VOL. X.

A NOBLE REVENCE.

A LEGEND OF THE CRUSADES. CHAPTER L.

Day was declining; already the mists of the evening were gathering in the valleys, when a horseman, who had been for some time skirting the shores of the Mediterranean, plunging at length into a deep and winding ravine, whose lofty sides were thickly clothed with pines-Both horse and rider gave signs of a long and fatiguing journey; but in spite of his well-worn mantle, soiled helmet, and arms rusted with rain, the countenance of the young cavalier appeared radiant with bappiness. With eager joy be spurred on his steed, casting, as he went, looks of teader interest around him, as though he recognised at each fresh turn of the road some dear familiar object, and ejaculating to himself with a sort of rapturous emotion, indicated no less by the smile that played on his lips and the tear that glistened in his eye. When he reached a certain point in the road, he stopped-it was before a little image of Our Lady placed in a half-ruined niche; there, joining his hauds devoutly together, he cried aloud :

"O Mother of Mercy, thanks to thy tender care, I once more behold my beloved country. Here, as I departed for the Holy war, I made my vow before thee; and here, as is meet, I promise to perform it. On this spot will I raise a chapel and hospice for pilgrims; hither will I myself come each year to visit thy boly image, and on the same day will I relieve with great devotion thirty-three poor men, in honor of the thirty-three years which thy dear Son lived with thee on earth. O Virgin, ever blessed, have pity on me !"

With reason might Berenger d'Elvaz thank • the Lord, whose almighty hand had delivered hum out of so many perils. He had gone to the crusades as a faithful vassal of St. Louis----Wounded at Mansoura, he had endured a hard captivity in the house of an Egyptian emir, nor had he recovered his liberty till the King of France had paid a million bezants of gold for his followers' ransom, and surrendered Damietta in payment for his own freedom; and now, at last, he had returned over sea to his own dear land of Provence, and to the home of his fathers, so fondly remembered. He was returning, it was true, a poor knight, possessed of nothing but his own good sword, but abundance awaited him in his father's halls; he was wearied and worn with travel, but what affectionate solicitude would not his mother and his sister lavish upon him ! He pictured to himself their joy, and in imagination anticipated his own. He thought of the ancient retainers who had known him from a child; he forgot not even his poor faithful dog, who, perhaps, already had instinctively divined the near approach of his master. "Come, Valiant," said he to his horse, "let us push along ; a few steps further and we shall he at home. Once there a, good stable, plenty of fodder, and careful grooming will be yours. Push on, then, Valiant, my brave steed." The docile animal set himself to a capter, and soon the young traveller beheld through the increasing darkness the tall, shadowy outline of the castle of Elvaz. His heart leaped within him at the sight; but he observed with surprise that no light glimmered through the narrow windows, not a sound could be hear from the ramparts. "They are in the northern hall," said he, as if to re-assure himself; "my father is playing chess with the chaplain; my mother and sister ply the distaff; the valets are busy somewhere. I will soon make them hear me." So saying, be took the born that hung at his helt, and sounded the once familiar notes by which he was wont to announce his return from the chase. No answer. Seized with impatience, he rode on ; the drawbridge was down in spite of the lateness of the hour. Berenger crossed it. Beneath the dark vault over which rose the belfry tower, he lound neither servants nor men-at-arms. He shouted; the echo of the tell me? If you are buogry, I have bread and ramparts alone replied. He advanced into the figs in my wallet. It you are ill, I am somecourt, and all around him was silence, darkness. absolute solitude.

of flames. At this sight, Berenger leaped from his horse, and, almost beside himself with terror, opened a window, the fastenings of which some bostile hand no doubt shattered, and entered the armor-room, where once he used to tilt with his father and his old retainers.

" My father !" he called aloud ; " my tather ! where are you? My mother! Alice, my sister, answer me."

"Holtoa ! who calls ?" replied a voice which proceeded from a corner of the vast and gloomy hall. Berenger rushed to the snot whence the sound seemed to come, stretched out his hands, and encountered the arm of a man clothed in a coarse garment of goat's hair. "Who are you ?" cried the young knight ;-

The two looked into each other's faces. "Is it you? is it indeed you, my lord ?" said the man, as he fell at the feet of Berenger .---"You are still alive! Do you not know me ! I am James Lerouge, the goatherd, once the companion of your sports."

"Yes, I know you, my poor James. Buttell me-what has happened? My father, my mother, my sister-in the name of God, where are they ?"

The man drew back; then, with a look of the deepest horror, answered, as he grasped the young man's arm :

"Your father, your mother, and the Lady Alice, are all dead-slain by John de Melfort, the ancient enemy of your house. They lie buried in the chapel."

Berenger's knees tottered under him ; he supported himself against the wall, and fixed his haggard eyes upon the goatherd.

The latter resumed :

"It was believed that you had perished at Mansoura. Melfort, no longer fearing your return, fell upon us. Vassals, men-at-arms, all were massacred. My lord was slain defending his daughter; your sister was pierced with an arrow, and your venerable mother died of grief. The wretches pillaged the castle, leaving the bodies of their victums without burial, but the monks of St. Benedict laid them in consecrated earth. For myself, I was left for dead in a corner of the court youder; but I recovered from my wounds, and continued with my flock to inhabit the place in which I had been bred. I

MONTREAL, FRIDAY, MARCH 23, 1860.

" My son, you will not leave these ruins because you are nursing, not your grief, but your revenge ; and there, where you stand, you medifort."

And what if I meditate requiting him the evil he has done me-would it not be just ?" "' Vengeance is mine, I will repay it,' saith the Lord. No, my child, it is not just to intrench on the rights that belong to God, and by an untimely and violent death to rob the sinner from that God will be your judge, vengeance is not yours; and again I say to you, from Him who is your Saviour, 'By patience shall ye find peace to your soul.' When you have made your enemy's hearth, will you find your own restored ? and fro. When you have plunged the sword into the breasts of his wife and daughter, will your mother and sister rise again from the dead ? When you have burdened your conscience with the load that now oppresses his, will your own he more light ?"

" My father," interposed Berenger, " you are a man of peace ; you cannot understand me."

"My son, before I was a monk, I was a man of war like yourself; before I put on this frock, I wore the breastplate and belt of a knight; I felt the excitement of worldly passions. I speak to you then, as one who has had experience of human glory; and I tell you that, if to your blinded eyes there be certain grandeur in an insatiable revenge, there is that which is infinitely grander and more noble in the generous forgiveness which triumphs, not over an enemy prostrate at our feet, but over the haughty passions of our own hearts."

" But, father, you do not understand me ;--leave me."

" My son, my brother, I will not leave you; for the hour of despair is no time for good resolutions. God has sent me hither, blessed be His divine providence, which does nothing in vain !" "But know you," cried Berenger, impatiently, vou who want me to forgive like a cowardknow you the evil this man has done me? Do you know that, after two long years of hard capvity, I return with a heart ounding with hope and joy, longing for love, full to overflowing with the tenderest affection for my aged parents and my young sister; and, thanks to this Melfort, find, instead of my father's hearth, you three tombstones? Did he not revenge on a few poor vassals, an old man, and two women, the wrongs of his ancestors ? and shall I not render him wo for wo, pang for pang? I tell you that all night as I paced these deserted courts, by the side of the graves where all I love lie buried, 1 heard monk. "Your father's name is-" dear familiar voices crying ' Strike and avenge us !' and I will obey." "No, my son, your grief deceives you; I knew those for whom you mourn. Your father was a just man, your mother a noble and pious lady, your young sister an angel of innocence; they have entered into the rest of the angels, and they pray for pardon on their murderer ;they heap upon his head, not the burning coals of vengeance, but the riches of a glowing charity. Oh, no, blessed souls! it is not revenge you ask of the Lord ; you ask but to see your ene-my pardoned, and throned in glory with you for all eternity. But your child, your brother, still bound with the cords of the flesh, cannot understand you."

The youthful inquirers paused, as if awe-struck, at the entrance of that wide enclosure, where already some of the brave compantate less upon your father than on John de Mel- jons of Peter Nolasco and Raymond of Pennafort were taking their peaceful and glorious rest.---Their modest tombs rose in the centre of a court; around, under the vaulted cloister, walked in silence a number of knights and priests, the former wearing their white tunic and mantle, the latter having their habit of the same snowy purity, embroidered with the arms of the King of Arrogan-a token of the affection borne by that truly Christian prince for the noble order of Redemption. Nothing disturbed the quiet seclusion of the place, save the measured fall of their foot upon the pavement, and the rustling of their long robes of serge, as they paced continually to

At length a priest perceiving the maiden and her companions, approached them. Ile was a man still in the prime of life; but his sorrow-stricken brow, and his hair prematurely sprinkled with grey, seemed to mark him as one who had in the world encountered wrongs and sufferings such as had left wounds in his soul, which time as yet had but imperfectly healed. In a voice full of sweetness he asked :

" Maiden, what seekest thou /"

" Alas, sir !" she answered, " we are two unhappy children, well-nigh orphans, I might say, though our father and mother are both still living. One is a captive among the Saracens, and the other is dying of anxiety and grief !"

"Your father, is in slavery?" "Yes, sir. He had gone to Barcelona to receive a legacy bequeathed him by a friend of my mother's, and was returning in confidence to Provence, when the galley in which he had embarked was taken by the Barbary corsairs .--Resistance was rain, the infidels carried him off into slavery; and we have reason to believe that her words, and her brother wept at seeing her attention was now strongly excited; " thanks to

If only you consent to go to my father's rescue, we will put into your hands a sum more than sufficient for his redemption ; we have | clad, his feet and hands loaded with chains ; but faithful vassals, too, and tried friends, and there is not one amongst them but would contribute to the deliverance of the Lord of Melfort." " Melfort, did you say ? Melfort !" crid the "John de Melfort, sir. If you are of Provence, you know it is no ignoble name." "I know it !" said the monk, in a low stern voice ; " I know it, alas too well !" He turned away; his eyes for an instant gleamed fiercely; the next moment he raised them to the crucifix which hung in the middle of] the cloister: "O great God," he muttered, " and do such fierce passions reign in a soul which Thy grace has vanquished? The voice of this child rouses in my soul feelings of hatred and revenge which I deemed stifled forever ! My father, my mother, my sister, what will you have me to do? Blessed souls, what is it you ask of me ?" He stood for some time silent, his eyes fixed on the divine crucifix : then, turning towards the children, he said, in a voice of inexpressible sweetness : "I will myself go in search of your father, and, if it please God, will restore him to you.-Pray for me, a miserable sinner." A few hours after a monk, habited for a journey, was receiving on his knees the benediction be your home; there you will find fathers, bro- of Peter Nolasco, the General of the Order, who, as he embraced him, said : "Go, dear son, and spare neither your blood nor your life in the service of your neighbor .---Go, servant of Christ, follow in your Master's steps; forget not your vows, which oblige you | sire ?" to remain yourself in chains to deliver a Christian from captivity. and all were following eagerly with their eyes the white sails, which approached nearer every moment. The outline of the rigging was distinctly visible, sharply defined against the sky. The forms of three vessels in particular were now clearly discernible; and soon the spectators could distinguish the colors of the flags displayed at their bows.

The practiced eye of a master-pilot at length recognised the leading vessel : "Praised be our Lady of La Garde 1 'tis the Happy Bark ; she comes from Palermo, and bringe news of Monsieur d'Anjou, husband of Beatrice of Provence."

"And the second," broke in another, " is the sloop St. Mary; she comes from Smyrna, with fruits and perfumes."

The two ships thus announced rapidly entered he roads, amidst the acclamations of the crowd. The third still lagged behind in the distance, laboring heavily, as it seemed, against the wind, which had become less favorable.

The widow and her children stood anxiously watching her; though the poor lady would say, It is of no use expecting, my children; it is Goil's will to try us."

"Mother !" - suddenty exclaimed the boy, 'look !-- I see it clearly ;--'tis the holy standard that floats on that galley !"

The widow turned pale, and pressed her band upon her heart, fluttering between hope and fear. She gazed out upon the waters, the flag unfurled itself in the breeze, and she saw plainly on the white ground the arms of Arrogan, with the device, " Redemptionen misit populo suo -He gave redemption to His people.

" It is the St. John the Baptist, the galley of the Redemptorists !" cried the people. "Great God !" said the widow, " is it possible? Holy Virgin! let me not be disappointed of my hope.

Still she gazed ; and on the deck she beheld a man in a white habit.

The vessel was close upon the quay ; a man was landing from it, wretchedly his countenance,-'twas he ! She uttered a cry, made a few steps forward, and fell swooning with joy into the arms of the captive. He strained her to his heart, and extended his hands to bless his children, who, kneeling at his feet, were endeavoring to loosen the fetters which he had but just resumed; then, turning towards the monk, who was at that moment leaving the galley, he cried :

"Good God !" he cried, " what has happened ?"

At this moment the moon struggled through the thick mantle of clouds with which she was enveloped, and poured a flood of light upon the castle. Berenger gazed around him, struck now disclosed. The castle was a ruin; the roofs were uncovered, the windows displayed their gaping recesses, stripped of glass and hangings; masses of rubbish strewed the pavement of the court in every direction ; fragments of richly- awaken your griel." carved furniture, costly armor, broken ornaments; parchinents with large waxen seals at- ger's emphatic answer. tached, lay scattered on the ground; fire and never believed that you were dead : I looked for yonr return, and, besides, I had something to say to you."

"What?" said the young man eagerly. "John de Melfort has a castle, a wife, and a daughter. Revenge is sweet."

Next day broke fair and bright ; a man clothed in a white habit, and wearing a scapular on which shone a shield of gules and gold, was approching along the path that led to Elvaz. He walked with a firm step, seeming to contemplate with delight the leafy thickets, the banks covered with wild thyme, the ripples of the sparkling stream which ran babbling along its rocky bed, and repeating from time to time, in an under tone verses from the psalms, as though using the strains of the royal prophet to sing the praises of the Lord of all. Stopping under the walls of the castle, he cast his eyes over the ruined towers, and said to himself:

"I will go into the chapel and pray a moment over its deserted tombs."

