Two Blooming Bay Trees. The Adventures of Two Criminals.

BY DOUGLAS WINTON.

"I have seen the wicked... spreading himself like a green bay-tree."—Psalm, v. 28.

(Continued.) And he had found the one weak link in the whole chain—the smell of the acid, and had provided against it in a way so perfect that no one but Piggy would ever have thought of it. He must have purchased a large trunk, and clothes to fill it, specially to have it placed in the baggage-room. Somehow, perhaps by clockwork, but more probably by using a stopper composed of something that would take a certain known time to dissolve—no sort of difficulty to a chemist like Piggy—he had arranged that a bottle of nitric acid should break, or leak, in it a few hours after stowing. So here was a perfectly plausible and reasonable explanation of the smell of nitric acid in the baggage-room, and Jack might go on with his work in tranquillity; no more danger on that score, at any rate, was to be apprehended.

When his watch told him that he had waited long enough, Jack once more dismantled his apparatus; but this time caught all, or at any rate all he could, of the acid which oozed out on a cloth; then scrambled up the cloth in the tin which had held his protease biscuits. The new fumes of the acid were thus materially mitigated, and as soon as he had one of them emptied of its gold, he intended to place the tin in a specie-chest. As he had hoped, the iron where the acid had had access to it was quite rotted through, so much so indeed, that as he took up the chest again he was a little afraid lest the acid should fall outwards into the specie room, and make more noise than he cared about. However, he had his little steel rod through the central hole by which he could hold it, and, by doing his cutting very carefully, the top of the chest first, he was able to bend the disc of iron back into his box, and finally to tuck it on to the cushion of Wilkesden canvas wallets without much noise.

"Now," he said, "for an inspection of the specie-room!" CHAPTER XII. The "Sofian"—Complete Success. The size of the hole was none too big; it had been made rather small purposely, in order that the disc of metal removed might not be too heavy to handle; but Jack was soon through standing in the specie-room, and reaching back into his box for the electric light, which, with its dry battery, was detachable. However, he did no more than flash it round to get his bearings, then extinguished it, and, climbing cautiously over the little chests of gold, made his way to the stair, or ladder, which formed the exit into the captain's cabin. Ascending noiselessly—he was wearing rubber-soled shoes—he knelt down on the top step, his ear against the door, and listened. It seemed to him that he could hear something—slight movements, as of a person alone; then came the unmistakable sound of liquid poured into a glass; afterwards he could distinguish the occasional tinkle of knife or fork on china; someone was eating. This was a nuisance, but at the same time he made another discovery which was altogether happy, and more than offset the inconvenience of having to wait till the cabin was occupied. He had finished his meal. He had noticed that, though the cabin was occupied, no light came under the door; now, feeling with his finger, he found that the door-frame, as is indeed general in modern ships, though he did not know it, was lined with rubber, and there was no key-hole through. This was more than he had dared hope. He had been prepared to block up the crack of the door and the key-hole, if there should be one, against light; but he had been doubtful as to his ability to block them against the fumes of the acid. And though the bottle broken in the Rev. John Hawtree's portmanteau was all right to explain the presence of these in the baggage-room, it could hardly be held to account for even a slight smell penetrating to the captain's cabin from the specie-room. He had pinned his faith on the fumes being fainter now, on the cabin being unoccupied, and, for the rest, to luck. And the luck had come! Here was the door hermetically sealed, and he need have no further anxiety.

He now found out that the person dining was not the captain. A rap, and then, in response to "Come in!" a step, and the query: "Captain asks if you have all you want, sir?" "Yes, thanks; and you may tell the captain that I shall be up on the ledge again in ten minutes." "Very good, sir." So this must be the pilot. Of course, while in the Channel neither he nor the captain would go down to the saloon, so they were dining one at a time in the captain's cabin. It remained to be seen whether the captain had dined or had yet to dine. When the pilot had finished and left the cabin, a steward (presumably) came in, bustled about a bit and left. When a quarter of an hour had elapsed, and no one else entered the cabin, Jack decided that the captain must have dined first, and that he had better get to work. It was now eight o'clock.

