L. J. RACINE, Esq.
Montreal. "Having experienced the benefits of this medicine in the case of my wife, I am induced to express my belief in its efficacy. For many years, she has suffered with a severe cough, and nothing has done her good but this medicine. It has restored her to her former health, and she is now as well as I am."

Poetry.

AN INVOCATION.

The sun is flooding the eastern sky
With a blaze of silver light;
The fresh green foliage, waving high,
Is fringed with a flame of white;
And far above, from the topmost air,
The showering lark-potes break;
And the spirit of beauty floats everywhere—
Sweet my lady, awake!

A soft breeze steals o'er the dewy land,
From its home in the dreamy south,
And scatters a perfume on every hand
Sweet as the breath of thy mouth;
And the tremulous boughs, as they bend and away,
A murmurous music make;
And bright on the brooklet the sunbeams play
Sweet my lady, awake!

The river that lay in its dusky repose
Through the long lone hours of night,
Now laughs in the lustre that sunrise throws,
And ripples in rosy light;
And the hills that looked like shadowy ghosts
A clearer outline take;
And the white sails glimmer along the coast—
Dear my lady, awake!

The violet lifts its eye of blue
To the bending blue above;
And the roses, bathed in a drench of dew,
Are breathing of beauty and love;
And the lily stops its head to kiss
Its shadow within the lake—
O never was morning so lovely as this!
Dear my lady, awake!

Awake! for a music is flooding the air,
And melting along the deep;
When nature is all awake and so fair,
O, why should my lady sleep?
A passionate sigh begins to start
From the depths of each throat and break—
A sigh that finds who within my heart—O, sweet my lady, awake!

Awake! and come where the zephyr moves
In ripples o'er the grass;
Awake! and come to the lake that loves
To mirror your form as you pass;
And come, O come to the heart that pines
And languishes for your sake—
And bright eyes shall blind each dew drop
That shines—
Dear my lady, awake!

Miscellany.

THE OBEYIENT WIFE.

There is an old story of a man who had married a young lady, and who had a friend somewhat eccentric as to the obedient tendency of the wife's disposition, much to the dissatisfaction of the benedict, who strongly asserted, and warmly asserted, that his will was law, and that she never by any chance disobeyed any wish or injunction of his.

"Have you ever tried her in that respect?" said the friend: "have you ever desired her positively not to do any particular thing? for that is my point, since you tell me she never refuses to do whatever you desire her to do."

"No," said the affectionate husband, "I never have found occasion to desire her not to do anything, but—"

"That's it!" as the old women say," cried the friend, "female obedience is proved by negatives; tell her not to do any particular thing, give no particular reason why, and see if she does not do it."

"Ridiculous!" said the husband,
"Try!" said the friend.

"Well," replied the husband, "agreed! I will both going away for the day; what proof shall I put her to; what shall I tell her not to do? may she not play on her harp? must she not sing or draw? or, in fact, tell me what you want me to prohibit her doing, and I stake my life she does it not."

"Oh no!" said the friend, "drawing, and singing, and playing on the harp, are things which she might abstain from without a murmur, or, what is more essential to the affair, a wonder; because she has sung, and played, and drawn a thousand times. It is an injunction not to do something she has never done before—for instance, tell her when we go, not to climb some particular hill, for particular reasons which you do not choose to give her; or, by way of carrying the principle out to its full extent, warn her not to attempt to ride on the dog's back."

"Neptune's back!" said the husband, "Yes," replied the friend, "on the back of the most val-able Newfoundland dog, the bravest and faith-fullest of his breed."

"Ride on a dog's back!" exclaimed Benedict,
"how can you be so absurd?—as if—"
"Ah! there it is," said the friend, "as if—now, take my word for it, if you issue the injunction, without giving her any reason, Harriet will break it."

The most incredulous of men rejoiced at the idea, which he felicitously ridiculed, and resolved upon trying the experiment in order to establish his Harriet's superiority of mind, and his friend's exceeding silliness.

He parted from his Harriet, and with tender fondness she throng round his shoulder, as he said in quitting her.

"Harriet, dearest, we have seldom been separated since our marriage—I shall be back soon—take care of yourself, love—but just attend to one thing I am going to say, dear: don't try to ride upon Neptune's back, while we are away."

