In 25 constituencies there are no Tory candidates, and in 41 no Liberal candidates. Wales is expected to return a solid phalanx of Liberals, and Scotland to show three gains from the eleven Unionists returned at the last election. London is a great problem. POULTRY PRICES TO DROP

Local Consumers Will Benefit by the Smaller Demand From the West This Winter.

The long-expected reduction in poulry prices is likely to be realized this week, according to reports from some of the dealers. One dealer stated this morning that poultry, especially chickens, had been so plentiful that the den.and has been supplied, and the market is becoming glutted. Large shipments to the west were expected to keep the price up, but it now seems that the demand in the western provinces is not exceptionally brisk, and there will not be many big shipments made. The dealers, counting on these shipments find that they are overstocked, and to unload they

Mr. A. E. Silverwood, of the Flavelle-Silverwood Company, when guestioned in regard to the cut price, stated that he would not urprised to see a drop, but could not state whether it would come this week The last shipment to the west would ot go until the 10th of December, and would hardly be before this.

The demand in the west was not as ig as expected on account of the high prices, and many of the western dealrs were cancelling their orders. However, at that, a good many carloads being shipped. BIG SUGAR TRUST EVERY FOURTH MAN

Thirty Refineries Said to Control According to Rev. G. H. Spence, Drinks -Twenty Thousand Gather in Barrooms Every Evening.

> Toronto, Nov. 29.—Does one man in very four in Toronto drink? Are here 20,000 Toronto men in barrooms in an evening? Are there 2,000 men To each of these questions Rev. B.

H. Spence, general 'secretary of the Dominion Alliance, answers "Yes." Rev. R. M. Hamilton, speaking at Wesley Church in the interests of temperance Sunday night, said that "one man in every ten in Toronto drinks until he gets drunk." A man in the sudience challenged the statement. Mr. Spence yesterday came to the support of Mr. Hamilton.

"Mr. Hamilton was away within the mark," went on Mr. Spence, and he proceeded to demonstrate the accuracy of the statement. "There are in Toronto," he said, "349,000 people; Foronto," he said, "340,000 people; 170,000 are under 20 years of age, and half of the rest are women and children. That leaves, say, 85,000 adult males. There were last year 8,339 arrested for drunkenness. Some of these were repeaters, but for every repeater I could show you half a dozen who were drunk that were not arrested."

Taking it another way, Mr. Spence referred to the census of the bar-rooms taken by a staff of newspaper reporters at the time of the license reduction campaign. At that time there were 144 barrooms in hotels in the city. A man was sent to count the men in every one of these during a half-hour in the evening. The time selected was not the busiest, but be tween 8 and 10 o'clock. From 6 to 8 would be a busier time, so would from 10 to 11. But between the hours chosen, the slowest part of the evening, the men counted 2,039 men who entered the barrooms to drink. On the average, they would stay half an hour. Thus the whole lot of customers would change every half-hour So that during the five hours from 6 to 11, even one the basis of that rate of patronage, there would have been ir the barrooms of Toronto hotels on one evening 20,000 men, or about one in every four men of the population.

very few men would stay longer than half an hour, a great many would not stay so long, and so the number of customers would be even larger. "It would be safe to say, further, that in the average barroom one man in every four who is drinking become tipsy, and at least one in every drunk. This means that there are two thousand men drunk in the city of Toronto every night. And Toronto is a very good city.'

"And," Mr. Spence added, "while

Counsel For Prisoner Will Ask to Have the Six Months Sentence Set Aside.

The case of James Bates, the man who is now serving a six-months sentence imposed by Magistrate Love for non-support of his wife, took an interesting turn this morning, when Judge Macbeth, at the court house, refused to find the prisoner guilty of criminal neglect of his child, on the evidence of the same witnesses who appeared in the police court. The child died some time ago.

Mr. P. H. Bartlett, the prisoner's counsel, informed The Advertiser at the conclusion of the case that mediate steps will be taken to have what you may look forward to if the the police court conviction quashed, guesses of the weather dopesters of and Bates released. All evidence in the matter will be submitted to the Attorney-General and Minister of Justice at Ottawa.

Wife on the Stand. Bates' wife, who was one of the principal witnesses for the prosecution at the non-support trial, contradicted her former statements to a considerable extent, and quite a legal argument followed, when Crown Attorney McKillop, after cross-examination, asked permission to examine the witness regarding her depositions before Magistrate Love.

