Local and Other Items.

CHEAP SALE.—We call attention to the advt. of Mr. P. C. Allan's cheap sale.

ERIN AND THE BRENNANS.—As will be observed from advertisement in another column, Mr. and Mrs. Brennan give two entertainments here in the Town Hall on Friday and Saturday next week. Mr. and Mrs. Brennan have gained golden opinions for themselves and their entertainment by all who have heard them, and we doubt not that they will be gladly welcomed to Guelph and treated to bumper toasts.

LARGENT.—On Tuesday last a young man, named John McGillicuddy, was brought to jail by constable Fraser, for stealing about forty dollars from Smith & McEwen, Lowville. He was arrested in Oakville and committed by the Mayor and Mr. Balmer for trial. Five years ago McGillicuddy was tried before the late Judge Davis here, for burning his father's barn in Nelson, and sent to the Reformatory at Penitentiary for five years, from which place he has lately come.—Milton Champion.

MAN TORN TO PIECES IN A THRESHING MACHINE.—A most horrifying and sickening accident occurred, on Monday last, on the farm of Mr. George Mitchell, proprietor of the Dog's Nest tavern, in the township of Woodhouse. Mr. Mitchell had a threshing machine at work in one of his fields, threshing wheat, when a poor, simple man, who went by the name of "Crazy Altek" (real name, Alexander McCannan) met with a most horrid death. He was passing over the machine while it was in motion, and fell into the thrasher, which tore one of his legs off and his bowels out. Strong men fainted at the sickening sight, and every present was horrified. When all the people learn to do away with the use of whiskey?

Base Ball Notes, The Athletics, of Elora, are coming down to Guelph on Monday to play their return match with the Union. Through some misunderstanding a ground could not be settled upon until last evening, when it was decided to play upon the Cricket Ground, near Goldie's Mills. Ball to bat sharp at 2 p.m. Now that a good ground has been secured we hope to see a match which scores their admission in Elora a few weeks ago. No admission fee. Visitors welcome.

A match is in progress this afternoon between the employees of Armstrong's and Parker's Carriage Works.

The Independents play their return match with the 2nd line of the Union next Thursday afternoon.

Lennox Election, MR. CARTWRIGHT'S MAJORITY 660. The following are the majorities as far as heard from:

Amherst Island, 80
Ernestown, 334
Bath, 15
Richmond, 127
St. Fredericksburg, 57
Napanee, 66
Napanee, 19

Majority for Cartwright, 660, with Adolphus yet to hear from.

Lincoln Election, MR. MERRITT, MCKEOWN, St. Catharines, 474
Grantham, 202
Port Dalhousie, 56
Louth, 123
Grimsby, 154

Majority for Merritt, 574.

Hon. Mr. Langevin Elected, Mr. Langevin has been returned by a majority of 328.

Railway Rings, What has Sir Francis Hincks to say to the people of this Riding, and to the people of this Riding, and if elected would give them satisfaction. He hoped they would give him a large majority.

Hon. Mr. McKellar was nominated by Mr. Robert Hay, seconded by Mr. McMullen.

Dr. Mandley was nominated by Mr. A. Hunt, seconded by Mr. Harper.

Mr. Chadwick was nominated by Mr. J. M. Fraser, seconded by Captain Thompson.

Mr. Charles Clark was nominated by Mr. Sheppard, seconded by Mr. Goodall.

Mr. J. M. Fraser was nominated by Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Chadwick.

Mr. McKim was nominated by Mr. McMullen, seconded by Mr. O'Callaghan.

Mr. A. Hunt was nominated by Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Rathwell.

This closed the nominations. Mr. Drew then came forward and was received with mingled cheers and groans.

After remarking that he has been called on first to speak gave his opponent the advantage of replying to him, he referred to the statement Mr. Robertson had made, that he was sailing under false colours.

