The Fatal Chair.

Preparations for the Electrocutions at Sing Sing.

A "Comfortable Looking" Instrument of Death.

Capable of Killing Twenty-Five Men in an Hour.

The Deadly "Figure Four"—The Code of Signals.

NEW YORK, July 6—8 a.m.—The execution has not taken place at Sing Sing. The warden is not at the prison.

The chair in which the condemned men will suffer the death penalty is substantial as well as comfortable looking. It is connected with the dynamo and was designed by Captain Hilbert, the prison machinist. The seat is broad, and the back, on which a heavy head-rest is constructed, has a slight curve above the rest, and fastened to the back by a long strip is which is intended to rest on the head of the occupant. It is through the wire in this that the current passes. Besides this there are a number of straps used to secure the prisoner in position after he has taken his seat in the chair. The chair faces the east, and directly behind it is a low cabinet for the use of the man who turns on the current, who is thus out of sight of everybody.

THE DIRECTIONS.

The following directions are posted up for the benefit of the operators: Five bells, get ready; one bell, turn on current; two bells, turn on more current; three bells, less current; one bell, shut off current; six bells, all through. Underneath the directions is a little electric bell button, which is pressed to give the signal to the operator. Next the placard is the test switch. This switch turns on the current into a dozen or more incandescent lights at the top of the switch board and also into the ammeter and voltmeter, which are in the side with the resistance box. All these are arranged to test the strength of the current before it is put in operation on the condemned man. There is another switch by which the current can be directed connected with the wires leading to the chair. The man at the switchboard, however, cannot turn the current through the occupant of the chair. This being entirely the province of the man who stands behind the cabinet and operates the switch located there, by which it is connected directly with the occupant of the chair.

PROUD OF HIS WORK.

Capt. Hilbert, the designer of the chair, is proud of its completeness, and especially of the code of signals. The failure of this in the Kemmler execution was one of the things that made that electrocution such a horrible affair. The captain, in speaking of his device, asserts that it is able to kill 25 men an hour. He has made an improvement on the arrangement of the electrodes, which differ materially from that of the Kemmler case. In the latter the current was passed directly through the body and heart. The inventor of the Sing Sing chair has a new plan for applying the electricity to the wrists, or to one wrist and an ankle.

SIX CONDEMNED MEN.

There is a pretty generally believed rumor that the electrocution will not take place to-day. There are six murderers now confined in Sing Sing prison, all of whom are sentenced to suffer the death penalty during the coming week. These men are the Japanese Jugiro, who killed his mate, Mura Cammi; James J. Slocum, who killed his wife, Nellie Slocum, on the night of Dec. 29, 1890; Harris A. Smiler who also killed his wife, or, more properly, his alleged wife, on the night of April 3, 1890; Joseph Wood (colored), who killed a fellow-workman, also colored, named Chas. Ruffin, on April 17, 1889; Charles McElwaine, who was indicted and found guilty of complicity in the murder of Grocer Luca in Brooklyn, and Nicolo Trezza, who killed a fellow Italian in Flatbush, Brooklyn, during an altercation between them.

Mr. Spurgeon's Condition.

LONDON, July 6.—Rev. Charles Spurgeon passed a restless and critical night. Physicians are in constant attendance.

Sacrificed Her Child.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 6.—Mrs. Mary Minniock, while in a fit of hysteries yesterday afternoon, decided to sacrifice her youngest child. Neighbors interfered, but not until she had chopped the child in a horrible manner with a hatchet. The child will die.

Center Bruce Liberals.

GLAMMIS, July 6.—At the annual meeting of the Center Bruce Reform Association Mr. Chambers, the retiring president, presided and Mr. A. Campbell acted as secretary. Officers were elected as follows: President, Jas. A. McPherson; vice-presidents, F. McDonald (Huron), George Clark (Kincardine township) Alex. Cameron (Greenock), James Warren (Kincardine town), Arch. Ewart (Elderslie), D. M. Halliday (Chesley), Arch. Sinclair (Paisley) secretary-treasurer, Alex. Campbell, Kincardine. Resolutions of confidence in Hon. Oliver Mowat and his Government, in Hon. Wilfred Laurier and her Majesty's Opposition, and in Walter M. Dack, member for the riding, were unanimously adopted with enthusiasm. The retiring officers were given the hearty thanks of the association for the good work done by them. Mr. Dack addressed the meeting at length. Spirited speeches were given by A. B. McCallum, Paul McInnes, Wm. Bowes, James Barrie, Dr. McLaren, Dr. Black, John Cameron and others, and the meeting broke up with cheers for the Queen and the Liberal party of Canada.

Wouldn't Be Without It.

Mr. Alfred Roberts, manager of the Dominion Railway Advertising Agency, 79 King street, West Toronto, Ont., June 1, 1888, writes as follows: "I desire to testify to the efficacy of St. Jacobs Oil as a sure remedy for sprains, bruises, rheumatism, etc., having had occasion to use it in my family for some time past. In fact I would not be without a bottle of the Oil in my house for double the amount charged."

Honesty may be the best policy, but it doesn't pay socially. One of the unpleasantest men in the world to know intimately is the man who always tells the truth.

$500 FOR A VOTE.

A Sarnia Town Councilor Said To Have Been Purchased.

Startling Developments Expected—A Newsy Budget from the Lambton Capital.

"The end justifies the means" seems to be the principle on which some Sarnia men do business. Late developments in the Sarnia Town Council prove the assertion. For some time there has been a division in the council regarding the construction of a fire alarm system. Eight of the councilors have been in favor of contracting with the Bell Telephone Company, and have endeavored to pass a necessary bylaw to give them power to so contract. Seven of the councilors seemingly subject to some outside agency, have opposed every move of the majority. The bylaw was brought up at last week's meeting, and on going to a final vote, it was found that one of the bylaw eight had gone over to the enemy. Therefore, the bylaw was defeated by the treachery of one who had been its supporter on two previous votes. But why did the councilor desert his colors at the last moment? is the question that many people are asking. Was the "almighty dollar" at work? Later developments seem to prove that it was. It is said that the councilor who defeated the bylaw has placed a sealed envelope in the hands of two prominent citizens. The envelope is said to contain $500 and a written statement, the latter containing the name of the man who paid the money for the vote. The councilor got frightened, as bribery is a crime, and gave up the money. Now, who will claim the money and therefore face a criminal charge?

The Capital We Possess.

All men around us are furnished with a certain amount of capital—life it is called. Their present and future condition depends upon how this capital is expended and used. Some spend it very rapidly by habits and ways which induce suffering and disease, while others husband it too closely, and tie up the treasure in such a way that its value becomes impaired. In both cases this capital known as life or health calls for repairs. It often becomes clogged and rusty; imperfections and breaks occur which call for prompt attention, else large leakages are the result and our important capital flees away. Note some of the breaks and leakages—overworked, restless brain; nerves weak and unstrung; headaches; imperfect circulation; melancholia and morbidness, as well as dyspeptic troubles. Always bear in mind when such troubles arise that Paine's Celery Compound is your great restorer and renovator. It will remove every ill and enable you to grasp anew a full share of perfect life, strength, happiness and peace of mind which all earnestly desire. Paine's Celery Compound is no ordinary medicine; it is nature's remedy, and its worth is now firmly established and recognized.

A Stone Wall

Presented to the Attacks of Attorney Osler

By Witness Murphy in the Langevin-McGreevy Scandal Case.