Mr. Bartlett objected strenuously, out while Judge Macbeth noted the objection, he allowed Mr. McKillop to proceed. Mrs. Bates' enunciation in the box

Every Comfort and Convenience at This Store for Strangers in the City

During the next few weeks visitors and shoppers from outside points will be more numerous than at any other season of the year.

The purchasing of Christmas things is a more difficult proposition than any other line of merchandise, where only limited assortments are carried. and those living in the smaller cities, towns and villages of Western Ontario look to this store to supply them in Christmas novelties (as in the allyear-round merchandise) with such articles as cannot be obtained at home.

With this aim our buyers search the British, French, German and other foreign markets twice each year, and at no season of the year is the product of their researches more attractive than at the Christmas season. Our great assortment of things, which are so appropriate for Yuletide giving, together with the immense assortment of novelty merchan dise, is appreciated by the shoppers as a wonderful assistance in making their selection of Christmas

Limited Number Ladies' $4 Gift Umbrellas, $2.75 Wednesday

SUITABLE HANDLES FOR ENGRAVING .-- If it's to be an Umbrella, here is your opportunity. A fortunate purchase from a manufacturer who, finding himself overstocked with high-grade handles, was forced to unload, hence the sacrifice in price. In order to get these to sell at above price, we purchased a ten dozen lot. We consider them excellent $4.00 Umbrellas, but most people would judge them to be much higher priced.

The handles are the very newest directoire styles in Pimento, Slipper Partridge and Ebony; caps of oxidized sterling silver nicely chased, 10k rolled gold with smooth heads for engraving, some large round mushroom heads, others with six-inch roll gold or silver caps; some twenty different styles to choose from; all are suitable to have monogram or initials engraved thereon; first quality silk mixed coverings with half-inch tape edge, very close rolling, paragon frames, with silk cases; an elegant umbrella from every standpoint of beauty, quality and durability. For the amount expended in one of these, there is no gift that a lady would appreciate more, and nothing will appeal stronger to a woman of taste and refinement than one of these new directoire gold-headed Umbrellas with the monogram or initials of the recipient nicely engraved.

A SMALL DEPOSIT will secure one or more of these. If you are not ready for it, we will hold it that you may take advantage of this great bargain, and if you wish, at a small extra cost, you may have it engraved and delivered later.

LONDON, TUESDAY, NOV. 29. PROSPEROUS ONTARIO.

Mr. Gordon Waldron's pessimistic references to conditions in Ontario have excited much interest and comproduced a disquieting array of statistics to prove that the rural population was still declining. A great deal of the responsibility he placed upon the tariff. He pleaded for a trade arrangement that would give Ontario farmers easier access to the United States, which he described as Canada's natural market.

The National Policy undoubtedly placed a burden on Ontario agriculture, which was aggravated by hostile tariff legislation across the line. The depths of depression were reached after the adoption of the McKinley bill, in the infancy of the dairy industry, and before the adjustment of Ontario products to the British market had been thoroughly effected. Those days are gone, and while the Ontario by free entrance for some of his products into the United States, he is inabrogation of the reciprocity treaty ers as today. He asserts:

while it is true that there are not land is made to yield a fair return. Province-it is too much like using the Commons less. These are condiconditions are such that it pays. It is all right to argue that Ontario second chambers a problem in all should support many millions more countries. than it does, but there will not be a change until a class of settlers begin to come who can afford to buy the valuable farms that are now only partly worked.

"Even an influx of settlers who can afford to buy good land, and break up the large holdings that are now insufficiently worked, cannot bring about the desired change while t sell, and cannot be moved to do so except by exorbitant prices. I am making no attempt to offer a solution of the difficulty. I am merely describing the conditions as they

It is interesting to note that two typically agricultural states, Iowa and Missouri, show the same phenomenon as Ontario, a declining rural population. In the ten years, 1890-1900, the cent, and in the following decade it Mr. Monk's recalls the couplet: decreased 0.3 per cent. Iowa lands, the "Strange! All this difference should be Des Moines Register says, have doubled 'Twixt Tweedle-dum and Tweedlein value in ten years. They are so high that farmers with large families are tempted to sell and remove to a country where farms for all can be established with the proceeds of the sales. The young farmers of Missouri and Iowa, says the Washington Post, are leaving for Oklahoma, Texas, the Pacific Coast and the Canadian Northwest, for the same reason that their magnet of cheap and free lands in the high prices are counteracting this attraction, and certainly the Ontario farmer who remains on his farm is finding this the golden age. As the area of free or very cheap land in the land rises automatically. There has been no diminution in the aggregate the depletion of population in circum stances so favorable cannot long con-

KING GEORGE.