He crossed the drawbridge, no longer guarded by men-at-arms; he entered the courtyard, and appeared struck with astonishment on beholding a young man standing with his back against the ramparts, and gazing with a mournful countenance on the havoc that surrounded bin. The monk approached, and moved by a lively feeling of compassion, thus addressed him :

"My son what doest thou alone in this deserted spot? The masters of the castles are no more ; but you look pale and wan-are you ill, what of a leech."

Whilst the good religious was thus speaking with a tender earnestness, Berenger slowly raised his head, and casting on him at once a look cold and calm, said in a low voice, more terrible than the wildest cry of despair :

"I am Berenger d'Elvaz!"

"What, my dear son !" exclaimed the monk, with a secret and indefinable terror; and it)" are you then alive?" "He sought me out on the verge of the Great Desert, whither my masters had carried me ; he found me dying of the black plague. All had abandoned me; but, undeterred by the loathsome disease, he installed himself as my nurse; he cured me by his skill, or rather by his loving and tender care. The barbarians declared my ransom-money insufficient; he offered to remain himself in my stead; but this I called God and His blessed Mother to witness that I would not suffer. And this he did : and now-hear me. my son-I bid every one who bears the name of Melfort be henceforth the friend and servant of the Holy Order of Mercy."

" It is your forgiveness I implore, that I may hope to be forgiven by God," answered Melfort ; "but know, that from the day on which, to avenge my father's wrongs, I laid murderous hands upon your kindred, I have never had one peaceful night ; the very prosperity which heaven bestowed upon me was bitterness to my heart. I shall believe myself pardoned only when you have forgiven me.".

" Let this embrace be the pledge of my friendship," said Berenger, as he threw his arms round the hereditary enemy of his house; " and now come to the altar, where I am about to offer the mercies of your God !- come, follow me."

They proceeded to the chapel of our Lady of La Garde, followed by James Lerouge and a crowd of people. The captive laid his chains at the feet of the miraculous image, the little children, according to ancient usage, replaced them with a garland of flowers. The mass began : Berenger d'Elvaz, son and disciple of St. Peter Nolasco, jumolated on the altar, once for ave. every rememberance of ancient feud ; and when, himself hvingly united with the Saviour of mankind, he laid the Holy Host on the lips of Melfort, there remained no longer those scions of two mostile houses, but twin brothers, united together in the bonds of divine charity by the noblest of all self-sacrifices, and a gratitude as humble as it was profound.

IRISH INTELLIGENCE.

BIRHURS' PASTURALS .-- Host of their Lordships in their Leuten Pastorals allude to the Present position of the Holy Father and to the proposed tribute from the Irish untion to Ilis Holiness. The Bishop of Cork says :- The offices of the Church, will, no doubl, be constantly and numerously atunded according to your accustomed piety .but, whether joining in public prayer or united in family devotions, let your politions uncensingly ascend before the throne of Grace, that the Lord may defend the Church in the trials which now beset it. and that he may strengthen and console the great Pastor of the whole finck, whom his Provider ce has constituted the Vicar of his Divine Son, as well as the guide and support of the faithful committed to his care, under the injustice, calumny and treachery with which he is accalled by professed enemies or pretended friends.

The Bishop of Desory Says :-- We will bear in mild that we are contributing to support, in his diffi-culties. (herist's Vicar on earth-to sustain Catholicity of dust intidelity and heresy-to maintain oppresent insucence and virtue against anarchy and insurantination; in a word, to defend the cause of Ohnst and His Church in the person of His Vicar, against His and her enemics. Who can refuse to contribute his mite to so holy a cause? I am bold to affirm from what I know of you, that none of you will; and that you all, of every age and state, and condition, will vie with each other to see who shall contribute most, according to his means and ability, on the 20th of February, the first Sunday of Lan. Happy, indeed, will it be for every person who can could himself with the remembrance of having contributed on that day according to his ability, to sustain his Holiness Pope Pius IX. against his euemies, and the enemies of Catholicity.

The Eishop of Ferns :- The heart of every good Catholic throughout the Obristian world is oppresand with grief for the anmerited wrongs heaped upon the Common Father of the Faithful. From every every quarter of his wide domain, his children have hastened to lay at his feet the expression of their filial devotion and affectionate condolence. This uni-

55 Eccles-street, 29th Feb., 1860

GENTLEVEN - Though prevented by a severe cold from assisting at your meeting this morning, I cannot refrain from congratulating you on the success with which lass Sunday crowned your proceedings. The clergy and the laity-the poor and the rich, in every parish and district-have acted with unparal-Adorable Victim, and receive the pledge of the leied gonerosity. Perhaps, no one ever witnessed so decided a manifestation of true Catholic faith and such devotedness and attachment to the Apostolic See. It is not, however, "the 'extraordinary amount' of the collection with which I have been most delighted, but with the spirit and fervor displayed in the words and prayers of the people. Undoubtedly, God in His providence will amply remunerate their sentiments and sacrifices, by imparting to them, their families, and their country, His choicest blessings .---Their conduct reminds one of the early Christians, who in their fervor brought all that they possessed, and laid it at the feet of the Apostles.

As it is desirable that an accurate account of occurrences so edifying should be preserved, I trust that, when drawing your proceedings to a close, you will crown your good work by the publication of a small volumn containing the subscriptions, with a list of the contributers as far as they can be ascertained. In after times it will be a source of pride 10 children yet unborn to find the names of their fathere and their frienns registered in that list, and to refer to the generous faith with which they had assisted the Vicar of Christ in his trials and difficulties. As soon as this publication will be ready we can send a publication of it to his Holiness to be denosited in the Vatican archives.

"When writing to you some few days ago I ex pressea a hope that the collection in Dablin would show how little weight the Oatholics of this city attached to the charges mude by. Lord J. Russell, of ignorance, corruption, and despotism against the go-vernment of Fius IX., the best of fathers, to his people, and the mildest of sovereigns. I have not been disappointed in my expectations, and Lord John Russell may now read in the proceedings of last Sunday how little attention is paid to his words. It is extraordinary that a Minister of State, carried away by his hatred of Catholicity should adopt the tone of a Cumming, or a M'Neill, or some fanatical expounder of the prophecies, forgetting the diguity and the responsibilities of his office. In one of his official deepatches this noble lord tells us that three milliona of the Pope's subjects are panting to be freed from his rule, thus converting into violent rebels and fiery demagogues women, children under ten years of age-nay, aucking infants, for the entire population of the Pontifical States, comprising, men, women, and children, blabops, priests, friars, nuns, scarcely exceeds three millions. His lordships ima-gination must have been greatly heated by bigotry or by the perusal of Cumming's prophecies when he ventured to write and to submit to the cansure of the world a dispatch more worthy of the masur of an Orange lodge then of a Minister of Foreign affairs. Truly, + Iniquitas mentita est sibi.'

"But, leaving Lord John Russell treading is the footsteps of his predecessor, Lord Malmesbury, to encourage rebellion against the Pope, and to carry out the instincts of the founder of his family, well described by our great countryman, Edmund Enrke, I trust that Ireland will persevere in the course on which she has entered - will continue to present to the world the spectacle referred to by a former distinguished representative of her Majesty's government in Ireland, Lord Normanby, of the masses of the people protecting the rights of property, and meulcating obedience to lawful authority, whilst ministers and statesmen are patronising rebellion, apoliation, and communism, and giving an anthoritative circulation to principles subversive of every le-

CORK ADDRESS.-REPLY OF THE HOLY FATHER .-Pope Pus IX to the Right Rev. William Delany, Bishop of, Cork.-Venerable Brother, Health and Apostolic Benediction, We have needed from you venerable brother, and from our belowed thildren the dergy and latt of that city, a letter dated the 18th of December last, which has afforded us no ordinary consolation amidst our very great cares and bitter trials, as we derive, from the tenor of that letter, the repeated assurance, if such were wanting, of your and their singular devoted uess, attachment, and veneration towards us and this Chair of Peter; the document also munifests the heartfelt grief shared alike by you and your flock, on account of the tribulations in which we are plunged by the designs and intrigues of those unprincipled men who, in their hatred of the Catholic Church and this Apostolic See, are leagued together in plotting the overthrow of our temporal sovereignty, and of the patrimony of Peter, and the utter violation of all rights, human and Divine. We are deeply and sensibly affected by the generous sympathy displayed by you and the fuithful Catholics of Cork, which is entitled to our warmest praise, and well calculated to awaken and augment our paternal love towards you and them. Gense not, renerable brother, jointly with the faithful, not only of the city, but of the whole diocese to put up your fervent prayers to Almighty God, that He would deign, in His great mercy, to rescue His holy Church from so many calamities, and to aid and console as in every tribulation of ours; and that He would exercise His power and mercy in bringing back the deluded ememire of llis holy Chuich, and of this See, into the path of truth, righteousness, and salvation. But since you are well awars of the most ruthless warfare excited against our boly religion, by the mischievous activity of wicked men, at this disastrous period; and since you cannot be ignorable, vonerable brother, by what wild and monstrous opinions, and by what vicious and unhallowed artifices of every description, men prompted by hostile feelings are endeavoring to mislead and debauch the minds and bearts of all, and detach them utterly from our divine religion-we therefore earnestly charge you that, in reliance on heavenly aid and by the prompt and indefatigable exertion of your well-known zeal and ability, you would strenuously vindicate and uphold the sacred cause of the Catholic Church. Be most vigilant, also, in providing for the safety of the flock entrust ed to your care, and never relax your zealous efforts to detect the fallacies, to refute the errors, and to repel the assaults of those who are hostile to our religion. In conclusion, it is peculiarly gratifying to us that we are enabled to lay hold of this occasion to reiterate the expression of that special regard and good will which we are ever glad to testify towards you ; and as a pledge thereof we no impart, with the full affection of our heart and true fatherly love, our Apostolic Benediction to yourself, venerable brother, and to all the faithful clergy and laity of the city and diocese of Cork. Given at Rome, at St. Peter's, this 12th day of January, in the year of Our Lord 1860, and of our Pontificate the 14th. Piue, P., IX.

THE LEGAL APPOINTMENTS .- The Right Hou. J. D. Fitzgerald was sworn in on Tuesday one of the Justices at the Court of Queen's Beuch at the Lord. Chancellor's residence. The following is his valedictory address to the electors of Knnis :-- " The Queen has been graciously pleased to select me to be one of the judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, and my accession to that high office has determined my political connexion with the borough of Ranis. I have enjoyed the distinguished honor of being chosen on six different occasions to represent you in the Imperial Parliament, and during my connerion with you, of many years' duration, I have received. st your hands kindness, consideration, and furbearance. In now expressing my gratitude for all the lavors you have conferred on me, permit me to add that, whatever my position in life may be, I will ever refer with pride and pleasure to that period during which I was member for Banis. Conscious of my own many failings. I venture to express a hope that my successor may prove a more efficient representative than I have been, though I feel he cannot be more sealous or faithful. And now, with heartfelt grief and regret, I bid you farewell, but believe me that it is with the simost sincerity I declare that I will never cease to feel the despest interest in your welfare and in the prosperity of Ennis. Your faithful and attached servant.

J. D. FITTORRALD. The successor of Judge Fitzgerald, Oaptain Stackpool, is an advocate for a full measure of tenant right, in favor of separate education, an extension of the franchise and the ballot, and with regard to the Italian question, he is for maintaining in their inegrity the dominions of His Holiness the Pope, and | chise, every man in occupation of premises rated to the Government by no parliamentary servitude-the common path to such preferment. It is true the Government may deem themselves under no light oblivernment may deem themselves under no light con-gations-to.such a man for allowing himself to be irapked with them on the side tof find wind a for a second and spanst the voice sof the side tof in what the freight, and this may have been for him what the Parliamentary servitude has been for the others. But all this can at best be but surmise or probability. while it is right to recollect the possibility of having adduced, in explanation of his recent step, circumstances less unfavorable than those that now present themselves.

Of the minor appointments, Mr. Lawson obtains the Sergenatcy, and retains his position as law adviser-thus making sure his ground for the next va-cancy among the law officers. The Obairmanship of Kilmainham, we understand, has been offered to Mr. Robert Andrews, Q.O., and accepted. This change creates a vacancy in the East Riding, but who is to succeed Mr. Andrews is as yet undetermined. The death of Mr. Georges, late Assistant Barrister for Fermanagh, has placed snother Chairmanship at the disposal of the Government, which has been conferred upon Mr. Coffey.

URTAINING MONNY ONDER FALSE PRETERCES .- A letter has appeared from the Rev. W. H. Pinaket, nephew and private chaplain of the now notorious an euroest to the laboring classes and tradesmen Right Honorable and Right Rev. Exterminator, calling on " the friends of the cause of Missionary lubour in Ireland" for hard each to carry on the work of Evangelism in the benighted regions of Mayo and Galway. He very shrewdly cautions his "friends not" to estimate the results of missionary labours by, the number of converts," &c Very clever in-deed 1. He knew well the number of converts was almost nil. He knew well that in Oughterard, Clifden, Partry, Achill, Louisburgh, the "numerou" converts" made by famine during its awful visitation fell back again into "Romanism" the very moment the visitation passed away, . In fact, except in Partry slone, there is bardly a vestige of "conversioa" throughout the length and breath of Western Connanght and even in Partry at this moment only four heads of families, two of these being helpless widows remain to attest the progress of the "missionary" Gospel. After twenty years' hard work-ploughing and harrowing, and shaking golden seed -- only four native families to show for the thousands upon thousands lavished on the task 1 And, worze than all this, two of those have appealed to the priest to take them back, only asking some place of shelter during the winter ! Nay, not merely this, but even in Par-try, in face of the dreaded landlord, twenty-two souls have come back to the horrid errors of Romanism during the last twelve months. Now, while be 19 thus losing every day, we defy Mr. Planket to name the second "convert,"-(at this moment we are quite sure about one half-witted girl)-he has gained for the last six years. For six years, the missionary work at a dead lock-nay, the gains, of famine, now almost completely vanished ! Yet ho has the assurance to call upon the public, who imagines he has gained us all over, to endow a parcel of persons (not bigamists, of course, or seducers, ike the Reva. Harry Lloyd Bickerataffe or Read), to preach to empty benches, or, as of old, to find the goose hatching in the pulpit! Let him show value for money expended, and then ask no more. -- Nation.

