sentiment, one of the characters says, is everything in life. Without it no heroic action would ever be performed, no self-sacrifice shown; everything would be just miserable. Mr. Locke can certainly not be accused of losing sight of this most pleasing human attribute. Stella Maris, with her delicate thoughts and fancies, is thoroughly charming. Risca and Herrold are both quite captivating. The story as a whole is well worthy to rank with Locke's best and most successful novels. Special Colonial Editions—paper, 50c; cloth, 75c.
