WILSON "PASSES BUCK" TO CITY COUNCIL

VALUABLE LAND IS CLAIMED FOR GREAT BRITAIN

Explorer Stefansson and Party Plant Flag at Wrangel Island.

IS ABOUT JAMAICA'S SIZE

Survivors of Ill-Fated Karluk Arctic Expedition Give Canada Prior Rights.

New York, March 20.—Wrangel Island, one of the most important lands in the Arctic region, has been claimed for Great Britain by a party of three Americans, a Canadian and four Eskimos. It became known tonight through Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Arctic explorer and organizer of the expedition. Mr. Stefansson said the British flag had been planted on the island on Sept. 21.

Stefansson said his fifth and latest Arctic expedition, made up of Allan Crawford, son of a Toronto university professor; E. L. Knight, McMinville, Oregon; P. Auer of Philadelphia, Texas, and four Eskimos, was sent by him into the northern wastes for the express purpose of claiming Wrangel Island for the British.

Wrangel Island is about the size of Jamaica, lying 100 miles off the north-eastern coast of Siberia, and 400 miles west of Bering Strait. Strategically the island dominates Northeastern Siberia.

To Go To England.

Although Stefansson said he knew of the expedition's success the day following the Wrangel Island landing, he has just made the fact public. He said he intended sailing this spring for England, to present Britain's new possession to the British prime minister. The first intimation that the British flag had been raised on Wrangel Island by Vilhjalmur Stefansson was received by the British government through Ottawa. This was disclosed this morning, when it was learned that Stefansson last Friday went to Ottawa for the purpose of making a report in person to Hon. Mackenzie King. The Wrangel Island expedition was organized without any assistance from the British Government. According to reports published here its exact nature was not known to the British government until after the explorer made his report to the Canadian premier last week.

CANADA'S PRIOR CLAIM.

Ottawa, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Wrangel Island will come to Canada. That it is expected here, will be the upshot of the planting of the British flag there on September 21 by the last Arctic expedition organized by Vilhjalmur Stefansson. The assumption here is that the expedition was formally claimed in the name of Great Britain to avoid international complications with a view to its being eventually transferred to Canada as part of the Dominion.

As a matter of fact, while the probability of any difference arising between Canada and Great Britain over the island is dismissed, Canada has a previous claim by right of ownership. For eight months following the loss of the Karluk of the Canadian Arctic expedition of 1913, Wrangel Island was occupied by a body of the survivors, three of whom died there. This actual occupation of the island, it is stated, would constitute a basis for ownership without the actual hoisting of the flag or a formal claim being made.

The value of the island is understood to lie chiefly in fur and fisheries. Seal and walrus are stated to be plentiful.

The Weather

FORECASTS.

Showery today; strong northwest and north winds; overcast and colder, with occasional snow flurries tonight and on Tuesday.

The disturbance over Kansas on Saturday morning has moved to Lake Huron, attended by rain in Southern Ontario and snow in Northeastern Ontario.

Apert from light snowfalls in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the weather elsewhere in the Dominion has been fair.

To Vote On 3-Cent Street Car Wage Cut

MEN TO DECIDE ON TWO PLANS OF ACTION OPEN

Will Ballot at Two Mass Meetings, Tonight and Tuesday Afternoon.

INJUNCTION OR STRIKE

Executive Favored Legal Tactics, But Vote May Decide On Walkout Alternative.

Within 36 hours motormen and conductors employed by the London Street Railway Company will decide just what action they will take to combat the three-cent-an-hour wage reduction which became effective March 1.

Two general mass meetings will be held at the Labor Temple in order that every member of the union may be allowed to cast his vote. Men on the day shifts will gather Monday at 8 p.m., while those who are manning the cars during the night runs will meet Tuesday at 2 p.m.

On Monday morning the employees received their first pay envelope since the reduction was announced by the company. The latter carried its decision into effect, the men being remunerated for their services this month at the rate of 45 cents an hour instead of 48 cents.

See To Finish. Officials as well as the rank and file of the union reiterated Monday morning their firm intention to fight the company to a "finish." All were reluctant, however, to define just what tactics are likely to be employed. It is clearly evident that a difference of opinion now exists among the men.

Two courses are open, however, it was pointed out. The union may through the courts seek an injunction to restrain the company from continuing its reduction, while the services of a board of conciliation is sought or else a general walkout may be ordered.

The attitude of the employees Monday indicated that should all else fail, the strike weapon will be employed. Officers of the union freely acknowledged that every effort will be exerted to fight the reduction already in effect. While the executive of the union at its last session favored legal action to secure an injunction it was felt that as this would involve a considerable expenditure, the opinion of the men should be sought.

May Decide Against. The men may decide not to undertake this at a probable cost of several hundred dollars and may also reject the suggestion that application be made to the federal government for a board of arbitration.

In any event, officials point out, the finding of a board of this nature is not necessarily binding. As an example of this reference was made to the street railway situation in Hamilton, where, despite the efforts of a board, both the management and employees refuse absolutely to compromise and a strike seems inevitable today.

It is now feared that the local situation will eventually assume similar proportions, as to date both parties have been ebullient in their respective stands.

The local men lay emphasis upon their claim that the company did not actually break its contract until Monday noon when its employees were paid at the reduced scale. They assert that they have plenty of time at their disposal, as the longer a walk-out action is deferred the better equipped they will be to institute a definite out should the same be necessary.

DIES FROM AUTO INJURIES.

Winnipeg, March 20.—John Thompson, aged 75, was knocked down and fatally injured by an automobile alleged to have been driven by John Semchysky here on Saturday. The latter is under arrest. Thompson died later in hospital.

HOW GANDHI, JAILED AS SEDITION LEADER IN INDIA, GAINED POWER

Special to London Advertiser.

LONDON, March 20.—Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, who was sentenced to a six-year term on Saturday by British authorities in India on a sedition charge, is not one man but several!

The Indian nationalist leader has as many different personalities as one of his Hindu gods has heads.

He's a skilled lawyer.

An expert evangelist.

An expert diplomat and politician.

A half-starved ascetic.

A reputed worker of miracles.

And by millions he's looked on as a god in the flesh, sent to save India!

Gandhi's multiple personality is one of the reasons for his wide popularity—so great that his sentence may be followed by further serious disturbances.

EMACIATED MAN.

Gandhi is a small, emaciated man, insignificant in appearance. His skin is brown, his sunken eyes grey, his hands like those of an artist.

He dresses always in native homespun. He never wears shoes. He travels frequently third-class.

The budget discussions in the Legislative Assembly, although occasionally farcical, on the whole have been well conducted. The retrenchment proposals, however, were often inspired by a desire to advance the movement for greater autonomy for India. Yet there are signs of apprehension on the part of the more responsible Indians at the recent unceremonious among the Europeans in Critically Ill.

J. B. McKILLOP, K.C.

CROWN Attorney J. B. McKillop, K. C., is critically ill at his home in Hayman Court, Queen's avenue and Wellington street.

Mr. McKillop was taken seriously ill some time ago, but he recovered sufficiently to resume his practice. He was stricken again last week, physicians this afternoon entertain little hope of his recovery.

BURN FOREIGN CLOTH IN ANGER

Calcutta Natives Hold Demonstration Following Sentence of Gandhi.

BUDGET CUT $3,082,000

Europeans Not To Be Menaced in India Following Home Rule.

Calcutta, March 20.—There was a demonstration here following the sentence on Saturday, of Gandhi, the non-co-operationist leader. A bonfire was made of foreign cloth, but otherwise the demonstration was orderly.

It is officially announced that the railroad strikers are resuming work at many places in satisfactory numbers, but that elsewhere the strike continues.

Chowdhury, a labor member of the Bengal Legislature has telegraphed the viceroy that a serious development in the strike is probable owing to a threatened sympathetic strike by the Bengal and Nagpur railwaymen and coal miners.

but that a settlement of the trouble is possible if all the strikers are re-employed pending modification of the gratuity rules.

VOTED BUDGET REDUCTION.

LONDON, March 20.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The Delhi Legislative Assembly has concluded voting on the budget. Reuter's correspondent at Delhi cables. The result is a total economy of 95 Lakhs ($3,082,000). The debate has been principally concerned with the northwest frontier province. The reduction was carried by a narrow majority despite government opposition.

The foreign government claimed that the occupation of Waziristan had resulted in a reduction of the raids on the frontier.

The assembly sanctioned with applause the budget provision for de-rating the expenses of the visit of Hon. Srinivas Sastri, India's representative at the Washington conference.

He has answered the government's call for assistance in the suppression of the revolution was held outside the town hall on Sunday. All the units which had been engaged in quelling the rebels were well represented at the service.

Premier Smuts has issued an appeal to all employers to re-engage as many men as possible and not to take advantage of the present situation in order to unnecessarily change the labor conditions.

don to complete his legal training. Then he returned to India to practice his profession.

The young lawyer first leaped into prominence in labor troubles between Hindu and European workers in Natal, South Africa.

Gandhi rushed to South Africa, defended his countrymen in court and became their leader. He was imprisoned several times.

Reflection in prison brought the birth of Gandhi's passive resistance theory. Returning to India, he began urging the people to put this theory into operation.

This theory holds that the best way to oust the British from India is to ignore their existence.

Natives should not occupy office under the British. They should not take cases into British courts.

They should keep their children out of British schools. They should not buy British goods. They should refuse to enter British employ.

But never should they use violence.

PLAN GAINS HEADWAY.

This scheme gained great headway. In 1920 Gandhi was recognized as nationalist leader from one end of Hindustan to the other—he was the first man to unite Hindus and Mohammedans, formerly two struggling factions.

In December, 1921, Gandhi was invested with sole executive power at the Indian National Congress at Ahmedabad.

This congress voted to start a program of civil disobedience—boycott British goods, to dodge service in British forces, to refuse to pay taxes.

It was largely the carrying out of this program that led to Gandhi's seizure.

Gandhi is married and has four sons.

ULSTER BORDER NO MAN'S LAND BETWEEN FOES

Belfast Correspondent Describes Preparation of Ulster Against Republican Invasion.

BLOW UP BRIDGES

Northern Forces Also Obstructing All Roads—Raiders Capture Mayhew Barracks.

LONDON, March 20.—The border line of Ulster is described as "like a battle-front by the Evening News, Belfast correspondent, who says rival forces of the Irish Republican army and of Ulster special constables are actually within rifle range and were continually firing at each other during the week end. The combatants were too well concealed for serious losses to be inflicted, and the exchange of fire was mainly intended to prevent the springing of surprise attacks. As an extra precaution the area between the two forces was sprayed with machine gun fire at intervals. The rival armies, continues the correspondent, are gradually creeping closer to each other, and the first collision is expected to occur on the frontier near Caledon, county Tyrone.

"The sound of the blowing up of bridges on the Ulster border during the week end could be heard miles away, adds the dispatch.

The northern forces were mainly responsible, and as the result of their activities every important bridge leading from the free state has been demolished while hundreds of roads have been trenced and closed with trees.

"The tension is already beginning to affect the inhabitants behind the battle line. The Ulstermen along the frontier are much perturbed over the menace of invasion and have asked that more protection be afforded them. Many close to the battle zone, which is No Man's Land, have had to evacuate their houses which immediately have been occupied by the fighting forces.

CAPTURE POLICE BARRACKS.

Belfast, March 20.—The police barracks at Maghera, county Londonderry, were captured during the night.

A "B" special constable was shot dead at Tobermory, near Maghera, by raiders engaged in cutting wires and obstructing the road.

The garrison at the Maghera barracks consisted of three members of the regular police force and eight specials, who were surprised by an overwhelming force. Previous to the attack the roads had been thoroughly blocked with trees, trenches had been cut and a bridge destroyed. Telegraph communication also was interrupted.

Gunmen were again active in Belfast this morning. A number of cabs proceeding to work were stopped by a man who pointed a revolver at them and ordered them back. In the ensuing altercation one of the cabs was shot and injured. An ashman, employed by the city, was wounded in the jaw while working in the Ballymacarrett section.

MARTIAL LAW IN AFRICA RELAXED

LONDON, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Martial law in the central area of South Africa is being relaxed, Reuter's Johannesburg correspondent states. The Amalgamated Engineers is the only union which has not yet called off the strike. This is due to balloting difficulties, which it is expected will be overcome immediately. A memorial service in honor of the fallen amongst those who had answered the government's call for assistance in the suppression of the revolution was held outside the town hall on Sunday. All the units which had been engaged in quelling the rebels were well represented at the service.

Britain's Queen Visits "Holes of Slumland"

LONDON, March 20.—"Down to the holes of misery in Noxtun" might well be the entry made by Queen Mary in her diary. For Saturday she visited London's worst slumland.

The tour included a visit to Wilmer Gardens, once the nest of thieves, and the haunt of murderers.

She also passed through Ware street, where broken windows were stuffed with rags to keep out the damp cold, and where each miserable room contains an average of six human beings.

Object of the queen's visit was to discuss the housing problem with the mayor of Shoreditch, and to ascertain how much the local authorities are improving the slum areas, so that she might take a hand in alleviating the misery.

CHOOSE 9-HOUR DAY TO SLASH

Labatt Brewery Employees Start New Schedule May 1.

UNION DISAPPROVES

Action of Cincinnati Headquarters Not Expected To Take Strike Action.

Commencing May 1 employees of the Labatt Brewing Company will work nine hours a day in lieu of the customary eight. The present wage scale will remain.

Confronted with a reduction in wages or a longer working day at the same money, the members of the Brewery Workers' Union have decided to accept the additional hour. It was explained Monday that the men were by no means united in their decision.

It was further explained that to date the international officers in Cincinnati, Ohio, have not approved of this break from the "eight-hour day." What action they contemplate is not known, although a strike is not expected.

The contract between the company and its employees expires May 1, and the former several days ago notified the union that the men must choose between a nine-hour day at the same money or an eight-hour day as before with reduced wages.

OFFICER BRINGING BACK HAROLD R. SHILLINGTON

Former Accountant of London Is Said To Have Sailed From Liverpool.

Special to London Advertiser.

Toronto, March 20.—Provincial police authorities announced here this morning that they believed an overseas officer sailed last week-end from Liverpool for Canada, bringing with him Harold R. Shillington, former accountant of London, Ont.

Shillington, who was arrested near Edinburgh, Scotland, did not return from a vacation granted him by his employers in November last. Police authorities in Scotland state that most of the missing bonds were recovered when he was apprehended.

The former bank employee was taken into custody with another Canadian while they were arranging, it is reported, for passports to Australia.

Although it was stated that his actions were suspicious under the circumstances, Shillington's companion was subsequently released.

CONCERT IS SUCCESS.

Lucan, March 20.—A successful concert was held under the auspices of St. Patrick's Church on Friday evening in the Stanley Opera House. The program was rendered by the Imperial Male Quartet and F. G. Gill, entertainer. John Farrell acted as chairman. F. J. Fitzgerald was the accompanist.

GIVES WOODEN LEG AS CAUSE OF STAGGERING

Windsorite's Excuse For Wobbly Course Accepted by Magistrate Graydon.

LOOKING FOR BROTHER

Aroused Many Residents On Lorne Avenue in Search, Before Arrested.

The average individual may feel sorry when he sees a man with a wooden leg hobbling down the street, but that same handicap may turn out on occasions to be really useful, and so it happened to a man from Windsor, who graced the prisoners' box in police court Monday morning.

He had arrived from the border city at midnight Saturday, and paid $1 to a taxi driver to take him to the home of his brother on Lorne avenue. In the dark he missed the house some way or other, and he knocked on many front doors in a vain endeavor to identify the domicile of his relation.

The residents of this vicinity are all law-abiding citizens, and retire for the evening "snooze" quite early, and naturally they were peeved, and in some cases alarmed, when they heard violent thumpings on the veranda.

The brother from Windsor was becoming exasperated at not being able to find his relative's house and so were the people. Finally one Lorne avenue resident sent in a call for the police, and Mr. Man was picked up round the corner from Lorne avenue on Quebec street, and brought to the police station.

"Was he staggering?" asked Magistrate Graydon.

"I've got a wooden leg," interrupted the prisoner.

"May be it was his wooden leg that made him walk that way; but I could smell liquor on him," said one constable. "He told me that he was looking for his brother's house, and had knocked at the doors of half a dozen places."

"That's right; I was looking for my brother. It was very dark, and I had to go up on the veranda to see the numbers," declared the prisoner.

The second constable thought that the man had been drinking, but that his wooden leg was probably responsible for some of his deviation from the straight and narrow sidewalk.

"You should have let your brother know you were coming," counseled the court. "You had no business wandering round the neighborhood scaring people. It is a wonder no person did not hit you over the head with a club."

"Where will you go, if I let you go?"

"Up to my brother's," was the prompt response.

The Windsorite was given a chance to see if he could discover his brother's house by daylight, and next time he comes to London will probably make the "day trip."

HOPES MURRELL'S WILL BE CAUGHT

During his address to the grand jury, when the spring assizes opened at the court house this afternoon, Chief Justice R. M. Meredith, who is presiding, made reference to the escaped Sydney and William Murrell, held on a charge of murder. He expressed the sincere hope that they would soon be returned to custody.

SHERIFFS READY TO STOP PICKETS

Pawtucket, R.I., March 20.—The ninth week of the textile strike opened quietly in the Blackstone Valley. For the first time since the strike began deputy sheriffs were on duty at Pawtucket mills prepared to stop mass picketing, but comparatively few pickets put in an appearance.

Reports that attempts would be made to open the Lonsdale, Berkeley and Ashton mills were accompanied by the appearance in the rain of numbers of pickets in these villages. They found the rumors groundless, however, and dispersed without incident.

NOMINATE CANDIDATES.

Nelson, B.C., March 20.—Mayor V. E. McHardy, Conservative, and Kenneth Campbell, Liberal, were nominated on Saturday for the Nelson riding, where a provincial election will be held on Wednesday.

Will Wed Pearson.

MISS MARY A. MOND.

LONDON, March 20.—Miss Mary Angela Mond, daughter of Sir Alfred Mond, Britain's minister of health, today announced her engagement to Sir Neville Pearson, son of the founder of St. Dunstan's Hospital for Blind Soldiers.

COSTS $1.20 TO EXAMINE PAPER

Ontario's Desire For Higher Education Causes Boost in Department Estimate.

WILL MAKE FEW CUTS

Officials Favor Plans For More Technical Schools in Province.

Toronto, March 20.—The ever-increasing desire of the people of Ontario for higher education is one of the chief reasons for the estimates for education being so greatly increased in this year's budget in the Legislature. As an indication of this, it was pointed out today in the department of education that whereas there were 113,000 papers written by pupils in departmental examinations last year, the applications this year indicate 235,000 papers. While this number will be slightly decreased before the examinations come on, the reduction will not be very great. The departmental examinations include the promotion of technical schools, the entrance to examinations in high schools and collegiate institutes and the matriculation to the universities.

It costs the government an average of $1.20 to examine each paper so that the cost of "marking" the papers will be a substantial item. There is also a large additional expense in connection with technical schools. The Dominion government pays 25 per cent, the province 25 per cent, and the municipality 50 per cent, for these schools, and the rate that applications for these are pouring into the educational department indicates that there will be heavy expenditures this year.

The department, however, views these schools with great favor, not only because they fill an important gap in the educational system of the province, but because they will relieve the over-crowded colleges and universities in Ontario. These are the big extra charges in the nearly $2,000,000 increase in the estimates for education but in addition there are items for greater interest in summer schools and other undertakings of this kind to facilitate in the higher education of those who cannot attend a university.

Public schools, salaries, $252,000 to $295,000; collegiate salaries, $52,000 to $143,000; technical school salaries, $5,000 to $38,000.

PITTSBURG FIRE

LOSS IS $250,000

Pittsburg, Pa., March 20.—Loss estimated at $250,000, resulted when fire gutted the Liberty Theater building in McKeesport, near here last night, for a time threatened a general block in which it is located.

NEED TO ADAPT GUIDE METHOD FOR CANADIANS

Ontario Girl Guide Council
Annual Meeting Passes Democratic Resolutions.

VALUES IMPERIAL TIE

Revised Constitution and Financial Policy Adopted.
Officers Elected.

"So far as our Girl Guide work is concerned, there is a great feeling that we do not want to cut loose from England, but at the same time we have got to adapt our method to Canadian ways."

In the foregoing words Mrs. F. P. Betts, commissioner of the Ontario Council of Girl Guides, summed up views expressed by delegates who attended the first annual meeting of the council held on Saturday afternoon in City Hall at the same time giving voice to opinion that apparently is general among guide leaders throughout the province.

Resolutions submitted, discussed and adopted without a dissenting voice also evidenced strong feeling in favor of making Girl Guide activities in all phases thoroughly democratic. In line with this policy were resolutions to be submitted to the Canadian council, which, if acted upon, would make reports of business transacted by the Canadian council available for commissioners, officers and guides throughout the Dominion, and thus promote closer co-operation and more complete mutual understanding.

