EARLY END OF COAL STRIKE IS CONFIDENTLY PREDICTED

Mayor Ashbridge, of Philadelphia, Convinced That Work Will Be Resumed Before October 9.

Says Baer.

PLENTY BEFORE COLD WEATHER

House-The Strike Leaders in Consultation.

- Philadelphia Pa., Sept. 30. Mayor Ashbridge declined today to comply with the request of Mayor Maybury, of Detroit, to appoint a delegation of citizens to attend a conference to be held there on Oct. 9 to devise means for obtaining a reasonable coal supply from the mining regions of Pennsylvania, and West Vir- ginia. The mayor's reply follows: "Governor of Commonwealth, clergymen and citizens are actively working for settlement of strike in anthracite coal fields in this state. My judgment is that the differences will be adjusted and work resumed before date of conference named."

Mayor Ashbridge contracted today with President Baer, of the Reading

Talk of Coal Famine a Scare, further discussed, but the participants refused to make any statement when they came from the President's room.

- The principal subject under consideration at both conferences was the power of the President to interfere in any way with the coal strike. It is stated that no matter how much interested the administration may be ending the strike, it does not seem to have Conference at the Temporary White any power to act in the premises. The legal advisers of the President told him they could find no warrant in the constitution for federal interference. The only way by which there could be federal interference would be at the request of Gov. Stone, of Pennsylvania, and it was stated that he is not likely to ask for federal troops because he has not yet called out the
 - entire militia force in his State. The matter of federal interference by the appointment of receivers for the coal companies was also discussed, but the President was not informed that there was nothing in the constitution or any law to warrant such

MINERS' LEADERS CONFER.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 30 .- Presilent Mitchell and District Presidents Nichols, Fahey and Duffy conferred at strike headquarters today, but nothing could be learned about their deliberations. Mr. Mitchell was as reticent as ever regarding his visit to Philadelphia. The miners' leaders appeared to be in buoyant spirits, however, and the belief is growing that a crisis of some kind is at hand. The Delaware, Lackawanna and

The accompanying picture is a likeness of George F. Baer, whose defense of the coal operators' course has been answered by President Mitchell of the miners' union. Mr. Baer, the self-proclaimed "capitalist by divine right," is president of the great Reading Railroad, Coal and Iron Companies. He was elected to these important offices a little more than one year ago in succession to Joseph S. Harris, who retired at that time. This great captain of industry holds vast interests in probably a score or great enterprises and is the employer of nearly 5,000 men. He began life comparatively poor, but his extraordinary talent for financing properties soon brought him to

The mayor's telegram and the contract with President Baer are considered significant, coming as they do just after the visit here of President Mitchell, National Secretary-Treasurer Wilson and other officers

- of the United Mine Workers. SIMPLY A SCARE. New York, Sept. 30.-President Baer was asked today if there would be enough coal in this city to supply the demand before winter sets in: "Oh, certainly," he said. "The idea that there is going to be a scarcity of coal
- this winter is simply a scare. There will be plenty of coal in New York before the cold weather." The Commedcial Advertiser says: It was rumored in Wall street today, on pretty good authority, that President Roosevelt asked certain presidents of the coal roads to go to Washington to discuss with him a plan to end the strike. This was Secretary Root's
- mission to New York. CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON. Washington, Sept. 30. - The coal strike situation was the subject of a onference at the temporary White House today, in which the President, Attorney - General Knox, Secretary Moody, Postmaster-General Payne and Governor Crane, of Massachusetts, participated. Everyone connected with the conference was very reticent, but it is learned that the President is much concerned over the situation.Just what action can be taken is not
- The fact that a move has been made in the Massachusetts courts to have receivers appointed for the coal companies was discussed, but the legal view was that this was inadequate, and would not be likely to relieve the situation. The impression prevails that one reason for the hurried visit to bringing the strike to an end. The second conference lasted less than an hour. The coal situation was

- IN NEW YORK. New York, Oct. 1.-Mayor Low received a telegram yesterday from the mayor of Detroit asking him to appoint ten men to attend a conference in Detroit on Oct. 9 regarding the coal strike situation. The telegram says that the mayors of the other cities in the States affected by the anthracite strike have been similarly asked to send representatives to this proposed

- 150,000 tons usually in stock at this time of the year, there are but 20,000 tons of hard coal here. In tenement districts the price is 75 cents a bushel, which is at the rate of $25 a ton. Dealers in other parts of the city who were selling half tons have cut down the allowance to customers to quarter tons. Coal and coal dust by the pail of 20 pounds is selling at 25 cents. Robert Thedford, a large dealer, was refused a cargo of domestic size coal at $21. Some cannel coal appeared on the market at $14. half a ton at a time. Wood is sold at $4 50 a load or quarter of a cord, an

The New Cunarders Expected to Outsail All Their Competitors.

- London, Oct. 1 .- It was generally believed in Liverpool last night that Sir Christopher Furness and Sir Alfred Jones will make an offer to the Cunard Company, which may end in their taking a hand in the business of the company. It is believed that the new Cunard boats will be the festest liners afloat. They will be capable of steaming 25 knots an hour, and this will mean that Great Britain will wrest from Germany the laurels for speed and supremacy on the Atlantic. The Government will lend the money for the construction of these vessels,
- charging interest at the rate of 2% per cent and the company will repay the loan by annual payments extending over 20 years. The agreement is to remain in force for 20 years after that the company will not unduly raise

ARMOUR CORNERS WHEAT IN CHICAGO

September Cereal Sold on 'Change at 95 Cents.

GAIN OF OVER 7 CENTS IN A DAY

New York Stock Market Recovered Losses of Tuesday-Active at the Close.

Chicago, Sept. 30 .- September wheat cents, which is the highest price on of not guilty, and the youthful that cereal since the great Leiter deal

The cause of the high price today was the fact that all the available supply was practically cornered. Armour

& Co. had the greater part of it. H. H. Wells, member of the board of trade, today filed a petition asking for a temporary injunction against Armour & Co., J. J. Townsend, the board of trade and others to prevent what is technically known as the "indorsing Charles King, Slayer of Willie Freedown of margins."

This is practically the same action as was asked for in the recent corner in oats. The cause of petition was the alleged corner in September wheat by or two local houses.

