CHAPTER II. PORTRAITS. Miss Francine Elliott, only daughter of Colonel Vernon Elliott, V. C. B., sat one afternoon in the library of her father's house in Berkeley Square, giving tea to her cousin and intimate friend, Captain Lettby, of the 1st Dragon Guards.

an exceedingly sweet contralto voice, and for four years past had sung at almost every charitable concert organized in the city. She was a clever conversationalist, and much in demand for four o'clock and dinner parties; she loved dancing above all other pleasures, and during the five seasons since she had been "out" had contrived to be present and enjoy herself at almost every fashionable ball given by society's best set.

Naturally she was a very busy young woman indeed, who had very little spare time over on her hands, but in spite of her manifold duties, and in spite of her popularity and the admiration she received in consequence, she remained an unspoiled and unassuming girl, remarkable chiefly for a sweet and approachable demeanor, and a manner whose charm was universally admitted, and which converted her most distant acquaintances into admiring friends.

She was rather tall; slight, but not thin; she had a firm but gliding gait, an unobtrusively graceful carriage. Her eyes were large and blue as the sea; they looked at one distinctly, straight and true. Her chin was prominent but softly rounded; her eyebrows and nose were beautifully shaped, and her curved and quivering nostrils strangely matched the sensitive mouth beneath. She seemed to radiate kindness and distinction. To see her was to wish to know her.

Captain Lettby had been in love with her for six years, but after two refusals of his suit he gradually settled into the assured position of her chum and closest friend. He had not abandoned all hope of winning her, but his addresses were never in evidence, and in consequence he had enjoyed for two years the privilege of her fullest confidence, and was usually able to appear without escort. He found in such constant companionship a solace for his long-repressed desires, and was therefore satisfied to wait. He was frank and generous-hearted gentleman, not good-looking, but he looked good, and in spite of rather blunt and off-hand manners was the best-liked officer in his regiment. It is true that he spent his money freely, and that he had plenty to spend, being an only son and heir to a large and well-earned estate, two advantages alone sufficient to win for almost any man a certain popularity.

His open face at present wore an expression of embarrassment, for Miss Elliott was attentively regarding him, awaiting his reply to what she had just said. He was at a loss to know how to answer her. "Lord Francis Crossingham is a friend of yours, surely?" she repeated. "He used to be," she answered. "But Captain Lettby fended with her. 'Oh, ah, well, of course, he used to be one of you, you know.' 'But you do not like him?' 'Out with it, Jack; you have no secrets from me, have you?' with an arch smile. Captain Lettby sighed in his chair. 'Well, er, the fact is, Francine, I like him well enough. It's a question of respect. You see, he got badly mixed up in that Russian affair, and although he resigned at once, he hasn't attempted to give out anything like a proper explanation. Our fellows say there was more in it than mere carelessness; and then, he's been acting so queerly ever since. Never goes anywhere except to the house of the dear Countess, and even then he keeps out of one's road. Funny business altogether. May I amuse you?' 'Why, yes, of course. But what do you think of it yourself?' Captain Lettby puffed out three long smokes of his pipe, and then remarked: 'If I know what to think. No more tea, thank you. What makes you so keen about him, Francine?' The girl gave a queer little smile. 'You might offer me a cigarette, Jack. Thank you. As she lit the cigarette she gave a contented sigh and remarked: 'It was there myself last night.' 'Where?' 'At the Countess of Hohenstein's.' 'The dear old lady, Francine, but what under heaven took you there?' 'A hansom.' 'But, er, you know—er, they say the Queen refused to receive her.' 'Do they? I don't believe it. There was a big crowd there and all good people. 'Well, wonders will never cease; I didn't think she'd be your sort.' 'Why not?' 'Imperiously. 'She is the sweetest girl I ever met for years and years, and pardon me, Jack, but although all London is discussing her, you are the first person I ever saw to look at me so disparagingly.' (To be continued.)

MONCTON WANTS BETTER RATES

Moncton, N. B., Oct. 26.—A delegation consisting of President J. T. Hawke, F. W. Sumner, W. H. Edgett, from the Moncton board of trade, visited General Traffic Manager Tiffin today and went into the matter of export and local freight rates affecting Moncton. The Moncton wholesale houses, particularly, have been endeavoring to secure the same rates for flour, grains and feed from western points as granted St. John and other points. The claim is made that Moncton, by reason of paying the higher freight rates is unable to compete against St. John houses who have more favorable rates. The increased rate paid by Moncton over St. John is said to be $9 a carload or five cents a barrel on flour.

DEJECTED MEN

Restoration of Physical Vigor assured by the use of an ROMAN PEARL. Under the name of "ROMAN PEARL." Hope for men at least who are suffering from nervous exhaustion! THE PRICE OF GAS

These remarks by the Toronto Globe on the price of gas will be of practical interest to consumers of gas in St. John. The Consumers Gas Company is entitled to a measure of credit for having reduced the net price of gas from 80 cents to 75 cents per thousand feet.

EDUCATION

The Times yesterday noted the fact that the premier of Quebec was in favor of devoting a large share of the increased federal subsidy to the advancement of education in the province. Evidently Premier Wilfrid Laurier is of somewhat like mind.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT

To the close observer there has been quite a remarkable shifting of the point of emphasis in religious matters during the past dozen years. It is, moreover, an ascending tendency. There is a growing and ill-repressed impatience with the sermon that does not get close to the problems pressing upon the hearts of the people.

rather to acknowledge his positive virtues, and recognise the faith he does profess as of some value in the world. It is true there are timid persons who fear that the foundations are giving way but through forms may change and dogmas perish, that which prompts a human soul to find its ideal in the Man of Nazareth is fundamental and will endure.