A good representation of the Ontario council from outside points was present to rejoice in the great development of the work in Ontario since the council was formed and the commissioner, Mrs. F. P. Betts, appointed in May, 1921.

The agenda included reports covering the ten months of the council's history, decision with regard to the financial policy of the council, adoption of the constitution as revised by a special committee, election of officers and executive for the ensuing year, and, finally, consideration of resolutions and questions affecting the welfare of girl guides.

Call for Expansion.

With regard to further democratization of the Girl Guide institution, one recommendation which will go from the annual meeting of the Ontario council to the Canadian Girl Guide Council calls for provision in the constitution of the latter for an annual meeting, to which every local association might send one or more delegates, and so extend the information and enthusiasm which comes from such a gathering. It is pointed out in the resolution that this is done in all other nationally organized societies and in all ranks of the Canadian Girl Guides except the national body.

Further, the stand was taken by resolution that such an annual meeting would be the proper body to nominate the chief commissioner for Canada and elect the Canadian Girl Guide executive.

A third resolution will be sent in the form of a request that in view of the fact the Canadian Council is in receipt of a government grant for annual financial statement be drawn up and submitted to a meeting which the general public are entitled to attend.

Want To Be Consulted.

A resolution submitted by Miss K. Emma of Ottawa, which indorsement of the Ontario council was asked, voiced protest against the action of the Canadian Girl Guide Council in passing bylaws governing the actual workers without consulting them or reporting to them in any way. The request was contained that in future before such bylaws are passed they be submitted to provincial and district commissioners and associates for discussion, criticism and possibly recommendation, and that when action is taken by the Canadian council, report be made. This was indorsed.

Mrs. W. R. Lang was sponsor for a resolution which carried, asking that where a provincial commissioner is unable to attend a meeting of the Canadian council she may be privileged to appoint a deputy of substitute to vote and bring back a report. The special advantage of this to more distant removed provinces was pointed out.

The question of substituting something more practical for Canadians than the Morse code now required for second-class guide tests, intro-

Aspire to Brantford Mayoralty

CHARLES J. PARKER.

CHARLES J. PARKER is a true Brantfordite. He was born in this city in 1870, and has resided here ever since. He received his education at the Brantford public schools and the Collegiate Institute, and while still very young, left school to enter the business world. He obtained his early business experience in the office of the Waterloo Engine Works Company, with which he was connected for several years. In 1897 he entered the employ of the William Buck Stove Company. With that well-known local firm he was identified for a period of 23 years, during which time he became secretary-treasurer of the company.

duced by Mrs. Lang of Toronto, proved a popular one, judging by the animated discussion provoked.

Don't "Punt" in Canada.

Important as it is for guides to know the signalling in England, she stated she could name many tests of much more value to Canadians. Her idea was that while using the guide principles as laid down at headquarters in the old land, common sense dictated applying the principle which holds in all educational work today, namely directly relating studies and tests to the daily life. The absurdity was pointed out of making "punting" a test in Canada instead of canoeing.

While sounding the imperial note clearly and strongly and declaring that the imperial tie is the strongest appeal that can be made to the guides under her jurisdiction in the border cities district, Mrs. Wallace, Walkerville, supported Mrs. Lang's stand on the matter. "There is nothing that our guides value more than their correspondence with guides of the empire in England and in India," she said, "but undoubtedly the tests should be especially adapted to Canadian conditions."

Mrs. W. R. Lang, F. W. Marlow and T. Rice of Toronto, were appointed a committee to consider substitutes for the Morse code in guide class tests and report to the executive with a view to recommendation being forwarded to the Canadian council.

Miss Beth Pennington, retiring secretary, reported 115 companies and 31 Brownie Packs in the province, with 178 officers, 3,749 Guides, Brownies and Rangers. Forty packs of these, 11 are new registrations. During her term of office the secretary sent out 1,355 letters and parcels.

District the Province.

Mrs. E. A. Hardy reported on the work of dividing the province into twenty-eight districts for more adequate administration, each district to have a commissioner. Five, she stated, have already been appointed. Mrs. H. W. Auden, treasurer, announced the receipts for the year as $624.97, and the expenditure, $638.42.

Notwithstanding all the enthusiasm and volunteer service, a certain amount of funds is necessary to carry on the work of the provincial council. On motion of Mrs. Clarence Foreman of Waterloo, it was decided to impose a tax of $1 per company for council purposes, this amount to be raised either by the local association or the association with the assistance of the guide companies, according to local conditions. Concerning the grant which has been asked from the government through the department of education, Mrs. Betts stated that the minister of education has this under consideration. On motion of the deputy commissioner, Mrs. E. B.

FRED W. BILLO was born in Norfolk County in 1876. He came to Brantford in 1903, taking up his residence in Eagle place where he has contributed largely to the upbuilding of the district in his capacity as a contractor. He has always taken an active interest in movements for civic improvement along all lines. He is a carpenter by trade, being a member of Local Union 498. He is a member of the Eagle Place Improvement Society, Trinity Men's Club, Gore Lodge, L.O.O.F., and is an adherent of the Gospel Tabernacle.

Smith, it was decided, in case nothing further is heard on the matter within a month, to appoint a small deputation to again wait upon Premier Drury.

According to the constitution, the provincial commissioner and deputy provincial commissioner are appointed by the chief commissioner on the nomination of the provincial council. Mrs. Betts and Mrs. E. B. Smith, who have served with distinction in these capacities were the unanimous choice for reappointment.

Create New Office.

The vacancy in the secretaryship, occasioned by the resignation of Miss Beth Pennington, owing to pressure of other duties, was filled by the election by acclamation of Mrs. Harmon E. Westland of this city. Mrs. A. W. Auden was re-elected treasurer and a new office created, that of press secretary to be filled by Miss Pennington, founder and editor of the official organ, "The Bulletin."

The honorary president is Mrs. Cockshutt, wife of the lieutenant-governor. Appointed to the executive were: Mrs. L. Wallace, Walkerville; Miss Helen D'Avignon, London; Mrs. E. A. Hardy, Toronto; Mrs. Clarence Foreman, Waterloo; Mrs. N. Campbell, Windsor; Mrs. David Williams, London; Mrs. W. R. Lang, Toronto; Mrs. F. W. Marlow, Toronto; Mrs. Forrest, Port Hope; Mrs. C. R. Somerville, London; Mrs. W. R. Hendrie, Hamilton; Mrs. H. Greening, Hamilton; Mrs. G. M. Edwards, Komoka; Mrs. W. Ruttle, Hanover; Mrs. W. D. Dawson, Renfrew.

Mrs. W. R. Lang and W. R. Marlow were appointed council representatives to the Canadian council. In her address as provincial commissioner and presiding officer at the meeting, Mrs. F. P. Betts welcomed the visitors and extended thanks to the members of the executive and council for their time, thought, advice and support. Special mention was made of the services of Mesdames Marlow, Hardy and Lang, "in tidying up the constitution," and warm praise bestowed upon the retiring secretary, Miss Beth Pennington, whose secretarial work and initiative in establishing an official organ were termed "beyond all praise."

The council was likened to an orchestra in which the success of the ensemble depends upon each being in tune and in time, playing her part, keeping up with the score. Complete harmony could only be obtained through "keeping in view the great Master conductor and so joining the choir invisible."

Among the out-of-town members of the council present were: Mrs. F. W. Marlow, commissioner for Toronto; Mesdames W. R. Lang and T. Rice, also of Toronto; Mrs. W. Ruttle, Hanover; Mrs. Wallace and Miss Falconer, Walkerville; Miss Alice Lee, Toronto; Mrs. Harron, Hamilton; Mrs. Clarence Foreman, Waterloo; Mrs. A. E. Hardy, Toronto; Mrs. Kerr, Brantford.

ADVOCATE NEED FOR REST ROOM

Rural Members of London Chamber of Commerce Submit Plan.

COST WOULD BE $1,000

Market Clerk Urges Construction of More Buildings on Square.

Members of the agricultural section of the chamber of commerce will approach the city council Wednesday next with the proposal that a rest-room be established in the vicinity of the market, the cost and maintenance of which to be borne by county and city alike.

At a well-attended meeting Saturday afternoon at the Tecumseh House, the second since the agricultural section has been formed, a committee of the farmers, which has had this question under consideration for several days past, reported that the only available and really suitable site for a rest-room was a building opposite the courthouse.

The majority of the members were of the opinion that this was too great a distance from the market to be of much real convenience. E. T. Caverhill, in charge of the investigating committee, quoted figures to show that it would cost $1,000 to procure and furnish a suitable rest-room, while $700 or $800 would be required each year for maintenance.

Replying to the suggestion that the city establish a rest-room while the county council would share its portion of the cost, Alderman H. J. Childs declared that he believed that the city council would be only too pleased to consider the matter. "The fact is," he said, "that we need one another."

Rest-Room Planned.

Alderman Fred Watkinson suggested that a rest-room be constructed on the market square. It was finally decided to allow the committee to pursue its activities and interview the city council.

The claim that more covered buildings be erected on the square was considered at considerable length. Market Clerk Maker held to the opinion that an iron structure should be built from the west side of the market house across to the further sidewalk by the weighing scales. He believed that such a building would accommodate probably 40 wagons, while the revenue from the same would warrant the undertaking. It was estimated that this structure would cost approximately $7,000 or less. The annual revenue was estimated at about $400.

While Alderman Watkinson explained that the city council would do everything in its power to assist the farmers, the proposal was left in the hands of the committee with the instructions to wait upon the finance committee of the city council.

Discuss Hydro Rates.

"Hydro on the farm" was also discussed at considerable length and the claim was advanced by certain of the members that the present system of installing hydro on the farm with a transformer at each farm was too costly.

T. A. Jones, Thorndale, demanded that all farmers call upon the government to issue a flat rate to farmers. In a humorous attitude he remarked that if they made a "hullabaloo" about it the government would grant the request to keep them quiet. The question was referred back to the committee for further consideration.

Much interest was manifested relative to the distribution of immigrants throughout Western Ontario. G. Bogue of Byron reported that Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture, had been recently interviewed and questioned as to the possibility of a branch immigration office being established in London, in order that the farmers of this district would be afforded a better opportunity to obtain suitable help.

Opposed To Plan.

Mr. Doherty was opposed to this plan, however, he explained and pointed out that Port Arthur, while at a greater distance from Toronto than London, was without such an office. Kingston also was in a similar position. London has already had such an office, he pointed out further, which had been closed because it had not rendered efficient service.

J. Laughton expressed the opinion that "it would be better to pay a man $200 a month and have an office conducted properly than to pay him $100 and have nothing done." He complained further that the manager of the immigration office in London would not have a telephone in his home "for fear that he might have to do some work."

A. L. Hodgins, M.P., East Middlesex, declared that at the present time no inducement was being made to bring people from the British Isles, as the majority of people in Western Canada were experiencing difficulty in finding work for themselves. From his own personal knowledge he believed that farmers at this time could not afford to pay a good farm laborer what he was actually worth.

Gordon Philip, secretary of the chamber of commerce, expressed the opinion that if the London branch was properly supervised a greater number of immigrants would be absorbed in Western Ontario in lieu of drifting to Western Canada.

The committee will investigate the matter further and report at the next meeting.

Reid Campbell Pleads Guilty in Connection With Theft From Freight Car.

Special to London Advertiser.

ST. THOMAS, March 19. — Reid Campbell of this city pleaded guilty to being implicated in the theft of several cases of whiskey which were stolen from a G. T. R. freight car near the C. P. R. crossing in Yarmouth County last week, when he was arraigned before County Magistrate Frank Hunt Saturday.

William Irwin, employed by the Grand Trunk-Wabash Railway as a towerman, was also charged with the same offence, but did not plead or elect trial. He was remanded to jail. Bail was fixed in both cases at $4,000.

The two men were rounded up by Detective David Graham of the C. P. R. and Detective Joel Smith of the G.T.R.-Wabash force. Warrants had been issued, and Campbell was arrested late Friday, while Irwin's arrest followed Saturday morning. Information alleged to have been supplied by Graham will lead to other arrests, it is expected.

The whiskey was stolen by thieves who gained entrance to the car by prying away part of the roof.

SEND GOOD WISHES TO EGYPTIAN KING

CAIRO, March 18.—King George of Great Britain and Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, have telegraphed Ahmed Fuad Pasha, who was proclaimed King of Egypt on March 16, their congratulations and expressions of their desire for the success of the new regime, and that the monarch might live long to enjoy the fruits of Egyptian independence. King Fuad replied, assuring the senders of his constant friendship and his desire to maintain the closest relations with Great Britain.

The Egyptian army was reviewed by the king today. As he was returning to his palace a demonstration by students took place, in which, according to reports which the authorities have not confirmed, shots were fired by the police or soldiers, wounding three of the demonstrators.

CITIZENS HUSTLE TAX RETURNS

Taxation Office Is Month Ahead of Last Year At This Time.

HELP PERPLEXED

"Return of Information" Must Be Filed Before March 31, 1922.

The returns for this year's income tax are coming in rapidly at the Dominion taxation office and so far the work is about a month ahead of last year. This may be due to the fact that some people were caught by the penalty last year, and are determined that in the future they will be on time.

The "return of information" must be filed in the office on or before the 31st of March. Failure to do this carries a penalty of $10 a day, during which the default continues.

There are three forms provided for the making of this return, and they are now in all postoffices, where they may be procured by those needing them.

The Forms To Use.
Form T 3 is for the use of trustees, executors, administrators, agents and assignees.

Form T 4 is for the use of employers and includes educational, charitable and religious institutions, which are required to make a return of the names and amounts paid to all directors, officers, agents and other employees. This form is to be used by all persons who have domestic servants in their employ, and must include besides the amount paid out in cash for such services, the value of their board if such being included as part of their wages.

In the case of a church, the official making the return must include the salaries paid out to the minister, janitor and organist, etc.

Form T 5 is for the use of corporations and joint stock companies and must contain full information regarding the payments of dividends and bonuses paid to shareholders, including both stock and cash.

Forms T 1, T 2 and T 3 are required to be filed by April 30, and deal with the income tax return. Offer Aid To Perplexed.

All individuals other than farmers and ranchers must use Form T 1. Farmers and ranchers must use Form T 1a, and corporations and joint stock companies must use Form T 2. Any person who thinks he needs assistance in making the necessary return will receive all the information and assistance if he applies at the office of the inspector of taxation before the end of this month.

The Dominion taxation office is quite prepared for the rush, which always comes at this time, and will always be ready to assist in filling out the forms, but they are not prepared to state that they will have the time to explain to the many applicants that come to the office for information after the end of March.

They are ready to assist all those in doubt, and now is the time for people who do not properly understand the forms to pay a visit to the taxation office and have their perplexities on the subject removed.

TEA FUNDS WILL HELP HOSPITAL

The I. J. C. Club of St. Andrew's Church held a successful tea in aid of Ethelbert Hospital, Saskatchewan, on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. T. Parkinson, Ridout street. Mrs. Parkinson and Mrs. D. C. MacGregor received, assisted by Miss Ruth Stephenson, the president, and by Miss Marion Betty, the place corner of the social committee. Through the house the color scheme was attractively carried out in white and blue, the insignia colors. Miss Edna McDonald and Miss Mabel Thomas presided, with Miss Madeline Grant and Miss Marjory Mallock, while Miss Wilhelmina Darch and Miss Ina Warren were the assistants. Local talent furnished the musical program.

BRITISH MAILED

The next mail for Great Britain and Europe will close at the local post office at 10 a.m., Wednesday, March 22, 1922, to be forwarded via S.S. Metagama, sailing from St. John on March 24, 1922. The mail will consist of letters and registered matter. Parcel post and newspapers at 1 p.m., same date, to be dispatched by same steamer.

Increase of Sleeping Sickness Noted in London

SLEEPING sickness, which is known to the medical profession as encephalitis lethargica, and is regarded as a very serious disease, is prevalent in London. Reports of physicians state that there are three or four cases definitely diagnosed as this ailment in London. While there is no cause for alarm, the disease is uncommon, and hence the cases under treatment indicate that there is an increase here.

The patients in this city afflicted with sleeping sickness, which manifests itself by severe headaches and coma, were reported to be in a fair condition Monday. Recovery from this disease is prolonged.

GYM CLASS TO BANQUET AT Y.

The main feature of the program to be given at the local "Y." Monday night will be the annual banquet the senior businessmen's gym class will give in honor of their wives and friends. From 5 o'clock until 6:15 the guests will stand on the side lines and root for their husbands or sweethearts, as the case may be, while three games of volleyball ball are being played. After that all will banquet together. Among the guests will be H. N. Peacock, of the business class of the Toronto "Y." who will give a brief address. As this is an annual affair, no work is being spared in order to make it as great a success as possible.

Town Topics.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth.—Ecclesiastes 11:9.

CRABBED age and youth cannot live together.

Youth is full of pleasure, age is full of care.

Youth like wine, summer morn, age like winter weather.

Youth like summer brave, age like winter bare.

Youth is full of sport; age's breath is short.

Youth is nimble, age is lame; Youth is hot and bold, age is weak and cold.

Youth is wild and age is tame. Age, I do abhor thee; youth, I do adore thee.

THE C. P. R. Auxiliary was called out of London to Bothwell when two freight cars left the tracks there at 10:30 Monday morning. Up until 12 o'clock the line had not been cleared, but it is expected that everything will be in order to allow the regular trains to proceed with very little delay.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH will meet on Tuesday night to give third reading of the new milk bylaw, which it is necessary to have in force before the Dominion government will undertake the inspection of local herds for tuberculosis. The new bylaw is framed after the regulations of the State of Massachusetts, which is the foremost state of the U. S. in health legislation.

J. W. CUNLIFFE of the Housing Commission, Monday morning launched out as general manager of the commission's affairs, and will endeavor to clear up what has been termed a "vexed problem." The housing commission has already lost thousands of dollars and it is felt that if matters are not cleared up soon and the houses sold, that this loss will be materially added to.

A PARTY of about 50 Scotch emigrants is expected to arrive in London about Thursday, according to information received at the department of agriculture office here. They are members of a party of 150 being brought out from Scotland under the direction of Rev. Father J. A. Macdonnell. It is understood that the Scotchmen are all farm laborers, and will be employed on farms in Midlothian, Kent and Essex.

MUST KEEP LIGHTS BURNING ON AUTOS

Magistrate Graydon Will Punish Any Infractions of Law in Future by Fine.

MOTORIST DISMISSED

Defendant's Claim That Poor Road Caused Lamps On Car To Go Out, Was Accepted.

"Since the sewers were put in on the Hamilton road, it is pretty near impossible to drive a car there without the lights going out," said William Brown in police court, Monday morning, when answering to a charge laid under the M. V. A.

Mr. Brown stated that his lights were of the oil type and that the rough road jolted them out.

Magistrate Graydon was sympathetic and advised him to install electric lights. Mr. Brown informed him that this had been done.

"I don't think that there was any intention to violate the law," observed the court.

The chief of police agreed and the case was dismissed.

Keep Lights Burning.

Lights out on London motor cars from "dusk till dawn" will mean fines for owners in the future whatever their excuses, according to a ruling of Magistrate Graydon.

Mr. Graydon stated that the old excuse of leaving the lights on and then making sure of this before owners trotted into shows or cafes would not be accepted any more. The law was the law, and it was up to citizens to see that it was observed.

A citizen who appeared Monday, charged with leaving his car without lights, submitted such a defence. The case was dismissed, the court stating that cases of a similar nature in the future would be subjected to a fine.

ORGANS SHOULD BE USED MORE OFTEN

Rotarian Wheeler Says Opportunity Is Wasted For Six Days of Week.

REVIEWS DEVELOPMENT

First Instrument of Kind Was Made in Munich, W. England Following Closely.

Rotarian Charles Wheeler, organist and choirmaster of St. Andrew's Church, was the principal speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club held Monday noon. Taking for his topic, "The Organ and Its Wonderful Development," he delivered an interesting address, illustrated by lantern slides.

"The history of the organ dates back centuries, almost from the dawn of music," he began, pointing out that primitive reeds were first used to produce harmony. "It is difficult to fix the exact date when the organ was first used in the church."

"It was regarded as profane by the ancient Greeks and Romans, and is yet barred in some Greek churches. The first great organ was built in Munich, with England following closely. In 551 A. D. there was a great organ built in Winchester, which was the first in England."

"Pedals for the feet were invented in Germany, which country is also credited with the mechanical device for controlling the pipes, known as stops. It has been suggested that a sermon stop be devised, but I do not know about that."

Continuing the speaker mentioned the fact that electricity has superseded other primitive methods of providing air for the organ tubes. Every city in the civilized world possesses a large pipe organ, declared Rotarian Wheeler, who mentioned that the two largest in the world are in Philadelphia.