"What!" said the laughing Harriet, "ride upon Neptune—ha, ha, ha! what an odd idea—is that all you warn me against?—why, what a ridiculous notion! why should you tell me that? What nonsense!"

"That my dear," said the husband, "is a secret; all I beg of you is, not to ride upon Neptune."

"Ride upon Neptune!" repeated the lady, and she laughed again, and they parted.

When Benedict and his friend returned to dinner, the laughing Harriet did not as usual present herself to receive them; there was a sort of gloom pervading the house; the footman who opened the door looked dull; the butler who came into the hall looked as white as his waistcoat; and the lady's own maid rushed down stairs, evidently to prevent a scene.

"Where is your mistress?" said Benedict.
"Upstairs, sir," said the maid, "there is nothing the matter, sir—nothing in the world, sir—only my mistress has had a fall—quite a little fall in the flower-garden—and has cut her face the least bit in the world, sir; all will be well to-morrow."

"A fall!" said Benedict.
"Humph!" said the friend.
And upstairs ran the anxious husband.

"What has happened?" exclaimed he, catching her to his heart; and seeing her beautiful countenance a little marred—How did this happen?"

Harriet cried, and hid her face.
The explanation never came altogether clearly before the friend of the family; but the accident was generally thought to have arisen from Harriet's having endeavoured to take a ride upon Neptune's back.

THREE BAD HABITS.

There are three weaknesses in our habits which are very common, and which have a very prejudicial influence on our welfare. The first is, "giving way to the ease or indulgence of the moment, instead of doing at once what ought to be done."
This practice almost always diminishes the beneficial effects of our actions, and often leads us to abstain from action altogether; as for instance, if at this season of the year there is a gleam of sunshine, of which we feel we ought to take advantage, but have not the resolution to leave at the moment a comfortable seat, or an attractive occupation, we miss the most favourable opportunity, and perhaps at last justify ourselves in remaining in doors on the ground that the time for exercise is past. One evil attendant upon the habit of procrastination is, that it produces a certain dissatisfaction of the mind which impedes and discourages the animal functions, and tends to prevent the attainment of a high state of health. A perception of what is right, followed by a promptness of execution, would render the way of life perfectly smooth. Children should be told to do nothing but what is reasonable, but they should be taught to do what they are told at once. The habit will stand them in good stead all their lives.

The second weakness is "when we have made a good resolution, and have partially failed in executing it, we are very apt to abandon it altogether." For instance, a person who has been accustomed so rise at ten, resolves to rise at six and after a few successful attempts he happens to sleep till seven; there is great danger that he will relapse into his former habit, or probably even go beyond it, and lie till noon. It is the same with resolutions as to economy and temperance, or any thing else; if we cannot do all we intended, or make one slip, we are apt to give up entirely.
Now what we should aim at is, always to do the best we can under existing circumstances, and then our progress, with the exception of slight interruptions, would be continual.

The third and last weakness to which I allude is, "the practice of eating and drinking things because they are on the table, and especially when they are to be paid for." How seldom it happens that two men leave a few glasses of wine in a de-cater at a college-house, though both have had enough! and the consequence of not doing so is frequently to order a fresh supply; but, at any rate, even the first small excess is pernicious. Escess, however slight, either in solids or liquids, dis-turbes the powers of digestion, and of course diminishes the full benefit of any meal. It often induces an indisposition to move, and so one excess leads to another. What is called a second appetite is generated; and the proper bounds once passed, it is not easy to fix another limit. The importance in a man's life of stopping at enough, is quite incalculable; and to be guilty of excess for the reason I have just mentioned, though very common, is the height of folly. A very small quantity will cause the difference between spending the remainder of the day profitably or agreeably, and in indolence and dissipation.

THE JEWESSES.