He would appeal to every elector that his colours were the same as those he displayed five years ago, and that he had given no uncertain sound. He went to Ottawa a supporter of the Government. There were no political issues then, Confederation was but on paper, and he reserved the right to vote as circumstances guided him. He had given the Government his hearty support to carry out Confederation. He occupied the same position to-day, and if again elected he would continue to give the Government a warm and hearty support. He would give a few reasons why he thus accorded his support to the Government, and would briefly review the legislation of the past five years. The first great difficulty the Government had to deal with was the trouble between Nova Scotia in 1867, when its members came to Ottawa opposed to Confederation, and determined if possible to sever the connection if not by fair means by violence. It is true there was a difference of opinion in regard to the mode of settling this matter, and whether the B. N. American Act could be amended by our Legislature, or had to be done by the Imperial Parliament. But as to the means there was no difference of opinion. Something had to be done to allay the feeling, and the Government by granting that Province an increased subsidy had allayed that feeling and there was now peace and harmony. He then

THE NOMINATION AT ARTHUR.

The nomination for the North Riding of Wellington took place at Arthur Village on Friday, shortly after 12 o'clock. The hustings were erected at the side of the Drill Shed. About five hundred of the electors were present, all parts of the Riding being well represented. The Returning Officer, John Anderson, Esq., Registrar for the North Riding, began the proceedings by causing the proclamation for the nomination, and the writ for holding the election to be read, after which he intimated that he was ready to receive nominations.

Dr. Mandley, of Maryboro, came forward and said he had great pleasure in nominating his old friend G. A. Drew. He was a tried man, and for whom he was assured they would work and place him at the head of the poll. He then went into a review of the political record of the last five years, defended the course the Government and Mr. Drew had pursued in connection with the Intercolonial Railway, and speaking in defense of the route adopted declared that Mr. Mackenzie was at first in favour of it. If there was any blame to be attached in this matter the Reformers had to share it with the Conservatives. He maintained that road, now nearly completed, the Parliament had been unable to detect the slightest corruption. He then went into a lengthy defence of the Washington Treaty, and maintained that it has and will continue to bring peace and prosperity to Canada. He also accused the Government of giving the additional subsidy to Nova Scotia, and considered that the outrage done to the constitution was palliated by the necessity for conciliating that Province. Then he gave the Government credit for deepening the canals, building railroads, erecting light-houses, and other great things which justified the Government in the course they had pursued in regard to the Pacific Railway, and prophesied that when that road was built John A. Macdonald would out of our great territory in the West side off half a dozen more provinces, when Ontario would maintain the balance of power, and Toronto become the metropolis of the Confederated Provinces. He thought they could do better than send a man like Mr. Drew to represent them, who had no one to stick into the Local Government. We had he said one missionary here to-day (referring to Hon. Mr. McKellar) whom he charged with having got a registration for his son who was at the time under age. He also accused the Local Government of corrupting members, went into a long tirade about the Government failing to give the county a share of the surplus in consideration of the bonuses granted by the municipalities for the construction of railroads, referred to course to the Protection, and then finished the speech by Mr. Robert Gordon of Arthur, seconded the nomination, and hoped they would give Mr. Drew a "wapping" majority.

Mr. Samuel Robertson of Hollis, said he had appeared before the electors 18 months ago to nominate a gentleman for the Local House who was victorious at the election, and he appeared to nominate another gentleman, who he was assured would also be victorious. (Cheers.) He had great pleasure in nominating Col. Higginbotham, who he called under no false colours, who told them plainly what he would do, and who if elected would perform what he promised. Such was not the case with their old representative. He came before them at last election begging for fair play and a fair trial and he had got it. But what was the result? The legislation in which he was concerned was not calculated to benefit the country, and Mr. Drew taking no thought of that had simply voted to maintain the Government in power. On these grounds it was the duty of every lover of his country to oppose Mr. Drew, and on the polling day he trusted they would roll up a handsome majority for Higginbotham as they had done for McKim. (Cheers.)

Mr. William Stevenson, Reeve of Arthur, seconded the nomination. Col. Higginbotham was well known to the people of this Riding, and if elected would give them satisfaction. He hoped they would give him a large majority.