Toronto ranks with those cities possessing large instruments, the organ at St. Paul's Anglican church being among the largest in the world. "I know of no other instance where so much money is locked up six days a week," he concluded. "A lot could be done with these church organs along educational lines and the opportunity is wasted."

Other speakers included W. E. Saunders and Lloyd Houlding, Colin C. Copeman, general freight and passenger agent of the London and Port Stanley Railway, was introduced as a new member. The weekly prize, a book of gasoline tickets, donated by Frank Cody, was won by Rotarian V. J. Blackwell.

One Word "Yes" in Police Court Brings Prisoner a Fine of $200 and Costs

The trio of drunks who appeared in police court Saturday morning, still a trifle under the influence of St. Patrick's Day potions, bobbed up in court again Monday, quite sober.

The two bottles, partly filled with whiskey, which had helped make the evening merry, looked forboding as they perched on the magistrate's desk, and many longing looks were cast in their direction from the prisoner's box.

The first member of the party declared that he did not know who owned the liquor. He had been sick with the "flu" for two weeks.

"Do you take the responsibility for the liquor?" queried the court, of the next unfortunate, whose hair was quite grey.

Admitted Ownership. "Yes," was the reply, and the one word cost him $200 and costs. In view of this conviction the charge of disorderly conduct against the prisoner was not pressed.

The sick individual did not remember being disorderly, stating that he couldn't have been, as he was not in a fit condition to fight or act in a disorderly manner.

"You were too drunk to be disorderly," said the court, questioning Mr. Graydon.

"I've been sick for two weeks," was the reply.

"That was no place for you," stated the court.

Constable Barryman stated that he had heard some pretty strong language from the place when he passed at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, and with another constable had arrested the three men. The sick man was found lying on the floor with a press on top of him. The men were intoxicated.

The other two were fined $10 and costs for being disorderly.

PLEDGES SUPPORT TO BOYS' CAMP

Ministerial Alliance Hear From Mr. Houlding of Plans For Two Camps.

WORDS PICTURE IDEAS

Dean Fox On Judicious Use of Slang, Warns Against Word Vagabonds Dominating in End.

The support of the Ministerial Alliance at the regular meeting in the Y. M. C. A., Monday morning, was pledged for tentative arrangements being made for a leadership camp of boys which will be held in Fisher's Glen, near Port Dover, during the month of July.

Mr. Houlding, who brought the matter to the attention of the alliance, referred to the fact that last year, the camp was so popular that plans are being made this year to have two camps, one for senior boys and one the following week for the juniors, in order to accommodate the large number expected to attend.

Members of the alliance pledged themselves to see that at least one boy of each year from each congregation would attend the camp.

Rev. Judson Kelly spoke of the favorable impression which had been left by the boys' camp, upon people of the Simcoe neighborhood the preceding year.

The feature of the meeting was an address by Dean Fox of Western University who, dealing with the subject "Words," emphasized the necessity of regarding words as the mere pictures of ideas and not the ideas themselves. He gave witty and judicious use of slang, but warned against its too pronounced use.

Those "vagabonds" which we have invited to the banquet of literature assume the upper hand and refuse to leave.

The matter of representatives for the social service council was brought before the alliance and appointments made for vacancies which have occurred during the past year.

Rev. Mr. Garbutt was appointed to take the place of Rev. B. M. Robinson and Rev. N. S. McKee to take the place of Rev. Mr. Roy. Rev. D. C. MacGregor, Rev. W. L. Armistead and Rev. J. A. Annew were named as representatives, and Rev. D. C. MacGregor appointed delegate to the executive committee of the social service council.

DISCUSS HYDRO LIGHTING FOR BELMONT STREETS

Representatives of Adjoining Township Councils Plan Uniform Assessment.

BELMONT, March 18.—Frank B. Taylor, who has conducted a general store here for some time, has sold out to Ross Stewart.

The township councils of South Dorchester, North Dorchester and Westminster met in the Masonic Hall Thursday afternoon to discuss some means of lighting the streets of the village. For a time hydro light was used, but trouble developed regarding the cost of lighting, and the proportionate share of the cost to be borne by each township and the lights were ordered to be cut off pending an investigation into the matter. Today it was decided to strike an equal assessment in all the townships concerned, and thus it will be an easy matter to fix the rate on the dollar. At the present time the assessors of the several townships concerned are not working on any uniform basis of assessment, with the result that it is impossible to fix a rate fair to all the townships. After the assessors have completed this work, another meeting will be called to discuss the whole project, and it can be definitely announced what the rate on the dollar will be.

ARRIVES WITH RESCUED CREW

Rockland, Maine, March 20.—The crew of the British steamer Scotsburn, nine men, rescued by the steam trawler Coot, off Cape Sable, N. S., yesterday, were brought to Port here today. The Scotsburn, bound from Halifax, N. S., her home port, for Lynn, Mass., carried lumber. She was sinking when abandoned. The steamer registered 119 tons net.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR MARCH

continue to creep in slowly and to date 70 have been granted with a total value of $63,000, almost as much as January and February together. However, the total is less than half of the total for March, 1921. The new permits contain one new residence, J. Clark, Rectory street, will build a new brick house costing $5,500.

OPPOSES MAYOR'S POLICY OF THRIFT

"Dean" of Board Is Against Any Cut in Salaries Connected With Education.

TRUSTEES GIVE VIEWS

Maintain Wages Paid Teachers in London Are 10 Per Cent Lower Than in Other Cities.

Keen discussion is anticipated when the members of the board of education gather in special session at the technical school Monday at 7 p.m. to discuss Mayor Wilson's proposed 10 per cent reduction in the salaries, as well as the latter's request for another slash in the estimates.

It is expected that the discussion respecting the suggested salary cut will be brief but decisive. Following the lead taken Saturday by Trustee Edwin Smith, chairman of the board, other trustees expressed themselves Monday morning as directly opposed to any reduction of salaries connected with education.

"Our teachers are now receiving salaries 10 per cent lower than in other cities of relative size in the province," said Trustee Thos. Rowe, "Dean of the board." "If the mayor wants another 10 per cent reduction he wants a whole lot," he continued.

"Personally, I fail to see how we can entertain his proposal for a minute. We are elected to see that the children get proper education, and we can't get it unless we have the proper teachers."

Whether the trustees will slash their estimates further Monday night is problematical. Although they have already instituted a cut of nearly $500,000, their proposed expenditure still exceeds that of 1921 by $102,000.

A total debt service of $110,000 is now being asked, while current expenditures are set at approximately $882,000. These figures indicate a school rate of 14.21 mills.

The trustees also propose to construct at a cost of $82,000 a public school at Dakin and Price streets, school at Lakeland in West London for a similar school to be built in 1923, also property for another collegiate institute at a probable cost of $20,000.

ASHPLANT MOTION MAY CAUSE COUNCIL FLURRY

School Tax Levy Move Has Aldermen Looking For Loopholes and Amendment Likely.

Several of the aldermen are predicting a hot session of the city council tonight.

Quite a clash is expected over Ald. H. B. Ashplant's motion instructing officials to levy the school tax legally.

Ald. Ashplant says that he is not aiming at the annex area. Others contend that he is.

Since the notice of motion was given there has been more or less of a flurry among those aldermen who are opposed to interference with the present status of the annex, to try and find a loophole in the Ashplant motion.

It is altogether likely that there will be an amendment moved, or perhaps a rider appended to exempt the application to the motion from interference with the annex agreement.

Ald. Ashplant says this is impossible. He says his motion is intended to carry out legally and any interference would be countenancing illegal acts.

The salary question may be up and the question of referring this problem to the new commission which meets on Thursday, to deal with salary matters, may be discussed. Some of the aldermen question the authority of the commission to touch the salary question.

PROSPECT OF DAM THIS YEAR WANES

"There is nothing provided in the estimates for the building of Springbank dam, and I cannot see how it can be built this year," said Mayor Wilson in discussing the conflicting reports about the prospect of the dam being constructed this year.

The mayor stated that the $48,000 provided in the estimates for the parks department does not include the debt charges for the building of the dam, which are placed at $12,000 for ten years. The mayor added that he could see no other way of raising the funds to build the dam, and for the present cannot see how it can be gone ahead with, as much as he would like to see the dam built.

SALARY VOTE NOT LIKELY JUST NOW

E. V. Buchanan, general manager of the public utilities commission, announced Monday morning that from present indications there will be no immediate consideration of the proposed civic salary reductions.

"We have had no notice of a meeting of the civic commission on Tuesday as has been reported," explained the manager, "and consequently most of the members will be out of the city tomorrow. Commissioner MacFarland and myself are going to Toronto to attend the meeting of the representatives of hydro consuming municipalities, while Commissioner Pocock is now in Montreal."

THINKS SALARY RAISES ILLEGAL

"Important increases in salaries, granted by the board of health last year, and which were not provided for in the estimates were illegal," declared Mayor Wilson, Monday morning.

Some of the salary increases were quite large, amounting to several hundred dollars. Nurses, sanitary inspectors and other officials of the board shared the increase.

Glass Buried in Head Since Big Explosion Works Out Itself

A MILD sensation was caused Monday morning, when George Crichton, a pupil at Wortley road school, and the son of Brigadier Crichton of the Salvation Army, experienced the peculiar sensation of having a piece of glass which had been lodged in his forehead succeed in working its way out.

The boy was in Halifax with his parents at the time of the disaster, and during the terrific explosion, was hit with glass, a piece of which penetrated his head and could not be forced out. Doctors gave the opinion that it would work its way through the system in time, but it was not until this morning that it could be extracted.

JUNIOR BOYS HAVE HIKE AND GAMES

Leaving the Y. M. C. A. at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon eighteen junior boys, under the leadership of W. H. Spearman hiked to Mr. Spettigue's farm, near Westminster Hospital. Among the many games included in during the afternoon was a treasure hunt, the treasure on this occasion being chocolate bars. The boys had brought their own lunches, of which they partook in the afternoon. Hot cocoa replaced tea on the menu. Setting out at 4:30 p.m., the party returned to the city at 6 o'clock. Owing to the success of the first hike, Mr. Spearman intends holding these weekly if the weather permits.

The Railway Problem.

REFERENCE HAS been made in several papers to the fact that THE ADVERTISER is giving publicity to the articles of J. L. PAYNE, formerly statistical expert of the department of railways and canals, because its attitude is, and has been, against the policy of public ownership. The reason why THE ADVERTISER is giving attention to the articles from Mr. PAYNE is because they throw light on a question that is certainly in need of all the intelligent publicity that can be centred on it. What this paper or any other paper thinks or does not think about public ownership amounts to very little compared to the presentation of basic facts upon which the readers of this paper can base their own opinions and be in a better position to judge whether the opinions of this paper are founded on fact or prejudice.

It is a very easy but a very expensive matter to burn incense at the altar of a theory. When the taxpayers of the Dominion face the problems they do face today the only logical and reasonable thing to do is to face facts at the same time.

In the fourth article in Saturday Night Mr. PAYNE tackles the cold proposition of proving from actual figures that public ownership is not as efficient as operation by a private company.

Taking the Canadian Northern, before and after its being taken over by the government and putting it in contrast with the Canadian Pacific in the same years, it is interesting to notice the rapidity with which the number of people on the payroll increased. Here are the figures. From 1918 to 1920 on the Canadian Northern are government-owned years. Canadian Northern:

	Operating	Employees
mileage	per 1,000 miles
1916	9,702	2,151
1917	9,465	2,204
1918	9,479	2,332
1919	9,529	3,164
1920	9,743	3,433

The corresponding facts respecting the Canadian Pacific are as follows:

	Operating	Employees
mileage	per 1,000 miles
1916	12,994	4,856
1917	12,989	4,812
1918	13,389	4,757
1919	13,389	4,538
1920	13,402	5,227

Between 1916 and 1920 the C. P. R. increased its number of employees per 1,000 miles by 6.9 per cent, while the Canadian Northern had an increase of 59.5 per cent.

We must therefore see that as between 1916 and 1920 the Canadian Pacific increased its number of employees per 1,000 miles by 6.9 per cent, while the Canadian Northern had an increase of 59.5 per cent. The chief fact in which we are immediately concerned is that this very serious adverse showing took place after the Canadian Northern had been definitely taken over by government in 1918. Between 1916 and 1918 the increase had been but 8.4 per cent; but between 1918 and 1920, during government ownership, the increase was 47.2 per cent. During the latter period the increase on the Canadian Pacific was 9.8 per cent.

Then, again, the number of employees on the C. N. R. and C. P. R. shows the difference in a startling light. Here is the comparison:

	Number of employees	C. N. R.	C. P. R.
1916	21,244	63,487
1917	20,863	62,504
1918	22,103	63,689
1919	30,155	61,093
1920	44,443	70,653

Although these two roads were operating side by side, under precisely similar conditions in every respect, the extreme variation in these years, in the case of the Canadian Pacific was 12.8. In the case of the Canadian Northern it was 60.3 per cent. It might be urged, however, that a corresponding increase in traffic had occurred on the government road. Far from it. The advances in the number of ton and passenger miles had been but 2.9 per cent. That trivial increase did not demand any addition to the number of its employees.

Take another test, viz., trainloads. It does not require technical knowledge to see that it pays to have an engine hauling as many tons per mile as possible. Compare the two roads on this basis:

	Average trainload—tons	C. N. R.	C. P. R.
1914	396.0	406.9
1915	301.0	469.4
1916	359.9	519.4
1917	378.4	538.8
1918	361.4	539.4
1919	337.9	498.1
1920	353.2	529.3

Mr. PAYNE's own summing up of this phase of the case follows:

Beginning with an operating surplus of $5,543,559 in 1918 when government took it over, in two years thereafter it had an operating deficit of $16,258,550, although it had received $286,000,000 out of the public treasury since 1914 to strengthen it, and gained $22,627,576 in gross earnings.

In government hands it lost shockingly in efficiency, although it was in that respect public ownership should have been able to make its best demonstration.

The same thing happened right under our eyes across the line. The United States government took over all the railways in 1917 as a war measure. From the moment government took hold the number of employees began to rise at a terrific pace. Before the finish came in 1919 the railways of the United States, which had for three years preceding shown average net earnings of $900,000,000 per annum, registered a straight loss of a billion and a half.

Those Spotters.

THE SPOTTER is not in favor, and none there who be wise up and speak in his favor. The Chatham Planet looks at him thusly:

"We believe that the cry against the spotters is sufficient proof that they should be dismissed from service in the cause of temperance. If they work all over the province the same as they have worked in this district in the past—and reports indicate that they do—then the cry cannot be too loud or too long. Laws were not made for the purpose of tempting people to break them. Legislators who make the laws are not justified in employing agents to induce people to become law-breakers. It is particularly ridiculous in connection with a law which has the moral features of the temperance measure. It would be just as consistent for a minister of the gospel to employ his time in going about tempting the members of his congregation to steal in order that he might use the evidence thus produced to show to the world the value of being good."

Of course, the answer to that is that the man who goes ahead and minds his own business never comes in contact with a spotter. It might also be urged that there is a lot of maudlin sympathy handed out to those who are gathered in by the spotters.

But after all has been said and done, the fact remains that there is something underhanded in the way a spotter has to work that does not look clean or wholesome to the average red-blooded man.

Sinner or saint, dandy or bum, there is something in British blood that likes a show-down in the open.

Of course, it's hard to get evidence in O. T. A. cases by ordinary methods, and bootleggers don't walk down main streets with a sign on their back telling their name, address and phone number.

Twist it around as you like, though, and you can't popularize the "spotter" game.

Science Is Power.

WE ARE reading a great deal these days about Muscle Shoals and Henry Ford's proposition to take them over from the American government and develop the water-power there available; but it is probable few of us grasp the underlying purpose. In a few words, it is simply to extract food from the air—of course, not directly, but indirectly. In addition to sunlight and water, plants require potash, phosphate and nitrogen. These are all found in virgin soil. Repeated cropping, however, exhausts these vital elements, and the result is lowered production. That has been going on for a century and more throughout older Canada, and in even a more wasteful degree in the western provinces, for while some attempt at reforestation has been made in the eastern provinces, the prairies have had nothing in the nature of restoration.

It happens, however, that we have all the elements for restoring lost fertility to our fields in unthinkable abundance. The air about is four-fifths nitrogen, and it only remains to get that vast store of plant food in some form that will be available. It is not a difficult problem in its basic factors. By heating the air to a high temperature, some of the nitrogen is made to unite with oxygen, and in that state can be turned into a salt with lime, potash or soda as its base. It is then ready for plant food. The electric furnace is the agency used in this process, and hence the need for power.

Science still has much to do, however, in the adaptation of available nitrogen for the purposes of our farms, and that is where our Research Council will come in. The whole problem of bettering farm conditions in Canada is essentially a matter for scientific solution. The same thing is true of our industries; so that what Germany did in her state-aided laboratories, and the United States is now doing, cannot be ignored by Canada. It is a vital necessity to give to our industries in field, forest, mine and fisheries all the help which scientific research can afford.

Here We Have Items of Local and District Interest
As Recorded in The Advertiser of 1897.

MONDAY, MARCH 20, 1897.

Weather—Mild, with local showers.

The Western Butter and Cheese Association will hold a meeting at the dairy school, Strathroy, on March 26. Among those who will give addresses are: F. J. Sleightholm, superintendent of dairy school; John S. Pearce and R. Robertson, London; W. Waddell, instructor in cheese-making, Western dairy school; J. B. Muir, Avonbank; J. W. Wheaton, secretary, and others.

A regular meeting of the executive committee of the Synod of Huron was held in Bishop Cronyn Hall yesterday afternoon and evening. The Bishop of Huron took the chair at 2:30 p.m. and among those present were: Revs. Dean Innes, R. Hicks, J. C. Farthing, W. Craig, R. McCosh, T. R. Davis, Canon Young, Canon Hill, Canon Richardson, H. A. Thomas, Archdeacon Davis, D. Deacon, canon Smith, J. B. Moorehouse, J. W. Hodgins, G. B. Sage, J. Downie, F. G. Newton, Wm. Lowe, J. E. Wright, J. Taylor, S. F. Robinson, C. R. Gunne, Messrs. Dymond, Hunaford, Jenkins, Woods, Brooke, Bayley, Cronyn, Noble, Fox, Sutherland, Pearce, Luscombe, Ferguson, Mucklin, Shaw-Wood and Harrison.

The following were appointed a committee to prepare the convening circular of synod: Revs. Dean Innes, Archdeacon Davis, Canon Smith and Messrs. Bayly, Luscombe, Cronyn and the secretaries.

The election of officers for 1897 for the Supreme Circle, O. C. H. C., Cranford, resulted as follows: Rev. E. B. Stevenson of Lemonville was elected, Bro. J. M. Dench of Trenton, supreme secretary; Bro. J. M. Foster, Simcoe, supreme secretary; Bro. D. R. Foster was again elected supreme treasurer.

The following gentlemen, representing the loan companies of this city waited on the Ontario government and urged certain amendments to Mr. Gibson's bill regarding loan companies: Messrs. G. A. Somerville and P. McKenzie from the Huron & Erie Loan and Savings Company; W. Jones and M. H. Rowland, Canadian; W. F. Bullen and A. O. Jeffery, Ontario; T. H. Purdon and Mr. Reid, Dominion; M. J. Kent and Mr. Gibbons, London Loan Company.

The audience which crowded the "Y" last evening was charmed with the musical and elocutionary entertainment provided. Mrs. Frances J. Moore acted as musical director. Miss Hyman recited "Little Joe." Two solos were rendered by Mr. Becher. Miss Sparkman also sang.

Other numbers on the program were: Chorus, "O, Thou Breeze of Spring;" Choral Club; vocal solo, Miss Goulding; reading, Miss Boon; piano solo, Miss Holmes; vocal solo, "Bygone Days," Miss Packham; reading, Miss Horton; vocal solo, Mr. McIntosh; vocal solo, "Maya Town," Miss Packham; vocal solo, Miss Walker; vocal solo, Miss Goulding; chorus, "The Lord Is My Shepherd;" Choral Club; "God Save the Queen."

Court Crumlin, No. 358, C. O. F., held their annual concert at Crumlin last night. An interesting program was rendered consisting of the chairman's address by E. T. Essary; solo, Miss Etta McDonald; recitation, Miss McLaren; solo, Mr. J. C. Lockhart; selections on the graphophone, Mr. E. B. Stevenson of Lemonville was elected, Bro. J. M. Dench of Trenton, supreme secretary; Bro. J. M. Foster, thing is slightly varying degrees. When it comes to hard, persistent reading that is going to develop mind and mental and moral calibre, we are non-readers, but when it comes to forming a procession to eat up the latest fiction, well, we're a regular procession.

If any person can think of a good scheme to swell up a list of items on which exemption can successfully be claimed in income tax returns will he please come around to the side door of this office and give three knocks?

