Sufficient time has not yet elapsed to total up the number of prisoners clent time has not yet elapsed to total up the number of prisoners made and the booty taken. The importance of this action is that it advances the Russians on an important stage to victory over the Austrians by threatening their left wing with envelopment. In the south the Russians had previously secured Kolomea and Delatyn, cutting the communications of the enemy with Hungary, so they are in shape for the launching of a double enveloping advance. The enemy paid for this small gain of ground, owing to uninterrupted strong enemy, in short, is visibly weakening under each ponderous blow.

British troops captured the last German strongholds in Longueval and took a number of prisoners yesterday in the battle of the Somme. They FRENCH REPULSE also drove the Germans from all of Delville wood in the morning. The action in the bush involved severe fighting and the routing of the stubborn Brandenburgers, who had fought before Verdun in the first shock of that historic fight and were overthrown. Further progress has also been made by our troops near Pozieres and hand-to-hand fighting in this neighborhood was continued thruout yesterday. Considerable activity by the artillery on both sides marked the operations on the rest of the front. Two Attacks Fail to Take Stc.

The lapse of 28 days of offensive action by the British army has in no way diminished the severity of its pressure against the enemy, and if the topographical features of the ground on which our army is at present fighting are taken into account, it will be found that our troops are advancing as steadily as ever. It has generally been remarked in previous battles in this trench war that in the course of a few days after the fighting began, sometimes of a few hours, the enemy, by bringing up reinforce ments, was able to halt the advance. But in the battle of the Somme after the enemy has had four weeks to strengthen his battle line, and it is certain that he has done all in his power to do so, it is found that Ally's Troops Make Progress the British army is slowly but surely wresting "impregnable" position after "impregnable" position from him.

* * This change has been brought about by the extremely strict limits of the German reserve. Instead of calling reinforcements from her central PARIS, July 28, via London, 11.19 reserve, as in previous actions, Germany has had to call them from her local reserves at various portions of the front, including Verdun, whence the just-defeated Brandenburgers were taken. In the face of such evidence of a condition brought about by the allies' policy of "nibbling" in the past 18 months, it seems incredible that any person could be credulous enough to swallow the stories cabled across the seas by Amerithe advanced French trenches, says can' correspondents that Germany is massing a large and fresh force the official statement givon out tosomewhere to launch another great offensive. Her inability after five months to reach Verdun, even while the allies were standing on the strict night. The statement adds, however, that later the Germans were driven defensive, disproves her ability now to do anything really formidable. She may make feints to keep up the bluff and she may capture a trench out with the bayonet. there was disagreement at the end of the negotiations. One dealt with the means by which the exclusion of the six Ulster counties was to continue or to be brought to an end. This, to my view, was less a matter of substance than of words. The Nationalists agreed it was impossible that the Ulster counties should be coerced into an Irish parliament. Their exclusion for the present would not have affected the full powers given to the Nation-alist part of Ireland under the home there was disagreement at the end of counties should be coerced into an Irish parliament. Their exclusion for the present would not have affected the full powers given to the Nationalist part of Ireland under the home rule sct. The question of their coming in voluntarily afterwards could have been decided when it had been seen how home rule was working out.

"The second point was connected with Irish representation at West-minster. It is not unnatural what the Nationalists contended that Ireland is proportionately over-represented in the house of commons, and that it would not have been fair, either to the portion of Ireland remaining outside of the home rule scheme or to the authorities that no inquest would be impossible for me to touch the body 's death mame been received into the hospital, where, to many words, that when it is own domestic affairs. Thruout the interview Mr. Lloyd George spoke without the slightest trace of bitterness. Asked whether U. S. WILL ARBITRATE any further steps would be taken to bring the Irish parties together, the var secretary said:

"I for one, and I am sure the mem-bers of the cabinet are with me, cer-tainly hope that the last word has not note handed to his ambassador here tainly hope that the last word has not been said. It is a great pity that the scheme was not accepted, for then the Irish parliament would have been an accomplished fact. The Irish people would have obtained what they have struggled and suffered for during so many generations. An actual home rule parliament would be in being for five-sixths of Iroland, and once that were established nothing in the world could have destroyed it again. I hope profoundly for the best. I think the Nationalist leaders would have been well advised to have taken the offer made to them, even with the alteration which the Unionist half of the cabinet demanded. Now the chance seems to be at hand for the accept-ance of something even better than leather, for, with the prophecy before us that the price of shoes is about to soar during the approaching winter between 20 and 40 per cent. above present cost, and with the addod threat that unless the world develope a substitute for leather within the coming two years. America will be the next wooden-shoe nation, there is ample latitude to extend the consulta-tion and add a new couplet to the time-honored saw. The famine in prospect is of course attributed to the war, which has cut off the supply of dyestuffs and import-ed leather, leaving us a prospect of being atogether bare and barren in regard to these commodities. The unpicked flowers is a serious han-dicap to the manufacture of French perfumes. For want of sufficient labor the orange blossom cannot be gathered and will probably result in a great short-age of many favorite and world-wide known scents. # The "Laws" of the Refrigerator HOUSEHOLD HELPS By ISOBEL BRANDS