At 95 cents there was a halt in the advancing figures, shorts apparently having succeeded in supplying their needs. The close was at the high price, a gain of 71% cents over yester-

REACTION IN WALL STREET. New York, Sept. 30.-The losses sustained in prices of stocks yesterday, which reached practically panic proportions, were more than wiped out today. There were traces of feverishness in today's trading after the spasmodic recovery at the opening, but as the day progressed the trading settled down to a growing buying movement, which became furiously active in the final dealings, and made the closing exceedingly buoyant on the largest volume of dealings of the day. The measures of relief for the money market offered to the secretary of the settlement of the coal strike, assisted the buoyant outburst at the close, the coalers taking the lead of the excitedly rising market. The money market showed none of the excessive stringency of yesterday, but rates for call loans went as high as 19 per cent in the forenoon, in spite of the relief at hand. Preparations for the Oct. 1 disbursements were a complicating factor; but during the afternoon the forces of relief began to make an impression upon the market. Apparently the necessary preparations for the October payments had also been completed. Call loan rates fell away rapidly and helped the very buoyant tone towards the close. HELP FROM WASHINGTON.

The remission of the requirement upon national banks to maintain their 25 per cent cash reserve against Government deposits promises to afford upwards of $30,000,000 of bank reserves for other purposes, or to follow the argument of the secretary to permit of additional credits to the amount of four times the cash reserves thus made available. This would equal $130,000,000 in additional credits for the country at large. The amount of Government deposits in New York banks amounts to $41,500,000, which would be the amount of the additional credits immediately available to the New York market. That is to say, over $10,000,000 of New York banks' cash is released from the reserve requirement. There was no mistaking the stimulus of this possibility upon speculative sentiment. The extent of the effect of the other measures proposed by the secretary is considered more open to question. The sudden response to the expectation of a settlement of the coal strike indicates that the growing bad effects of that struggle upon industry in general are becoming an increasing influence upon the values of securities. Reassuring intimations that the Louisville and Nashville settlement was progressing also helped to restore confidence.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 1.-The Franks murder case still remains enveloped in darkness. It was learned yesterday that the reason of Constable Lymburger's visit to and closed conversation with Chief Mains was due to a find that the constable thought perhaps might lead to a clue. It was a printed form, addressed to Mrs. Franks, dated about the middle of the month, from the John Hancock Insurance Company, of Hartford, refusing to take a risk on the woman's life, and was on the secretary in the corner of the room where the murder is supposed to have taken place. MYSTERIOUS STRANGER. A well dressed stranger, about 30 years of age, attended the funeral last Sunday, scanned everyone closely who entered the house, and afterwards walked twice around the casket to take a last look at the dead woman. Nationalists Talk of Staying Away Next Session.

WANT O'DOHERTY TO RESIGN

New York Sun's Cable Says Salisbury Wanted to Make Astor a Peer-King Wouldn't.

London, Oct. 1. - The object of the meeting of the Nationalist members of Parliament, summoned by John Redmond, for Oct. 7, the Pall Mall Gazette says, in consideration of the desirability of entire abstention from the autumn session of Parliament, whereby the Irish members will escape the odium of supporting the "coercionist" Government in passing the education bill. Inasmuch as the Catholics heartily favor the bill, the proposal is likely to lead to a lively debate. The Pall Mall Gazette further thinks that the proposed abstention is partially due to the fact that owing to the absence of Messrs. Redmond and Dillon in America (where they will attend the national convention of the United Irish League at Boston, Oct. 19), the work of directing the party-would fall on the "hated shoulders of Mr. Healy."

The members of the United Irish League of Donegal County demand the resignation of Wm. O'Doherty, who represents that seat in the House of Commons, because he attended the coronation of King Edward in Westminster Abbey.

Mr. O'Doherty, in his reply, clared that he intended to resign, and condemned the separation policy of the Irish Nationalists as impractic-

WHY SALISBURY QUIT. A London dispatch to the New York Sun says: A curious story has been persistently circulated for several weeks in parliamentary circles in .e-gard to Salisbury's retirement as prime minister of Britain.

It is affirmed that the coronation nonors prepared by Salisbury included peerages for William Waldorf Astor and Sir Edward Lawson. King Edward peremptorily refused to approve these. Salisbury replied that they had been promised and he must insist.

The King was not moved by this argument, whereupon Salisbury retired few days before the coronation and refusing to attend the ceremony, giving as the reason his alleged ill-health, for which at the time there was no foundation. This story was discredited when it first obtained circulation, but authorities now quoted have gained for it some credence.

BOERS WANT TO SEE KAISER. Referring to the desire of the Boer generals to obtain an audience with Emperor William, the Berlin cor-respondent of the London Times quotes a statement in the Cologne Gazette to the effect that that audience will only be granted on condition that the Boers abstain from every kind of political agitation in Ger The correspondent says the margin between correct demeanor and political agitation is extremely narrow, especially in Germany. In view of the most unmeasured denunciations of Great Britain by Germans, it would not require much of what the Cologne Gazette calls the Boers' "rustic cunning" to work the popular mind up to a state of excitement and inspire it, both in Germany and South Africa, with vain dreams

The people are fleeing to the mountains, leaving the dead unburied and dying uncared for. The Government has ordered additional doctors and medicines to be sent to Iloiio. The number of victims makes ordinary sanitary measures impossible. The totals for all the provinces Monday were 5,390 cases and 3,091 deaths.

MR. PECK'S STARTLING STORY

Plot to Murder a Lady and Defraud an Insurance Company.

Toronto, Oct. 1. - Crown Attorney Curry was yesterday officially made aware by W. J. Peck, manager of the Union Mutual Life, of this city, of an alleged insurance fraud and conspiracy to murder by a resident of Collingwood. It is alleged that another Collingwood man, whose name is for the present withheld, made a proposition to him to get his mother out of the way and then collect a policy upon her life of $1,500.

Rose, who is an insurance agent, further alleges that the other man offer-ed him $500 if he would manage to get rid of the old lady, and suggested that her body be dropped into the Notta-wasaga River.
Rose would not, according to this story, agree to this, and says that the would-be murderer then suggested that poison would do with a smaller risk. He finally paid Rose $20 to take his mother to the United States, as it was thought the affair could be more easily managed there.

Rose brought the woman to Toronto and kept her here for a week. Then he relented and told the insurance people of the scheme.

Mr. Peck gave the above story to Mr. Curry, and Rose afterwards confirmed it. Mr. Curry, having no power to move in the matter, sent a copy of Rose's allegations to the attorney-general and another to Crown Attorney Cotter, of Barrie.

CANADIAN COAL FIELDS

Large Bodies of Lignite Found in Manitoba.

Utilize the Nova Scotia Product in Other Sections.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.-D. B. Dowling has returned from a Government survey for coal and lignite in Manitoba, principally in the southern parts of the province. He found the seams to be greater in number and more widely distributed than heretofore supposed. These surveys have resulted in definitely locating the distribution, depth and qualities of the different seams.