Money is scarce just now, is the opinion of one businessman. Money is not scarce—there is lots of it lying idle. Credit and the desire to let money get to work is the only scarcity.

Is there any place in the country now that has a ghost—let it speak up now while we're in a state of mind to deal with them. Halifax started the thing, and Windsor and Brantford have just brought out a pair. Pretty soon Parliament will have a bill on the table, "An act regulating ghosts."

Down in Sydney, N.S., four girls in church giggled so loud the preacher had them in court for breaking up the service. And yet it is more uncomplimentary to giggle than to go to sleep, which plenty of people do? It must be annoying to have people giggle in a service, but to have them going to sleep in spite of all your pulpit thumping must be even worse.

An instance of monetary success in the collection has been noted when the minister published the following soliloquy in the congregation calendar: "I am 25 cents. I'm too small to buy a quart of oil; I'm too small to buy one-half pound of candy; I'm too small to buy a ticket of a good movie show; I'm even too small to buy a box of undetectable rouge; but most people think I'm 'some money' when I come to church."—Christian Register.

WM. McDONALD, in the Chesley Enterprise, calls for the prying of the lid off that "party" in the Ontario House. He says: "That was some jamboerie in the apartments of the provincial treasurer. Hox. PETER SMITH, the last night of the session of 1921. Big Peter wasn't one of the gay company and has been exonerated by the Premier from all blame. . . . We think there should be an investigation, otherwise suspicion may be cast on some who are entirely innocent. The members of the Ontario Legislature make laws for the enforcement of the O. T. A. and vote sums of money for special officers to catch bootleggers and makers of moonshine whiskey, and the eight or nine in the chamber of revelry must have made a bootlegger out of some one to get the booze or else lied to a doctor to get a prescription for sickness. Yes, let the whole story be told of that last-night, boozing and women-kissing party."

TO THE EDITOR

Editor Advertiser:
Sir—As a citizen I am pleased to say that there are several fish and game protective associations in our province that have appealed to our government, that no more licenses be issued in our inland streams for commercial net fishing, and I have been informed that the government has complied with their requests, and as far as the River Thames is concerned have only issued licenses until April 30th next.

Now I think that the Fish and Game Protective Association of this city deserves great credit, as there is no doubt that they, by their untiring efforts, coupled with the assistance of these other associations, and the hearty co-operation of Mount Brydges, Muncney, Delaware, Dorchester, Ingersoll, Woodstock, Brantford, Thorndale and St. Marys, together with the co-operation of commerce, the city council, the county council, and the trades and labor council, have been instrumental in having this accomplished. I understand that the parliamentary representatives of the various municipalities backed this measure, and that the minister and the deputy minister of game and fisheries were favorable to it.

I have come to the conclusion that I should join this association, as have also several of my personal friends, as we have received an invitation to attend the meeting in the court house on Friday evening. I have heard that the Byron Game Association will have representatives at the meeting for the purpose of securing assistance in the protection of game in that district.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I think that all this is good news, for in a short time our rivers will be restocked. Yours truly,
JAMES C. CARLYLE.

TOO CLEVER CHILDREN.

Editor Advertiser:
Sir—I have so enjoyed the pictures of the babies which have appeared in your paper from time to time. I am sure it's a splendid idea, and will do a great deal of good.

In today's issue we have the picture of beautiful little Donald Kirk, 15 months old. It seems incredible what this baby can do. Count 50, recall 125 telephone numbers, name all the books of the Bible, recite the alphabet, tell the birth date of every member of his family. Donald has also memorized 30 poems.

I am afraid if he continues to tax his brains at this rate a very clever man will be lost to the world. I was talking to a member of the medical profession on this same subject. He said, "Did you ever stop to ask where are all of these very, very clever children we hear of?" "The fact is," he said, "if a child is unusually clever he is so incited to memorize and recite, and so on, that by the time he should be beginning to take hold of subjects in earnest, a reaction has taken place, and he quite commonly falls into the ranks of the mediocre."

A LOVER OF CHILDREN.

LONDON, March 15.
EARLY HISTORY.
Editor Advertiser:
Sir—As I see by your issue of Feb. 29, the reconstruction of the waterworks dam is before the citizens of London, I feel I ought to lay a COMMON SENSE WAYS TO KEEP WELL.

Swat the Early Fly!

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.
NE female fly in April means millions in July. This is one reason why we should endeavor to kill off all the early flies and those left alive during the winter.

The fly is the universal pest of mankind, existing in practically every country and crime on the globe. Flies are disease carriers. They spread disease largely by carrying germs from filth upon which they have been feeding or walking and depositing these germs in or on articles of food or on dishes later used for food.

Flies also may directly infect per-few facts before them, and remind them of others, of which I feel capable. I was born in 1836 on a farm situated on its bank, and with the exception of a few years lived in its vicinity until over 50 years old.

My early recollection of it is of a series of rapids from London down to near Byron dam. (The right to said dam was granted to one Burley Hunt by an act of the Legislature of Upper Canada held in Niagara district in 1833).

Owing to those rapids ice seldom formed on them, and if it did it flowed off with the first mild spell. The next run of ice came from the south branch, followed in three or four days, or sometimes that many weeks, by the run from the north branch. Thus no serious ice jams or floods occurred until after the construction of the dam, apparently by the sole authority of the then water commissioners, as the waterworks act, passed in 1873, only granted right to secure water for the use of the city of London.

But not to erect a 14-foot obstruction in the river to be a serious detriment to any legal waterpowers or inhabitants in its vicinity.

The first evil result was the intermittent flow of water to Byron mill, thereby causing serious loss of custom to the then mill owner, as in flood water it required the natural flow to run the mill continuously.

Many of your readers will remember the great loss of life computed to be 180, when one of the two steamboats built for pleasure boats to run on the pond created by the dam, met disaster.

Followed later by a July flood that took the other boat down the river, carrying splashboards and Byron bridge with it. But the most serious result was the loss of life and property in London West.

If the dam is maintained, the bed of the river will eventually fill to an extent that will greatly aggravate the evil, as any matter carried down the branches in times of freshets settles to the bottom, when it reaches the long stretch of dead water caused by the dam.

That the ice jam that caused so much destruction in London West and elsewhere was due to the dam was clearly proved by three persons who cut holes through the ice in several places, in the middle of the river from near the dam to the Cove bridge and found it to be from 14 to 21 inches thick, where rapids formerly were. That was on the day the volunteers crossed the Cove bridge on their way to help quell the Northwest rebellion in April, 1855.

The field of ice held back the ice in the branches until it was forced out in a body, carrying destruction with it to London West, and when the jam got to Byron it was about 16 feet high, and soon tore out the flume and broke the wheelshafts and millposts like pipestems and landed the mill in the river, thus completing the ruin of the mill owners begun the summer the dam was built.

There can be no doubt in the minds of those conversant with matters at that time, that the dam was built more to please interested parties than for economy and efficiency. And it is more than likely the same will obtain if it is rebuilt. Your truly,

READ YOUR CHARACTER

[By Digby Phillips.]

NO. 166—FIRMNESS.

Firmness of character is one of those points which you may judge from the shape of the head, or rather from the development of one part of it.

It's that part in the top of the head, just back of a vertical line drawn upward from the ear. Lavater, one of the pioneers of characterology, was one of the first scientists to prove that persons of firmness had high heads, for the development of this part of the head, of course, lends the appearance of height to it.

This faculty might well be called self-possession. But in reality it amounts to much more than this. The head is steadfast, tenacious, persevering and self-controlled. They are the kind you can depend on never to "lose their heads" in a crisis.

With excessive development of this characteristic the person becomes obstinate and stubborn. Lack of it produces the character we call flexible and vacillating.

It is a faculty which is vitally essential to a person holding a post requiring any great degree of executive ability. Successful executives of big enterprises, you'll find if you take the trouble to check up on them, all have high heads.

The Physique Type System of Tailoring: it means perfect proportion for every figure

The right sort of Clothes must come from the Designer and Cutter: the high-priced man in any good tailor shop was the Mutter; he could strut.

Scientific designing, based on seven distinct types of humanity, has reduced the cutting to a mechanical certainty.

It's the Designer—the man who can draw artistic pictures with paper patterns—who earns a large salary.

Let us show you how perfect is the harmony of design in each and every type of the Semi-ready Tailored Suit.

KILLS FRIEND, SLAYS SELF IN GALT MYSTERY

Russian Shoots Companion to

Inquest To Be Held Monday Morning in Effort to Clear Up Tragedy.

Special to London Advertiser.

GALT, March 19.—After shooting down his companion Sergie Klasz-torny, in cold blood Saturday night, Joe Verun placed the gun against his own head, pulled the trigger and fell dead to the floor beside his victim.

Both of the men were Russian residents of this city, and were spending the evening at the home of another fellow countryman, Mike Koloff, 22 Slade street.

Klasztorny was 50 years of age, and leaves a wife in Russia. Verun was 20 years old and single.

The slayer made sure his companion was dead before he himself committed suicide.

It has been many years since a murder occurred in Galt, although on May 24, 1919, a Stratford Russian was stoned to death in a gravel pit on the West River road, south of the city.

Ivan Petroff and Stephen Boyeff, Bulgarians, also of Stratford, were convicted for this murder, the former being sent to the penitentiary at Kingston, while the latter went to the

Find Body of Kitchener Girl Buried In Sand Near Railway Bridge

KITCHENER, March 19.—The body of Miss Jean Moore, missing from her home here since March 1, was found this afternoon under the Grand River railway bridge near the Freeport Sanatorium.

The mysterious disappearance of the young woman had created widespread interest, and the provincial authorities had been appealed to in an effort to locate her, with the search extending to American border cities.

She was well known in this vicinity, and the only surmised reason for her supposed suicide is that she had become despondent over losing her position, though she was not in financial straits.

Miss Moore's body, well dressed and covered with a valuable fur coat, was discovered by John Chownyk, who lives near the river. Only the limbs were visible, the head and upper portions of the body being buried in a pile of sand.

Coroner Honsberger was notified, and decided no inquest was necessary.

Investigation indicates that Miss Moore on the evening of March 1 left the Grand River Railway car at the sanatorium crossing, walked a short distance along the river to a spot where the ice had cleared, and threw herself in.

and he summoned the police.

Chief Gorman with Serg. Burch and P. C. Teahan were at the scene of the tragedy within a few minutes, but when they entered the house they found only the two men lying on the floor face down in pools of blood. Coroner Radford was notified.

Near the body of the murdered man was a bullet which had passed through the head. Four empty shells were found on the floor.

In Verun's right hand was a 32 calibre Colt automatic revolver. He had fired at close range into his right cheek, the bullet passing through the top of the head.

Klasztorny had been a resident of Galt about 10 years, while the younger Russian who bore an exceptionally fine record, had worked for one firm here for five years.

While it is plainly a case of murder and suicide, the authorities are puzzled as to what provoked the double killing, and consequently, Coroner Radford has ordered an inquest to be opened Monday morning to make a thorough investigation.

Hear Report of Gun.

Suddenly the report of a gun rang out and the women ran screaming out of the house. Three more shots then followed in quick succession. Koloff was immediately notified

MINISTRY MAY RETAIN OFFICE

Norris Government's Resignation Not Yet Accepted By Lieutenant-Governor.

DEFERS ANNOUNCEMENT

Sir James Aikins Will Take
No Action Until Monday Night.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 19.—(By Canadian Press).—Whether the lieutenant-governor, Sir James Aikins, will accept the resignation of the Norris government, which was tendered Friday, or call upon the administration to remain in office till necessary supply is voted and essential legislation enacted is not likely officially to be announced till the house meets Monday night.

Opinion is strengthening that the lieutenant-governor will ask the government to carry on. In that event, it is considered probable that Premier T. C. Norris will consult the Legislature, and be guided by its wishes. Should he do so, it is thought to be practically assured that the result will be the continuation of the administration in office until business mutually agreed upon is disposed.

Approval of this way out of the deadlock can be looked for from two of the opposition groups, the independent farmers and the laborites. A compromise of this sort would be opposed, however, by J. T. Haig, leader of the Conservative group. Mr. Haig, in an interview today, said he did not think the Norris ministry should carry on at all, and indicated that only strong pressure from other sections of the house would induce him to modify this attitude.

As to his forming a new government, Mr. Haig declared that while he was not anxious to be called upon to form a new ministry at this time, due to the state into which financial affairs had gone, he would undertake to do so, if that was the desire of the lieutenant-governor.

World News Cut Short

DUBLIN, March 19.—Eamon de Valera addressed a public meeting today at Dunganreen. He repeated his usual arguments against the Anglo-Irish treaty. He told the people that if they accepted the treaty they would get their independence only through civil war.

LONDON, March 19.—A Berlin dispatch to the London Times says that Dr. Andreas Hermes, German minister of finance, has informed the Reichstag that the entente finance ministers are considering the idea of an international loan for partial liquidation of Germany's reparations debts. It would be necessary, he said, to examine the question of how far an international loan could be associated with the German compulsory loan without affecting the character of the latter.

COPENHAGEN, March 19.—The conference of neutral nations organized by the Swedish government, opened yesterday. The purpose of the gathering as set forth in the Swedish invitations is for discussion of the questions to be considered at the Genoa economic conference, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Holland, Spain and Switzerland will be represented.

BERLIN, March 19.—One hundred and fifty-seven German newspapers and periodicals have suspended publication during the last two months, due to the increased cost of print paper. It was officially announced today. The Laubner Anzeiger announced it would suspend publication April 1, after a continuous existence of 105 years. The price of print paper has particularly affected labor, socialist and radical organs, which have carried smaller amounts of important advertising.

CALCUTTA, March 19.—Dispatches saying a car in the party of the Prince of Wales was fired on between Delhi and Patiala now are proved to have been incorrect. A stone struck the front door of one auto when near Ambala, making a dent.

A report on it was garbled in transmission, and the press made much of it. In fact, the public schedule for the prince's departure set it at 11 a.m. that day, many hours after the incident, so none except high officials knew the party actually was en route to Japan.

PARIS, March 19.—The Greek authorities have released the French merchant steamer St. Pierre, from Havre for Merania, laden with automobiles and general cargo, which was captured by the Greek cruiser Ajax Thursday, it was announced today.

The Greek foreign minister has informed the French minister at Athens that the minister of marine in the new Greek cabinet has instructed Greek warships to abstain from exercising the right to visit steamers flying the French flag.

BERLIN, March 19.—The German Federation of Labor today sent a telegram to Premier Lénine of Soviet Russia appealing for amnesty for 45 Socialists held in Russia on political charges which are punishable by death. The telegram said convictions of these prisoners might seriously strain the relations between Russia and the German proletariat.

The Tageblatt, commenting upon the appeal, said: "The Communists of Germany are appealing for amnesty for political prisoners, and the Communists of Russia are shooting them."

The Independent Socialists have also protested to Moscow against Soviet Russia's "politics of vengeance."

TOKIO, March 19.—Opposition to the government's policies, which attended the recent passage of the budget bill by the Lower House, reasserted itself yesterday during discussion of that measure in the House of Peers.

Admiral Baron Kato, minister of the navy, replying to an interpellation, stated that the government did not intend any material increase in its present program of building submarines and auxiliary craft, and that the government was willing to reduce expenditures to the lowest possible figure.

Admiral Kato, who was one of Japan's delegates to the Washington conference, declared he considered the conference a success from the Japanese point of view. He said Japan attempted to secure the agreement as to capital ship ratios in a spirit of concession; therefore, she had proposed the inclusion of the agreement regarding fortifications in the Philippine Islands.

He regarded this as an important condition of Japan's acceptance of the conference agreements, rather than the quadruple agreement, which, while being a factor in the preservation of peace, was not regarded as the most essential.

BERLIN, March 19.—The story of Gen. Ludendorff's willingness to sell his honor for $250,000 by breaking his word to his royal master, the exiled kaiser, and of the manner in which a now world-famous photograph was obtained of Germany's ex-monarch in mufti and wearing a beard, is made public here.

Ludendorff, while staying in Munich, received a visit from the manager of a London photographic agency, who noticed the picture on Ludendorff's writing desk. Ludendorff first refused all negotiations for the gift from his emperor, but eventually he asked $250,000 for the exclusive world rights on the picture. This offer naturally could not be considered, but as the visitor from London was about to leave Munich Ludendorff's secretary came to him with the photograph, and offered it for 1,000,000 paper marks (about $6,500).

A deal was concluded on these terms, but two hours later the secretary returned and begged to be allowed to buy back the photograph for $6,500.

"Gen. Ludendorff has found me out," said the frightened secretary. "and if I do not return it immediately I must commit suicide."

It was too late. The photograph had been dispatched by special messenger to London.

TELLS HOW TO PACIFY ULSTER

Former Imperial Army
Chief Scores Lloyd George Government.

WANTS BRITISH UNITY

Would Re-Class and Readjust Various Categories of Police.

BELFAST, March 19.—The advice of Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, former chief of the imperial general staff, and now member of Parliament for North Down, on the restoration of order in Ulster was given to Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, yesterday in the form of a letter which is regarded in political quarters as a short "die hard" manifesto.

The letter, dated "St. Patrick's Day," opens with a denunciation of the policy of Premier Lloyd George, which it declares has reduced the 26 counties of South and West Ireland to "a welter of chaos and murder difficult to believe and impossible to describe," and to a state of unrest, suspicion and lawlessness "which has spread over the frontier into the six counties of Ulster."

Attacks Government.

Field Marshal Wilson's communication describes it as "laughably impossible to believe that the Lloyd George government can re-establish law and order in Ireland because men who are only capable of losing an empire are obviously incapable of holding an empire and still more incapable of regaining it."

The letter then outlines the writer's plans, the first object of which is to win the British people to the side of Ulster. "There never was a more fair-minded and generous people," it says, "than the English and the Scotch and the Welsh. Tell them the real truth of what is now going on in the South and West, and what is really passing in Ulster. Get those splendid Britons on your side, for with Britain with you there is nothing which cannot be done, as witness the last great war."

Makes Suggestions.

Among the suggestions made in letter are:

1. Considerable alterations in the commands and administration of all the armed forces, including the specials.

2. Reclass and readjust the various categories of the police, and greatly strengthen some of them.

3. Redraft the laws for carrying arms.

4. Take increased powers for rapid and drastic action against illegal importation and carrying of arms, bombs, etc.

Announcing that he was submitting separately detailed proposals on these four points, the field marshal concludes:

"With Britain in active sympathy and with the great addition in strength which I hope my proposals will give you, I think in the very near future you will see a wonderful recovery in the situation, which at the moment may cause you grave anxiety."

WOMEN'S HOME AND MAGAZINE PAGE

Seeing Week-End Market With Aunt Maria's Eyes

"Never mind, God'll measure the half bushel."

This was the original method, adopted by one woman marketer Saturday forenoon, to smite the conscience of a farmer who, she believed, was giving short measure. She was firmly convinced that he was charging entirely too much for a peck of onions.

She was offering consolation at the same time to the man who wanted the onions but balked at the price. He look well-to-do, but he avowed, he didn't want to give his money away.

Potatoes were in big demand. Several bags were on the market bright and early, but by noon it was difficult to find any that were not sold at $1.50 a bag. Of course each and every farmer declared his potatoes meanly when cooked. One vendor who came in with a regular caravan wagon from Carleton Place insisted that his "Dookeys" couldn't be beat.

"Nothing like the real Irish spuds grown on sandy soil," was his final convincing argument.

And to think eggs were ever a dollar and more a dozen!

The week-end market was literally flooded with them, baskets upon baskets, dozens upon dozens. Those who asked 28 cents early in the morning were glad to take 25 cents by noon. Why was it that the hens went on strike in the food conservation days of war-time and the subsequent peak-load price years? The woman who is getting an average of 35 eggs a day from her 63 hens wonders why her hens wouldn't lay then as now.

Get It Weighed.

Poultry was more plentiful than for some weeks past, of much better quality, but not a whit cheaper. Three dollars was asked for one big hen, a year and a half old, declared to weigh ten pounds. "Steam it an hour first, then dress it and it will roast up as tender as a young chicken," said the home-maker who had brought it to market.

Small chickens were being offered by one farmer for $1.25 a piece. "That looks reasonable," commented a young housekeeper to the friend who accompanied her.

"Get it weighed and see how much that is a pound," advised the man of experience standing nearby.

Presents Ills But No Remedy

Galsworthy and His Work Cleverly Discussed at the University Women's Club.

Galsworthy, the great impressionist among English writers, was presented in able papers by Mrs. Carr-Harris and Mrs. Howard Higgins at the meeting Saturday evening of the University Women's Club, the former dealing with his work, and in this connection with his method, material and philosophy of life, and the latter with the man and his life.

Mrs. Carr-Harris drew special attention to Galsworthy's gift of pictorialization, the steady advance in the mastery of technique shown in his books, the dominant note of pessimism in all his work.

