Men! Can You and Do You Swim?

Most people spend their holidays near one of the many lakes and rivers for which this province is famous. Therefore if you can't swim, you're missing half the joy of holidaying. Those who can't swim must stay in near the shore; while the "crowd" plunges out into the deeper regions, racing to the diving board or buoy, here to spend most of the swimming period diving and rollicking, while those who can't or don't swim watch in envy from the shore. Then there's canoeing and sailing. You never feel quite at home in either of these craft if you can't swim, while as for racing in them at a regatta where "tipping" is usual, it's practically impossible.

Perhaps the boy feels this more keenly---that's why he is so anxious to learn to swim. We make it easy as far as the bathing costume is concerned. In the men's wear department on the main floor, you find a very complete stock---one-piece, two-piece, athletic, men's or boys'. Wherever you're going to swim this season---in tank, fashionable beach or lonely back woods lake---one of these suits will "fill the bill."

ENLARGEMENT MADE IN HABEAS CORPUS

Sixty-Nine Applications for Writs on Behalf of Draftees Held Over.

AWAITING GREY CASE

Understood That Men Will Not Be Moved in Meantime.

Intimating that they should not go overseas in the meantime, Sir William Mackenzie yesterday morning, at Osgoode Hall, enlarged for one week the sixty-nine applications for writs of habeas corpus in connection with the operation of the M.S.A. The following additional applications were filed by Gordon Waldron: Bertram Moor Elliott, Euphemia Township; Donald McCallum, Lambton County; Howard Wood, King Township; and Joseph Forster, Toronto, the latter claiming that as the 100,000 men to be recruited by the M.S.A. had already been obtained, the act had exhausted itself.

R. H. Parmenter asked, on behalf of the minister of justice, that the matter be allowed to stand over until the argument in the Supreme Court of Canada would be concluded, as he expected a decision would be given on Friday or Saturday. Objection to this was taken by Mr. Waldron, as he contended that the supreme court procedure, as reported by the press, was that no application was made by the government to Justice Anglin to hear the Grey case, and the justice referred it to the full court sitting as yesterday.

"There is no statutory authority for such a reference," declared Mr. Waldron, "and a reference to the supreme court today, in that way, would be a reference to persons who, in this matter, are not judges, and their judgment would not be binding." He added that, under the Ontario statute, a judge sitting as Sir William Mulock was to hear the case, and he hoped that the divisional court. "If my friend, acting for the minister of justice, can give the assurance that none of these men will be removed or prejudicially treated during the enlargement, then I have nothing more to say."

R. S. Colter, of Cayuga, who appeared for twenty-seven of the applicants during the past week to carry men away. Sir William asked him on what evidence he made that statement, and Mr. Colter read an affidavit made by the father of T. E. Hodgson, of Vaughan Township, in which he stated that he had received a letter from his son at Belleville on Monday, July 15, stating he was on the road to Montreal with a draft for overseas, although notice had been served on the commanding his son's battalion, on Thursday, July 11.

"It is not right that the military authorities should take these men away pending this decision," said Sir William, and asked Mr. Parmenter if he was prepared to give an undertaking, as four longish forces me to give, nothing will be done until the supreme court disposes of the Grey case," answered Mr. Parmenter.

AVIATOR INSTRUCTOR ESCORTED TO GRAVE

It was held from his parents' residence to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The ministers in charge were Capt. Rev. Dr. Pidgeon of Bloor Street Presbyterian Church and Rev. C. W. Bishop.

Spectacular Raids to Cease on Ottawa's Orders, Says Mayor

In a statement to the press yesterday afternoon, the mayor declared that he had received word from Ottawa that spectacular raids by the Dominion police must cease. "There must be no repetition of the action which took place some time ago, when 5,000 people returning from the ball grounds were stopped by the Dominion police." The mayor further stated that the same results could be obtained from other methods.