The refrigerator is the great source of health or ill-health, extravagance or conomy in the summer kitchen. If economy in the summer kitchen. If your ice bills are high, don't censure the iceman without first making an in-vestigation into how your refrigerator is acting on the ice. Where is your refrigerator placed? Is it on the same side of the room as the stove? Of course, in many houses already built the refrigerator is in just the place the housewifs wishes it were not! If the refrigerator has al-ways been near the stove, or on the south wall rear a sunny window, it doesn't fallow that it must remain there. Perhaps by investing a few dollars in small building changes you can make a better place for your re-frigerator on the other side of the room, and it will be the longest econ-omy in the end because of the saving of ice.

omy in the end because of the saving of ice. Even the careful homemaker or her houseworker is sometimes guilty of slipping warm foods into the refrig-erator, and of course this will help the melting process along unduly! Then little Tommy may have developed the habit of stealing surreptitiously into the klichen just long enough to swing wide open the refrigerator door and leave the said door open while he gulps down some loewater. Too frequent opening of the ice chamber lets in the rush of warm air that melts ice more than any other one thing.

Keep the ice chamber fairly full, so that it is always at an even, cold temperature. Never put any-thing directly on the ice--no, not even water, which can be kept cold in some other compartment. Try to arrange the placing of food so that there will be no occasion to open the door to the ice cham-ber except once or twice a day at most.

to other foods, especially milk and butter, which absorb flavors very readily. Cover all foods before placing them in the icebox. There are paper bowls, cups, etc., which you can use to store foods in the icebox and over which cardboard can be placed. Or you can procure some of the glass covers which come with grooves of various sizes so that the same cover fits al-most anything.

which come with grooves of various sizes so that the same cover fits al-most anything. Third, keep the refrigerator clean. It needs to be examined once a day so that you can see whether any food has spolled, or accidentally spilled over—something which happens even in the best of families! Then the re-frigerator should be given a thoro cleaning once a week. Do not use hot water, as it will heat the refrigerator unnecessarily and take too long a time to cool off. Make a solution of tepid water and baking soda and with this clean out all compartments, trays and walls. Pour down the waste pipe some scalding water in which wash-ing soda has been dissolved. And again—insist that the ice com-partment of your refrigerator be kept closed and the doors to the food stor-age chambers opened only as rarely as necessary.

If I had known how my feet were going to burn after that hike, I don't believe /I would have gone," complain-ed Robert.

"That's too bad," said Lois. "The fun is spoiled when your feet have to suffer. Let's ask mother what will ease the pain."

Nothing is better than bran water, said mother. "I used some myself when I came in from shopping this afternoon. Just take a pint of com-mon bran and add a teaspoonful of baking soda and then add enough warm water to make a, thin paste. Immerse your feet in this for 15 min-utes, Robert, and you'll be ready to start on another hike, I'm sure."

USES FOR OLD GEMS.

USES FOR OLD GEMS. A dealer in antique jewelry and one who himself restores and reproduces old settings of gems has recently made some charming copies of old Spanish jewelry by utilizing odd stones, taken hero and there from broken or inar-tistic pieces. A collection of such sems, recently taken to him, came forth in the shape of an exquisite ring; closely resembling a bit of antique Spanish workmanship. This ingenious lapidary can take a faulty emerald, one or two pearls, a garnet and n number of chip diamonds, and, by set-ting them in an intricate design in dull old silver, can give them a value they would entirely lack elsewhere The haphazard contents of a number of jewel boxes have recently been transformed by him into charming pendants and brooches, at no expenses save the workmanship.

S UCCESS? You ask what brings it, Joe? Well, that's not hard, my son. The thing that people call success is here for ev'ry one. 'Twill come with work to any man who's really worth a fig. To win, my formula is this—Joe, jump right in and dig. No-body ever built a house with idle, folded hands. No farmer ever raised a crop who didn't till his lands. No runner ever won a race who didn't really try. No cook, who failed to mix the dough, has ever baked a pie. You've heard it said, no doubt, success is very hard to win. That's wrong! It isn't if you'll grit your teeth and buckle in. to win. That's wrong! It isn't if you'll grit your teeth and buckle in. Success? You ask what brings it, eh? The question's not too big. The way to win success is this—Joe, jump right in and dig.