The Able Cross-Questioner Fails to Discredit the Damaging Evidence.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 6.—Witness Murphy presented a stone wall to Mr. Osler's attacks all through the hour and a half examination this morning. The questions roved all over the whole case, but in no instance was a serious discrepancy shown in Murphy's story. Much was left over until the bank book and blotter were found by Martin P. Connolly.

Before the minutes were read Mr. Mills called attention to a paragraph in the Citizen charging that four Liberal members had approached the clerk and tried to gain access to the Larkin & Connolly books. He stated that on the contrary they were only warning the clerk to adhere strictly to the rule of the committee that no one should see these books but the subcommittee, having heard that members of the other side had access to them.

The clerk, Mr. Todd, bore out Mr Mills' version of the affair, and the chairman pronounced the item "incorrect."

Mr. Geoffrion then made a statement. He had tested the rule of the committee on Saturday, as Mr. Mills had said, because Mr. Osler had said in cross-examining Murphy that he had had the books examined. Now it was likely that he (Geoffrion) would have to re-examine Murphy without ever having seen these books.

The clerk when taxed with letting the counsel of the other side have the books, said he did it by the consent of Mr. Michael Connolly.

Mr. Edgar moved that the books be open as other documents to the inspection of any member of the committee.

Sir John Thompson hoped that this would not be passed now, stating that his idea was that the sub-committee should seal up those parts of the books marked private and give full access to the rest.

On this understanding Mr. Edgar withdrew his motion, though Mr. Ferguson (Connolly's counsel) still contended that Connolly had a right to submit his own books to any one.

NOTES.

At the Banking and Commerce Committee on Saturday, Mr. Coatsworth's bill incorporating the Order of Canadian Home Circles was taken up. The assessment plan of endowment insurance was the feature of the bill which excited hostility. Mr. Roaf claimed that the bill was like the Foresters' bill which passed Parliament last session. Mr. Fitzgerald, superintendent of insurance, insisted on a reserve fund and Government inspection. Finally the preamble of the bill was defeated by a substantial majority, which killed the bill.

Mr. Roaf withdrew the bill incorporating the Septennial Benevolent Society, which also stood in Mr. Coatsworth's name.

Death of a Talented Miner.

SAN JOSE, Cal., July 6.—Prof. Herman Kelliger, one of the best-known men in California, died Sunday in a squatter's hut on Colfax street. Twenty years ago he was the leading violinist on the Pacific coast and well known as a writer of prose and poetry. He was worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, acquired by a lifetime of miserly frugality. At the time of his death $1,600 in gold coin was found secreted in his bed.

The Lightning's Touch

Is scarcely more rapid than the lightning-like action of Nerviline in all kinds of pain. Is it neuralgia?—relief is certain and rapid. Toothache is cured as if by magic. Rheumatism finds a master in a few applications of the powerful and penetrating Nerviline. In a word, pain, whether internal or external, finds a prompt antidote in Nerviline. Give Nerviline a trial. Druggists and dealers everywhere sell it, and it costs only 25 cents a bottle.

Mothers should never be without a bottle when their children are teething.

With experience, capital, enterprise and a thorough interpretation of the wants of the public, it is no wonder that the members of the firm of H. Once tried, it is sure to become the companion of all who can distinguish a first-class article.

THE TRAVELING DAIRY.

Interesting Meeting at Snyder's Settlement.

Many Farmers and Their Families Present—A Gathering Under Canvas.

The members of the Traveling Dairy, after a great many difficulties succeeded in reaching Mrs. Jacob Snyder's farm, which is about ten miles from Toronto, on the northern division of the G. T. R., on the 2nd inst., where the second meeting was held. It being a hot day and no hall being convenient, the meeting was held in a tent which President Mills had brought fully provided for the Traveling Dairy. This tent is shipped from place to place with the dairy utensils and used when required. The country about the "Settlement" is a rich one, the fall wheat looking especially well for this season. Hay is short, but will be a fair crop. The farmers are chiefly engaged in butter-making and the milk business. There are some fine farm buildings in this district, an octagon bank-barn owned by Mrs. Troyer being specially noticeable. This barn, 65 feet inside diameter, is arranged so as to hold eight horses and twenty cows in the basement, with large feeding room and root cellar near the center.

THE MEETING.

Proceedings commenced about 9 a.m. Among those present were: Mr Crawford (secretary of the institute), Mr. Hink (a large breeder of Holsteins), his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder, Mrs. Sam Troyer and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Ball, Mrs. Ball, Mrs. Wm. Jackson and son, Mrs. Smitherson, Mrs. Jas. Durand, Mrs. Boynton, Messrs. Wm. Snyder, Miller, Smith, Danby, McDougall, H. Snyder and others.

PROF. DEAN'S ADDRESS.

Prof. Dean opened the meeting by a short address on the difficulties which dairy farmers met with. He advised farmers to become skillful managers, to be careful and systematic in their work. Dairymen must understand their business thoroughly before they can succeed, as no other branch of farming requires so much skill. Milk is a product of nervous force, therefore choose cows that have a large amount of vitality, and then feed and care for them well, so as to maintain their vitality. The dairyman should be neat and clean in his person, and have the surroundings neat and clean. Milk is an active absorbent of impurities, and quickly becomes tainted if left for any length of time where there are foul surroundings. Cows should be milked regularly. Set the milk immediately after milking in deep setting cans, with a falling temperature for about twelve hours. Ripen the cream as evenly as possible and churn at a temperature of 58° during the hot weather. Use butter color if the market demands it.

DISCUSSION.

How do you make butter that will last a long time without becoming strong? Prof. Dean—Don't keep the cream too long. Avoid over-churning, which imprisons curdy matter, causing fermentations to start. In packing, pack to exclude the air.

How ripe should cream be for churning? Prof. Dean—When it becomes about as thick as maple syrup and tastes acid.

Do you like the cooling cans to set milk in? Prof. Dean—Yes; if they are kept submerged in cold water at 43° for twelve hours they give good results. The gases from the milk condense on the inside of the cover and trickle into the water.

Mr. Brown—How much do you salt your butter, Mrs. Snyder?

Mrs. Snyder—According to taste.

A voice—I never saw a woman weigh the salt for butter.

What do hand separators cost? Prof. Dean—You can get machines which will separate 250 pounds per hour for $150.

MAKING THE BUTTER.

Mr. Brown turned out a good quality of butter, making about twelve pounds from four gallons of cream, which was furnished by Mrs. Snyder. The working, salting and printing of the butter was equally interesting to the ladies present, who were greatly pleased with the butter worker and the printer.

One man was heard to remark: "That is a pretty slick way to make a pound of butter." These prints are covered with neat wrapping papers, having printed on them, "Fresh butter, made and put up by the Traveling Dairy."

Eight samples of milk were tested by Mr. Palmer with the Babcock tester to find the per cent. of fat. The following are the results: 1, 4.4 per cent.; 2, 5.0 per cent.; 3, 3.7 per cent.; 4, 3.6 per cent.; 5, 3.7 per cent.; 6, 5.4 per cent.; 7, 3.3 per cent.; 8, 3.4 per cent.; buttermilk, 0.4 per cent.

This milk tester is especially interesting to farmers, who seem to feel the need of some method which will test accurately the quality of milk given by different cows.

The meeting lasted about 2½ hours, and after it was over some left for home and the rest adjourned to the hospitable home of Mrs. Snyder, where a bountiful repast was spread in the large dining-hall.

Aribert-Louise.

A Royal Marriage at Windsor Castle.

The German Emperor and Empress Witness the Wedding.