REFORM DEMONSTRATION .- In accordance with a requisition numerously and influentially signed, and addressed to the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, a mosting of the citizens of Dublic, favorable to Parliamentary reform, extension of the suffrage, abolition of the freeman franchise, and vote by ballot, was held on Friday night in the Queen's Thestre, " to petition Parliament to establish the franchise of the city upon a sound an liberal basis." The attendance was most numerous and respectable; the building was densely crowded in every part, and a large number of those present consisted of the industrial and artisan classes, who evinced a warm interest in the proceedings. Dr. Peebles, Q. C., moved, and Dr. Gray seconded the following resolution :- "That no measure of Parliamentary reform can be considered satisfactory that does not largely extend the elective franchise to the industrial and artisan classes." This resolution having been carried, Alder-man Reynolds moved..." That the poor-rate valuation is not a just basis for the Parliamentary franchise, and that a rental, at the rate of not more than five pounds yearly, should be the foundation of the franchise." Mr. T. Parker, operative carpenter, se-occurs in a let conded the resolution, which was unanimously carried. Alderman Curren proposed the next resulation, as follows: "That so long as the pour rate shall continue to be the basis of the occupation fran-

PREPARATIONS IN GALWAY YOU THE NEW SUIPE .--for the last week men were busily employed in clearing the site for the sheds which the Atlantic Company are about to creat at the docks, for storing goods intended for shipment by the vessels of the line to America. This accommodation, was much required. Passengers' luggage, instead of being scattered around the place of embarkation, can be safely stowed in those sheds, and removed from thence on board the tender to be conveyed to the ship. Passengers also, while waiting to emark, will be pro-tected from the inclemency of the weather. This is that other works will follow, and that the permanency of the Packet Station is beyond all cavil .--Once our harbor bill receives the royal sanction, public works will follow one another in rapid succession -- Galway Mercury.

A CALOWNY REFUTED .- The following extraordinary statement is extracted from the Derry Standard, and, as the facts are fully borne out in the reports of the official investigation published in all the other local papers, it would be but a simple action justice that this strange version of what seemed to be an inexplicable piece of barbarism should obtain its shard of public attention ;-"When the report of the alleged destruction of sheep upon Mr. Adair's mountain of Gartan found its way to the public a short time ago, the Slandard was the first journal in Derry to demand a searching investigation, as we had good reason for distrusting both the fact reported and the carcless manner in which matters of a similar kind have been frequently disposed of .--On Thursday last the required investigation took place at Churchill, near Letterkenny, before Mr. John Stewart, J.P., of Gartan-house; Mr. John Chambers, J.P., of For-hall, Letterkenny; and My Theobald A. Dillon, It M., Donegal. James Murray, Mr. Adair's land steward, was examined, but all the account he could give was that in October last he had 492 sheep, and in January he could find only 375, and allowing 20 to have died from natural causes he concluded that the remainder had been maliciously destroyed, as there was a bad feeling in the country against Mr. Adzir. In his cross-examination this witness repeatedly contradicted kimself. and was proved by other witnesses bot. to have concealed the truth and to have shown no apricty to aid the police in searching for the missing sheep, while a considerable number of skins about which he had kept silence were found in his house. The police, it will be recollected, discovered among the mountains the bodies of between 60 and 70 of the missing animals, which had evidently perished from the inclemency of the weather; and Sub-Inspector Hemsworth repeatedly offered to produce testimony to the extraordinary fact that on a former occasion a man in Mr. Adair's employment had been seen hunting down sheep with dogs and burying them in a hole ! It is needless to go at length into the details of this case, which, during the proceedings, members of the bench did not scruple to characterize in strong language, adapted to their conviction of its merits. The following is a copy of the decision adopted by the magistrates, viz. :- "The Bench are unanimously of opinion that no sheep belonging to Mr. Adair were maliciously injured or done away with; and, through the able assistance of the subinspector and the constabulary under his command, we find that 63 sheep have been found dead from the inclemency of the weather, as there was no mark of injury on them.' This startling transaction will, we hope, have the effect of inducing future caution in regard to missing animals for whose mulicious destruction no rational motive can be assigned on the one side, while a very obvious temptation may exist

TENANTS' COMPENSATION .- The following passage occurs in a letter from Mr. Maguire, M.P., to the Cork Examiner :- "I take this opportunity of disabusing your correspondent, Mr. Edward O'Sullivan, of an impression which a certain phrase of minesham"-has evidently made upon his mind. I did of at any time say that a bill without a valuation clause would be a sham; but I did say, at a meeting of the League, in Dublin, that if I took charge of the League Bill with the declaration of my belief that Parliament would then consent to give a compensation clause a retrospective operation, I should be guilty of a fraud upon public credulity, and that I would not lend myself to a sham. At one timenow about six years since-a retrospective clause, with a limited operation, passed the Commons; but the bill was lost in the Lords, mainly through the opposition of Lord Chanricarde, and the more articl hostility of the Dukes of Newcaetle and Argyle. In fact, the clause-the 14th-was well damaged by Sir John Young in the Lower House, and given the coup de grace in the Upper. Then -- even then -- there existed a formidable section of a betrayed party ; but at the time I used the word to which Mr. O'Sullivan has alluded, the number of the "Independents" was small, and not capable of forcing on an unwilling assembly, an obnoxious, though a just, principle of compensation. The result of the subsequent divi sion, when the leaders on both sides - Lord Nass, then Irish Secretary, and Lord Palmerstan opergetically denounced retrospective compensation, and ensured against the second reading of the bill an overwhelming majority, fully vindicated my refusa; to pretend to a belief which I could not entertain. 1 would be glad to see many things in a Tenant Bill ; but I know enough of the past, its bitterness, its disappointments, and its disasters, to reject, or counsel less, and hopeless, we do not see why every bigotted the rejection, of a measure which contained in it real landlord of Ireland should not try an experiment 30 good, and gave to our people even an instalment of substantial justice." THE DUTIES OF THE VICKEOVALTY .- The inaugura: banquet of the new Lord Mayor (Alderman Carroll) was honored last night, as usual, by the presence of the Lord-Lieutenant. On his Excellency's Lealth being proposed he responded rather briefly, the greater portion of his address having reference to a recent speech delivered in another place by Mr. Bornai Oshorne, in which the hon, gentleman made some allosions to the Irish Viceroyalty. Lord Carlisle observed :- "With respect to myself, I find that an old and very agreeable friend of mine has recently complained that I invest the office which it is; my high honor to hold with not a sufficient degree of solemnity and gravity. (Laughter.) I confess that this is not the precise charge which I would most readily have expected from that quarter (hear, hear), and to the real force of such a charge I feel thisthat time has been within the fresh memories of most of us, in days of national gloom and disasters, when the shrill wall of famine or the low mean of fever rose is almost every street, and thrilled through every hovel- when nowholesome produce rolled on the untended field, and the graves scarcely sufficed for the neglected dead. I know that predectsors of mine were content to give long hours by day and by night to the toil of devising remedies for enormous erila and for lightening the sufferings of a stricken population. (Hear, hear.) But now, when, to speak comparatively at least, and admitting fully that there are still causes of great individual suffering and privation, nay, moreover, that in certain districts, limited, I am Justified in saying, the occurrence of Tax Poss's fainors .- The Times' Correspondent succeingly complains that Dr. Oullen's scheme for repleaishing the l'opo's exchequer, has been a triumphant success in the diocess of Dublin. Banknotes and gold were as plenty yesterday in the almost countiess chapels of the metropolis as copper and small silver on any ordinary Sunday of the year. As yet the returns are but from nine parishes, and these are imperfect, but they are sufficiently clear to show that a gross sum of nearly £11,000 has testilied the devotion of the faithful of Dublin to the head of their Church in the hour of his necessity. The sum realized in the Cathedral parish alone amounted to £2,322, and the lists have not yet been closed. When they are completed it will probably appear that Dr. Callen's mist sungaine, expectations have been exceeded, and that before the close of a formight some £13,000 or £14,000, lately the property of the people of Dublin, will be on its way to Rome.

STRPATHT WITH THE POPE .- The subjoined letter, from Cardinal Barnardo, has been received by the Lord Archbishop of Cashel and Emly, the Most Rev. Dr. Leahy, in reply to an address forwarded by his Grace to Rome, on the occasion of the county Tipperary Ustholic meeting, which was held some time since in Thurles :---

" MOST ILLUSTRIGUS AND MOST REVERSED LORD -- in reply to an epistic from your Grace, given on the 14th day of January last, enclosing a letter for our Noat Holy Lord the Pope, to be presented in your name to the same Most Holy Father, I have to say that I did myself most willingly perform this duty in a recent audience of his Holiness. It moreover becomes my agreeable duty to assure you of the specist consulation which the supreme Pontiff experienced from the illustrious proof of love and devotion, wwards himself and the Holy See, given by your Grace, as well as by the clergy and people commit-ted to you. Wherefore his Holiness, in token of the paternal love in which he holds you, imparts his benediction, to be applied to yourself and the whole flock of your diocess. And I pray God that He may long preserve you safe and wellaring

THE CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY .- A collection for the Oatholic University was simultaneously made last Sunday in all the purishes of the archdiocess of Cashel and Emly, which was emineatly successful. On Monday evening, professor Robertson delivered a most instructive and elequent lecture last evening at the Catholic University in the presence of a crowded sudience of ladies and gentlemen, and students .---The subject selected by the learned lecturer was one which excited much interest, particularly as it served as an admirable continuation of a subject on which Professor Robertson showed on a former occasion his intimate knowledge with the past history and social condition of Spain, when dealing with the periods of the reigns of Ferdinand and Issahella, and the two succeeding Philips. The subject of this present lecture was "the History of Spain" from the peace of Utrecht" to the termination of "the war of Independence.", During the course of the lecture, Professor Robertson was frequently applanded, and on resuming his seat the approbation, was loud and general .- Dr. Bilis moved, in suitable terms, a vote of thanks to the lecturer, which was seconded by Dr. M'Swiney, amidst loud cheers. Pro-festor Robertson returned thanks, and, the proceedings terminated.

The sum of £60, was collected at the Cathedral, Thurles, on Sunday, in ald of the Catholic Unirersity.

the Attorney-Generalship has given general satisfaction; and as a signal proof of the estimation in which the learned gentleman is held, even by Protestants, we may mention that at the commemora-tion held on Tuesday in the University of Dublin, the honorary degree of L.L.D. was conferred upon lian,

The appointment of Mr. Serjeant O'Hagan to the Solicitor-Generalship was generally expected owing to the position he held at the Bar and in society, and has given universal satisfaction. The Freeman, remarking upon his nomination, says-His position at the bar, where he is universally respected, his popularity with the country, and the sterling virtues which have enabled him to ascend to the bighest position, whether as a lawyer or a citizen, without the slightest sacrifice of that independence which he has maintained and cherished throughout his honorable career, qualify him for still higher distinctions than even that to which, so fortunately for the country, Mr. O'Hagan has succeeded. We believe there are, now or ever have been, few men more popular than the Solicitor General, and that his fature career will not detract from the regard in which he has been held by all classes, we may assume from the universai approbation which has hailed the appointment -There is, perhaps, no stronger test of the value of personal character than the esteem of that portion of the community in which it has been formed, and and which has watched its progress. Applying this test we find public opinion in the north unanimous in its appreciation of Mr. O'Hagan and approval of his elevation. At the same time we should not be insensible to the part of the Government in selecting Mr. O'Hagan at such a crisis. They deserve credit for the firmness they have displayed, and, we rather think, that to the Earl of. Carlisle more especially is' owing this popular election. The important Irish measures, which it is understood will soon be introduced into Parliament, will require the presence of the Solicitor-General in the House of Commons, but whether that event is to take place in the present or the next session, we are convinced Mr. O'Hagan's appearance in the House will not detract from the reputation be has acquired at the bar, while the rights of the Irish people will and in him an able, udicious, and consistent advocate. Oar contemporary the Nation is not surprised at his selection, but. ubserves, of Mr. O'Hagan's appointment, many will hear with more regret, under the circumstances, while few Irish Catholics will readily permit themselves to blame one so long endeared to them by his worth, his integrity, his genius. For the Bench he had long been marked out by the invitation course of circumstances and by the unanimous accord of the nation. That position he could not fail to reach by the mere force of a moral and intellectual excellence that had already raised him to a rank in the estimation of his countrymen beyond the patronage of a minister to bestow. He had no necessity to dash the natural satisfaction of his countrymen at his first step towards the eminence they had always

> A CARISTIAN BISHOP AND HIS TENANTRY .-- LONG Plunket bears the title of a Christian Bishop. He cluims to exercise powers apostolic -- in fact, to have inherited the mission of St. Paul. Well let us see. Were St. Paul a landlord, would be banish and drive to misery sixty families, who paid their rents and taxes regularly, though they would not deny the tonchings of their faith? This is the test. It is blasphemy almost to institute the hypothesis, yet here have we a Christian bishop ready to apply the crowbar to nearly sixty dwellings, to whose inmates his lordship can have no other objection than that, they prefer their religion to his. Now we hope the country will look to this at once. It has been too long silent. Other matters indeed have engrossed attention; but when such acts as these occur at our very doors, it would be a crime in us to fold our arms and be still. These gjectments, fully sixty in number, are to be tried on the 9th inst. in the town of Castlebar, County Mayo. On the issue depends a great deal-not merely the happiness and the very lives of the poor faithful tenants who are to be made the immediate victims, but the example of success attending such a cruel proceeding. If Lord Plun-ket be allowed to banish his tenantry with impunity, though they owe neither tent nor taxes, and if every tenant, who resists the attempt that may be made to proselytise his offspring is to become houseless, homeworthy of the enlightenment of the Ninetcenth Century, thus carrying out the counsel of the Times, that they should be the Evangelisers of the Irish. Were public spirit in its normal state, such acts could not be even attempted. In no other country could they be oven dreamed of. But with us any individual whom chance of fortune raises from poverly and obscurity can in broad day light heartlessly trample upon the most cherished rights of our Cetholic people. We therefore beg most earnestly to recommend these truly hard cases to the country, to the press in the first instance, and then to the people. l'ather Lavelle caunot, unaided, carry out such an unequal struggle. We well remember how uobly the country ran to the aid of Juha Byrne, of Enniskeen, whose case was of a similar nature. Here, however, are sixty Byrnes, and the Colnael Lewis of Partry claims to be a Right Reverend Father in God. We at least do our duty in again calling attention to the subject, treating, entreating, and hoping that our call will not bo in vain .-- Dublin Telegruph.