"If asked what was the matter with the world we would expect Galsworthy to answer 'Everything,'" said Mrs. Carr-Harris. Delineating vividly and grippingly the life of the world, Galsworthy, she stated, suggests no remedy. His men and women are inexorably caught in the great machine of modern human life, the cravings and desires crushed by precedent, caste and convention. His material deals largely with British stolidity and conservatism as found in the great upper middle class possessed of property and vested interest. Only in his last book, "To Let," of which she gave a resume, had Mrs. Carr-Harris found a glimmer of light, a greater freedom and independence of the individual.

"What may we not hope from a writer with such a grasp of technique, such unusual insight?" was the question left by the speaker with the club.

In a delightful sketch Mrs. Higgins emphasized the point that Galsworthy had always been placed in comfortable circumstances in life, never obliged to burn the midnight oil in struggle for existence. Opportunity was presented to study the sordid side of life and see the inexorable grinding of the machine as a result of his study of law. Amusement was created by her statement that, desiring to give as authentic a paper as possible to the club, she had written last fall to Galsworthy himself for data. None had come, and, in the meantime, in her research work she had discovered that this English writer shuns reporters and interviewers, and refuses to give out any facts in connection with himself.

Correspondence with regard to the meeting in Paris in July of the International Federation of University Women's Clubs was read, and it was decided to write and ask Mrs. Richard Crouch, formerly Miss Hazel Tanner, who will be in Paris at the time, to represent the London women's club at the gathering.

Miss Minnink read a report of the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women's Clubs. Miss K. Jackson had charge of the dainty refreshments served at the close of the program.

BL MARIAN HALE. LONDON, March 19.—And occasionally one finds on the newest of frocks something reminiscent of the days when a bertha fluttered at the shoulders of every gown that laid any claim to smartness.

This Claire frock of palest lavender Canton crepe wears a two-tiered semi-bertha of chiffon edged and weighted with finely pleated taffeta.

Such a shoulder treatment naturally calls for the fullest of skirts and this too is ornamented with fine pleatings which extend quite around the hem and mount panel-wise to the waist line at the side fronts.

The tight bodice is washed with narrow silver ribbons tied and caught at the front with lavender velvet roses. Narrow sashings are quite the thing this season and they invariably extend below the hem line of the gown and contrast in color.

Royal blue is often seen on black and the silver and lavender combination of the Claire gown is exceedingly good.

Personsals

Miss Priscilla Ball was the hostess of a delightful bridge of three tables on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Helen Blackwell and Miss Babe Penfold were week-end guests of Dr. S. H. Donald, Toronto.

Miss Agnes Malloch, 784 Colborne street, London, is spending a few days in Detroit on a business trip.

Mrs. Gerald Pearson entertained last week at a bridge of three tables in honor of Miss Adeline Wethered of Marlowe, England, who is the guest of Mrs. Eric Reid.

Miss Lorna McGillivray was among the Londoners invited to attend the Major George Smith dance in Chatham, but owing to a harp engagement for a concert in Ingersoll, she was unable to attend.

Members of the Froebel Society are anticipating with much interest their banquet of Wednesday evening next, to be held in the Tecumseh House, when their speaker will be Rev. Peter Bryce, authority on movements of the day affecting the welfare of children.

The Union Mothers' Club is calling a special meeting for Thursday afternoon at 5:15 o'clock, in the Technical School, to afford all who are interested an opportunity of hearing Miss Ruth Hill, associate secretary of the American Association for Organizing Family Work.

Mrs. E. B. Smith entertained eight of the delegates attending the Girl Guide convention, at a luncheon, Saturday, at her home, Wortley road. Mrs. Smith invited Mrs. David Williams and Mrs. Auden to meet her guests. Mrs. F. P. Betts was also a luncheon hostess, entertaining a number of delegates at her home on Queen's avenue.

A delightful and well-attended affair of Saturday afternoon was the euchre and tea given under the auspices of the Nightingale Club, in aid of the War Memorial Hospital. Thirty tables were in play, followed by tea served at tables decked with spring flowers. The committee in charge of the excellent arrangements included Miss Margaret Graham, Miss Tony Jervis, Miss Beulah Daly and Miss Jessie Manson.

A large number of friends surprised Miss Edith McMartin, at her home, 531 Talbot street, Friday evening, when a handkerchief shower was given in her honor. St. Patrick's favors were used effectively to decorate the rooms and supper table. The evening was spent in cards and music, followed by a dainty supper, the color scheme being also carried out in the refreshments. Miss McMartin is leaving in the near future on an extended tour of the Southern States.

The B. S. C. Club of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held a most successful tea Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. T. Parkinson, Ridout street, in aid of the Ethelbert Hospital, Saskatchewan. The rooms were effectively decorated with blue and white, the club colors, which were also used on the tea table, centered with a fern, resting on a lace cloth. Mrs. D. C. MacGregor and Miss Mabel Thomas, assisted the hostess in welcoming the many guests, and Miss Mabel Thomas poured tea. The members of the club, wearing pretty frocks of the club colors, acted as assistants.

The bridge and tea given at the home of Mrs. T. C. Duncan, Waterloo street, under the auspices of the Abigail Chapter, Saturday afternoon, was a delightful and well-attended affair. The rooms were artistically decorated with tulips and roses, with daffodils tastefully arranged on the tea table. The regent, Mrs. Duncan, welcomed the many guests, assisted by Mrs. Luscombe, Miss Fraser and Miss Hill, and Mrs. Turner poured tea at the attractive tea table. The lovely prizes were carried off by Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Cowan. Among those arranging tables were: Miss Macbeth, Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Turner, Miss Florence Wilson, Miss Bertha Smith and Miss Mary Campbell.

SOCIAL SERVICE STUDY WEEK BEGINS.

The long-planned social service study week, under the auspices of the London Girls' Cabinet, opens Monday. At 7 o'clock in Cronyn Hall those enrolled for the course will have an opportunity of hearing "How Our City Meets the Need of Its People." Such service agencies will be fully explained as the public health department, child welfare work, outpatients' department of Victoria Hospital, mothers' allowances, etc. At the close of the address a discussion will take place with regard to how girls may help in social service work. The week's program will include field work, in order to let the girls see for themselves what is being done.

Dear Sir:-

Our faith in the power of publicity in Canada, after a good many years' experience, is best exemplified in the fact that we have used the principal daily and weekly newspapers throughout the Dominion, from coast to coast, for the advertising and general publicity of our various products to a far greater extent than any other vehicle of advertising. The results can best be illustrated by the position that LUX attains at present by its continual use in general households throughout Canada, to a far greater extent than any other article of a similar nature. LUX is now a general household word, and when we inform you that the greater part of our advertising expenditure, year by year, has been in the newspapers, that is the best answer as to the suitability of the press in Canada as one of the best means of advertising any household or other commodity.

Canadians are great newspaper readers, whether they live in the city or on the farm, and as the latter have more time, especially during the winter months, to read and peruse, not only the news items but also the advertisements, to a far greater extent than those in the city, it stands to reason that advertisements generally get read by a section of our people who, after all, are one of the greatest economic factors in the prosperity of the Dominion, viz., the farming class, who produce the fruits of the soil.

Yours faithfully,

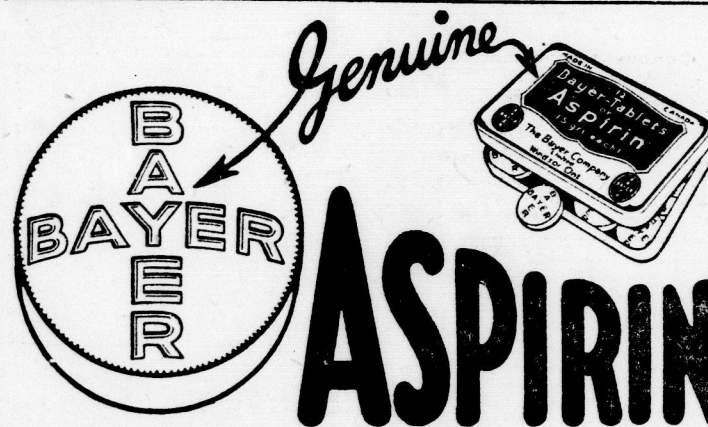

LEVER BROTHERS LIMITED.

Towards the end of July there was some particularly splendid excitement for the newspaper-reading public. Ireland provided it: and the newspapers, as the events enlarged one upon the other, could scarcely find type big enough to keep pace with them. On the twenty-first, the king caused a conference of British and Irish leaders to assemble at Buckingham Palace. On the twenty-fourth, the British and Irish leaders departed from Buckingham Palace in patriotic halos of national champions who had failed to agree "in principle or detail." Deadlock and Crisis flew about the streets in stupendous type; and though they had been doing so almost daily for the past eighteen months, everybody could see, with the most delicious thrills, that these were more firmly locked deadlocks and more critical crises than had ever before come whooping out of the inexhaustible store where they were kept for the public entertainment. Austria, and then Germany, made a not bad attempt on public attention by asking up some foreign sensation over a state excitement at a place called Sarajevo; but on the twenty-sixth, Ireland magnificently filled the bill; again by the far more serious affair of Nationalist volunteers landing three thousand rifles and marching with them into Dublin. Troops fired on the mob, and the House of Commons gave itself over to a most exciting debate on the business. The Irish party demanded a large number of brutal heads to be delivered on charges; and Unionist politicians, press and public declared that the heads were not brutal heads but loyal and devoted heads and should not be delivered; on the contrary they should be wreathed. It was delicious.

It was delicious and it was, moreover, reassuring. In these same days between the summoning of the Buckingham Palace and the landing of the Nationalist guns, continental events arising out of the state Sarajevo affair reared their heads and looked towards Great Britain in a presumptuous and sinister way to which the British public was not accustomed, and which it resented. The British public had never taken any interest in international affairs, and it did not wish to take any interest in international affairs. It certainly did not wish to be disturbed by them, and at this moment of the exciting Irish deadlock the Wilhelmstrasse, the Bull Platz, the Quai d'Orsay and similar stupid, meaningless and unpronounceable places intruded themselves disturbingly in British homes, much as the writing on the wall vexatiously disturbed Belshazzar's feast, and were similarly resented. Belshazzar probably ordered a fresh troupe of dancers to remove the chilly effect of the stupid, meaningless and unpronounceable writing, and in the same way the British public turned with relief and with thrills to the gun-running and the shooting.

It was characteristically intriguing in the nature of its excitement. It was characteristically intriguing because, like all the domestic sensations to which the British public had become accustomed, in no way interfered with the lives of those not directly implicated in it. Like them all, it entertained without inconveniencing. They knew their place, the deadlocks, the crises and the other sensations of those glowing days. They caused no member of their audience to go without his meals. They interfered neither with pleasure nor with business.

Sometimes this was a little surprising. Fresh from newspaper instruction of the deadness of the deadlock, the poignancy of the crisis, or the stupendosity of the achievement, one rather expected one's own personal world to stand still and watch it. But one's own personal world never did stand still and watch it. Sabre, coming into his office on the day reporting the affair in Dublin, was made to experience this.

In the town, on his arrival, he purchased several of the London newspapers to read other accounts and other views of the gun-running and its sensational sequel. His intention was to read them the moment he got to his room. He put them on a chair while he hung up his straw hat and filled a pipe.

They remained there unopened till the charwoman removed them in the evening. On his desk, as he glanced towards it, was a letter from Nona. He turned it over in his hands—the small neat script. She never before had written to him at the office. It bore the London postmark. She would be writing from their town house. It would be to say she was coming back. . . . But she never wrote on the occasions of her return; they just met. . . . And she had never before written to the office. Mr. Fortune appeared at the communicating door. Sabre put the letter into his pocket and turned to him.

Mr. Fortune came into the room. With him was a young man, a youth, whose face was vaguely familiar to Sabre; Twynning behind. "Good morning, Sabre. This is rather a larger number of visitors than you would commonly expect, but we are a larger staff this morning than we have heretofore been. I am bringing in to you a new member of our staff." He indicated the young man beside him. "A new member but bearing an old name. A chip of the old block—the old Twynning block." He smiled, stroking his whole-like front rather as though this pleasure had proceeded from its depths and he was congratulating it. The young man smiled. Twynning, looking forward from the background, also smiled. All the smiles were rather nervous. This was natural in the new member of the staff, but in Twynning and Mr. Fortune gave Sabre the feeling that for some reason they were not entirely at ease. His immediate thought had been that it was an odd thing to have taken on young Twynning without mentioning it even casually to him. It was significant of his estrangement from the office; but their self-conscious manner was even more significant; it suggested that he had been kept out of the plan deliberately.

He gave the young man his hand. "Why, that's very nice," he said. "I thought I knew your face. I think I've seen you with your father. You've been in Blade and Parson's place, haven't you?"

Young Twynning replied that he had. He had his father's rather quick and stiff manner of speaking. He was fair-haired and complexioned, good-looking in a sharp-featured way, a juvenile edition of his father in a different coloring. Mr. Fortune, still stroking the whole-like front, produced further pleasure from it. "Yes, with Blade and Parson. Twynning here is snatched from the long arm of the law before he has had time to develop the long jaw of the legal shark. In point of fact, Sabre—Mr. Fortune ceased to stroke the whole-like front. He moved a step or two out of the line of Sabre's regard, and standing before the bookshelves, addressed his remarks to the other two. "He's a very nice fellow, but he's not of particular consequence." "In point of fact, Sabre, this very natural and pleasing desire of Twynning to have his son in the office, a desire which I am most grateful to support, is his first—what shall I say?—feeling of his position. It's his new responsibility, duty—er—function. I like this deeper tone in the 'Six Terms' binding, Sabre. I distinctly approve it. Yes. What was I saying? Ah, yes, Twynning is now in partnership, Sabre. Yes. Good."

He came abruptly away from the shelves and directed the whole-like front towards his door in process of departure. "A little reorganization. Nothing more. Just a little reorganization. I think you'll find we shall all work very much the more comfortably for it." He paused before young Twynning. "Well, young man, now you've made your bow before our very adviser, I think we decided to call him Harold, eh, Twynning? Avoid confusion, don't you agree, Sabre?"

"If that's his name," Sabre said. He had remained standing looking towards father and son precisely as he had stood and looked at the party's entry.

Mr. Fortune glanced sharply at him and compressed his lips. "It is," he said shortly. He left the room.

Twynning spoke his first words since his entry. "Well, there we are, old man." He smiled, and breathed strongly through his nose, as if tensing himself against some emergency.

HORSESHOE MAGNET

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

"I won't go without you," declared the faithful Nancy.

"Oh, oh!" cried Nancy. "Pull hard, Nick. Pull as hard as you can."

"I did," answered Nick, giving another tug, "but it's no use. The harder I pull away the more the feather seems to hold me. I wish I'd listened to Pim Pim. He told me not to touch anything on the Electric Mountain."

It was true. The big magnet, shaped like a horseshoe, held the red feather (which was steel, as you know, being a quill out of the furious falcon) as though it were glued to it, and, in turn, Nick's fingers were sticking as hard to the red feather. "You'll have to take the record, Nancy, and go on alone to the Land of the Diddyevers. I'll have to stay here."

"I won't go without you," declared faithful Nancy. And so for a while it looked as though the adventures of the Twins had come to a sudden end and they would spend the rest of their lives on the top of the Electric Mountain with the crisisgacy that might arise. Sabre said, "Yes, well done, Twynning. Of course he promised you this long ago."

"Yes, didn't he? Glad you remember my telling you. Of course it won't make the least difference to you, old man. What I mean is, if anything I hope I shall be able to give you a leg up in all sorts of ways. I've been telling Harold what a frightfully smart man you are, haven't I, Harold?"

Harold assented to this tribute, and Sabre said, "I suppose we shall go on much as before?"

"Oh, rather, old man."

"Harold be working in your room, eh?"

"Yes, that's the idea, for a start, anyway. They're just shoving up a desk for him. Come along in and see how we're fixing it, old man."

"I'll look in presently."

"Right, old man. Come along, Harold." At the door he turned and said, "Oh, by the way, I want you to show Harold through the work of this side of the business a bit later on."

Sabre looked quickly at him. "You want me to?"

Twynning flushed darkly. "Well, he may as well get the hang of the whole business, mayn't he? That's what I mean."

"Oh, certainly he should. I quite agree. Send him along any time you like."

"Thanks awfully, old man."

But himself, "You thought that was an order, my lord; and you didn't like it. Pretty soon you won't think. You'll know."

Sabre remained standing at his desk. He had a tiny ball of paper in his hand as he looked round between his finger and thumb, round and round and round. . . . In his mind was a recollection: "You have struck your tent and are upon the march."

He thought, "It's my way of looking at things has done this. I'm getting so I've got nowhere to turn. It's no good pretending I don't feel this. I feel it most frightfully. . . . I've let down the books. They'll take a back place in the business now. Twynning's always been jealous of them. Twynning never really liked my success with them. They'll begin interfering with the book now. . . . My books. . . . It was rottenly done. Behind my back. Plotted against me, or they wouldn't have sprung it on me like that. That shows what it's going to be like. . . . It's all through my way of looking at things. . . . I've no one here I can take things to. This frightful feeling of being alone in the place. And it's going to be worse. And nowhere to go out of it. . . . More empty at home. . . . Go back to that. . . . You have struck your tent and are upon the march!"

Yes. Yes. Yes. . . . He suddenly recollected Nona's letter. He took it from his pocket and opened it, and the second event was discharged upon him.

She wrote from their town house: "Marko, take this to her with most terrible violence. He felt his heart leap against his breast as though, engine of his tumult, it would burst its bonds and to her. He struck his hand upon the desk. He said aloud, 'Yes!'"

He remembered his words, "If ever you feel you can't bear it, tell me. . . . Tell me."

Screen "Bought and Paid For"

Agnes Ayres, co-star in William DeMille's screen version of "Bought and Paid For."

Jack Holt, co-star in William DeMille's screen version of "Bought and Paid For."

NEW YORK, March 19. Those who saw "Bought and Paid For" on the stage will be agreeably surprised by the photoplay William DeMille has made of it.

In the rear recess of my mind "Bought and Paid For" is impressed as a play that depended for its evolution of plot chiefly upon its dialogue.

By that very subtle and sure touch which characterizes him from all other directors in reproducing printed and staged stories, DeMille has given the screen a picture that tells the story as effectively as the stage play without being burdened with an excess of subtitles.

He achieves this largely through employing symbolism. A rosebud and a full-blown rose—that tells the story of a woman's potential love.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN DRIED APPLES

Wash fresh apples through four or five waters. Cover with cold water and let stand over night. In the morning cook in the same water for half an hour. Remove from fire, add butter, sugar and lemon juice. Line a deep pie dish with pie dough, fill with apple mixture and cover with top crust. Bake in a hot oven until the crust is done. The apples should be thoroughly cooked before putting in the crust.

Dried Apple Pudding. One cup dried apple, 1 cup maple syrup, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 1/2 cups flour, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 eggs, 1/2 lemon, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1 scant teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Wash apples as in preceding recipe and let soak over night. Cut in small pieces and put back in water in which they were soaked. Add syrup and sugar and seasoning. Beat eggs well and add to mixture.

Use grated rind and juice of lemon. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and soda and stir into first mixture. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Dried Apple Sauce. One and one-half cups dried apples, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 lemon, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon.

Wash apples through four or five waters, rubbing well with the hands. Let soak over night in water to more than cover. In the morning cook in the same water till tender. Put sugar, lemon juice and cinnamon in a bowl. Rub boiling apples through a colander onto the sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved and let cool to serve.

Dried Apple Rings. Choose apples dried in rings rather than those cut in quarters. Wash through several waters and let soak over night. Drain. For three cups of apples use three tablespoons of butter and one-half cup sugar.

Melt butter in frying pan and add apples. Cover and simmer until apples are tender, but not broken. Sprinkle with sugar and cook uncovered for 10 minutes. Serve with pork and ham.

POLLY AND PAUL AND PARIS CHAPTER L.—THE LONELY HOUR.

By Zoe Beckley

THE little lift stopped at the fifth floor and Polly, feeling dizzy and oppressed, let herself into her flat. A note from Paul lay on the table. With flushing cheeks, she opened it. . . . He was getting on well with his work—wouldn't be home for some days yet—be a good, brave little girl and don't worry—he hoped she was well amused and happy—hers always devotedly, Paul.

Her face burned, her hands and feet felt chill. She went into the bedroom, hung off her cloak and hat, pushed back her hair and stared at her reflection in the glass. How tired and drawn! How unhappy she looked—and felt! Everything seemed miserably distorted and confused. She flung off her clothing. Sleep would help. She longed for unconsciousness and the clearer vision that would surely come.

Toward 3 in the afternoon she awoke suddenly, shaken and unfreshed. She felt unspeakably lonely and forlorn. Tea might help—She threw on dressing gown, slippers and boudoir cap and made herself some tea. Oh, if she only had some sympathetic soul to talk to!