LONDON, July 6.—Princess Louise of Schlesswig-Holstein, granddaughter of the Queen of England, was married at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon to Prince Aribert of Anhalt with great splendor. The ceremony took place in the presence of a brilliant company, including Queen Victoria and the members of the English royal family and the Emperor and Empress of Germany.

Thousands upon thousands of people thronged into Windsor to-day. As the hour fixed for the ceremony—4 o'clock in the afternoon—drew near, Windsor Castle and its neighborhood were fairly alive with people. Not since the marriage of the late Duke of Albany has the castle been crowded with so many distinguished people and not since that event has St. George's Chapel been so crowded with members of royal families. The decorations of the chapel were grand. The stalls of the Knights of the Garter were set aside for some of the most important guests and the Bray and Rutland chapels were fitted up as retiring rooms. The route followed by the procession was the same as that taken at the wedding of the Duke of Albany. This route was lined on both sides with troops, and at the castle guards of honor were mounted at every available point. The Royal Standard of Great Britain, from the highest tower of the castle, floated proudly over the whole, while here, there and everywhere were dazzling uniforms, gorgeous staffs and State carriages containing diplomats, statesmen, generals, admirals, princes of minor degree and high church dignitaries.

The bridesmaids were the daughters of peers, Lady Edith Ward, Lady Emily Cadogan, Lady Mabel Egerton, Lady Esther Gore, Lady Elizabeth Meade and Hon. Beatrice Bridgeman. They wore white china crepe guipure lace over white satin and silver ribbon and passementerie.

The Princess Christian, mother of the bride elect, wore an exceedingly handsome dress of brocade. The ground of it is of the rich but scarcely definable color of the most lustrous Oriental pearls. A design of groups and sprays of the rose, shamrock and thistle is raised in white from the soft, deeper pearl of the satin, and was delicately outlined and shaded with silver. Her Royal Highness wore a bonnet of a light delicate material, which reproduced the tones of the brocade.

The bride's dress was composed of white satin of beautiful texture, the tone of which is warm and the tint a lovely cream. The front of the skirt is covered with two deep flounces of white Honiton lace, which was designed by the late Prince Consort for the Queen, and was afterwards worn by the Princess Christian at her wedding, just a quarter of a century ago. The design is floral. The train is gored and hangs away from the figure in graceful folds, which are rounded at the back in the shape some milliners call "balloon" and others "sabot." The whole dress is bordered with orange blossoms, and the lace front falls of this are ruched with orange blossoms. The bodice is trimmed with lace, like that on the skirt, and goes from waist to shoulder in a line, which adds to the beauty of the bride's well-formed figure. The bodice is buttoned on, and a girdle of orange blossoms hides the junction and falls in long ends over the back, one of these ends being slighly longer than the other. The sleeves are of a very new fashion, and are made of lace, which is lined with silk and muslin and allows the arms to be seen through.

The bride's traveling dress was of white Sicilienne, trimmed with white ostrich feathers and a little white lace. Her bonnet was white, with a little lace and a cluster of white feathers, to which a spray or two of white heather is added.

The special dress which has been prepared for her entry into her new home in Germany is made of the finest cashmere, of a lovely shade of golden fawn. The skirt has for trimming a band of golden fawn silk embroidery, and circles of cashmere are introduced upon a ground of silk net, through which a lining of pale pink is visible. The upper parts of the bodice and the collar have similar embroidery, but the back is plain. Across the front it fastens with a wide band of fawn-colored cashmere, which forms a pretty folded belt.

Trouble in "D" Company Band.

One of London's leading musical organizations—the band of "D" Company, I. S. C.—is on the verge of dissolution if it has not already reached that stage. Many wondered why the band did not turn out for divine service Sunday morning, as is customary on the first Sunday of the month. In conversation with one of the members an ADVERTISER representative was informed that four of the bandsmen deserted last week and more would resign. "The fact is, we are imposed upon," said the musician, when asked what was the nature of the grievance. "The colonel gets any amount of communications asking the presence of the band at garden parties, lawn socials and such affairs. Of course we have to go and spend the warm evening rendering selections, for which we never get a cent. We're perfectly willing to do what is fair, but demands made upon us are unfair, and most of us have resolved to go out of the business."

About Hot Weather.

Marcus Daly, the rich miner and crafty politician of Montana, stood in front of the Auditorium yesterday when the sun's rays were hottest, says the Chicago Herald. He was waiting for a carriage and wishing for winter. It seemed as if every acquaintance that said something to him said something about the warm day, and this was becoming tiresome. Presently a fresh young man with a salmon-colored suit and a silver-headed cane came out of the hotel. Noticing the famous Montanian trying to cool himself with a handkerchief, he said:

"Good morning Mr. Daly."

"Morning."

"Hot, isn't it?"

"What say?" asked the politician, as he almost looked through the young man.

"I say it's quite hot."

"Didn't quite get you," and he put his hand to his ear.

"I said," and the fellow yelled, "it's hot; quite hot!"

"Step into the hotel a moment." The two men walked inside the hotel, and Mr. Daly said: "You have known me for three or four years?"

"Yes, sir."

"Never doubted my sanity?"

"Never."

"Never saw me otherwise than sober?"

"Never."

"Well, you see my collar has faded?"

"Yes."

"You can see that I am perspiring?"

"Certainly."

"Feel a trifle warm yourself?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Then you know it is hot. Everybody knows it's hot. People are alive. Now, what reason have you for running up to me and asking if it is hot? We are a little slow in Montana, but there are some things we know. I bid you good day."

London, Tuesday, July 7.

THE INVITATION TO "GET OUT OF THE COUNTRY."

A Dominion Day orator advised those of his hearers who were dissatisfied with the Dominion to get out of the country as fast as possible. "Buy a ticket," he exclaimed, "or if you are not able to do that, walk down to the frontier and cross the border as fast as you can."

This is good advice for those who have no faith in their country, and who regard its inhabitants as poor, weak, puny specimens of humanity, requiring "protection" against their neighbors who may wish to sell to them and as a matter of course to purchase Canadian products in payment. The sooner Canada gets rid of that constantly lessening class of people the better.

But, judging from the context of his address, the Dominion Day speaker hardly had that portion of the community in his mind's eye. His advice rather applied to those Canadians who deem it their right and their duty to candidly criticise the management of public affairs. It has been said that it is "an Englishman's privilege to grumble" if he believes that the management of his country can be improved. And so in this fair Dominion of ours it is not only the privilege, but the duty of every loyal Canadian to combat the doctrine of "whatever is is right," if he conscientiously believes that wrong exists.

If the British people who have from time to time combatted the advocacy of class laws and hereditary privilege had taken the advice of the optimists of the day, and walked out of their country at the solicitation of the enjoyers of sinecures, the great reforms in the trade, land, and electoral policies of the country would have been indefinitely postponed. In that case Britain to-day would be a third-rate power, instead of the leader in all movements for the promotion of liberty, free trade and the arts of peace that invariably follow untrammelled commerce. Indeed, no country could hope for greatness that would countenance the exilement of the men who honestly believe that the existing government and existing laws should be improved, and are candid enough to say so and to agitate for such changes as they believe would be for the common benefit. Where would Canada have been to-day if the opponents of the Family Compact had accepted the advice of the office-holding optimist of that day to clear out of the country if they were not satisfied? Premier Longley, of Nova Scotia, in speaking at the distribution of prizes and conferring of degrees at King's College, N. S., last week, uttered these patriotic sentiments:

"It should be the ambition of every man to advance his country's interests. Speaking for himself he would say without hesitation that no promised remuneration or honors would induce him to leave his native country to make a home in another land. If the universities of the country would only inculcate a love of country into the hearts of their students Canada would in a short time be foremost among the nations."