FORERAL OF THE OLDEST INHADITANT OF AUMAGH. The funeral of the late Mr. William Murray, " the oldest inhabitant," took place on Wednesday, and was large and very respectable. His remains were interred by the side of his wife, who has been dend some forty yours. Mr. Murray was fully 113 or 114 years of ag, and some of his friends say more. THE TRUE WITNESS AND CATHOLIC CHRONICLE. MARCH 23, 1860

Iv: now that; under the blessings of Almighty Goodness, the sore pressure and the dark blot of the old evils have been lightened or removed, now that the earth renews her hervest and the plongh draws fat-ness from the soil, now that the rewards of industry are daily increasing, that our workhouses are all but emptied, and our gaols greatly thinned of their in-habitants (hear, hear)-now I feel that, as we are told by your own poet, Erin has a smile as well as a tear in her eye (cheers), I know that I am not lowering my position (cheers), but acting up to all its requirements, by the fullest sympathy with every pulse of your gladness as well as of your sorrow. (Hear, hear.) And, be the subject matter which calls forth your successful energies what it may-be it the improvement of your agriculture, the extension of your trade, now about, I hope, to receive a greatly acce-lerated impulse (hear, hear), the spread of your education, the spell of your music, the progress of your architecture, the fame of your literature, or the feats of your heroes-endowing all with your will and nature, I bask myself in the brightness to which I know that I myself can contribute. The only overt crime I find alleged against me is that I opened baths and washhouses. (Laughter.) Well, I confess I am ready to do so any number of times again. (Hear, hear.) I hope it will not be thought a mortal ain that I am engaged in putting up a drinking-fountain; nay, moreover, I shall hail with the utmost pleasure the time-though, of course, I do not breathe a syllable about the most proper means of accomplishing it-for bringing into all the streets, and households, and rooms of Dublin a capacious supply of pure and wholesome water (hear, hear); and, if I should not be thought to be diving too low, I have no scruple in wishing the utmost possible prosperity to the penny banks of the city. (Loud cheers.) But to rise to subjects more imposing, or picturesque, at least. There embarked, within the last week, from the quays of this city a cavalry regiment, entirely raised and equipped in Ireland, the 5th Royal Irish Lancers, which, I am informed by competent authority, will be able to pass muster with the prondest and oldest cavalry regiment in the British service. (Cheers.) With respect to individual Irish enterprise, have we not recently welcomed the return from his voluntary service of enterprise and daring of the valiant young M'Clintock? (Cheers.) And no later than to-morrow will the vonerable University of Ireland, hard by, assign her proudest honors to the illustrious Sir John Lawrence. (Oheers.)"

LOUGH CORRIB TRAFFIC .- We are gratified to learn the traffic upon Lough Corrib is rapidly increasing. On Tuesday, the lake steamer Father Daly brought down a full and very valuable cargo, consisting of name Pope Pius, and the shadow of extinction is on fourteen head of fat cattle, twenty-five fat sheep, L'Ami de la Religion. He has warned the Correspond-fifty-five large pigs, for the Dublin market. All ent, and done his utmost to paralyze the exertions of were, on arrival, transmitted to the city per railway. Mr. James Burke, of Cong, had also a large quantity of very superior oats on board, and in the stores at Oong a quantity of merchandise remains, which the Father Daly could not ship upon this trip. It is gratifying to find that at this season the average traffic has been kept up .- Galway Vindicator.

LANDED ESTATES COURT .- A Parliamentary return just issued states that 416 petitions in all have been presented for sale in the Landed Estates Court, Ireland, from the date of its institution to the present time. Thirty-four petitions (including one comprising a rental of about £10,000 a year, which has been dismissed by order of the court) have been presented for the sale of property above the value of £10,000, the approximate capital value being £1,177,950 .---Three hundred and eighty-two petitions were for the sale of property not exceeding the value of £10,000, the approximate capital value being £894,316. The aumher of petitions for confirmation of the title was яiх.

A case of an extraordinary nature lilikely soon to occupy the attention of our law courts. A lady (the wife of an ex-M.P.), who brought an immense for-tune to her husband, has left her home, owing, it is said, to family disputes; she is at present, with her suite, staying at a fashionable hotel in Dablin. case is considered a great godsend in the hall of the Four Courts, as the leading men of the bar are all retained. The greatest efforts have been ineffectually made by friends to hush the matter up. We understand that an eminent Dublin firm are engaged for the gentleman, and that a solicitor connected with this city conducts the case for the " ladye faire " -Kilkenny Moderator.

" England does not produce cags enough-Ircland has her own use for hers." These words we copy a more righteous cause than in that which has evokfrom a recent number of the Times. They couvey a ed such a demonstration of derotion to the Holy See, cruel and brutal sneer, and we have read them with equal pain and shame. Is there never to be an end in the columns of the journal which professes to be the Diocese of Dublin alone. In England, there is a (and is, unfortunately, accepted by Europe as) the strongly expressed desire to follow such a glorious (and is, unfortunately, accepted by Europe as) the apecial organ of English opinion -- an end, we say, of these gross and ribald jests at the sufferings of our Irish brethren -the sufferings of that intelligent nation whose very miseries (produced, alas! by our British rule) have made it all the more morbidly sensitive of insult? The occasion of our contemporary's joke was a harmless one enough. The writer of the article from which we have copied this sentence was complimenting Mr. Gladstone on his proposed legislation as regards newspapers ; he went on to advocate (as we understand him) an arrangement with France for the abolition of restrictions on export and import of linen and cotton rags; and he could not suffer even the occasion offered by to indifferent a subject of insulting a sensitive (be cause so long-suffering) people to pass without renting his bile upon them. All this is very bad, very wicked, and very mischievous ; for even unjust legislation itself does not tend more to exasperate a people like the Irish than does this galling sore which the literary gad-flies of the Times love to keep ever stung and bleeding. We are not at all astonished to find foolish bratalities of this kind angrily and passionately resented by our Irish contemporaries .-It is not a class or a party morely that is insulted by these stupid and unchristian jests ; it is a whole ontion; and even the most un-Irish of the Irish newspapers respond to the insult with augry retort. Accordingly, it does not surprise us in the least that even the Dublin Evening Mail, the organ of the ertreme Tory and Protestant party in Ireland, replies to the silly and unmanly sneer of the Times in the following torms : -- " Now this is, as we said, ill-natured, especially when it is recollected that the rags which poor Ireland must wear out, as here insinuated, to gossamer, are imported for the most part from Manchester; and the linen rags which we could once supply in abundance-the very bost of all materials for paper-were taken from us by a partial and iniquitous British legislature. It ill becomes the pampered minions of English exclusiveness to sneer at the raggedness of a people who, if justly treated, ought to be as wealthy and well-clad as their more favored asighbors. It is neither decent nor wise to cause these sarcasms, especially when it is notorious that the same injustice which keeps Ireland in rags, taxes those rags to the very uttermost farthing which it is possible to extract from them." Who can quarrel with the Irish press for langunge like the foregoing, when insults so foolish and mischievous are flung at our Irish fellow-subjects. Heaven knows, if rags are abundant in Ireland, and if the unfortunate Irish pensantry and artizens have "their own uses for them," the fault is with our legislators who have not given that illtreated nation a fair scope for the development of its fine resources. If, as our Roman correspondent said the other day, we, by the legislation which afflicts ber with a detestable Ohurch Establishment and most oppressive land laws, have "fastened the slave's collar round her neck," it ill becomes us to jest at the ragged misery we have helped to create. And, therefore, as Englishmen, unxious for the reconciliation of the two countries and the softening of the sufferings of the Irish people, do we most sternly protest against these unmanly and bratal to Pins, the temporal Sovereign-that to defoud the snears in which the writers in the Times so often criminally indulge at the expense of a people whose past wrongs, and present injustices, give them a title to be more than ordinarily sensitive of insult. -Weekly Register.

THE TOURNAMEADY NURDER -- A iman of the name of Smyth, a "Convert" in Lord Plunket's employment, has been arrested for this murder, on information sworn before the magistrates of Ballinasloe. but has been discharged owing to innsufficient evidence.

ADDRESS TO THE YOUNG MEN'S SOCIETY, LAMERICE BY THE FOUNDER, THE VERY REV. DR. O'BRIEN .---I am sorry to be obliged to allude to the occasion of this disastrous injustice-I will not say the cause : I mean Napoleon III. I had admired him long and defended him ardently. As a writer, I had gone out of my way to illustrate the beauty of his policy, and as a speaker, I have more than once publicly proclaimed my confidence in his integrity. Nay, when my dearest friends saw in him the masked enemy of Rome, I saw only the embarassed friend of France that waited his opportunity. I believe I have been the last priest in Ireland, among those who hoved in him, to surrender the Emperor of the French ; and I wish to do so publicly. I called on my country to give him time; I now declare that the Uatholic conscience of Ireland can no longer tolerate him. He has earned our repudiation, and our prayer that God may convert him from a course which leads to his doom, through the tears and miseries of multitudes; and that the Holy Father may be defended from a friendship that seems to threaten Rome with more evil than befel her from the Vandal or the Goth (cheers). The Times newspaper, a few weeks ago waxed pleasant upon the change in popular sentimont in Ireland. This singular organ taught the English people that we cheered the Emperer because he was to be the "liberator of Ireland :" it could not understand why we cured for him as the promised protector of Rome. His character has changed, or his policy is too selfish; and the road which it tra-vels is too filled with woos to humanity before it comes to recognize justice and right. Therefore it was that Ireland changed in his regard, and is not likely again to trust him (loud cries of hear and applause). Even still I am quite convinced that Rome 18 not the enemy at which Napoleon aims. Let us not discuss his objects. He was the occasion of the Pope's embarrassment-and he now lays down principles to perpetuate the svils which he, of course foresaw. He has suppressed every effort to direct the public mind in France according to the principles of right and justice ; and he has given unlimited license to those who assail the Holy See. He has struck the Univers-even while pronouncing the the prelacy themselves. He is destroying the public conscience of his country, and awakening a spirit which thinkers say he will never be able to restrain. The strength of revolution stayed his progress, and mastered bis myriads at Solferino - and the revolution may do the same think again. He may possess Savoy and Nice as a preparaonly wish to tion for pushing forward to the Rhine. He may on-ly seek treaties of commerce which will obtain him coal and iron easily, while he becomes perfect in every department of defence and assault (hear hear). He may be only amuaing or cajoling English states men, while they imagine he will allow them to make a kingdom in Italy too strong for himself. He may be looking forward to Eastern complications or solving some of them in his own favor while Lord John Russel's oyes are fixed on the Pope. He may, when he has the work which the Church's suffering, are intended to subserve accomplished, then give his respect, and restore the chief of the church ; but God never permit him to drag Pope Pius through that Gethsemane of woo. When he imagines he has triumphed he is near his fall. It will be Barbarossa -Phillip, Napoleon the First reproduced to test the immortality of the Holy Sec. When the feelings which I express shall have seized two hundred and fifty millions-when Catholics proclaim him a persecutor and Protestants will not trust him-when those who now favour him shall find they may contemp him, he will practically remember the advice in the "Secret Memoirs," alluded to by the Holy Father, the advice of the founder of his dynasty-" Let my descendants beware of how they touch the Cutholic Church." Dr. O'Brien resumed his seat amid loud and long-continued cheering.

The noble generosity of the Irish people, remarkaexpressed unmistakenbly by the collection of no less than Fifteen Thousand Pounds on Sunday last, ia example. We should mention that an address from the Diocese of Liverpuol, bearing the signatures of 52,360 Catholics of that diocese, has been forwarded to the Holy Fallier. We hope soon to record the commencement of a vigorous movement for raising an English tribute to His Holiness, which shall be worthy of the Catholics of this country .-- Weekly Register. Pope's temporal Sovereignty, is to interfere with what belongs not to the Church, but is for himself and diplomacy exclusively to handle .- I remain, dear sir, your faithful servant, "W. B. ULLATHORNE."

MIL. POOLE AND THE CONFESSIONAL AT ST. BARNA-DAS. - After some considerable silence, we beer again of this case. The Union is "pleased to find that notwithstanding the discouragements and impediments which they have met with from the bankruptcy of his solicitor, and allies, have succeeded in bringing his appeal before the Privy Council." The preliminary question, as to the right of appeal, under the 1st and 2d Vict, c. 106, will, we are told, by first brought to a hearing. Should that be decided in the affirmative, the main question may come on in June.