A noise outside her door. She threw it open and yes, there was the concierge dusting down the steps.

"Oh, Mme. Dubois, I've just made tea. I—I do wish you'd come in and have some with me. Would you—would you mind?"

The good concierge looked up. "Merci. But—I have my work to do."

"But dear madame, I am so—so very lonely. Let the work go for half an hour. Do—?" She smiled.

The concierge's homely visit was cheering, but when she had gone the little flat seemed unbearably lonely. Polly stood at the window for company, looking out into the courtyard that never failed to afford some interesting picture.

A knock at the door startled her. "Norma!"

"Oh, I am so glad, dear!" Polly almost burst into tears. "I was so miserably alone."

"Why, you look like a funeral—what's troubling you? Listen, dear, I've got to go out to Fontainebleau for a week, to paint. Why on earth don't you pack your carpetbag and come along?"

"I'd love to, dear. Paul's not coming for days yet. I'll leave word with Mme. Dubois to forward mail and messages."

Norma and Polly stopped at an inn on the one street of Barbizon, the quaint village upon the skirts of the Forest of Fontainebleau, beloved of artists. Sunshine, rest, good food and Norma's cheerful company soothed Polly into peace if not forgetfulness.

She was unconscious of the fact that Paul, finishing his work, had come home a day earlier than he expected. To be sure he wired, but the message was forwarded by mail. He had burst merrily into the flat, visioning his delighted wife waiting to greet him—only to be met by vacant rooms, and the concierge's explanation that madame had gone with her friend to the country.

Disappointed, he went down to his office. Among his accumulated mail was a note, violet scented, in a fashionable hand.

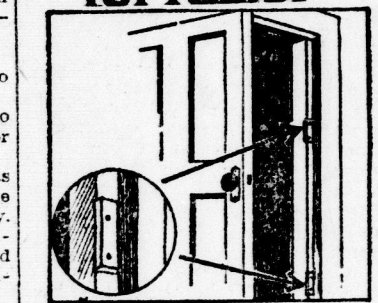

"If you have a moment, dear friend," wrote Violet, "do drop into my shack for a cup of tea and a chat—fest! I've lots to tell you—and I promise to be interesting, despite your resolutions to flout and neglect me!"

Alone and having nothing better to do, Paul straightened his desk, called a taxi and drove to Violet's house.

ORDERS BOARD TO RECONSIDER BOOST IN RATES

Dominion Cabinet Acts Following Appeal by Dairy Council.

AFFECTS CREAM DEALERS

Producers Claim Express Charges Are Destroying Profits.

OTTAWA, March 19.—(By Canadian Press).—Further consideration of the increase of 20 per cent in commodities rates allowed to the express companies by the express rates judgment of the board of railway commissioners in February, 1921, is ordered by the cabinet as the result of the appeal against the increased rates on cream made by the National Dairy Council. The board is asked to consider the question of a reduction in the rates on cream, and also whether, in view of the fact that cream is only one commodity affected by the 20 per cent increase in the "commodities rate," a general reduction in these commodities rates can be made.

The appeal of the dairy council was heard by a committee of the cabinet on February 25, and was for the removal of the increase of 20 per cent in express rates on cream granted by the board in February, 1921. The dairy council, through D'Arcy Scott, submitted that owing to the falling off in the market value of cream since the time the increase was granted, the cream producers were not making any profit on their cream, and a reduction of the amount asked would make all the difference between profit and loss in their case.

Applied to Commission.—The dairy council applied to the railway commission in November last to have the 20 per cent increase removed from cream rates, and that application was dismissed.

The decision of the governor-in-council, referring the question back to the railway board, states that "if the rate on cream could be dealt with by itself it would be comparatively simple, but cream is only one of a variety of goods or merchandise classified for rating purposes as 'commodities,' and consisting at least of fruit, fish, vegetables and cream. The flat increase of 20 per cent allowed by the board on Feb. 22, 1921, applies equally to whatever comes within the commodity group, and for that reason it would appear that if there is to be a reduction in the rate of cream there should also be a further hearing by the board for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not there should be a reduction on the various other classes of merchandise comprised in the commodity group, and the committee of the privy council is of the opinion that in view of that fall-off in the market of cream a corresponding reduction, if possible, should be made in the express rates, and if after hearing further evidence in regard to the various classes of goods included in commodities the board is of the opinion that a general reduction of the commodities rates cannot consistently be made, then and in such case a specific rate should be fixed for the subject matter of this appeal and along the lines hereinbefore mentioned.

91-Year-Old Prisoner Has "Change of Heart."

Goes Back to Committee.—The committee advised that the appeal be referred to the board for further consideration. The matter, it was stated by counsel for the Dairy Council appearing before the cabinet, is one affecting cream producers in all parts of the Dominion, and the appeal has therefore been followed with considerable interest.

WAGE DISPUTE UNSETTLED

Hamilton Company Stands Firm in Decision to Cut Pay.

HAMILTON, March 19.—Yesterday's conference failed to bring about a settlement of the wage dispute between the Dominion Power and Transmission Company and its employees. The company is still standing out for a cut in wages, and the men decline to accept the company's latest offer, which is said to be a concession on the cut from 52 to 45 cents an hour which was put into force on Feb. 1. The men have all along been demanding an increase of 10 per cent, but at yesterday's conference they abandoned this demand and agreed to accept the old scale of 52 cents. The board of conciliation, which has been considering the dispute for a week and was instrumental in bringing about the conference, advised the men not to hope for the increase.

SEEK NEW TRIAL FOR GALLAGHER

OTTAWA, March 19.—(By Canadian Press).—A determined effort is being put forth by the Great War Veterans' Association to secure a new trial for John F. Gallagher of Carleton Place, who was sentenced at Carleton Place on Jan. 21 to be hanged for the murder of John G. Coward. It is claimed that Gallagher is totally deaf, and that the trial proceeded without provision being made so that the prisoner could have full knowledge of the proceedings.

Gallagher is a returned soldier who served seven years with the Imperial forces. His character upon discharge was noted as exemplary. He was injured in both ears while fighting at Ypres on April 24, 1915. Petitions are being circulated broadcast throughout Canada.

DEPUTATION TO AIR GRIEVANCES

Port Stanley Fishermen May Send Representatives to Toronto.

CHARGES WITHDRAWN

Department Will Not Prosecute Three Who Were Summoned to Court.

ST. THOMAS, March 19.—Although information against three of the Port Stanley fishermen who were summoned to answer charges of fishing without licenses have been withdrawn, investigations are still being carried on by the game and fisheries department. Several new charges were laid on Saturday.

Feeling against the actions of the department, carried out through Fish and Game Inspector S. H. Cohen and Major Emmerton of London, district game warden for this district, is running high among the fishermen. Without exception the men feel they have been subjected to a rank injustice, because it was no fault of their own that the 1922 fish licenses were not issued before the season opened.

There is considerable talk of sending a deputation from the Fishermen's Association to Toronto to explain the situation from the fishermen's point of view.

Magistrate Frank Hunt, who issued the summons on the request of the inspector, was non-committal when interviewed. He stated that he was merely carrying out the duties of his office. Crown Attorney A. McCrimmon was of the opinion that the whole trouble rested on a technicality.

The trouble arose when several fishermen at Port Stanley who had not received their licenses, although they applied for them early in the season, were summoned to court when the season opened March 15. They believed that the marked checks which they had sent with their applications were sufficient evidence of good faith on their behalf to allow them to cast their nets.

ONTARIO LUMBER DEALERS PLAN OUTING ON "HURONIC"

200 Retail Merchants To Take Trip on Inland Lakes, Commencing on June 23.

Special to London Advertiser. SARNIA, March 19.—An outing has been planned by the Ontario retail lumber dealers for Friday, June 23, on board of the Northern Navigation S. S. Huronic. The cruise starts at Windsor, thence Sarnia, Owen Sound, Georgian Bay, St. Marys River, Canada locks, Lake Superior, return through the American locks, with a stay at Sault Ste. Marie, thence to Mackinac Island, returning to Sarnia and Windsor, the trip in all taking about five days.

There will be about 200 in the party, consisting of lumbermen from all the larger cities of Ontario, and a number of invited guests from the state of Michigan. The chambers of commerce at Sarnia, Owen Sound and Sault Ste. Marie will entertain the visitors during the stay in those cities.

The charter has been negotiated by J. C. Schofield of Windsor, president of the Ontario Retail Lumbermen's Association, and L. H. Richards of Sarnia, chairman of the entertainment committee.

STAYNER BARBER CLINGS TO STORY ABOUT SMALL

Arthur Weatherup Declines to Change Statement That He Shaved Missing Millionaire.

TORONTO, March 18.—Following six hours of severe police "quizzing" yesterday, Arthur Weatherup, the Stayner barber, remained unshaken in his story that on the day Ambrose J. Small, the theatrical millionaire, disappeared, he wore his watch. Mrs. Small and her maid have stated that the watch was found under Mr. Small's pillow.

But Weatherup refused to sign the statement that Detective Sergeant Mitchell prepared to summarize his story. He also refused to positively identify the watch shown him as the one that Small wore on the day that he vanished.

Weatherup resents the police intimation that he is mistaken as to the day on which he shaved Small and saw the watch. "I know it was Dec. 2, and until they show me that I am wrong I will continue to believe I am right," said he. Proof of Weatherup's statement that Small was in the barber shop on Tuesday, Dec. 2, was obtained in the daily receipt book of the Rex Barber Shop, which showed that Bert Keyser, barber, was off on this afternoon. Keyser now admits remembering leaving the shop around 1:30 p.m., when Small entered, dressed in an overcoat, and wearing a morning coat with grey trousers. Keyser recalls having joked with Small for being "all dressed up."

SET STRATFORD'S RATE

Council Decides On 33.3 Mills Plus Garbage Assessment.

Special to London Advertiser. STRATFORD, March 18.—The provincial convention of the Orange Young Bretons will be held here on May 24 and 25.

The city council, meeting as a committee of the whole, set the tax rate for public school supporters at 33.3 mills, plus 1.2 mills garbage tax and separate school supporters 35.8 mills, plus 1.2 to garbage tax. The sum of $3,000 is to be set aside as a pension fund for municipal employees. Aid Ireland brought forward a motion that the committee chairman be paid $200 annually, the aldermen $150. The council voted 5 to 5 on the question, which will come up again Monday.

SIDE LIGHTS AT OTTAWA

By JOHN J. McLELLAN, Advertiser Staff Correspondent.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, OTTAWA.

March 19.—What has prolonged, and may prolong still further, the debate on the speech from the throne is the eagerness of many of the new members, particularly Progressive members, to make speeches.

The reason for the Progressives voicing their views so assiduously is because they think, conscientiously, that they must do so in justification of their election pledges.

Many of the Progressives, it would seem, talked considerably during their campaign about problems peculiar to their own constituencies. That is, it appears, that seeing the debate as the time when all questions should be introduced, they, so to speak, have resorted to this device to bring to the attention of Parliament the questions immediately confronting the people at home whom they are representing.

Parliament has heard Alfred Speakman on the question of the returned soldier who took up land in the West, from Alan Webster, M.P. of British Columbia concerning the exclusion of Asiatics and other British Columbia problems, and so on from a few other westerners.

Now, unless T. A. Crerar can stay the verbosity of his followers who are bursting to lay before the Legislature the problems of their own territories, the debate may continue for some time yet.

Any thunders that the opposition may hold were dissipated with the speech of Sir Henry Drayton. The government, it is thought, now has no desire to continue. So the length of the debate on the speech is still up in the air.

THE defeat of Premier T. C. Norris in Manitoba will have but little reflection in the federal arena. Progressives are confident that in the event of an election in Manitoba they will sweep the province. If such occurred the Progressives in the federal house would be strengthened a shade in a moral way. They would then have, it is noted, provinces in the Confederation under the sway of parties very much akin to themselves.

How important the matter of provincial power is in connection with the federal house may be gauged by the words of the premier. It will be remembered that in showing to the leader of the opposition his position when speaking a week ago, he pointed out that the Conservative party lacked a single province at that moment where his party was not in semi-oblivion.

DISTINCTION may fall on a Western Ontario member soon, in the person of W. D. Euler. It is understood that he stands in a good way to become deputy speaker.

The member from North Waterloo is today counted exceedingly well in a cabinet position. It was thought, when the present government was being formed, in whatever position he stood he was not so rewarded at all events, and so it may be considered that as his due he is quite likely to be elected deputy speaker.

It will rest almost entirely with the disposition of the mind of Mr. Euler whether the award goes to him or not. There is a possibility that he might refuse.

Hence James Logan of Cumberland, Nova Scotia, was, it is understood, offered the nomination, but saw fit to refuse. The reasons why the member from Cumberland turned down the offer are not common property by any means, and the position of the member himself is still enigmatical.

CONSIDERABLE entertainment to galleries and members alike was provided in the address of Alan Webster Neill of British Columbia before the house, as this member seems to possess a certain aptitude for giving a ridiculous turn. Speaking of what he considered as very important the banning of oleomargarine, he said: "Referring to the people of British Columbia, we do not think it fair to compel the Canadian cow—I almost said the Christian Canadian cow—to compete against a heathen in the Central American Republic or the United States."

Oleomargarine was made from vegetable oils produced by cheap labor in those countries, Mr. Neill said.

In speaking of the railways he declared, "One honorable gentleman drew a comparison between the profits to be derived from railways and the profits made by selling liquor. I am afraid the two do not co-ordinate very well together. It is true that if you take enough of the one you will feel competent to run the other, but otherwise I do not feel that the comparison is a good one."

HON. RODOLPHE LEMIEUX is understood to be at present engaged in compiling a treatise on Canadian history concerning specifically those years in which he has occupied a seat in the House.

The present speaker has so long been connected in such a prominent way with Canadian history in the making that when completed the work which he is preparing will be a great contribution to Canadian annals, and possibly throw new light on many great events in the period of our history with which the writer was connected.

IT is required of the speaker that he sit through all the debate from the throne. At present there being no deputy speaker it would be impossible for the speaker to do otherwise than sit through the sessions. So immediately on the close of the debate on the speech from the throne it will be required to elect a deputy speaker immediately.

WITHIN the last few days there has beset the government and members of the cabinet many deputations with pleas. The premier absents himself but little from the house while it is in session so that unoccupied time, what there has been of it, must go to interviews and deputations.

This is in keeping with the present administration's reputation for being hard working. While it may be usual with a new government to have too much seeing of deputations and hearing of pleas, it is pointed out that these complaints—an instance is the civil service deputation Friday—have occurred under another regime which more or less substantiates the Liberal claim of maladministration.

HON. W. S. FIELDING will take up the reins of the premiership in all likelihood in the absence of the premier at his brother's funeral in Denver, Col.

This will mean that the Hon. Mr. Fielding will lead the government during the next week and one-half, since the premier's return will be not before that time.

BELIEVE BLAZE OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

Home of John Jordan Is Damaged To the Extent of About $2,000.

FIND GASOLINE TRACES

Police of St. Thomas Are Now Working on Mysterious Case.

Special to London Advertiser.

ST. THOMAS, March 18.—Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, completely gutted the home of John Jordan, on Centre street of this city, early Saturday morning. The loss is estimated at $2,000, partly covered by insurance.

Many suspicious circumstances surrounding the blaze have led the police and Fire Chief Armstrong, to believe that the fire was started by someone bearing ill-feeling against the family. Working on this assumption, the police are seeking to unravel the mystery.

Near the building, outside an open window, in the room where the fire started, an empty gasoline can was found. It is believed that the liquid was thrown through the window, which was opened from the outside, and then ignited. A piano, the curtains and other furniture near the window, was saturated with the contents of the can.

The fire was discovered by Miss Lila Jordan, who was sleeping in a room near the parlor. She believed that she heard footsteps, and immediately went to investigate. By the time she opened the door the room was seething with flames. She awakened the other members of the family, who were forced to make a hurried exit, so rapidly did the flames spread. Through hard work on the part of the fire department the house was saved from absolute destruction.

The Question of Depreciation

YOU cannot afford to overlook the question of depreciation when buying a car, because the time will come when you will either sell the car you have bought or turn it in on a new car. The loss you will have to take will depend on your choice now.

Ask the owner of any car purchased within the last fifteen months, at a price varying from $2000—$4000, what loss he would have to take on a resale. The amount will surprise you!

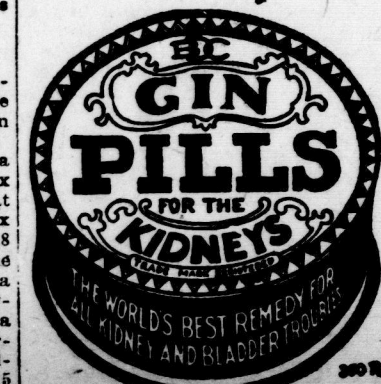

The more expensive the car the more the owner stands to lose. Excessive cost of upkeep kills the demand for a used car of this class.

Everyone Is Welcome at Any of These Churches On the Sabbath Day

Protests Stirring Against Neglect of Bible For Sensationalism of Day

Dean Tucker's sermon at the morning service in St. Paul's Cathedral was a stirring protest against the modern tendency to neglect the Bible for the surface sensationalism of the present-day writers.

"Thou hast left thy first love," he quoted from St. John. "We rush for the daily paper or the new magazine, but the word of God is neglected year after year. Once the Sabbath was looked forward to all the week as a day set apart specially for God, and men longed for its solitude. Now, effort must be made to while away the weary hours of the Sabbath day. We are getting to be lukewarm Christians. We are neither hot or cold. Almost better were it to sin outright than to be a moral neutral. The world is engaged in a deadly conflict between good and evil and thousands of these neutral Christians sit aside and look on. It is possible for a Christian to have righteous indignation, but how few exert themselves to declare themselves openly at war with evil. During the war, it was not the German who was held in the greatest contempt, it was the neutral who was neither for nor against."

"The same warning goes forth to-day as in the days of the ancient city of Ephesus. I know thy works and thy patience and thy labor, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil—nevertheless I have some things against thee because thou hast left thy first love."

"Of the city of Ephesus," the dean continued, "not a stone is left standing and its civilization was as mighty as our own. We are in the same position today. God walks amongst us and knows our ways, and we are lukewarm Christians."

"Scores of us come to church only moved by the duty of setting an example of church-going to our neighbors. We neglect the reading of the scripture and maintain a neutral footing, while the conflict of good and evil rages about us. 'The call of the world today is for a definite religion. If we fail to take a firm stand for the good, we ally ourselves with the evil. We read and encourage books which impugn the sanity of our religion, and give us nothing in its place. We are in the same position as the men of Ephesus of whom St. John wrote, and the call which went out to them has gone out to every congregation which has gathered since the time of Christ. We must heed it and forsake the position of neutrals to take a firm stand in the cause of Christ.'

URGES FIGHT ON MATERIALISM

Canadians whose glorious spiritual qualities made them great in the days of the war, must now resist the wave of materialism which is threatening them. This vital fact was presented by Dr. Brown, general superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, at First Church Sunday night.

Those who, in the days of stress, accepted qualities of brotherly love, of sacrifice and of thoughtfulness for the weaker nations of the earth, must at the present time find some moral equivalent in the new world. The moral possibilities of the day should play a splendid part in the transformation of the world, in the opinion of the superintendent. God's covenants that he was leading us through were presented in the League of Nations and in the disarmament conference. The great achievement of God in the past, Canada led safely through the war, and his great promise for the future, all should relieve the pessimist. Canadians must now look forward to great movement in the direction of Christ.

CHILDREN'S COUGHS QUICKLY RELIEVED

It is hard for to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly wrapped, or have too much clothing on and get overheated and cool off too suddenly, they get their feet wet, kick off the clothes at night; the mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do? Mothers should never neglect the children's coughs or colds, but on the first sign should procure a bottle of

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

It is pleasant and nice to take, and relieves the cough or cold in a very short time and thus prevents bronchitis, pneumonia, or perhaps consumption getting a foothold on their system.

Mrs. E. Smith, 238 Victoria avenue, North Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I have three children who have had very bad colds, due to change of climate. I have tried different remedies, but I seem to get the best results from Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I have no difficulty in giving it to them as they like it. I always have at least one bottle in the house."

YOUNG MOTHER NOW STRONG

Her Mother's Faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound led Her to Try it

Kenosha, Wisconsin.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother had great faith in it as she had taken so much of it and when I had trouble after my baby was born she gave it to me. It helped me so much more than anything else had done that I advise all women with female trouble to give it a fair trial, and I am sure they will feel as I do about it.—Mrs. F. P. Hays, 658 Symonds St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

A medicine that has been in use nearly fifty years and that receives the praise and commendation of mothers and grandmothers is worth your consideration.

Those who are suffering from troubles that sometimes follow child-birth bear in mind that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is especially adapted to correct such troubles.