THE JAPANESE INCIDENT

An Associated Press despatch today states that in the clash between federal and state authority, in regard to Japan and the treatment of Japanese children in California schools, Secretary Root believes the sixth article of the federal constitution covers the case.

Commenting on this the Associated Press despatch says: "Consistent with the Secretary Root is correct in his belief that there is full authority under the constitution, the administration will promptly endeavor to put a stop to these discriminations against Japanese citizens which local authorities within the state of California have been and are practicing in violation of Article 1 of the treaty of 1894, between the Japanese empire and the United States of America."

The remarkable mildness of the fall season thus far has been favorable to the coal bin and the feed bin. It has also been favorable to the prosecution of all kinds of outdoor work, of which happily there has been much in progress in and about St. John this season.

Says the Toronto World: "John Tolmie, the present Liberal candidate for North Bruce, in 1896 defeated the Liberal candidate. At that time Mr. Tolmie stood for those reforms demanded by the Patron movement."

The story of aldermen dodging either the mayor or the reporters, in order to hold quiet conferences, is surely too ridiculous for belief.

Commissioner Coombs of the Salvation Army is welcomed in St. John because of the great value of the principles and the work for which he stands.

ON LOOKER'S VERY LATEST

(Onlooker in the New Freeman). The latest federal political news is that in the next general election Hon. A. G. Blair and Hon. R. J. Ritchie will be Liberal candidates — one for the city and the other for the city and county of St. John. This interesting rumor does not say how Hon. H. A. McKeown and Richard O'Brien, the Liberal candidates in the last election, are to be disposed of.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE

The Ellis Stock Company again presented "An American Citizen" at the Opera House, last night, before a fair sized audience. The piece will be given again this afternoon and evening. At last evening's performance, the parts were well played and the work of the performers was much appreciated.

CHARGED HIM WITH SMUGGLING SNOWSHOES

Deputy U. S. Marshal Smith and Howell of Portland, arrested one John Stuart of Andover, N. B., at Port Fairfield, Friday. He was brought to the Holton jail that evening. Stuart was charged with smuggling seventy-nine pairs of snowshoes, on October 16th. He was given a hearing before Commissioner Hamlin at Bangor, Saturday. He waived examination and was held in $300 bail. — Aroostook Pioneer.

IN LIGHTER VEIN PROPERLY DEFINED.

"What is a practical joke?" "One that you can sell for a dollar and buy bread with it."—Judge. NEVER. "You read in almost every paper how some auto has hit a man and kept going."

WHAT MAKES IT BAB. "I'd hate to be a millionaire." "There can't be any fun in playing poker when one can afford to lose."

GIVING IT A CHANCE. "John, oh, John! my foot has come to sleep." "Well, keep still and may be your mouth will follow suit."

ENCOURAGEMENT. Francois (despairingly)—I fear I shall never win her love. Julia (encouragingly)—Nonsense, man! Lots of other fellows have. Why shouldn't you?—Kire.

OF CULTIVATED TASTE. "It is all very well for you to talk, but suppose your children were crying for bread and you had none to give them?" "Our children never cry for bread; they sometimes cry for pie, but not for bread."

A STRIKING SERMON. In a Presbyterian church in Winnipeg last Sunday the Rev. E. A. Henry, of Regina preached upon The Mission of the Church.

In the present age there is no question more vital than the problem of the church, said the preacher. "Everything that man is doing is measured by standards. First, what is the goal aimed at? Second, is he reaching that goal? The church will be measured in this way and rightly. Many seem to regard the church as an insurance company or kind of fire escape with the preacher for pilot. Others look on it as a kind of drug store, where people resort for relief when they are suffering. Still others regard it as a kind of club for social purposes or a place where one gains an air of respectability and gets into good society. Some of the more thoughtful regard it as an institution for preservation of certain intellectual and theological dogmas, while others regard it as a sort of ecclesiastical machine for the perpetration of certain religious rights."

The preacher went on to say that the real mission of the church could only be learned from Christ, who said it was to preach the gospel to all humanity. He lived for them, He died for them. Theoretically people believed in this, but not always practically. The hardest negative words of Christ were aimed at orthodox Christians. They were lifting no burdens, when the positive words of Christ called Christians to be bringers of life and light and help to the world. Men had no right to have a religion that shuts out the social and political phases of life. Religion should be vital, and should be a gospel of soul alone, was not to preach the gospel of Christ, for He spoke on behalf of every phase of man's nature, physical, mental, moral and spiritual.

How could men listen to the call of down-trodden Russia and Turkey? Surely they were not yet only playing at church, only playing at missions. The fraternal societies were monuments of inefficiency of the church. Men desired brotherhood and they had to find it elsewhere. The church sang "Throw Out the Life Line" and "Rescue the Perishing" but how many were doing either? Such necessities for the modern Christian were, first, to find out the needs of humanity, and second, to go and remedy them. The great western moral problem could only be settled by making Christ in the hearts of the people.

FAIRVILLE AGITATED

No little excitement prevailed in Fairville last night when William Welch, of the Straits Shore, with pistol in hand, dashed vengeance on everybody and everything, and finally singled out Robert Boyer and John Day, whose earthly pilgrimages he threatened to end. Besides the pistol, he carried a large knife and keen-cutting razor, to which he was exceedingly dextrous.