Fontanes asked Chateaubriand, "if he" could assign a reason why the women of the Jewish race were so much handsomer than the men?" to which Chateaubriand gave the following truly poetical and Christian one:—"The Jewesses," he said, "have escaped the curse which alighted upon their fathers, husbands, and sons. Not a Jewess was to be seen among the crowd of priests and rabble who insulted the Son of God, scourged him, crowned him with thorns, and subjected him to ignominy and the agony of the cross. The women of Judea believed in the Saviour, and assisted and soothed him under afflictions. A woman of Bethany poured on his head precious ointment, which she kept in a vase of alabaster. The sinner anointed his feet with perfumed oil, and wiped them with her hair. Christ, on his part, extended his mercy to the Jewesses. He raised from the dead the widow of Nain, and Martha's brother, Lazarus. He cured Simon's mother-in-law, and the woman who touched the hem of his garment. To the Samaritan woman he gave a spring of living water, and a compassionate judgment to the woman in adultery. The daughters of Jerusalem wept over him; the holy women accompanied him to Calvary, brought him spices, and weeping sought him in the sepulchre. Woman, why weepst thou? His first appearance after the resurrection, was to Mary Magdalene. He said to her, 'Mary.' At the sound of his voice, Mary Magdalene's eyes were opened, and she answered, 'Master.' The reflection of some very beautiful ray must have rested on the brow of the Jewesses."

After an absence of two years spent in travelling, I saw her again at the theatre. She was the attraction of the whole house; all eyes in the pit were fixed upon her; and I, after one, could scarcely venture off a second glance; at length, I summoned resolution,—obtained a full view of her,—but how was I horror struck!
The reason of the general observation her entrance caused, was now apparent; a cold shivering came over me; my knees trembled!

Poor, unhappy Henrietta! I sighed, as I convulsively bit my lips. One of my neighbours perceiving my emotion, touched my elbow, and said, 'Do you observe that young lady in the center box—the first row? Is it not surprising that so young a creature should have white hair?' And with such sparkling black eyes too! remarked another who sat thousand paces! If a writer of romance were here, said a third this beautiful monster would furnish materials for an excellent ballad, something like 'The Elf,' at which we know not whether to laugh or cry. Black eyes and white locks, our situation and abhorrence a true and lively picture of the literature of the day! I could have annihilated the impertinent puppies.

A last the curtain rose; what was acted I know not. The audience laughed. I ground my teeth in agony. I several times thought of making a bolt for the door, but an irresistible power chained me to the spot where my devoted victim presented herself. Cold drops stood upon my brow; but I remained. The play was over, and my tormentors recommended talking of the young girl with the grey hair.

For my part said I I think it not unlikely that this poor thing in some lonely walk at night stumbled upon a ghost. Have you read the Scherir von Prevoritz, by Komer?

It is a poet and a Swabian, interpreted a person at my back. Trust me, there are no such creations as ghosts and sorcerers; I am a physician, and can explain to you how it happens that nature produces on certain qualities of her certain effects!

At I you are a doctor, are you? remarked a new speaker, come, come, expose it all to us ex cathedra. The hair of a young girl cannot change its colour without some extraordinary cause. She must have been subject to some terrible calamity—some shock. Perhaps her husband was murdered in her arms, or she dropped her child as she was dancing it at a window, and dashed its brains out on the pavement.

Excuse me, gentlemen your conjectures all fall to the ground, said the doctor, with an authoritative tone; I can't you at once perceive that this charming creature is not a mother—perhaps unmarried?

How old may the poor thing be? inquired one.

Sixteen, replied another.
Eighteen! exclaimed I, scarce knowing what I was saying.

What, are you acquainted with her, then?
exclaimed all in a breath.
I made no reply.

He surely must be able to tell us something about her, doggedly remarked one of the party.
I shrewdly guess that this young maiden owes her white hair to some cross in love, to some—In a paroxysm of despair I seized the hand of the last speaker. Hold, sir; spare me; I am a wretch—a perjured villain.

What effect this outburst of my anguish, this involuntary confession of my wrong to Henrietta—wrought from me by a guilty conscience—produced on my auditor, may well be imagined; but luckily for me at this moment the orchestra let its thunder,—all that noise and fury signifying nothing, that characteristic modern music; and the curtain rose again. But what fictitious sorrow,—what love, remorseless memory pictured, and incense to true and faithful, how she had vowed to me her innocent, weak heart, and its dawning affections; how I had sworn to be eternally hers; to adore her whom I had so shamefully forgotten and forsaken. Alas! I now too late, perceived that I had poisoned all the springs of life and happiness: that the Henrietta whom I had left so blooming, so confident and happy was now with white hair and a broken heart, sinking into the grave. Miserable wretch! I exclaimed, it is too late to redeem the past? I thought flashed across the darkness of my mind—too late—no perhaps your repentance may make all well again. The mighty power of love—I will throw myself at her feet—well—

My resolve was made—the performance was nearly at hand—I rushed out of the pit.
Some one seized me by the hand. "Gustavus?" Felix! you here! you have seen her! I abruptly inquired.