The main facts respecting the occurrence of coal in these regions was well known to settlers, but development was delayed owing to the lack of definite and positive knowledge which the surveys have now supplied. Mr. Dowling made further examinations to de termine the occurrence of salt or gypsum, which is found in large deposits, has already been utilized to a small extent, and is destined to be an important factor in the development of the country.

THE NOVA SCOTIA MINES. Montreal, Oct. 1 .- Abner Kingman, or Kingman, Brown & Co., selling agents of the Dominion Coal Company, has gone to Sydney to confer with the officials to see what can be done by the company towards relieving the anticipated coal famine. It is proposed to snip coal from Louisburg by water throughout the winter, and thence by Grand Trunk to the leading Canadian centers.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

Mr. Richard A. Smith, Port Robinson, Ont., a respected farmer, who has resided at that place for 27 years, states: "For three months I was completely incapacitated for work, and have been cured of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Before this serious illness came on I had been troubled more or less with kidney and liver de-rangements for fifteen or twenty years, and lost much time and money in different treatments which were to no purpose. About a year ago I had to quit work on account of severe pains in my back and side, which daily grew worse. . "I was in a miserable state, and could get no comfort sitting or lying down, had little sleep, my appetite v.as poor, and I suffered a great deal. In the morning I would arise tired and enfeebled, and frequently felt discouraged, as neither doctors nor medicines did me any good. I was advised to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and did so with great benefit. Before I had finished four boxes I was able to be out and at work again with my old-time vigor and feeling better than for twenty years. I had also gained about 25 pounds in weight, and believe that my health is completely restored."

What Morgan Looks Like.

Imagine a face which combines the chief characteristic of Bismarck, Cecil vitality which every now and again, Rhodes and Lord Roberts and you can get an idea of what Mr. Pierpont Morgan is like.

There is not another face like it in the wide world, and could not be anywhere else but in America. Like the two historical giants first mentioned, he is tall, being over six feet in height, and fairly heavy, says Pearson's Weekly.
One's first impression of Morgan's countenance is that it is a fierce one, but a subsequent glance reveals an underlying good nature. It has enormous powers of expression and is marked by strong lines.

Life has written at great story upon Pierpont Morgan's countenance, which tells of battles, hopeless, hard fought, but won open-handed without dissimulation or subterfuge. He typifies the conquering spirit of Uncle Sam as few other living Americans do. Written in his countenance are his life secrets, hard work, indomitable will, tremendous powers of observation and assimilation, elephantine toughness tempered by flexibility and enormous, volcanic vital force. Morgan does not conceal his emo-tions, nor does he attempt to do so. When pleased he signifies his pleasure by hearty approval, if of a humorous kind by the heartlest of laughs. To look at him is almost to catch the infection of his intensely energetic nature, and he infuses all with whom he comes in contact with his spirit. Like most Americans, he smokes incessantly, large, strong cigars. He eats much, drinks moderately, works hard and sleeps hard. The only sign of failing about him is his hair, which is growing thin. What remains, however, is crisp, bright and silvery. He is one of those huge masses of as in the cases of Napoleon, Bismarck

A carbolic acid solution prepared for him on his arrival was administered by mistake in the form of an injection to another patient, Dr. Daniel L. Wasser, of South Highland avenue, East End, who died in a few hours. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death in Dr. Wasser's case. Now the mother and the cousin of the boy are near death's door.

A FATHER'S AGONY. The father, when he reached Pittsburg, begged his friends not to talk to him about the case. For the past two days, he says, he has had trouble which has almost led him to try to take his own life.

Just as his child was being removed from the train to a West Penn hospital ambulance two weeks ago the boy was seized with convulsions. His sufferings were awful. First the devoted mother tried to quiet him. He caught her hand in his teeth, lacerating it terribly. The lad's cousin rushed to the mother's assistance. He, too, was bitten in the hand.

After the little fellow's death at the hospital Mrs. Newell and her nephew took the remains to their Clarion county home, where they consulted as to the danger of the bites inflicted by the suffering boy.

They were advised to go to the Pasand the husband accompanied them to Baltimore. Their first treatment was administered before Mr. Newell left, The other two said it was "Spinas Disand hope for their recovery is held out, although the physicians at the institute consider the cases extremely critical, more so because of the length time since the wounds were in-

DREAM OF THIEVES

Mr. MacCrea's Remarkable Vision of Burglars.

EMPHASIZED BY A ROOSTER

Went Down Town to Office and Found the Counterpart of His Remarkable Revelation.

New York, Sept. 30 .- William H. MacCrea had a remarkable dream early on Saturday. Mr. MacCrea's dream came true in a truly wonderful way. None of Mr. MacCrea's friends doubt that he dreamed the strange dream, nor that he is telling the en-tire truth about it.

Mr. MacCrea resides in the Bronx, on Lorillard avenue, near One Hundred and Seventy-eighth street. He is a clerk for John R. Rose, a real estate agent, whose office is at Kingsbridge road and Decatur avenue. Mr. Ross is regent of the Fordham Lodge of the Royal Arcanum, which built, or is building, a structure containing lodgerooms. Bonds to pay for this building were issued, and Mr. Ross bought $5,000 of them, which he put in a strong box in his office.

Mr. MacCrea retired Friday night house, while they stood powerless to with an easy conscience. There was save him. The fatal coil entwined his nothing on his mind to provoke bad dreams. Nevertheless at 3 a.m. Saturday he was vastly disturbed by a most

The fact that a rooster was crowing in his back yard, a strange chanticleer, emphasized the warning that his dream had given

The Fate of the Yankee.

If Government statistics are to be relied on, the birth rate problem is yearly becoming a more serious one in the United States. The most recent census report on vital statistics findicates that the excess of births over deaths among the foreign-born population is much greater than among the native-born. This condition of affairs appears to have existed for many years without having attracted general attention; and now that it is being commented on by the press of the republic, the native-born Yankee is beginning to view the subject with some alarm. It would require only a simple calculation to show that a continuation of present conditions will soon make the genuine Yankee as rare as the aborigine whose extinction has been well-nigh accomplished with bullets and bad whisky. The census report on vital statistics for the decade of 1890-1900 gives the average annual increase in population due to excess of births over deaths as only 19.5 per thousand for the class born of native parents, while it was 36.5 for the class born of foreign white parents. In the New England States, the home to appear in a polo-game at 19 o'clock of the genuine Yankee, the difference in favor of the foreigner is so great as to be startling. The excess of birt's over deaths among the latter class for the period mentioned was 44.5 per thousand, and for the native class but 1.5. Conditions in New England are, of course, extreme, and have long been tion; but the fact that similar conditions prevail throughout the length and breadth of the republic, must cause alarm. The expansion of the United States, from the time the thirteen colonies asserted and obtained recognition of their freedom, has been a remarkable one, but not in all respects a satisfactory one from the viewpoint of the descendants of the men who first set foot on Plymouth Rock. It has been an evolution. Plentiful inter- viewpoint is not genius, but merely a mixture of foreign blood has been gradually but surely changing the type; and the average citizen of the United States today differs as radically from the "embattl'd farmers who fired the shot heard round the world," as he neaks. It is the custom to speak of the United States as an Anglo-Saxon own punishment. country, but if this evolution continues at the rate of progress indicated in the federal census returns, the element of Anglo-Saxon will be so small as to be scarcely discernible. Is the genuine Yankee doomed to extinction?

