WINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DISTEMPER.

Hemorrhoids

One of the troublesome and painful effects of continued constipation is hemorrhoids, or piles.

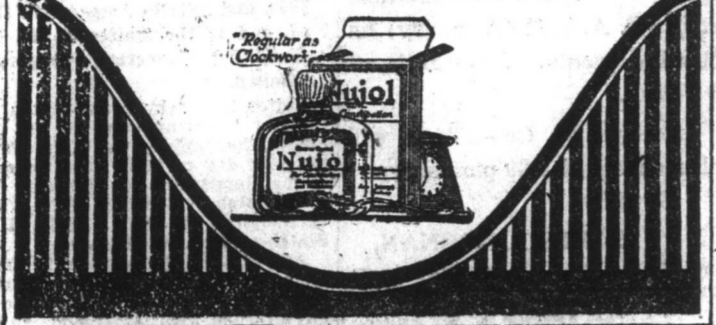

Nujol relieves constipation by an entirely new method. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the walls of the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

THE Lady of the Night

Amelia Makes a Success

CHAPTER XXIX. IN SILK ATTIRE.

And what could Nora do alone and friendless in London? She had already had a grim experience of the cruelty of the Great City, and knew that she could not face it again. As she paced up and down like a young tigress in its cage, passing now and again to cast furtive glances at her reflection in the glass, an idea darted into her active brain. It was a wild idea, so wild and so fetched that she would have thrust it aside as too impossible, but for Miss Deborah's peculiar idiosyncrasy.

Nora caught her breath and grew pale and red by turns as the idea grew into shape. She bathed her face and was almost gratified to find that it was pale and drawn, and that she looked really ill. She lay down on the bed again, and presently Miss Deborah came up and knocked at the door. She had a basin of hot feet in her hand, and she was evidently very anxious.

"Nora turned her face away from the light, and Miss Deborah leant over her and felt her forehead.

"Are you better, Cyril?" she asked. "I've brought you some—Poor boy! I wonder what the matter with him. I hope it isn't one of the nasty fevers or things that are always going about London! I don't see any spots about him." She peered into Nora's face anxiously. "But perhaps I had better send for a doctor; I suppose I should be able to find one; there must be plenty of them in this unhealthy place."

"Nora sat up and took some of the best tea, while Miss Deborah, who had been on the arm with a helpless kind of sympathy.

"I don't want a doctor," said Nora. "There's nothing the matter with me; it's the London air, I should be able to get out of it for a little while."

Miss Deborah caught at the suggestion. "Of course!" she assented promptly. "You must go away. You must go to Moorcroft; I wish I could come too; but I can't leave London just now; I've got business to do with Mr. Stripling."

"I don't like leaving you alone," said Nora, with genuine reluctance.

Miss Deborah stared at her with innocent surprise. "Bless the boy!" she exclaimed. "Does he think I'm not capable of taking care of myself, that I want some one to look after me? How do you suppose I got on before you came up?"

"I don't know," retorted Nora. "If you'd only promise me not to try and cross the road without a policeman—but if you did promise, you'd forget it, Miss Deborah. If only there was some one I could leave behind me to take care of you!—Suppose I send some one, would you let them take my place?"

"You silly boy!" expostulated Miss

Deborah. "You seem to think that I'm a baby or a lunatic! I don't want any one to take care of me; I've taken care of myself all these years."

"By a special and merciful Providence," murmured Nora to herself; then aloud: "But if I send some one, you will let them stay? I'll come back as soon as I am well enough. If you will agree to that, Miss Deborah, I'll go; if you won't, I'll stay."

"There, there! have it, your own way," said Miss Deborah absently. "And you'd better start as soon as you are able to do so. You'll want some money."

She found her purse, fumbled with it, and upset some of the coins on the bed. Nora took a few pounds, restored the others to the purse, and gave it back to Miss Deborah.

"You had better keep this room," she said. "I may be back very soon. I shall try and sleep now, and if I feel better when I wake, I'll go at once. I won't go to Moorcroft; it's so far." Her voice faltered, and she grew hot as she proceeded with the easy task of deceiving Miss Deborah. "I will not go far from London, I shall be all right in a day or two; and I will write back and let you know when I am coming back."

Miss Deborah said "Yes, yes," soothingly, and toddled off with the empty basin and plate. Nora lay quite still for an hour or two, then she went down to the sitting-room with her bag in her hand and announced her immediate departure. Miss Deborah was deep in a book, but she roused herself and took an affectionate farewell of Nora.

"Good-bye, my boy," she said. "I hope you will come back quite changed."

Nora started guiltily at these words and bit her lip; and for a moment forgetting the imaginary difference between their positions, she put her arm round Miss Deborah's neck and kissed her, and then she turned away and went out.

Her heart was beating fast as she reached the street, for she was aware that she was playing a difficult and dangerous game; but her apprehension was mingled with another feeling—that of a strange elation, as if she were going to recover something that had long been lost. She took a cab and had herself driven to one of the large drapers' establishments in Oxford Street; but the sight of the great front with its costly display of dresses and millinery daunted her, and she told the cabman to drive her to a shop in one of the smaller streets.

She fought hard against her nervousness as she made her purchase; for she knew that the shopwoman was eyeing her curiously, and wondering why on earth a young lad should be buying a more or less complete outfit for a girl; but Nora mumbled something about making a present to a sister, and she was going abroad, and the woman appeared to accept the explanation.

Nora drew a long sigh as she drove back to the hotel, but it was a sigh of partial relief, for the most difficult part of her plot was still to be achieved. When the cab drew up at the door Nora got out and reconnoitred. Fortunately for her purpose, it was the slackest part of the day the hotel; there was no one in the hall excepting a page boy. Nora loaded him up with some of the parcels, and, carrying the others, reached her room. It was exactly in the condition in which she had left it, so she concluded rightly that Miss Deborah had not told the hotel people that the room would not be occupied.

She locked the door, and plumped on to the bed with a kind of gasping sigh; then suddenly she sprang to her feet, cut the strings of the boxes, and feverishly taking out their contents, spread them on the bed and gazed at them rapturously. With the same feverish haste she tore off her boy's clothes, and, more slowly now, as if the action were one of subtle pleasure, she dressed herself in woman's attire. The very touch and feel of the things were an exquisite delight; her colour came and went as she put on one article after another. She would not look at herself until the whole was complete, then, when she had put on her hat and coat, she went slowly to the glass—and started back with a commingling of emotions.

It was so long since she had seen herself in her proper raiment that she was struck by a sense of unreality; but this was at first; and presently she began to glow with satisfaction, and the blood mantled in her cheek, and her eyes sparkled like stars in a frosty night. Her lips unconsciously parted with a smile, her blush grew deeper; then it faded, and the lips drooped with a sudden sadness. Yes, she might be pretty, but she was not, could not be, as beautiful as the girl who went driving about with Elliot Graham; and even if she were as beautiful, what good would it be to her? She must not let Elliot see her; she must keep out of his sight.

She walked about, for the pleasure of feeling her skirts, of hearing them swish as she turned, or they rustled against the furniture, and now and then she cast glances at herself in the glass. Presently she regarded her face directly; would Miss Deborah recognize her? She ventured to hope not, for the change of attire, the feminine arrangement of the hair, had metamorphosed her so completely as her former change into boy's clothes had done; but presently to her dismay she found she was taking long steps and carrying herself like a boy, and she spent the rest of the evening in the endeavor to get back to woman's garb, and the hundred and one indescribable little movements which mark her sex.

She was fearfully hungry, but she dared not leave the room in search of food, and so at last she went to bed and fell asleep, her eyes fixed to the last waking moment on the feminine clothes lying across the chair.

CHAPTER XXX. ON THE ICE.

Nora got up early in the morning, before any of the servants were stirring, hid her boy's clothes in a bag, dressed herself for outdoors, and slipped unseen out of the hotel. She got some breakfast at one of the tea-shops, and then went for a walk to pass the time which must elapse before she could present herself to Miss Deborah.

She felt strangely shy, just as shy as she had felt when she had first put on her boyish disguise, and she had a feeling that every one was looking at her curiously, especially the women. Many persons did, indeed, stare at her, but with admiration, not suspicion; there was probably no more beautiful girl in the London streets than Nora. At last, with a fast beating heart, she went back to the hotel, passed up the stairs, and knocked at the door of the sitting-room. She had to knock thrice before Miss Deborah noticed the summons; then she said, "Come in," and Nora opened the door slowly and entered.

Miss Deborah was gazing over a book as usual, and she started at the graceful, tastefully dressed, young lady with evident astonishment. Nora gilded across the room so that she stood with her back to the light, and she spoke in a soft voice, as unlike Cyril's as she could make it—

"Miss Deborah—Miss Ralston?"

"Yes; I am Miss Ralston," said Miss Deborah, still staring with amazement. "Do you want to see me? Who are you? I seem to know you—and yet, I can't remember."

"I'm Miss Merton," said Nora. "Ada Merton—Cyril's cousin. He sent me to you. I am to take his place while he is away—if you will let me."

Miss Deborah leaped back and still stared. "Well! I never!" she exclaimed at last indignantly. "The impudence of that boy! To think of his audacity in sending me a girl! And he knows I don't like them, that I never have anything to do with the hussies!"