The letters we publish ought to convince you. Ask a friend or your women friends or neighbors—they know its worth. You will, too, if you give it a fair trial.

STAMPS THOUGHTS SINFUL AS DEEDS

Monsignor O'Connor Tells Congregation Temptation, Though, Is Not Sin.

AVOID OCCASION OF SIN
Speaker Declares Christians Given Sufficient Grace To Overcome All Temptations.

That thoughts and desires which lead up to a sin were equal in enormity to the actual sin, was the contention of Monsignor O'Connor, head of St. Peter's Seminary, in speaking at the different masses on Sunday.

The sermon was on the epistle of the day, St. Paul's to the Ephesians. Sinful practices had become rampant among these people and St. Paul, fearing that they would revert to the practices of the Pagans, wrote to them warning against sins of avarice and licentiousness, also against the sins of desire, the inward form of the two mentioned sins.

The speaker pointed out that St. Paul made it clear that the unclean or covetous would have no place in the kingdom of Heaven. The Apostle's letter, said Monsignor O'Connor, dwelt on covetousness and concupiscence. The speaker pointed out that the latter was an indifferent word, depending on the sense used. In this case it was used in a bad sense and was a synonym for desire.

Desire was implanted by nature, and desire, or concupiscence, legitimate in themselves, ran counter to God's law and imperils man's soul by his desires, which is contrary to the spirit, right and reason. It was for this reason, said the speaker, that God added the 9th and 10th commandments, the ninth was co-related with the sixth, and the 10th was co-related with the seventh. He went on to say that theologians dispute a good deal as to how little the outward sin adds to the preceding inward sin and declares that the teaching of the Catholic Church was that desire was contrary to virtue and is therefore a mortal sin of thought or desire.

To wish another misfortune, by which we would benefit; to think or plan a theft was also a sin of desire against the 7th and 10th commandments. To plan dishonest deals, to watch the clock or calendar wishing for the death of someone who will leave us a bequest, was equally sinful. These were internal sins against justice.

For the benefit of the timid, those who saw sin in everything, the speaker here pointed out that temptation was not a sin. One could be tempted all day and yet the soul remain as white as snow in the eyes of God. He said that thoughts or desire were only sins when one wanted to do or think; when a person voluntarily surrendered.

Monsignor O'Connor urged his hearers to overcome desires by the practice of avoiding the occasions of sin. If one was to get away from temptation altogether, they would have to leave this valley of tears. Temptation was man's heritage. It is inherent in man's make-up, and so to avoid them, avoid the persons who are the occasions of sin to you or you to them; those theatrical representations of a certain type; those extreme styles were moral traps.

Christians were given sufficient grace to overcome all temptations, said the speaker, and he reminded them of the admonition of the Lord that "it profiteth a man nothing to gain the whole world if he lose his own soul."

He told his hearers to battle against the enemies of salvation and to overcome sin by God's grace and by living up to the letter and spirit of God's commandments.

STAND DECLARED ON LOCK-OUT OF ENGINEERS

Allied Unions Issue Manifesto in Connection With British Labor Dispute.

LONDON, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—The Engineering and Shipbuilding Trades Federation, the National Union of Foundry Workers and the National Federation of General Workers has issued a manifesto in reference to the lockout of the Amalgamated Engineers and the ballot now proceeding among the unions allied with the Amalgamated Engineers on the question of the right of proprietors to control the overtime of workers.

The manifesto says that in the history of industrial disputes there is no record of a lockout where the workmen and their representatives have been treated with greater harshness and provocation by their employers than in the present dispute in the engineering industry.

The victims were members of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, and the employers are now seeking deliberately to embroil members of our organization in the quarrel."

The manifesto continues: "This unprovoked attack is unprecedented and cruel, because the reduced wages and unemployment have inflicted severe privations on multitudes of workers. The general public are now seeking to do something for the little ones to see their fathers in reverent worship and to hear about God. It is a step in the moulding of their characters, and a most important one at an age when they are most impressionable."

Dr. Robertson worked the work that the department is trying to do, and urged the necessity of proper church equipment, including rooms for the little children, the boys and girls from 12 to 16 and for older youths and young women.

Dr. Robertson spoke in New St. James' Church in the morning.

HOLDS REINCARNATION IS CURE FOR MANKIND'S ILLS

"The wise man controls stars, but the fool obeys them," was the old Hindoo proverb which formed the keynote of an address given in the Allen Theatre, Sunday afternoon, by B. Pastonji Wadia, a noted Indian theosophist.

From the subject, "Man, the Master of His Destiny," Mr. Wadia advanced the doctrine of reincarnation as the answer to all the ills which beset mankind. Souls are not new-created, but have lived before. Character, environment and opportunity, the all-important factors of this life, are determined by the life which people have lived previously and are the direct result of it. The thoughts of the previous life determined their character, their dreams, opportunity and their actions determine their environment.

Neither an agnostic nor an atheist, Mr. Wadia yet denies the existence of a personal God, rather in an impersonal God whose ways are mysterious and as removed from human conception as heaven from earth, and whose sense of justice is so vast that men are given countless opportunities to make of themselves what they desire.

"Science and religion have never been divorced. The separation of science and religion in the western hemisphere, Mr. Wadia attributed to the growth of the Christian dogma or belief in a personal God.

"This attitude of theology," he stated, "has created some questions as to why such things are with the answer: 'It is a mystery. God wills it. It is a danger for us to inquire too closely, is the thing which makes atheists.'

Definition of Destiny.
He then defined destiny as being made up of three factors, character, environment, and opportunity. All of which, he stated, is in the individual case inherited from a previous life or from previous lives.

"Thought," he stated, "makes character. Desire of desires makes opportunity."

PLEADS FOR MORE CARE OF YOUTH

Religious training of the youth of Canada is not receiving its full share of attention, according to Rev. Dr. J. C. Robertson of Toronto, speaking at King Street Presbyterian Church Sunday evening. Realizing this fact, he announced as head of Young People's Work for the Presbyterian Church in Canada, that his department has laid plans for further extension work to broaden out such training.

Dr. Robertson voiced a plea to the older members of the congregation present to aim to mould young lives to serve God. He asserted that such work is a beautiful task, with the reward coming in later years, when splendid lives are fully developed. Dr. Robertson said in London in connection with extension work for young people of the Presbyterian Church.

In his sermon he likened the lives of young people to a plant, with first the grain, then the ear, and finally the corn produced in the ear. Dr. Robertson traced the phases of life with the above as a basis and pointed out the pitfalls which beset the various stages, when a helping hand is all that is needed to make things right again.

"The father and mother who love God will not find it hard to make the child love God, and that is chiefly by example," he said. "The Sunday school has a great place in the world with teachers specially qualified to point out the needs of the child. They may actually bring these little children into the fellowship of God. There comes into their lives a recognition of God which is very important in the filling of their religious needs."

"When a boy begins to become a man he begins to be independent and show that he has a will of his own. It is then that we who are older are apt to become impatient. Thank God that this is the sign for growth we should look to find in them in growing to be men. God put it there and expects we who are older to guide them."

"They have problems and decisions and need help," continued the speaker, "they need the help of we who are older regarding the courses that they are going to follow. They need the guidance that you or I can give in presenting the ideal of Jesus Christ. We who are in the church ought to be willing to pay the price in sacrifice and time in helping these young boys and girls."

"That is the way our plans are laid with our program right inside the Sunday school. To help the boys and girls to make the right decision. I have made the discovery that the most religious group I ever met is the teenage. There is just one life work and that in harmony with the will of God."

"The ministry is not the only life work," said Dr. Robertson. "These boys should enter the profession where God wants them to go, and God wants them in every honored profession today. If we are not doing what God intended us to do, 'It is a great thing,' he said, 'for little children to see their fathers and mothers and other adults at church on Sunday morning engaged in worship. In these days of rush and hurry from Monday morning until Saturday night, when so many families make little or no mention of church or religious matters, it is a great thing for the little ones to see their elders in reverent worship and to hear about God. It is a step in the moulding of their characters, and a most important one at an age when they are most impressionable.'

RAISE $1,300,000 FOR RUSSIANS.
OTTAWA, March 18.—Dr. Chilian Tsur, consul-general for China in Canada, has received information from Peking that the Chinese Chambers of Commerce of North China have raised a subscription of over $1,300,000 for the Russian famine fund, and Manchurian wheat has been sent to Russia to relieve the starving people.

Dr. Robertson worked the work that the department is trying to do, and urged the necessity of proper church equipment, including rooms for the little children, the boys and girls from 12 to 16 and for older youths and young women.

Dr. Robertson spoke in New St. James' Church in the morning.

portunity; and action makes environment. "As we think, so we are. We can change our characters by systematic, regular, and continued meditation. Would you have patience for instance? Do not take what I say or what Eastern science says as being true. Experiment, prove it yourself."

"You would be patient. Then devote five, ten, or fifteen minutes daily to meditating on patience. Early in the morning is perhaps the best time. If you do this you will acquire the mood first and then the virtue of patience."

Action, he then pointed out, created environment. Not only in this life, but in the next life, and in all the other lives that men live. The mystery of why souls created by God, as asserted by religion, are born in different environments was explained in the light of theosophy. The theologian asserts that God creates a man in a certain time and place. They also say that God is just. Why then are two souls born in a city at the same moment. One born in a palace to every opportunity in the happiest environment, while the other new created soul is born in a hovel foredoomed to disaster?

"If a man is a body with a soul as theologists assert, man is a soul. He has a body. The soul is not produced by the operations of the physical being, the body is the outgrowth of the soul. The soul would see, we have eyes; the soul would hear; we have ears; the soul would think; we have a brain."

"Theosophy seeks to harness the great moral laws to the betterment of mankind just as science has harnessed the forces of nature to the betterment of man. No longer straws drifting on the ocean of life, but directed and guided, finally into the harbor of peace."

Mr. Wadia speaks at the Theosophical Hall on Dundas street, Monday night. A feature of the meetings are his answers to questions which are written out by those seeking information and handed in by ushers.

CONTRASTS GOD'S IDEAL AND MAN'S

The ideal man, according to the definition of God, and as stated by Rev. J. H. Ratcliffe of St. Catharines at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday morning is, "A man after mine own heart, which shall fulfill all my will."—Acts xiii, 22.

However, the world's conception of the ideal man varied according to the individual whose aim in life is his ideal. The financier's ideal in this world would be his ambition to accumulate unlimited wealth, and incidentally be able to forecast the money markets with an astuteness which would win for him much gold. The professional man would emulate as his ideal the enthusiast in that particular profession.

This difference in the world's conception of the ideal man and God's ideal is due to lack of contact with Jesus Christ, and not to contact with the world. What brought into Eden was bringing ruin to thousands today. These thousands who voluntarily disobey the will of God. Self-righteousness, that greatest obstacle to him who would obey the will of God, was what raised both the ordinary man and the criminal to that higher plane appraised by Jesus Christ.

But to reach that higher plane where man may behold the kingdom of God, the individual must be born again through the grace of Jesus Christ, in whom he must place his unshaken trust. And yet even those moral people who entirely surrendered themselves to Christ, were not directly free from danger, for they feared that in engaging in active service to God they would reach the end of life. But their fears were totally without ground; the outlook of the soul-saver need not be narrow, because all righteous service ranked the same with God.

"Objections to His will will make life a grand success," the speaker concluded. "Thousands in obscure life, who have never been heard of by the public have bowed themselves to His will. Life is doing the will of God. No matter where that life is spent it will be a march from grace to glory."

"It is the will of God that points out, is that which God points out. The supreme principle is to adhere to God's will and wherever that leads the life will be a happy one."

DIES IN HENSALL HOME AFTER MONTH'S ILLNESS

Donald Urquhart, Prominent Ontario Manufacturer, Succumbs in 77th Year.

Hensall, March 16.—Donald Urquhart, a well-known manufacturer and exporter of Western Ontario, passed away at his home in Hensall on Thursday morning, in his 77th year. He was a Presbyterian and a devoted member of the church. He had been ill for several months.

Mr. Urquhart was a native of Kent county, near Chatham, and lived there until he engaged in the milling business in Thamesville. After a few years he moved to Hensall where he established and carried on until a year and a half ago an extensive grain, lumber and milling business.

A man of sterling qualities and with a high sense of business honor and of friendly disposition, he was greatly missed in Hensall. He was an active supporter of all patriotic, church and civic interests. He was a Presbyterian and a Liberal. Besides his widow he leaves two daughters, Beatrice at home, and Mrs. (Dr.) William C. Sheehan of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.

The funeral will take place on Saturday at two o'clock, with interment in Hensall Union Cemetery.

COMPARES SPOTTED DEVILS TO LEPERS

Rev. T. A. Leichter Advocates Application of Similar Treatment to That Accorded Murderers.

URGES CORRECT LIVING
Believes Moral Standard of City Depends Entirely on Devotion Shown to Christ.

"Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain," was the text chosen by Rev. G. A. Leichter, pastor of Adelaide Street Baptist Church Sunday night for the subject "Is the City Safe."

"That is a wonderful way of putting first things first," said Mr. Leichter. "David was not only a harpist and a singer, but a seer as well. From the hills and his sheep-tending he acquired the habit of meditation, which is an art, lost to us today. We do not meditate. We are like Peter, the fisherman apostle. I don't care whether he was the first pope or not, he always did do things without thinking, and if he did become pope, it may have been at one of his impetuous, irrational times when he did the thing and then thought about it. We are a good deal like Peter; do the thing and then think about it and be sorry for it."

"David meditated. He saw history on the move. He saw centuries rise and function among the years. He saw kings and courtiers, an endless host of noble men and beautiful women. He saw the wonders of the world worked out by the deftness and direction of skillful hands, and the artistic conceptions of mind."

The Vision of David.
"He saw armies formed and walls of defence built up about the centers of residence and attraction. He saw the ever-vigilant watchman upon the wall, with face drawn as if in pain, as he sought to discern the strange thing that appeared upon the distant horizon, for the people of the city kept with their confidence reposed in the eyes upon the wall, and he could not prove untrue. He would sight the strange thing and give faithful alarm."

"In fancy, while he meditated, David saw these things, and now he stops to turn in judgment: 'Except the Lord keep the city the watchman waketh but in vain.'

"The higher the type of moral and spiritual life of a city the more desirable it is as a place to live. Just as men flee from the lowlands, where among the bogs and swamps dwell the quaking malaria and the loathsome yellow fever, so ought men to flee from the city whose heart is putrid. And the spotted devils, be they men or women who come to the cover of the city to prosecute a trade as vile as perdition, should be treated in the same manner as you treat one guilty of murder or cursed with leprosy, for the one is as loathsome as the other."

"There are no degrees in moral failure. To be respectable, so far as the world may judge, is one thing, but they who are guilty of taking moral liberties are spotted in their hearts even if the world never discovers their corruption."

Fighting Temptation.
"Watch as you will, and plead your moral competency as you may, the time may come, and does come, to many an unthinking soul when you meet a stronger will than your own. You battle bravely for your ideal, but you fail, and then there, alone and in fair desperation, you weep out the pain of your folly. 'Except the Lord keep the city of your heart your moral watchmen labor in vain.'

"Except there be daily, personal contact with him who shapes the destinies of men and of nations there is danger in store."

"There are times when the soul dives deeper than a meteor flung from heaven into the soulless sea. There are times when it soars higher than the morning star, and though you may be charmed by the entrance of this world for a little space the time will come when you will long for the tree of life in the midst of the city, for it never withers, you will cry for the fountains of living water that are ever full and flowing, and you will yearn for the stars that will shine long after the lights have dimmed on the world's 'great white way.'

"Is the city safe? That depends upon the source to which she goes for her help and guidance."

"The city is simply a vast collection of individual life. Therefore safety must be found in the disposition of that individual to find the source of protection and power."

"How many have gone the pathway of sin because it seemed to bloom with tropical splendor, the sky was bright, the air was balmy as the breath of the south seas, and the castles that stood along the way glittered as gems of rare choice."

"By some infernal spell their ears were deafened and their eyes blinded; they could not hear the rattle of chains and the cry of pain, high and like a shriek, deep and like a groan, low and like a wail. They could not see the dead shrouded and drawn as in pain."

"Is the city safe? It depends upon the devotion with which you follow Christ."

Stranded Wrecks Follow Neglect to Use God-Given Reason, Says Dr. Farmer

Dr. J. H. Farmer of McMaster University, occupied the pulpit at Talbot Street Baptist Church on Sunday morning and evening. In the morning Dr. Farmer spoke on "God's Guidance," taking a passage from the 57th Psalm as his text. "To miss one's way in life is the easiest and yet the most serious thing that can happen to a man, and yet it is something that is very likely to happen. I never address a meeting in a Sunday school or in a class room at the university but that sensation of oppression does not come over me," stated the speaker, "for fear that some of the very people to whom I am talking may become stranded wrecks. Have we a right to expect the guidance of God? He guides the planets, the birds, the stars and the fish, so why has not man, even on that low plane, a right to expect treatment equally as favorable. The faculties of reason possessed by any being would bring him to that conclusion, but we are not left in doubt in the matter, but are told: 'Thou shalt guide me with Thy counsel,' and again, 'Commit thy ways unto the Lord and He will direct thy steps.'

"How does God direct men? The bird, that peculiar thing so many people call instinct, knows enough to fly at a certain time in the fall, from north to south. That instinct of the bird is in reality God. A man possesses reason, will, conscience, and the God-given faculties of direction and capable of communing with the Almighty. If I want God to guide me I must study facts. A man can go to the seashore and direct his ship across, perhaps by asking God to direct him. It is more reasonable for him to study the skies and find the north star and use a compass and a chart, in other words, study the facts by the ability that God gave him. God never did and never will put a premium on laziness. Having developed his powers and faculties for reasoning and thinking, a man must consecrate them all to the Master, and then ask for guidance and he will get it. The securing of guidance carries with it the responsibility for carrying it out, for it is useless for a man to seek guidance of the Almighty and then refuse to obey."

Prior to his sermon, Dr. Farmer complimented the people of Talbot Street Church on having secured Rev. Dr. Bowley Green as their pastor. He was a man who should, with the co-operation of the people, carry on successful work in London.

REVIEW WORKING OF HUMAN MIND
Alberta Jean Rowell and Dr. Hedley V. Caton were the speakers at the meeting of the New Thought Society, Sunday afternoon, in De Leon Hall, 212½ Dundas street. Their subjects were respectively: "The Super-Consciousness of Man," and "Mental Therapeutics."

"It is a singular fact in human psychology," declared Dr. Caton, "that the majority of mankind accept an adverse suggestion more readily than a positive and optimistic one."

"When we pass our friend on the street with the hearty and bluff greeting: 'Hello, you are looking my friend,' the suggestion of good health is unheeded. But when regarded by the subconscious mind of the individual saluted in this particular manner, because his conscious mind, the watchman at the gate, will not accept such a suggestion, in other words, will not permit such a notion to be assimilated by the unconscious mind. But when an adverse suggestion is given," continued the speaker, "and we comment upon the frail aspect of our friend, becomes immediately solicitous for himself, and in many cases does actually become ill."

Theory of Immortality.
Mrs. Alberta Jean Rowell spoke at length on the "subconscious" theory of immortality.

"In those instances where scientists have regarded the question of immortality as insoluble in the light of alleged spirit-intervention in the production of psychic phenomena, a subconscious theory in corroboration of a belief in a future life has been adduced," Mrs. Rowell declared. "Those super-faculties of the subconscious coming into manifestations only in those intermittent 'speeches,' in the man of genius as inspiration, and in the medium as clairvoyance, telepathy, etc., prove in a convincing manner another plane of existence where these faculties may be normally exercised," stated the speaker.

"The subconscious is extremely amenable to suggestion," continued Mrs. Rowell. "Morality cannot be predicated of it since experiment has amply demonstrated that it will obey suggestions regardless of their nature, regardless of the preconceived notions of the subject, as a man will perform in a ludicrous fashion under the influence of the hypnotist. Daily we are giving to the subconscious multifarious suggestions, and our great internal power is simply the submissive, non-moral servant of our magic lamp. We can tap this vast reservoir of power and manipulate it for our own advantage or disadvantage as we will. Hence the profound significance of Napoleon's famous dictum, 'Where there is a will, there is a way.'"

HEARTBURN A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, it is liable to ferment, and becomes extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The one way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using LAX-LIVER PILLS.

And you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Agnes Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes: "I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two boxes of Milburn's Lax-Liver Pills, and they have cured me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

people call instinct, knows enough to fly at a certain time in the fall, from north to south. That instinct of the bird is in reality God. A man possesses reason, will, conscience, and the God-given faculties of direction and capable of communing with the Almighty. If I want God to guide me I must study facts. A man can go to the seashore and direct his ship across, perhaps by asking God to direct him. It is more reasonable for him to study the skies and find the north star and use a compass and a chart, in other words, study the facts by the ability that God gave him. God never did and never will put a premium on laziness. Having developed his powers and faculties for reasoning and thinking, a man must consecrate them all to the Master, and then ask for guidance and he will get it. The securing of guidance carries with it the responsibility for carrying it out, for it is useless for a man to seek guidance of the Almighty and then refuse to obey."