The coronation of George V. in June promises to surpass in splendor any British coronation of the past. One thing that makes this certain is the well-known imperialism of the new king. As sailor and prince, much travelled in the "Seven Seas" and in the far-flung realms of his dominion, he has embraced the project of a more united Empire.

"Wake up, England!" is the one perature below 88 degrees. memorable sentence of the addresses given by the ex-Prince of Wales. He meant particularly that England should endeavor to realize and grasp the conditions of the Empire, the comthe new Prince of Wales crowned at law."

unites a strong local feeling. He loves George IV. O'Connell, although the head England, and he loves his own household true to the kindred points of empire and home. In two things he appeals to English sentiment-he is a sea dog, and his domestic life is praised by all as an example of affection and simplicity.

While he is likely to be less European and more imperial than his was the Irish attorney-general. On the father in his personal likes, it is to be death of the Queen they resumed their hoped he will be as tactful and strictly impartial in his attitude toward domestic politics as was Edward the and Denman, who, they record, "appeared Seventh, There have been some fears in less distinguished robes." that he may prove an obstinate Conservative and reject the advice of a ministry heading a Radical majority. But he has shown a marked cordiality toward Mr. Lloyd George, and he made a bolder move as a peacemaker than even his father had ventured in suggesting at the outset of his reign the conference between the political leaders. If it has failed, he did at any rate all that could be done to bring about peace. At the same time, the impression of prosaic common sense, which he conveys to his people, is more and more reassuring all parties as to the outcome of the great crisis.

Upon reading this dispatch carefully, however, it was a peculiar fact that the archdeacon carefully avoided making any definite charge against the Belgian Government, nor in fact did he seem to take any very active part in the meeting, and I can only venture the prophecy that he accepted the chair in question from force of habit, for the dispatch told us that his statements were worded "with statesmanlike restraint," whatever this might mean under the circumstances, because he really said nothing of importance. But what he lacked was fully made up by the "fiery denunciations"—as your dispatch stated—of a "Dr. Clifford, and some other members of the free churches," Now, I wonder if "Another Anchor" has taken his history of the Congo from these "fiery denunciators"? It looks as if he did, or from some kindred source. And it has always appeared to me that this cry about the Congo is rather the cry of commercial England than of Christian England. "humanity" calls for British interference, and "Another Anchor" wants to know. Let us strip the Congo of its immense rubber plantations, and I question very much if "Another Anchor" and the "fiery denunciations"—referred to in the dispatches—would ever have heard of the "atrocities" and "brutalities" alleged to have been committed. I say advisedly, alleged, for upon investigation by impartial authority—if not hostile—in one sense—it was conclusively proved that no cruelties were practiced, at least to the knowledge of the Belgian Government. My authority is none other than Protestants, and Protestant clergymen. Protestants, and Protestant clergymen.
In the London "Times" of the 18th of January, the Rev. Dugald Campbell a Protestant missionary, stated in no uncertain voice that everything the defenders of Belgian administration maintained regarding brutalities is absolutely tenders of Beigian administration main-ained regarding brutalities is absolutely true. Moreover, a short time ago two English gentlemen connected with the British museum returned from a visit to the Congo, one of whom had spent seven rears there. They considered it proper to pu lish a refutation of the slanders which had been spread about the Congo. For four months they had been working in the private domain of the king of the Belgians. They also spent a long time in Kasai Basin, where the worst of the "outrages" were said to have occurred, and they said they never saw a single act of brutality on the part of the state. and they said they never saw a single act of brutality on the part of the state officials, or the company's people.

Twenty-one years ago, Sir Charles Dilke wrote: "If the king of the Belgians should succeed in developing the Congo region it is certain that the greater porregion, it is certain that the greater por-tion of the trade will fall to our share."

region, it is certain that the greater portion of the trade will fall to our share." This prophecy has failed in so far as the resultant trade is concerned, hence the British traders feel as if they had been cheated out of their portion in some way by their successful rivals, and as a consequence slander, insult, and such tactics are resorted to.

