CHAPTER XVII.
And the poor major, without so much as a cartridge left, could only brush, he said, the midgets off his face with his big Indian silk handkerchief, and argue—

"Still, my dear child, have you realized how this will leave you? Why, with fifty or sixty pounds, no more! And suppose your mother doesn't—doesn't smooth down. You'll be dependent on her, you know. She'll feel that unfair, I'm afraid."
"I won't let her," Sydney cried. The truth was bitter, though, and made her falter. "Mamma shall not be burdened with me. I ought to be worth my salt somewhere to some one. If God helps those who help themselves, Major Villiers, then I won't be afraid. I think He will help me."

There was no urging argument past this. The major went presently down, getting rid of more midgets by the way, to his son, of whom he had not ventured to speak to Sydney. But now, joining the young man in a gloomy promenade up and down the fir walk, he said, with some of the enthusiasm stigmatized by Mrs. Alwyn as unbusiness-like.

"My boy, sooner than give up the girl I'd take her without a farthing if I were in your shoes. She's a woman of a thousand!"
"But as she also happens to be a woman without a thousand, she is no the one for me, sir," returned Rupert sulkily. He had pitied himself into a perfect slough of exasperation against the head-strong young marplot. "I don't forget, 'When poverty comes in at the door love flies out of the window.'"

"Ah! but there need be nothing that young folks like you two ought to call poverty at your door, my boy. Not if the hundreds I've put by can save it off. If the love is only there I'd marry her now, sooner than ever I would, upon my honor, Rupert!"
"Then I think it's well for the future of both of us that my head is cooler than yours, sir," was the ungracious response. With his hand crammed down in his coat-pockets the gentleman marched abruptly off by a side-path, and his father saw that further persuasion would be in vain.

Each man felt awkward at Th. Dale, and both left by evening. The younger, still steeped in self-commiseration, vouchsafed no message to Sydney. The elder sought her out and said good-bye full as paternally as if the darling scheme he had been cherishing were nigh fulfillment. However, matters turn out," he said "if ever you want anything that I can give, don't be above asking it. You know where to find me."

He was thinking that some o pusillanimous Mr. Rupert's wedding fund might be of service to the girl. Alas! before London was reached he had discovered that must go in another direction. For the son, wisely calculating that the fare of the day's confagration would cast his private peccadilloes into shadow, made a clean breast of debts, I O U's included, as they travelled up, and clumsily shouldering the farewell sins of bachelorhood on the design just broken off, secured a promise of clearing up that emptied the major's reserve fund to the last note.

Before night closed around The Dale, Mrs. Alwyn had another interview with Sydney, and gave her the result of twelve hours' meditation on her conduct.

"You are doing me, your sister, and yourself a gross injury. What course you will take I am too frightfully upset to contemplate. But this I warn you, Sydney. The fortune I had secured when I married your father, then old enough to be my father—pausing, that her daughter might recognize the unequal bargain—"I consider Leonora's. Don't deceive your self into expectation of sharing it."
"I will not, mother."

"As for your home, if you consider you ought to diminish, by sharing it your sister's provision and mine for a month or six weeks, do so. But you ought by then to find means of maintaining yourself. I have one thing to insist on. I will not have all the business, which I have labored for your sake and Leonora's to keep concealed, bruted about the parish."
"I will speak of it to no one."
"It might ruin Leonora's prospects as you have contrived to let it ruin our own. And another thing: I will not have the bearer of my name publicly place-hunting. You, who can do so much for your father, must do this much for your mother. Wherever you earn your living, drop the name of Alwyn. Don't disgrace my open association with paid labor. Sydney bent her head, her heart for a moment too full for speech. But Mrs. Alwyn would have rustled off to her own room, she stayed her, a hand leadingly upon her shoulder.

"Mother, I am but trying to do the best I can with what I have while it is mine." (Robert Vaughan's lesson well learned—well learned!) "Some day you may take my willfulness less hardly. Do kiss me."
Even in her white heat of anger Mrs. Alwyn could not refuse; but she went forth, her handkerchief to her eyes, and took refuge on sentimentality—wondrous to relate—snubbing Leonora!

That young lady, however, less afflicted of the household, reflects calmly, as she put her sapphire ring beside her other jewels, that it was an ill wind that blew no one a good. She had got a present, after kind, and while people had been ranging about in consultation in floors, she had enjoyed, when strolling about the lawn, a brief meeting with Mr. Edward DuVesne. He had betrayed some nervousness—suggested a sign! Had wished to see Mrs. Alwyn particularly—hoped he should fortunately find her disengaged some day.

Which meant—
Leonora smiled serenely, as, after gazing affectionately at her portrait she wrapped the flattering semblance carefully up, and laid it away. I was lucky, after all, she had not given it to poor, ridiculous Sydney. It would be ready now for some one else. "Oh, silly, silly Sydney!" she thought, with her last yawn. "she would soon have to be going somewhere, as mamma said, and where would that be?"

In the next room that question was in its first stage of solution.
Sydney, sleepless, had turned out the few contents of her traveling-bag, among them a scrap of paper that came upon her as a message, she would faint hope, of good. And before she lay down to rest a note was written, signed with her first initials only, to one Miss Hurst, far off in the western country.

CHAPTER XVIII.
That The Dale during the next few days was anything but the abode of cheerfulness, is a fact requiring little imagination to paint.
To Sydney, Mr. Villiers's prompt desertion was a realistic comment on the course she had taken, such as might have purchased some women's repentance and possible recantation. But having put her hand to the plow, the last thing on earth to turn the girl back would have been personal suffering. Sharp and cruel as this was, tempting her to disbelief that love could ever re-enter her life, the keenest venom of the sting lay in the fact that she had been too willing to grasp at the semblance of affection too ready to read the ways of the wooer by the light of her own wishes! Or thus she thought, and every spark of dignity within her flew ablaze at the affront she conceived herself to have courted by taking for pure gold what was but poorest dross. In the despair of mortification she planted her foot on every tender remembrance or emotion, and strove with all her might to count her love well lost. Chill was her outlook now the sole ray of light among her many clouds the firm belief that, even as her father would have had her, she was doing well, come what might.

Beyond the house for days she would not stir. Mary Dacie would soon trace trouble in her bearing and would scarcely be satisfied with but searching into that whereon she had promised silence. A line to the Gate House (shown before sent to her mother's jealous eyes) bade them no wonder at her absence; and the long hours Sydney passed in setting her possessions in order, ready for what might come next.

Leonora, meanwhile, regarded her with pitying amazement and slight supercilious kindness that was far from soothing.
"To think," said this young lady to her step-sister, whom she watched working, herself in a rocking-chair enjoying the dolce far niente of a hot afternoon—"to think you should go Sydney, and give up a respectable income, that would have kept you decently, and dressed you—oh, really remarkably well! I wouldn't have done it!"

This fetched a smile to Sydney's grave face.