ITALY REGRETS U. S. DECISION

Italian Foreign Minister
Thinks Americans Can No Longer Remain Aloof.

HOLD PRELIMINARIES

Technical Experts of Powers Meet in London To Prepare Proposals.

Rome, March 20.—The absence of United States representation at the forthcoming economic conference to be held at Genoa was referred to with regret by Foreign Minister Schanzer in the course of an address in the Chamber of Deputies on Saturday.

"There is nothing in the reply to our invitation," he said, "that particularly concerns Italy. In fact, the reasons for the refusal of the United States to participate in the conference as set forth by Secretary of State Hughes, are essentially American political reasons. However, I think the United States cannot long remain aloof from European discussions."

The foreign minister added: Certain political questions must be discussed before concrete agreements in limitation of armaments were possible. He pointed out that the conference could not be expected to accomplish the utopian task of adjusting the world situation. The delegates for the most part are permanent officials of the governments they represent. By the end of the week it is expected substantial progress will have been made in preparing the various proposals relating to the financial and economic questions which form the Genoa agenda.

Italy's program, he said, would be for reduction of armaments and the resumption of regular relations with the states of Central and Eastern Europe.

BEGIN DISCUSSION.

London, March 20.—Technical experts representing Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan began their preliminary discussions of the program of the Genoa economic conference at 12:30 p.m. The meeting was held in the rooms of the board of trade, with Sir Sydney Chappman, permanent under-secretary of the board, in the chair. The delegates for the most part are permanent officials of the governments they represent. By the end of the week it is expected substantial progress will have been made in preparing the various proposals relating to the financial and economic questions which form the Genoa agenda.

GIVE LIBRARY TABLE TO DORCHESTER GIRL

Members of Church and Community
Make Presentation to Miss Mae Parsons.

Special to London Advertiser.
DORCHESTER, March 17.—On Tuesday evening a pleasant time was spent at the home of Miss Amy Hunter, when about eighty friends of Miss Mae Parsons gathered to honor her in view of her approaching marriage. Miss Parsons has been a resident of Dorchester for some time, and has been a very active worker in all church and community work.

During the evening C. Sanborn read addresses and presented Miss Parsons with a beautiful library table and serving tray. Miss Parsons replied briefly, and a dainty lunch was served. The evening was closed by singing "Auld Lang Syne."

The Women's Institute and Bowling Club are co-operating in planning a local celebration for May 24. Features of the day are to be a calisthenic parade, basketball tournament and a concert in the evening.

Joseph Hume returned on Wednesday after spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Florida.

The regular monthly meeting of the Mission Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Hunt with a fair attendance of members. Leaflets were read by Miss Elsie Myrick and Mrs. C. Thompson. The offering was for the rest fund.

NEW RADIO FIND BANS PRIVACY

Providence, March 20.—Albert E. Proffitt, discoverer of a new link between the radio and the telephone, by which he can listen in on neighbors' telephone lines, demonstrated its efficiency when he and a newspaperman heard a Pawtucket swain in a supposed secret conversation with the Providence lady of his choice and listened to two women discussing a dress worn by a newlywed at church.

The receiving set used by Proffitt is located in the attic of his home. A short aerial attached to twenty-five foot poles on the roof are used. The apparatus is of the four-step audio frequency amplifier circuit type, home-made with modifications.

Proffitt, a switch board repairman in the Providence exchange, says he has discovered three circuits never known previously.

ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE.

Considerable interest is being shown in the 19th annual National Pilgrimage, under the patronage of the Catholic Women's League of Canada.

The itinerary has been announced, and includes the important points of the continent. The sailing date from Montreal is May 4. An illustrated program will be sent on application to The Jules Hone Travel Agencies, Montreal.—Adv. M. 20, 25.

MRS. BIGHAM BURIED.

BOTHWELL, March 16.—The funeral of Mrs. Emma Bigham, formerly of Bothwell took place from the home of her mother, Mrs. R. D. Andrews, in West Bothwell, Tuesday afternoon. Interment was made at the Protestant Cemetery. Mrs. Bigham died on Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Gardner, in Detroit, after being ill only a week. She leaves to mourn besides her aged mother, four grown children, Fred and William of Baltimore, M. D., Mrs. Alfred Gardner and Mrs. Donnell of Detroit, Mich.

Find Arsenal in Pockets Of Policeman's Slayer.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Tony Rakovich, shot after he had slain Policeman John H. McMillan, had in his pocket and hands the most complete "stick-up" outfit found on a prisoner in years, according to the police.

It consisted of:
One .45-calibre Colt revolver.
One .38-calibre Leuger revolver.
Two .25-calibre automatics.
One 7-inch unused dirk.
One blackjack.
One pair of new handcuffs.
All the guns were ready for use, the safeties being off every weapon.

BELIEVE CLOVER CAUSE OF DEATH

Five Cows Belonging to West Oxford
Farmer Die After Dehorning Operation.

VETERINARY EXPLAINS

Five-Year-Old Son of Benjamin
McKellen in Precarious Condition From Fall.

Special to London Advertiser.
INGERSOLL, March 19.—In connection with the death recently of five cows belonging to a West Oxford farmer following the dehorning operation, it is claimed that the feeding of sweet clover was the cause. While the dehorning was done by the farmer, a veterinarian, who was called, stated that the operation in each case was successful. The animals, it is understood, bled to death, and the explanation given by the veterinarian was that the blood had been so affected by sweet clover that it would not coagulate. This opinion was evidently substantiated by the fact that one of the animals which survived the operation would not eat sweet clover.

Since he was injured Friday afternoon by falling a distance of 18 feet from a veranda at the rear of their apartment on Thames street, Ralph McKellen, five-year-old son of Benjamin McKellen, has been in a precarious condition. He sustained "very serious injuries to the head, and is believed to be injured internally. While somewhat improved today after being unconscious for many hours, little hope of recovery is entertained.

In the third of the series of inter-township debates under the auspices of the U. P. O. of South Oxford, East Oxford defeated West Oxford Friday night, and qualified for the semi-finals. The debate was held in connection with the Cloverdale Club at the home of W. I. Nanckivell, West Oxford. The subject was "Resolved, that good nature is more to be desired in a wife than ability to cook and sew," with the East Oxford debaters, Alex. Amos and Geo. Murdoch, upholding the affirmative. The negative speakers were Stanley Minshall and Miss Odell. The judges were Principal Walton, Geo. F. James and Miss Dennis of Ingersoll.

CONGREGATION AT COTTAM CHURCH BURNS MORTGAGE

President of London Conference Presides at Eightieth Anniversary Services.

Special to London Advertiser.
COTTAM, March 18.—The eighth anniversary of the Cottam Methodist church was held Sunday and Monday, March 12 and 13. Services were conducted Sunday morning by Rev. J. W. Hibbert of Kingsville (president of the conference), and in the evening by Rev. Wm. Sterling of Cedar Springs, who was pastor when the church was built.

The church on Sunday, at each service, was filled to capacity. The pastor, Rev. C. C. Kalne, had asked for $500 to be put on the plate Sunday in order to complete the payment of the debt on the church. Five hundred and twenty-six dollars was given at these services.

On Monday a hot supper was furnished by the ladies of the congregation. After the supper a concert was given in the Kingsville Orchestra. Ruth Middleton, elocutionist of Detroit, solos by Mr. Lodge of Windsor, addresses by Rev. J. H. Johnston of Essex, J. W. Hibbert and Gonnell (Baptist) of Kingsville and Mr. Sterling of Cedar Springs.

One of the most pleasing parts of the program was the burning of the mortgage of the church, all liabilities having been met, with about $70 left in the treasury.

It was with gratitude the officials of this church closed this service, feeling free of all encumbrance. Much credit is due the women's organization (The Willing Workers) who have paid over to the building fund during these years the handsome sum of $3,700.

During the last four years, under the pastorate of Rev. C. C. Kalne, this church has made great progress in every line, and it is very pleasing to know the full indebtedness has been overcome and the church now stands free of debt.

POLICE ACTION FOLLOWS PARADE

Melbourne, Australia, March 19.—The police have taken the name of 26 leaders and organizers of last Friday's procession in celebration of St. Patrick's Day which was carried out in defiance of the city council's veto. The names include those of Archbishop Mannix, two members of parliament and several city councillors.

During the last four years, under the pastorate of Rev. C. C. Kalne, this church has made great progress in every line, and it is very pleasing to know the full indebtedness has been overcome and the church now stands free of debt.

SUPPLIES SEED IN CROP TESTS

O. A. C. Offers Farmers Wide Variety of Material for Experiments.

REPORTS ARE REQUESTED

Co-operative Work Covers
Cereals, Roots, Legumes and Fodder Plants.

Special to London Advertiser.

GUELPH, March 17.—The co-operative experiments with farm crops in 1922 include not only the well-known classes of farm crops, but also new introductions which have been tested at the college, but which are as yet little known throughout Ontario, such as Hubam sweet clover, Sudan grass, soy beans, hairy vetches, field or cow cabbage, Grimm alfalfa, rough buckwheat, sugar mangels, Gold Nugget corn and fodder sunflowers. The co-operative work for this year comprises the testing of:

Two varieties of oats, 2 plots.
O. A. C. No. 21 barley and emmer, 2 plots.
Two varieties of hull-less barley, 2 plots.

Two varieties of spring wheat, 2 plots.
Two varieties of buckwheat, 2 plots.
Three varieties of field peas, 2 plots.
Two varieties of spring rye, 2 plots.
Three varieties of soy, soja or Japanese beans, 3 plots.
Eight varieties of Flint and Dent corn, 8 plots.
Three varieties of sugar mangels, 3 plots.
Two varieties of sugar mangels, 2 plots.

Three varieties of Swedish turnips, 3 plots.
Two varieties of fall turnips, 2 plots.
Two varieties of carrots, 2 plots.
The planting of corn at six distances in the row, 1 plot.

Sudan grass and two varieties of millet, 3 plots.
Sunflower, sorghum and corn for fodder, 3 plots.
Rape, kale and field cabbage, 3 plots.
Two varieties of biennial white sweet clover, 2 plots.

Three varieties of alfalfa, 2 plots.
Unhulled, hulled and scarified sweet clover seed, 3 plots.
Three varieties of field beans, 3 plots.
Sweet corn for table use from different distances of planting, 3 plots.

Low and high grade fertilizers and manure, with oats and red clover, 4 plots.
Low and high grade fertilizers and manure, with oats and biennial white sweet clover, 4 plots.

Different quantities of lime, with sweet clover, 4 plots.
Miscellaneous Experiments.
Three grain mixtures for grain production, 3 plots.
Three grain mixtures for fodder production, 3 plots.

Hubam sweet clover, at the rate of one pound and four pounds per acre, in rows for seed production, 2 plots.
Hubam sweet clover when cut at three different stages of growth for green fodder and for hay, 3 plots.

Two varieties of Hubam sweet clover for green fodder and for hay, 2 plots.
Hubam, biennial white and biennial yellow sweet clover, by sowing alone in late June or early July for cover crops, 3 plots.

For experiment No. 26 (lime with sweet clover), the Experimental Unit will furnish the sweet clover seed and the experimenter the lime, as required.

Any person in Ontario who grows field crops may apply for any one of the experiments for 1922. Each applicant should make a second choice, as the materials for the first choice might be exhausted before the application is received. The material will be forwarded in the order in which the applications are received, while the supply lasts. No charge is made for the experimental material, and the produce becomes the property of the experimenter. Each person applying should carefully write his name, address and county, sending his request to C. A. Zavitz, director, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

India and the constant talk of their elimination.
An Indian member, in a special interview after the debate, explained that the Democrats did not intend, even when Swaraj, or home rule was a fact, to eject the Europeans from India, bag and baggage, or repudiate their contracts. If the Europeans held the Indian, he abolished, the posts in India were abolished, the Legislative Assembly would be given.

The Legislative Assembly is still extremely hostile to the military budget, first, because of its size, and secondly, because of the Assembly's inability to vote thereon. Some Europeans are inclined to support the Indians in this matter. Next week there will be a critical discussion of the military budget, and the new taxation proposals. The Democrats threaten to refuse to consent to taxation amounting to more than £7,000,000, partly as a protest against the military budget and partly from a fear to face the public as supporters of fresh taxation.

JURY FAILED TO CONVICT WOMAN

Los Angeles, March 20.—In her cell in the county jail again facing trial for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, her sweetheart, Mrs. Madeline Obenchain, in whose case a jury last night disagreed and was discharged, today was resignedly waiting for tomorrow when it is expected to reach a verdict.

The foreman reported the jury was "hopelessly divided" and after each of the nine men and three women who composed it had been asked separately and had confirmed the foreman's report, Judge Reeve discharged them.

The foreman, Frank W. Crockett, told the court the division was nine to three, and had stood from the first to the fifth and final ballot. After the court had dismissed them some of the jurors told newspapermen the nine, including two of the women jurors, favored conviction, while the three, including one woman, had voted for acquittal.

Life and Character Reading.

MARCH 20.

The governing sign of this birthdate is Pisces, governing the feet, while the governing planets are Neptune and Jupiter. Some of the people born on this day are very inattentive, and will interrupt a speaker or a conversation with the most irrelevant remarks, plainly showing that they have not understood a word of what has been said. This causes them to appear impolite and sometimes exceedingly stupid. When told of their faults, their mortification leads them to a quick reformation of a deep-seated selfishness.

Men of this birthdate are often attacked by periods of despondency and self-censure, which may lead to serious illnesses if not controlled. The birthstone is a turquoise.

Look well to your treasures this week or you will be under the necessity of using the Want Ads. to recover something lost or stolen.

MRS. SELLERY OF OSBORNE TOWNSHIP PASSES AWAY

Popular Young Woman Was Victim of Pneumonia Following Attack of La Grippe.

Special to London Advertiser.

EXETER, March 18.—The community was shocked at the news of the death of Mrs. Wm. Selley of Osborn Township, which sad event took place Wednesday morning.

The deceased was a young woman in her 28th year. She was a victim of double pneumonia, following an attack of gripple. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Mr. Sellery, lately bought James Jackell's farm on the London road, and was preparing to move to the new home.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at Exeter Cemetery.

Many farmers have tapped their trees and report a good run of sap. The weather is ideal for working in the woods, and all appearances seem to point to an early spring.

At a meeting of the library board, of which H. E. Hueston is secretary, Miss Grace Connor was re-elected as librarian at $250 a year. Miss Connor is an obliging lady, and all readers are pleased with her re-engagement.

WINDSOR, March 18.—"It may be good judgment to set a thief to catch a thief, but it does not work out right when you set a 'bull' to catch a 'bull.'" Patrolman C. E. Johnson of Windsor police asserts.

A "real four-footed" infuriated critter gave chase to Mrs. Rose Cunningham of Louis avenue, and Mrs. Lilly Stacey, 35 Cameron avenue, while they were walking on Howard avenue near Giles street. They only escaped being gored by their presence of mind to run into a residential. Patrolman Johnson arrived in the police flyer in answer to the hurry-up call. He scouted the neighborhood for close to an hour without finding any trace of the bovine. "Some bull," the patrolman reported to headquarters.

foundland sealing voyage has ended with excellent prospects for capacity trips, wireless reports saying that 50,000 seals have been killed.

This spring, for the first time in the history of the seal fishery, airplanes have reconsidered the Arctic flocks of the east coast, and have discovered the location of the main herd. The venture was carried out by Major Cotton in a Martinside machine, and by Capt. Bennett in a Westland. Among those present when the great aggregation of seals was sighted was the ubiquitous movie man, who took thousands of feet of film pictures. The aviators boarded some of the Newfoundland steam sealing fleet, and found that most of the ships were doing well.

Child's Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing.

If you want to keep your child's hair looking its best, be careful when you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just plain Mulford's coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulford's in a cup of glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulford's coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few coupons will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure you get Mulford's. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.—Advt.

CHANGES NECESSARY

St. Thomas Citizens To Be Asked For $35,000 On One-Day Canvass.

Special to London Advertiser.

ST. THOMAS, March 19.—To keep the Alma College in St. Thomas and to contract the movement on foot in certain quarters to move the institution to London, $100,000 will be spent on the present buildings to make them thoroughly modern, and to increase the accommodation for resident pupils.

Propose Swimming Pool.

Among the changes which have been proposed and which will be carried out in order as soon as the money is available, are the installation of a gymnasium and swimming pool at a cost of $25,000; new domestic quarters, costing $15,000; repairs and additions to the heating plant to the extent of $5,000; a complete renovation of the present buildings at an estimated cost of $25,000, and the erection of an auditorium and music building at a cost of $30,000.

The need of these improvements has been considered urgent for some

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is, covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing soothes fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops, and after two or three applications the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Blenheim Anglers Disappointed at Failure to Receive Netting Licenses

Special to London Advertiser.

BLENHHEIM, March 18.—Anglers of this district who were looking forward with great expectations to getting their fishing licenses this week so that they might use 30 yards of gill net in the waters of Rondeau to deck their breakfast tables with some of the delicious pike which abound in its waters, were doomed to disappointment today on receiving in response to their application filed with Overseer Cahoon for licenses, a reply from Warden Col. Emmerton of London, to effect that the department does not look with favor on granting such licenses in view of the fact that they are stocking the Rondeau with game fish and net fishing, it was thought, would interfere with this project.

As there are only 15 more days in which a spearing license could be used, it is not worth while to apply for it, and it appears that so far as netting or spearing is concerned, the pike will have a holiday season.
In the meantime the situation has caused a great deal of discontent among the rural people especially, who heretofore enjoyed the sport of pike fishing in the spring in their own way. The attempt to enforce the law in this regard has been the chief topic of conversation among many.

Best Equipped in Canada.

As the building is of splendid architecture and is sound in every respect, it is believed that with the changes contemplated, the school will become one of the best equipped in Canada.

It is reported that proposals have been made to dispose of the present buildings and erect an entirely new college in London. This proposal did not meet with the approval of the local members of the board, and so every effort will be made to retain it in this city.

For the drive on May 2 an organization is being worked out to make a success of one of the most ambitious efforts ever undertaken in St. Thomas.

KITCHENER GROCER DIES.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will bring back its natural color and shine. It is a simple and safe remedy. Mix the Sage Tea and Sulphur in equal parts. Apply to the hair with a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by doing so all grey hairs have disappeared, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Adv.

Turnkey Felled When Ernest
Tillard Makes Dash for Liberty.

WINDSOR, March 19.—Ernest Tillard, 24 years old, a Windsor youth, sentenced Saturday by Justice Lennox to serve five years in Kingston Penitentiary, escaped from his cell in the Essex County jail at Sandwich early this morning, but was driven back by six officials and extra guards armed with loaded rifles, who surrounded the courthouse and jail yard before he had time to scale the walls.

Remembering that Tillard had escaped from Sandwich jail two years ago while awaiting sentence for robbing a Windsor store, Governor William Wanless had taken the precaution to place the extra guards on duty Saturday night. Tillard was to have been taken to Kingston this afternoon, but will now be held here until a further charge is laid against him for attempted jail-breaking.

Saturday when he appeared in court he asked Justice Lennox to defer his sentence until Monday, but the judge refused, intimating that he thought because of Tillard's past record he should be taken to Kingston as soon as possible.

HONOR DEAN OF PRESS GALLERY

OTTAWA, March 19.—Members of the parliamentary press gallery at their annual meeting Saturday honored R. M. MacLeod, dean of the Canadian parliamentary correspondents, who represents Reuter's, Limited, in Ottawa, by electing him honorary president of the press gallery, to hold office during his lifetime. Mr. MacLeod has been a member of the press gallery for 41 years, during which time he has seen 43 sessions of Parliament.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, V. T. H. Blacklock; vice-president, M. Grattan O'Leary; secretary, Claude Melancon; executive, T. M. Fraser, Edgar Boudet, George Hambleton, J. A. Brouseau and Tom King, and also H. E. Chisholm, the retiring president.

The offence of which Tillard was convicted recently and for which he was sentenced Saturday was that of holding-up and shooting at John Kubachi of Ford.

When Turnkey Theodore Bennett made his first rounds this morning about 6:45, he was seized, it is alleged, by Paul Triolet of Amherstburg, serving a sentence under the Ontario temperance act, and struck on the head by some weapon which has not yet been found.

Tillard at once made a dash for liberty and escaped into the outer corridors of the jail, but was soon discovered by extra guards who were promptly reinforced by Governor Wanless and other men, all heavily armed. All points at which Tillard could escape to the street were kept covered by loaded rifles until the guards within the building drove him back to his cell.