COMMISSIONER REPORTS ON MILITARY RECORDS

Commissioner Bradshaw yesterday made a report to the board of control on the various city properties occupied by the military authorities. He quoted from a letter received by him from the department of militia affairs, in part: "The assumption by the city that the department is paying for similar services in other cities is well founded. The department has 30 other cities and towns where the grounds have been occupied rent free. The department further stated that the camping areas in other cities are made of the cost of occupation prohibitive. It has always been found necessary to take out at the start of the camping season in other cities when the troops evacuate they are compelled to restore these fittings. Having all these things in mind it is not judicious to hope that permanent buildings elsewhere, where it would not be necessary to dismantle them every year. The letter proceeds to state that the city of Toronto will not be embarrassed by the department by bringing up as a precedent the question of rental, as it would mean a tremendous cut in the part of the government should rentals be paid and all cities treated alike and it is felt that the City of Toronto has always been generously dealt with, as large numbers of troops have always been stationed there."

Bradshaw says: "In view of the foregoing and the fact that up to the present the city has charged no rental, it would appear as tho the city should continue the present arrangement with the military authorities." Mr. Bradshaw, however, thinks that rent should be collected from the following halls at present being used by the military: St. Lawrence Hall, St. Paul's Hall, and West Toronto.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR WOMEN'S DAY

Representatives of Various Organizations Agree to Exhibition Proposal.

At a meeting of a large number of women representing various organizations in the city of Toronto, held in the board of trade assembly hall yesterday afternoon, at the invitation of the National Exhibition board of directors, it was unanimously decided to have a special "Women's Day" at the great fair this year.

The intention of the Exhibition board is to set aside a day upon which the women will be able to show all those who visit the Exhibition on that particular day what the women of Toronto, and of Canada in general, as it was decided to make the event one of national importance, have done, particularly in the way of war and patriotic activities.

The mayor and Controller Maguire did not attend the meeting and Controller Robbins voted against the agreement being approved.

NATIONAL RAILWAYS IN CANADA.

A Wall Street Man Says Grand Trunk is Practically In, and That C.P.R. Shareholders Will Vote It In.

New York, July 18.—(Special)—A man prominent in Wall street and in touch with London has good reason for believing that the Canadian Mission to London to acquire the Grand Trunk to join up with the other national railways of the Dominion made substantial progress, and that a change in the control of the Grand Trunk will only be a matter of six weeks or less. He said he would not be surprised if the Canadian Pacific was also taken in on a guaranteed dividend basis, and that Sir George Bury of that system would become minister of railways in the Canadian Government. War conditions would force a consolidation of all the railways of Canada. As for the shareholders even those of the Grand Trunk would get something; as for Canadian Pacific, that stock would rise to a guarantee of 8 per cent. dividends. The shareholders of the C.P. are getting to realize that with the McAdoo scale of wages the competition of a consolidated Grand Trunk Northern and Intercolonial the tendency of C.P. prices would be downward rather than upward. Naturally the prices of shares would rise. The Wall Street man concluded by saying that the United States would never give up the Grand Trunk, and that Canada could not help but follow suit.

TORONTO RAILWAY COMPANY

Unfair Express Charges.
An association of the residents of the suburbs of Toronto has been formed to agitate for the same express charges and collection of packages as are accorded the older parts of the city. They have a good case. Taking over the roads by the government as in the States would bring a lower tariff, better delivery, better collection of parcels. One set of wagons would do all the work better than three. But till we get that let the citizens organize and ask their M.P.'s to join in the work.

Toronto's Population.
Our contemporaries are at last finding out that the population of Toronto is much greater than they have been estimating for some years past. Last night it was admitted that the present population is 512,000. If we add the 50,000 men and women who are overseas on account of the war and who will return when the war is over we shall have a little short of 600,000 for our peace conditions. It may seem to some that the amount of the population is of little importance, but it is really of the basic factors to be considered in dealing with the public welfare.

The whole question of transportation in the city was misrepresented a few years ago by underestimating the population. Questions of the city's area and extension depend upon correct figures. The death rate cannot be correctly compared with other places unless an accurate census is available. The present representation is based on population, and the credit of the city and its taxation per capita depend on population. We do not believe that the recent registration can be depended upon for absolute accuracy, and estimates based upon it must of course be accepted with reservation, but the indications are sufficiently clear to support our many contentions in the past on this point.

The returns from transportation tend to corroborate the estimates of population published last night. The steady growth in car-fare receipts is as good a guide as can be to the growth of the population. The outcry which has been steadily increasing in persistence for some time past regarding housing accommodation is the result of this growing population. Just at present many people are going to the country, farming, camping, on vacations and so forth, but by the first of September there will be such an outcry when the people in the country return to the city that all previous complaints will seem but mild protests.