"I'm not a hussy, I assure you," said Nora, her lips opening with a smile; for her spirits rose at the success, so far, of her daring scheme.

"Yes, you are," retorted the old lady. "All girls are hussies—and I suppose you call yourself a girl!"

Nora's high spirits fell again at this innocent thrust, and she stood with down-cast eyes, shrinking from Miss Deborah's stare.

"I don't want any one to look after me," said Miss Deborah. "I told that impudent boy so. You'd better go back to where you came from. I've no use for girls, hussies or not—can't bear them!"

"I should be afraid to go back," said Nora. "Cyril would be very angry with me. Please let me stay, on—on trial. You will find that I shall be very useful—not so useful as Cyril, of course; but you might let me stay with you for a time. Please do not let me go."

Miss Deborah dignified in her chair and rubbed her chin hesitatingly.

"I'm sure I don't know what the world's coming to," she remarked peevishly. "I wish that boy were here; I'd teach him to play his monkey tricks on me!"

"He did it for the best," said Nora gently. "He is very fond of you, Miss Deborah; and, indeed, I am not surprised for you have been very good to him."

Perhaps a quaver in Nora's voice touched Miss Deborah, for she shrugged her shoulders pettishly and said grudgingly—

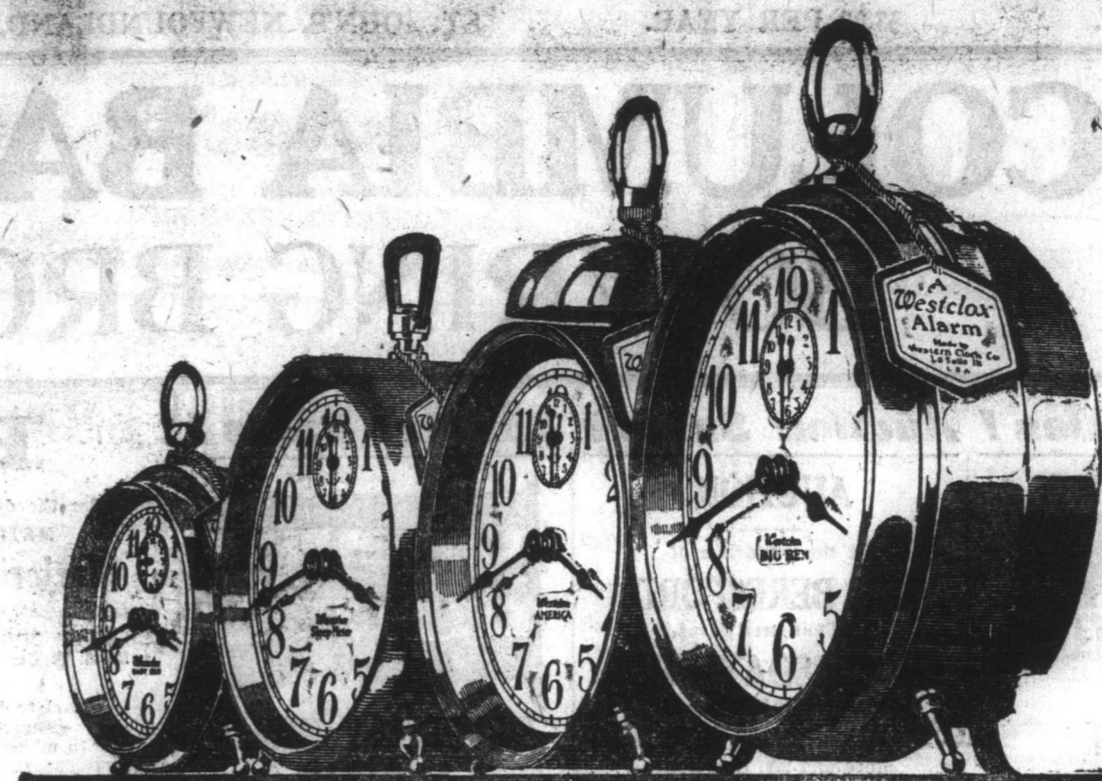

"Oh, well, now you are here, I suppose you had better stay—for the day at any rate. The impudent young monkey!"

Nora knew that the battle was won, and she was about to spring across the room and hug the old lady, but she fortunately checked the impulse.

"You'd better go and take off your things," remarked Miss Deborah with a sigh of resignation. "You can have his room; it's a number—number something; I forget, but you can ask the people."

"Thank you, thank you very much! Cyril will be so pleased," murmured Nora, and she moved to the door.

Westclox

YOU like an honest clock for the same reason you like an honest man. You can depend on what it says.

Westclox alarms make and hold so many friends because they run and ring on time.

The secret of their dependability is inside the case—Westclox construction.

The wheels turn on needle-fine pivots of polished steel. Friction is greatly reduced; the clock runs more smoothly and gives you longer service.

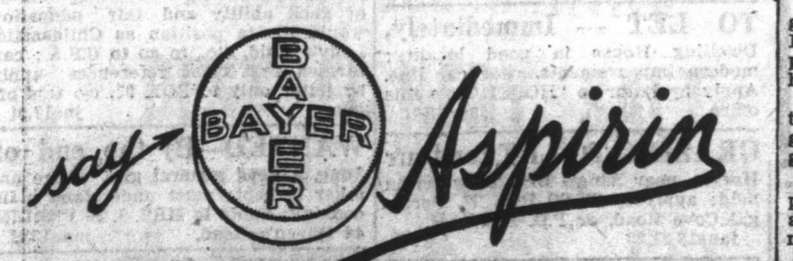

Big Ben, America, Sleep-Meter and Baby Ben are the four top-notchers of the Westclox line. But all Westclox alarms have this same construction. The men who make Big Ben take pride in making every Westclox right.

It will pay you to look for the Westclox mark of good time-keeping on the dial and tag of the clock you buy. Then you will have a timekeeper that you can depend on for honest, faithful service.

Harbor Grace Notes.

We note that Nurse Jean Munn of the General Hospital Staff, St. John's, has just passed a fourth most successful examination, this time averaging 95 1/2 per cent, and finishing her course six months in advance of the time limit. Nurse Nellie Dwyer, in the same examination, followed next in the record of Miss Munn. These two young ladies are both Harbor Gracians and we tender our hearty congratulations, with very best wishes for their future success in the high calling they have chosen.

Messrs. John Burke & Sons of Carbonar schooner Lena, Captain John Wiseman, arrived in port and went on dock on the 13th inst. She came off again yesterday, repairs having been effected. In the recent race between Captain E. Burke of the schooner Cape Pine, and Captain Doyle of the Miriam H., from Sydney, N.S., to St. John's, both coal laden, Captain Doyle was the winner alright, but Capt. Wiseman of the schr. Lena beat them both, having left Sydney a short time after, but anchored in Carbonar five hours ahead of the other schooner arrival. Well done the Lena and her sturdy Captain.

Schooner Theresa, J. Butt, master, arrived from Western Bay last week and went on dock. She came off dock again on Saturday and left port.

S.S. D. P. Ingraham, Capt. M. Rose, arrived in port last night from St. John's to go on dock, being taken up this morning.

A resident of the South Side in the person of Mr. William Gillard passed away there on Saturday and was laid to rest on Monday last. He leaves behind a wife and four children, two by a former marriage, and two by the latter, who are only quite young. Deceased has been ill all the winter and since meeting with an accident in his office some years ago, has been practically totally blind, the end now comes as a happy release from the suffering and cares of his earthly existence. The bereaved have our sympathy in their loss.

Household Notes.

Heavy watermelons are always the best. A cupful of anything means a half pint. The perfect apple cover has wooden handle. Tomato juice will remove ink stains from fingers. The flavor of meat should not be destroyed by the flavor of its gravy. Airproof and moistureproof containers should be used to store coffee. Washed and dried cherry pits make fine filling for kiddies' beanbags. The water in which potatoes have been boiled will clean flat silver very well.

The body of John Pumphrey, son of Mrs. and the late Daniel Pumphrey, who passed away at Grand Falls recently, will be brought here by tomorrow afternoon's train. The funeral will take place from the Railway Station, when the remains will be laid to rest in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

CORRESPONDENT.
June 16, 1921.

The Habit Stuck.

A hard drinker was told by his doctor that he could be cured if every time he felt that he must have a drink he would immediately take something to eat instead.

The man followed the advice and was cured, but the habit of asking for food had become so fixed with him that once he was nearly locked up as a lunatic.

He was staying at an hotel, and, hearing a great commotion in the room next to his, he peeped in to see what the matter was. He saw, and rushed madly down to the office, shouting to the clerk:

"The man in fifty-three has shot himself! Ham and egg sandwich, please!"

Chamberlain's Declaration.

Alliances Directed Against America Not Tolerated--Australia's Decennial Increase in Population, 18 per cent--Sinn Fein Violence in London.

BRITAIN, JAPAN AND U.S.A.
LONDON, June 17. Ansten Chamberlain declared in the House this afternoon, with regard to the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty, "although I do not in any way wish to prejudice the action of the Imperial Conference, it is right to say alliance directed against America or under which we can be called to act against America."