THE LIBRULL CATHOLIC .- In very few of them, indeed, is the backbune of the moral character as yot perfectly straight. The same names recur, generation after generation, in the same attitude, on the Pope's Temporal Power, on the Ecclesisstical Titles Bill, on the Veto, as Government Spies on the Bishops, or on O'Connell or ou Reogh, as Seceders from the Committee when its vigor in their mean eyes resembled violence; and, if one could only go back a generation or two before, as occasional apostates, going to the Protestant Church once or twice a year, to keep some small morsels of estate tacked to their titles. The present generation has seen Mr. Montesquieu Bellew, a Lord of the Treasury, 'alinking from the Lobby, and turning his back on his Ohurch and on his country ; nay, may see him today boasting publicly among his colleagues that he is not bound by any absurd pledge to the cause of the Pope ; while his brother is the chosen organ of the Whigs, who have requested Lord Palmerston to interfere in the affairs of His Holiness. The last generation saw Mr. William Bellew a salaried spy on the Catholic Bishops and the Catholic Committee .--But the great ancestor of this now noble family was that John Bellew of Bermeath, Esquire, to whom, in the year 1690, was granted by William and Mary Pardon of the Outlawry, which had been pronounc ed against him at his own request, in order that he might more effectually serve their Majesties in encmies' quarters." Surely this is the very model and ideal of the genealogy of a Oatholic Whig. But the most bideous hypocrisy in the world is the air of sanctity with which this part, generation after generation, is played. No doubt, when Jonathan Swift moralised over that noble unfortunate Earl, who carried coals at a penny a bag on the quays of Dublin for his honest livelihood, there were many miserable Cawibolics, who persnaded themselves that they were serving the Oburch in the most effectual manner, by speaking, acting, and living, so that not the keepest Commission of Discovery could ascertain whether they were recusants or not. When a Catholic Minister continued to hold his office under the Durham Letter, he pleaded, not that he loved his salary, and wasn't particular, but that he did it by the advice as a Bishop and for the good of the Church. To-morrow, no doubt, if a Catholic Whig were offered a special mission to assist the Marchese Pepoli in the partition of the Legations, he would not merely take it, but expect to be considered a better Catholic for taking it. - Tablet.

THE COMMERCIAL THEATY .-- Talk as we may, there are few of us yet who have got over our uneasiness about this curious commercial treaty. In the weaker days of the greater Roman empire, when dissolute rulers grasped the helm of the State with feeble hand, and Rome's conquering legions, utterly disorganised, were no longer accustomed to conquer, it was the custom to buy off the hustility of the Northern invaders with large sums of money. Is it not a startling fact, suggestive of public distrust and uncasiness, that so many people believe that we (or our rulers) have consented to this commercial treaty as a bribe to buy off the hostility of France ? For our relations with our great Continental neighbors present some extraordinary features. It is stated again and again that France is the only nation in the world whose enmity we have any cause to fear; and certainly the only power from whom we may, in any contingency, dread an attempt at invasion. At the same time it is announced that with France we are on the closest terms of alliance and intimacy. -On that alliance and intimacy, our statesmen must assuredly place the highest value; for to secure it, they give France their cost and iron duty-free to complete as rapidly as possible all her military and naval works, offensive and defensive, and fill all her ble as it has ever been, has never been displayed in arsenals with all the munitions of war, whilst they get in return only some cheap wines which people won't drink, and a prohibitive duty on the manufacthree of Great Britain. Yet look anis gram startling fact; whilst we learnt of this wretched French alliance, we enormously increase our wasteful public expenditure, and apend Thirty Millions sticling to defand our shores from the apprehended hostile invasion of the friendly Ganl. So marvellous an anomaly as this the world has never seen before - Weekly Register. MAMMON .--- We throw up our caps and shout for the general prospecity, and read our own City Articles, and swell with pride and glory that "wo" are so rich; but we should be puzzled, if we had not this paper before us, to know where this swarm of golden sovereigns are hived. These columns, however, tell the tale. There are two classes of citizens in this country who have taken tremendons slices out of the great sum total from which the others have only drawn modest thates. The ironmusters have got no less than thirteen millions of this foreign trade, but the cotton-spinners have, after clothing all the many millions of these islands, succeeded in pocketting from the foreign trade all the profits upon no less a sum than £48,208,4411 Here is a pleasant aum to revel and roll in and to take toll from ? We have found then the hive to which all those golden bees have flown. There, far away in the north -there, in those flats over which in ancient days old Ocean rose and fell, sometimes carrying his foray up to the foot of the Cheshire peaks. prostrating the primæral forest and creating by the waste he made those coal beds which are now more precious than gold-there, where the till chimneys would dwarf the old sylvan giants, where the sound of the piston stroke never couses, and where the frequent square factories g cam from their many windows all night long and give appearances of a ge-neral illumiuntion there it is that all this gold has gone. It is gathered by an industrious race with sharp instincts for their special mission, which is to make calico and to amass gold; frugal in their habits, and not too delicate in their tastes ; canable of great efforts of ostentatious munificence, but well remembering that habitual thrift is the great secret of growing rich. Here is concentrated all this abunding wealth Here men reckon each other by what they save, and not by what they silend ; by what they have, and not by what they have given away. Here is a community powerful by their riches and powerful by their intensity of purpose. Their interacts are always proposaled as the great interests of the nation, and well paid and well patronized apostles go forth from them fiercely compelling all men to cry with theat, " There is but one commercial faith, and Manchester is its prophet."-Iondon Times. THE ANXEXATION OF SAVOY .- The Times says the House of Commons has been roused from a hangour, which neither a Commercial nor Parliamentary Reform can wholly dispel, by a passage of arms on the annexation of Savay. Both Lord J, Russell and Lord Pulmerston were called on last night to say something on the state of Italian officies, and the former spoke as a man who suffered from a severmental struggle between what was don to his own convictions and respect for a great ally. He could only protest against the language of his Birming. ham friend and the acts of our French arty. By the time the deed is consummated, the II use will probably go more deeply into the question, whother, cr not, it should have been done.

The Daily News in an article on the correspondence about Savoy, suys despatches published supply abundant food for thought; and we can only ope that, reflecting on the impression they cannot fail to make in Europe, the Emperor will give one proof of his sagacity, and renounce a project which, whatever its immediate result, must exercise a prejudicial influence over the remainder of his reign. The Chronicle thinks Lord John Russell put the matter of Savoy in its true light.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS .- The Board of Trade have just issued a roturn of the number of railway accideuts and of persons killed or injured thereby during the half-year ended the 31st December, 1859. The returns, which comprise all accidents in the United Kingdom, state that, the total number of accidents was 36, the total number of killed, 9 and of injured 236. Out of these 36 accidents three were from collisions between passengr trains; 13 from collisions between passenger trains and other trains or engines two from passenger trains running off their proper line through points being wrong; seven from pas-senger trains getting of the rails; one from the bursting of the boiler of an engine of a passenger train; two from the breaking of the axles or wheels or machinery of engines breaking or getting out of order; two from trains running into stations at too great speed; three from collisions between goods trains; and two from from the bursting of the boilers of engines of goods-trains. Out of the nine persons killed by these accidents, five were servants of the company. The total number, however, who have met their deaths on railroads during the last half-year, including the above 9, is 117, which number are thus distributed :- 16 passengers by their own want of caution, 52 servants of companies or of contractors from their own misconduct or want of caution, 13 killed while crossing at level crossings, and 24 trespassers, of whom three were cases of suicide. It must be borne in mind that these accidents are spread over an area of 10,001 miles of railway-viz., 7,309 miles in England and Wales, 1,265 miles in Scotland, and 1,427 miles in Ireland. The number of persons killed for the corresponding period of 1858. over 9,534 miles of rail was 133, showing a decrease in the half-year just passed of 16 over an increased space of 457 miles.

LOUIS NAPOLBON'S PERSECUTION OF THE PARACH CLERGY .- Louis Napoleon is not disposed to do things by balves-albeit his Italian campaign, tho' crowned with a series of brilliant victories, did not, to use a somewhat vnlgar saying, "go the whole hog." But when he has noble quarry, such as the Head of the Church, his Prelates and Friests, he is a very Skylock, and exacts his pound of flesh most Hebraically. Whilst his Excellency M. Thouvenal is transmitting verbose and insidious mussives to the Bternal Oity, M. Rouland, s'amuse, entertains him-self and the worst enemies of Catholicity with caustic philippics against the French occlesinatics in general. Musty manuscripts, obsolute ordinances, and rescripts of the revolutionary era in France are raked and rooted up, to make out a bill of pains and penalties and against the Clergy, and to fulminate nertissement against them, similar to those which have strangled, sufficiated, or utterly silenced the voice of truth and warsing in the pulpit, the Papel enclytic, and the episcopal addresses. Their Excetlencies the Minister of the Interior and the Minister of Public Worship, are Lords Paramount, and can do what they choose with the nation's likerties, civil and religious. Rloquence may still exist in gallant France, but it must be the eloquence of silence; the oor populi and the vor Dri must be measured by the Imperial standard, and should either fall short, or exceed that arhitrarily prescribed extent, it must be hushed for ever. This is all very well as king as it lasts. There is nothing now in the attempt to enforce such a state of things, but if increas crown the attempt there will be something new in it. We are beginning to lose faith in the maxim that experience of the past is the best guide for the fature. The nephew of the first Napoleon has that experience set more clearly before him than any other culor, yet he turns his eyes away from it, deepines the lessons which it teaches him, and re-enacts the terr part, commits the very arrors, and - we price to say it-is proceeding fast to the perpetration of the very crimes that hurled the founder of his dynasty from a throne to a prison-from a glorious Emnire to a barren rock, separated from the reat of the world by vast oceanus. Quem Deus perdere suit, deprius mentil .- Dublin Telegraph. ACCIDENTAL DEATE OF AN OLD OAEPAIGNER. Few persons who have been in the habit of artending the guard mounting on St. Jamu's or of assisting at the reviews in Hyde Parke, oin have failed to remark the dog "Bab" belonging to the Scots Pasilier Guards, whose portly form and decorated breast have already (tince his return from the Grimes) attracted considerable attention. This distinguished character, after serving all the langers and viciasitudes of the Ocimean campaiga, mot with an untimly end on Thursday last, while marchind at the head of the regiment, when he was ran over by a cart and killed on the spot. A drammer was sent back with his hody to the Buckingham Palace guard (near which the accident occurred), and many were the expressions of regret on the part of both officers and men, as " Pour old B ib" was carried mat the mattation. He was looked upon as a comrade by all, and in the minds of many he was associated with the most stirring scenes of the Russian war. A short resume of his career and services may possibly not prove mainteresting. Like many others who have earned a name in the glorious agants of the British army, Bob was of hamble origin, kis papoyhood having been passed under the roof of a butcher in the neighborhood of Windsor. He, however, early give taken of a decided penchant for a soldior's life, and in the spring of 1853, when the Scots Fusilier Goards were quartered at Windsor, he was frequently caught in the barreks and taken home by his master. Bob had, however, made up his mind to " follow the dram and when the Fasileers marched to Cobham, he accompanied them, a recognized member of the regiment. Here he first gave promiso of that excellence which afterwards distinguished him as an "old campaigner." Always frat on the field or on parade, not a veteran in the army had a vetter notion of taking care of number one when the duties of the day were over. No Zouave was his equal at individual catering. On the embarkation of the army for the Rust, Rub was the first on board the Simoon troopship Here his brilliant career was nearly put an end to. Whose dog is that ?" asked the first lieutenant, and no particular owner coming forward to claim him, the order was given to throw him overhoard; but before this order could be carried into effect, it was explained that he belonged to averybody, when he was kindly allowed to remain, and become as great s pet on board ship as he had been on shore. Its disembarked with the Pusiliars in the Grimon, and was present at the Alma, Balaklava and Inkerman, and curely missed going into the trenches. He would rnu after the round shot and shells; as they felt, and his escapess were extraordinary. At the conclusion of the war, " Bob" returned to England with his regi-ment, and was present with the decores, when the Queen, first welcomed them on their return to Alder hout. He marched into London with the Brigade in 1856, and has side that time merely followed t o romine of home service, mounting guard with the factuling and though essentially the sold ers' dog. en descending occasionally to accompany the Captain of the Queen's Guard in his rounds.

Look at the people as they crawl lazily in and out of the gin shops, or stand at the doors and cellars of the houses in which they vegetate. The rage, half disclosing what we dread to think is human flesh; the dirt, clothing what otherwise would be unclothed; the emaciation and evident physical misery-terrible as all this may be, it carries little warning with it compared with that glaring out from the faces of this dreadful mass of humanity .--Those faces are absolutely awful. They are agin beyond all known forms of living ugliness. They are ferocious, sensual, daring, yet cutning; not a ray of mental light shines in their features. Hat that the women are more bedious than the men, it would be difficult to distinguish, for in the sexes even in dress (if rotton rags deserve such a term) the difference is slight. As we look at them and shrink, instinctively away, it is impressible to help wondering how any creature of their own kind, however degraded, however miserable, could by any means sufficiently accustom themselves to the sight of each other as to exist and herd together as they do

A CHANGE .- Sir Andrew Agnew (the son of the once famous "Sir Andrew Agony," as he was termed) has given notice that he will, on the motion for going into committee on the Roman Catholic Charities Bill, move, that this house will, upon this day six months, resolve itself into the said committee.

Public attention has been ostentationsly drawn to a movement (inaugurated by several well known Dissenting ministers, and some few aunouthizers be longing to the Establishment) in which a prominent feature is the singular spectacle of midnight meetings in a locality of questionable character. The ashiect is one which we cannot discuss in these columns. It is sufficient for up to state that coreveryday experience proves that the Catholic Church slone has received a Divine mission to rescue the fallen, and that without the consolutions which the Catholic religion has over ready for the repeating sinner, all the persuasive elequence of the most honeved platform crators will be apavailing, even although it be accompanied, as in the present case, by the acductive influence of "tes and tosst," or, as in the case of many of the temperions of our own noorer breibren, of soup and blankets. GREAT BRITAIN.