"In my stead, Leonora, you might have acted the same!"

"Never!" emphatically. "Of course it's done, and can't be undone, but I'm sorry for you, Sydney. I wish you had not been so frightfully foolish! You will find it very disagreeable, after living here so nicely, to go down and be a sort of common person. I don't expect you have half thought of that."
"I don't expect I have."
"People who have money, you know, are treated very differently from those who have not, Sydney. You will find that out."

"I have found it out already."
"A—h!" prolonging the interjection. "Yes, so you have. And, do you know, you'll most assuredly be sorry some day you drove Rupert from your poor fellow!"

"We will not talk of that, Norah, please," said Sydney, terse only because a rebellious weakness threatened self-command; and gathering her work together, she silently went away.

"Angry with me for interfering, as usual," deplored Leonora to her mother; "though I spoke only for her good. But Sydney will never leave off being headstrong."

This ultimatum Mrs. Alwyn fully endorsed, and resigned herself to illness as its result. Appearing down stairs only at dinner, she spent the time dejectedly in the boudoir, word going forth to callers that neuralgia necessitated seclusion. To Sydney she accorded a mournful civility that implied, "You shall have nothing to complain of, however you have made me suffer!" And with scrupulous politeness when they met at table she would offer her peccant daughter a share of each viand, though the tone in which she would ask, "Do you wish for butter, Sydney?" would seem to say that on the insane course she had chosen it was her duty to discard all luxuries, butter included!

arrived in due course. Mrs. Alwyn handed her brother's letter in its uncompromising frankness to Sydney. The writer made no attempt to mince matters: "For you see," he said to Major Villiers, who went down to Hampshire to talk the position over with his co-trustee, "you can afford to side with her if you like. She's no relation of yours. But she is of mine. And I don't hesitate to call her a fool!"

Which sentiment he had expressed in his epistle, "though," as he wound up, "there is little use in my saying this, for we are well aware, and Sydney equally, no one can stop her if she persists in this insane folly. I only beg you to explain that she is not to count on legacies from me. Maria's relatives will have what I have got. Please to inform her that the sum to which she is entitled will be placed to her credit in the London and County by the 18th prox. The transfer from stock I can manage myself. The usual percentage I shall, of course, deduct."

Thus delivered himself Mr. Russell, the man-of-all-trades, though gentleman of no profession, who, in his alacrity to turn an honest penny, did not disdain the picking from his young relative's misfortunes. And as if to prove herself true to the strain Mrs. Alwyn observed, querulously, as the letter was returned.

"You are not forgetting that you are indebted to me, Sydney? It would be curious honor which would lead you to repay strangers' debts you never incurred, and let your mother lose what she unguardedly lent you! Of course, those twenty pounds are gone?"

"Not quite, mamma," came the answer, very low, bitterness and sadness having about an even tussle in the speaker's breast just then; "I have a little left, enough to—take me away; I will soon hand back the rest I—owe you."

She went that same Wednesday, as the sun's heat was moderating, by field-paths to Hedyngham, there found a letter addressed merely to the post-office of the little town, and read it as she went back to St. Clair's by the same unfrequented way.

The rector, strolling beyond his garden, saw her coming, preoccupied enough to have passed him in the gloaming, had he not greeted her with.
"Well, met again! We are perplexed, Miss Sydney, as to what you have been doing with yourself of late. Halt now. I am wanting to hear your latest news."

It is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for an 8 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

9904.—AN IDEAL DRESS FOR SCHOOL OR GENERAL WEAR.

Girl's Dress with Over Blouse.

Plaid gingham, in blue and brown tones is here combined with blue chambray. The effect and the style are attractive. The model will develop equally well in galatea, lawn, percale, serge, voile, poplin, silk, or challie. The overblouse closes on the shoulders, over an undersleeve, finished with wrist length sleeves and a round collar. The lines are girlish and the model is comfortable and easy to develop. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 40 inch material for waist and skirt, overblouse requires 1 1/2 yards, in the 10 year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

ENOUGH.

By BUTH CAMERON.

Do you know when you have had enough? We usually hear that question applied to one particular form of excess, but I mean to give it a broader gauge—do you know when you have had enough of anything?

Enough is a small word but it is a big fact. On the other hand there are few things in the world so good that they cannot be made harmful by people who do not understand the meaning of that big, little word, enough.

Eating is a necessary and pleasant process, but over-eating kills both body and mind.

Exercise strengthens the muscles but over-exercise tears them down. A reasonable amount of study sharpens the mind. Over-studying dulls it.

The ancient Greeks, perhaps the wisest people who ever lived, had two great mottoes. One was "Know Thyself." The other "Nothing in excess." It would be hard to tell which of these two is the greater.

The inability to realize when one has had enough shows itself in a thousand little ways.

I have a friend who is unusually intelligent, of excellent presence and very persevering. He makes a pleasant impression upon everyone he meets. He ought to be a great success in a business way but he isn't. And the reason is, that although he makes a pleasant impression he doesn't leave one. He meets a man, talks to him awhile, and wins him with the power of his personality. Then he talks to him a while longer and loses him by his long windedness and his inability to know when he has enough.

Writers seldom know when they have enough. It is one of the sure signs of an unskilful writer that he isn't content with one adjective but continually uses two or three. Any amateur can pile word on word and phrase on phrase, and description on description. It takes the skilled man to know when to stop.

A great many people do not know when they have enough furniture in a room. Out of a dozen rooms nearly a half dozen have too much in them. For one room that is spoiled by having too little in it, you will probably find a hundred spoiled by people who do not know when they have had enough.

Learn to know when you have had enough be it of phrases, food, furniture, or anything else in the world. For, as a friend of mine frequently says, "Enough is enough."

Forty Persons Who Threw Snow Can't Take Exams.

Forty "freshies" or half the class in the Faculty of Arts at McGill University are sorry now that they threw snowballs. For an attack on the French master, Mr. Perdrant, has been rewarded by the faculty in a manner some think too severe for the offence—the Freshies in question will not be allowed to try their French examinations this spring, but will have to wait until the fall. Such is the terrible punishment meted out by the faculty to the Freshies. And the "Sophs" wax exultant in their glee.

Last week some snow fell. Spring was in the air, and evidently in the veins of the students in Section A. Snow was too irresistible. Half the class left the room—without the professor's permission—and proceeded to lay siege to the particular room wherein the lesson in French was supposed to go on.

Bang—Crash! "I got a window that time!" "Just missed his ribs," and similar expressions accompanied such snowball. The scene grew riotous. Desks were torn from their hinges, the bookcase smashed, all the windows were no more, and every student in the room was covered with snow. So was Mr. Perdrant.

The class adjourned itself—again without the permission of the professor. The Freshies fought among themselves on the campus. A house divided is not much good, as the Freshies soon learned, for who should come on the scene but the Sophs. They were scattered all over the place—some on the roof, others at the windows, and the rest on the campus. At last several pails of water cooled the ardor of the Freshies, who left in a sad condition.