Yet Mr. Longley is one of the most earnest advocates of the speedy change of the Dominion trade policy. In that advocacy we believe he and the other Liberal leaders in the Dominion have the support of at least one-half of the Canadian people. What an absurdity, then, to advise those who are dissatisfied with the present condition of affairs to leave things as they are, and walk out of the country! Patriots are made of sterner stuff.

SPEAKING of the Langevin-McGreevy-Connolly-Murphy investigation the Montreal Witness says: "It must be kept in mind that all who are concerned in this trial, both accusers and accused, the implicated and the witnesses, are of one political stripe."

VOTING AND JURY SERVICE.

Several of our contemporaries argue that a man should not be obliged by law to go to the polls and exercise the franchise which the law—the will of the people—had conferred upon him, because, after he goes to the polls he may spoil his ballot.

The law obliges a man to serve as a juryman at coroner's inquests and in the courts of the land.

Sometimes there is a failure of justice because one or more jurymen decline to do their full duty. They do not respect their oaths; they refuse to join in the giving of a true verdict according to the evidence. They prove themselves to be cranks or worse.

Do the opponents of obligatory voting say trial by jury must be abolished because a few men in every community are found to fail in doing their whole duty as jurymen?

THE NEGRO'S FUTURE.

General Francis A. Walker, in the July Forum, in an article sketching the future of the negro, shows the misleading nature of the hasty generalizations so often made concerning his future numerical strength. Taking the statistics by ten and twenty year periods since 1810 it is shown that the increase by per cent. has declined steadily, and the assertion is made that in all probability this steady reduction in the negro's relative importance in the population of the United States will never be reversed. In 1790 the negro was one-fifth of the population; in 1840 but one-sixth; in 1860 one-seventh; in 1890 less than one-eighth. The negro race is maintaining its slight rate of increase only by means of a very high birth rate over a very high death rate. As a slave the tropically-bred negro was forced to follow the interests of his northern-bred master, often into regions where he lived only at a sacrifice of vitality; but now that he can move freely from place to place industrial reasons and natural tendencies are draining him off toward the low lands of the Gulf of Mexico, where his greatest rate of increase will be felt, and which in the nature of things will be constantly decreasing in its relation to the total population.

WHAT THE "ADVERTISER" THINKS ABOUT IT.

SPURGEON, the mighty preacher, is evidently breaking up. The good he has done will live after him.

‡‡‡

WHAT sort of a Temperance Liquor Commission will that fallen angel, "Bro." Foster, appoint? Its composition will be awaited with interest.

‡‡‡

THERE is some reason for the number of Toronto's July drunks. If they had good water, like the citizens of London, they would be without excuse.

THAT is a curious spectacle at Ottawa, viz., Langevin in the dock of public opinion, with noted criminal lawyers straining every nerve to break down the credibility of some of the "pals."

‡‡‡

MILLIONS of free men throughout the world will share Mr. Gladstone's grief over the death of his eldest son. In the Grand Old Man's enfeebled health, the blow is a terribly severe one.

‡‡‡

THE Brantford Expositor glories that the recent suburban annexations bring the population of the city up to 15,500 people. The Expositor did much to achieve the result alluded to.

‡‡‡

THE Christian Union, of which Lyman Abbott is senior editor, is now printed in new form, making it, on the whole, the handsomest religious paper, typographically, in the world. And it is just as well edited as printed.

‡‡‡

AMONG the new exploring expeditions that have been started to remove the blank spots from the maps of the world is that of Sir Thomas Elder, of Australia, who has just gone out from Adelaide to make an exploration of the center of Australia. The unknown portions include nearly 800,000 square miles of area. If this vast interior is discovered to be habitable and useful for grazing purposes or the production of lumber, it will give a marked impetus to the settlement and advancement of that growing colony. The great lack of inland Australia, so far as it has been explored, has hitherto been water, but it has been found that even that necessity can be obtained if the people go deep enough into the earth.

‡‡‡

THERE is still some talk over Rev. Dr. Douglass' objections to Sir John Thompson as Premier on the ground that he is a pervert from Protestantism. If we understand Dr. Douglass aright, his position is that he doubts the mental possibility of a man of acute intellect, and in the maturity of years, honestly swinging over from being a zealous North of Ireland Methodist local preacher to becoming an out-and-out Roman Catholic of a rather pronounced ultramontane type. This is a free country, and any Roman Catholic has a right to turn Protestant if he sees fit, and any Protestant has a right to turn Roman Catholic if he sees fit. The implied charge in Sir John Thomson's case, if we have read the various criticisms correctly, is not that he "turned Catholic," which he had a perfect right to do if he choose, but that he did it from political and social reasons rather than from conviction.

The press room of the powder works at Jeremyn, Pa., exploded this (Monday) morning. Philip Forkel and John Luelely were torn to pieces.

MUST BE CUT DOWN.

[Irish Canadian.]

The sands in the glass of the Abbott Government are but few. They are running out rapidly, and the days of the Government are numbered. The hulk is rotten, and the rats are leaving the sinking ship. Should the Government survive the session—which we do not anticipate—two or three reverses in the bye-elections will put an end to it. A Government so feeble, and soiled as it is, should not longer cumber the earth, but be cut down by the votes of the electorate.

WHAT SCOTCHMEN THINK.

[Glasgow Herald.]

The tariff war with the States has been a costly experiment for Canada, and has been steadily growing more unpopular. Even Sir John Macdonald did not venture to fight the last election on a bare protectionist issue. He put forth a programme of restricted reciprocity, and at the same time denounced his opponents as advocates of political union with the republic. It was by these devices, and by bringing about the struggle on an old electoral register, that he snatched his last victory. But it is becoming more and more manifest that the Washington Government will have nothing to do with restricted reciprocity; and the Conservative Ministry in the Dominion will not long be able to stand against the disappointment and reaction which the consciousness of this state of matters will create. A movement in favor of complete freedom of commercial intercourse with the States is sure to develop itself, and as Mr. Abbott and his colleagues cannot give effect to this without forfeiting the protectionist support, which is one great factor in their present ascendancy, their expulsion from office is not likely to be very remote."

Notes from Bradstreet's Review.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Bradstreet's weekly review says: The available stocks of wheat in the United States and Canada on July 1 were about 23,000,000 bushels, which with invisible stocks in the United States indicate a total reserve not exceeding 33,000,000 bushels, the smallest at a like date for nine years.

Wheat crop prospects in the Dominion of Canada continue very favorable and exert an influence on general trade, which has heretofore been slow and depressed.

Business failures in the Dominion (including those for Newfoundland) increased 127 or 14 per cent. in six months of 1891 over 1890, while the increase of liabilities was $1,478,282 or 20 per cent.

NORTHROP & LYMAN'S
VEGETABLE
A Great Blood Purifier
A Sure Cure for Dyspepsia
DISCOVERY

A Medical Triumph!
Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia.
MR. SAMUEL T. CASEY, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with Dyspepsia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies, and applied to my physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of Dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever, except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. NORTHROP AND LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now seventy-nine years of age, I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. I am well known in this section of Canada, having lived here fifty-seven years; and you have liberty to use my name in recommendation of your VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which has done such wonders in my case."

A Very Bad Case!
DYSPEPSIA VANQUISHED.
MR. JAMES JOHNSTON, 4th con., 7th lot, Amaranth, writes: "Two bottles of NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY cured me of Dyspepsia. Mine was a bad case and I had tried a number of other preparations without getting any benefit from them."