SINN FEIN IN LONDON.
A campaign of widespread cutting of railway and signal wires and burning of signal cabins around London, attended by violence against signalmen, was carried out last night by "Sinn Feiners and members of the Irish Self

DETERMINATION LEAGUE. Nine men were arrested. Official police statements say "All the men arrested give local addresses. They are young Irishmen between 17 and 22. It has been known for some time that the heads of the Irish Self-Determination League in London have been in correspondence with the so-called Irish Republican Army which has been directing murders and outrages in Ireland."

TURKS NATIONALISTS.
IN A DILEMMA.
CONSTANTINOPLE, June 17. The Greek offensive against Turkish Nationalists has been halted while financial decision of the British to back up the Greeks is pending. In any case, however, the Turks are badly placed.

This offensive would be ordered for the purpose of maintaining the prestige of King Constantine. It is believed here that the British are waiting to see if the Nationalists (Turkish) are willing to accept the revised Sevres Treaty. The Nationalists are in a dilemma, they are afraid of both the British and of Russian Bolsheviks, and they are closely watching Enver Pasha, who is acting as Soviet emissary in the near east. The Nationalists desire to meet the Allied viewpoints, but Enver is trying to overthrow Mustafa Kemal, head of the Nationalist Government. The Nationalists wish, in case of the acceptance of the London modifications to the treaty that the Allies will agree to protect them against the wrath of the Bolsheviks.

AUSTRALIA GROWS.
LONDON, June 17. Australian census figures show that the commonwealth has a population of 5,419,702, an increase of 970,000 over 1911.

AN INTERNATIONAL MATTER.
SMYRNA, June 17. United States citizens are being impressed into the Greek army by agents of the Athens Government and George Horton, United States Consul General here, has made a vigorous protest to the Governor, General Sifliatou against continuance of the practice.

PHILIPPINES BANKRUPT.
WASHINGTON, June 17. The Philippine Government is facing bankruptcy, Major General Leonard Wood and former Governor General Forbes declare in a cable message, transmitted to-day to Congress by Secretary Weeks, who asked immediate action on a bill authorizing the island Government to increase the limit of indebtedness from fifteen million to thirty million dollars.

AN INTERESTING DEBATE.
OXFORD, June 17. In the first international intercollegiate debate three students, representing Bates College of Lewiston, Maine, lost to representatives of Oxford University by a vote of 90 to 253. The Bates debaters took the affirmative of the resolution, "this House approves the United States policy of non-intervention in European affairs."

MINERS' LEADERS CALLED TO ACCOUNT.

LONDON, June 17. The result of the British miners vote on the question of accepting the last offer of the coal owners will not be fully known till late to-day, but the bulk of figures now available, show that the ballot has gone heavily against acceptance. The miners' leaders, many of whom expected a different outcome, have received an unpleasant surprise, and it is felt that even if a complete ballot does not give the requisite two-thirds majority to strike, a very different situation has been created for which the men will hold their leaders largely responsible. The way the dispute has been allowed to drift, and the failure of the miners' leaders to offer advice or recommendations to districts on the issue involved, are said to be causes of serious dissatisfaction in some quarters and the consequence may be that the men will now take matters into their own hands and gradually return to work under their own arrangements. The ballot appears to have been taken in the most casual way. The Miners' Federation has about one million members but probably the majority did not bother about voting.

STRIKE TO CONTINUE.
LONDON, June 17. The ballot of coal miners on the question of strike settlement favors a continuation of the strike which was officially announced this afternoon. The vote stood 183,828 for acceptance of the owners' terms and 432,511 against.

B. I. S. Defeat C. L. B.

IN KEENLY CONTESTED GAME.
A very large number of spectators attended last night's football game and saw the C.L.B. Old Comrades go down to defeat before the B.I.S. after a hard fight, the score being 2-0. The experience and practice of the B.I.S. was too much for the C.L.B., which is practically a new team. The C.L.B. won the toss and went off with a rush which, for nonce, swept the B.I.S. off their feet. Several shots were rained in on Phelan in goal which he managed to clear with difficulty. The ball was cleared but Henry secured it and sent in a stinger which Phelan just managed to divert over the cross bar. From a corner kick the B.I.S. took possession of the ball and brought it up into their opponent's territory where from a rebound off Lush, Callahan stepped in and scored after eight minutes of play. From the centre the B.I.S. again got away with the ball and Callahan, after some fine individual work, scored again. For the remainder of the half the B.I.S. had the best of play, their combination being too much for the C.L.B., who tried hard to get through. Just before half time a free kick was awarded the C.L.B. from a foul throw. Henry took the kick and placed the ball right in the mouth of the B.I.S. goal but the forwards were unable to take advantage of this fine opportunity and the defenders cleared. In the

SECOND HALF
The C.L.B. were kept on the defensive and were treated to a game fight against odds. The B.I.S. with the wind and sun in their favour, kept up consistent bombardment of their opponent's goal and it was only the hard play of the C.L.B. backs and the ineffective shooting of the attackers, combined with Lush's excellent tending that prevented them from obtaining a much larger score. It was not until 20 minutes after the half had started that the B.I.S. could score. Callahan again doing the needful. For the last 10 minutes the C.L.B. again played on the defensive and were able to keep their goal clear until full time. The line-up was as follows:—

C.L.B. Old Comrades.—Goal, Lush; backs, Reid, Barnes; halves, Goodie, Henry, F. Reid; forwards, Burridge, Volsey, Rendell, Keats, Snow.
B.I.S.—Goal, J. Phelan; backs, Brian, Constantine; halves, Rawlins, Burke, Fox; forwards, Evans, H. Phelan, E. Phelan, Callahan, F. Phelan.

Seaman Buried.

The remains of Robert Munnan were reverently laid to rest in the General Protestant Cemetery yesterday afternoon, the funeral service being conducted by Rev. R. J. Power, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The deceased was a native of Coatsbridge, Scotland, and was only 26 years old. On Wednesday last he was landed from the S.S. Canadian Rancher and taken to the General Hospital, where he died of pneumonia. The corpse was taken in charge by St. Andrew's Society from the Club Rooms of which the funeral took place, a large number attending. Amongst the mourners were Mr. J. W. N. Johnstone, local manager for the Canadian Merchants Marine Service, M. T. Kennedy of the Furness Whisky Co., the Executive and members of St. Andrew's Society, and the Captain and crew of the Canadian Explorer.

Luminous labels should be pasted on all medicine bottles to prevent mistakes at night.

Let the People Consider.

"The people have become disgusted" solemnly asseverates the Advocate. Quite so sagacious of journals, but not exactly in the way that the expression is implied. The people are disgusted indeed, but it is with the shilly-shallying of the Government. Fair criticism of the administration is the duty of the Opposition, and no person can truthfully deny that there has been less display of partisanship among Opposition members or press this year than at any previous time in the political history of Newfoundland. The strictures on the Government made daily, have been due to the bungling and incapacity of the Liberal-Reformers, whose mad policy of tinkering and meddling with the legitimate course of trade, has brought the country to its present perilous condition. The truth is usually unpalatable, and in speaking that truth frankly and openly, the Opposition has rendered yeoman service. The Advocate does not admire fair criticism of the Party it supports, and characterises all such as hatred and jealousy. So far as the former is concerned the Government has most cause to hate itself for its ignorant handling of affairs, and no one really is jealous of the record it has made for itself, a record of which schoolboys would verily feel ashamed. But the main point with that paper is to keep before its readers, the majority of which are members of the Union, a rosy view of the doings of the Government, in order to calm any storm that might be brewing over the muddle made of tariff revision, if the new taxation can be termed such.

With that one object ever before it, the Advocate never fails to supply its subscribers with glowing descriptions of the ever increasing popularity of the Government, and decries with all the vigor and invective at its command the attempt of the bold, bad Opposition to bring about a rupture. Attempts which exist only in the fevered imagination of the writers of its leading articles, "and the same with intent to deceive." The men of the North might just as well know that the Government of Sir R. A. Squires is intensely unpopular. They might just as well know also that the Government proposes to bleed them this year of their proportion of over TWO MILLION DOLLARS extra taxation, to be collected through the medium of an iniquitous super-tax of twenty-five per centum on all duties, and a more vicious extra importation tax of five per centum on the cost, duty and freight amount of every article of food and clothing bought abroad. With the addition of this last, the rate of duty on Flour will be somewhere about 75 cents per barrel as against 27 1/2 cents last year. The duty on barrelled beef will be $2.60 as against $1.10; on Pork roughly $3.50 as against $1.65, and on other necessities in proportion. The Advocate does not give these figures to the people. Neither will articles at present on the free list escape the sales tax, as it is wrongly named. Outports to which coal was formerly admitted free of duty, will now be taxed five per cent. on the cost at the mines plus freight, the sum thus collected as extra duty per ton being not less than fifty-five cents, assuming the mined cost f.o.b. vessel to be only seven dollars and fifty cents. Adding an average freight rate of three dollars and fifty cents per ton, the cost is thus eleven dollars on which the five per cent is imposed, making a duty of fifty-five cents. The greater the cost and the higher the freight, the greater becomes the pro-rata sum collected by the Customs. What does the West Coast think of this coal duty? What do the people of the North think of it? Will the Advocate deny these figures or will it ensure the speaking of the truth for the benefit of the people?