THE WARDEN AND THE MOOSE

A certain game warden, who, with a couple of friends, went on a hunting trip last week, is being considerably worried by some parties in the vicinity of a little river he attempted to work. It seems that on Sunday last the party were in the vicinity of Grand Lake when a big moose appeared. Despite the fact that it was Sunday and against the law to take the life of the animal on that day, they could not resist the temptation, and so the big fellow succumbed to a bullet. In order to divert suspicion, they went out the next morning and fired a few shots in the air and then brought in their trophy.

The Piano Trade

People often wonder what becomes of all the Pianos and Organs that are manufactured. There are a number of large factories in Canada turning them out in increased numbers all the time.

Our sales of Pianos and Organs for a late month, were sixty in number, or about two and a half for each working day, and our sales are constantly increasing.

We control such makes as the Steinway, Gerard Heintzman, Nordheimer, Martin-Orme and other good makes, and that is a proof of our large sales and purchases.

PRESENTATION OF THE CASE OF THE WOMEN OF ENGLAND

To the Editor of the Times. Sir—I have heard so much unfavorable discussion of the women of England in their efforts to secure equal rights in citizenship that I feel something should be said to change this wrong impression.

In England women enjoy the privilege of municipal and county suffrage, which is a great power. At first it was extended to single women and widows, but later was extended to all women who pay the same taxes as men electors. The women of Scotland and Ireland possess this same privilege, while the women of the late of France have exactly the same political rights as men.

But the great power in England politically speaking is "the vote" for members of parliament and the equal rights agitation there just now is at the boiling point. In May last an important conference of 400 ladies, representing suffrage societies from all parts of Great Britain called by appointment on the premier, Mr. Campbell-Bannerman, and presented their claims. This delegation included women of the highest social position and working women. The premier in reply, while sympathizing with woman suffrage, concluded by saying that patience was necessary; perhaps before "many years" the desired change would be brought about. This reference to "years" was met by the delegates with prompt signs of dissatisfaction, and on June 21st four prominent leaders of the working women's agitation, accompanied by several scores of women, went to the residence of Mr. Asquith, chancellor of the exchequer, regarded as the chief opponent of equal suffrage in England. Now so many of his countrymen have hoisted this reactionary standard that his house is guarded by policemen, and on this occasion the four leaders were arrested for disturbing the peace; perhaps before being subsequently fined $50; but she refused to pay the fine and went to jail.

On June 24th, at a great Liberal meeting in Manchester, where John Burns was the principal speaker, in pursuance of a well-developed plan, women arose in every quarter of the auditorium and put questions to the speaker regarding the policy of the Liberals on the woman question. For this fifty were expelled and eleven arrested.

This same week a well known woman, Mrs. Fontaine, refused to pay her taxes and barricaded her house against the collectors as a protest against taxation without representation. Meantime opinions of friends and enemies are divided as to the wisdom of the strenuous woman suffragists of England, but it is certain that the tactics of the working women have called more attention to the rights and wrongs of women than all the quiet methods of the English suffrage associations of the last half century, and the women's political unions are jubilant and unshaken. The secretary of one suffrage society writes:—"It is not because we like it that our women go to prison, that we expend our life and energy in making ourselves unpleasant, risking our liberty, risking our livelihood in some cases. We have not chosen the methods. The methods have always in history been chosen and rendered necessary by the temper of the governing class. Among the governing class in this country I include the majority of men. It is by their decree that every other method has failed. It is their doing that our monster petitions are ignored and the bills for the enfranchisement of women dropped and the whole subject boycotted, ridiculed, suppressed. Everything contrary to fight, but the cost, the suffering, the penalty falls on us, not on those who look on and criticize. We working women are steady going down. All sorts of laws about woman's work are being passed by men in the House of Commons without the opinion of women in the matter or any chance of expressing their voice.

"Space forbids anything like a presentation of the women's case. Enough to say that it is desperate, and the women are desperate about it. In the face of this consider the attitude of the Liberal government. They have given manhood suffrage in South Africa, while ignoring their English women entirely, and also by the establishment of 'one vote, one value,' which, unless accompanied by woman suffrage, is a double standard. It means that while a certain number of bachelors on the land, say 1,500, return one member to the assembly, the same number of farmers in the country representing also a population of women and children return only one member. This is an entirely new idea to the English mind for they sweep the women as part of the body politic out of existence altogether, and make them a complete cypher in the matter of representation. This is the action of the Liberal government which I think that women will remember."

For him to open his campaign in that place. The programme of the different lectures will be announced later.

BABY'S GOOD DAYS. One of baby's good days means that your child is thriving and well. Baby's Own Tablets brings all good days to your child's life, for they make little one well, and keep them well. Mrs. Jos. Feakins, St. Tithe the Caps, Que., says: "Since giving my little one Baby's Own Tablets she has been in splendid health, is growing plumper every day, and has beautiful rosy cheeks." These Tablets cure indigestion, colic, constipation, simple fevers, teething troubles, and all the minor ailments of little ones. They do not contain one particle of the poisonous opiates found in all soothing medicines and most liquid preparations. The Tablets can be given with absolute safety to the babe just born, as well as all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 25 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brookville, Ont.

CONFIDENCE IN REV. C. W. TOWNSEND. To the Editor of the Times:—Sir—At the desire of a large number of the members of the First St. Martin's Baptist Church, will you kindly insert in your daily and weekly issue the enclosed notice.

Yours truly, H. A. FOWNES, St. Martin's, Oct. 25, 1906.