Her? who?
I left her only a few minutes ago. You find her much altered, eh?
Felix! I am a monster of iniquity!

What! said he, laughing, were you the sly rogue, the charlatan?
Charlatan! what mean you?
You must know that Henrietta's scarcely a month since, bought of a vendor, pomatum, a substance for making the hair grow—She had scarcely used it twice before her hair became as grey as you now see it.

Pomatum! it was not love, then!—the words died on my lips.
Love! replied Felix with surprise. No.
We have been married eighteen months, and are the happiest couple in the universe.
Whether my wife's hair be black or grey is to me a matter of indifference.

Eighteen months!—your wife!—and Alas! I was but the penalty that my incostancy so well merited. Take heed, ye of both sexes who possess that inestimable gift—the secret of love. Never trifle with it as I have done!

Spotting Horses' Feet.—It is almost impossible to get horses shod without having the frog cut away. All veterinary surgeons all horsemen, all leading blacksmiths, agree that the frog should not be pared one particle —not even trimmed. No matter how pliable and soft the frog is, cut it away smooth on all sides and in two days it will be dry and hard as a chip. You might as well cut off the leaves of trees, and expect them to flourish as to pare away the frog and have a healthy foot. The rough, spongy part of the frog is the foot what leaves are to the tree—the lungs.

Never have a red hot shoe put upon the foot to burn it level. If you can find a blacksmith that is mechanic enough to level the foot without red hot iron, employ him. The burning process deadens the hoof and tends to contract it. If you do not think so, try the red hot poker on your finger nail, and see if it will not affect the growth of that.

There are many important points in shoeing horses, but these two are more important than all the rest, level to the apprehension of men not skilled in horses, and the two most disregarded.—[Mirror & Farmer.

ACCIDENT TO A NEW BRUNSWICKER.—A young married couple, son of Mr. Condon, blacksmith, Portland, met with a severe accident recently in the States. He had been engaged in a railway. One night, about 7 or 8 o'clock, while a train was in motion he slipped between the cars. With great presence of mind he hurriedly threw his body outside the rail, but the cars passed over his legs. The train proceeded on its way, and Condon lay on the track all night, so that when he was

SUMMARY.

REMARKABLE VOYAGE FROM LIVERPOOL TO NEW YORK.—The last voyage of the steamship Oceanic, of the White Star Line, from Liverpool to New York, is one of the most remarkable that has taken place during the past winter, affording a new and striking illustration of the ability of the latest style of steamers to face and defy the fiercest storms on the Atlantic. The voyage lasted from Dec. 21st to Jan. 10th, nearly twenty days. This delay arose from an unavoidable accident which occurred on the day after Christmas. On Christmas Day a storm arose, and increased next day to full gale accompanied by a mountainous sea by which three of the propeller blades were broken, leaving only one blade unharmed. In this serious predicament Captain Thompson frankly consulted the passengers and at their solicitation decided to continue the voyage to New York. Sails were set, but the squalls were so terrific that the canvas, although new, was blown to shreds. On Jan. 8th a sinking vessel, the "Mountain Eagle," bound from Elizabeth to Portland, was sighted and the captain of the brig, the mate and five seamen, who had been in water up to their waists for twenty-four hours, were taken off and kindly cared for on board the "Oceanic." Under very trying circumstances, the steamer behaved splendidly, and Captain Thompson, and all the officers and men under his command, are fully entitled to the high praises bestowed upon them at the meeting of passengers held on board, as the "Oceanic" was coming into port, to pass resolutions complimenting them upon their efficiency, courtesy and gallant bearing throughout a long and eventful voyage.

IMPORTANT FACTS CONCERNING VACCINATION.—During the last three or four months, or more, the cities of London, Paris, New York and Lowell, and other European and American cities, have been visited with a severe wave of small pox. The alarm which attends the spread of this dreadful epidemic renders anything relating to its prevention or to the amelioration of its terrors of great public interest. The physicians and health boards after the most careful study and observation, report that vaccination does not to a very great degree in the prevention of the disease, the statistics showing that the proportion of deaths is very much less in districts where vaccination has been attended to than elsewhere.