Dyspepsia Had to Go.
MR. W. J. DEVELL, Wingham, carpenter and builder, writes: "Three years ago I was greatly troubled with Dyspepsia; a pain between my shoulders was so bad that I thought I would have to quit work altogether. No medicine gave me ease until I got a bottle of NORTHROP & LYMAN'S VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, which gave me relief. I continued using the medicine until I had taken three bottles, when I was perfectly well. I consider it invaluable as a cure for Dyspepsia. I know of several persons who have used it with the same benefit."

What is Scrofula

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors." It is a more formidable enemy than consumption or cancer alone, for scrofula combines the worst possible features of both. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How can it be cured? By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. For all affections of the blood Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled, and some of the cures it has effected are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula in any of its various forms, be sure to give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

Earnings of Canadian Roads—New Short Line to Boston.

The Canadian Pacific Railway traffic receipts for the week ending June 30 were $486,000, as against $426,000 for the corresponding week last year.

Return of Grand Trunk traffic for the week ending June 27, 1891: Passenger train earnings, $118,267; freight train earnings, $215,947; total, $334,214; decrease, compared with corresponding period in 1890, $88,850.

The Canadian Pacific and Boston and Maine Railway Companies have practically agreed upon a plan whereby the distance between Montreal and Boston will be materially shortened. The Canadian Pacific is to build from St. Constant to Rouse's Point, connecting there with the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain Railway, which is owned by the Boston and Maine, and the Boston and Maine is to build two "short cuts," one from Hardwick on the Johnsbury and Lake Champlain to Barnet, on Wells River on the Passumpsic Division of the Boston and Maine and another from Fairlee, on the same division to Canaan on the Concordia Divison of the Boston and Maine. The distance saved will be about twenty miles. An advantage to the Canadian Pacific will be a connection with the Delaware and Hudson at Rouse's Point.

A Dinner Pill.—Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and conver the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with indigestion or Dyspepsia.

WILLIAM IN ENGLAND.

The Queen's Grandson Accorded a Hearty Welcome.

LONDON, July 6.—Emperor William of Germany arrived at Port Victoria, near Sheerness, Saturday morning. He was enthusiastically received by the crowds assembled to witness the landing of the imperial party. Sheerness harbor was a grand and beautiful sight. Both the channel and the training squadrons were at anchor, there as a guard of honor, probably finer than that which ever before saluted a monarch.

As the German ships neared the British warships all the latter thundered forth a royal salute and manned their yards with almost miraculous rapidity, while the bands played the German anthem. The roar of the guns, the distant music of the naval bands, the fine, bracing weather, the splendid array of war vessels and the refreshing breeze, all combined to make as attractive a picture of welcome as any emperor had or ever may expect to have.

Taken as a whole, the greeting extended to the Queen's warlike young grandson was without parallel in the history of England.

When Emperor William stepped ashore, and was met by the Prince of Wales, he kissed the heir apparent of the throne of Great Britain and then cordially received the greetings of the other members of the royal family and bowed to the welcome of the diplomatic corps and others.

Upon the arrival of the train at Windsor, the Princess of Wales stepped out of the waiting-room and greeted the Emperor and Empress. With her were the Princesses Beatrice and Christina, and the Princesses Victoria and Maud of Wales, Prince Christian, the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Henry of Battenberg.

After all-round handshaking and kissing, the procession, which consisted of twelve carriages, was formed. Everywhere there was a lavish display of floral decorations, bunting and flags, with plentiful motto greetings. To the unceasing ovation accompanying their progress the German Emperor and Empress replied with salutes. Upon the procession halting at the Guild Hall the town clerk read an address of welcome to the most favored home of the rulers of Great Britain.

On alighting from his carriage at the Waterloo door of the castle, the Emperor entered the hall. The Queen met him at the threshold and affectionately embraced him. All the royalties followed the Emperor, and the door was closed.

On Sunday Emperor William rose early and took a short ride, returning to breakfast with the Queen and the royal family. Immediately afterwards he started in a carriage for the Victoria barracks, accompanied by the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Clarence. After inspecting the Life Guards the royal party was escorted by the troops to Tainity Church. The Guards' band played Mendelssohn's March while the royalties were entering. The succeeding hymns were sung to the band's accompaniment. After the singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," the sermon was delivered by the Queen's chaplain, Arthur Robins, who referred to the self-denying lives of Christian record, mentioning General Grant, Count Von Moltke, General Gordon and Father Damiens. The service over the royal party drove back to the castle.

While the Emperor was at Trinity, the Queen, the Empress and Princess Beatrice drove to the private chapel at Frogmore, attended by the ladies of the household. The Bishop of Ripon officiated. At luncheon, the German Emperor and Empress met the bride and bridegroom of to-day, Prince Aribert of Anhalt, and Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein. The day concluded with a sacred concert in St. George's Hall.

BERLIN, July 6.—The newspapers published long accounts of the arrival of the Emperor and Empress in England. They express delight at their splendid reception and at the sympathetic attitude of the London press, which was not expected.

ST. THOMAS IN ARMS

A Deputation Appointed to Oppose It—Discussion in the Council—The G. T. R. Will Assist the Railroad City.

The St. Thomas City Council on Friday evening appointed Mayor McCully, Judge Ermatinger, Dr. Wilson and Ald. Gilbert a deputation to go to Ottawa to oppose the London and Port Stanley Railroad Bill, which comes before the Railway Committee of the House to-morrow. Some of the discussion which occurred at the special meeting called for the purpose will prove interesting to Londoners.

Ald. Gilbert explained that the object of the bill was to practically give London the control of the road, the bondholders being allowed to vote the same as stockholders. He thought the Grand Trunk would aid in opposing the bill, as it would put the control of the road out of their hands.

Ald. Ferguson said it was not probable that the legislation would pass, and the question was whether it would be necessary to send a deputation. As he understood it London practically controlled the road now.

Ald. Gilbert said that they could sue on their bonds now which were due in August, 1892, but as London had the majority of the bonds the latter might if the proposed legislation passed sell the road and depreciate the value of their bonds.

In reply to a question of the mayor, Ald. Gilbert said that London had a double object one of which was to use it as a leverage against the Grand Trunk, and to secure better rates for London. When the lease was made to the Great Western it was stipulated that freight should be carried 24 miles for London at the rate of $9 for every $7 charged St. Thomas for eight miles. It might depreciate the value of the $25,000 debentures to be issued with these bonds as collateral security, if the bill were passed, although he did not think it would. He (Ald. Gilbert) had written to General Manager Seargeant, of the G. T. R., and had received a reply saying that the company would co-operate with St. Thomas in opposing the passage of the bill, and that Mr. Beil, the company's solicitor, would render the deputation from St. Thomas all the assistance in his power.

Disastrous Trip of a British War Vessel.

Six Men Killed by the Bursting of a Big Gun—An Unknown Vessel Sunk Off Dover.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., July 6.—The British warship, Cordelia, Capt. Harry T. Grenfell, ten guns and 2,420 horse power, has just returned to this port after a most disastrous trip to sea for target practice with her big guns. Capt. Grenfell reports that while practicing with one of the Cordelia's six-inch breech-loading guns, the latter exploded killing Lieut. Wm. Hillyer, Lieut. Gordon and four seamen, and wounding three midshipmen and ten seamen. The Cordelia is a single screw corvette, built of iron and cased with wood. She is attached to the Australian station.