The "notice" sent by Mr. Fownes follows here:—"The Rev. C. W. Townsend sustained by his Church at St. Martin's, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, a very large and representative meeting of the First St. Martin's Baptist Church, desired to express their unbounded confidence in his Rev. C. W. Townsend as our pastor, believing him to be a true man of God, and a faithful minister of our Lord Jesus Christ."

"Thus, instead of three-fourths of the membership deserting Mr. Townsend's resignation, it was found to be altogether the other way. The people responded unhesitatingly and enthusiastically that they were with him. The above vote was signed by the following officers of the church:—"Albert White, deacon and trustee. "James De Loug, deacon and trustee. "H. A. Fownes, trustee. "Lawford Love, trustee. "O. F. Black, trustee. "W. A. McIntyre, trustee."

JESUS, MASTER OF MEN.

SERMON PREACHED BY REV. A. B. COHOE IN BRUSSELS STREET CHURCH, SUNDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 21st, 1906.

Rev. A. B. Cohoe

The master is the activity of man who gives direction to the other. Many men have possessed such power. The influence they have exerted have not all been good. They have sometimes diverted men into evil ways.

THE MASTERY OF FORCE

The most primitive power of mastery was, I suppose, the strong arm and the hard fist. When man stood alone that man was able to enforce his will who could hit the hardest blow.

THE MASTERY OF ABILITY

Others have led by virtue of their superior ability. The confidence which men place in a great general is usually inspired by their belief in his ability to skillfully meet the enemy.

THE MASTERY OF IDEALS

But there is a mastery which is vastly more significant. It is appeal to the conscience and the heart. It looks to the establishment of conviction rather than to the control of action.

THE PERSONAL REBUKE OF HIS LIFE

Such a life became of necessity a personal rebuke. He began to do the very things that men were leaving undone. He stood in solitary opposition to many things which they were doing.

IF HE CAME TODAY

Ancient history is easy reading. In moments of contact we glory in the beauty of such a life. We wonder at the crudity of a people who could be offended by so pure a spirit.

The final sessions of the N. B. and P. E. Island Sunday school convention took place yesterday, and up to the close the meetings were favored by large attendance.

The first thing necessary, he said, towards success of music in a Sunday school is an appreciation of the beauty of music. Luther said: "Music is the greatest gift of God."

WHAT DO WE SAY?

As a matter of fact, what is our attitude toward that spirit which ever flows from man to man? It is the spirit of the weak member of humanity.

TALK No. 12 The Tweed Mark of Quality PURE WOOL HEWSON, AMHERST, TWEEDS.

Just as the sun stands for daylight—and the best sort of daylight—so the Hewson Trademark stands for the best sort of Tweeds.

There are substitutes, of course, which your dealers may urge on you—There's electric light, gas, lamps and candles—but who's going to take them when they can get sunlight?

Perhaps, this seems a far-drawn simile—but Hewson Tweeds are made so well, of such pure, choice wool, they out-merit the ordinary tweed as the sun outshines gas.

In Hewson Tweeds all the excellence of the natural wool is preserved. Even when it comes to dyeing them, the natural fibre is not lessened in strength and elastic, porous quality.

We would like every man and woman in the land—for the sake of their own comfort, health and economy, to take particular notice of our trademark, and insist on obtaining only Tweeds bearing it.

In the talks which we have been printing from time to time, we have tried to give the reasons for the Hewson Tweed superiority. If you would get your dealer to show you them, you would quickly see that all we can say is backed up to the last detail in the soft, pure, beautiful materials.

Tell your dealer you must see them. If you should need knitting yarns, ask for our brand. We make yarns that we're proud of. They're well-twisted, strands—strong, soft and easy to work. And are to be had in all the different weights.

Should your dealer not have them, just write to us for samples, and send us his name and address. Hewson Woolen Mills, Ltd. The Big New Mills. AMHERST, N.S.

Twenty Dancing Maids from Tahiti Here

GROUP OF TAHITI DANCERS NOW IN THE UNITED STATES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 22.—In gorgeously dyed costumes made from the heart of cocconut trees, twenty pretty maids from Tahiti have arrived in this port. They came to give exhibitions of their native dances, which are not dances as all in the European or American sense, but are a series of graceful postures, not so suggestive as the hula hula, but full of that dreamy Orientalism which renders the women of the East so poetically attractive. These girls are the pick of the islands and were selected for their grace and beauty, so that the rapidly fading costumes and dancing of the South Seas may be presented to the world with all the native characteristics.

New Mile a Minute Skimmer

LATEST EUROPEAN MILE-A-MINUTE MOTOR-SKIMMER BOAT

Many experiments have recently been made, says Motoring Illustrated, with flat bottomed motor boats of the skimming or "ducks and drakes" type. The latest "skimmer" is shaped like a thickened cigar. It has a seventy horse power motor, which, instead of driving a screw, revolves huge fans at either end of a shaft running the length of the vessel. According to report, marvelous results have been achieved, the inventor, M. Forlanini, having attained a speed of 43 miles an hour. Even travelling against the wind and on days when the lake was rather rough (the experiments were made on Lake Maggiore), the boat going at full speed kept a most regular march, hardly brush-

REMINISCENCES OF A TRIP TO THE SOUTH

Along the Coast Recently Swept by the Hurricane---Miami, Havana, and the Florida Coast Winter Resorts---Incidents of a Three Months Experience.