It is also shown in the rare instances where vaccinated persons have taken the disease, that it is much less fatal than it would otherwise have been, and that in the present epidemic not more than six per cent.

As to the question whether vaccination ever loses its protective power, it is stated as the result of many observations, that when the operation has been properly performed the immunity from liability is almost entire, but that it is sometimes difficult to determine the perfection of the preventive; and that re-vaccination once in seven years, while doing no harm, may do much good.

THE TRAGEDY AT ST. PETER'S, C. B.—A correspondent of the Cape Breton "News" gives the following account of the tragedy at St. Peter's:—Miss Laffort, daughter of Wm. Laffort, was confined this summer, and stated that Wm. Butler was the father. Butler shortly after went to the parents and wanted to marry the girl, but the parents would not consent in any way. However Butler built a house and provided sufficient provisions to maintain a wife in a comfortable manner for the winter. It appears that Butler and Miss Laffort had a meeting a few weeks ago, and it was agreed on before a third party that she was to leave her father's house and accompany him to L'Ardoire and get married by the priest. On the fatal night previous to the day appointed, Aleck Laffort, son of Wm. Laffort, had some suspicion, and was on the watch. Shortly after dark, Butler went about one hundred yards from Wm. Laffort's house, and there remained with the expectation of meeting Miss Laffort, as she was to be with him. He sat on a stump and on seeing a dog he got up, and was immediately shot with slugs. The next door neighbors, on hearing the shot, went directly to the spot and found Butler weltering in his blood, at once they conveyed him to his mother's home. Medical aid was at once called for, Dr. MacDougall was prompt, and extracted a number of slugs. A Justice Duncan McRae, appeared with him. The Revd. Priest Quinone, in a time, was at the house. Butler gave his affidavit that it was Aleck Laffort that shot him and making a sad oath at the time. The revd. gentleman administered the rites of the Church with sad feelings. Butler lived the night and day.—Hal. R-corder.

A REMARKABLE WATCH.—A remarkable mechanical curiosity has been constructed in London. It is a watch belonging to a member of Parliament and designed and made expressly for him by James Ferguson Cole, the celebrated London Watchmaker. This unique pocket chronometer has a silver dial on which are nine hands, indicating respectively the hours, minutes, and seconds; the days of the week, the weeks of the month; the months of the year. It corrects itself for unequal months that is to say, changes when they have thirty and thirty-one days, and also corrects itself for leap year. It is so constructed that any slight agitation of the watch, such as the ordinary exercise of walking, winds it up. This may be worn perfectly for years without requiring even to be opened, although it can also be wound by a key in the usual manner. The dial is arranged in five circles, and with in the largest, the hour circle, there is a semi circle showing the moon's age and phases by means of gold on a ground of blue steel. At the back of the watch is a gold indicator for ascertaining the time in the dark by touch.—The complication of the mechanism may be imagined, and yet the watch is of ordinary dimensions and may be conveniently worn in a gentleman's pocket. It cost the sum of eight hundred guineas.

THE THIRD PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF BOSTON.—On the evening of Sabbath January 7th, the anniversary of the Sabbath School of the Third Presbyterian Church of Boston Mass., was celebrated, when appropriate addresses were made by Mr. Charles Gardiner, the superintendent, and by the pastor, the Rev. W. A. McCorkle, D. D. The reports submitted afforded most gratifying evidence of growing numbers and interest. But three months have elapsed since the settlement of the pastor, and during that period the sum of $26,336 has been raised, and disbursed, $63,36 for the annual expenses of the church and $20,000 towards liquidating the debt of the church property.

Mr. Henry Gleiselin editor of the Norfolk Journal, eloped the other day with a young lady of that city, and sailed for Europe, whereupon the Raleigh "North Carolinian" thus comments:—We know Henry Gleiselin well. A more accomplished gentleman never lived in Norfolk. Before he began editing the "Journal" he was a cotton factor in that city. Never would we have believed it of him. Mr. Gleiselin was one of the chief moving spirits that brought Gilbert Walker to the gubernatorial chair of Virginia. But he turned editor. That's what ruined him!

LOOK OUT FOR THEM.—Those "queer" letters offering any quantity of counterfeit money for a very small sum of genuine coin are abundant all over the country. They are pretty well known by this time as the most thorough swindles, and if any one feels sufficiently indiscreet and dishonest to attempt to enter in to negotiations they need only look to the rather costly experience of those who in time past have tried the same operation.