"Another Anchor" boasts of enlightened England, and says that longer hours and lower pay distinguish Belgium from her as well as from other countries and tries to twist "Sheet-Anchor's" statement about Cradley Heath into a reflection on the small pay alone. To my mind this is wrong. I read from "Sheet-Anchor's" letter that it was the conditions and not the pay that he principally referred to. The scorching of women and pitting of the faces of little babies by falling sparks, commented upon. The children in Belgium may only earn ten cents a day, their hours may be longer, I am not prepared yet to admit that they are, but these children know how to laugh, as also do the Belgian women, even if they draw carts, but many of these carts have children in them, and the Roman Catholic Church today is trying to educate some other countries to the advantage and propriety of drawing ing what "Sheet-Anchor's" nationality is, and even if it be Celtic, he should not be ashamed of the fact. These are only vagaries, like other parts of "Another Anchor's" attempted reply, and like the proverbial "red herring" have failed in their purpose. It seems to me, Mr. Editor, that the public interest lies in the facts as they really are, not in personalities. To begin with, "Another Anchor" has well named himself. For he has "dragged"—just like the other anchor in the ship—and taken us through Holland, the Congo, Italy, Austria, Portugal, Spain, Poland, Germany and France, and asks for definite information all at once about the Roman Catholic Church, any "old thing," in fact, the sought the mine was brought out, but unconscious.

It is not my purpose to attack the policy of the English Government. And P a challenge is issued by Archdeacon Madden, and other imported preachers from England, it seems to me that it is time that both sides of the story were told. NELSON GOES WAY OF ALL CHAMPIONS

Oscar Matthew Battling Did Not Help the Brewers Or Tobacco Men.

STAMINA SAPPED AWAY

Always Conquered When Opponents Tired From Punching Him.

The much-bruised and battered Oscar Matthew Battling Nelson, probably the most unique figure of recent years among the fisticuff fraternity, is through. He may make a few more loud howls through the newspapers, and talk of going at it BARNEY OLDFIELD FORMS

Moran in the eleventh round at San Francisco on Saturday afternoon, nothing was left of this remarkable fighter but his old buildog fighting instinct. He was as aggressive as ever, and as game as ever, but his power to do things had flown. He was partly up and wholly down no less than five times in the fateful round.

It is no disgrace to be beaten by rugged Owen Moran. But two years ago Nelson would have been a 4-to-1 favorite over time proved any since that time.

Could Net Overcome Nature.

Of course it had to come. The abnormal body and iron jaw had to pay the penalty of repeated flailings. Nature wouldn't have it any other way. Joe Gans hit that jaw with all his power behind the blow when Joe was good. He did nothing but jar the Dane. Young Corbett, In his prime, had an unobstructed swing with his trusty right at that same square jaw, but Nelson only grinned and came back for more. So it went down the line, until Wolgast picked the championship off three. Nelson was passing them. He alternative in the events in which they are lines in the few propers and the events in which they are lines in the fateful proved any since that time.

but Nelson only grinned and came back for more. So it went down the line, until Wolgast picked the championship off the tree. Nelson was passing them. He always was easy to hit. Then it didn't hurt much; now it stops the only real rivat to Common head.

Joe Grimm ever had. in 1904 Spider Welch, a hard-hit-Back in 1994 Spider Welch, a hard-hitting, almost champion, came back to San Francisco with a Salt Lake knockout charged against him and a story of the toughest man in the game. Welch was in the habit of sending lads down and having them stay down when he was able to plant his glove right. Nelson had been his opponent. He had gone down all right, some half-dozen times, but violated Spider's ethics by getting up again. Finally, when Welch had tired himself out hitting the Battler, he found Nelson gaining in strength, and it was the Spider who took the long count in the Spider who took the long count in Couldn't Make Battler Quit.

So they picked Martin Canole, the clever Fall River lad, as Nelson's trial horse in San Francisco. Only a few regulars turned out, and most of them went home early, after crying "Stop it!" until they were hoarse. For ten rounds Nelson spent most of his time, when he wasn't on the floor, either going down or getting up. The janitor had to stay to turn out the lights, and some few spectators, who had no other place to go, stuck for the finish. Canole wore himself out, and the Dane started as Welch said he would.