"Soft is the note and sad the lay," etc., etc., is ringing in the heart of every Freshman who partook in that noble fight. For the Faculty has taken a hand and meted out the punishment mentioned.

About the only effect the ruling will have will be that they will have to keep on "plugging" French all summer for the examination in the fall, lest they forget what they do know about the subject.—Montreal Star.

Warwick Castle Let

"Warwick Castle has been let for a year to Mr. Henry Marsh, from the United States, who was for some time the tenant of Knebworth, Lord Lytton's place in Hertfordshire, which is now let to the Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, younger brother of the Emperor Nicholas," says "Truth." "Mr. Marsh undertakes to grant admission to the State apartments of the castle under the usual regulations.

The Givers.

The great five men are of obscure; they do wide, resounding fame, that experts warrant to endure until the finish of the game. Old Clinckbeard is such a man, and though he has no store of year, he's always doing what he can to help along his fellowmen. He has no millions to disburse, but when he meets a hungry guy, he digs a quarter from his purse, which buys the sinkers and the pie. The gifts of bloated millionaires mean nothing of a sacrifice; they sit around in easy chairs and count the seeds they have on ice; if Croesus gives ten thousand bucks to help some college off the rocks, he still can have his wine and ducks—he has ten million in his box. The widow's mite, I do not doubt, in heaven made a bigger splash than sheekit Pharisies siphled out from their larks wads of Hi-gained cash. And so the poor man, when he breaks the only William in his pants, to buy some widow tea and cakes, is making angels sing and dance. In fertile soil he sows seeds, and he shall reap a rich reward; for he who gives the coin he needs, is surely leading to the Lord.

"Not in a White Sheet."

Colonel Seely, the ex-War Minister, addressed two meetings of his constituents at Ilkesham, Derbyshire, yesterday, giving an account of his actions in connection with the Army crisis.

"I have no intention whatever of standing in a white sheet," he said, "for harbouring bitterness. I resigned not because I desired to recede one inch from the policy I laid down, but because at a critical time my leaving the Government would make their task easier.

"It came to my knowledge as Secretary for War, that there was a real risk that hot-headed persons not under any kind of discipline or order might attempt to rush certain places in Ireland where there were large stores of arms and ammunition. My colleagues agreed with me that we must take measures to protect these places. Had there been a plot to crush Ulster by a surprise attack the last thing in the world to do would have been to send small detachments of men to assist the police in guarding these places. It was suggested that we should remove these stores, but my view was that that might precipitate bloodshed in Ireland if we did that in face of opposition from an armed force.

"During my tenure of office every order given under my instructions was punctually and implicitly obeyed. No man disobeyed any order then or before the trouble arose over words and the application of words. The Conservative newspapers went mad trying to make the country and the Army think that there was a great plot to overwhelm Ulster by force of arms. So wicked a thing could never have been conceived by any Government, least of all by a Liberal Government. (Cheers.) For we Liberals take our stand on the words I used that no amount of provocation will make us forget that force in itself is no remedy." (Cheers.)

"If I had stood alone I would say that under no circumstances, under no provocation, shall we ever depart from that sound rule of liberty that the Army in this country is only to be used in the last resort, and then only to the extent that may be required to protect the lives of the citizens within it." (Cheers.)

"My Mistake."

Colonel Seely, after describing his interview with the officers summoned from Ireland and the drawing up of the document handed to General Jough, said the last two paragraphs added to it by him seemed to him to represent very accurately the true liberal view of the proper duty of the Army in support of the civil power.

"In the electrical atmosphere the view that the document, meant to be a statement of fact, was a trophy extracted by certain officers from us and was to be regarded as a charter of optional obedience went right through the Army.

"In these circumstances what was my duty? I saw that these tremendous misapprehensions having occurred through my mistake in not having gathered my colleagues together again, my usefulness in this crisis to the Government was gone for the moment and there are I pressed the Prime Minister to accept my resignation. My greatest consolation in the sacrifice I made is that I have been succeeded by an abler hand than has ever before been the head of the British Army." (Cheers.)

A Generous Response

The response to the appeal for the Marine Disasters' Fund has been most gratifying and is coming up fully to the expectations of the most sanguine. Newfoundland is doing her part nobly and the capital, St. John's, has nobly and generously led the way in free-hearted giving. Our brethren at home are also doing their part, and on Saturday Sir Edward Morris cabled Mr. Bennett, that the Home subscriptions, including that of London, Liverpool and Glasgow, now amount to about £12,000 sterling, or $60,000. This includes some $20,000 already acknowledged by Mr. Watson. There is thus some $40,000 to come to his hands yet from the Old Land. The Premier in his message also said that on Thursday night, at the banquet given by the Lord Mayor to the diplomatic corps, at which 400 persons were present, he was asked to propose the toast of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayors, and took occasion then to thank the British public for their sympathy and support in regard to the recent disasters to our sailing fleet.

Most of the subscriptions raised and being raised in Canada and the United States have not yet been received by the Honorary Treasurer. There is thus in sight funds which should enable the Trustees to afford relief to the sufferers from our recent disasters at the rate somewhat on the scale afforded to the sufferers from the Etina disaster.

This morning Mr. Watson received a message from Mayor Ellis stating Montreal, New York and Boston would respond generously. Mr. Ellis leaves Montreal to-day for home. Mr. Watson was also informed by Bowring Bros. that the Hon. Edgar Bowring's personal subscription would be $1,000.

Obituary.

MRS. M. RYAN.
After a protracted illness, she passed away yesterday at her residence on King's Road, Maria, relict of the late John Ryan, Tailor and Clothier. Deceased was 67 years of age, and was a well respected figure in the East End. She is survived by one son, Thomas Ryan, painter, and two daughters. We sympathize with the bereaved family.

MISS MARGARET FANNING.
There occurred at the General Hospital this morning the death of Miss Margaret Fanning, daughter of James and the late Bridget Fanning, at the early age of 18 years. The deceased had been ill for some months past, and despite medical skill gradually faded until her condition became serious. She was conscious to the last and received the consolations of her church. To her sorrowing relatives the Telegram extends profound sympathy.

Missionary Anniversary.

Yesterday was Missionary Day in Wesley Church. Rev. R. H. Maddock was the special preacher and delivered a comprehensive and admirable discourse from the question of Job's Baptist concerning Christ. "Art thou that should come or do we look for another?"
At the evening service the laymen as they should, took a prominent part. Mr. C. H. Hutcheson, K.C., Chairman imparted a true missionary spirit. The prayer was led by Mr. A. W. Martin. Mr. G. W. Gushue, J.P., gave an excellent address on the subject of "Christian Giving," which captivated the hearers. The subject of the "Tenth" was advocated as a divine injunction. The argument of not being able to afford the tenth was nullified by the rejoinder which was given to the hit that "no person could afford, not giving the tenth." The divine standard could not be met with "not faith in the providential dealing of God."
Rev. R. H. Maddock took as his subject "The Present Crisis." The speaker demonstrated with question that was the day of opportunity. The non-Christian world must be leavened by the preaching of the gospel of Christ. Christianity must meet reverse or defeat. A distinct impression was produced by the speaker's thoughtfulness and clear address. Good singing by the choir and congregation and a splendid collection left nothing to be desired.