The fact is Toronto is straitened in her bounds, and needs room to move in. Transportation is the big necessity and rapid transport at that. People who pool-pooled Mayor Hocken's tube scheme on the ground that the population was too small to support it, will one of these days be clamoring for it as the only means to save the city from ruin corruption. The failure to recognize the rapid growth of Toronto and its actual population has set the city back a number of years in its normal development. We shall have to be satisfied for some time to come with attempting to catch up on our shortcomings instead of being in the present position of ability to clean up the whole of the problems that will face us at the declaration of peace.

Germany's Allegation of Material Aims.

Nothing bigger in the way of a revolution has been brought about by the war than the change in Great Britain by which from depending almost entirely on imported food for her sustenance in the present year she will supply four-fifths of her own food from her own resources. This has been accomplished by nothing more than necessity. Immense areas have been put under cultivation that have been lying fallow for generations, and every hand that could plow or dig or take part in agricultural work of any kind has been pressed into service.

The German submarine threat has been responsible for the change to a very large degree, but even without this the necessity for releasing shipping tonnage for American supplies to France and other allies would have compelled the agricultural revival. In Ireland the farmers have benefited to an extraordinary extent, the exports to England being greater than from any other country. This is one of the reasons for the "recurrence" of the Irish on matters of "recurrence". Had times not been so good at home even the Sinn Feiners would have been willing to "take the shilling". It is a curious charge that the German philosophers bring against the British generally, that they are materialistic, worldly minded, lacking in ideals, commercial and shop-keeping in their instincts. Even if it were true the ideal of freedom to trade with one's neighbors, to live honestly even on commercial efforts, is not less worthy than the ideal of freedom to rob and plunder, to murder and ravish, to subordinate and enslave, which to the German is the noble alternative to commercialism.

It reminds one of the objection of a visiting aristocrat to the United States that there are no gentlemen on this side of the ocean. What are they? Was asked. Oh, was the reply, persons who do not work. There were plenty of these in America, it was stated, but they were called tramps. And this is what the German nation would be if her ideals were realized and every German became a Von. They would be a nation of tramps with the kaiser as the head tramp. They would tell not, neither would they spin, but would compel subject peoples to render these services. They would be a parasite nation on the rest of the world.

In this sense, perhaps, we are commercial or materially minded. We do not believe in parasites of any description. We believe in independence, but it must be the result of one's own effort. And all our commercialism is based on justice and honest dealing. The German may have a good deal of evolution to pass thru yet before he can rise to that level.

Germany will have to recognize that it is exactly these commercial virtues of honesty, freedom, fair dealing that enabled Britain to turn to the herculean task of the past four years and conquer it, even to turning her garden land into an intensive farm where wheat is raised producing 75 bushels an acre. As for the materialism of such a process, such an achievement, the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof, and while Britain and her allies understand, as we believe they do, that the earth is God's footstool, their aims and their lives may reach a less material goal than the kaiser has set himself.

General Foch's Pounce.

General Foch has the patience of a cat watching for a mouse. The German mouse was off its guard yesterday, and Foch pounced with notable results. At the time of writing it is impossible to say whether the action may develop into a first-class offensive. The possibilities of the situation are most encouraging, and if nothing else is done, the German offensive will be slowed up into a halt for another long pause.

It is not impossible that there may be a German retreat towards the Aisne. The American army corps which appears to have been maneuvered well fitted out, may be able to accomplish something special in the way of pursuit and we are satisfied that the mentality of the German troops is not now of a quality to maintain an effective rearguard action.

Should General Foch have sufficient reserves and the situation prove favorable, with the Germans retreating towards the Aisne, an ideal manoeuvre would be an attack in echelon, sector by sector, from the south to the north, from Soissons to Montdidier, from Montdidier to Albert, from Albert to Arras, from Arras to Lens, from Lens to Ypres; and such a manoeuvre would depend upon the success attained in each successive sector.

The day of such big things has probably not arrived yet, and the strategy of the allies is necessarily concerned with the weakening of Austria by the Albanian campaign, where it is said a million men of the allies are engaged. But the Germans know now that their time is past. They are the mouse, striving to outwit the cat, no longer in a position to compel retirements, nor to tie up the enemy in entrenched positions. Their "Friedensturm" is evidently going to be quite a different sort of tempest to what they expected, blowing entirely for them the wrong way.