Hon. Mr. McKellar was nominated by Mr. Robert Hay, seconded by Mr. McMullen.

us as to them, and we had as good a right to foster and protect them as they had. The Dominion Parliament was quite free to vote on the question of the Treaty and should have an independent vote. We had got nothing in return for the fisheries and when Sir John Macdonald returned from Washington he was denounced by the Conservative and Reform press alike; but to save his reputation the Parliament of Canada went back and swallowed the Treaty. What have we now to give in return for these benefits we have had over to the Americans? Nothing, whatever, but the free navigation of Lake Michigan and the St. Clair Flats Canal, which was built on our own territory. (Cheers.) With regard to the admission of British Columbia, the people of that Province proposed a fair and honourable contract, but the Dominion Government exceeded their authority, and entered into an agreement which was unfair to us, for they gave more than was asked. They did not ask that the Pacific Railway should be built in ten years, only that a million dollars a year should be expended in its construction. Now it had not yet been established that that road was practicable, hundreds of miles of the proposed route had not yet been surveyed. A great portion of the land along the route was not fit for farming and never would be. Independent of all that the road would have to be built at a great sacrifice to the country, for it was the sheerest folly to say, as Mr. Drew did, that the purchase money of the land would, along with the thirty millions of money, pay for its construction. British Columbia had also been giving an unfair advantage in the subsidy granted her, for that was paid on the strength of 60,000 of a population, while she had only 11,000. Besides did she not get $100,000 a year as recompense for her lands given up along the route of the Pacific Railway. He had said that the great principle of representation by population promised us at Confederation had been violated in giving a larger representation to British Columbia than she was entitled to, and the same was true of Manitoba. The constitution had also been grossly violated in the case of Nova Scotia. In 1867 the Tories denounced as traitors Mr. Howe and others, and afterwards gave them office, and silenced their opposition. And yet they tell us that they are the party of purity. Returning to the Pacific Railway he said that the Government showed themselves in their true colours, that they had no wish to encourage immigration when they voted against the motion to allow settlers to locate free on the Pacific Railway lands. One would have supposed that this would have been a wise and judicious step on the part of the Government, but they opposed it, and Mr. Drew voted with them. (Cheers.) The power that the Government had obtained from Parliament in the construction of this road would be used for the most vile purposes in forming legislative rings and companies, who would make a handsome thing out of the contracts. It was necessary that members of Parliament should be free from Government influence, should be thoroughly independent, free to vote as their conscience warrants them. How could they be so when surrounded by such influences as he had mentioned, and directly interested in large undertakings involving immense sums of money? (Cheers.) Mr. Drew had tried some of his clumsy jokes, Mr. McKellar and the Government of which he was a member. But he could not joke away the fact that the Local Government were the best this country ever had (Cheers), and had done more for this Province in the few months they were in power than the previous Government had done during the four years of their existence. (Hear and cheers.) Here was a Government which had a surplus of nearly five millions. Mr. Drew had tried to insinuate that the gentleman who was present valuing lands in the North Riding was trying to influence votes. He did not believe there was the slightest foundation for this, and he for one would rather return home contentedly at the foot of the poll than that any man should be influenced one hairbreadth in his favour contrary to his conscience. (Great cheering.) He would leave to Mr. McKellar and Mr. McKim the task of explaining these local matters and defending the Government, and he hoped they would give them a quiet hearing. It was not the Ontario Government which was now on its trial but was unable to defend his own course in the Dominion Parliament. With regard to his position he felt the same difficulty every new man did until questions would arise. But he had said enough to indicate that he had no sympathy with the present Government. He had been accused of being a Conservative. He had it is true been brought up in the very hotbed of Conservatism, in the old country, but by the time he was qualified to give a vote in North Riding Nomination.

The nomination for the North Riding at Arthur on Friday passed off very quietly. With the exception of a few interruptions from some of the over zealous supporters of Mr. Drew, all the speakers had a pretty fair hearing, and the electors displayed great patience in waiting the four hours during which the speaking lasted. It was evident from the demonstration in the crowd that the majority were in favour of Mr. Higginbotham, who made an excellent and well-arranged speech, and made a very favourable impression on the audience. Mr. Drew's defence of the Dominion Government was even in the estimation of the Conservatives present, a very lame one, and his attacks on the Local Government entirely uncalculated. But he was ably met by Mr. McKellar, who completely turned the tables on Mr. Drew, and gave him such a roasting as he will not forget for some time. Mr. McKellar triumphantly vindicated the Government from the charges brought against them in connection with the distribution of the subsidy, and gave the electors every assurance that justice would be done all the municipalities in the distribution of the surplus yet remaining. This had an evident effect on the electors, who believed the open and honest statements of the Minister of Agriculture, rather than the clap-trap of Mr. Drew and his supporters. Dr. Maudsley also got a terrible cutting up from Mr. McKellar, who laid the lash on the luckless doctor without mercy, to the infinite amusement of the crowd. On the whole, the Reform cause in the North Riding was never more hopeful than now, and the favorable impression made by Mr. Higginbotham and his friends at the nomination has helped greatly to make it stronger and more popular.