The recent terrible storm on the Florida coast and the loss of the steamer St. Louis, in command of Captain Bravo, with whom the writer was well acquainted, recall many incidents of a trip to Miami, Florida, six years ago. Captain Bravo was at that time in command of the steamer called the Algonquin that was run in the Flagler system along the coast of Florida as far as Key West. He was a most popular commander, and his many friends sympathize with him over the loss of his steamer, the St. Louis, with so many of his men. At the time of the writer's visit to Florida the steamer Prince Edward was chartered by the Flagler Co. to carry the mails between Miami, Florida, and Havana, and during January, February and March she made twenty-five trips to that port. The trip across to Havana was very interesting. On leaving the wharf at Miami the steamer had to go out in a channel dug out of the sand, said to be thirteen miles long, before she got into deep water, and at times it would take the Edward longer to get out of this channel than it would after getting into deep water to go to Havana, for the vessel would almost every trip go on the sand banks, and whenever this occurred she was made to go round and round, by her twin screws, thus making a hole in the sand and releasing herself to float off. After getting into the channel of Key West, outside of that place were dangerous ledges and numerous small islands, some of which have disappeared during the recent storm. On the ledge or reef there is a large lighthouse, and water was built on an iron frame work. After making this light the steamer would be put on her course for the island of Cuba, going close in along the Gardens, Mantanzas and other small pieces until Moro Castle was sighted at the entrance to Havana harbor, at which place she anchored. The Edward, every time she went there, lay alongside the wreck of the battleship Maine. The writer was absent from St. John a little over three months, and during that time the steamer Prince Edward was out in only two severe storms, one of which was a wind storm and caused quite a commotion on board the ship. The other was a terrific thunder and lightning storm, which struck the steamer in the Gulf Stream so suddenly that everything movable was knocked about and broken. The dishes in the pantry also became loose, causing great destruction, and to make matters worse all the port holes were open when the storm burst on the vessel and when the watchman got the last one closed he collapsed with a shock from the lightning. The sea was running mountains high, and one big wave broke over the hurricane deck and flooded the galley. The storm lasted about four hours. The steamer was coming from a trip to Nassau, bound for Miami. After the storm was over the steward lodged a complaint against the night watchman for neglect of duty, but that official when brought before the captain soon cleared himself. The captain heard the charge made by the steward and told him to go below. After he went the captain said to his watchman: "You did well in getting the port holes closed in such a storm." Not long afterward this same steward was discharged at Miami, three thousand miles from his home. The storms in the south come up so quickly that one has hardly time to get things secured on board ship, which no doubt caused the great loss to life and property in the recent one. At another time the writer had quite an experience at sea. The Edward had

Mr. Rolls, who drove in several races for the international trophy race on the Isle of Man with one of his automobiles a 20-horse power car. He has brought over two automobiles and expects to open branch offices in New York. "It is an excellent thing for aeronauts in the United States that an American has won the first of the great races for the international cup," said Mr. Rolls. "In no other way could such a great encouragement be given the sport of ballooning over here. The Americans struck a more favorable current than the rest of us."

PRACTICAL WAYS OF EARNING MONEY.

BY MAY C. MOORE, PRESIDENT NATIONAL WOMEN'S EXCHANGE

MAKING A VACATION PAY.

ONE of the noticeable features in connection with the periodical discussions dealing with careers for both men and women is the fact that the profession of school teaching is treated in such a half-hearted way as to be almost lost sight of as a means of earning one's living.

When, however, some enthusiastic champion takes up his pen with a view to pointing out its many advantages and alluring prospects, his efforts in most cases can be summed up as consisting of the following elements:

Three-fourths is devoted to an eloquent portrayal of the dignity, nobility and grandeur of the profession, and the remaining fourth ranges around the picture of the ideal teacher whose "love for her glorious, uplifting influence of the work far outweighs the desire for its financial rewards."

Very well said, indeed, is this will-meant tribute, and I take it for granted that no one will dispute the statement that the teacher who takes up the work in this unselfish missionary spirit is indeed an "ideal" one.

However, it is unfortunate for the advocates of this so-called theory that all the actual facts in the case have a decided tendency to reduce the number of these "ideals" to a pitiful few indeed.

A potent reason may be cited in the fact that even one month's shirt-waist will cost anywhere from five to twenty-five dollars, beefsteak is 20 cents a pound, carfare, room rent and laundry bills also call for expenditure of so much money that the average teacher nowadays finds herself hopelessly outside the line of the "ideals" and very firmly implanted in the ranks of the materialist.

In other words, women who can teach and are in a position to ignore the question of salary are not usually found in the schoolroom—they are in the parlor playing bridge.

At least 80 per cent of the school teachers in the United States are using their meager salaries in the effort to educate younger brothers or sisters, or in supporting aged or invalid parents.

No class of workers give more of their brain and vitality in return for scant remuneration than do school teachers.

I have long cherished a desire to see the teachers' national organization looking to the establishment of a uniform salary that would enable a teacher to lift herself to a position where, unhampered by the ever-present dread of unpaid bills she can devote her best efforts to the conscientious discharge of her professional duties.

In this connection I have obtained permission to print a letter that is of more than passing interest.

Dear Madam:—

I have been teaching a number of years in a large city and draw a regular salary but ever since I have held this position most of my salary has been needed in the family, the last few years chiefly to support an aged mother and father.

I am much depressed this year and realize that though it is many years since I have been away from home I do sorely need a change this Summer; this principally because, could I take up my work next school term with renewed vigor. An aunt of mine would care for my parents and look after my home. So the difficulty I am trying to solve resolves itself into a problem of having enough money to run the expenses of my family at home and yet have enough to meet the expense of a trip somewhere.

How can I earn ready money and have a change of scene with so few accomplishments as I possess?