A Corner in Wheat.

Wheat sold on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday for 95 cents, the highest price reached since the Lelter corner four years ago. The market has been cornered, it is said, by Armour & Co., against whom actions have been entered in the courts. A corner is formed by an operator or group of operators contracting to take the availably supply of any commodity, or so much of the supply in sight, that they are able to create an artificial scarcity and squeeze the "shorts." The latter are operators who have contracted to supply customers with a particular quantity of any commodity at a given time and at a specified price, and who, to fulfill their obligations, are forced to buy from those who have cornered the market. Usually, in such cases, the unsuspecting shorts have contracted to sell to the very operators who are working the corner; they must buy of these men in order to sell to them. It is hardly possible, however, that a staple like wheat can be successfully cornered. Young Mr. Leiter in 1898 secured control of the visible supply to such an extent that the price rose the world over, to the great profit of the farmers, but the inevitable break came and Leiter was a loser by several millions. Prices may soar as long as the operator holds his supply, but when he is obliged to realize on it, the mere act of throwing an immense quantity on the market sends prices down with a rush, and the bears have their revenge.

Nearing the End.

The President of the United States and members of his cabinet have been conferring upon the coal strike situation. It is the first time the principle of federal interference in an industrial dispute, except for the purpose of enforcing order, has been recognized. Even if the executive finds it has no warrant in the constitution for wking action, the fact that it has debated the matter is significant. The President has declared for constitutional changes which will give Conrress control over the trusts, and nothing could so strengthen this arguparties are being compelled to come to- existence of such a newspaper would gether by the force of public opinion. Politicians could no longer ignore the popular wrath, and if some of them have interfered only from motives of self-preservation, the fact that they have made a move at all shows that capitalistic influence has had to bow to the sovereignty of the people. The coal barons are now thoroughly alarmed, as they realize that they have awakened the public conscience to the crime of allowing a necessary of life to be monopolized by a few men, under no restraint from the State. They now see they are making their position untenable. After all, the present trouble will have its uses in fostering a sentiment which will hasten the solution of the trust problem.

THE REMAINS OF EMILE ZOLA TO RECEIVE MILITARY HONORS

a Civil Affair.

THE NOVELIST'S EARLY LIFE

Ignorant of His Letters at the Age of 8-Poor, But Ambitious and Industrious.

Paris, Oct. 1 .- The remains of Zola will be interred in Mont Martre Cemetery. The funeral will be a civil ceremony, though probably the body will be accorded military honors, to which the deceased is entitled, as an officer of the Legion of Honor. The League of the Rights of Man is organizing an imposing demonstration at the funeral, and has issued an appeal for subscriptions to erect a monument to the dead novelist. There is much discussion of the probability of Dreyfus attending the funeral. Among those who signed the register at Zola's house, or sent condolences, were Premier Combes, a number of cabinet ministers, M. Waldeck Rousseau, Maitre Labori, Col. Piquart and ZOLA'S EARLY STRUGGLES. Zola's parents lived at Aix and the novelist was born one year after their marriage, while they were on a visit to Paris. Zola pere was interested in the construction of a canal near Aix. it being still known as the Zola canal. It was business connected with the canal which took the novelist's parents to Paris just prior to his

The elder Zola died when his son was 6 years old and the family was left destitute. Had it not been for the fact that the boy's maternal grandparents went to Aix to live with their widowed daughter and to contribute to her support, the chances are that Emile Zola never would have been given the education which enabled him afterwards to write stories which raised a furore in Paris and set the members of the French Academy by the ears.

NEARLY SPOILED.

Zola always declared that his grandmother was "the most splendid woman who ever lived." He admitted frankly, however, in later years that his grandmother, aided by his mother, came as near spoiling him as a child as two devoted women could do without actually completing the job. The boy was the despot of the household. He learned nature before he saw the inside of a book. Possibly to get rid of his boyish tyranny in the home he was turned loose in the gardens and fields, where he wandered at will and drank in some of the beauties which showed themselves afterward in "La Terre." Zola did not know A from B until after he had passed his eighth birthday anniversary. Then the grandmother told him that he must roaming and go to reading. There was a storm, but sense prevailed, and the youngster went unwillingly to school.

SEEMED TO BE A DUNCE. The youth was thought by his teacher to be a veritable dunce. The A, B, C's seemingly could not be dinned into his head. His preceptor, however, was patient. He kept the lad after hours and alone in the schoolroom with him, and hammered the letters into his head. The spoiling principle was still active at home, and Emile

Though the Funeral Will Be ran away from school regularly and took to roaming the fields.

WAS AWAY BEHIND. At the age of 12 Emile was entered in the Aix College, where he was put in the lowest form. The fact that he was far behind other pupils of his class shamed the lad, and he worked, as he afterward said, "like a peasant." Meantime, however, the money of the family had nearly given out. The members moved into cheaper and cheaper homes until at last they found they could live at Aix no longer. Zola's father had left nothing save some disputed claims and a seemingingly endless lawsuit.

Mme. Zola determined to move to Paris in the hope of having some of the claims enforced. With her fatherin-law and her son she went to the capital. The journey was made in a third-class coach in the slowest train on the railroad. There was little luggage and no money beyond a few AMBITIOUS TO LEARN. At that time Emile had learned the value of an education, and he cried at the thought that he must stop his studies. In Paris, however, there was some light. Friends were found, some money was collected, and one day the boy's mother told him he could go again to school. He was placed in the Lycee Louis-le-Grand, and stayed there for two years, devoting himself almost entirely to the study of French literature. He distinguished himself in a youthful way in French composi-tion, and the proudest moment of his life, he afterwards was fond of saying, was when M. Levasseur, a professor at the Lycee, read aloud an essay that the boy had written on the blind Mildictating his poems to his daughters.

