Mr. McLaughlin favored a proposal to turn the company into one by which farmers could purchase farm machin-ery at a reduction from the retail prices, until it made a satisfactory machine itself, giving Mr. Clokey full run of the Whitby works to experi-ment with, but this was not agreed to, and the Whitby works, so Mr. Mc-Laughlin says, continued to cast pat-terns and turn out junk with the com-pany's capital. He repeatedly suggest-ed getting a manager, and warned the directors of the course the company was drifting into about a year ago. He now resigns as director, and says "he could not follow the vagarles of a visionary inventor exploiting with the farmers' money." Clokey has been directing the management of its Whitby works, em-ploying at times about 60 men ,trying to perfect his binder. About thirty binders were turned out last year at a cost around $1000 each. Only one of them, it is said, has been paid for. Why He Quits.

Since you were set of Confederation, no one knows better than yourself the conditions under which the union was carried to competition. You know even better than I do, that Confederation, was a compromise on many questions, and that much appearate schools in Quebec, as to the security of their education privileges in the hands of the majority in that province; you remember that Holton mader a fight for the security of the system of which you are well familiar, that in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec the word will remer be that Galt was not even satisfied with this, and that in deference to his views, and the views of many otherst word will be granted their r