THE CHURCH AND THE EMPERON .-- We (Weekly Register) have been honored by receiving the following important letter from the Lord Bishop of Birmiagham :—

" Birmingham, Feb. 22, 1860. " Dear Sir-I have just the circular of the Minister of Jublic Instruction, addressed to the Prelates of France. This is the fifth document which the Emperor of France has launched through his minicters, against the Church, in the space of a few days. It may be as well at once to note the extreme subtlety of method with which that autocrat is striving to silence the faithful voice of the Church, and to justify his conduct in the same breath, that subtlety strives in vain to conceal the violence which it endeavors to smooth over.

"First, the Emperor silences the Ontholic press by the strong hand, so that neither Pope. Bishop, Priest, or Layman can be heard through that channel. Next, he commands his prefects to stop the circulation of pamphlets, and to silence the pulpit, 'moderately, but firmly." Now, through the Hinister of Public Instruction, he exharts the Bishops to be silent, and to silence all beneath their jurisdiction. Meanwhile the Emperor proceeds in his controversy with the Pope, through the very docamenta which impose this silence on all sides through his Foreign Minister, through his organs in the press, and through the licence given to the infidel pipers. "The document I have just read resumes whatever has been put forward, most bostile to the liberties of the Church, and most insulting to the Pope and the religious sense of Catholics. "As to the Sovereign Pontifi himself, the Emperor has, to suit his convenience, divided unto him . two distinct persons; one of these persons is Pres. the Italian King, the other, Pius, the Pontiff In the pamphlet 'The Pope and the Congress,' the Emperer was not so clear sighted. Ther he maintained that the temporal power of the Pope is, in the eyes of r - i essential for the exercise of his spicitual ligion, power; but since then, the E up for his made progress -he says, that the Church has nothing to say

LORD SKOUGITAN AND MY. GLADBTONE - A VETT significant compliment to Mr. Gladetone's oratory, and a very striking incident in i self, appears not to have been marked by our London contemporaries, We mean the presence of Lord Brougham within the walls of the House of Commons for the 5rst time during very nearly thirty years-that is, since he left at is 1830 to become Lord Chancellor. It is pretty well known that Lord Brougham left the House of Commons to preside over the House of Lords, with the utmost pain and refuctance - that his own most earnest desire was not to accept any affice which necessitated the abdication of his position as member for Yorkshire, and that he took a nosition nominally and titularly higher only at the most urgent entroaty and virtual command of his party. Since his removal he has never onco been known to enterfas auditor within those walls which had so often relied with his eloquence. On Friday night, for the first time, he overcame this remarkable reluctance; and then, too, for the first time, it is understood, he heard the man who now accupies the position he himself so long held, unrivalled and nndisputed - the greatest orator in the British Honse of Commons -- Lord Brougham was seen to listen intently during the whole four hours during which Mr. Undstone spoke; and is known to have expressed the highest admiration of the speech, so a masterpiece of clear and skilful statement and persuasive chetoric. -- Scolamen.

The actual mitre of Thomas A'Beckett is in the possession of Oardinal Wiseman, and is to be soon in perfect preservation at this house in York-place. It is low and angular, and composed of white silk, embroidered with gold flowers and scroll-work, with a bread band of red silk down the centro and round the margin. It is remarkable that the ties or lappets are worked in different patterns. The mitre had been preserved amongst other relies in this catheiral of Bing, and was presented by the archbi-abop of that see to Oardinal Wiseman in 1842 .---There is still, we believe, at Sens another mitre, of a somewhat more elaborate pattern, which, also, is reported to have belonged to Thomas A'Beckett, --Morning Chronicle.

A Correspondent writes to the Union :--- " Are you aware that several of the S. So much for Sir G. Lewis's opision that the 'peculiar practices' at St. George's are responsible for all that has occurred thero."

ANOTHER OLAHOYMAN IN TRODBLE .- The Roy. East Frederick Thomas Ribbana, master of the grammar school, and chaptain of the union workhouse as Leek, Robert Muore Slevler, and Blizz de Berriere, were on Saturday committed by the magistrates at Lork for maliciously conspiring to obtain possession of the illegitine ste child of Haunah Mellor, by the reverend defend int, and to cause such child by untawful means, namely, by clandestinely and fraudalently leaving it at the Leek union workhouse, to become chargeable to the common fund of the union. MONTREAL, FRIDAY, MARCH 23, 1860

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The yeil that has so long concealed the grand " Napoleonic Idea" from mortal gaze, has at last been partially withdrawn, and it is now given to us to catch a glimpse, at least, of its features. We now know what was the " idea" for which France forced Austria to war; that that "idea" was merely the territorial aggrandisement of France by the annexation of Savoy ; and that the professions of disinterestedness whereof, at the commencement of the contest, Louis Napoleon was so lavish, were but the ordinary cant in which hypocrites invariably indulge when meditating some stroke of surpassing rascality. --France wants Savoy; and therefore in despite of justice, and in violation of all existing Treaties France will annex Savoy-let the other Powers of Europe say what they will. Such in substance was the meaning of Louis Napoleou's speech at the opening of the French Legislative Chambers. We should be thankful that the arch-dissimulator has for once been pleased to speak out frankly; and we should be the more thankful, since it is not easy to see how his avowed intention of desposling his accomplice in rascality, Victor Emmanuel, of a slice of the latter's a rupture betwist the two. "Fis a trite proverb the " Man of Sm" it may at the same time subjects, take up arms against him ? Has not swarm of unlicensed, illegal venders ; who would that, " When rogues fall out, bonest men come ; by their own;" and without laying ourselves open to the imputation of being too sanguine, we may venture to indulge the hope that a quarref betwixt two such consummate rogues as a Louis Napoleon and a Victor Emmanuel, will tend to States of the Church. The Emperor, it is true, graciously condescends to throw a bone to the dog, in the shape of a permission to his former it is doubtful whether even this will reconcile Victor Emmanuel to the robbery about to be Pio Nono's under feelings. inflicted upon him-seeing that he is told that he beginning seemed probable would be the case, is to form a kingdom, or nucleus of a kingdom of a season, to be left to the decision of the French autocrat. Such is the last "plase" or manifestation of his "idea" that Louis Napoleon has been pleased to give to the world. How the other Powers of Europe, how Great Britam especially, will accept this bold enunciation of Imperial policy, remains yet to be seen ; Prussia, and an open profession of contempt on the part of Louis Napoleon for all existing European Treaties. It has already provoked an animated discussion in the British Parliament ; favorably received by the people of Italy, and those most immediately interested therein. That it will ultimately lead to a general European war is by no means improbable; and the cumor to which the Times' Paris correspondent gives circulation, to the effect, that all the men and officers on furlough, the Imperial Guards not excepted, are ordered to join their respective regiments immediately, would seem to indicate that Louis Napoleon had made up his mind to this contingency. Perhaps it is well that it should be so; that by a bitter discipline, Great Britain and the other Protestant Powers should be the Papal States is as essential to the peace of, and the balance of power in, Europe, as to the independence and autonomy of the Catholic gerous for them, or any of them, to countenance either France or Austria in their projects for secularising or annexing the dominions of the Soin its essence is Papal, so also in a secular point of view, and under the existing political order, is his Temporal Sovereignty indespensable to the liberties of Europe, and the independence of the troops. The Catholic may always feel assured that he is in the path of duty when he is assailed by the Globe; just as if he wins the snules of the "Protestant Reformers," or extorts a word of praise from George Brown, he may at once suspect that he has been guilty of some act of inexpressible turpitude. We would therefore respectfully congratulate the Catholics of Toronto upon having elecited the hostile criticism of the Globe, and provoked the malevolence of Pope George Brown.

In other respects his "fling" at his rival Plus IX. is scarce worth notice. As a specimen howprove both instructive and aninsing :---

"It may be true, as Bishop Lynch said, that the men in Rome who create the disturbances are a mere clique of rowdies; escaped villains from the domin-ion of temporal prince; it may be true that the Pope's lenity to them; his tender heartedness; his extreme sensitiveness; his love even for murderers, liare, and brigands-Antonelli included-prevents the advantage of the Pope, and contribute to thereby perpetuates a source of continual anarchy. gains. wards the maintenance of the integrity of the Even granting this to be the case, it does not excuse him,-for the ruler who is too good to keep his people in order, we should imagine is better without people at all. This view is amply confirmed by the facts connected with the sale and consumption of intoxicating liquors in the adjacent States of the " place of arms," according to the ordinary laws American Union ; in which the experiment of diminishing drinking, by prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, has been fairly and extensively tried, and has most signally failed.

The Rev. Mr. O'Farrel said-It was in this form, beloved brethren, that the Almighty addressed the Jewish people on the eva of their deliverance from the laud of Egypt. For years they had groaned beneath the most cruel bondage, and their task-masters had multiplied their labors and sufferings. Their strength was exhausted by excessive toil : their substance plundered by strangers, and the only liberty that remained to them (because it could not be taken from them) was that of pouring out their tears in the sight of the Lord, and uttering their prayers to the Most High, that He would deign to be mindful of their condition and send them a liberator and deliverer. God was at length touched by their prayers ; Moses was sent : great powers were confided to him : signs and wonders were multiplied. But in vain the waters of the Nile became blood, and in vain darkness enveloped all the land of Egypt. The heart of the King was hardened : but what avails the power or wickedness of man when exerted against the Might of God? The Angel of destruction will pass through the land; and, in order that he may distinguish the Jewish people from the idolaters who surround them, the Paschal Lamb is slain, its blood sprinkled on the door-posts, and the Angel of Destruction as he passes in the silcace of the night sees the blood and knows that he can claim none within. This day, then, said the Lord, "Shall be for a memorial to you : and you shall keep it a feast to the Lord in your generations, with an everlasting observance. It shall be an anniversary of your deliverance from bondage, and a memorial of all the favors with which I have loaded you; and when your children shall inquire the reason and significance of this feast, you shall make known to them what the Almighty did for their fathers." May not the words of the text, my brethren, be appropriately applied to you on this solemn feast which we are assembled to same sense as to the Jewish people? And when your children ask you why you celebrate this feast, you can say that your fathers groaned for years beneath a slavery far worse than that of the Jews under the Egyptians; that they groaned under the slavery of sin and hell, and bowed down before dumb things : that the the darkness of Pagan superstition and idolatry, more harrible than the Egyptian darkness, brooded over the land, till God raised up Paand illumine their minds with the gentle light of Christianity, and make them free with the freedom of the children of God. And this day shall be for a memorial to you : and your children shall hand down the same traditions and observances, throughout all time and in every climate. So long as the generations of Irishmen exist-wherever an Irish heart beats with gratitude for the sending of St. Patrickso long shall this day be hallowed and sanctified as an anniversary of past favors from above. Yes, this day shall remain as a proof and as a monument to show that the faith of Patrick is still preserved pure and undefiled by the Irish people for the space of fourteen hundred years. See, brethren, what a glorious spectacle is visible to-day throughout the universe. By what we behold here we only -- this pomp which accompanies our sermon-- these ornaments that decorate our temple-these hanners that float around the altar-these strains of swee: characteristic of the manner in which our brethrea, throughout the world celebrate this day. She not only filled all the land of Erin with her plessings, but bore them also to other countries; to France to Spain, to Germany, and to the shores of Ireland. An attempt has been made to deprive the mission of St. Patrick of the importance which is justly attributed to it. There have been men who dreamt they could discover in that early Irish Church traces of an independent national church, converted by some wandering missionary, and acknowledging no ju-risdiction in the Bishop of Rome or any other.--This theory, which could not have any importance but for the illustrious name of Usher, has been often confuted by our Irish historians; and it does not require any great amount of learning to prove that, from the very first, the Irish Church bowed down to the See of Peter, and that now, as then, she has ever been the obedient child of the Catholic Church .--The rev. orator having stated that St. Patrick received his mission from Pope Celestine, and that in one of the early Irish Synods the Saint said, " If any questions arise in this Island they must be referred questions arise in this island they must be reletted to the Apostolic See," proceeded to cite other autho-rities to prove that the Irish Church had always acknowledged the Supremacy of the Papal Sec.— He went on—Never did the Irish Church wish to traverse the stormy sea of human passions unless in the vessel guided by Peter, and when the evil days came and the tempest roared and the storm howled, she but clung more closely to him ; and death, itself, could not separate them. And now when the Pope is assailed, and when the world is crying out against the Lord and His Christ, shall Ireland take part with the robber band, who are already exulting as if the Popedom wers no more? Ireland cannot forget the memories of 1400 years. Listen! did you hear no ery borne across the waves of the Atlantic? You did, and it was like the rush of many waters ; it was the voice of millions protesting against spoliation; the voice of poor Ireland rising above the turmoil and making itself hoard. And, as on the stormy deep, the earnest tones of the pilot may be heard in warning above the waves, so did the voice of Ireland, speak out shrill and clear, warning potentates and states of the rocks, on which they were steering and of the spirit of mischief which they were conjuring up : a spirit which they could not allay. Nor has this spirit been confined to Ireland, it has actuated her children throughout the universe. We have heard that cry first sent up on the Irish shores, reechoed here, and it will be repeated throughout the length and breadth of this vast continent, till the world rings with the protestation, and till our rulers be made to feel that what is claimed as the birth right of Italians may be claimed with far more justice by other nations : and that if there he any truth in the cry of "Italy for the Italians" (though the Pope is an Italian)-that if there be any truth in that cry, there is as much truth, justice and consis-tence in the cry "Ireland for the Irish."-But even should the Pope be again cast upon the world, and like his Divine Master have no place to lay his head even then Ireland's faith and love will not be the less ardent; and the Church founded on the rock, not the less secure, even though it have to brave another storm. Of our national misfortunes, we have heard We all know of the times when told a paenough. triot was to be a criminal ; when as has been sung of our country---