GREAT FUTURE FORESHADOW-

ED. Prof. Levasseur publicly at that time predicted a great future for Emile Zola. It was just after this, however, that the boy mortified himself and his mother by being "flunked" at an examination. Zola hated history as boy, and he never fully overcame his dislike for the study.
"Anything dry I dislike," he was given to saying, "and history is dry-er than tinder." It was in history that he failed to pass his examination. At the age of 20 he gave the birth of Charlemagne as being in the fourteenth century.

WITHOUT MEANS. Denied his degree, Zola found himself face to face with life, with no capital save as yet an undeveloped knack turning a French sentence and a thorough knowledge and love of French literature. He had two people to support (his grandmother had died) and no money with which to do it.

M. Labot, who had been a friend of his father, gave him a clerkship in a sort of entrepot in the Rue de la Dou-There he was paid 60 francs a month, and the work was the dreariest kind of drudgery. He resigned after two months, saying he preferred starvation in the street to a continuance of the slavery.

A HARD STRUGGLE.

For eighteen months Zola went through the struggle for the necessaries of life. One meal a day of bread and chees for weeks at a time was his allowance. His clothes were ragged and green with age. He wandered about, at times stopping to read the exposed for sale at second hand stores. At night in his miserable lodgings he wrote poetry. His room was in the seventh story of a house in the Rue St. Victor, and at this time he was compelled to separate from his mother. Afterward he moved to even worse odgings in the Rue St. Etienne du Mont. There was a legend that this abode was once occupied by Bernardin St. Pierre. He had no fire in winter and his spare sous he spent for candles, so that he might have light by which to write.

In the year 1862, when 22 years old, Zola was given a letter by M. Boudet, of the Academy of Medicine, to a publishing house. There he was given employment at a meagre salary. One night just as he was leaving the publishing house, Zola, with a trembling hand, put the manuscript of his "Amo-Comedie" on M. Hachette's desk. A few days later the publisher sent for him, but said nothing about publishing the poems, as Zola fervently hoped he would. He did say, however, that he believed his employe was capable of "light literary work." Two months after this M. Machette asked Zola to write a story for a children's magazine. He responded with "The Sister of the Poor," which the publisher at once said was too revolutionary in

It was afterward included in Zola's "Contes a Ninon." which was the writer's first work to see the light in print. This was brought out in 1864 by La Croix. Zola, however, continued to work for Hachette and was given a salary of 200 francs a month as an editor of manuscripts.

Murder Has Shed Light on the Mormon Propaganda in New York City.

New York, Oct. 1. - The Journal says: William Hooper Young in many respects is the most remarkable prisoner ever confined in the Tombs. He has apparently absolute confidence in the belief that his detention is merely formal and in a short time he will be

Since he has recovered his normal physical condition he is light-hearted and gay, and does not seem to have any appreciation of the enormity of offense with which he stands charged. When anyone speaks about Mrs. Pulitzer for the purpose of drawing him out he invariably now refers to the food given him in the Tombs. With the crude idea of the methods used in feudal times to establish the guilt of the accused person, Young has offered to go with Detective Sergeant Hughes to the Clarence apartment house, submit to any form of inquisition, to view the body of Mrs. Pulitzer, put his hand in the wound in the abdomen, and do anything else to establish his innocence, according to his idea of proof.

He fully believes that his statement as to the killing of Mrs. Pulitzer by Charles Simpson Eiling will be accepted as the truth by everyone.

THE DEFENSE. Lawyer Hart will not outline the defense which will be interposed to save Young. He is getting evidence on which to build a defense and it may be based in the confession of Young or alleged insanity.

When Hart has his evidence covering the life and habits of Young in shape, it will be submitted to alienists, who will decide on the state of mind of the accused man. According to the present status, medical experts will decide the fate of Young, and his trial will develop, under any circumstances, the most remarkable personal habits known in criminal annals.

The World says: Young's story that he fled from this city with "Eiling" who, he says, is the real murderer of Mrs. Anna Pulitzer, is disproved by that of a conductor on the New York and Putnam road, on whose train Young rode as far as Pocantico Hills, and who says Young was alone.

ASTONISHING REVELATION. The Hooper Young murder has brought an astonishing revelation to New Yorkers of the widespread efforts of Mormon missionaries to gain converts and start churches in this city. So quietly has their work been done that not until the searchlight was turned on them by the murder committed by the grandson of the most famous exponent of their religion was it known that this city is the center of a strong and well-organized missionary campaign. Nearly a score of the ablest and brightest young missionaries of the church are the recruiting agents of the church here. They are located at specially selected points throughout the city, whence they conduct their work quietly and without ostentation. Day and night these young men carry on their work. By day they make a house-to-house canvass, proselyting and selling their literature, and by night they hold meetings on street corners, in houses, in public halls and at the two established headquarters of the church in Greater New York-the big hall at No. 151 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, and No. 210

Steuben street, Brooklyn. The Mormons as yet have no regular church here. Many meetings are held at the homes of converts and in private halls hired for the purpose. A curious fact is that all the missionaries are young men, able-bodied healthy, and as a rule well educated and good talkers. The pick of the young men of the church have been selected to come here. They nothing in their manner or dress to distinguish them. New York missionaries are all volunteers, and according to their statements come here without salary. Some of them are enabled to do this because they are the sons of well-to-do men, and others gain a livelihood by selling books and other work.

A Steady-Going Volcano. Santa Barbara County is naturally divided into a northern and a southern half by a range of rugged mountains, varying from two to four thousand feet high. Los Alamos is near the middle of the great valleys, comprising most of the northern part of the country, and is about sixty miles from the City of Santa Barbara, with a big mountain range intervening. For many years there has been a small active volcano on the Los Alamas side of the mountain. It is almost within sight of the old Lost Alamos-Santa Barbara stage road that crosses the mountains by the San Marcos pass. Hunters and cattlemen of the vicinity and prospectors are familiar with it. Smoke and steam constantly issue from various fissures along the summit of a plateau or shelf near the northern slope of the mountain. Viewed from the distance of the old stage road these manifestations appear like small camp fires. They have never developed any alarming tendencies and have attracted very little di-rect investigation. And yet they may become vent holes from which the long-confined ashes and lava will

Fifty Against Two.

It is not reasonable to expect two weeks of outing to overcome the effects of fifty weeks of confinement.

Take a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla along with you. Three doses daily of this great tonic will do more than anything else to refresh your blood, overcome your tired feeling, improve your appetite, and make your sleep easy and restful.

PREVENT DISORDER.—At the first symptoms of internal disorder, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills should be resorted to immediately. Two or three of these salutary pellets, taken before going to bed, followed by doses of one or two pills for two or three nights in succession, will serve as a preventive of attacks of dyspepsia and all the discomforts which follow in the train of that fell disorder. The means are simple when the way is known.