REMOVAL.

The "STANDARD OFFICE" has been removed to the large rooms over the Store of Mr. Stevenson, and Mr. J. L. Street, on Water Street Entrance from Wm. Henry Street.

The Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, JAN. 31, 1872.

The Schools.

The Common Schools of this place are now in active operation, and everything moves on smoothly, under the direction of the Trustees, who are receiving the support of the public. The want of books for the children for the first few days, was somewhat of a drawback, but this is now in a measure remedied, as a supply has been received; but further supplies are required. Discarding all the old text books from the schools and replacing them by an entirely new set, was an injudicious arrangement. They could not be had by many who were willing to pay for them, while a large number of the parents have not the means of purchasing them, as some poor families have as many as six children attending the schools; in fact there is a large increase of pupils, a fact which must be gratifying to those who favor free schools. There are so many small children ready to attend school, that we shall not be surprised to learn that the Trustees have established a primary school, under the direction of a female teacher. We have heard it mooted to establish a private school for young ladies; which those who wish to do so can accomplish; but it will not receive aid either from the Trustees or the public chest.

The Hon. S. L. TILLEY, C. B., Minister of Customs, arrived at St. John on Thursday evening last, and was the guest of Albion Division, at his dinner at the Victoria Hotel on Friday evening last. The hon. gentleman is a Past Worthy Patriarch of the National Division. The dinner is described as a most enjoyable and high toned affair. He made an eloquent speech in response to the toast "Our Guests." Mr. Tilley stated as an item of information, "that the surplus revenue of the Dominion at the close of the fiscal year, after paying all expenses, save the interest of the Intercolonial Railway and the purchase of the North West Territory, was five and a half millions of dollars. In another year the prospect is good for six and a half millions, and in a very few years seven and a half millions."

The Minister of Customs will visit St. Andrews this week.

CREDIT TO WHOM CREDIT.—The Miramichi "Gleaner" appears to doubt the statement that the STANDARD is the oldest paper in New Brunswick, and states that the "Gleaner" is in its forty-second year, and "that we have claimed a seniority we do not possess." Whereupon that sprightly paper the "Tribune," yet in its teens, adds—"The 'Gleaner' like the 'Standard' sometimes dies and comes to life again," and that it may be possible that "on one occasion they were both dead at the same time."

Without feeling desirous to claim being the oldest paper, we give an unqualified contradiction to both statements for the following reasons. The first number of the "Standard" was issued on the 10th September, 1833, and it has been continuously published every week up to the present 31st January, 1872, files of which can be seen in the Office by any one who may choose to examine them. The "Gleaner" was discontinued for a length of time, and resurrected by its present publisher, son of the former proprietor. It cannot consequently be considered the "oldest paper in the Province," although established in 1830.

The STANDARD unlike some other papers, has not passed out of its proprietors hands from financial or other difficulties—its has not been subsidised by any man or party, and its record will show, that it has not changed its views on Confederation, as it is patent to the public some of its contemporaries have done—nor was it started with the object of advocating any man's election. Is the "MYSTERY" cleared up? Good morning, "Tribune!"

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday morning last, just as the train was leaving the station, a young man named Charles Wyman, who was at work between the cars met with a severe accident, a plank broke and struck him across the abdomen, causing internal injuries. He was taken in the cars to his home at Richmond Corner, Carleton.

ROBBERY.—On Wednesday evening last, while Mr. Wm. Snodgrass was at tea, his shop was unlocked with a false key, and his pocket book containing $35 stolen from his desk. This is the second time Mr. Snodgrass has been robbed.

A correspondent at St. George, says: "Our people refused to elect Trustees because the District (No. 15) is not 'correctly divided.' We are not however opposed to the new School Law, but rejoice that it has become imperative to support our schools by direct taxation. What we do complain of is the carelessness, indifference or whatever you please to call it, of the Government Inspector. Whose nominee is he? All we in the District ask is fair play, and we are bound to have it."