Newfoundland War Memorial.

A well attended meeting of the Executive Committee of the Newfoundland War Memorial was held yesterday in the Board of Trade, when it was decided definitely that centres for the receipt of voluntary subscriptions would be opened on Thursday next at the following centres:—A. W. Kennedy & Co., The Newfoundland Store and the Board of Trade. Miss Mary MacKay has undertaken to get young ladies to be on duty at these centres and some decreasing will be undertaken to call the attention of the public to the centres. A decision was made that it was unfair to ask the press to publish long lists of individual subscriptions and that this would not be done. The press, however, would be asked to publish the total of the subscriptions to date each day as a matter of news. The matter of issuing certificates instead of receipts to subscribers of one dollar and over was taken up and decided upon, and Mr. H. A. Anderson has undertaken to set a suitable certificate printed. All expenses of the undertaking will be handled by private subscription. In response to an invitation from the G.W.V.A., it was arranged that the Chairman and Secretary of the movement would represent the Committee at the Commemoration Day services on July 3rd. The total amount subscribed to date is $4,637.00.

Police Court.

The driver of a motor truck was fined $2 and costs for driving at a speed likely to endanger public safety. A vagrant told the Judge he could get no work. "Why don't you go and pick dandelion," asked His Honor. Mr. J. Robins offered to look after the man. Another vagrant was also discharged upon Mr. Robins offering to look after him. A father charged with ill-treating his 10 year old son was discharged. There was no evidence of the father beating the boy and it was also proved that he had fallen into bad company. Mr. G. W. B. Ayre appeared for the accused. For driving without lights a cabman was fined $2 or 5 days.

C. L. B. Church Parade.

The C.L.B. Cadets will attend Divine Service at the C. of E. Cathedral tomorrow morning, and it is expected that the turn out will be one of the largest for the season. The parade consisting of the Battalion, the Girl Guides, and Old Comrades will form up in the Armory at 10.15 a.m. and headed by the Band will proceed down Long's Hill to the Cathedral. After the service a short route march will be held before returning to the Armory.

Unemployed War Veterans.

THE PETITION GOVERNMENT. The number of unemployed war Veterans registered at the G.W.V.A. Rooms up to noon hour was 150. The registration opened at 9 o'clock this morning, and for a time there was quite a rush. A petition appealing for assistance is being presented to the Prime Minister this afternoon. It had been the intention to have it presented at the bar of the House, but many of the applicants are in such dire straits that delay until the House again assembles is impossible.

The Confusing Sales Tax

The manufacturers' meeting adjourned from yesterday was continued in the Board of Trade Rooms to-day. The question of the sales tax, and the protection offered to local industries was discussed. It was thought by many that the 2% protection given to manufacturers under the new agreement, because of the extra clerical work, was an item of expense, instead of what it was designed to be.

No Speeding.

A WARNING TO MOTORISTS. In the Magistrate's Court this morning, Judge Morris commented strongly on the practice of motorists speeding at the corner of Prescott and Gower Streets and said that the driver of any car which does not slow down at that point will be severely dealt with. This pronouncement was made as the result of a case in which the driver of a motor truck had been charged with driving at a speed likely to endanger the safety of pedestrians, at the corner mentioned above. The Inspector General of Police did not press the charge in this case but asked the Judge to make a pronouncement in connection with this case. The excuse for speeding there is that it must be done if the slope by Lawrence's Factory is to be taken on top gear.

Coastal Boats.

The Council Case. Pernicious Legislation.

The case of Robins vs. the Mayor and City Council was continued before Judge Morris this morning in the Civil Court. The examination of Mr. C. J. Fox, M.H.A. and Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C. M.H.A. was conducted by Mr. G. W. B. Ayre for the plaintiff. They stated that they had given $10,000 for Ballet Work from their district grants and that they understood the rate of pay would be $3.50 per day. Mr. Carter, for the Council, claimed that much of the evidence was irrelevant. On Mr. Ayre's motion the hearing was adjourned until Monday.

Fishery Reports.

A message to the Fisheries Department to-day from Bonne Bay, reports Easterly wind with rain and no fish or caplin. A report to the same department states that caplin was struck in at Colinet Sound, and that 3 schra, have arrived at Salmonier well fished.

C.C.C. BAND NOTICE.—

There will be a meeting of the Band and also all the members, immediately after Last Mass tomorrow Sunday.

Pageant of the Red River Valley.

COLOURFUL STORY OF FAMOUS REGION PRESENTED BY THE AMERICAN LEGION. FARGO, N.D., June 10.—The history of the valley of the Red River, from the North to the misty traditions of the Sioux down to the days of the World War were symbolized in a pageant presented here by the Gilbert C. Orton post of the American Legion to-night.

The smoke of the tribal calumet, Jesuit priests, French voyageurs, trappers, traders and soldiers, who trod the old Red River Trail, Indian massacre, pioneers and the bad men of early days followed each other in the colorful procession of tableaux down to the soldier boy of 17. The pageant opened with the wooing of Scarie Dove by Eagle and C. Eye and a peace council of Sioux chieftains. Then came the Jesuits, followed by the trappers, fur traders and hunters with dog sledges, travois and carts. Major Stephen H. Long, who had charge of the territory between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains from 1818 to 1822 and who headed a scientific expedition into the Northwest for the Federal Government in 1823, established the Canadian border near Pambula what is now North Dakota. He and his party established the Red River Trail, which was used by all manner of people traveling to and from the North in the pioneer days.

The soldiers and the officers of Fort Abercrombie, with their negro servants and their Indian guides, followed. News of the Indian massacre, at Brackenridge, 1832) broke up a ball at the fort; and the settlers gathered there for safety. A party broke through the ring of savages on a fast horse and escaped to Fort William (St. Paul, Minn.) whence reinforcements came under Captain Emil Burger, to save the fort.

In 1871, it became definitely known that the Northern Pacific Railroad would extend its line to the Red River soon and agents of speculative companies are everywhere along its banks, seeking to claim the land where the route was to run and to mislead bone fide settlers from taking up land at such a spot. Such agents, masquerading as farmers, were depicted, staking their claims on the site where Fargo was later to stand, followed by Harry Lowell, Jr., and other settlers. A detachment of soldiers from Abercrombie arrived at the headquarters of General Rosser, head of the Northern Pacific Engineering Department and the next morning "Fargo in the Timber" found a station at every door. Liquor and fixtures are confiscated and those who can show no warrants for claims duly taken up are deported across the Red River into Minnesota.

Next came scenes picturing James J. Hill and his development of the Northwest. The greatest climax with scenes of the Great War in 1917-18. M. G. C. A. MEETING.—The regular monthly meeting of the Methodist Guards' Association will be held in the College Institute Room, on Monday, June 20th, at 8.45 p.m. Every member is kindly asked to attend. Note—The Sports' Committee will meet immediately after general meeting. ARCH GOOBY, Secretary.—June 18, 21

WEEKLY REVIEW.
DUBLIN, June 17.
The weekly review on the situation in Ireland issued at Dublin Castle today says that during the week five policemen were killed and thirty-four wounded, and that two soldiers were killed and one soldier wounded. The review declared that bombing outrages in crowded streets continue a regular feature of rebel operations, resulting in casualties to innocent civilians in greater number than to the police or military. Continuing, the review asserts that there were seventy raids on mails and sixty arrests for outrages and political offences. Of 49 trials of civilians by court martial, 44 resulted in convictions, and five in acquittals. Sentences to fifteen years penal servitude were imposed three times on persons charged with possession of arms and ammunition. The total number of persons interned is given in the review as 3,138.

AIRPLANES AND TROOPS.
BELFAST, June 17.
Five airplanes participated in a sweep made by 5,000 troops in South Monaghan, which terminated today. Several important captures are reported to have been made. The telephone service has been restored.

GUN RUNNING FRUSTRATED.
NEW YORK, June 17.
Assistant United States Attorney, Isaac Cross, tonight asserted that the circumstances surrounding the discovery of nearly 500 machine guns aboard the steamer Eastside at Hoboken, last Tuesday, indicated that they were intended for use against a friendly nation and that therefore their presence was unlawful.

TWELVE TO ONE.
CORK, June 17.
Two auxiliary constables were killed, and four wounded Thursday evening, in an attack on their lorry by Republicans at Rathcoole, near Banteer, County Cork. It is officially stated that four mines were laid on the road near Rathcoole, and that three of them exploded, wrecking three lorries. After this, three hundred civilians attacked the auxiliaries, who numbered twenty-five. Fighting continued for hours, but eventually the Republicans withdrew. An official statement says constabulary scoured the countryside until early this morning. One Republican was found dead, but other dead or wounded are believed to have been carried off.

SECRET SERVICE TRIUMPH.
LONDON, June 17.
The Pall Mall Gazette to-day prints an article on the seizure of arms on board the steamer Eastside, in Hoboken, in which the finding of the weapons is described as a triumph for the British Secret Service.