Machinist Hurt.

Charles Dowden, employed at the carpenter shop of the Reid Nfd. Co. was injured while working on a lathe to-day. He was looking after the machinery in the shop, when one of the belts broke, and struck him in the right leg, bruising it considerably. Dr. Anderson, who was called, temporarily bandaged the wound, after which Dowden was taken to his home on Coronation Street. The accident will incapacitate him for some time, though the wound is fortunately not a very serious one.

Enquiry Into Death of Seaman.

A magisterial enquiry into the death of Gideon Tucker, the young seaman, who was killed by falling from the mast of the schooner "Maui" at Goodridge's wharf, on Friday last, took place in Judge Knight's office on Saturday evening, when three witnesses—Wm. Lidstone, Ernest Lidstone and Hosea Perry—were examined. The remains were sent out by train Saturday night to Laurier, the late home of the deceased.

Drowned at British Harbor.

The Minister of Justice, Hon. R. Squires, received a message from Magistrate Lilly, of Trinity, containing the information that Mr. Erroy Gardner, of British Harbor, aged 56 had been found drowned near his stage-head on Saturday morning. He left his bed about 1 a.m., and after his wife had waited for some time he became anxious and alarmed by his neighbors. The signal was given from the water near the stage-head. Magistrate Lilly will hold an inquiry. The Evening Telegram tenders sympathy to the bereaved.

EXPRESS DUE.—The incoming express is due at 9 p.m.

Young Man Drowned.

FATHER SAVED HIS SON.
Special to Evening Telegram.
GRENSPOND, To-day.
A sad drowning accident happened early this morning at Loo Cove. Two young men left here at 1 o'clock this morning in a small boat to row to Loo Cove. Mr. Samuel Parsons, of Loo Cove, heard distress cries coming from the water. He jumped out of bed as he was and ran to the water, where he saw two young men struggling for life. He caught a long pole, and after a time managed to reach the first man who happened to be his son. The other Edgar Parsons, son of George Parsons, clung to the boat. The outcry was made and before rescue came the young man disappeared. This morning his body was found. The young man who is saved and the father who rescued him, are both ill today.—COR.

Child Scalded to Death.

From persons who arrived in the city from St. Mary's by the local today we learn of a terrible scalding accident that occurred there on Friday last. The victim being a little boy named William Davis, barely nineteen months old. The child was playing in the kitchen, and while the mother was absent from the room, pulled a kettle of boiling water off the stove, scalding himself badly about the upper portion of the body. The clothes were quickly removed from the child, and Dr. Hogan was summoned, who did everything possible for the sufferer, whose injuries were serious and which terminated fatally a few hours afterwards.

At the College Hall

The services at the Methodist College Hall yesterday were of an impressive character. The offering was devoted to the Disasters Fund and, notwithstanding that a number of members of the Cochrane Street congregation had already contributed, met with a most liberal response. The fund will be kept open until after Sunday next. The preachers were the Revs. Dr. Cowperthwaite and C. A. Whitmarsh, M.A., the sermons dealt with the late disaster and words of encouragement as well as many important lessons were drawn from the texts chosen by both these reverend gentlemen.

Neptune Coming

Has 10,500 Seals.—Last Ship From Gulf.
The S.S. Neptune, Capt. Wilcox, the last boat out of the Gulf, is now on her way home. She sails for 10,500 seals, young and old. At 11 o'clock to-day his message came to John Brown, M.M. Neptune abeam of Port aux Basques, returning to St. John's; white-foats, 9,130; old harps, 1,000; bedlamers, 250; total, 10,380.
For the five steamers that operated in the Gulf, the ill-fated Southern Cross excluded, the catch is 87,000, and but for the terrible mishap to the "Cross" the aggregate for the six steamers would be at least 107,000 seals, or a phenomenally successful voyage. Whilst the Neptune's catch is not an average one, it is a saving trip and congratulate Capt. Wilcox upon his first spring in charge.

Fun In a Dining Car

AT ROSSLEY'S.
Saturday night Rossley's was again crowded to see "McFadden's Trouall," "Fun in a Dining Car," with all "Fun in a Dining Car," with all new scenery. The stage is fitted up like the interior of a Pullman dining car. The Hebrew porter, Tommy Levene, and the Irish tourist, Felix Martin, will keep things very lively, while Herb Warren, as a tramp comedian, will keep the house in roars. This is a company of fun-makers, and they certainly make lots of fun. They don't pose as dramatic or operatic artists—just laugh-makers; and if ever an audience laughs more in less time, then we should like to see them, because at Rossley's it's a laugh all the time.

THOUGHT.

(For The Evening Telegram.)

It takes a Lord Strathcona to go to the wilds of Labrador and consequently become great, and a Dr. Grenfell to follow hard after.

Ferdinand, of Spain, could stand an egg on its end when Columbus taught him.

Energy, time, strength, nature are gifts within reach of all.

The Isle-by-the-Sea, Terra Nova, the menace to Canada and the States, the great mouthpiece of the Gulf of St. Lawrence was called to "halt" some time ago when her true-hearted, brave, noble sons answered the death call on the icefields, and their souls took flight.

Capital and labor have deposited and are still depositing some hundreds, yea thousands of dollars and souls. Victims all!

Perpetual reaction against things as they are is one of the conditions of the civilizing process, and is the same thing. Not that reaction is progress, or even a sign of progress, but it is always attendant upon progress as resistance attends upon reaction.

While capital and labor are marshalling their forces, let us look again at education—youth education, true education of the heart, mind and body of the child-man, the nation's glory. "Education is giving the power to the child-man of solving the problem nearest at hand in the very best way possible." Culture and nature, its hand-maidens, are awaiting developments, keenly striking at its door.

The neglect of child-life is at the root of all evil. Give us capitalists and laborers who look not only after their own rights, but also rights of others without fear or intimidation.

Self-control has no sex distinction. Montessori and Kindergarten systems of education in their broadest outlook are great agencies towards this end.

Technical schools are good, oh, so good when they have a broader outlook than mere engineering the few for the few. We cannot be all engineers, seal-hunters, bishops, doctors, etc., but we can be men of some sort, striving for the common good. Labor is not common. Care must be taken so that our earning capacity be not rarified and our Newfoundland fisherman be like our Newfoundland dog.

Don't let us blunder still longer, but educate, educate, in its broadest sense for time and eternity.