The "One Thing Needful."

An admirable family and Sabbath-school-book, and a fit companion for every one's study is Kitto's Illustrated History of the Bible. Deeply interesting and instructive in the subject in which it treats, and abounding in striking pictorial illustrations, it should be in every household, to assist parents in the study of the Bible, and also to teach the knowledge of it to their children. Sabbath-school teachers will find it an excellent help in preparing themselves to meet their classes in the most interesting and instructive manner; and all who desire to enrich their minds and hearts with the treasures of God's Word will find this volume of inestimable value to them. The work contains an historic and literary introduction, a connected account of the events recorded in the Bible, a narrative of the events occurring between the writing of the Old Testament and the New, and a life of Christ and his apostles. All these things are not only useful, but absolutely necessary for the information of ministers and Sunday-school officers. The book is small, but every intelligent Christian or reader of the Bible, ought to possess a copy of this book, to be kept on the shelf with the Word of God. Not only are the facts all presented continuously and in their legitimate connection, but light is often shed upon difficult passages, and lessons of the highest wisdom made palpable, which would otherwise have been overlooked. The plan of the work is in itself a recommendation. The narrative is enriched by critical and explanatory notes, carefully selected from the results of long years of severe and intelligent labor. The notes are necessarily brief, but they happily meet the wants of the general reader, who cannot find the time to wade through a wilderness of commentaries, and indeed in many cases sufficient for the more critical student. For the preparation of this part of the work the eminent author was peculiarly well qualified. He brought to the illustration of the Sacred Scriptures a living knowledge of Eastern manners, traditions, geography and natural history, acquired during many years of travel in the Holy Land and adjacent countries. To the knowledge acquired during these original researches, was added the fruit of a quarter of a century spent in the most careful study. It is said of him that he was in the habit of going several miles to the British Museum, in the reading room of which he spent six hours a day consulting rare and expensive books; and usually when laboring in his own study he devoted sixteen hours a day to the preparations of his publications. As the result of such research, such experience, and such labors, the contributions made by Dr. Kitto to biblical literature has been of the greatest value—the crown of all being the History of the Bible now under consideration. It is emphatically, and in the best sense of the term, a popular book. It will make every family where it is read, wiser and better. It interferes with the sectarian prejudices of no man; for it is not a commentary on doctrinal points, but a plain, clear, and connected narrative from the point where the Bible commences down to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, A. D. 38. If we take any single character in the Bible—David as a striking example—we shall find all the events of his life grouped and connected with the vividness of a picture.

The work cannot be too strongly recommended to all who would become familiar with Bible history, for their own improvement, or for the purpose of communicating the same to others.

BY TELEGRAPH THIS MORNING'S DESPACHES Livingstone's Letters Doubtful.

Large Fire in Elmira. United States Elections.

North Carolina gone Democratic The Geneva Arbitrators.

Paris, Aug. 2.—The Letemps is inclined to doubt the authority of the Livingstone letters published by Stanley. It quotes the opinion of the German geographer, Kipert, who discovered various geographical blunders in the letters. He thinks that part of the letters was invented by Stanley, and hence the whole is valueless, and hints it is possible that Stanley never saw Dr. Livingstone.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The fire to-day at Addison, N. Y., destroyed the Union Block. Loss, $50,000.

Utica, Aug. 2.—President Grant left here to-day for Watertown, where he had a fine reception. He will return to Washington next Friday.

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 2.—The election returns come in slowly, but enough information is to hand to safely claim the election for Merriman (a Democrat) for Governor by from 4,000 to 6,000 of a majority. Democratic Congressmen are elected in the 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th districts. The Legislature will be largely Democratic on the joint ballot.

A Washington despatch says that great secrecy is maintained by the State Department upon everything done by the Geneva Arbitrators. None of the proceedings are to be made public until the final adjournment. The several meetings have been harmonious so far. It is known that the British Government expected, after the indirect claims were disposed of, to obtain acquittance of all responsibility, for a decision in the Florida case afforded an opportunity to estimate the extent of Great Britain's pecuniary liability. It is thought that about twelve and a-half millions will be the extreme limit of such liability. Indications are that a sum in gross will be awarded in settlement of all claims.