TIMOTHY HEALY, BRILLIANT IRISH LEADER, WHO COUN-SELS MODERATION IN THE RENT WAR.

Timothy Michael Healy, the brilliant Irish leader, who has just excited considerable comment by his advice urging that moderation be practiced by the landlord and tenants in Ireland, has been prominent in British politics and statesmanship since he made his debut in 1880 in a speech at Bantry for which he was arrested and indicted. The following month he was elected to Parliament without opposition, and, being acquitted soon thereafter, took his seat as an M. P. From 1881 down to the present time Mr. Healy has been a leader of great influence and power in the Irish party—a remarkable fact when it is considered that he is but 47 years old. In November, 1881, he visited America and addressed the Land League meet-

Something About the New Gasometer Being Erected.

The new gasomoter, which is being erected by the City Gas Company, has been an object of much interest to Londoners of late. When completed it will be 100 feet in diameter, and when filled with gas will stand 70 feet above the sidewalk. It's capacity is 400,000 cubic feet. , The gasometer is used for storing gas. Roughly speaking, it works on the same principle as, a tumbler turned bottom upwards into a vessel of water. The tumbler, when filled with air, remains above the water, but as the air is taken out, sinks into it. So the gasometer is a huge iron tumbler turned bottom upwards into a great brick tank filled with water. The delivery pipes pass the gas, as it is made, through the water into the iron tumbler, where it is stored, and other deivery pipes pass the gas, as it is needed, through the mains to the con-

All gas manufactured in Canada is subject to Government inspection, and must be of 16-candle power, that is, one jet of gas must have illuminating power equal to that of 16 candles. If the gas is not up to the Government standard, the manufacturer may be fined $50 and compelled to let out all the impure gas in the mains. The meters also are subject to Government inspection, and are tested and stamped like a grocer's scales.

bonization of bituminous coal, the coal being charged in sealed retorts heated from furnaces underneath to a temperature of about 600 deg. F. The gas or smoke passing from the retorts through suitable condensing apparatus for the removal of tar is then passed through scrubbers for removal of ammonia. After passing the scrubbers it is carried through purifiers containing layers of oxide of iron mass for the removal of sulphuretted hydrogen. The gas is then measured and stored in large storeholders, from whence it is distributed through the consumers'

The most valuable residual production is coke, which is largely used for domestic purposes. The next most valuable residual is tar, which is worked up into innumerable byproducts. Another residual is the ammoniacal liquor, it being concentrated and shipped to various ammonia works to be manufactured into sulphate of ammonia.

GAS FROM OIL. Gas was manufactured formerly from oil, but since oil has risen in price it has been manufactured almost entirely from soft coal after the process described above. The gas is distilled by the hot coal just as steam from water, the pressure being regulated by an exhauster, which takes the gas as it is made and passes it through condensers, scrubbers and purifiers, which are sponges made of sawdust, woodchips and oxidized iron. It is then passed into the delivery holder and thence into the gasometer.

UNCLAIMED GOODS SALE

Customs House Property Disposed Of in Usual Way.

A sale of unclaimed goods, which have been lying at the customs house, was conducted by Mr. J. W. Jones at his rooms this morning. A departure has been made from the old system of selling the goods in blind man's buff style. The new rule is to allow the goods to be examined, and its invoiced price is given, so that buyers shall know what they are doing. By this mode, however, the amusing scenes of past years are done away with.

The teamsters employed by the company went on a strike last week, but the matter was considered of minor importance, until the union heard that the company was about to employ non-union teamsters. "I have never forgotten who saved my life, Ri—Mr. Waldemar."

"That will do," and his hands closed over hers with a firmer clasp, "and now the question before the house is not who saved your life," it is—do you love me, Annie?"

"I am almost sorry you have made me say it."

"Why, my darling? Are you sorry that I have told you of my love? Have I made you unhappy by this confession?"

He lifted her blushing face, the sweetest face in the world, and read it with his tender eyes.

"Oh, no: but—"

"There must come no 'but' between you and me, Annie, after this. I have told you that I love you—you are the dearest object in the world to me; you have confessed your affection for me, and we must belong to each other henceforth, as long as we both live. Still, I think, I understand your reluctance to give yourself entirely to me; you imagine that I, Richmond Waldemar, the heir of Miss Waldemar, might compromise my position socially by choosing a poor girl for a wife. But you do both yourself and me an injustice if that is your thought, for neither poverty nor wealth can make either of us more or less worthy of each other. But, Annie, Aunt Audrey has lost all her money, and—I am not her nephew at all."

The young girl looked up at him in astonishment.

" he continued, smiling half sadly, "No," he continued, smiling hair sadly, "her property all vanished, nearly a year ago, and I am only a poor, nameless fellow who does not even know who his parents were; so you perceive, dear, that you are running quite a risk in allowing yourself to fall in love with me."

Now she lifted a beautiful look of love and trust and faith to him.

"I know there is not a nobler heart in all the world, and surely there is no risk in possessing that," she said, so earnestly that he dropped her imprisoned hands and drew her into his arms in a fond embrace. Then, with clasped hands, and seated side by side, he told her all he knew of his early history, and Miss Waldeman's adoption of him.

CHAPTER XXI.

Rich went home that night in a very railed state of mind.

His first act, upon his return, was to go straight to Miss Waldemar and tell her the whole story of his love and engagement, and that his pretty flancee was none other than the little fairy whom they had both known and loved seven years before. Audrey was, of course, greatly surprised, and it cannot be truthfully said that she was altogether pleased, for it dashed all her pretty plans regarding Rich and all her pretty plans regarding frien and Grace to the ground.

But she would not interpose a single obstacle in the way of his happiness; her own early blighted hopes were a warning which she could never forget.

Confident that Rich would not choose unwisely, even though he might not choose exactly as she could have wished, her heart warmed instantly toward the choose exactly as she could have wished, her heart warmed instantly toward the delicate girl, whom she had known under happier circumstances, and who had been so sorely bereft since that time.

She had never forgotten that evening in the Vermont farmhouse, when the child had stood by her side, one round, fair arm, cliging to her neck, and asked in that sweet pathetic voice.

and asked, in that sweet, pathetic voice, if she might "call her Aunt Audrey, too," while she added, mournfully, "you know I haven't got any namma."

if she might "call her Aunt Audrey, too," while she added, mournfully, "you know I haven't got any mamma."

Now she was both fatherless and motherless, alone and destitute in the world—and not so, either, she found herself saying, blessed with such a love as her dear boy could bestow upon her. So she gave Rich her tenderest sympathy and blessing, and told him she would go the next day to see his pretty sweetheart.

