

ALBION HOUSE.

1883 JANUARY. 1883

Bargains in Remnants

OUR ANNUAL CHEAP SALE

REMnants

WINTER DRY GOODS

IS NOW GOING ON.

IN ADDITION TO THE INDUCEMENTS OFFERED TO PURCHASE AT THE

REMNANT COUNTER,

A lot of Seasonable Goods have been reduced in the various departments in order to clear before Stock Taking.

Will take any quantity of Good, All-Wool HOMESpun during the next two months.

F. B. EDGECOMBE,
Queen St., Fredericton.

BRANCH: ST. MARY'S.

Fredericton, January 10

JUST RECEIVED

Tennant, Davies & Co.

One Case

AMERICAN CORSETS,

in all the Latest Styles.

AMERICAN

GRAY & WHITE COTTONS,

AMERICAN

GREY AND BLEACHED SHEETINGS,

Plain and Twill, all widths.

AMERICAN

TICKINGS, DUCKS, ETC.

CANADIAN

GREY AND WHITE COTTONS,

ST. CROIX COTTONS

PARK'S SHIRTINGS

Park's Knitting Cotton.

In stock, a splendid variety of HOUSEHOLD GOODS.

TABLE LINENS, TOWELLINGS,

NAPKINS, TOWELS, ETC.

INSPECTION INVITED.

TENNANT, DAVIES & CO.,

Directly Opp. Normal School,

Queen Street, Fredericton.

February 14, 1883

Maritime Farmer.

FREDERICTON, N. B., March 14, 1883.

Mr. Wetmore at Harvey.

The Leader of the Opposition, in his capacity as such, delivered his first public address at Harvey, Monday evening, a brief resume of which will be found elsewhere. In manner and manner Mr. Wetmore appeared to excellent advantage. His points were well taken, his language had the ring of sincere and honest conviction, and he carried his audience completely with him as he detailed the treachery by which Mr. Blair's Government attained power, the interest in the new formation, and the evidence on all hands, of its early overthrow. Mr. Wetmore shattered the assertions that have been made by the Government press, that it is a question between himself and Mr. Blair for the Attorney Generalship, and his utterances on this point were clear and unmistakable. Mr. Wetmore does not seek office at this time, but he seeks to restore to York the influence and prestige this constituency lost by the advent of Mr. Blair to power. Mr. Wetmore has struck chords that will reverberate throughout the length and breadth of this constituency. We invite our readers to peruse carefully his remarks, and if their hearts are not responsive to Mr. Wetmore's appeals, then we mistake the character of our people, and their love for simple justice, and fair play.

A Grave Mistake.

Mr. Blair has a very undignified habit of sneering at his opponents, he does not mean to Mr. Wetmore, however, and his reference to Harvey to Mr. Estabrook, as "a man of straw" was certainly in bad taste. Mr. Estabrook is quite as respectable as Mr. Blair, and as an intelligent farmer, can afford to let Mr. Blair's sneers pass by unheeded. But Mr. Estabrook's friends, every man who loves fair play, will resent the Attorney General's insult. Mr. Blair, perhaps, may look down at Mr. Estabrook from his own intellectual pinnacle, he may be eloquent in words and eloquent in gesture, but he makes a grand mistake if he assumes he can attract support by sneering at his opponent, as "a man of straw." Mr. Estabrook is just as much a representative man as Mr. Blair, but of course he belongs to that class of people, the farmers, whom Mr. Blair has "boycotted" in his administration. The day of reckoning, however, is at hand, and Mr. Estabrook's fellow countrymen, the men who constitute and control the material wealth and influence of the Province—the farmers—will have their say then.

Territorial Injustice.

One of the most weighty general objections to Mr. Blair's government, and one which has already had its effect in the loss of one constituency in the Province, is the almost total ignoring of territorial rights in the selection of its personnel. What political leader ever ventured on the formation of a government without calling to his councils, at least one representative from the Counties of Northumberland, Kent, Westmorland, Kings, Queens, Carleton and Sunbury. It will be said that Mr. Gillespie and Dr. Vail, fill that position, but those two gentlemen have to be content with occupying merely nominal places in the Cabinet, for the most part, the backbone of the country, is left almost entirely out in the cold. It is St. John and its tributaries against the Province, and while we are perfectly willing that all the prominence it has a right to claim, should be given to St. John, it has no claim to possess two of the five portfolios in the administration. There are interests to be regarded, and affairs to be administered, which should be placed in the charge of gentlemen representing constituencies in those interests.