"It was treason to love her, and death to defend." -But the time for more refining is past; the time for work has come, We are not to sit down and sigh for the days that are gone; we are not to fold our arms while we recite the history of our wrongs. We must be up and doing; for it depends in a great measure on ourselves to reenedy the injuries we have suffered. The penal laws are away; the chains which bound our fathers are riven, and although the old spirit of bigotry may rise occasionally, it has not sufficient force to deter any earnest man. A great deal, no doubt, has been done at home and abroad for our social improvement ; & great deal more might be done. The reason it has not been done, is that we are not true to ourselves, we are always distrustful of one another, and we are too ready to look for assistance elsewhere. We trust for better times without endeavoring to make them better. O'Counell has proved the possibility of our union and what that union can effect. But we are more ready to impede that to join and help each other. When any among us outstrips his fellows in the race for glory and fame, instead of encouraging him and in trying to catch him-instead of being proud that a countryman could aspire so high, we not only carp and rail at him but cause him to stumble if we can; and if he should disgrace his talents, we give a loud shout of joy, congratulating ourselves upon our sugarity : though he may have first broken down in consequence of our underplotting and manouvring. As long as this exists, it is to your injury, for none of the enthusiasm of an honorable mind will be awakened in your behalf. For as long as we are more ready to attack than to defend our own, no young man of genius will trust his hopes and fature to our appreciation; no latent talent will be developed the timid will not dure to trust themselves to the terriole ordeal of our criticiam; the hold will despise | best, indeed the sole competent judges as to how, us and perhaps abandon us to go to strangers. But thank God we are becoming wiser, and experience teaches us that we must owe our salvation to ourselves alone. We should not give our confidence lightly, but when given should not be ready to misinterpret a min because we may differ in opinion. If this feeling of envy gains ground, farewell to your claims for equality with men of other races in either religion or politics. By unity you will be strong and happy : your friendship will always be respected by nappy: your intends up war always we respected by every party in the State, and your hostility feared. — It will not be necessary, then, to tell you to units with men of other origins, for their union will make itself known. A Sunday or two ago you made an effort to resist the demon of intemperance : to-day will you not pledge to destroy the demon of disunion. These two evils have been the curse of our country. Now, destroy them both : and as every succeeding 17th of March comes on, we will be found bound together in the chains of love; at peace with God, with oursolves and all good men. "And this day shall be for a memorial to you : and you shall keep it a feast to the Lord in your generations with an everinsting observance." Mass was then resumed, and a collection for the poor sustained by the Congregation, was may be excited to enthusiasm by the recollection of taken up, amounting to $270. Divine service having concluded, the Procession again formed in front of the Church ; and in the same order as in the morning, traversed the principal streets able. of the city, according to the Progamme; halting at the rooms of, and saluting, the several Sister National Societies. The sight was most pleasing, and most imposing. The best order, thanks to the excellent arrangements of the St. Patrick's Committee, and the Marshals, prevailed throughout; and the effect of the Procession must have been to impress the spectators vividly with the importance, numbers, and high respectability of the Irish population of Montreal -as the reference and devotion with which they had well assert that to the lover of Cauada, things prepreviously assisted at the solemo saccifice of the Mass was a convincing proof of their trin unswerving attachment to their ancient faith-the faith of the Church, which it is Ireland's boast, faith of the Church, which it is irreland's boast, church, the privator our rasher, where a solemn High and special prerogative amongst all the nations of Christendom, to have preserved pure and un-tarnished by a stain of heresy, from the time of V.G., ascended the pulpit and delivered a very all papers he basso kindly forwarded to us.

'This is Ireland's especial glory, this the bright jewel in her diadem. She may point with .pride to her bards, senators, warriors and statesmen. She may glorify herself in having given to the world a Burke, a Sheridan, and if not last not least in this band of Irish worthies, an O'Connell; but her best title to the respect and love of Christendom is this : That in the worst of days and amidst persecutions not exceeded in atrocity by the cruelties of a Nero or a Diocletian, she has adhered with constant unswerving fidelity to [the Church of Christ. For this be the name of Ireland, Catholic Ireland, loved and bonored throughout all generations; because she hath not walked in the counsel of the ungodly, nor stood in the way of sinners, nor sat in the chair of pestilence or heresy.

We should be unjust were we to omit rendering our tribute of praise to the Choir, conducted by the Rev. M. Perrault, and to the admirable skill with which Mr. Smith presided at the organ.

The day was duly honored by the young men of the Erina Snow Shoe Club, who, to the number of twentyfive, dined together at Moore's Hotel, Cote des Neiges the head-quarters of the Snow Shoeing fraternity .-The worthy host-himself a true and whole-souled Celt--spared nothing that his tried ability could suggest to make the occasion worthy of the Day and its associations, and his guests bear the most ample testi mony to his perfect success. The usual patriotic and other toasts were eloquently responded to; and the whole proceedings were marked by the utmost good feeling and good taste, and no cause of regret was mingled with the unalloyed pleasure of the evening. The members of the Club one and all have every rea son to be proud of this their first celebration of a day so dear to every Irish heart ; when the best feelings of his nature are unveiled, as in fancy he reverts to the home of his youth, in that dear old land whose hallowed memories are so fondly treasured as his noblest and most cherished inheritance.- Com.

an early hour the sons of St. Patrick mustered | carry into execution the good resolves formed in order, in the Place D'Armes; whence they by them during the Mission. marched in procession to St. Patrick's Church, to celebrate with due religious rites the annivership the Bishop of Tloa, Coadjutor of the Arch-Diocess assisted at the High Mass, which was quence, and devout patriotism powerfully affected | tacle. his numerous audience. ST. PATRICK'S DAY AT TORONTO. -- Our co-religionists, the sons of St. Patrick celebratthere was no public Procession. This was, no doubt, a wise exercise of judgment on the part and with what demonstrations their National Festival should be celebrated.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN PERTIL.

To the Editor of the True Witness.

Sin-The auniversary of the Patron Saint of Ireland was celebrated here on last Saturday with the strongest national feelings, as well as with the highest emotions of religion and gratitude. However others may be opposed to this annually-occurring display, we are convinced here the more we dwell on the wrongs and the sufferings, the constancy and the triumphs of the sons of Saint Patrick, the more attached will we ever prove ourselves to the faith of our fathers, the better Catholics we will be. Ireland has been privileged beyond all other countries of the globe in her conversion, in her fidelity, in her sufferings, and in her destiny-Her conversion has been bloodless-her fidelity unshaken-her suffering unparalleled, and she has been the martyr and spostle of the faith for almost the whole human race. None but hallowed memories does the past reveal to our minds; others may boast the great achievents they have accomplished both in pence and in war; but the Irishman alone is patriotic because he is Catholic; indeed with him patriotism and Catholicism are, and ought to be, undistinguish-

On Saturday last, when we celebrated the festival of our Saint, full many were the old men's eyes that glistened, and many the matrons' hearts that throbbed with joy on beholding ground their exiled children still exulting in the fond remembrance of Saint Patrick, and his cherished people From early dawn Irishmen and their sons were seen to wend their way to the old church of this place. About 10 o'clock some five hundred stalwart men were joined in pro cession, preceded by the children of the Catbolic school with their beautiful banners and fings unfurled, and attended by the St. Patrick's Brass Baud. I can sented a proud and cheering appearance ; but more especially the young men who averaged from five feet nine to six feet in height, with sturdy limbs and hardy frames, as they proceeded to our beautiful new church, the pride of our Pastor, and corseives, and

A ridiculous complaint is being urged in some of our Upper Canadian exchanges against a Priest, because of his refusal to bury in consecrated ground, and with any of the rites of the Church, a man of the name of Deegan. The deceased, it appears, had once been a Catholic ; but had cut himself off from all communication with the Church, by becoming a member of a secret society-as we understand it, that of the Odd Fellows."

We would avail ourselves of this opportunity to remind all Catholics that, by associating themselves with any secret society, upon any pretence whatsoever, they ipso fucto, cease to be living of their wordly triumphs, and their patriotic feelings members of the Church; they have incurred the penalties of excommunication ; and have forfeited all claims to her prayers, and maternal offices on their death-beds.

'Fo the complainants we would also take the liberty of hinting that the Church has the same right as has any other society, to prescribe her terms of membership; that, since the deceased Deegan, had, by his free act violated those terms, he had ceased to belong to her communion, and Pork.-Mess $18 to $18,50; Prime Mess $14,25 to had therefore no right to demand to be buried in $14,50; Prime $12 to $12,25. All of these qualities : her consecrated ground-which is especially reserved for her children who die in the faith ; and burial to one dying excommunicate---and as such Deegan died-would have been guilty of a grievous sacrilege. If Catholics will violate the laws good Butter. of their Church by allying themselves with se- Pearls--None offering ; price, 33s 6d to 34s. cret societies, it is meet that they should die and be buried like heathens.

Since, however, the money there and then offered does not serve for the actual consecration, but rather for some future one, the time of offering has been varied. The Roman Missal has never prescribed this offering to be made except before the ablation of the Priest, but has omitted it altogether since the time of Holy Pope Pius V. The Sacerdotal, printed at Venice in 1603, marks nevertheless that, should suy one wish to make an offering, it is to be received before the Oblation : and Gavanti, in his Commentary upon the Rubrics in 1627, says " that the offering of the people ought to be made before the Oblation ; for which he quotes the Acts of Milan, under Saint Charles. The custom of some of the churches of France has however been somewhat different. According to the Capitularies of Hinemar, the candles, and whatever the people might wish to offer at the altar, were to be made before the Mass, or at latest before the Gospel ; and, since the eleventh century, the offering of the people has been placed ufter the Oblution, and before the priest washed his hands. This is evident from Hildebert of Mans, who wrote about 1090; from Stephen of Autun; and from many Missals of various churches down to the 17th century. Since then, however, they have conformed to the Rubrics ; of the new Missals, and the most venerable and revered practice of the ancient Church.

Discipulus-llave you found any authority to warrant the usage so prevalent in this country (Upper Canada) of making the offering after the Communion?

Pre.-No, certainly, most learned Discipulus; and I am totally at a less to account for so corrupt a practice.

FRANCE.

OPENING OF THE FRENCH LEGISLATURE .- The following is from the Times Paris correspondent of the 1st instant :---The French Chambers were opened this day in the Great Hall of the Louvre, and with the accustomed ceremonial.

The Emperor took his seat on the throne, baving on his right Prince Napoleon, Prince Louis Lucien Bonaparte, and Prince Joachim Murat, and on his left Prince Lucien Murat and Prince Napoleon Lucien Bonaparte-the new Most Serene Highness, who has not as yet left Paris for Italy, as reported. The Grand Master of the Ceremonies then, in a loud roice, requested all present to be seated-a request with those who were fortunate enough to have seats at once complied with. Those who had only standing, room of course remained in statu

The Emperor deviated on the present occasion from his ordinary practice of reading his speech standing ; he remained seated during its delivery owing to fatigue, or to slight indisposition. But his voice was as distinct as ever, and it reached every corner of the hall.

THE SPEECH OF THE EMPEROR.

Messieurs les Senateurs,

Messieurs les Deputcs,

"On the opening of last session, relying upon the patriotism of France, I endeavoured to fortify your minds in advance against the exaggerated apprehensions of a probable war. To-day I have at heart to reassure you against the anxiety sation. The Treaty has done nothing more, than caused by peace itself. That peace I desire to anticipate the period of salutary modifications, sincerely, and shall neglect nothing to maintain ıt.

"I have only to congratulate myself on my friendly relations with all the Powers of Europe. The only points of the globe where our arms are still engaged are to the extreme East; but the courage of our sailors and of our soldiers, aided by the hearty assistance of Spain, will doubtless soon lead to a treaty of peace with Cochin-China. As regards China, a serious expedition, combined with the forces of Great Britain, will inflict on her the chastisement of her perfidy.

"In Europe difficulties approach, as I trust, their termination, and Italy is on the eve of constituting herself free. Without referring to the long negotiations which have been dragging i along for so many months, I shall confine myself to a few principal points.

"The dominant idea of the Treaty of Villafranca was to obtain the almost complete independence of Venetia at the price of the restoration of the Archdukes. That transaction having failed, despite my most earnest endeavours, i have expressed my regret thereat at Vienna and at Turin, for the situation by being prolonged threatened to lead to no issue. While it was the object of frank explanations between my Goverpment and that of Austria, it suggested to England, to Prussia, to Russia, measures the whole of which clearly prove on the part of the Great Powers their desire to obtain a recouciliation of all the interests.