A STEAMER SUNK OFF DOVER.

LONDON, July 6.—A large steamer was sunk off Dover some time during last night. One mast of the vessel is visible above the water. No details are obtainable. The wreck appears to be that of a steamer of over 1,000 tons burden. No survivors of the disaster have yet reached ports near the spot where the vessel sank.

The British steamer Kinloch, from Zebu for London, passed Deal this morning with her bows completely smashed, and it is thought she is connected with the wreck.

The channel mail boat, which arrived at Dover this morning, reports that she had a narrow escape from being run into and sunk at midnight by a large steamer.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Farmers' Binding Twine Will Still be Heavily Taxed,

Though Vigorously Opposed by a United Liberal Vote.

OTTAWA, July 6.—On motion of Mr. Wood, permission was given for the withdrawal of the bills with regard to the Septennial League and Home Circles, with the return of the fees upon them less the charges for translation and printing.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES ACT AMENDMENT.

Mr. Dewdney introduced a bill to amend the Northwest Territories Act. It provides, he said, for the election of members of the Legislative Assembly for three years. It abolishes the old Advisory Board and legal experts. It provides that a lump sum of money be given the Legislative Assembly to be at their disposition. It provides that justices of the peace shall not sit on the bench with a judge of the Supreme Court in criminal cases. Section 110 of the act, with regard to the dual language, is altered in accordance with the resolution passed by the House at its last session. The resolution gave to the Northwest Assembly power to deal with the dual language in the Assembly. The amendment also provides for the establishment of jails in the Northwest, and gives to the Legislative Assembly power to make the same regulation for them as with reference to penitentiaries. It makes it clear that it is illegal for any person to have liquor without a permit in his own name. It gives to the Legislative Assembly the same power that Provincial Legislatures have with regard to licenses.

Mr. Mills (Bothwell)—Does it provide that the advisers of his Excellency shall enjoy the confidence of a majority of the members of the Legislative Assembly?

Mr. Dewdney—It makes no provision for an executive.

The House went into committee on the following private bills, and they were read a third time, except the third, which will receive its third reading to-morrow: An act to incorporate the Montreal and Atlantic Railway Company and for other purposes; an act respecting the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway Company; an act respecting the Ottawa and Parry Sound Railway Company; an act to revive and amend the act to incorporate the Quebec Bridge Company; an act to amend the act to enable the city of Winnipeg to utilize the Assiniboine River water power; an act to incorporate the Buffalo and Fort Erie Bridge Company; an act to incorporate the Burrard Inlet and Westminster Valley Railway Company; an act respecting the Baie des Chaleurs Railway Company.

DISPOSAL OF MINOR MATTERS.

Mr. Dewdney told Dr. Macdonald, of Huron, that it is the intention of the Government to put into the market some of the Manitoba school land as soon after the harvest as possible.

Mr. Alex. McKay received a reply in the negative to the question which he and his colleague from Hamilton have collaborated during the past nine weeks. It was whether the Government intend this year to amend the Customs Act prohibiting the export of wild fowl.

In reply to a question by Mr. German, Mr. Bowell said the Government had opened an inquiry into the management of the ferry running between Fort Erie and Buffalo. A report had been received, but no action had been taken, as the Government considered further information was necessary.

To Mr. Mulock, Mr. Haggart said the Government pays as follows for the carriage of the mails between Canada and Great Britain: To the Allen Line in Quebec, 50 cents per pound for letters and 5 cents a pound for other matter. To the Inman, Cunard and White Star Lines, via New York, 5 francs per kilogramme for letters and 50 centimes per kilogramme for other matter.

Mr. Delisle asked whether one Laforce Langevin, who has for several years been employed as assistant engineer of the Quebec harbor works, with a salary of $1,800 a year, has ever obtained a diploma as civil engineer, and if so, when, and from what institution? Sir Hector replied that Laforce now holds a certificate of membership from the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. He read a copy of the document, which is dated June 27, 1888.

Before the House went into committee on the last of the above bills Mr. Mills (Bothwell) spoke against the wide construction which the House was disposed to put upon its power under the clause of the B. N. A. Act, which gave it authority to take control of any public work it might declare to be in the public interest. According to the interpretation put upon the act, he said, the House could by a declaration bring any street railway or even a macadamised road within its exclusive jurisdiction. He did not think this was a reasonable construction to put upon the act. It was, in his opinion, an abuse which was not contemplated by the framers of the act.

DUTY ON BINDER TWINE.

Mr. Mulock moved that the House do go into committee of the whole to consider a resolution that binding twine be placed upon the free list. In support of his motion the member for North York made a strong speech. He put the question clearly before the House by placing side by side the prices of twine in the United States and Canada at the present time. His quotation of the United States market was from a letter written by the National Cordage Company, of New York, to a Canadian dealer, offering to do business. It was, therefore, bona fide. In carloads of ten tons each the prices in the United States were 10 cents per pound for pure manilla, 7½ cents for pure sisal and 7 cents for pure New Zealand. The price in Canada for pure manilla was 14 cents, and for pure sisal from 11 cents to 12½ cents. This was a difference, it would be seen, of 3 cents and upwards. The letter declared that at these prices the Canadian manufacturers would be undersold and a profit of $250 a car would be realized after the duty of 25 per cent. was paid. Mr. Bowell asked if the quotations of the United States manufacturers were not export figures, and Mr. Mulock said that he did not know of this, but the volume of the combine's investigation showed that the Canadian twine manufactories sold to the outside consumer at 1 cent per pound cheaper than to the Canadian consumer. The tariff placed the farmers at the mercy of an industry which it had been shown was using its advantage to extort exorbitant prices. As an example of the oppressiveness of the burden upon the agricultural community, he took a calculation he had made of the cost of the duty to York county farmers. He estimated that there were about 176,000 acres of grain to take off this year. Calculating two pounds of twine to the acre, and that was an underestimate, it would be seen that the farmers of York will pay $10,580 more than the twine was worth, and this they would do because of the tariff. If the Minister of Finance had his doubt that the removal of the duty would result in lowering the price let him look at the sugar market the day after the budget—(applause)—and, Mr. Mulock proceeded, if the present condition of the farmers of this country was unsatisfactory what would it be if the statement lately seen in the newspapers be correct, which say the National Cordage Company of New York have obtained control of all the twine factories in Canada? What would be the effect or the monopoly which this company seemed to have procured? The farming community, he contended, was entitled to the concession of free binder twine, if concession the Government regarded it, although he claimed it as a right. (Applause.)

Mr. Grieve, the new Liberal member for North Perth, made his first speech in favor of the abolition of this tax, and made a very favorable impression on the House. He, too, had obtained quotations, and they were: American mixture of manilla and sisal, 8½ cents a pound; Canadian, 11 cents. Taking the estimate that 8,000,000 pounds of binder twine would be needed to bind the crop of the Dominion this year, the 3 cents difference of prices amounted to from $250,000 to $300,000. This enormous amount wrs addad to what the farmers ought legislately to pay for their twine. It was not to enrich the Government, Mr. Grieve pointed out, that this tax was imposed. Last year there were only 27,990 pounds imported, and the duty collected was only $1,279. So for a revenue of $1,279 the farmer paid out $300,000. Mr. Grieves, having showed that the retention of the duty could not be from revenue motives, appealed for justice to the farmer against the monopolist manufacturer.

The debate was continued until a late hour, the motion being supported by Messrs. Casey, McMillan, Watson, Bain, Rowand, Armstrong, Charleton and Welsh, and opposed by Col. O'Brien, Dr. Sproule, and Messrs. Stairs, Fairbairn, McNeill, Ross, Daly, Bowell and Davin.