Instantly Beautify Your Complexion

Thousands of girls and women everywhere proclaim DEWILLO the greatest beautifier yet discovered. It instantly gives the skin that rosy white appearance every woman craves. Over five hundred thousand are using it in place of face powder, as it stays on until you wash it off. It is so life-like in appearance that it is impossible to detect it, and it gives you a youthful skin "every one just loves to touch." It is especially recommended as a protection to the skin, for shiny nose, freckles, tan, blackheads and sallow dark rough skin. Try it to-day on your face, neck, hands and arms. Yes, it's absolutely harmless, even on the most delicate skin. At all toilet counters everywhere.

M. CONNORS, A. W. KENNEDY.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mrs. James McIntyre wishes to thank all kind friends who in any way helped her in the hour of bereavement, in the loss of her beloved husband, also those who sent telegrams, letters of sympathy, flowers, etc.—adv.

A BARREN SESSION

Imposition of Kerosene Duty Discussed--House Adjourned Till Next Thursday.

At the request of Sir Michael Cashin, supported by several Opposition members, the House was adjourned last evening until Thursday next so that the Government might have time to consider some policy in connection with the Railway and other matters. The session was chiefly occupied in a debate on the proposed duty on Kero oil entering the colony in hardwood casks, a duty which would protect the Oil Corporations doing business locally, by shutting out all competition.

Applause from the gallery greeted Mr. Archibald as he entered the House early in the afternoon to take his independent seat.

The House met at 3:15 p.m. Mr. Bennett, on privilege, read a telegram received from Bay Roberts stating that Bay Roberts and other places had not been visited by the Ranger and Diana when picking up crews for Labrador. He asked for an explanation.

The Minister of Shipping explained that both these boats had a full complement of men. The Seal would call at the places named. He told Capt. Lewis that the rates for fishermen going North on these boats would be arranged.

During question time the Prime Minister informed Sir Michael Cashin that no report had as yet been received from Messrs. Collishaw and Devine with reference to their mission to Washington.

Mr. Sullivan asked for another 10 or 15 thousand dollars on a promissory note for his district to help in providing supplies. He did not want pauper relief, but the cash, so that the destitute men of the district of Ploegentia and St. Mary's could be given an opportunity to earn something at the fishery. Now was the time to deal with the matter. He appealed to the Government to stand by the people and look after them even if they lost every cent they invested. People were starving all over the district. He and his colleagues had used some of their main line grants to save some of their constituents from starving. He threatened to obstruct every money vote going through the House until the Government realized the hardships which men in many sections of the country were undergoing.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Bill for the Quietening of Titles.

Mr. Bennett brought up the matter of the kerosene oil and gasoline monopoly. He claimed that these products had fallen into the hands of a grasping corporation here. Over 3,000,000 gallons of petroleum products were imported here last year. Oil could to-day be imported in small quantities at from 5 to 10 cents less than sold by the oil corporations, who were, therefore, taking about $200,000 out of the pockets of the people each year. He suggested that inquiries be set on foot by the Government for the purpose of seeing that gasoline and kerosene were sold here at a cheaper rate. Only the other day a small man could import only 60 barrels, pay a high rate of duty, and sell at from 5 to 8 cents a gallon less than the corporations. Let the latter have a fair profit, but let them not be permitted to practice extortion on the people. With their way of handling oil imports they should be in a position to sell so cheaply that nobody could possibly compete with them.

The Prime Minister promised to enquire into the matter.

Sir Michael Cashin also referred to the oil question and the use of kerosene oil barrels for cod oil. He could not understand why the Government should attempt to protect the oil corporations, which, he said, had recently placed an extra cent per gallon on their products. If these corporations sold their products at six cents less per gallon they would still make a good profit. Sir Michael referred to them as the worst kind of monopolists who were squeezing the life blood out of the colony. He protested strongly against the placing of duty on hardwood oil barrels.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries spoke briefly on the subject.

Sir Michael Cashin again took the matter up and advised the Government not to meddle with oil.

Mr. Sullivan said that the people should, at least, be allowed their light free. They had been kept in the dark long enough. The fishermen were being taxed to death, and not a man on the Government side of the House was ready to offer a protest.

Mr. Sullivan, quoting figures, showed that a suit of oil clothes was taxed $2.80, a pair of long rubber $2.30 and everything else for the use of the fishermen accordingly.

Sir Michael Cashin said there were $250,000 in unpaid bonds this year and $60,000 due from last year at the Custom House. Why did the Government not collect this money instead of taxing the fishermen on oil. He did not think that any of this money would be collected, but let them institute legal proceedings and try and collect this instead of trying to get $100,000 out of the already overburdened fishermen. He told Mr. Coaker that his explanation was a cod. Mr. Walsh expressed surprise at the poor excuse put up by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. He urged haste in the appointment of a profiting commission. It was deplorable that there was not a man in the so-called Fisherman's Government with spirit enough to protest against this proposed tax on oil.

Capt. Lewis said yield of oil last year was very short and if we had a successful fishery this year at least 40,000 casks were necessary for the export of cod oil. Speaking of profiteering he said there were no greater profiteers than the present Government. The new tariff was appalling.

Mr. Fox wished to speak on the matter, but the Chairman said he could no longer allow this digression from the subject before the chair. Mr. Fox refused to be curtailed and moved the adjournment of the House. Every time a minister rose to speak of a matter of national importance, said he, he was told to bring it up on another occasion. The situation in the country at present was too serious to allow of such formalities being used. He turned the Bill before the chair sheer rubbish.

Mr. Hibbs informed Mr. Fox that he was out of order.

Mr. Fox—"I am perfectly in order. I am here on behalf of the strictest people of Newfoundland and not for sir, or anyone else should dare to tell me I am out of order." Continuing he said if the Government were too incompetent to carry out their work let them get out. Images with smiles on their faces were not what was wanted now. Shop dummies would do much work as the Government members. It was a waste of time for even the Premier to devote his attention to an act of that sort when people were starving all over the country. The one hope the country had was that the Opposition would continue to speak for it. The House should adjourn to allow the Government to tackle problems of the most pressing necessity which were facing it. Sometimes he had an almost irresistible impulse to bring some of the Government members into the middle of the floor and stick pins into them to see if they were alive or not.

At this juncture an interruption occurred in the gallery a partisan doorkeeper being the cause of the disturbance. After order had been restored once more Mr. Fox continued his address and moved that further consideration of the Bill be deferred and that the Committee rise and allow the House to consider some concrete plan to meet the stress of the times. The Government was failing miserably in its duty to the country. The time had now come for action. Results were wanted. Newfoundland might well regret the fatal step she took on November 3rd, 1919. The Government seemed pledged to eternal silence, whilst inaction and incompetency was written on all their faces. They had not that genius for Government which should be theirs if they expected to govern the country properly. They were blindly driving the country into the abyss of ruin which lay before it. What the people of the country were complaining of was the absence of some reasonable proposition to alleviate present conditions. It struck him that it required a mallet to get an idea into the head of any Government member. The graveyards were filling rapidly with people who had starved to death through the present misrule of the Government. Every case of malnutrition in this country might bring terrible consequences in its trail. Mr. Fox concluded by paying a tribute to the Minister of Justice as the one-bright spot in the Government.

The Minister of Justice said the Government has been considering the way out of the present difficulties. He explained the reason for the introduction of the Bill before the chair.

Sir Michael Cashin served notice on the Government that no further business would be done in the House until the Prime Minister brought down a concrete proposition to deal with the Railway. Was the House to be closed whilst an important matter of this kind was left outstanding. He suggested that the House be adjourned for a week so that the Government could have an opportunity to consider the matter thoroughly and come to a decision. Was it not the Opposition's duty to put the brakes on and tell the Government they must come down with their policy before they were taken off. Not another vote would pass in Supply on Ways and Means until the Government stated definitely what they were going to do with the Railway. The House was not going to be closed and the Government allowed to deal with the question in the dark. Let them bring in their policy or they would be hung up. Sir Michael also served notice on the Chairman that he was not going to be allowed to muzzle members of the Opposition.

Sir John Cresble endorsed Sir Michael's suggestion with respect to the adjournment of the House and suggested that the policy concerning the Unemployed should also be brought in. Unemployment was rife all over the country and the matter must be adjusted. He cited one instance of the terrible distress prevalent all over the colony. A man had come to his office with a ticket for work, but he was so weak from hunger that he could not work. He knew of many similar cases.

Mr. Higgins said that any opposition from the Speaker's right that afternoon was not to the Bill before the Chair, which he thought, had some very good points. The whole crux of the situation was financial matters, and he would like to say that he supported entirely Sir Michael's Cashin's suggestion. He thought the Government would see how inconsistent it would be for the Opposition to pass Supply and Ways and Means until a definite Railway policy was laid before the House.

The Prime Minister was willing to move the adjournment until Thursday next.

Mr. Fox moved that the "Quietening of Titles Bill" be referred to a Select Committee. The Government had come into this session unprepared. They had no definite policy and that was why the House had been open so long. He endorsed the suggestion of adjournment.

Mr. Sullivan asked if the Government had any intention of relieving those in need in his and other districts.