The Woodstock Press which hitherto has been unfriendly to the party, at present controlling the government has a pointed article on this subject. It says:—
In the formation of the new Administration the claims of Carleton County were completely ignored. We do not know whether Mr. White did, or did not, consent to give to Carleton County a representative in the Ministry; but we do know he should have done so. No office in the government, not even the office of Minister of Agriculture, was fitted to the responsibility of representing the County. Mr. Lindsay was Commissioner of the Board of Works. It is now time for a representative to be given to Carleton County, and the responsibility of representing the County should be placed in the hands of a man who is not only a resident of the County, but who is also a farmer, and who is also a representative of the County in the Legislature. The Ministry may not be a day on, as the existence of the Ministry is a mere shadow, and its existence will be a mere shadow of a shadow.

A Worthy Object.

We hope our citizens will bear in mind and patronize freely, the Concert to be given at St. Dunstan's Hall, on Saturday evening, in aid of the poor of Ireland. The object is a most worthy one, and we have every sympathy. The amount of suffering in that unfortunate land at present is very great. From a late despatch we learn that "evictions are still going on, but it is only when one is accompanied with extraordinary brutality that it attracts the notice of the public. An occurrence of this sort happened in County Kerry on Thursday last. A family was evicted, one member of which, a young girl, was too ill to be removed. Nevertheless the officers of the law forced the unhappy parents out into the wintry air, and the spirit of the dying girl was soon transported to a world where evictions are unknown.

Such an instance as the foregoing is truly heartrending, and must appeal to the magnanimity of every individual, in whose breast are implanted the commonest feelings of humanity.

One of the conditions of life in India is amusingly illustrated by the following resolution, recently passed by the Municipal Commission of Bombay:—"Resolved, that the monkeys in the town be removed, and that the monkeys be caught and sent out into the jungle, and that arrangements be made that monkeys may not receive any injury while being sent out."

The Maritime Farmer only $1.00 a year.

The Farmers Ignored.

What do the farmers of York—the life blood of the constituency—think of the treatment they have received from Mr. Blair in the formation of his Government. Were their interests considered, their wishes consulted, in their avocation represented in the new combination? In the late administration the agriculturists were proud to claim three representatives.

They were represented by Hon. Mr. Colter of Kings.

They were represented by Hon. Mr. Morton of Sunbury.

But Mr. Blair ignores the farmers, they are few fellows when he makes his periodical visits to the country to solicit their votes, but when he forms a Government, not a farmer finds a place in it.

Mr. Blair by his act, "can raise cats, sheep and pigs, they can make butter and cheese, and they HAVE VOTES, but they don't know anything about running the Government. That's the business of lawyers and editors, etc., etc., and the farmers have no rights."

Excuse us York! vote down Mr. Blair and secure once more, your just representation in the administration of affairs.

Counting without their Host.

People who underestimate Mr. Estabrook's strength in the parishes, would do well to study the election returns of June last, in which it will be found that in SEVERAL parishes Mr. Estabrook, although almost a stranger to the great body of electors, and without organization or assistance of any kind, polled a larger vote than Mr. Blair, who has been stumping the constituency for half a generation. Mr. Blair then had an opportunity to display his ability as a political leader, while Mr. Estabrook was a stranger, and up to that time had been only nominally connected with politics. Those who reckon on Mr. Blair having a "soft thing," will tune their harps to another air.

Base Ingratitude.

We have hitherto information for Mr. Elder, the Provincial Secretary, who prides himself upon being the head, front and tail of the Government, that he has been guilty of a most base ingratitude. Mr. Elder, who was described as the "Skipper, crew, and boat's mate," of the schooner Nancy Jane.

Mr. Elder besides being Provincial Secretary, President of the Board of Agriculture, etc., owns and controls the Telegraph, in which have recently been found the official utterances of the government, and it was just and proper that it should be so. But what will Mr. Elder say when he learns that Mr. Blair, the "leader," at Harvey, Monday night, repudiated the Telegraph as the Government organ, and repudiated the Government. But Mr. Blair never did care for Mr. Elder. From 1878 to 1883, Mr. Blair regarded Mr. Elder as a weak backed politician, and Mr. Elder considered Mr. Blair a hopeless failure as a politician, and the unpleasant feeling between the two gentlemen evidently continues.

Presbyterians in Council.

We have with us this week, the members of the Presbytery of St. John who are holding their regular session in St. Paul's Church. In looking over the names of the learned gentlemen comprising this body, one is struck with the great change that has taken place in its personnel within a few years. The familiar faces of the late Rev. Dr. Brooks, Dr. Watters, Mr. Mitchell, and others, are no longer there, but new faces have taken their place, and the Presbytery is now a new body. The following is an account of a dreadful storm, which will be read with interest at this particular time, that took place in London, England, on the night of the 26th Nov., 1793, and continued to rage with great violence all the following morning. The damage done to the city was estimated at £1,000,000 sterling.