A Line of Cheer
Each Day of the Year.

By John Kendrick Bangs.
FOREVER YOUNG.
"When I was young," I hear you say,
And that excites my laughter say,
For none is otherwise than so
If by the count of years we go.
What are men, three score years and ten?
Compared to things within our ken
Such as the tram and the trolley,
Where Samson smashed the Philistines?
The hills are old, and so's the sea,
And so's the fern of yore and the tree
That stretches back to Adam's day
Along a vast unending way.
But an eye that sees the truth
So short is life all life is youth,
And from the day when you and I
First came to be until we die
We've not sufficient days to hold
Enough of Time to make us old.

think it will about break the heart of this brave fellow when he receives the cable informing him that both are dead—yes, drowned in one of the most tragic incidents in the history of this city. No doubt his grief will be relieved somewhat by his pride when he learns how heroically his wife lost her life in trying to save the life of their dear little child. I need not dwell on this, "Greater love hath no man, etc."

First of all, allow me to pay my respects to Mayor Church, Mr. Maclean, M.P., and the few other notable gentlemen present, also the members of the different societies that so kindly attended the funeral, and sent such beautiful floral tributes. They, at least, will be happy in their own knowledge that they did their bit. I am sure the intense emotion displayed in that little church, when the Rev. Mr. Powell gave the hymn "Rest to My God to Thee," is a scene that will live in one's memory forever. All honor to those veterans who had to struggle and use their hands and feet before they could sing. I buried my best chum in South Africa, shot by my side, but never have I been nearer to breaking down than I look at that tiny coffin covered with a Union Jack, seemingly, even in death, still guarded by the spirit of that body in the largest of the world. No wonder Rev. Mr. Powell broke away from the rules of the church and delivered an oration. Surely if an event ever justified such a course, here was one.

As Sapper Layland is an Englishman, his dead wife also being English, my first criticism will concern the Sons of England and the St. George's Society. I am a member of the first named order and want to touch with all the primary lodges, and thru the press is my only opportunity.

Now, officers and members of the Sons of England, if ever you had a chance to show that you were worthy sons of dear old England, surely here was your opportunity. I am not a member of the Sons of England, but in all fairness, is there not a fraternal side of our society, never mind whether the bereaved parent was a member of our order or not?

Death knows no creed; and again, he would not have had much chance of joining the Sons of England, were he not a good 40 years ago, and I dare say, his early struggle must have been an uphill one. He was in a position to state that if it had not been for another member and myself, we, as Englishmen, would not have been represented in the Sons of England. It hurts me to write this, and yet it is only too true. Yes, two of us set the thing going, and managed to get a few members, and also a floral tribute; but out of all the lodges in Toronto only one acted. I know it is the custom and constitution to work for the whole section, and to act, but brethren, if the members of this body fall in a matter of ethics, we, as individuals, should act on our own initiative, and as Englishmen, do our duty and pay homage to a brave English mother and her little daughter. Do you think the father would bear the burden not quite so heavily if he knew, as he will soon, that some fellow-countrymen paid their respects to all that was left that he held most dear in this world, and again, would it not give heart to the 12,000 Englishmen and overseas, with the Canadian expeditionary forces to note that we are aware of their splendid self-sacrifice, and prepared to look after their interests?

Yes, let us get together in our lodges and think of the fraternal side of the society as well as the benefits to be derived. I am sure we will flourish all the more for it. The same criticism applies to the St. George's Society. Here is another body that represents the members of their connections, and failing to live up to the traditions set them by their forefathers, whom they are so glad to differ from, and glorify by speaking and the waving of flags. Again, a little practical sympathy goes a long long way. I will commend them to the words of the famous English writer, viz. Rudyard Kipling:
"Teach us the strength that cannot seek
By deed or thought to hurt the weak,
That under these we may possess
Man's strength to comfort, man's distress."
Now, with that, I leave them and turn to the Daughters of the Empire. How was it they were not represented at the funeral? I am getting rather tired of this body of ladies. They use a very sweeping term for their title, and fail to do anything big to live up to it. All one can read about them is a pink tea at somewhere on the hill, or a garden party at some other notable place. Are we to think that Mrs. Layland was of too lowly a birth for them to notice? I hope not. If every patriotic society had a representative Mrs. Layland would have had a public funeral, which she richly deserved, and not simply a local one, which is undoubtedly true. Look how New York turned out on the other day for its late Mayor Mitchell's funeral! Surely the tragic and pathetic circumstances of this case warranted a general public tribute, such as he received, from us, even if the late Mrs. Layland was not quite so publicly prominent.
"Son of England."