However, I am helping me you may help others who are handicapped as I am with regard to the where-withal as well as the "where-at" to spend the remnant of vacation away from home.

Outside of teaching and a little of housekeeping I know nothing of the serious occupations.

As a recreation I have at times indulged in amateur photography and have acquired some degree of expertness with a camera.

A TEACHER.

To the writer of this letter I will say that your problem is somewhat a common one if I may judge by the tone of many other letters that I have received recently.

The new and ever-varying needs of the travelling public have called into existence many money-making plans open to the woman who has made a careful study of the situation.

There was a day when society was satisfied to idle away the Summer in careless ease or in swimming, boating, driving or simply resting, chatting or lounging in a hammock.

That was before the strenuous days of the present age when even the idlers of the Summer resort want to learn to do everything in the very best way.

Teachers instructing young men and women in swimming, golfing and riding may be found at every large Summer resort.

Inasmuch, as you have made some what of a study of photography, why not make your camera pay expenses?

It can be done for seaside photography can be made decidedly profitable when used along new and original lines.

So popular has the making of pictures become that the amateur artist, capable of doing good work and able to impart her knowledge to others, will always find persons who appreciate the opportunity of spending a little time in the fields studying photography under the guidance of an expert.

By having everything pertaining to this fascinating art demonstrated skillfully and plainly, artistic pictures can be produced at the beginning.

This innovation would be a welcome one, inasmuch, as every beginner wastes so much material before she is able to take and develop a picture with any degree of certainty, that she could well afford to pay for instructions and save this time and material.

You may not be able to photograph your adult acquaintances to their own full satisfaction, but if you are on the alert you will always find opportunities to take pictures of children in natural poses.

With a sympathetic touch you can convert the easy grace of a natural pose of two or three children and a picturesque background into studies with much of the poetry and romance of the simple country scenes that surround them.

A supply of these photographs, of these familiar scenes in which the children are grouped, cannot fail to find a ready sale.

They will not only be appreciated because of the unaffected poses of the children, but eagerly sought as souvenirs of a Summer outing because they represent local scenery.

In trying your hand on the photographs of children you are not likely to make a serious mistake.

However, had your photograph may be from a professional point of view, there will always be something in the unconscious simplicity and frankness of childhood that will appeal to one.

Nothing these days is more inartistic than the picture of a child that is stiff or forced, and professionals make every effort, as far as possible, to obtain the natural expression of the child's personality, and when he is at ease among his friends and toys then he is at his best.

This does not mean that children cannot be posed.

It does mean, however, that a photographer who has the requisite amount of tact and patience will take the time and trouble to make the acquaintance of a timid and get on the best possible terms with him.

In posing him avoid anything like a strained or uncomfortable position. The muscles should be relaxed even if you are only going to take the head. The smile that is lacking in any way in spontaneity is always unattractive in a photograph, so it will be important that the child be in a good humor that he may wear a smile that is natural.

There will be many times when children are in a natural position for several seconds, and usually two or three are enough if you have your place ready and built in hand to take advantage of a favorable period.

And until the artist can get these it is best to set the camera up and wait result.

A few years ago a school teacher illustrated how easily a woman could be completely thrown off her camera as a convenient, in order to bring out the features as distinctly as possible.

She not only set her camera to show the house to the best advantage with a few trees showing in the picture whenever possible, but placed her other subjects where good effects could be gained by having them grouped a little back and somewhat away from the principal source of light.

She never took her pictures in the glare of the noontday sun. Her aim was always first-class work and moderate prices, and when her finished pictures were delivered she found many others among the friends and relatives of her patrons ready to give her an order.

The young woman invited her to their card clubs, sewing societies and picnics, and her profits for the vacation were so gratifying that she was encouraged to take up the work the following year as a permanent business, working back to the city in the winter, taking photographs of children in the parks.

She made it a rule only to take interesting children—the baby in his carriage, the boy spinning his top or flying his kite, the little girl leading her dog or playing in the snow; all of these, with an attractive background of natural surroundings, offer splendid opportunity for pictures of striking beauty.

What this young woman has accomplished can be duplicated by any bright girl having a knowledge of camera work and a desire to study the business as well as the artistic side of photography.

To the young woman who is an accomplished "bridge" player there are always opportunities for forming classes at the Summer hotel resorts with much profit to herself if she possesses the faculty of teaching the fine points of this fascinating game.

Pupils pay 25 cents an hour each and several classes can be taught each day.

An out-of-door sketch class is one of the popular fads at present, interesting both children and grown people at the large resorts.

A lady presiding over this class must be an accomplished, fresh-faced drawer, and not a little amusement stamped with the firm name and this legend in the lower left-hand corner: "Signed, but not read." Unbusiness-like, you say?

Under the pressure of such a business as is conducted in this office, it is impossible to read unimportant correspondence of which there is necessarily much, and the phrase, "signed, but not read" saves the firm from the accusation of sending out letters marred by petty mistakes in spelling, punctuation, etc.

I asked a member of the firm why this custom had been established, and he said simply because they could not afford to employ sufficient stenographers who could be trusted to be absolutely accurate and they had found that the average girl drawing from $10 to $15 a week was careless about small things like spelling, dating, punctuation, etc.

In the office of a corporation of international fame I found that no women were employed, though two years ago several young women held positions.

The chief clerk told me frankly that he had replaced young women with men as fast as he could, because they were more accurate, as a class, not as individuals. He added:—

"If a young man with ambitions makes a mistake, he says, 'Sorry, Mr. Blank, but it won't happen again,' and nine chances out of ten it doesn't."