He turned on his lamp, descended the ladder, and surveyed the boxes of gold; as he had expected, ten open chests would be mere child's play. Not that they were not solidly made on the contrary, they were good substantial little oak chests, iron-bound and with good locks; but all that, of course, availed nothing against his tools. He selected a four-foot screw-placed jenny, set his light down conveniently, and tackled his first "Crack!" the lid sprang back, and it was open. Inside was a lining of thick lead foil, which he easily cut round with his pocket-knife, below that, neatly packed in portmanteau, was the gold. He would have liked to have stopped to look at it; but it was no time to dawdle, so he placed the open chest to one side; it was very heavy, but he could just lift it, and began on number two. When he had finished ten, the idea came to him that it would be a good thing to know at what rate exactly he was getting on; accordingly, on the second tin he timed himself. He commenced the eleventh chest at eight minutes past eight, and had finished the twentieth at the half hour. Twelve minutes for ten boxes, a minute and a fraction a box, and there were two hundred and thirty more to open. He made a rapid calculation. At that rate, even allowing a little for contingencies, he ought to have finished them all before one in the morning. Then there would be the packing the gold into the wallets, and the getting the wallets at the door of the baggage-room; but, long before that, he would have Piggy to help him; at any rate, what he had to do now was to go ahead at his best speed. So he sped on his hands and buckled to. He only stopped once about eleven, when he rested for ten minutes and opened a second flask of the cyclist's mixture; then he went at it again, harder than ever. Eight bells struck for midnight, and he never noticed it; nor did he hear Piggy's signal until it was repeated for the third time, and then only because he chanced to be pausing a minute to screw a fresh end on to his jenny. As soon as he had heard and returned the signal, Jack put down his jenny, and, taking his lamp in his hand, crept once more through the hole in the bulkhead into his case, which he proceeded to denude of the panels forming the three sides, which up till now had remained intact. The case was now nothing but a top and bottom, kept apart by a strong steel cubical frame. Through the interstices between the luggage, surrounding it came, rather muffled, but quite distinct, Piggy's voice.

SAFETY BOARD IN SESSION.

One Chemical Engine is on the Way and the Other Will Arrive Next Month.

At a meeting of the safety board yesterday afternoon the chemical engines were reported by J. J. Barry to have been delayed by difficulties in obtaining the specified wheels. One was stated to be on the way, and the other expected about the middle of December. It was decided to take over the Carleton electric light works on Dec. 1. A motion was passed that a reward of $25 be offered for the conviction of anyone tampering with the fire alarm. Some reference to the recent private investigation of the charges against North End firemen was made. Some communications were dealt with. Thomas Ryan asked for a lease of lot No. 8, Fairville, offering $25 a year. A fourteen-year lease was recommended. An application was received for a lease on a lot 39x100 on the north side of Main street, Fairville, next to G. D. Hanson's. The offer was $1,100. The director said that the lot was known as the Cameron lot, and was taken over by the city for $1,300 in 1895, and brought in $145 a year. The application was refused. Robert W. Carson applied for a renewal of lease of lots 1087-9, Brookside. This was referred to Ald. Bullock, Tully, Frink and the director. The petition of Sergt. Hipwell for half pay during eight days' illness in September, was recommended granted. Fire department matters were also discussed. In connection with the charges against the firemen of north end, Ald. Maxwell, the chairman said the report was in the hands of the common clerk, and members could see it. He thought it should be submitted to the council and the press would then get it in the ordinary way.

RAILROAD TRAINMEN.

Meeting in Moncton to Adjust Some Differences.

A KNOTTY QUESTION

Promotion and Other Things Involved—Will Meet Again—Interesting Rumor from Shediac—A Slight Accident.

Moncton, Nov. 29.—Deputations of I. C. R. men representing the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen met here last evening to discuss the difficulty on the Eastern Division of the I. C. R. between Truro and Pictou. Some months ago there was an agitation among the railway men whose homes were along the Eastern division to have drivers and firemen from points along the main line in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick sent back to their former homes in order that promotion among the natives might be more rapid.

That agitation was partially successful. At a meeting of the Drivers and Firemen and others interested, a compromise was effected whereby some of the drivers who had been sent from the main line to Stellarton, New Glasgow, Sydney and other points were sent back home.

No sooner was the agitation among the drivers and firemen settled than a similar one was made by the conductors and trainmen of the same division to have the Nova Scotia men from the main line transferred. An effort has been made to have the parties affected settle the matter among themselves, but this has been found impossible. Consequently the question has been referred to the Boards of adjustment representing the O. R. C. and B. Y. R. T. to settle.

The committee which met here last night was composed of the following:—Jas. Millikan, St. John; W. J. Dickson, J. J. Daley, Halifax; J. R. Fisher, Truro; Rod. McDonald, Pictou; W. A. Mitchell, Lewis; W. Crockett, Moncton; of the O. R. C., and Arthur Bernier, St. Flavie; J. E. Rioux, Trois Pictou; F. J. Deham, Halifax; John R. Demar, Stellarton; Arch. McDonald, Sydney; J. A. Bernier, St. Flavie; Andrew Crockett, St. John; and N. H. Morton, Moncton of the B. Y. R. T.

The joint Board at their meeting was unable to reach an understanding and it was decided to adjourn until next Tuesday, to meet again at Moncton. The question, it is feared will involve considerable difficulty before being finally settled. If the Eastern Division men carry their point many Truro conductors and trainmen will be affected and will be sent back while the Branch men will receive more rapid promotions.

It is reported there that a well known Shediac man has quietly stepped out leaving many wondering friends behind to mourn his departure.

The local minstrel troops which performed in the opera house a week or two ago, have decided to show at Amherst Friday night.

A slight accident occurred on the I. C. R. about two miles out of Moncton on the northern division last night. The engine on Sweetey's special broke down and was sent into Moncton light. The engine sent up to bring in the train ran into the cars and smashed up one car and blocked the line for two or three hours. The Maritime express was detained here about three hours on account of the accident.

HE TALKS OF TIMBER.