Mr. Mulock made a second speech. While he spoke Mr. Stairs interrupted, and Mr. Mulock directed the gaze of the House to the junior member for Halifax by asking him if he was president of the Canadian Consumers' Cordage Company. To the astonishment of the House Mr. Stairs assented, and Mr. Mulock drew the attention of the House to the significance of this fact. He did not say it was dishonorable for the honorable member to be interested in the binder twine trade, but it was right and important that the House should know how he was interested. Then Mr. Mulock sat down.

Mr. Foster got up to defend Mr. Stairs First he declared that the people of Canada had indorsed the policy of the Government several times.

Dr. Landerkin—It was in a moment of weakness. (Laughter.)

When he proceeded the Minister of Finance said the attack upon the junior member for Halifax was a despicable attack.

Mr. Mulock rose to a point of order.

Mr. Speaker said the expression had better be withdrawn, so Mr. Foster was obliged to withdraw.

Mr. Mills, Mr. Cameron (Inverness) and Mr. Mulock spoke, and the House was divided on the resolution, with the following result: Nays, 100; yeas, 80. Mr. Savard voted with the Government.

The House then adjourned.

He Fell Among Thieves

It was only when he began to look for writing materials that he became aware of the fact that he still wore his hat and gloves. He gave a little mirthless chuckle at the discovery, and removed them. Then he sat down and began to write. He filled sheet after sheet of wild protestations of truth and love, and when he had finished the letter, behold, it meant nothing to his mind. All the blood and passion, all heat and fervor, seemed to have stopped short at his finger-tips. Not a tone of the wild kaleidoscopic splendors of his heart had touched the paper. It stared blank, cold, and meaningless. He tore it across and across and threw it into the fire-place, and began anew, with the same result. He did not know how the night went by, but the noise of the fretful wind and the plash of the mournful rain outside were part of him. Many and many a time afterwards the noises of the stormy night brought back that time so vividly that his heart ached at them with the memory of its own old pain.

At last when he seemed to have cast all the scoriæ out of his heart and brain, his thoughts ran clear. He wrote a letter, brief and lucid, in which he told, as well and clearly as another knowing all the circumstances could have told it for him, the story of his entanglement. He did not spare his own foolishness, but he closed with a humble hope that it was over, and that his lesson would last him for his lifetime.

He looked up, and lo! the day had dawned outside already. He drew up one of the blinds, and looked on the street. A solitary policeman paced, gleaming there in his oil-skin cape, and a fog rolled about the roofs of the houses and obscured the chimney-pots opposite. The desolate silence weighed like lead, but he had gone through so much already to have any great keenness of feeling left. He threw himself upon the sofa, and in a while he fell stupidly asleep.

The entrance of the house porter with broom and dustpan failed to awaken him, but on the man's return with breakfast and letters he made a judicious clatter, and Harry came out of his dreams. He looked at the letters wearily as they lay upon the table, and turned them over with negligent fingers until he caught sight of Inthia's writing, a great shock went through him, and he knew that he held the news of his fate in his own hands. He tore the envelope open, and the first line he read assured him, and shot warm conviction of safety through him from head to heel.

"My Dearest Harry—I do not believe a word of that wicked and shameful story that Lady McCorquodale has told me. She says that we are not to meet again, but that will make no difference to me, and I am sure that it will make no difference in you. You must be brave, dear, and hope and have patience. I dare not wait to write more. Yours always,

INTHIA."

He kissed that brave message a hundred times, and hugged it and kissed it again. Oh, the honest, loyal heart; the peerless creature! In spite of a fog, rain, smoke, or wind, the wide world beamed with sunshine. He dashed rejoicingly into his bedroom, tore off his raiment with rollicking scraps of song plunged into his tub, and emerged from it like a radiant young giant. He dressed, and sat down to breakfast with exquisite complacency. His inner man reminded him now that he had forgotten to dine the day before. He rang for more eggs, and a further supply of deviled kidney, and made an exuberant meal. What did he care about Lord Hounes and Lady McCorquodale and Mrs. Brotherick now? Their suspicions had no longer power to vex him. He sang that the whole family syndicate might go to Hong-Kong, might go to Hong-Kong, might go to Hong-Kong for him. You would have been hard put to find a happier young man in London.

In this joyful mood he was preparing for his daily journey to the city, when the house porter brought him a letter addressed in an unknown hand to him. The messenger who brought it was instructed to wait for a response. Harry glanced first at the signature, and found that the missive came from Captain Heaton.

"My dear boy," it ran, "for Heaven's sake come round to me at once. Do not lose a moment. It is a matter of the most urgent consequence to yourself."

Wondering what this might mean, Harry marched off in front of the messenger, and in three minutes from his receipt of the letter found himself in Captain Heaton's presence. The morning plumage of the worthy captain was gay and brilliant. He was in a gorgeously flowered and embroidered dressing-gown, and wore Turkey slippers and a scarlet fez. He had begun his day's work early, and was already engaged over a brandy and soda and a cigar. In the evening, all things considered, Captain Heaton was a youngish-looking man for his years, but in the raffish traits peeped out in the bulbous underlid of his eyes, creased into thick folds, and in the strongly accentuated crow's feet. He offered his visitor a similar refreshment to that he was himself partaking, and his offer being declined, he sat in apparently uneasy silence for a moment, tugging at his mustache. To his visitor's mind he bore the air of a man who had an unpleasant communication to make, and is unwilling to make it.

"Do you know, my dear boy," said Heaton, suddenly, as if he had made up his mind to have the unpleasant business over; "do you know, my dear boy, that you have got yourself into a dickens of a mess?"

"Upon my word, I don't," returned Harry. "Do you?"

"I shall be very glad if I don't," said the captain. "You don't mean to tell me that you don't know what you have done?"

"Now," said young Wynne, lifting his eyes and looking squarely in the captain's face, "to tell you the truth, Heaton, I had enough of that sort of thing yesterday to satisfy me for the rest of my life. If I have done anything, be good enough to tell me what it is at once. If it concerns you in any way I will give you whatsoever explanation you may have a right to."

"If he has done anything," repeated the captain, as if appealing to some invisible third person who knew all about it and was bound to share his own friendly sorrow.

Harry kept a resolute good temper.

"I have done many things in my life," he said. "All sorts of things—good, bad, and indifferent. What is the one thing you want to speak about?"

"Well, upon my word," said Heaton, "you take it coolly."

"I try to," the young man answered.

Captain Heaton threw the theme clean away with both hands, and looked mournfully resigned.

"You—you don't know! You—you don't know!" he said, a moment later, knitting his eyebrows in inquiring wonderment, and leaning across the table towards his companion.

"Confound it all, man," cried the badgered youth, "I have told you already that I don't know. Do you know? Upon my soul, I think the whole world's going mad together."

"Oh," said the captain, with an air of injured friendship, "if you take that tone, Wynne, it's no affair of mine."

"Whose affair is it?" Harry asked.

"Gad," said Heaton, "I should say it was yours, if it's anybody's; but if you choose not to know anything about it, and to resent a friendly intervention, you may go to the mischief your own way, by Jove, and there's an end of it."

"Will you tell me," asked Harry, rising, "what it is you want to talk about."

"Oh well, if you insist on knowing nothing at all about it," returned the captain, "I'll try and refresh your memory. Did you ever meet one Butterfield, a jeweler, on Conduit street?"