NICELY "PUT."—The "Carleton Sentinel" quietly hits off the forth coming Candidates for Ottawa, from St. John. A gentle rubbing down in the inoffensive style by our Woodstock contemporary will do no harm, and may do much good. The "Sentinel" says:

"Our St. John contemporaries will never suffer for lack of self-estimation. The Editor of the 'Telegraph' proposes to be a candidate for Ottawa at the next election, for St. John, when the 'Morning News' eulogises the aspirant for parliamentary honors, and suggests that unless the answers are quite satisfactory—unless the Editor of the 'Telegraph' is 'Sound on the Goose'—he, the 'News,' will have a candidate in the field to thrash him. Go in gentlemen and win; divide the places among you: two, take the County; when you get the new seats—let the 'Honorist' represent the City, and then if any of the small fry of St. John Editors want constituencies let them come out into the country districts. You might as well run the whole machine."

WESTWARD HO!—We are in receipt of the prospectus of a weekly journal to be published on the 28th Feb., at Ottawa, by James Morris; it is to be devoted to the cause of Canadian Immigration, and will be especially useful to intending emigrants from Great Britain to B. N. America. From the prospectus we feel assured that its proprietor, Mr. Morris, is the right man to conduct a paper such as "Westward Ho!" is to be. The Government will, it is probable, aid the enterprise by subsidizing it and furnishing a large number of copies for circulation in the Mother Country.

The Canadian Illustrated News, of the 27th inst., contains several well executed pictures and a large amount of interesting reading matter. This excellent journal is worthy of extensive patronage. Published by G. E. Desbarats, Montreal. $4 per ann.

CHROMO.—We have received from the proprietors of the "Star Spangled Banner" a beautiful Chromo of a bunch of Flowers. It is without exception the best colored picture we have yet received from publishers in the United States.

ATLANTIC & PACIFIC RAILROAD.—The San Francisco "News Letter" of the 30th ult., has a lengthy notice of the Surveys of this Line. It mentions the arrival of Mr. Charles Haslett, C. E., and his party at Camp Cady, having completed their work from the head of Santa Clara River Valley to the Colorado River crossing. Mr. Haslett is well known here, where he resided for several years and married a daughter of the late Mr. James Berry. He is assistant to Mr. E. N. Robinson, engineer in charge of the California Division of the A. & P. Railroad. Mr. Haslett and his party were to winter in the mountains, between the head of Salinas Valley and San Francisco Pass. Mr. H. was reported well; he no doubt found much greater difficulties to encounter on his present survey, than he did on N. B. & C. Railway.

The Daily "News" says:—Some Nova Scotia papers assert that public sentiment in Nova Scotia is decidedly adverse to the ratification by the Dominion Parliament of the Fishery provisions of the Washington Treaty. Others apparently equally well informed, declare the exact opposite to be the truth. It is important that the real facts the case should be authoritatively ascertained. This could best be done by eliciting the opinion of the Nova Scotia Legislature on this subject. Considering the importance of the interests involved, it is surprising that the Nova Scotia Government does not summon that Legislature to meet in time to pronounce upon the Treaty where it deals with Nova Scotia interests, before it comes up for consideration by the Dominion Parliament.

BANK OF B. N. A.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of this Bank held in London last month, the court of directors declared a dividend of 8 per cent. per annum, free of income tax. The chairman congratulated the Directors on the soundness of the bank's business, and attributed the prosperity of the institution largely to the prosperity of Canada during the year. The business of Canada, he said, seemed to be on a sounder commercial basis than for many years past, and if Canada continued to prosper the bank would also prosper. He also paid a high compliment to the ability and energy of Mr. McNab, the general manager.

For the Standard.

Mr. Editor:—That meddlesome St. Andrews correspondent of the "Telegraph" is again at his scribbling, and has made misstatements in his letter published in that paper of the 25th inst. I would not now condescend to notice the fulsome paragraphs had he not made use of slurs, and stated untruths. Since this man's advent here he has been a source of annoyance, and this time let me inform him he has made a grand mistake in attacking either the School Trustees or other gentlemen, and it is very evident that they care not for him or the "Tannamany ring" of which he is a full member with all the honors.

Mr. J. A. Russell has not, nor did not have anything to do with the inauguration of the School Law. Miss Smith and Miss Morrison do not teach "primary schools," and the quarters at the Wilburton house I understand from the Trustees, are for comfort and headfulness, as suitable quarters as could be obtained.

Yours, ONE OF THE PUBLIC.