Sir Michael Cashin said it was not altogether fair to leave the House until the Government had announced what they were going to do in connection with relieving those in distress. The Prime Minister promised to confer with the members for Ploegentia and St. Mary's this morning.

The Committee then rose and the House was adjourned until Thursday afternoon next at 3:15 p.m.

THE LAST CALL

Do you hear it, Newfoundlanders? It is the call to each and every one of you to help your fellow countrymen to employment and independence.

We have during the past ten weeks brought before your notice Newfoundland's depressed trade conditions. The numbers of unemployed increase daily--unless ALL of you pull together and in the right direction where will it end.

There is only one means by which this can be accomplished, and that is by your CONSTANT purchasing of LOCAL MADE GOODS the manufacture of which keep your country men and women employed.

Below we list many articles made in Newfoundland that equal and in many cases are more suited to the needs of the country than the imported article. Buy the goods made at home and help to save your country.

Civic Commission Weekly Meeting.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Mayor Gosling presided and Councillors Morris, Ayre, Peat and Jackman were present. After the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, the following matters received attention:

A communication was read from the Prime Minister, stating the Municipal Charter had not, as yet, come down from the Legislative Council.

R. G. Ash, Secretary Nfld. Board of Fire Underwriters, asked for particulars regarding the acetylene compressing plant to be erected at the King's Wharf, and pointing out that, from an insurance standpoint, same would be considered a great hazard, and would probably affect the rating of buildings in vicinity. The Department of Marine and Fisheries informed the Council there is absolutely no danger to the city in the manufacturing of acetylene gas by the process to be used here, also that smaller and larger plants are now in operation in the city of London. The Council, before giving permission, referred the matter to the Inspector-General, who saw no objection to permit being issued.

Inspector-General Hutchings wrote regarding hydrant near Belvedere Orphanage, which, he stated, were quite insufficient for fire protection. The Inspector-General's attention was called to this matter some time ago. The best supply, at present, in case of fire at the institution, would be from Newtown Road. Connections will be made with the Long Pond Road main, which will insure adequate water supply.

Communications were received from the Dominion Secretary of the Great War Veterans' Association and the Secretary Sergeants' Committee Royal Nfld. Regiment, regarding the erection of war memorial at Garrison Park, asking that site be changed and same erected at intersection of Bond Street and Garrison Hill. The request was accorded to subject, to the direction of the City Engineer.

Supt. of the Commercial Cable Co. drew attention to the lumber stored in the vacant lot adjacent to the premises, and asked if this was not contrary to the City Regulations. At the present time there are no City Regulations governing the storage of lumber, but the communication will be forwarded to the Inspector-General.

A letter was received from J. A. Colbourne, 28 Gear Street, in reference to water and sewer extension. The matter will be attended to as soon as possible.

Mr. Alfred Rees wrote, asking compensation for damage to hay crop by pipe line. Council claims no responsibility in the matter.

Health Officer Hersh reported that occupants of two houses near the stream, Hamilton Avenue, have been depositing refuse in same, which is dangerous to the health of children in the neighborhood. It was ordered the matter be referred to the Solicitor, and the owners of houses compelled to install sanitary appliances.

An application was read from Bandmaster Bulley of the C.C.C. for permission to hold concerts in the City Parks, under same conditions as last year. Arrangements will be made with the bandmasters of the City Brigades.

Requests of F. J. Cornick, Freshwater Road, and B. Dwyer, Carpasian Rd., with reference to drains in these localities, were referred to the Road Inspector for attention.

Albert Horwood, 66 Barter's Hill, applied for permission to install electric motor on his premises. The Engineer was instructed to investigate. The following plans were passed, subject to the approval of the City Engineer:—W. W. Whitley (extension) corner Mackin and Leslie Sts.; M. J. Walsh (dwelling) Queen's Road; J. T. Dooley (dwelling) Patrick St.; J. W. Heale (dwelling) Forest Rd.; C. Gatehouse (dwelling) Freshwater Road; S. Taylor (dwelling) Warbury Street, provided he pays his proportion, according to frontage, for water and sewerage extension; Geo. Butterworth (extension) Beaumont St., provided water and sewerage are installed.

Permits for repairs were issued J. Kavanagh, York Street, and W. Chafe, Stewart Avenue.

Application of R. D. Cave, Pleasant St., for permission to bridge drain, was referred to the City Engineer for inquiry.

Reports of Health Officer, City Engineer, Plumbing Inspector, etc., were read; the payrolls and bills ordered paid; after which the meeting adjourned.

An Air Fight With Fokkers.

On June 18, 1916, while Second Lieutenant McCubbin, Royal Flying Corps, was up in the air for his usual daily patrol with his observer, a non-commissioned officer, they saw Lieutenant S. patrolling his adjoining beat, while far overhead three Fokkers were flying. Lieutenant McCubbin was some 8,000 feet up, and just as he saw the enemy machines, one of them dived and went down to earth, but the other two dropped like hawks after their prey on to his comrade's machine. Lieutenant S. also dived to avoid the first rush of the two attackers, so that the actual fight took place at a height of about 5,500 feet; down at one sheer drop for 2,500 feet went McCubbin to join in, but too late to bring help, only retribution. As he dropped he saw Lieutenant S.'s machine get out of control, and then go plumb down to earth. Before Immelman had begun to steady himself from his victorious plunge, McCubbin was on him. He took no chance of firing from a safe distance, but went straight in, confident in his observer's nerve, and not until he was almost touching the enemy machine that the observer fired. At the first round the enemy was hit. The machine seemed suddenly to bank clean over on its right side, and then went down like a stone. The second Fokker turned and was coming for McCubbin. The latter swerved and circled to get inside the enemy, but no shot was exchanged. McCubbin did not know that it was Immelman who was in the machine which has fallen. Doubtless the occupant of the other Fokker, did, and knowing that Immelman was gone, either had not the heart or the nerve to continue his fight, so he dropped down after his lost comrade.

THE LAUGHING BOY.

Always seeing the funny side. That's the glory of him. Rollin' his head with his mouth stretched wide, As quick to laugh as a duck to swim!

Whatever you say or whatever you do, He'll answer you back with a chuckle or two.

Laughing from mornin' till night, it seems.

Just chuck full of the gift o' fun.

An' the angels send him their comic dreams

So's he can grin for 'em every one.

An' his grandma says when he laughs her down,

He's the disrespectfulest boy in town.

Laughed at the prayer that the preacher spoke

The night Ma asked him to come for tea.

Seemed to think it was all a joke,

An' he actually winked his eye at me.

His ears are keen an' his mind is quick

An' his grin is ready for every trick.

"What'll we do?" says Ma to me,

"With a boy like that who won't be have!"

An' I answer back: "We'll let him be.

Old folks' faces are far too grave,

An' it's good for us all to have the joy

An' the rollickin' mirth of a laughin' boy."

Names and Phrases. A reader who signs himself "Englishman" refers to the word "burn," a stream, which we said was used in Scotland and Ireland, and writes, "the word burn is just as much used in the part of England I come from as anywhere else, and we are not Scotch or of Scotch descent. Besides, as you are no doubt aware, what is called "Sootch" is just an English dialect." Is it? A stiff piece of wood used as a support is called a strut; so also a person who walks stiffly and pompously about is said to strut. Both words are of Scandinavian origin and the Middle English word was "struotes" to swell or spread out. There was a German word, strotsen, to be puffed up.

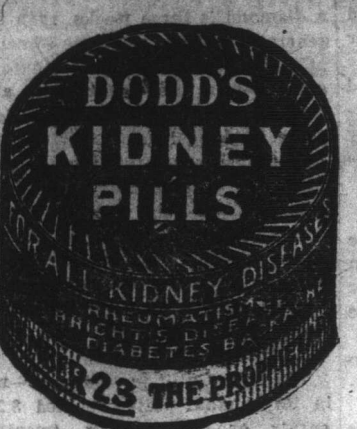

Announcement Card. During the following months I will be a visitor in St. John's. Coming from the Province of Alberta, Canada, where I conduct a successful practice in the science of Chiropactic and realizing the amount of sickness, ill-health and complaints every community is heir to, I offer this opportunity to the citizens of St. John's and neighbouring outports to become acquainted with this great health science of Chiropactic. The Coolest Hat. However lightly one may be clad there is little comfort in the hot weather if the hat does not have a cooling effect. In this connection the Scientific American describes some interesting tests which have been made to determine the heating or cooling action of various kinds of hats commonly worn. On a very bright day when the shade temperature was 98.3 deg. F., seven individuals were given hats, each one being of a different type. These were worn outdoors for two hours and at the end of this time the temperature inside the hat was taken. In the case of a typical soldier's hat, made of cloth and with a hard peak, the reading was very high, being no less than 98.6 deg. F. In an ordinary cloth cap it was 94.1 deg. Inside the hard round bowler the record was 92.3 deg. Contrary to expectation the silk hat came fourth on the list with a temperature of 89.6 deg. The head with a temperature of 86 deg. Very much more comfortable was the soft felt hat with a reading of only 79.7 deg. It was discovered that where the felt was black, or very dark in color, the air inside was much hotter than in the case of a light shade. The figures given are for a hat of a somewhat pale gray hue. The coolest hat was the soft straw Panama, which gave a temperature of 77.9 deg.

