Call attention of Seed in Denmark.

INFLUENCE OF SEED-BORING THE VALUE OF SELECTION.

Department of Agriculture, Copenhagen, Aug. 18.

In "The Nature," a French periodical, Prof. Albert Maunon has an interesting article on the subject of the effect of seed on the yield of crops.

The production of selected seed is a subject of the highest importance to the farmer who has a speciality in seed raising.

It is well known that the value of the seed is not only in the quantity but in the quality.

The selection of seed is a process which requires the most careful attention.

The Danish seed-raising industry has reached a high state of perfection.

The Reading Cure

BOOKS AS A MEDICINE IN CASES OF MENTAL DISTRESS.

One could wish that the doctor of medicine occasionally called in the doctor of letters in cases of mental distress.

The word disease signifies the negation of nature, and most forms of neuritic sickness are a deliberate effort on the part of the invalid to make himself unwell.

It is not true that Poe declines to borrow from my books because of sorrow.

The world is overwhelmingly against him. Good reading is a forgetfulness of care, and by the same token, an education in all those qualities which make life sweet and greatly to be desired.

It is the valetudinarian who most constantly tells one, petulantly enough, that he never reads books.—London Globe.

Chelera Infantum.

This has long been regarded as one of the most fatal and fatal diseases to which infants are subject.

Be Kind.

The little that I have seen of the world, and the little that I have learned, teaches me to look upon my errors in sorrow, not in anger.

Kitchener Range

A Good Baker

The oven in the Kitchener Range is scientifically proportioned to the size of the fire-box so that no more fuel can be burned than is absolutely necessary to heat the oven.

The oven is lined with heavy sheet steel, which is a great radiator of heat and insures a uniform heat throughout the oven.

The Kitchener range is built on scientific principles throughout, and should be carefully examined before buying any other.

Sold by all enterprising dealers. Booklet free.

The Household.

TO KEEP GOWNS LOOKING WELL.

Many a girl living in the city where suburbs and lockers are none too many and who has but three shallow drawers wherein to deposit her many belongings, is often driven to the verge of despair when summer comes, bringing in its train many pretty fluffy shirt waists, gowns and skirts which are easily misused and crumpled in close quarters, to say nothing of other articles of lingerie which must find a home somewhere.

A young woman who found herself confronted by this dilemma has utilized an old wooden packing case about five feet in length and two in width.

First she smoothed down the rough places inside and out, with sandpaper, then she screwed four castors into the bottom and lightened up the hinges that held on the lid.

Then she varied it inside and out, so as to make it air tight and covered it with a pretty bit of chintz, with a flowering pattern of roses and foliage.

Next she did not attempt to send in various compartments. Six or eight little flat bags, tacked on the right side of the cover, were for slippers, socks, hosiery, fancy stockings, fancy shoes and stockings and such paraphernalia.

At one end was a place where hats could hang at peace and in safety. All the lower part was reserved for dresses and bodices, a series of tapes being drawn across from one side to the other to form impromptu trays.

This box forms a sort of couch, which rests at the foot of the maker's little white iron bedstead, with chintz covered cushions piled at the head.

Not only is it decorative in the pretty bedroom, but it is a constant satisfaction in summer to the young woman who originated it.

ABOUT GIFTS.

If you feel under obligations to a friend who is blessed with an abundance of everything within your power to give, do not attempt to send a pretentious gift, which she will not use, and which may be inferior to her other possessions.

Choose the better way and send a bunch of perfect flowers as a birthday gift—flowers are always in good taste and acceptable to rich and poor alike.

Why not send her a generous box of fancy lilies? She will be delighted with the loving thoughtfulness of the gift which will express in a dainty manner, Get some fine sprays of maidenhair ferns from the florist, a fox and a few sheets of white waxed paper. Lay the lilies in loosely over the ferns, wrap the box neatly and tie with many colored satin ribbons, and send by a messenger.

Take fresh strained cucumber juice, half five minutes, and for every five drops of juice add pulverized boxes, 175 grains; acetate of soda, 90 grains; tincture of quilla, 25 ounces; tincture of benzoin, 4 drams; rose water, 1 pint. Mix thoroughly and apply two or three times a day until the stain is removed.

SPICED BEEF.

Put a shank of beef in a little water with milk merely cover it. Cook till meat falls from the bone. Chop very fine, spice with ground cloves, pepper, salt and summer savory. Add sufficient of the liquor in which it was boiled to moisten well, press into moulds, and when cold slice.

Jokers Corner.

VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

When Mrs. Jones, who lives in the suburbs, goes to town, she invariably carries her umbrella with her, so that she may be prepared for any kind of weather.

One day, however, she was about to start for the city on a shopping expedition, she found that her umbrella had a rib broken, whereupon she collected several other umbrellas hanging in her parlour, and in all, taking them with her on the train, left them with an umbrella mender near the station while she proceeded to do her shopping.

As she was going away from a counter in one of the large shops she picked up an umbrella which was lying near, and was about to walk off with it when the rightful owner stopped her.

"Pardon me," said the woman; "I think you have my umbrella."

Naturally, Mrs. Jones was much embarrassed. She explained as best she could that she had actually carried an umbrella, she must have appropriated that one from force of habit.

Several hours afterwards Mrs. Jones located the train for her home, carrying the bunch of mended umbrellas which she had left with the umbrella repairer that morning. Scarcely had she taken her seat in the car when she recognized directly opposite her the woman of the umbrella episode in the shop. The woman also recognized her, leaning towards Mrs. Jones, she said sweetly:

"You have made quite a haul to-day, haven't you?"

"Blamed the angels,"

George is four years old and has just arrived at the dignity of his first birthday with suspenders, just like papa wears. They were the pride of his heart, and at night he would take them to his trousers and clasp them tight in his arms when he went to bed. His mother found them there the other night, and as she seemed to be making the little chap uncomfortable she took them away and laid them on a chair by his bed.

The next morning he had a long interview with his mother.

"Did you put my suspenders on?" he said, "that angels watched everything I did?"

"Yes, George."

"Are they watching me while I sleep?"

"Yes, my son, they watch over you always, whatever you are doing."

"Do they come right into my room at night?"

"Yes, dear; the good angels are everywhere, always."

"Then," said George, meditatively, "I let them watch me when I'm asleep?"