INTER NOS.—What makes Ringers grow—Henry Ward Beecher, and Horace Greeley. Court Journal.—The indefatigable patriarch of the Last. I—THINK—Pendulum tongue individual whose influence ain't much, anyhow. Tannamany—To be heard from, COCHIN.

The citizens of St. John are resolved, the the Master of Customs shall not be idle during his brief visit to the city. He is to address meetings in the Divisions Rooms, preside at the anniversary meeting of the Sunday School Union, on Friday evening in the Mechanics Institute, and other gatherings, besides answering questions and giving explanations during the day. Well, it is fortunate that he has the ability to fulfil all these requirements.

THE GRAMMAR SCHOOL has been placed under the control of the School Trustees.

ITEMS

—Among the recent Government Appointments we notice the name of Thomas McVay, Esq., as Justice of Peace for the County of York.

—John Hastings, Esq., a prominent Dry Goods merchant of St. John, died suddenly on Friday of congestion of the lungs.

—A little daughter of Mr. Samuel Price, Carleton, St. John, was badly burned on Friday last.

—A fight took place in the St. John Jail on Friday between a debtor and a criminal named Wallace, who was about being taken to the Penitentiary.

—The trains on the N. B. & C. Railway have arrived on time, notwithstanding the snow drifts. —Fulton's Challenge to Brown, of Halifax, to row a scull race has been accepted, but there is some hitch as to the course. Fulton will not row in Bedford Basin or any other place near Halifax, for very good reasons. Fulton offers to row at Digby, Annapolis, or Springfield, Mass.

—On a farm at Ogdensburg, owned by one Astell, a two year old Ayshire bull and a yearling ram recently fought a desperate battle, which continued two days, at short intervals. In the last round the bull was knocked completely out of time, and fell dead, having succumbed to the fearful butting of his lighter but more active assailant.

—An artificial rose-bud worn in the button hole, is now considered quite the correct thing by young New Yorkers.

A Montreal Merchant Mr. Mullarky, who failed and compounded with his creditors eight years ago, has lately paid the full balance, $14,830, which remained due at the time of failure. Somebody says that "an honest man is the noblest and rarest work of God; whether this be so or not such acts of business integrity are worthy of notice."

—The Grand Duke Alexis is on his way back from the home of the buffaloes, and will be in St. Louis at the close of the week. He is said to be much pleased with his trip, and his interviews with the Indian chiefs are things likely to be remembered by him.

The Montreal Gazette says that some persons have been in New York and obtained a supply of counterfeit Dominion notes of the Denominations of one and two dollars, and that a considerable number of them are in circulation in the Maritime Provinces.

—Despite not small things. An old lady in New Jersey has made $10,000 by selling peanuts, and a wretched looking wood sawyer in Boston owns real estate, purchased by his earnings alone, worth $16,000.

After a four months drought in California they complained that it was too dry, and now after a three weeks' storm, they complain that it is too wet. Some people never will be satisfied.

—A young lady being asked by a rich old bachelor, "if not yourself, who would you rather be?" blushed as she sweetly replied, "Yours truly."

—A Charlestown (Mass.) photographer, while arranging the instrument preparatory to taking a young lady's picture, suddenly turned to give some directions to his fair customer and beheld her busily stuffing her cheeks with paper to fill out the meagre proportions which nature had so rudely neglected.

—At Louisville, Ky., Sunday morning a young man named Theo. Thorn, in a fit of insanity shot his sister Mrs. Green and her two daughters, aged 12 and 8 years. Mrs. Green and the oldest girl were shot in the stomach and will probably die. The younger was wounded in the hip and will recover. Thorn also attempted to shoot his brother-in-law. He then put a pistol to his own head and fired. The bullet glanced inflicting a painful but not dangerous wound.

—A Bangor chambermaid shaking a rug out of a second story window the other day, lost her balance and fell out of the window turning a complete somersault, but on landing jumped up, ran into the house, and resumed her duties.

MODEST REQUEST.—An insane colored man named James Rade presented himself to a Halifax lawyer on Tuesday last, requesting that papers might be made out which would prove him king of England. The request was not complied with.

—Half of the town of Monticello, Ark., was destroyed by fire Friday.

—The Trenton, N. J. Bank was robbed Sunday evening by five burglars who captured the watchmen. The loss in United States bonds stolen may be $100,000.