Sunspot Riddle. The nature and causes of the sunspot are among the most baffling problems of astronomy. Greatly magnified, the sunspot area looks like an immense whirlpool in the blazing surface of the sun. The matter in agitation is flaming metallic vapour, of a temperature so high that we on this earth can scarcely conceive it, revealing in its centre, as in a deep cavity, some darker substance which seems to lie below the outer gaseous surface of the sun. But that the spots are real depressions is not now generally held. Beholding them as we do, much as the almanac sees some object on the earth from a gigantic height, it is impossible to say whether they are eminences or hollows, just as a shell-crater seen from a height might well be a hillock, and a hillock look like a shell-crater. What we do know is that as the sunspot of great size begins its movement across the face of the sun, the whole of nature seems to thrill in response. That enormous magnet, the earth, acts irregularly; auroras flash across the night sky; telegraphs and telephones work abnormally. How and why this is has still to be ascertained, and it is one of the most profoundly interesting riddles that science has to answer.

The Gospel is the Key to Society's Problems

Bishop Welldon, formerly Dean of Manchester, believes that the signs of decadence, or some of them, are discernible in Great Britain to-day—selfishness, luxury, profiteering, breach of faith, the warfare of classes, the violation of holy matrimony, materialism in all its aspects, and the almost willfully contemptuous rejection of God and His laws, and of the obligation of His worship. These were, he said in an address in Durham Cathedral, the premonitors of a nation's downfall. After a long journey through British Colonies, which were looking with an unspoken loyalty, and yet with almost passionate anxiety, to the land they so fondly regarded as home, he had come back to an England which, as to many of its social and industrial activities, might well-nigh be described as a country of the dead. Even now it was late, but it was not too late to repent. "If the paralysis of British industry lasts," said Bishop Welldon, "it spells the death of the British Empire. I cannot tell you with what feeling of despair I have seen America coal cast into the bunkers of a ship in which English coal had been carried on the outward journey. The opportunity is still ours, but it will not last long. It is ours because we are Englishmen and Englishwomen. It is Christ's Gospel alone which holds the key to the problems which afflict human society, and which will bring the dawn of a new and happy social order."—Manchester Weekly Times.

Legislative Council. FRIDAY, June 17. The session opened at 4 p.m. The Bill to amend the Law Society Act did not pass the committee stage, as Sir P. T. McGrath desired information as to the number of men who would benefit by the Act, and also whether conscripts were to be debarred from its privileges. The Bill was adopted, however, with the exception of the preamble when the committee rose and reported progress. A Bill entitled "An Act further respecting the Cutting and Exportation of Timber" passed the committee stage without amendment. The Bill legalizes the cutting of railway ties, etc., on Crown lands during the past winter in the districts of Twillingate and St. George's, and permits their exportation. The Bill to abolish "The War Measures Act, 1914" passed the committee stage. A Bill confirming an agreement between the Government and the D'Arcy Exploration Co., Ltd., was read a second time. Hon. M. F. Gibbs, who is in charge of the Bill, gave a lengthy outline of the agreement, which he endorsed. Sir Patrick McGrath also supported the measure. He said it was the first real attempt to determine the commercial possibilities of our oil areas. The company had the support of the British Government and had a somewhat similar agreement with the Australian Government. This company was also undertaking exploration work in New Guinea in conjunction with the British and Australian Governments. Sir Patrick was prepared to concede a great deal to such a powerful organization, which might do as much in developing our oil resources as the Harmsworth's did our pulp lands. The Exportation of Salt Codfish Bill" was read a second time. A Bill to amend the Seal Fishery Act was given a second reading. Sir P. T. McGrath questioned the Leader of the Government as to why the policy of unrestricted killing of seals was now to be adopted seeing that all recent legislation was devised for the protection of the herds. Hon. George Shea replied that the restrictions were being removed at the request of those engaged in the industry, and that at the next session he would be in a position to furnish the information desired by Sir Patrick. Health Bill was given a second reading. Hon. M. F. Gibbs presented the report of a select committee on the Municipal Charter, and this Bill will be considered in committee of the whole at the next session. Adjournment was taken at 5.30 p.m. until Monday next.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS. THE DOCTOR: "Ah, yes, restlessness and nervousness. Give him a Steedman's Soothing Powder, and he will be bright."

FLIES IN OINTMENT. Fame I've won in greater measure than I hoped for in my youth; I've acquired a such worldly treasure as makes quite a roll, in sooth; but my voice, like rusty hinges, chants a dreary dirge of dole, for the fierce rheumatic twinges shake the sunshine from my soul. Feeling well is all that matters in the best world ever was; all the rest is rags and tatters, fame and wealth and men's applause. With your laurels you may crown me, speaking praises doubly sweet, but my briny tears will drown me if the gout is in my feet. Croesus sits among his plunder, gazing at his shining wealth, and he'd throw it all to thunder for a year of perfect health; for the ache is in his ankles and he fears he's going blind, and the thought of gold but rankles in the corners of his mind. Midas, of the storied fingers, which turn everything to gold, in his dim vaults sadly lingers, for his spacious feet are cold. For he's with an ague shaking, sometimes chilled and sometimes hot, and the pills he has been taking do not seem to hit the spot. And he'd swap his stacks of guilders for a night of such repose as restores the tolling builders, and such delegates as those. It should seem like empty spilling, all the talk of fame and gold, to the fellow who is feeling like a sorrel three-year-old.

Terrible Weeping Eczema. For the year 1909, I suffered with weeping eczema on my hands which caused me very much pain and worry for I could not use my hands for but very few things. I tried many remedies but they all failed to give me any relief and I was obliged to give up my work and came South, at the same time continuing to use any preparation recommended to me, but my hands continued to get worse until I was told to try D.D.D. Prescription, also Soap, which I at once did, and the first two or three applications gave me the greatest relief, and when I had used but half a dollar bottle's my hands were healed. I am indeed very thankful for your splendid prescription and may its fame spread world wide, is the wish of MRS. E. HAYNES, 22 Sunset St., Hamilton, Ont. Ask your druggist and he will tell you what D.D.D. Prescription has accomplished in your own neighborhood. Your money back unless the first bottle relieves you.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A GREAT GIFT.

She Was Perfectly Calm.
His wife was perfectly calm. "I'm sure they haven't been thrown away," she said at once. "I'll be right up and help you find them."
She disappeared and was gone for about five minutes, during which time one could hear the artist's excited voice and the murmur of his wife's soothing responses.
Presently she came down. "They were in a box he stuck under the couch," she said. "Poor Bob, he has such a bad memory and he gets so excited when he is afraid anything is lost. It scares me, too, because once or twice he did really lose something, and then we had a terrible time. But I just hang onto myself and keep calm and that calms him down so he is able to go back to work by the time we find it."
She sank into her chair again and although I don't think she knew it, there was a distinct shade of weariness in her manner.
In those few moments she had given her husband of her strength and poise. By "hanging onto herself and keeping calm" she had calmed him down, but the effort had cost her something.

I don't believe she knew it and very likely he doesn't, but it is perfectly obvious that she is constantly giving of herself to him in ways like that.
Yet People Pity Him!
And yet people pity him because she is not able to help him in an artistic way. I doubt if any other help she could give him could be so great as just what she does.
How many women there are who give in just this way—and how seldom is their gift appreciated?
Anyone who lives with some other person who has ill-controlled nerves must give constantly of himself or herself.
I know a woman who had a naturally calm, even, happy disposition. Her husband had an irritable, intensely nervous and apprehensive temperament. He took it out of her to such an extent that in the end he made her more nervous than himself and she finally lost her mind. She simply gave so largely of herself that she beggared herself. He has just died, eleven years after her death, and after nearly wearing out another wife.
If They Would Only Say "Thank You."
It is sad that the gifts of self are so seldom appreciated, for what greater gift can be made "Who gives himself, the hungry beggar and Me."
If by any chance this arrow, shot into the air, should find its mark in one heart and make one man or woman refuse to take so largely of such charity, or even cause such a one to say an unexpected "thank you" for it, wouldn't this be a wonderful day?

Household Notes.
If paper dolls are pasted on coarse muslin they will last a long time.
A fine grater is a good thing for removing the burned surface of anything.
Meat for sandwich filling should be chopped or minced and well seasoned.
Old nightgowns make excellent covers for dresses hanging in the closet.
Boned fowl is a good dish when you want something novel and easy to carve.
Old corset steels make good shoe trees if the ends are wrapped in tissue paper.
Mold left-over cereals in custard cups and serve with crushed berries and cream.
If you wish the real flavor, have your coffee ground like fine granulated sugar.
Dip slices of left-over fried meat in beaten egg, roll in crumbs and fry until browned.
Use engineer's waste on your mopstick, and you will always have a clean mop.