Especially is this, though longer, deeper, broader, higher. All animal life is sensitive to environment, but of all living things the child is the most sensitive. A child absorbs environment. It is the most susceptible thing in the world to influence, and if that force be applied rightly and constantly when the child is in its most receptive condition, the effect will be pronounced, immediate, and permanent, and now that the great wave of disaster is passing away let us collect the remnants and raise them to a higher plane of thought and action, if only to raise their mode of labor to a higher standard. Educate them, educate them, they need it. Yes, need it as well as the few. This education (true education) that will give peace, perfect peace and prosperity to our Isle.

Burial of the late

Mr. D. M. Browning.

All that was mortal of the late Donald M. Browning was laid to rest in the family plot at the General Protestant Cemetery, on Saturday afternoon. The funeral took place from "Richmond," the late residence of the deceased and the procession was one of the largest witnessed in the community for some time. The beautiful casket was profusely adorned with floral tributes. Amongst the mourners were Messrs. prominent in Church and State, including the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, Judges of the Supreme Court, members of the Legislature, members of the Law Society and numerous other citizens. At the graveside the Rev. Canon White and Canon Bolt officiated.

At the Institute.

The lecture on Central Africa, given by Mr. W. H. Jones, at the Institute last night, was largely attended. The subject was dealt with in an interesting manner, and occupied the closest attention of all present. Some excellent views of the country were shown, the lantern being manipulated by Mr. Ross. During the evening Miss Creswell sang, and Miss Beatrice Mills gave a recitation.

New Race Boat

UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

The material for the C. C. E.'s new race boat has arrived and is now in the hands of Mr. Robert Sexton, who has commenced the work of construction. The new racer, it is understood, will be built on the same lines as the Nellie R. and will be ready for launching early in July next.

Obituary.

CONSTABLE W. MARCH.

With regret, we chronicle the demise of Constable William March, which occurred at his late residence, Spencer Street, yesterday. The deceased had been in delicate health for some years past, and during the last two years was unable to be around. Mr. March was in the police force for nearly thirty years, and during his long term was a painstaking and faithful officer. The greater part of his service was given to special customs and fishery protection, on the S.W. coast, from which he resigned owing to his failing health. To his widow and daughter who survive him the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.

MR. TERENCE McNAMARA.

The passing of Mr. Terence McNamara, at his late residence on Duckworth Street, yesterday, removes from our midst one of our best known citizens. The deceased was well known, and for nearly forty years held the position of Warden at the Lunatic Asylum, being pensioned about two years ago. He was noted for his kind and charitable disposition and was almost a lifelong member of the T.A. & B. Society. A widow and one brother are left to mourn to whom the Telegram extends sympathy.

Had Stomach Rumbblings Distress Before Meals

Was Seldom Free From That Weary, Droopy, Half-Dead Feeling.

Now Cured, and Gives Good Advice to Others With Dyspeptic Tendencies.

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins:

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fullness, and all the symptoms of indigestion and indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter-nut, 25c. per box or five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Cattaraugus Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hesson Fuesle

An Interview with a Theatrical Manager

One day as she scanned the morning newspaper, Marian ran onto a piece of theatrical gossip that captured her attention. It was to the effect that the Holiday Players, under the direction of Sam Ratgenhauer, the local theatrical promoter, would shortly open a three months' engagement in stock.

It occurred to her at once to visit the promoter and see if she could get a part, no matter how small. She hesitated to make her appearance on the local boards and face the battery of eyes of her friends, but in the end she resolved to try to secure an engagement.

That afternoon, looking her prettiest, and trembling with timidity at the boldness of her venture, she set out for the office of the manager. Unlike the busy New York managers, she encountered no difficulty in getting to him, and after a few minutes waiting she was admitted into his private office. She beheld a well dressed man of forty-five, with a diamond blazing in his cravat, and leveling a pair of shrewd eyes at her. He did not stop smoking when she entered.

"Well," he said, pleasantly, "what can I do for you?"

"I wondered if there would be a chance for me to get a part with the Holiday Players," she began.

"Acted any?" he questioned.

"I did some work in amateur productions at college, but never professionally," she replied. "A part, no matter how small, would do. I'm very anxious to get a start."

For several moments he did not answer, but stroked his chin reflectively, his eyes fixed so steadfastly upon her that she was compelled to avert hers with a feeling of vague, undefined discomfort.

"You've got the looks, all right," he said.

"I don't know about the looks, but I'm sure I've got the intellectual qualifications," she replied, wondering whether or not to resent the familiarity of his words.

"It's the looks that count more than anything else in this game," he answered. "Audiences want to see good-looking women and pretty gowns. You'd have to furnish your own costumes," he added.

"Then you think there'll be a chance for me," she said eagerly.

"Can't say just yet," he replied, non-committally. "Come in and see me

"Playing in a stock company is a hard grind," said the manager.

again in a few days. It's a little early to say. Are you in earnest about wanting to go on little girl?"

"Yes."

"Stock's a hard grind," he said, reaching out and patting her hand.

"What's the matter?" he demanded as she abruptly withdrew her hand.

"You mustn't do that," she said, resisting with all her might the impulse to object with sharp words to his conduct.

"Oh, I didn't mean anything," he laughed. "Come and see me again in a few days. I'll see what I can do for you."

"BRAIN VS. BRAUN."

The opening bill at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is one that will set them going Dramas and Comedies of the very best. "Brain vs. Braun" is a clever two-act Bison subject of modern life. "Andree Chénier" picture No. 2, is a graphic story of the French Revolution, and for fun you should witness the amusing comedy "Caught in the Act." The vocalists and orchestra will be heard to advantage. Mr. Ernschaw, the Lyric Baritone will render that ever pleasing song "Eileen Asthore." The Crescent is living up to its reputation and is now one of the most popular picture houses in the city. Matinee every afternoon. On Wednesday and Thursday, the feature picture is "The Folly of it all," with Edwin August in the lead.

FIFTH AVENUE.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old St. John's."

Fifth Avenue is a narrow slit through New York City walled on either side with several hundred million dollars worth of buildings. It has more good architecture than any other street in America, both in said buildings and in the clothes which adorn its sidewalks.

Once Fifth Avenue was a fine residence street and the abode of the New York Millionaire. From Washington Square, far downtown to Forty-second Street, it was lined with brown stone mansions and the man who lived on this street could get anything and have it charged. Then business crept in and began chasing the millionaires north. For years the chase has continued. Each year, the wave of skyscrapers overtake some fine old family, smash its house into junk and fills its place with a hotel or dressmaking establishment or millinery shop. The millionaires are still retreating north and are now far up by Central Park looking anxious south for the arrival of the wrecking crews and the steel derrick.