London, Aug. 2.—The total number of emigrants who sailed from Liverpool for America during the month of July was 17,000.

VERY NATURAL.—When a person has proved an article and found it good, and answering the purpose for which it is intended, he will not readily abandon it for one of doubtful reputation, or concerning which he knows nothing. We are led to make these remarks owing to the course always pursued by those who have used that celebrated and truly valuable horse medicine known as "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy."

All are so well-pleased with it that they will not use any other; many have waited several weeks until the agent could obtain a new supply. There is nothing equal to it as a condition medicine, or for any complaint affecting the wind of horses. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

HAVE YOU TRIED IT?—If not, don't delay another moment, but get a bottle of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." It is far ahead of any other medicine, and was never known to fail. All aches are immediately and permanently removed by it, and the price places it within the reach of all. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

GREAT CREDIT SALE Farms, Farm Stock and Implements, &c., &c., &c.

Will be sold by public auction, On Monday, Sept. 2nd, 1872

The hair is not only one of the accessories of human beauty, but is designed to protect the health; as a bad conductor of heat it serves to equalize the temperature of the brain. The nerve contained in the hair tube is frequently paralyzed and the coloring destroyed; but by proper remedies the gray hair can be restored to its original color, and where it has fallen off a new growth can be produced by the use of Hall's Vegetable Sillian Renewer. The reproducing power of this invaluable compound is beyond doubt. By its use the absorbents become active and nourish the bulb which supports the roots of the hair.

VERY HARD TO KILL.—That people survived the depleting lanceet, the drastic purge, and the terrible salivants of 50 years ago, is proof that they are hard to kill. The motto of modern medicine is "PREVENT AND REGULATE, NOT DESTROY," and no remedy of our day is so entirely in harmony with this philanthropic as Dr. DEPEW'S MEDICAL VIGOR. In this powerful yet harmless vegetable restorative, dyspepsia, bilious complaints, and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and nerves, neounter an irresistible antidote.

An Address to a Shell.

Beautiful shell
Of the ocean, tell
When the wild waves madly rave,
Do the silent dead,
In their lonely bed,
Sleep calm with the surging wave?
Have the winds a power,
In their angry hour,
To mar the tranquil sleep
Of those that rest
On the lonely breast,
Of the terrible, restless deep?
Beautiful shell
Of the ocean, tell
Do the sea-weeds kindly creep?
And round forms cold
Do they gently sleep?
And shelter them in their sleep?
To graves thou'at been
Which no eye has seen—
Where no tear was ever shed—
Alone weeps afar,
O'er the graves of our holy dead.
Beautiful shell
Of the ocean, tell
In thy wanderings 'neath the wave,
Didst thou e'er rest
On my lost one's breast?
Dost thou know his lonely grave?
I stray o'er and o'er
By the wild sea-shore,
And watch the waves ebb and flow;
Yet they will not tell,
Though they know so well,
But murmur on soft and low.
Beautiful shell
Of the ocean, tell
Are my night-dreams all true,
When every wail
Bears a mournful tale—
A terrible scene to view?
I shudder and start,
With aching heart,
And I cannot, cannot sleep,
For every breath
Seems carrying death
To those on the great, great deep.
Beautiful shell
Will thou never tell—
N'er lighten my load of woe?
O say, did he die
When the storm was high,
And waves tossed to and fro?
Was his soul o'ercast
When the billows passed
So heavily over his lonely grave?
Oh, beautiful shell,
Break the silent spell!
Where sleepeth my lost one now?
Beautiful shell
Will thou never tell?
Has thou yet no voice for me?
Why ever alone,
Comes that sad moan—
That sighing of the sea?
While the world slept,
I have watched and wept
By the side of the whispering sea?
But not wave or shell
Will ever tell—
They have no voice for me.

CHAPTER XI.
MILLEY'S REVELATIONS, AND WHAT THEY LED TO.

The effect did not fall short of his expectation. At the sight of Milley, Nathan and Rangoon sprang to their feet in consternation, and stood there paralysed and motionless, except that Nathan's lower jaw fell and his face grew ghastly in its glare.
"You infamous wretches!" hissed Stephen and his eyes seemed absolutely to blaze with fire.