And what glutton for free advertising the Dane has always been. Most of his time when out of training was spent hanging over some sporting writer's desk, talking about himself. And it was usually "good copy" at that. He even wrote a book about himself, and the publisher let him pay the cost of getting the book out. It's an even bet that his Hegewisch home still stores a few thousand of these volumes. The material was mostly press notices about his own greatness. notices about his own greatness.

Boy Dropped Pencil, and While Looking For It, Came Across a Big Package of Bills-Mystery Will Soon Be Cleared Up

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Twenty thousand dollars in Traders' Bank bills, stolen last year between Toronto and Ottawa, have been recovered at 94 Galley avenue, in a remarkable manner, The anxiety of a little boy to recover a lead pencil accidentally dropped into a heating register caused the

Early last week, when an employee of the Canada Foundry Company went | mously adopted. to his home after work he was confronted with stocks of new five-dollar bills and an excited wife, who explained that the little boy in searching for his pencil had pulled up the grating of the register and had discovered a tin box containing the notes which ne found much fun in playing with. There was several thousand dollars. On Thursday the Traders' Bank was communicated with, and on seeing the bills at once recognized them as part of a consignment of $20,000 sent from the American Bank Note Company at Ottawa, per Dominion Express, to the Traders' Bank here a year ago last March, and stolen somewhere in transit. The police have been on the hunt for them ever since, and have had persons under suspicion who will likely be connected with the crime

The place was searched from top to bottom with the result that a large portion of the missing money was

A Circular Issued.

On June 21 last year, the Canadian Detective Bureau issued a circular to the police showing half-tone productions of the missing bills counter-signed "G. W. Michie," the signature being a forgery. The bills were part of a new issue and none of them were put in circulation by the Traders' Bank. The printing of the issue was discontinued on account of the robbery and the plates destroyed. It is understood that all the stolen bills with the exception of a few nundred dollars, have been recovered. The man who returned them to the bank has only been here a short time, and he rented the house furnished. The find has been kept very quiet by the police.

An Honest Man. No suspicion whatever is directed gainst the finder, as some of the ills could have been negotiated if presented elsewhere, but they were ecognized as soon as they were shown

Much Stolen Goods Has Been Identified as Hamilton Property.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Hamilton, Nov. 29.-From investigations that the police are making it is now certain that Thomas H. Barnette and Florence Tomlinson, the pair arrested in Baltimore some days ago for theft operated here, and it is likely that they operated at other points in Western Ontario. Chief Smith announced today that they were the pair who operated here and got away with the goods from Ernest W. Watkins' house, South Park street. Chief Smith has managed to carry on his investigations during the past few weeks without letting the facts leak out, for, if he had, it would have been detrimental to locating the goods, he says. He carried on negotiations with the police of Baltimore, Toronto and Buffalo, with the result that a number of the articles stolen from the Watkins' home last August, were found with the piles of other stolen property, which was located by the Baltimore and Buffalo police in Baltimore. The pair were arrested in Baltimore, having been traced to that city by the Buffalo police. Florence Tomlinson was a Toronto girl, and when she saw her lover in trouble she married him in the police station in Baltimore. They were then taken to Buffalo to be tried on the series of burglary charges. Barnette was found guilty, admitting the offences, and both he and his wife appeared for for sentence before Justice Marcus in the Bison City on Friday. Barnette is but 23 years of age and his bride eighteen. Barnette was sentenced to Auburn Prison for not less than two years and six months and not more than four years and eight The wife was sent to a house of refuge.

Barnette was a modern Raffles. He followed the Raffles methods in his exploits and broke into houses in a full dress-suit. After the burglary at Mr. Watkins' residence in August, the local detective force circulated descriptions of the stolen jewelry and other articles, and made a thorough investigation of the affair. They suspected, when the pair were arrested n Baltimore, that it was more than likely that they were the guilty par-ties, and Chief Smith communicated with the Buffalo and Baltimore police. The stolen goods, or at least part of them, were located by the American authorities and they will be sent to

GRAND TRUNK OFFICIAL

Discusses Question of Reinstating Local Crews Still Out.