"If a girl makes the same mistake, she says: 'Oh, dear,' or 'oh, pshaw,' and her eyes fill with tears when you scold her, and the next day she makes precisely the same mistake, because she is thinking of the comb on the girl at the desk ahead, or the young man in the next aisle, who may take her out to lunch."

I think this man's criticism is a bit harsh.

There are many young men who are no more accurate than the girls, but the gist of the matter is just this:—When a young man does not do accurate work, his chief talks to him in such a way that he either changes his tactics or resigns.

He knows that the rebuke, while rough, is deserved.

At least, he decides upon this line of action after his anger subsides, for even a young man dislikes being called down.

The girl weeps, then sulks, and the average man would rather endure her mistakes than draw this mingling of tears and frowns on his luckless head.

After all, why are you in the business world?

Is it to be employed by some one who has work for you to do, work to save that man or that woman labor and nervous energy?

Or are you here because those who give employment form a sort of twentieth century charity bureau, giving financial assistance under the guise of "employment"?

The girl who says frankly:—

"Yes, that is wrong. I am sorry, and it will not happen again," will some day rise in the business world.

The girl who says, "Oh, pshaw," will always be a cheap drudge, floating from office to office, from store to store, from employer to employer, until some poor, unfortunate man marries her, and then she says, "Oh, pshaw," when the dinner burns white and she is reading the report of a sensational murder trial in the afternoon paper.

as well as instruction is gained from the crude efforts of the anxious pupils in their attempts to picture landscapes in local scenery.

Lessons can also be given in Russian and English embroidery, cut-work and torchon and Irish crochet lace.

In short, the woman who will study the fads and notions of the ever-increasing leisure class of this country and who will prepare herself to cater to them will never fail to make her Summer vacation one of both pleasure and profit.

ADDRESSING ENVELOPES.

Dear Mrs. Moore—I have had some experience in addressing envelopes and copying letters. Please tell me what would be the best way to advertise this work, to be done at my own home.

I can typewrite very rapidly and thought if I could get work to do in copying I could rent a machine.

Your kind advice will greatly oblige me.

E. K.

I constantly received requests for information as to where copying can be secured and envelopes to address at home.

Publishers sometimes have work of this kind to be done but can't get girls at $3 a week who can give all of their time to the copying and do it in the office.

Knowing the demand for his employment, the papers abound with advertisements for which it is necessary to make a deposit and many a poor woman in need of work has sent some of her slender means only to find she has been cheated.

This, I am sorry, can be said of many other kinds of home work advertised extensively through the medium of many newspapers and second-class magazines and these persons reap a harvest from the unsuspecting.

It is usually better to study the demand of your own locality and supply some need you find there.

If you know of any manufacturer of a patent medicine you might secure some of this work.

PORTABLE BOOTH AT SUMMER RESORTS.

Dear Mrs. Moore—We are very much interested in your letters; in fact, we take the paper for them, and thought probably you could give us advice.

We must go to the seashore for our health—not so much mine as my daughter's.

Had her to the seashore for a week and she gained much in that time that we want to return.

We must, however, do something to pay our board if we enabled to stay a length of time.

We have been making fancy articles this Spring, all styles of ice cups, lilies, all sizes of eggs painted as fancy mounted on crepe paper ruffles; mortar boards and fancy caps, college colors and others; painted all kinds of dinner cards, white, satin needle boxes, ribbon holders, powder pads, sachets, pin cases, all painted first and then made up with fancy ribbon.

Many of them were original and on others I tried to improve, so that we received many orders. From the exchange I sent them to, where a lady sells them for 10 cent commission, but for all of this amount of fancy work we received so little since Easter that we can't go to the shore on that money.

We are still making fancy articles, however, to sell. What could we do at the shore?

Can we sell place cards, cups or forms at large hotels, or fancy goods to patrons of same? But again, to do this, would we have to rent room for the occasion?

Another idea, and the healthiest is to rent rolling chairs for the season and have colored boys to push them—how would that work?

How would photography pay if you have no studio and must pay to have work finished?

Am an expert in making preserves, for I do them up very carefully, but I must get away from the stove, so that is out of the question.

What we are after is to be in the open air as much as possible, and yet earn sufficient to pay our board.

Could you possibly find time to read this and give us a little advice out of your large experience?

E. P.

THE "OH PSHAW" GIRL—BY ANNA STEESE RICHARDSON.

Do you know the "Oh, pshaw!" stock which you keep for emergencies in the small drawer of your desk, or she wants to mail a letter right away and has no stamp, or you go out to lunch and she finds that she hasn't a penny in her pocket and so you pay the lunch check for both.

About this time, you lose patience. You are undecided as to whether she is shiftless or downright cunning.

The next time she meets you with her hand, you politely and perhaps a trifle diffidently ask her whether it is convenient to repay the small loan you have made her.

And what does she say?

"Oh, pshaw! Haven't I paid you that money? I declare I forgot all about it!"

She says you, but inevitably a coolness springs up between you, and so far as you are concerned you have no regrets. It is the "oh, pshaw!" girl who feels aggrieved.

The "oh, pshaw!" girl never understands why you find fault with her or why you cannot appreciate that she did not mean any harm, or why she is a trifle careless.

Follow her into the shop or office where she is employed.

If she is a stenographer, her employer reads through the letters she has transcribed from her notes, prepared to sign them.

The longer he reads, the deeper grows the frown in his brow. Here he inserts a missing letter. There he writes a capital letter over a small one. Several of the letters he lays aside, inclined and corrected. The others he decides to have mailed, but with evident reluctance. And then he rings for the stenographer.