Strangely enough the sound of his voice—hoarse and wonderful though it was —broke the spell of consternation which held Nathan in its power, and drawing a long breath, his rigid frame relaxed and self-possession returned to him.

"You've done that uncommonly well Captain Stephen Gibson," he said with amazing audacity. "Well the game is up, so far: as to how far, that remains to be learned."

"The game, as you call it, is wholly up said Stephen. "All that remains is your punishment and that of your accomplices. Be sure it will be commensurate with your crime."

"Oh, we'll come to that presently.
What I want to know is—Who has heard the girl's story besides yourself?"

"No one. But what of that? By the merest chance I was accosted by her in her search for Ardgowan—"

"No one; you are sure of that?" said
Nathan, cutting him short without ceremony.

"No one, I tell you; but, in informing me, she informed the one man whom it most concerned to know. You can't but understand that?"

"Well, perhaps I understand something different from that," returned Nathan, with a sinister look. "Put the girl into yonder bedroom for a minute, and mayhap we shall come to some agreement."

"Come to an agreement!" thundered Stephen. "Do you expect for a moment that I shall hold parley with a scoundrel of your stamp? No, sir. Expect no mercy, no forbearance, no—"

"In a word," interrupted Nathan. "I expect nothing from the generosity of Captain Stephen Gibson; but I expect something from his prudence. If then, you will do as I say—"

"I shall not, roared Stephen. "In this very room you consummated your treachery and fraud by ordering me from the place and now I not only expel you, but hand you and your worthy accomplice over to justice."

"Just so," rejoined Garret, with great coolness. "And the moment you do so you may bid farewell to all chance of fingerling a farthing of the rents of Ard-gowan."

Stephen stood motionless, and stared at him bewildered.

"Ay," went on Nathan, "you had better listen to me. Though Rangoon and I walk out of this to-night, you are not a bit nearer to walking in."

"Ha!" cried Stephen, derisively. "How would you make that out? Am I not the next heir to the estate?"

Nathan Garret took two steps forward till his face almost touched that of Stephen. Then opening his lips, he said in emphatic accents—
"No."

"No!" echoed Stephen. "What further have you hatched. But think not to dupe me again; my eyes are open now."

"It is no lie I have to tell you now.
It is the truth. Do as you say, and your chance of benefit from Ardgowan is gone.
Listen to me, and your interest will be served."

"I do listen," said Stephen grimly.
"Put the girl out of earshot."
The door of the bed-closet stood open, and Stephen led Milley into it, closed the door, and returned.

Then Nathan told him that which blanched his cheek, and made him stagger helpless into a chair. The factor had not boasted too much when he said that Stephen Gibson would be glad he had listened to him.

EQUITABLE
Life Assurance Society,

No. 120, Broadway, New York.

Wm. C. Alexander, President.
Henry B. Hyde, Vice-President

Net cash assets, 1st Feb. 1872 $18,000,000
Annual Income 8,000,000
Total paid policy-holders, 1871 3,459,340.37
Surplus, 1871 1,700,000
New Business sum assured 1871, $41,804,027.00

The Largest of any Company in the World.

This Society has led the van in the Insurance world for many years; it has introduced more improvements and given greater impetus to the business than any Life Company in the United States, and is deserving in this respect of the praise and gratitude of the community.

There are many reasons for selecting the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

1st—No company has such large annual transactions, thereby infusing into its business a constant accession of fresh and selected lives which is one of the greatest elements of strength.

2nd—Liberality in dealing with all claims; observing at the same time, a due regard to the interests of its present large body of policy-holders by a firm resistance to any attempt at imposition.

3rd—Perfect organization in every department, which renders official information easily attainable and secures a complete administration of its affairs.

4th—Being one of the most progressive institutions of its kind in the world, it is ever prepared to seize at once upon all the improvements in the business that science can suggest.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society issues every recognized form of policy, and especially the

TONTINE SAVINGS FUND INSURANCE which the Company introduced. This new plan has become very popular, as equalizing among all who are insured under it the advantages which arise from the profits of the business, without in any respect infringing upon the normal results for which Life Insurance was first instituted.

The EQUITABLE feels that it has the strongest claims upon public confidence.
Under the management that distinguishes it and the principles by which it is guided, perfect security is given for the future, than which no greater inducement can be held out to all who wish to insure their lives.

Further information regarding the different kinds of Policies issued by the Society can readily be obtained at