Fifth Avenue is the handsomest shopping street in the world below Central Park and the most elaborate residence street above that point. It contains the greatest church in Anmerica, the largest library outside of the one in Washington, the greatest art gallery in the country and the most expensive residence. It is lined with Venetian palaces, Egyptian facades, Roman porticos, Greek colonnades, Gothic spires and renaissance masterpieces together with considerable lobster-nightmare architecture. More automobiles infest Fifth Avenue than can be found elsewhere in the world and the Sunday parade of fashions is so startling that western visitors refuse to believe it even when they see it.

Years ago Fifth Avenue was a wilderness of brown stone front steps. However, these have all been removed by city order and the houses have been shaved off to give more room for the traffic. The shaving has improved the looks of the street as much as it would the looks of a lieutenant of Coxe's army.

Fifth Avenue contains the only motor bus line in America and a ride on the roof garden of one of these craft is well worth twice the admission fee.

Letter of Condolence.

We, the officers and members of St. Andrew's Lodge, Society of United Fishermen, desire to convey to the friends and relatives of those who lost their lives at the ice-fields this spring our sincere and heartfelt sorrow occasioned by the sudden and unexpected death of so many of our people. At such times as this we feel that mere words fail to express our sympathy and sorrow. But we assure you that every member of our Lodge grieves with you in your bereavement. And trust that our Divine Master may in His boundless mercy lighten your burden and cause His shining Light to fall across your pathway in your sore affliction. And after the sorrows of this short life are over that you and your loved ones may be reunited on that blessed abode where the separation of this present life will be forgotten.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, April 26. Whether the Government's plan of military operations against Ulster due to mere blundering or to deliberate malevolence, and if the latter, who was really responsible, are now the chief points which engage attention since the issue was revived by the publication of the White Paper. Whatever opinion is held there is equality of belief in Opposition circles that ministers have further blundered from their point of view by their explanation which is both fragmentary and contradictory. The military correspondent of the Times is inclined to make Winston Churchill the scapegoat, and declares that he must have known what he was about, when with an entire disregard of the sentence of the State he multiplied his orders to the Navy to co-operate with Army movements, designed to keep Ulster to its knees. He refers to the ignorance of ministers regarding the situation in Ulster, and of the spirit which is among the volunteers, as appalling. It is largely due to the clergy of the Irish Church, he says, also to men like the Presbyterian moderator, Dr. Macaulay, that the volunteers preserve their admirable calm. Concerning Asquith's part he says: "We must feel some sympathy with him in the valiant re-organizing action, which he is filling up only to convey his retreat, but also to obliterate the tracks of incompetent and hair-brained colleagues." Asquith's attempt to explain away the conflict of testimony between himself and Churchill, in regard to the Cabinet's orders for the movement of a third squadron has failed to convince, owing to the glaring discrepancy between this statement, and the one made on April 22nd. The latter's statement was to the effect that only two small cruisers were engaged conveying troops. One point which has been made clear is that members of the Cabinet have been allowed too much freedom of individual action; consequently the Premier has now realized the necessity of keeping a strong grip on the reins. The admission made by Sir Arthur Paget as to his misconception of his orders is not now regarded as bearing particularly on the situation, the chief point being to what extent the Cabinet in whole or in part, committed itself to plans obviously designed against Ulster.

LONDON, April 26. The despatch Friday night that secret importation of arms in Ulster might be coincident with the sudden freshening of the volunteers in Belfast, was evidently well founded. At Larne, 25 miles N.E. from Belfast, Saturday, over 50,000 rifles and 3,500,000 rounds of ammunition were landed from the steamer Mount Joy. The sea coast for 30 miles in the vicinity of Larne, was patrolled by strong bodies of Carson's pickets while the streets of the city were lined with officers and men standing about, expecting the steamer's arrival. The town was cut off from communication with the outside world by telephone and telegraph, while any attempt at egress except by those giving the pass-word, was prevented by the pickets. When the steamer Mount Joy, whose real name was Fanny, which had been covered over, moored at Larne docks, a large gang of volunteers, rushed through the dock gates and seized the checked packages, dumping them into the waiting motor cars. While the steamer was discharging her cargo a second steamer came alongside, followed by a third, both of which received cargo from the first and then sailed away, apparently to distribute the arms elsewhere. The authorities absolutely ignored these proceedings, though in any case they were too hopelessly outnumbered to offer any resistance. They were also unable to appeal for outside assistance, owing to communication being cut off. The attitude of the citizens was reflected in that they burned lamps in all the windows throughout the night. That the Government has become alarmed was shown by an emergency meeting of the Cabinet being called Saturday afternoon, after which the Prime Minister returned to his country residence for the week-end.

Wedding Bells.

LAWLOR-MURPHY.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at Cappa-Hayden, Renewa, on April 26th, when Mr. T. J. Lawlor, son of the late John Lawlor, was united in matrimony to Miss M. A. Murphy, daughter of Mr. Edward Murphy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Doney, P.P. The bride, who was given away by her father, was neatly attired in a handsome costume of white silk with hat to match. Miss Elsie Murphy, sister of the bride, and Miss Annie Lawlor, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaids. Mr. J. Lawlor, brother of the groom, assisted by Mr. J. Murphy, brother of the bride, supported the groom. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's father. The groom's present to the bride was a handsome watch and chain and to the bridesmaids gold crosses and chains. The Telegram joins in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Lawlor many years of unclouded happiness.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferers and also thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? Bible Class

CLOSING SESSION.

The last of the winter sessions of the Cathedral Men's Bible Class was held yesterday afternoon at which Rev. Canon White officiated. Rev. Canon Colley of Kelligrews was also present, and after being introduced to the class, described his visit to England last year in an interesting manner. After the discourse which was thoroughly enjoyed, arrangements were made for the beginning of the Harbour Mission work on Sunday next, after which a collection in aid of the sealing Disasters Fund was taken up. The amount was in the vicinity of $60, and will be forwarded to the Hon. Treasurer of the Relief Committee.

The closing Benediction was imparted by the Rector.

Law Society of Nfld.

At a meeting of the Benchers held on Friday afternoon, the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "The Benchers of the Law Society of Newfoundland in Convocation assembled this 24th day of April, 1914, desire to place on record their heartfelt sorrow at the sudden death of Donald M. Brown, Esq., M.A., B.C., for many years Registrar of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland and Secretary of this Society,—a death which removes from their midst one who, besides worthily and faithfully discharging the duties of the important offices which he held, was for himself the respect and affection of all the members of the legal profession."

If Meals Hit Back And Stomach Sours.

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends Indigestion, Gas, Dyspepsia and Stomach Misery in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes. Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation. This city will have many "Pape's" dyspepsia, or any stomach misery, yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.—oct10

Get some now, this minute, and rid about this splendid stomach preparation, gases, heartburn, sourness, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery. Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.—oct10

The Mexican Situation.

Special to Evening Telegram. WASHINGTON, April 26. President Wilson announced to-night he had accepted an offer from Brazil, Argentina and Chile to use their good offices in an attempt to bring about a peaceful and friendly settlement of the difficulty between the States and Mexico.