"Yes," said Harry, "what about him?"

"Did you buy over £2,000 worth of jewelry from?"

"I did. And what of that?"

"Will you tell me what you did with the jewelry?"

There was a pause of a second or two, during which Harry regarded Heaton with a growing air of sardonic humor.

"I am glad to see you turning evangelist," he said, rather grimly. "I suppose you know Miss Tearsheet's ways as well as anybody. You ought to be experimentally qualified to denounce them. I took a lecture from Lord Hounes and Lady McCorquodale on that subject yesterday; but I'll be hanged if I'll stand one from you."

It was the captain's turn to be bewildered.

"I don't a bit know what you are talking about," he said, "and unless you are an uncommonly good actor, I'm beginning to think you don't know either. Here's a plain question, and you can give a plain answer if you like. Did you pawn those diamonds?"

"Of course I did. That is what I bought them for."

"Well, good Lord," said Heaton, staring at him, with a beautifully deceptive aspect of astonishment, "he confesses it! He talks about it as if it were the most ordinary transaction in life. "Do you know what you have done?"

"I have told you what I have done."

"No, you haven't my boy," Heaton responded, in a tone of almost fatherly sadness, "but I'll tell you what you have done. You have committed a fraud in the eyes of the law. You have laid yourself open to arrest and trial on a charge of fraud, and if the case is proved as you confess it you may get two years, with, or without hard labor, according to the judge's fancy."

(To be Continued.)

The Mythological Fates.

"Somewhere upon the unknown shore,
Where the streams of life their waters pour,
There sit three sisters, evermore
Weaving a silken thread."

Lovers of classic paintings are familiar with that famous group, called the "Three Gates." Fate seems cruel when it deprives women and girls of health. But in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they find a cure of untold value for nervous prostration, sick headache, bearing-down pains, bloating, weak stomach, anteversion, retroversion, and all those excruciating complaints that make their lives miserable. All who use it praise it. It contains no hurtful ingredients, and is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or its price ($1) will be refunded.

FUN, FACTS AND FICTION.

If it is human to err, is it inhumane not to?

A man's wife should always be the same especially to her husband; but if she is weak and nervous and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so, too.

A Rochester man says he never gets a piece of toast "as hot as toast," or a cucumber "as cool as a cucumber."

Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgative Pills, as they are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

Talk of the eccentricities of genius, and half of your hearers will feel grateful to you for finding a pleasing apology for their faults.

Mothers

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely veg table preparation; its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's spandœa—the mother's friend. 25 doses, 35 cents.

Hair Magic

Is a good name of Dr. Dorenwend's German preparation for the hair. It really works like magic. All who have used it pronounce it to be unequaled for remedying the lost vitality of the hair roots, restoring gray hair, removing dandruff, etc. Just try it. It is first-class. All druggists sell it.

What people often denominate a sea of trouble is frequently a notion of dyspeptic ideas.

Mr. J. R. Allen, upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered with Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Three Years Free

The Coming School of Medicine.

The Histogenetic System.

THIS SYSTEM IS COMPLETE, having different medicines for all the different diseases. The theory is entirely different from that of the old schools. The medicines are perfectly pure, containing nothing of a poisonous nature whatever, and are quite tasteless. For three years these medicines have been given away free and thoroughly tested in the most hopeless cases before being placed on the market. The result has exceeded the most sanguine expectations. Hundreds of cases supposed to be incurable have been cured, and abundance of proof can be produced to convince the most skeptical that Histogenetic Medicines have cured and are curing to-day DISEASES at a later stage than any other system of medicine in the world. In ACUTE cases the medicines act like magic. Chronic troubles require a longer time, generally from one to three months, according to the nature of the complaints. In FEMALE IRREGULARITIES, WOMB TROUBLES, etc., the medicines have been especially successful. Private EXAMINATIONS in these troubles are almost, if not quite, absolutely unnecessary. Call or send for one of our free books explaining the system. They should be in every house in the land.

RHEUMATISM and SCIATICA

LONDON, April 26, 1891.

I am happy to acknowledge, and now testify, to the efficacy of your medicines in curing Rheumatism. I have suffered with this painful disease in my shoulders, knees and hips for twenty-five years, also with sciatica for some time. I decided to try Histogenetic Medicines as a last resort, as nothing ever seemed to give me any permanent relief. The first week's medicine gave me relief, and in two weeks the sciatica disappeared and has not returned. I took the medicines for six weeks, and am cured of the rheumatism. I feel better in every way. I am sixty years of age, and feel quite smart and active. I can cheerfully recommend these medicines to the public, and will be glad to tell any sufferer about my case. It is now nearly two months since I ceased taking the medicines, and the effect is permanent.

Jeffrey, Ching and Richman were appointed members of the building committee. Wm. Moore was appointed secretary-treasurer and Wm. Grasby representative to the Quarterly Board. Death of an Old Resident.

At the ripe age of 79, John Charlton Dodd, a prominent resident of London for nearly half a century, died early yesterday at the family residence, Clarke street, South London. Deceased was born in Northumberland, England, in 1812, and when a boy went to the Highlands with his parents and followed the occupation of a shepherd. He emigrated to Canada in 1839 settling in Westminster township. Four or five years afterwards he came to this city where he lived until his death. In London he carried on business as a contractor and builder, having acquired a practical knowledge of the carpenter's trade while a youth. In 1839 he was married to Jane Durand, sister of William and the late James Durand, and the couple recently celebrated their golden wedding. Mrs. Dodd, seven sons and two daughters survive him. His death was not unexpected, as since he was attacked with la grippe in the winter of 1889-90 he never recovered his accustomed health. Deceased was a man of much business ability and of estimable character.

WHY NOT?
You have corns, warts, bunions, moles or cancers. Why are they not cured? You ask a reasonable question. It demands a candid answer. You have it here: You bought a corn cure. You thought you had Barkwell's, but it was not the genuine; you got a counterfeit. It was no more use than water. We missed the sale of what you wanted. So far, it is your money gone; our money goes too. You get another and think it is the genuine. You have made a mistake, and we are in disgrace. More of your money's gone; more of our money is gone. Your corns are no better; our reputation no better. You make up your mind they cannot be cured. We have lost a customer. You have got hold of the wrong end of the fact. You have got hold of the wrong bottle. Both our moneys are gone. Not only our moneys are gone, but our opinions of one another are wrong. We don't know you by sight or name. You don't know us. We think "how dull you are to get an imitation when you might as well get Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure." And you think "what fools the manufacturers of that corn cure are to cheat so." Let's get acquainted with one another. Let's get acquainted with Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure. The manufacturer is not the unhandsome name you call him by. And you can't help it. Come on. Nobody deals more handsomely. Nobody ever loses a cent by getting Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure, but they always lose a corn. We never have any trouble except from these infernal counterfeiters. Neither do you with Barkwell's Sure Corn Cure. ywt

VOICES OF THE PEOPLE.

A Worm's Ravages.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Would you kindly state in your valuable paper for the benefit of an anxious people if there is any effective and practical way of destroying the insect (cotton worm, I think, is the name given it) at present attacking all our beautiful maple trees? Also, please inform us if you can; what would result if the insect is left to carry on its destructive work? This is a subject which interests not only this city, but the public generally, and an early reply would greatly oblige. PRO BONO PUBLICO.

[Can any of our readers answer this question? It is important that the best possible antidote to the ravages of this insect shall be known and applied at once, or soon our beautiful shade trees will be completely destroyed.—EDITOR ADVERTISER.]

Why It Is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequaled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day. f