IMPORTANT ALLIED GAIN.

London, July 15.—West of Rheims the French have regained an important bit of territory on the bank of the Marne River. This gives them an observation point down the Marne valley and enables the French to strike a long stretch of the German line.

AUSTRALIANS MAKE SURPRISE ADVANCE.

Germans Lose Positions on Mile Front to Depth of One-Third of Mile.
British Headquarters in France, July 15.—A surprise attack early last night advanced the Australian line east of Amiens more than a third of a mile on a front in excess of a mile. The German trenches thus captured are southwest of Villers-Bretonneux. Australians took the trenches without much trouble, collecting 23 prisoners under an angry company commander, two field guns and two machine guns.

The prisoners taken showed more interest in the battle on the River Marne than in any other subject and refused to believe the statement that the Germans had not captured Rheims and Chalons.

CROWN PRINCE STRIVES FOR MINOR SUCCESS.

Paris, July 15.—The German Crown Prince, military successes here say, is now trying to convert a large scale failure into a showy minor success, which will make up in the eyes of the German public for the 100,000 men he has sacrificed.

SOISSONS MENACED BY FRENCH ATTACK.

London, July 15.—The French have reached a point menacing the most important German railway centre of Soissons, which feeds the entire front of Rheims.

AUSTRALIANS CARRY OUT LOCAL ENTERPRISE.

London, July 15.—The text of the British official statement today reads: Australian troops carried out a successful local enterprise early last night in the neighborhood of Villers-Bretonneux, advancing their line south-west of the village on a front of over a mile. Two forward field guns were captured, together with a number of prisoners and some machine guns.

FOLLIES OF THE PASSING SHOW—By Mitchell

THE WOMAN WHO CHANGED

BY JANE PHELPS

Mr. and Mrs. Babcock Arrive.

CHAPTER CXXVII.
The morning we expected them, our guests arrived. Their train got into Moreland very early, so I dressed to meet Mrs. Babcock before I went down to breakfast. Then, after we finished, I ran up to the guest room, arranged the freshly-out flowers which had just been delivered, and hurried down to go to the station.

"To my surprise, George was waiting for me."
"You have been so thoughtful, I rather imagined you might like me to ride to the station with you," he said when I expressed my surprise.
"Indeed, I shall! It will be ever so much nicer," I told him. I knew it was my reward for doing what pleased him. That was his way.

"We chatted quite gaily on our way, but as we neared the station some of my old fears as to my ability to play hostess arose. I gave them utterance, and to my surprise, George only laughed at me.
"Nonsense! You will carry it off all right," he said, just as we reached our destination. We had scarcely no wait at all, and before I had time to worry or think any more about my own shortcomings, the train was in, and we were welcoming them in the right way.

"An Appreciative Guest."
"This is so kind of you," Mrs. Babcock said, regarding my meeting her, "so early, too. I did not expect such consideration."
George heard, and fairly beamed. Altho he rarely praised me himself, I had noticed that he was pleased when others did.

Mr. Babcock went directly to the office with George; Mrs. Babcock and I drove home, altho I had told the chauffeur to take us thru the prettiest part of the town. There were some beautiful homes in Moreland, and as it was a lovely bright day, they showed to good advantage.
"What a charming place," Mrs. Babcock said in her low, cultivated voice, a voice that George had said was like music.
"Yes, it is a pretty place," I replied, then mentioned the names of some of the residents who occupied the handsomest places. Some of them were familiar to her, and she asked several questions, showing her interest. She wasn't going to be a bit hard to entertain, I thought, as we reached the house.

"I went upstairs with her, altho Annie was to wait upon her while she was with us. She was still my confidant in any household matters, altho I was not so in need of her as when I was first married, or when I had been unhappy.
"This is charming! And you have made it so homelike. I am going to kiss you, my dear, may I? We have talked a great deal of you, since you spoke as I did. Something in her manner made me want to tell her that I was trying to make myself into a woman who did things in the right way."
"My dear, you please without trying. Don't think of yourself as being obliged to put forth undue effort to please people. Just be your own, sweet, natural self."
"A Comfortable Feeling."
"That's the way mother talks to me! But, you see, Mrs. Babcock, I had always before lived in a country town; city ways and city people were so new to me, that I have felt I must be thinking of what I did and what I said continually."