VERA CRUZ, April 26. A demand has been made on the German Legation in Mexico City to surrender arms imported for the protection of German residents there. According to information received here, Admiral von Hintze, the German Minister, replied: 'If you get the arms you will have to fight for them.' The Mexican federal officer then retired with the 200 men he had brought to enforce the demand.

VERA CRUZ, April 26. Circulars are being distributed in the streets calling on the people to destroy American business houses and kill the Mexican managers, because of their identification with foreign interests. Some of the stores listed have already been looted. Newspapers in the capital are publishing stories to the effect that American forces at Vera Cruz are slaughtering women and children and call on Mexicans to retaliate in similar manner.

WASHINGTON, To-day. The tension over the one phase of the situation which may at any moment upset peace plans is the safety of Americans in Mexico City and other interior points, was partially relieved by the announcement of Secy. Bryan that through the British Embassy there, Huerta officials and Admiral Fletcher had arranged for the safe departure of Americans from the Mexican capital and the free exodus of Mexicans from Vera Cruz.

The Crisis in Belfast

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-day. A rumor is current at Belfast that the West Kents and Yorkshires from Dublin and Manchester from Curragh are under orders to proceed there immediately. It is understood that this movement of troops is a prelude to the proclamation of martial law in the disaffected territory. It was stated at Salisbury last night that troops, probably cavalry, would be sent to Ulster to act as mounted police. It is reported that the Government is entirely ready to meet any emergency. The Telegraph, editorially fears that the coup may harden the heart of the Parliament of the Cabinet. It warns Ministers that any attempt to discover the hiding places of arms will result in their immediate destruction, and asks whether nothing but bloodshed will convince the Government that there is no way of dealing with Ulster but by conceding its just demands. The Morning Post under the caption, 'On the slippery Edge of War,' refers to the news as it is obvious that the Government cannot ignore such a breach of its proclamation. The Ministerial organs find in the event ample justification for the recent military preparations of the Government. The Daily News refers to it as one of the gravest events, since the beginning of the Home Rule conflict and demands that every person should be punished who participated in Friday's rebellion. The Daily Chronicle says that the Ulster Council set its volunteers to commit a series of violent crimes which show Carsonism in its full criminal colors, which will cause the democracy of the British Islands not merely to consent but to demand that two-faced treason mongers should no longer be permitted to play with fire. It also demands the immediate punishment of the ring leaders.

Here and There.

The C. L. B. Old Comrades have decided on their new uniforms which will consist of tunics having insets in the collars, shoulder straps and patch pockets. The pants will have a yellow stripe one inch wide. The contract of making the same has been awarded the British Clothing Co., and the material is already ordered. The style of headdress to be worn is now under consideration.

THE GREATER QUESTION.

At this season of the year for Farmers with up-to-date ideas is what are the best means to use to get the best returns from the land.

Fertilizers must be used liberally if large returns are looked for. There are several good chemical fertilizers which may be recommended, but Sulphate of Ammonia has been proved to give the best returns, and is the most valuable economical source of Nitrogen for agricultural purposes.

For vegetables, grass, and all leafy crops, about one and a half cwt. per acre is the best quantity to use, and this should be applied when the plants are making its growth, as well as before sowing the seed.

If a liquid manure is preferred, a 4 oz. of Sulphate to one gallon of water should be used, and applied once a week for a month. This quantity should not be exceeded.

It is a good plan to reduce the Sulphate to a fine powder, and mix with four or more times its own bulk, for the purpose of diluting the manure, which is very powerful.

For potatoes the following mixture is strongly recommended:-- 40 lbs. Superphosphate, 25 lbs. Fine bone meal, 10 lbs. Carbonate of Magnesia, 15 lbs. Sulphate of Potash, 21 lbs. SULPHATE OF AMMONIA.

Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to 40 square yards.

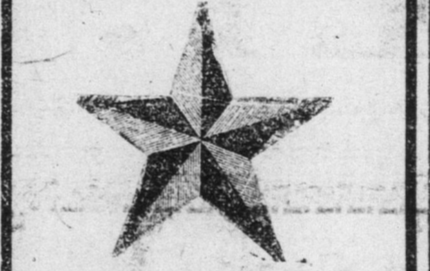

The use of Carbonate of Magnesia, in conjunction with Sulphate of Ammonia, is of great importance in potato culture.

For turnips use the following:-- 65 lbs. Superphosphate, 13 lbs. Fine bone meal, 23 lbs. Sulphate of Potash, 20 lbs. Sulphate of Ammonia.

Apply at the rate of 10 to 11 lbs. to square yards.

Sulphate of Ammonia of excellent quality is now made by the St. John's Gas Light Company, and may be obtained on very reasonable terms. Full particulars may be obtained at the Gas Works, or at the Board of Trade Building. Ask for special booklet on the use of Sulphate, it will be found of great value in securing the heaviest crops.

Tasker Sermon.

On Sunday afternoon the Masonic brethren attended in large numbers a service in the C. E. Cathedral, where Rev. Bro. Henry Uphill, Rector of St. Mary's Parish, preached the sermon. The prayers were read by Rev. Bro. Bolt and Rev. Mr. Stamp, the Bishop of Newfoundland reading the lessons. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Allen sang the Hallelujah Chorus. Mr. Uphill took for his text: 'To serve him with one shoulder,' and urged on his hearers greater energy of thought and action in all matters relating to the welfare of the spirit, soul and body of the Colony. The sermon was an eloquent and forceful discourse on the duty of man. At the close of the sermon, a collection was taken up for the Tasker Educational Fund. After the service the brethren returned to the Temple where votes of thanks were tendered to the Preacher, Rector, Churchwardens, Organist and Choir.

On April 16th the Rev. A. A. Holmes delivered a lecture under the auspices of the L. O. A. 'Anglo-Saxon Lodge, No. 62. The subject of the lecture was: 'From Mariselles to the pyramids in Egypt.'

A full house greeted the lecturer, and listened with deep interest while Mr. Holmes took them from the Egyptian territory across the Mediterranean to the historic shores of Egypt, and on into the land of the pyramids.

Once to the mighty Pyramids the audience stopped and babbled in wonder the marvelous work of man, of forty centuries ago.

Several songs in harmony with the occasion were sung during the evening. The proceeds of $25.50 were in aid of the Marine Disasters Fund.

We understand that the Lodge also voted from its funds $50.00 to the before named fund. OBSERVER, Freshwater, April 24th, 1914.

Ball in Wonderful Underground Room.

Duke of Portland Invites One Thousand Guests to Celebrate Heir's Coming of Age.

London, April 13.—Welbeck Abbey, Nottinghamshire, world famous for its vast underground apartments, was the scene to-night of a memorable ball to celebrate the coming of age of the Marquis of Titchfield, eldest son of the Duke and Duchess of Portland, over 1,000 guests being invited.