They arranged to go together in the evening and Rich sent Annie a note in the morning (together with another little bouquet of forget-me-nots, to replace those he had crushed the night before), telling her of their intended visit.

Miss Waldemar remembered her as a sweet, fairy-like child loving and lovable, though full of spirit and mischief; but she was hardly prepared for the heautiful vision which came gliding into that shabby parlor to meet her a few moments after her arrival.

Annie had brought to light some of her girlish treasures of happier days to do honor to the occasion—things which had been packed and locked away as wholly unfit for the life she had been leading since her father's death,

She came into the room with her eves shining with her great new happiness, a lovely color in her cheeks, a witching smile on her scarlet lips; and Rich, as he arose to greet her thought he had never seen anyone in the wide world so levely as she was at that moment.

He led her directly to Miss Waldemar. "You two do not need any introduction," he said, and then smiled to see that beautiful, stately woman draw his fair betrothed close into her arms.

"My dear child," Audrey said, in a tone that brought tears into the voung girl's eyes, "how glad I am to find you once more. I have often thought of von, and wondered where in this great, wide world you were."

"Then you will not come to me? I had

"I think not, just how," Annie replied;
"but please do not think me unappreciative. I know it would not be quite right to leave my work without some notice, while—you will excuse me—I could not be happy to be idle or dependent."
"Oh, we should only call it a little visit, dear," Miss Waldemar said, amused by the young girl's spirit; "and we would keep you just as busy as you wished to be. But I suppose we shall be obliged to let you have your own way, although

"That will be delightful," Annie returned, lightly; "and I am so happy to find old friends who are so true, that I can hardly realize I am myself."
"Rich, I am delighted with her." Miss Waldemar said, when they were on the street, and she took his arm to walk to the corner where they were to take a the corner, where they were to take a car. "I am almost tempted to say that she is the sweetest girl in the world."
"She will even compare favorably with Miss Campbell, will she not?" Rich asked, roguishly.

"You bold boy! do you mean to tell me that you have seen through that little scheme of mine?" she demanded, in astonishment, for she had fondly imagined that no one had suspected her plans matrimonial.

"From the outset, Aunt Audrey," Rich answered, laughing heartily, "and I do not blame you, either, while I am not sure but you would have succeeded if I sure but you would have succeeded if I had not met Annie; for, next to her, I admire Miss Grace more than any young lady whom I have ever met. She will make a splendid wife for some man with plenty of money, and one who has a taste for society; but for the quiet life which I prefer to lead, I think she may not be quite so well suited as Annie." not be quite so well suited as Annie."
"I believe you are right. Rich," Miss Waldemar said, thoughtfully, "but if you should take both of these girls into the should take both of these girls into the same society, you would find that one would have as many admirers as the other. Grace's style is splendid, but there is a sweet attractiveness about Annie Noble that is perfectly irresistible. Now, Rich," she went on, in a determined tone, "I shall not let that child go my working for her living with all her on working for her living with all her might. She has a will of her own, as we have seen tonight, and we have no right to interfere with it beyond a certain point. We will let her stay her two point. We will let her stay her two weeks out, as she has planned to do, at Lord & Taylor's; then the week that she has laid out for herself, we will insist she spend it with us in a little visit, after which she can go to Mrs. Campbell, but with an understanding between that lady and myself which shall tend to make her life a very different one from what it has been."

what it has been."
"I have been thinking of some such arrangement myself," Rich returned. "If we can enlist Mrs Campbell's sympathies and she will take her in as a sort of companion for Grace, and perhaps to do some light sewing, just to preserve her some light sewing, just to preserve her independence, it will be a pleasant change, while it will throw around her the safeguard of a home. I believe that the two girls will enjoy each other, while, by the end of another year, I hope to be in a situation to give her the protection in a situation to give her the protection of my own name and care.

Miss Waldemar was in full sympathy with all this, though she feared that when Grace Campbell should come to knew that Rich had learned to love another, it might make some difference in her bitherto bright and happy life, for she believed that she had already begun she believed that she had arready begin to yield him her own affections.

So Annie Noble kept bravely on for two weeks longer in her treadmill life. but there was no more drudgery about it. Life had suddenly grown rose-color-ed for her, while everyone wondered at the new brightness and beauty which drey's rooms were always cool. Mrs. Allen knew many a secret for making people comfortable, and one of these was to open all windows late in the evening arly in the morning, letting in the cool air, and then keeping them shut all day.

Thus Rich, on his return from the office, found everything as fresh and bright, and the house as comfortable, almost, as if they had been in some mountain retreat.

Audrey and the girl became more deepby attached to each other during those few summer days, while they sat in their pretty rooms and fashioned dainty things one another.
iss Waldemar's exquisite taste and maturer judgment planned many a lovely garment out of Annie's stored treasures; while the girl's deft fingers, so long used to such work, would fashion them

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 1.-Two masked men entered the home of Fred R. Leonard here last night, during his absence, and seized Mrs. Leonard, while she was kneeling at her bedside say-ing her prayers. She gave them her rings and a small amount of money which she said was all there was in the house. The men departed without putting their threat into execution.

SUCCESS OF ASYLUM SPORTS SOMEWHAT MARRED BY RAIN

The Patients Could Not Be Disappointed So They Were Carried Out, Notwithstanding.

The annual sports were held at the Asylum for the Insane yesterday afternoon, notwithstanding the rain. It was a very disagreeable day, but it 1 Lily Wilson, 2 Ann Loton, 3 Flossie was impossible to postpone them. Had it not been for the nations this could bentley, 6 Bella McGowan, 7 Maggie was impossible to postpone them. Had it not been for the patients this could have been done, but their hearts were set upon having the races and it would Slater, 79 feet 4 inches; 2 W. Doan, have been a great disappointment to 73 feet 6 inches; 3 Norval Wanless, 71 have been a great disappointment to them to have put them off. The rain sadly interfered with the pleasure of the afternoon however, as it was not a very exhilarating work to carry out the programme in an almost continuous downpour of rain. Usually the sports out at the Asylum are witnessed by a large crowd of visitors from the city, but very few braved the weather yesterday to go out. But the patients were satisfied and as their pleasure and happiness is always the chief consideration out there, and as besides, the sports were interesting and well contested, the day cannot be judged a failure. On the other hand, if the day had been bright there was every prospect for a success which would have eclipsed that of any previous affair of the kind.