Upwards of two thousand stacks of chimneys were blown down, and the streets were covered with broken tiles and slates from the roofs of houses. The great tower of St. Martin's Church was blown down, and several churches were rolled up like skins of parchment; and at Westminster Abbey, St. Andrew's Hospital, and the House of Commons, the roofs were blown down, and the buildings were in a state of ruin. The roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down.

The following is an account of a dreadful storm, which will be read with interest at this particular time, that took place in London, England, on the night of the 26th Nov., 1793, and continued to rage with great violence all the following morning. The damage done to the city was estimated at £1,000,000 sterling.

Upwards of two thousand stacks of chimneys were blown down, and the streets were covered with broken tiles and slates from the roofs of houses. The great tower of St. Martin's Church was blown down, and several churches were rolled up like skins of parchment; and at Westminster Abbey, St. Andrew's Hospital, and the House of Commons, the roofs were blown down, and the buildings were in a state of ruin. The roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down.

The following is an account of a dreadful storm, which will be read with interest at this particular time, that took place in London, England, on the night of the 26th Nov., 1793, and continued to rage with great violence all the following morning. The damage done to the city was estimated at £1,000,000 sterling.

Upwards of two thousand stacks of chimneys were blown down, and the streets were covered with broken tiles and slates from the roofs of houses. The great tower of St. Martin's Church was blown down, and several churches were rolled up like skins of parchment; and at Westminster Abbey, St. Andrew's Hospital, and the House of Commons, the roofs were blown down, and the buildings were in a state of ruin. The roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down.

The following is an account of a dreadful storm, which will be read with interest at this particular time, that took place in London, England, on the night of the 26th Nov., 1793, and continued to rage with great violence all the following morning. The damage done to the city was estimated at £1,000,000 sterling.

Upwards of two thousand stacks of chimneys were blown down, and the streets were covered with broken tiles and slates from the roofs of houses. The great tower of St. Martin's Church was blown down, and several churches were rolled up like skins of parchment; and at Westminster Abbey, St. Andrew's Hospital, and the House of Commons, the roofs were blown down, and the buildings were in a state of ruin. The roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down, and the roof of the guard-room at St. Martin's Church was blown down.

BLAIR'S LULLABY.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Collier's asleep!
While sold-out "healers" around him doth creep,
But Wetmore's snare voice doth bid them away,
A whispering—Let Blair pro ten have his say!

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Collier's awake!
Heating of the company feel an alkali!
Just now he's revengingly kicking and alight!
Cause Blair put out Colter and introduced Ryan.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, MacAdam is mad!
Which is for all turn-outs an open question:
Now rise the query—What shall the Gov. do?

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Oh rock-a-bye politics, Blair beware!
Last night dear purchases have opened a snare,
And hence here in mind an illusion shall flit,
Till out by you, may "coach" LaBlanc's still.

Shooting a Pigeon.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter.

Late Chicago papers contain lengthy accounts of a brutal murder in a saloon in that city, the particulars of which are given briefly as follows:—
James Elliott, the prize fighter, was shot and killed by Jerry Dunn, a well-known sportsman of Chicago. The shooting occurred in the saloon and restaurant of Hilly Langdon, better known as "Deating Hall," on Dearborn street, at the north-west corner of the alley known as Calhoun place, between Madison and Washington streets. It is doubtful who fired the first shot, but the preponderance of testimony proves that Dunn took the initiative. All the evidence shows that Dunn entered the restaurant some time after Elliott was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted, the well-known prize fighter, and that he was seated at a table waiting for supper in company with Fred Plasted,

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

YORK COUNTY ELECTION

Nomination, - - Friday, March 16
Polling, - - Saturday, March 23
Declaration, - Tuesday, March 27

THE PEOPLES' PARADE.

LEVERETT ESTABROOKS, ESQ.

THE CAMPAIGN IN YORK.

THE HARVEY MEETING

Mr. Wetmore's Able Arrangement of the Government.

Conceived in Sin and Born in Iniquity

There was a large gathering of the electors of Harvey at Mr. Wetmore's meeting in that locality, Monday evening, March 16. Mr. Wetmore occupied the chair, and the order and attention throughout was excellent. Mr. Wetmore, after being introduced, entered at once upon a vigorous arraignment of the Government, the corrupt means by which it attained power, its mismanagement, its duplicity and the reasons that prompted Mr. Estabrooks to enter the contest against the Attorney General.

Money well Invested.

TO RENT.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET.

TO LET