Superintendent Gillen, of the Grand Trunk, was in the city today and held a conference with a number of the local railroad men who have not yet been reinstated. When interviewed by The Advertiser Mr. Gillen stated that at present the company have all the men they require, but declined to say whether the men who are still out will he replied that the question would not be further considered at this season, but intimated that the matter might be again taken up in the spring.

In regard to reinstatement, the men themselves were very uncommunicatve, and declined to discuss the results of their conference with the superintendent. Matters appear to have been

HAD CLOSE CALL

[Special to The Advertiser.] Toronto, Nov. 29.—William Clark, a bell-boy at the Elliott House, had a remarkable escape from being killed. With the porter of the hotel he was examining a revolver when it accidentally discharged, and bullet struck Clark in the throat. Clark gave a cough and spit the bullet out of his mouth. He was hurrled to the hospital, where the wound was sewed up. He is apparently all right now.

The remaining members of the cast were clever. The play is splendidly staged, the settings in every act being artistic.

Issued a Writ. Ottawa, Nov. 28.-A writ was filed this morning here against A. J. Small, of Toronto, proprietor of the Russell Theatre, this city, to compel him to carry out a contract made with Max and Teresa Wolfe, of Ottawa, to rent the Russell Theatre to them on the night of Dec. 6. It is understood that Albert Chevalier, the well-known English actor, is hilled at the Russell for that night, but the Wolfes claim they hold a written contract signed by Mr. Small granting them the use of the house on the night in question. If the contract is broken plaintiffs ask for $5,000 damages.

Jessie Maclachlan. Miss Jessie Maclachlan, the Scottish prima donna, is always sure of a warm welcome to London. The apearance of the Jessie Maclachlan Company at the Grand Opera House next Friday evening should attract a full house. The programme will be one of the best ever presented here, and popular prices will pre-vall. Additional interest centres in the Maclachlan Company this season from the fact that Mr. Craighall Sherry forms one of the company. So popular is Mr. Sherry that he fairly divides the honors with the prima donna wherever they per-form. Miss Maclachlan and Mr. Sherry form a very strong combination, and their united efforts never fail to capture

A Delightful Comedy.
"The Little Damozel," Monckton Hoffe's
delightful comedy of sentiment, will come of the Grand on Saturday next, Dec. 3, matinee and night. It tells the love story of a waif, who is harpist of the orchestra. The "Angelique" is a rendezvous of bohemians. The girl has been reared in that atmosphere, and knows no other life. Married to a man she sincerely loves, and who, after the union, grows to care for her as deeply; tragedy stalks into her life hand in hand with the information that her husband has become such a part of a business transaction, he having her naid well to perform his having been paid well to perform his part of it. From the home of the couple the story then harks back to the Cafe Angelique, where it started, and here in a most unusual way is worked out to the climax that untoward situation in which the chief characters find them-selves. No Cheers For Arthur Gilbert Member From Drummond-Arthabaskaville.

SPEEDY PARTY'S FAILURE

ceived the cut direct from the assembled House on his introduction. When the new member, accompanied by Messrs. Monk and Paquet, entered the chamber, he was received with frigid but eloquent silence, not the faintent of the Conservative party on the position of defence.

Mr. Blain asked Mr. H. H. Miller whether he still adhered to the statement he had made that Messrs. Monk, Blondin, Foster and George Taylor, were not loyal. but eloquent silence, not the faintest semblance of a cheer being raised.

Evidently fearing that anything in the shape of a greeting might be regarded as another indication of their in his sympathy with the Nationalist cause, the Conservative members who a few weeks ago were applauding the victory of Mr. Gilbert, fidgetted in their seats, and remained dumb, while the Liberal members gazed curiously, but loyalty.

Mr. Paterson's Arguments. Contrary to expectations, the end of the debate on the address was not reached tonight. Today's discussion was notable for a rousing speech by Hon. Wm. Paterson, who exposed the inconsistencies of the Opposition on the question of naval defence with great force and effect, and tore the amendment of Mr. Borden to shreds, The minister of customs was particularly effective in his contrast between the position of the Conservatives two years ago and last session, when they were all for prompt action Dreadnoughts, and their policy of donothingism now, and the House roared with delight when he labelled them the "speedy party," whose paper cur-rency of loyalty had so depreciated that no responsible shipbuilder would take it to build a fishing smack. Dr. Black, Hants, introduced a bill to amend the Canada medical act by providing among other that any qualified medical practitioner entitled to practice medicine in any of the Dominion.