"Perhaps, at first, that may have been, in a way, necessary. But it is so no longer. You have nothing to fear by comparison with city women of your own age. You should not think of comparing yourself with those who are older in years and in experience."
"It gave me such a comfortable feeling to listen to her. But I soon left her, and sent Annie to help her unpack the small steamer trunk—the only luggage they had brought.
"She's just lovely, Mary!" I said to the cook, as I went into the kitchen a moment. Mary was still my confidant in any household matters, altho I was not so in need of her as when I was first married, or when I had been unhappy.
"No, not old, but of course older than I am. I want everything particularly nice, every single meal, while she is here. She has a wonderful cook as I said, so putting Mary on her mettle."
"Huh!" she sniffed. "I guess we can give her as good a back seat for no one when it comes to cookin'." Then she would take particular pains.
Tomorrow—A Delightful Visit.

NO MORE ATTACKS TO EAST OF RHEIMS.
London, July 15.—Advices this afternoon stated that the Germans had made no further attacks east of Rheims, and that the French at various points on the front had regained ground.

FRENCH LAUNCH DRIVE FROM MARNE TO AISNE.
Paris, July 15.—The French official statement today said:
"The French attacked German positions from the region of Fontenoy, on the Aisne, as far as the region of Belleau this morning. We have made progress at certain points from two to three kilometers, south of the Marne, at the point where the Germans had advanced farthest toward Epernay, and Chene-la-Reine, to the west, and took as well the heights west of these villages, overlooking the Marne."
The Germans are reported to have made slight progress north of St. Agnan, in the district to the southwest of Dormans, below the Marne, but their progress here has been slow.

SWISS RED CROSS GETS LARGE GRANT FROM AMERICAN SOCIETY.
Professor J. Cousin, 605 Temple Building, has received information that on June 15 the Swiss Red Cross received $100,000 from the American Red Cross Commission at Rome. This gift was made to thank the Swiss Red Cross for its devotion to the relief of allied soldiers in prison camps in Germany and Austria. The Swiss Government has now authorized the United States Government to establish a Red Cross office at Bern so it can look after American and allied soldiers detained as prisoners in Germany and Austria or interned in Switzerland, and to give the children who have been driven from their homes by the war.

WONNIPPEG POLICE FORM UNION.
Winnipeg, July 15.—The Winnipeg police force has organized a union, according to an announcement by Chief McPherson. The organization of the police union is almost finished. It will be amalgamated with the Trades and Labor Council. Eighty per cent. of the Winnipeg force have joined the union.

KAISER SAW BIG ATTACK.
Amsterdam, July 15.—Emperor William watched the opening of the latest German offensive from an advanced observation post northwest of Rheims; his favorite correspondent, Karl Rosen, reports in a despatch to The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger:

GERMANS WENT ASLEEP IN FLANDERS TRENCHES.
With the British Army in France, July 15.—Germans troops in some portions of the trenches in Flanders have been so exhausted and demoralized by constant British raids, attacks and bombardments that many of them have fallen asleep at their posts, not caring whether they are killed or captured.
An order issued by a Bavarian infantry regiment reveals condition of affairs which up to this time would have been thought unbelievable in any army notorious for the strictness of its discipline. The commanding officer wrote on June 25:
"While making a tour of the line this morning I came across complete sections fast asleep, in spite of its being dawn and misty. These sections had removed their equipment, and had not the faintest idea of the country, or dispositions of their orders or of the troops on their flanks."
"Only yesterday I requested that all men should be instructed on these points, their particular duty explained to them. This is all the more important as only a few days ago three men and a light machine gun were captured by a hostile patrol. This state of affairs must not continue."

TWO CANADIAN AIRMEN MEET DEATH IN FLYING.
London, July 15.—Lieut. Bruce Ferguson, while flying, fell into the Thames and was drowned.
Flight Cadet Vernon William Graham was killed as the result of an air collision a thousand feet up. At Buckingham Palace the King invested the following Canadians:
Knight Commander Bath—General Henry Burstall.
Distinguished Service Order—Major Bosg Peoples.