The dancing took place in the wonderful underground picture gallery, which has been described as "the largest and most magnificent private room in England."

All the subterranean marvels of Welbeck are due to the eccentric fifth Duke of Portland, who was consumed with a passion for privacy. From his succession to the estate in 1854 to his death in 1879 he spent, it is said, $35,000,000 in creating new wonders for Welbeck. Of these the most celebrated is the picture gallery. It is entirely below ground, excavated from solid clay, 160 feet long, 64 feet wide and 22 feet high. At night 18 exquisite glass chandeliers reveal the priceless old masters that cover the walls. The roof is level with the garden above, and one can walk on the soft green turf without knowing the beauties below.

To-night pink was the prevailing tone. The chairs, divans and settees were pink and gold, harmonizing with the beautiful flowers from the Welbeck conservatories. Great palms hid the orchestra.

The rose corridor, 150 yards long, had been arranged under the supervision of the Duchess of Portland, as a sitting-room. Here, too, pink was the prevailing tone, exotic plants lined the corridor. Underground apartments ordinarily used as storehouses were converted into comfortable smoking-rooms richly decorated and artificially heated. Supper was served by the Welbeck staff, reinforced by over 100 waiters. It was served in three underground rooms adjoining the picture gallery. Four hundred persons sat down to supper at a time. The guests included many well-known society persons and leading residents of the country.

Double Murder and Suicide

Maniac in New Brunswick Village Killed Two Little Boys and Then Himself.

Newcastle, N.B., April 19.—A double murder and suicide stunned the people of Protectionville, a village nine miles from here, Saturday night. Park Tobey, 23 years, committed the crime. He was in Newcastle that day, and drinking. In the afternoon he rodd home with Alfred Mullin, to the latter's place. While Mullin was stabling his team, Tobey seized an axe and hacked to pieces two little boys of Mullin's, aged seven and five, who were eating cand their father had just given them.

Tobey placed their bodies in a shed and then went to the house where Mrs. Mullin and two smaller children were; seizing a rifle he threatened to kill them. Mrs. Mullin grappled with him and begged for her life. The maniac suddenly dropped the rifle and ran from the house. He grabbed an axe and rushed to the barn and struck Mullin who was in a stooping position but a beam broke the force from the blow and the axe only made a wound three inches deep in his shoulder. Mullin grappled with his assailant and took the axe away, and then fell unconscious. Tobey was found later in his cabin dead with a bullet wound through his head. Tobey was a terror to the country when he was drinking.

Cambridge Always Led.

Made a Procession of To-Day's Race With Oxford.

London, March 28.—Cambridge University crew to-day won from Oxford with great ease the annual eight-oared boat race from Putney to Mortlake. The distance of 4 1/2 miles was rowed in the quick time of 20.2.3. Cambridge crossed the winning line 4 1/2 lengths in the lead.

The Cambridge crew justified the predictions that it would win by making the race a procession from the firing of the starting pistol till the end of the race.

A platform on which 150 spectators were standing collapsed during the race, and all were thrown into the hold of a barge. Fourteen persons were injured, most of them sustaining broken legs.

Walt Mason's Daily Story.

SOME SORTS OF SOAP.

"Every woman who does the family washing," explained the agent, "knows that it is heart breaking work. Even with the best modern machinery it is a task that is greatly dreaded. This is because women continue to use the old fashioned soap, which might give good service as a paving material but which, as a cleansing agent, is no good. Prof Bungfellow, the great scientist, contemplated the mournful spectacle of generations of women wearing themselves out using laundry soap, and set to work to find a remedy. The result is his liquid soap, sold in gallon jugs, with the professor's picture on the cork. No other is genuine. Try one jug, and washing will become a pastime. Let me have the dirtiest rag in the house, and I'll show you the marvelous work this liquid soap will do."

"There are no dirty rags in this house, mister," said Mrs. Curfew. "If you want to give a demonstration with your liquid soap, you might apply some of it to your whiskers, which are all cluttered up with tobacco. It's a surprising thing to me that men will go around selling liquid soap in gallon jugs, with a professor's picture on the cork, when there are so many things that ought to be done. You would be far better employed cutting down weeds in some cornfield."

"I have been doing our own washing for thirty years and have always used home made soap, and at this writing have no intention of changing. I know what my home made soap is made of, and am not afraid to use it. It contains no barks and buds, and hasn't been indored by any distinguished prelates or vice-presidents, and no-body's picture is blown in the glass, but I always get results with my own soap. It is true that Mr. Curfew doesn't like it, for he has to go all over the neighbourhood gathering up wood ashes to make the lye, when soap making time comes, and he insists that a man in public life, as he is at times, when he is a member of the school board, can't look dignified or imposing when he is carrying home large sacks of wood ashes, but husbands always find fault."

"Last fall an agent came along when I was away from the house, and sold Mr. Curfew several cakes of a new kind of laundry soap, which is used in all the royal households of Europe. It was a low down trick on the part of my husband, for he knows that I am opposed to machine made soap, and he took the money to pay for it out of the clock, where I had a few dimes laid away to buy myself a new pair of slippers, my old ones being so run down at the heel that I look as though I was going sideways when I walk."

"It happened that I was short of my own soap when washday came, so I used some of the new kind, and I must admit that it seemed to work beautifully, and I made up my mind before the washing was done that I wouldn't bother making any more soap."

"But all is not gold that glitters, and I soon had reason to wish that the agent had been arrested and sentenced to the rockpile before coming to our house. I ironed the clothes and put them away, and on Sunday morning Mr. Curfew went up to put on his best white shirt, and pretty soon I heard him hollering at the head of the stairs. 'What have you been doing to my shirt?' he asked; 'It's all in ribbons, as though it had been run through a sausage stuffer.' I went up stairs and sure enough his shirt looked like a big bunch of white shd-strings. For a minute I couldn't think of any explanation. Then I looked through the rest of the clothes, and they were all in the same fix. "I sent the rest of the soap to the chemist and had him analyze it, and he said it was made of muriatic acid, with a trace of dynamite, and it would eat up any fabric that was fed to it. Mr. Curfew aged ten years that day, for he had only the one white shirt, and he counted on using it through the campaign, and if that agent ever comes along this way again I'm afraid there will be a hurry call for the coroner."

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office,—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE 'O'." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—ap17,14

The Usual Eight Letters.

New York, March 25.—The name Resolute has been selected for the yacht which is being built by the Herrshoffs as the New York Yacht Club flag officers' syndicate's entry for the defense of the America Cup.

The Tri-City yacht has already been named Defiance, leaving the Cochran boat the only one of the trio as yet undesignated. In the selection of the names Resolute and Defiance the adherence to the eight letter designation is again evidenced, as was the case in the successful cup-defender of past years, including the Reliance, Columbia, Defender and Vigilant. Of the 12 defending yachts a majority have borne names containing eight letters.