Hon. William Paterson.

Hon. Wm. Paterson regretted to find Dr. Sproule taking the position that Canada with eight million people should do nothing to protect her own irterests. It was a position scarcely worthy of the member for East Grey, Directing his attention to Mr. Bor Directing his attention to Mr. Borden's amendment Mr. Paterson recalled the terms of the resolution proposed by Mr. Foster two sessions ago calling upon the Government to delay no longer in taking the necessary steps for the naval defence of the country, and also the terms of the resolution, which was amended at the instance of Mr. Borden in certain particulars, and passed unanimously in 1903. At that time Mr. Borden was concerned in desiring the insertion of one word in the resolution that would indicate that Canada should act promptly. The word "speedy" was inserted. "And now," said Mr. Paterson, amid loud cheers from the Liberals, "the whole tone of the Opposition is: "Don't go into the creation of a navy; ask the people.'" In 1909 the views of the "speedy party," as Mr. Paterson described Conservatives, were met. A year afterwards, while in the West Indies, he was amazed to read in the press that the leader of the Opposition had taken a different view, and was urging that $25,-800.000 for the pression of the press that the leader of the Opposition had taken a different view, and was urging that $25,-800.000 for the press that the leader of the Opposition had taken a different view, and was urging that $25,-800.000 for the pression of the opposition had taken a different view, and was urging that $25,-800.000 for the pression of the opposition had taken a different view, and was urging that $25,-800.000 for the pression of the den's amendment Mr. Paterson recallthe organizer himself is not a bank different view, and was urging that $25, 600,000 should be handed over to Britain to spend, where, when and how it willed. This year there was still another change. "If there ever was in any legislative as-sembly a party occupying a position like that of the Opposition on the question of naval defence, I cannot recall it," de clared Mr. Paterson. Last year the Op position proposed an alternative in the shape of a contribution to the British navy. This year they proposed to stop the construction of the Canadian navy pleasures. We are pleased and amused and to do nothing at all for Britain.

"We never get too much of life; we get too little. Some people decry earthly things, and apologize to themselves for enjoying them. When one depreciates the present world he loses the power of moral stimulus. We should have an intensive interest in things. The trouble is, we think too much of the future and far too little of the present.

"To attain a high standard we must not affect disregard for things around us Paper Currency Loyalty.

gested that it had been borne in upon the leader of the Opposition by some of his followers that something had to be done to show that there was an understanding between the Conservative party and the Nationalist party. "What will some of their imperial friends in the old country think of them?" asked Mr. Paterson. "Last year they were willing to offer $25,000,000 for Dreadnoughts. This year they assure his excellency of their unalterable devotion to the British crown." There had been so much use of the paper currency of the Tory bank of loyalty that the people were beginning to think it had no gold basis of action. That currency had become so depreciated that no responsible shipbulider would take a cartload of it to build a fishing smack. Mr. Borden's amendment declared that Canada was prepared to fulfill its responsibilities to the Empire, but Mr. Paterson pointed out that Mr. Monk's view was that these responsibilities had already been displaced.

Hon. William Paterson Showed the Different Attitudes of Conservatives on the Navy Question.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—Something in the nature of an anti-climax to all the recent excitement over the Drummond-Arthabaska election occurred in the Commons today, when the victorious Nationalist, Arthur Gilbert, received the cut direct from the assemble of the Conservative party on the question of defence.

Mr. Paterson pointed out that Mr. Monk's view was that these responsibilities had already been discharged. He believed the people would be disgusted with the attitude of the Opposition in standing on the ground of the Nationalists, and would stand by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party, who had been consistent throughout and straightforward.

Mr. Blain argued at some length in favor of the proposal to hand over to the Western Provinces the ownership of their lands, and defended the position of defence.

Mr. Miller said that, judging these members by their actions, he did not think they could be deemed loyal. The actions of Messrs. Foster and Taylor in sending the telegrams they had were not, in his online level. s opinion, loyal.

Blain asked a ruling from the as to whether one member was chair as to whether one member was entitled to charge other members with

The Speaker did not think Mr. Miller had made any direct charge of dis-