C. T. Tyrer, English Wood Broker, Has Interesting Views.

C. T. Tyrer, of Smith and Tyrer, wood brokers, of Liverpool, England, is making his annual visit to Canada and is now at the Royal hotel. Talking of English matters, he said that spruce was at the lowest mark it has reached in England for twenty-five years. Lately, the price has rallied five shillings to seven and six pence a standard, but a heavy rush found sent it down again.

As heavy stocks of wood are on hand on both sides of the Atlantic, the curtailed cut this year will not have much effect till August of next year. Canadian spruce is a cheaper wood than the continental variety but has some qualities which make it superior. It has superior toughness making larger grain than being liable to rot, but making it harder to work. The softer wood comes from Russia and Bosnia.

Mr. Tyrer spoke of the protection movement in England and is strongly opposed to it. He thinks Canada has a great future before her, but sounded a warning note to the farmers. In their spruce forest he believes they have a mine of inexhaustible wealth if properly treated. He thinks no tree under six inches of the butt should be allowed by law to be cut.

A war with Russia would raise the price of timber. Manchuria according to Col. Youngusband has fine forests and the first pretension of Russia rose from a timber concession granted by the Chinese to a Russian firm.

Cure is Cheap at Any Price—Benefit Certain if You Use

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Your time is your capital, and whether your daily task is in the home or abroad, you must make every day count or prove a burden to yourself and friends.

Weakness is the greatest source of ill-health. Weakness of the blood and nerves, weakness of action of the heart, lungs and digestive organs.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is well suited to the needs of a multitude of people because it overcomes weakness, first weakness of the blood and nerves, and through them the weakness of the organs of the body.

It may require a dozen or more boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to make you strong and well and send the thrill of health through your shrivelled arteries and wasted nerves.

Because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is creator of blood and nerve force you can be positive that each box of it is at least doing you some good. Prove this by noting your increase in weight as new firm flesh and tissue is being added to the body.

NOT FOR BEST FARM

In the State

"I saw so much in the papers about the wonderful cures effected by Pyramid Pile Cure, I determined to give it a trial. I bought from my drug-gist one fifty cent box and used it as directed, and by the time I had used the last 'pyramid' I was entirely cured; in four days after I began to use the 'pyramids' all inflammation was gone. I was perfectly easy all the time, the excessive discharge stopped at once, and stools became easy and gentle."

"It was unable to get my own fire-wood for four months, and half the time when I could walk at all I had to walk half bent. I used many pile remedies, salves and ointments, all to no effect until I used one fifty cent box of Pyramid Pile Cure and was cured."

"I would not be afflicted as I was four months ago for the best farm in the state of Arkansas. I can give proof and reference of the wonderful cure to all who are afflicted as I was. Please publish my letter that I may advise the afflicted." W. E. Wallis, Piggot, Ark., Oct. 26.

The experience of Mr. Wallis is that of thousands of others who suffer for years with the most painful forms of hemorrhoids, or piles, and after trying everything they hear of, give up all hope of a cure and look for temporary relief only. To all such a little book published by Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., brings glad tidings, as it tells all about the cause and cure of piles, and is sent free for the asking.

Provincial.

Two fine deer were shot last Friday by Leonard Plooy at Grand Narrows. He and his brother, were out cruising a road but had guns along. Leonard heard the animals approaching and hid behind a bush. Out came a handsome doe and he killed it. Then the buck came in view, one he shot, and the other got away.

A few days ago William Carvill, of William's Wharf, had two pigs stolen from him. The thief, it seems, approached the place at night and took his plunder away in a boat. About the same time Elizabeth Belyea's store at Belyea's Point was entered and robbed. Suspicion pointed to an old man who lives in the vicinity, and his home was visited, and a quantity of groceries, corresponding with the goods stolen, was found, also a couple of hogs—one salted away and the other in a fresh state. On the strength of these discoveries, it was thought advisable to put him in restraint. An investigation will probably be held today.

A BRUTAL MURDER IN MASSACHUSETTS. Woman's Body With Face Horribly Mutilated Found Near Her Home in Town of Leicester—No Clue as Yet.

Leicester, Mass., Nov. 28.—When the State and local police temporarily ceased their work at dark tonight they were no nearer a tangible clue as to the whereabouts or identity of the murderer of Mrs. Emma Richards Brigham than they were at the beginning of the day. Because of the fact that the murderer is believed to be a tramp particular attention is being paid to that class of men, only by the police directly connected with the crime but by the authorities in nearby towns. In Lowell tonight a man giving the name of Carl Brett was arrested as a suspect in the case and from Worcester, Oxford and Fiskeville came reports of men answering closely the description of the man whom the police are anxious to question.

The crime. Mrs. Brigham and her mother, Mrs. James H. Richards, 81 years old, came here from Fitchburg about a year ago. Mrs. Brigham was a widow about 55 years of age. They occupied a small house on Elm street in Leicester Center. Yesterday afternoon at about 2 o'clock Mrs. Brigham was taken into the woods and returned within half an hour. She had not returned at dark and an alarm was given, neighbors taking up the search. No trace of the woman was found until more than 100 men, with lanterns, were scouring the vicinity.