The sports were held as usual on the big lawn behind the main building. Dr. McCallum, superintendent of the Asylum, displayed the keenest interest in the various events and helped very materially to make the day as pleasant as it was. Unfortunately Dr. Sippi, who has always been a leading spirit on the day of sports, was not there yesterday, owing to illness, and his absence was greatly regretted. At this gathering the face of Dr. Bucke, also, who for so many years helped in the success of the sports, was sadly missed. The committee of management were: Drs. McCallum, Buchan, Bell, McNaughton and Sippi; D. McKenzie, George Angus, George Rennie, George Thurling, R. Heighway and T. Flynn. COLONY LIFE and proper food is highly appreciated in the Philippines, particularly by Americans unused to climate and native custom in cooking.

One of our soldier boys writes: "In this land of bad food and disordered stomachs, a nearly fatal attack of malaria left my digestion for many months in such a state, that food of any kind distressed me terribly. I suffered from the effect of drugs, but dared not eat. It was simply misery to live. The so-called remedies only seemed to aggravate my sufferings. Some friend suggested Grape-Nuts Food and I gave it a trial. To my surprise and pleasure, it did all and more than was claimed for it. I am now, after using the food for 18 months in good health; my digestive apparatus in perfect order, and I have long lost all feeling of pain or discomfort after eating. In fact, I live again, I would not be without Grape-Nuts for the It is not only the excellent effect of your food that renders it valuable, it is also delicious to the taste, possessing flavor of its own, and can Richardson, Mrs. Falls, Mrs. De la be prepared in many ways to suit Hooke, Miss Complin, Mrs. Haskett, many palates." However, when the dra-matic author—or authoress—is confronted with the problem of making the audience laugh, the foregoing fact does not seem to weigh down east. Grace Hopkins succeeds Flora Fairchild as Anna Moore, and she won the sympathies of her audience with her portrayal of the persecuted and deeply wronged heroine. Charles Riegel was forceful as Squire Amasa Bartlett. Miss Charlotte Huntington made a pleasing Kate Brewster, while Wallace Owen was good as the young-old professor. Charles C. Blanchard proved himself one of the cleverest members of the company by his work as Rube Whipple, the village constable, and he was responsible for much of the mirth of the evening. Marion Lester, as Mrs. Bartlett; Philip Yale Drew, as David; Fred K. Backus, as Lennox Sanderson, and E. H. Bender as Dr. Wiggins, were each seen in the same roles as on the play's former engagement, and all are worthy of mention. "Way Down East" will be repeated tonight, and as it is a wholesome and clean production, satisfactorily presented, there should be a large audience to greet it. Many patrons both of the lower and upper portions of the house complain of the disorderly conduct which goes on almost unchecked in the gallery. Tobacco smoke, horse-chestnuts and ribald remarks were among favors those sitting below them. The respectable element in the gallery complain that the place is in an unsanitary condition, being rarely if ever cleaned out. GRACE CAMERON COMING. Speaking of the Grace Cameron Opera Company, which comes to the Grand on Friday night in "A Nor-mandy Wedding," the Toronto World of Tuesday says: "The Grace Cameron Opera Company, presenting the comic opera, 'A Normandy Wedding,' opened a three-night engagement at the Princess Monday night. The production is comic opera in the strictest sense, with catchy lyrics and bright music. scenery is good and the chorus fair. Cameron, who was last seen here with the 'Foxy Quiller' Company, is a very clever little actress, upon whom the whole plot devolves. Throughout she maintains the character of an ignorant goose-girl of Normandy perfectly. She possesses a good voice and was called to repeat many numbers which were readily taken up by the large audience. Harry Brown, the leading comedian, was also well received."

CAUSE OF COOL SUMMERS

as we sat half-sinvering on a piazza facing a sickly conset sky:
"What is the matter with the planet?

Here we are at the summer solstice, in the midst of the longest days of the year, and yet look how short the twilight is. The sun has hardly sunk beyond the horizon before it becomes too dark to read and too cold to sit out of doors, while a most unseasonable gloom settles over the landscape. As to the facts, there certainly has been of late a noticeable defect of illumination during the evening hours, and this phenomenon has coincided with extraordinarily cool and humid weaher in both America and Europe. Evidently a broad, general cause must be at work to produce effects so widespread. It is no merely local peculiarity of the climate that we now have to deal with, but something of world-wide magnitude.

FACTS FOR

It is surprising what an amount of really good money is wasted every year on the industrious programme schemer.

Mr. Merchant, did you ever have any notion that this sort of thing was advertising? Here is what the fakir thinks about it. He has often told me so-I, a printer-sometimes his printer. He figures up what he owes for board, and the few hundred other things that man wants here below but can't pay for, which enables him to know definitely what he must get out of the programme, net. The rest is easy. He sees his printer firstlook at the order of events-finds out what the printing will cost from a "dummy" programme, that same old dummy that soon has "only one space left" that he wants you to take. From this he immediately determines what he must get for his spaces in order to pay the printer and net the board bill which was the real "ulterior motive" of the whole business. He doesn't consider the advertising worth 5 cents. The programme is simply the easiest way he knows of to 'cop out" a week's board. There is another kind of programme that is claimed to be a sure thing for the advertiser. It is the "souvenir," which is to be treasured among the family heirlooms, to be handed down from generation to generation, each of which will see your ad. and hustle which will see your ad. and hustle Baltimore, York and Harrisburg to down to buy the special bargains on principal battlefields will be soid at

An ad. that is to get in its deadly work on our grandchildren is likely to make us put on a flock of extra clerks to handle the business. And even the "souvenir" programme is not published for the purpose of benefiting the advertiser. It exists because the society needs the moneyto pay the printer's bill. The programme ad. is rarely worth

An observant friend of mine said to the fall of the year to what should be me one evening during the cold spell, the brightest, as they are the longest as we sat half-silvering on a plazza days of summer, is due, I believe, not as my friend suggested, to any change in atmospheric refraction, but to the

We must go much further in search of the cause We must look to the condition of the great dynamo that runs everything on the earth, including even the phenomena of vegetable and animal lifethe sun.

The sun is just now in a most unusual state. The period of minimum energy at the solar surface. Accordingly, we must expect that will come rapidly, in large numbers, and will be of great size and probably accompanied by startling magnetic disturbances, and aplendid displays of the aurora borealis. In the meantime the character of the sun's radiation seems to have undergone a temporary change, which is reflected in the conditions of the wea ther. Just what this change is, or just how it reacts upon the earth we are not yet sufficiently learned in solar secrets to tell. But we do know that what are ordinarily called light and heat are not the only form of radiant energy that the sun sheds upon us. magnetic influence is hardly yet understood at all, and therein may lie the explanation of cold, gloomy summers and the other freaks of the wea-