What natural product is most improved by man?
Beyond doubt, the diamond in the rough, before it is "dressed." It is a dull, lifeless thing, like a soda crystal or a piece of gum arabic; but when it has been cut and polished—well, who shall adequately describe it?
The amazing transformation begins by cutting, which is done by means of small circular discs of phosphor-bronze making about 5,000 revolutions per minute. In spite of the fact that the saws run at this amazing speed, cutting is a very slow process. A small "amond" may be in the machine six days, and recently one of medium size took five weeks and three days to saw through.
If the diamonds are of poor shape, they may be improved by rubbing one against another—a literal case of "diamond cut diamond."
Cutting the Koh-i-Noor.
Finally comes the dual operation of cutting and polishing. It is carried out on a wheel made of porous cast-iron and turning in a horizontal direction at about 3,000 revolutions per minute. This wheel has erosive properties, and these are added to by a mixture of diamond dust and olive oil, as well as by the dust which comes off the stones being worked.
The diamonds, mounted in suitable holders, rest on this wheel as it revolves, and they are gradually—very gradually—cut and polished.
Usually the "table" (the octagonal facet in the centre of the top) is cut first, and then each of the other facets follows in turn. There are 58 facets in all—32 at the top and 26 underneath—this arrangement and number forming a "brilliant" the shape into which nearly all important diamonds are cut. The reason for this design is that it gives the maximum "life," or "sparkle," to a stone.
As each facet must be cut separately and with the greatest accuracy, the completion of the entire number is a lengthy operation, though the time taken varies according to the hardness of the stone. In this respect there is a considerable difference in diamonds, even when they have come from mines in close proximity to one another. The average time taken to cut a diamond is three weeks, even if—generally happens when the wheel runs at 3,000 revolutions per minute—the stone comes into contact with a cutting surface about 100 miles in length every working hour.

In special cases this period, long as it may seem, is greatly exceeded. The famous Koh-i-Noor took 456 hours to cut, and the re-cutting of the Great Mogul in 1852 was another lengthy job, costing £25,000. So, again, with the Regent, or Pitt diamond, on which in the eighteenth century men worked continuously for two years.
Even the Cullinan diamond—which in its original state weighed 3,268 1/2 carats, or more than twenty-one ounces—had a great deal of energy spent on it before it was ready for the King's crown. Though the most modern methods were employed, its cutting extended over six months.
During its ordeal on the wheel a diamond loses much of its weight—quite fifty per cent. Since it is sold by weight, it is important to reduce such loss to a minimum, and herein lies the art of cutting.
This was shown a few years ago when a parcel of diamonds was divided into three portions of 100 carats each for sending in equal shares to cutters in Amsterdam, Germany, and Switzerland.
Amsterdam was at that time the chief diamond-cutting centre in the world, though it has since had to yield the palm to Brighton. But, though the cost in Germany was 1s. 6d. per carat below that in Holland, the relative value of the stones cut was 10s. per carat less, while those cut in Switzerland were 20s. per carat lower in value.—The Bits.

TRINITY.

Amongst the changes for the better that have come to us, more or less, in many things, all along the line, are those in connection with funerals, and the outward expressions of the sorrow that wells up from the heart, at the time, and after we have laid the body of some loved one to rest in God's Acre. Fifty years ago the coffin of all but those of children were covered with black; long black mournings were worn on the hats; house blinds were kept down for weeks, and sometimes for months, to the detriment of the health of the living. Less than twenty-five years ago it was the custom in a fishing village not far from Trinity, for every body who had worn a mourning at a funeral during the week to wear it to church on the following Sunday. All who wore the mournings sat in the front seats, took no part in the service, but with bowed heads and audible moans, they performed that which a heathen custom demanded of them. Whilst white bands to be worn on the arm, are still sent to those who have been chosen to be responsible for the care of the body from the house to the grave, fifty years ago it was the custom to send long black hat mournings to all the leading people of the town. This constituted an invitation to attend the funeral, and the invitation was always accepted. To overlook the sending of such an invitation, was regarded as a personal slight, and in one instance where it was overlooked, the man attended the funeral, (which was on a broiling hot day) not dressed in frock coat and bowler hat, but in his "monkey-jacket" black, whilst those of children are covered with white. The long black hat bands of the men have all but disappeared, whilst the black crepe veils of the women are never used, except it be

As a sequel to the story of Jimmy Hogarth's search for the gimlet, a relative has told me (since I wrote that story) that whilst it is true that Jimmy never talked whilst he worked, yet he worked hard whilst he talked. One fine evening he went to Ship Cove, to visit an old friend who was a well known talker on all occasions, they had not spent an evening together for a long time. So they talked, and talked till 12 o'clock; sometimes they talked one at a time and sometimes they talked both together. Then, although it was time for Jimmy to start for home, they had not half finished their talk. The friend decided to accompany Jimmy part of the way home, and to finish their talk on the road. So they walked MOTHER naturally thinks of the possibilities of the fabric shrinking in the wash. It is therefore a relief to her to know that the fabric will not shrink or lose its charm if Lux is used for its cleansing.

Durability, charm of colour, quality of texture, the freshness of newness—these are preserved to all good fabrics washed with Lux. A packet of Lux—a bowl of warm water—and dainty hands can cleanse delightful fabrics in a delightfully easy manner.

The beautiful pure Lux flakes are whisked into a creamy, bubbly lather in an instant. Gently squeeze this cleansing foam through and through the soiled texture—then rinse in clean water and hang to dry. Lux cannot harm a silken thread, it comes rather than forces the dirt from the clothes.

ed and talked, and talked and walked, till they found themselves at Jimmy's front gate, with the story still unfinished. Then Jimmy suggested that he go back just a little way with his friend, and the first thing they knew was—they were both back to the friend's house again, at Ship Cove. There was no one to keep "tally" of the number of times they walked to and fro between North Side and Ship Cove; but it is said that they spent most of the night at it—and no one knows whether they talked, all they had to talk about or not. It is supposed they did not.

An old man of my boyhood days in Trinity, used to put the family molasses-keg on his shoulder once a fortnight, and take it down to Brookings to be filled. He would leave it with my father, who was the store-keeper, and whilst father was filling it, the old man would walk back to his house for the wheelbarrow to take the keg home in.

Finch, 1798. Samuel Finch, of Dartmouth, England, married to Elizabeth Percy, of Old Perlican.

Didham, 1795. Samuel Didham, of Devon, England, married to Elizabeth Busey, of Trinity.

Dr. Cross, of Brooklyn, was in town on Tuesday last. Glad to see him.

Mrs. Aubrey Crocker gave a birthday party on Saturday evening last.

Mr. Fred Morris paid a business visit to St. John's last week.

Miss Cecily Oakley and Mrs. and Miss Connolly were passengers by the Prospero for St. John's.

The wife of Mr. Allan Penney, of English Harbor, has presented him with triplets; all girls, and all doing well.

Miss Grant left last week for Twillingate, to spend the Summer with her sister Mrs. Hunt, at the Church of England Parsonage.

The evenings at Trinity have been exceptionally beautiful of late, and thoroughly enjoyed by all. Won't you come and enjoy them?

Miss Abbott, of Grand Falls, who has been staying at Garland Hotel, left by the "Malakoff" for Hillview, S. W. Arm, Random, to spend a few weeks with friends there.

Mrs. Lahey was a passenger by the Prospero to St. John's. She has gone to meet her husband, Capt. Lahey, who is now due at St. John's from a foreign port.

Several of our people are vying with each other in the use of lime on fences and outbuildings, and the results are healthful and respectable. Keep it up. It indicates loyalty and good taste.

Mr. Karl S. Trappell, Optician; Newfoundland's Eyesight Specialist, is in town (15th line) for a few days and may be consulted in the Guild Room of the Parish Hall. This is his first visit to Trinity, and he is registered at Garland Hotel. Glad to see him.

Glencove, one of the beauty spots of Trinity, is very beautiful this year. The water is cold for bathing just yet, but it will be all right soon. It will always be associated in our minds with Doctor and Mrs. Barlow who appreciated and enjoyed its beauties.

"Mayor" Crocker is making a decided improvement in connection with his property opposite the Mortuary Chapel. He has taken away the intricate and dangerous barbed wire fence, and is replacing it with a neat and artistic paling fence. When this is finished, and given a coat of lime, the property will look as though it belonged to somebody.

Mr. Walter Bugden, of Petley, came to Trinity from Catalina on Sunday last. He had then visited and officially inspected the Church of England Schools in Bonavista Bay and Catalina, and he has now done the same in connection with the Church Schools in Trinity Bight. He registered at Garland Hotel, and his old friends were glad to see him.

Rev. Canon Field has been spending a quiet and enjoyable holiday in the parish of Trinity East, as the welcome guest of old friends—Dr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald. Canon Field gave many years of hard and unselfish service in this parish, which—extended from Freshwater to English Harbor; and all are glad to see him again in his midst.

Will the person who sent me a copy of Services, etc. of Trinity Church, Boston, from Hotel Oxford, Copley Square, Boston, and signed, "From an Evening Telegram Reader" kindly accept my thanks for the same. Reading between the lines, I conclude that he is a reader of my Trinity Notes. He is but one of many who have been kind enough to assure me of their appreciation of my efforts to keep Trinity in the limelight, and I am thereby encouraged, and I am grateful. Won't you kindly drop me a card, and reveal your identity?

Trinity, June 18th. —W.J.L.

PYORRHEA.

Pyorrhoea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, yet one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition. It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy.