"Miss Jones, you have been most inaccurate. Four of those letters will have to be written over. I do not like to send out the others with those corrections, but they are urgent."

"Miss Jones" glances at the mutilated pages, and exclaims: "Oh, pshaw! I thought you said so-and-so. Well, I have plenty of time, I'll write them all over."

"No," persists her employer with some heat. "Just write those four over. I haven't time to read a day's correspondence through twice. If you continue to waste my time like that, you will have to find another position, Miss Jones."

And the "oh, pshaw" girl goes back to the main office and tells the filing clerk that the boss is too fussy for anything. "It isn't as if I wasn't perfectly willing to write them all over again. I'm sure I'm the one that suffers by my mistakes."

That is always the attitude of the "oh, pshaw" girl. She never realizes that she is wasting any one's time.

It takes perhaps half an hour every afternoon for her employer to read over his letters and sign them if they are correctly done. By her heedlessness she wastes an extra half hour of his time and considerable energy which is incidental to losing one's temper.

In one of the most important of metropolitan law offices a new rule has been adopted regarding correspondence.

Hundreds of letters leave this office daily.

The vital, most important correspondence is carefully read by various members of the firm and chief clerks. Less important letters are stamped with the firm name and this legend in the lower left-hand corner: "Signed, but not read." Unbusiness-like, you say?

Under the pressure of such a business as is conducted in this office, it is impossible to read unimportant correspondence of which there is necessarily much, and the phrase, "signed, but not read" saves the firm from the accusation of sending out letters marred by petty mistakes in spelling, punctuation, etc.

I asked a member of the firm why this custom had been established, and he said simply because they could not afford to employ sufficient stenographers who could be trusted to be absolutely accurate and they had found that the average girl drawing from $10 to $15 a week was careless about small things like spelling, dating, punctuation, etc.

POLLARDS MONDAY

The Pollard Lulliputian Opera Company will arrive on Monday morning from Halifax where they have just concluded a lucrative engagement. The company will open at the York Theatre Monday evening for a short season with "In Town." This opera is one of their best, containing plenty of musical numbers and is full of bright comedy. The repertoire for the week will be as follows: Monday and Tuesday "In Town," Wednesday, "Mikado," Thursday "A Runaway Girl," Friday, "Bell of New York," Saturday matinee, "A Runaway Girl," and Saturday night "In Town." Seats are in demand and are selling rapidly for the whole week.

RACES AT VIC TONIGHT

Races at the Vic tonight, three of them a boys' event, an amateur struggle and a big handicap. These take place between the 5th and 6th bands. Next Wednesday's Halloween programme is still being talked of about by the young folks, many of whom are preparing elaborate and original costumes for the cash prizes competition. The carnival portion of the evening's fun will commence as soon as the doors are opened, and end at 10.30. Then the dancing commences and will continue for an hour or so. The immense floor affords excellent opportunity for this amusement, which will be directed by efficient floor managers.

AT YORK THEATRE

At the York Theatre last night the Scarlet Mystery scored another hit. A large audience was present and enjoyed the performance. The seventh night of the series, "The Crocodile," was a side-splitting song, and was excellent. "A Shooting Expedition," was excellent. "A Fallen Star," by Mystery No. 7, was beautifully rendered, and the song "Farewell, Farewell, My Own Love," by the quartet, was very sweetly sung ever in this city. The company have made many friends by their excellent performances, which will be given this afternoon and evening for the last time.

AT ST. ANDREW'S ROLLAWAY

Success attended the first Friday "Ladies' night" at St. Andrew's Rollaway. While somewhat different from the popular Tuesday "Ladies' night," the sisters enjoyed the change. During the first few bands the gentlemen elated with the ladies. At the sixth band the floor was given up to the ladies. The seventh band the ladies retired and the gentlemen were given an opportunity to exhibit, not grace, but speed. The eighth and tenth bands, including intermission, all the skaters reversed. The manager explains that the reverse rule is to make the skaters, who are competent as well as skate easily both ways, they are not considered finished in the art.

Business Notices

If you have had an idea of brightening your home with new items of furniture, better or best--take heed to the grand October clean-up of old pieces and discontinued patterns at M. R. A.'s commencing Monday. Every Bed gives the best of a bargain, read them for yourself. It is the big house's annual offer of fragmentary furniture, but not one item is unattractive or inferior. The exceptional demand for office help still continues. Among other applications this week for St. John Business College trained help was one for two male stenographers by a well known American railway corporation. Now is the time for you men to get in step with the march of events.

Special attention is directed to the advertisement on page 3 of The Floods Co., Ltd., 3138 King street. This firm are making very exceptional discounts to make room for new Christmas goods daily arriving. The discounts they are making are in many instances equal from 33-1/3 per cent. to 50 per cent., and it is a splendid opportunity to get Christmas gifts at a great saving, as their assortment is not only the largest in their line in the Maritime provinces, but also the choicest. To make this sale of special interest they have included stationary, of which they have a very large stock of note paper and envelopes for ladies' also soaps. There is not a department in which they are not making some reduction, even on the new goods which they are daily receiving. We would advise our readers to avail themselves of this great money-saving proposition and secure their holiday gifts early.

Patterns of the previous season, therefore, cease to be novelties, though still new and attractive. These discontinued patterns are going to clear out sharply at unapproachably low prices, as well as odd items of household furniture in all its branches. It will be a thoroughgoing weeding of unma'ched goods without regard to good, better or best qualities, presenting a noteworthy occasion for all householders to add to their store of home fittings.