"To second these dispositions it was necessary for France to present that combination the adoption of which would have the greatest chance of being accepted by Europe. Guaranteeing Italy by my army against foreign intervention, I had the right to assign the limits of that guarantee. Therefore I did not besitate to declare to the King of Sardinia that, while leaving him full liberty of action, I could not follow him in a policy which had the fault of appearing in the eyes of Eurose a desire to absorb all the States of Italy, and which threatened new con-Bagrations. I counselled him to reply favorably to the wishes of the provinces which should offer themselves to him, but to maintain the independence of Tuscany, and to respect in principle the rights of the Holy See. If this arrangement does not satisfy everybody, it has the advantage | of reserving principles, of calming apprehension, and makes Piedmont a Kingdom of more than 9,000,000 souls. " Looking to this transformation of Northern Italy, which gives to a powerful State all the passes of the Alps, it was my duty, for the security of our frontiers, to claim the French slopes of the mountains. This reassertion of a claim to a territory of small extent has nothing in it of a nature to atarm Europe and give a denial to the policy of disinterestedness which I have preclaimed more than once, for France does not wish to proceed to this aggrandizement, however small it may be, either by military occupation or by provoked insurrection, or by underhand mancaures, but by frankly explaining the question to the Great Powers. They will doubtless understand in their equity, as France would certainly understand it for each of them under similar circumstances, that the important territorial rearrangement which is about to take place gives us a right to a guarantee indicated by nature herself. "I cannot pass over ip silence the emotion of a portion of the Catholic world; it has given way suddenly to such inconsiderate impressions, it has given itself up to such passionate alarms. The past, which ought to be a guarantee for the future, has been so much overlooked, the services rendered so much forgotten, that I needed a very deep conviction and confidence-an absolute confidence in public common sense, to establish in the midst of the agitations endeavoured to be excited that calm which alone maintains us in a proper path. " Facts, however, speak loudly for themselves. For the last 11 years I have sustained alone at Rome the power of the Holy Father, without having ceased a single day to revere in hun the | by all. How much to be regreted is that, under the sacred character of the chief of our religion .-another side the population of the Romagua. abandoned all at one to themselves, have experienced a natural excitement, and sought during the war to make common cause with us. Ought I to torget them in making peace, and to hand them over anew for an indefinite time to the chances of a foreign occupation? My first efforts have been to reconcide them to their Sovereign, and, not having succeeded, I have tried at | cier, and Keller, and the publication of which in the own interests for the Church. principle of the temporal power of the Pope. "After what has been already said, you see, if all is not yet over, how it is still permitted to hope for a speedy solution. The moment seems, then, to have arrived to put an end to these anxieties, which have lasted too long, and to seek for the means of inaugurating with boldness a new era of peace in France. Already has the before the Legislative Body and all France. At pre-army been reduced by 150,000 men; and this sent the impossibility in which we are placed of acreduction would have been more considerable but for the Chinese war and the occupation of Rome and of Lombardy. My Government will immediately present to you a series of measures, the object of which is to facilitate production, to increase, by affording the means of living cheaply, the prosperity of those who labor, and to multiply our commercial relations. The first step to be taken in this path was to fix the period for the suppression of those impassible barriers which, under the name of prohibitions, have shut out from our markets many productions of foreign industry, and constrained other nations to adopt an annoying reciprocity with regard to us.

" But something still more difficult still impeded us. It was the little inclination for a commercial treaty with England. I have therefore taken resolutely upon myself the responsibility of this great measure. A very simple reflection proves its advantages for both countries. Neither the one nor the other assuredly would have failed within a few years to take, each in its own interest, the initiative of the measures proposed; but then, the lowering of tariffs not being simultaneous, they would have taken place on one side and on the other without immediate compenand to give to dispensable reforms the character of reciprocal concessions, destined to strengthen this treaty may produce its best effects I invoke your most energetic co-operation for the adoption of the laws which will facilitate its practical adoption.

"I call your attention, before all things, to the means of internal communication, which by their development can alone permit us to compete with foreign industry; but, as periods of transition are always those of suffering, and as it is our duty to put a stop to uncertainty so hurtful to our interests, I appeal to your patriotism for the prompt examination of the laws which will be submitted to you. By liberating raw materials from all duties and reducing those which weigh on articles of common consumption the resources of the Treasury will find themselves severally diminished; nevertheless the receipts and disbursements of the yearr 1861 will be balanced without any need of an appeal to credits or a recourse to new taxes. In sketching out to you a faithful picture of our political and commercial position, I have wished to inspire you with full confidence in our future prosperity and to associate you in the accomplishment of a wo.k fruitful in great results.

". The protection of Providence, so manifestly on our side during the war, will not fail to a peaceful enterprise whose object is the improvement of the lot of the greatest number. Let us continue, then, firmly our path to progress, without allowing ourselves to be arrested either by the menaces of selfishness, or by the clamours of parties, or by unjust suspicions. France menaces no one; she desires to develope in peace, in the plentitude of her independence, those boundless resources which Heaven has given her, and she will not awaken gloomy susceptibilities, since out | of the state of civilisation in which we are that or's acts without minding his intentious. If we can truth springs day by day with greater force which consoles and reassures humanity-that the more a State is rich and prosperous the more she contributes to the riches and prosperity of others." That there are two jurisdictions, and that it belongs to the State to fix the limits of the jurisdiction of the Church, is the position now maintained. The steps of the French Government are understood by some to indicate the intention of suppressing the religious orders, banishing the Jesuits, and preventing any of the French Bishops from going to Others Rome without the permission of the State. sgain argue that these steps indicate that the Emperor is convinced that the spirit which he has raised against himself throughout Christendom is too formidable to be resisted. They infer that he is about to yield, and that he is about to retrace his steps under cover of these menaces. For ourselves we persevere in our determination fo indulge in no speculation either way. The Emperor's intentions are immaterial. It was by speculations on the Emperor's institutious and assurances that they would prove at last to be benevolent, that the Irish people were treacherously misled for months till their own hearts and their own instincts rehelled against the deception. ITALY.

PIEDKONT .- By & Royal decree, the Electoral Asemblies are convoked for the 25th of March, and Parliament is to meet on the 2d of April.

I may to-day affirm more positively the accuracy of the leading facts mentioned in my letters of Sanday and yesterday. The propositions for the "set-tlement of the Italian question" reached M. Oavour, at Turin, yesterday morning, and his reply, said to have been received, will be in time for the opening of the French Chambers, which will take place with the accustomed coremonial at the Louvre to-morrow. These propositions are, as you are aware, the abandonment of the annexation of Tuscany to Pledmont, the Tuscan people being allowed to select their own sovereign, with the exception I have noticed. With respect to the Duke of Genoa, it is not so certain that this young Prince will be a Candidate. . The Duchies of Parma and Modena are to be annexed to Piedmont and Victor Emmanuel will also administer the Romagna under the suzeraincte of the Pope, if the Pope accept it, and, if not, I suppose without it. I omitted to mention on Sunday that in case this arrangement were not accepted by the Piedmontese Government the French army was to be recalled from Lombardy. This looks like a menace; but whether the army returns to France or marches to Tuscany is not stated.

I have slready said that one of the exceptions in the choice of the Tuscans was Prince Napoleon, the son-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel. Prince Napoleon is by etiquetto a member of the Imperial family, and therefore stands in the list with those who were proposed to be excluded, from their relation to a great reigning family. But it may be as well not to forget what was hinted on Monday last about another prince who is related to the Emperor, but is not of the Imperial family, for it seems the distinction is important. He is, as you know, a son of the late Prince Charles of Canino-his name is Lucien: he was invited to come to France a few months ago, and he has since got the title of "Most Serenc Highness." It was whispered a few days ago that he may be the candidate for Tuscany ; and it is to-day rumoured that he was to have left Paris for Florence yesterday. I do not refuse to the Emperor the credit of sincerity when M. Ponistowski and other such agents went to Florence to do what St. Patrick was more successful in Ireland-to bring the natives "to a sense of their situation. Unfortunately, the Tuscans were not so amenable to reason as King Leogaire and his Druds. They would not have their fugitive duke back at any price. It may have been at this moment that the thought of the young prince occurred to the Imperial mind, for it is probable that from the date of the preliminaries of Villafranca to the present hour, the Emperor's resistance to the annexation of Tuscany to Piedmont has not abated. The Tuscans are free to choose, with restrictions, which, however, do not hamper them so much as Figaro's liberty of the press; but it is not so certain that if the young Prince Lucien Bonsparte becomes by any chance a candidate, the popular voice will accluim him.

To the propositions comprised in the note sout to Turin, it is announced that M. Cavour's acceptance is known, but with the addition that the various populations-Tuscans, Modenese, Parmesans, Savoyards, and Nisards, shall be consulted by means of universal suffrage - but universal suffrage fuirly and truly carried out. This sounds superfluous, but M. Carour apparently thinks that as "dy a fagols et fugois," there may be " two sorts of universal suf-frage."-Times' cor. of 29th ult.

THE POPE AND INS DISCONTENTED SUBJECTS .- The new French paper, La Monde successor to the Uni-dated Jan. 38, with reference to the su-called manifestation attempted on the previous Thursday by the devolutionists, and to the measures taken sion of the Romagna from the Pope to form part of the dominions of the Ring of Bardinia. It did not seem to matter a fig to Lord John Russel that the Pope was most hostile to such an arrangement, and called it treason and robbery. But when it stood revealed that Savoy was to part company with its old sovereign, and be beneforth united with France. the whole aspect of the question assumed a different hue, Lord John saw that his bigotry had betrayed him into a false position; and that Napoleon had only made use of the Romagna conspiracy to commit Ragland to the principle of advocating the absorption of Savoy by France. We have now before us a return made to the House of Lords on Thursday of the dates of all communications between the Secretary of State and Her Majesty's Ambassadors at Paris on the subject of the annexation of Savoy and Nice to France, from the accession to office of the present ministry; and we find the number of such communications, from the 4th of July last to the 13th inst, both days inclusive, just twenty-threeseventeen of them being written in January and February. Indeed, the growing anxiety of our Government is shown by the fact that ten letters were written in the first thirteen days of the present month! Now, why should not Savoy and Nice have the same rights of revolution accorded to them as Tuscany and Romagna 7 They belong geographically and lingually to France. The inhabitants speak French, and have as much right to sell their allegiance to the Emperor as the Romagnols have to pocket the bribes and receive the emissaries of the King of Sardinia. Neither Victor Emmanuel nor Lord John Russell fathomed the designs of the French Emperor, when they rubbed their hands and thought it such fine sport to plunder the Pope. But when he had sufficiently committed them, he then let them into his little secret about relieving a friend of a strip of his outlying estate, which he had discovered would suit him, Napoleon, exactly. We can readily imagine how angry Lord John is at finding himself thus outwitted and out-generalled. And in proportion as he objects to the French occupation of Savoy does the Emperor now lead towards the Pope, who is slowly recovering his hold upon the revolted States of the Church. We expected from the first it would be so, because we know that that the whole of the Italian revolution was the work of strangers, and of the Secret Societies. Now no revolutions are worth a button which are not made by the people themselves, or which owe their existence to the corrupt influence of foreign gold. If Sardinian influence was withdrawn from Florence the Grand Duke might return to his palace next week, with the certainty of being received rwith loud vivas by his late subjects. Indeed, there are thousands of small landed proprietors of Tuscany who mourn the disappearance, from Hull Advertiser.

A CONTRAST.

Passing by Sardinia and the British Whige-and not condescending to bring the name or the sets of the Pope into such direputable company-let us look for a moment at the contrast between the French and Austrian Empero: 8, and ask to which of these potentatos, if the world were in its sensor, it would yield its tribute of admiration and of help. We will not look back to the partly doubtful and partly disgraceful antecedents of the French potentate. We will not call him a parsenu, or remind him of the progress of bysocrisy, perjury, and bloodshed through which he made his way to absolute power. In the same spirit of churitable forbearance we will overlook his closettings with Count Cavour at Compiegne, when they planned the Sardinian marriage and the Milan programme, and all the carnage which was to repay the former and be the basis of the latter .---We pass all this over to look at two Emperers concluding terms of peace at Villafrance. And, point, we ask to which of these men ought England -the fountain head, as all the world knows, of truth and honour, and every other virtue - to award her admiration. We all remember the terms of the Treaty of Villafranca Lombardy was given up; an Italian Confederation, with the Pope at its head, was to be constituted; the Grand Dakes were to return to their Sovereigaties ; and a general amnesty was to be granted. It was hardly necessary for the Emperer of the Preach to proclaim his desize to ameliorate the condition of his subjects, for was be not the Apostle of Liberty, and what better moment could be select to give effect to his generous desires thus that in which Fortune had enthroned him upon Victory ? Yet in the first fervor of success he amnestied political offenders, cancelled the waraings to the Press, and indulged the Parisians in a pageant on his entry lato Paris. But the Emperor of Austria was by nature and family tradition a despot; and when in his manifesto, published immediately after the treaty, he said that the blessings of penco were "doubly precious" to him because they would enable him " to found in a durable manner the internal wellheing and the external power of Austria by the happy development of her moral and material forces, and by ameliorations conformable to the spirit of the time in legislation and administration." - the " enlightened' gave him no credit for sincerity, nor believed that he would keep his word. But how does the case stand now, and what is the contrast between the purvenn Emperor and the legitimate one-between the elect of the popular will and the monarch reigning by right divinu? The Emperor of Anstria has kept his word, and more than kept it. He has emancipated the Protestants under his rule by concessions which we would to heaven we Buglish and Irish Catholics could obtain from our Whig rulers, but which they steadfastly r-fase us. Finding that his generosity has not filled the mensure of expectation, he has re-opened the question, and has committed to the flungarian Deputies the task of proposing amendments to the intert of September, and has given them his promise that in a legal way their legitimate wishes shall soon be falfilled. He has projected a plan by which every province will receive a separate constitution and administration, according to the wants of the different nationalities. And since the commencement of the present year he had removed one after anothes the Jewish disabilities till there remains scarcely a shadow of dissinction betwixt Jew and Christian. To none of these reforms did he piedge himself specifically. Yet they are fuils accomplis-phruse dear to French and British Liberals. How has he acted in Italy? Has he sought to evade the treaty of Villafranca? No. He has fulfilled it to the letter. He has eeded Lombardy without cavil or subterfuge. Venice was to have a constitution when it became part of the Italian Confederation. But the Confederation is not yet formed ; and even if he doaired to give Venice the reforms he has given to his immediate possessions, the intrigues of the Italian Anarchists prevent him. He has acted, then, with truth and honor. Submitting to defeat, he has risen above it, and has displayed the graid spectrele to a degenerate age of a monarch fulfilling a vague promise with unexampled liberality, and resisting, defeated as he is, the chicanery of his conqueror, backed by his own ancient but now treacherous ally. THE POPE CAINED GROUND .-- The Pope is gaining | The Emperor of Austria has given to his subjects more of -we will not say constitutional, for that term has become infamous, but of-paternal generosity than he promised them. The following letter has been addressed by the Count de Chambord to one of the most eminent of those who in France have advocated the cause of the Papacy :-

"VENICE, Jan. 27 .--- You have just rendered, Sir, to religion and to society a service for which I feel the necessity of thanking you. A dark policy believed the moral sense to be weakened, and opinion sufficiently kept down, to venture, under a vain appearance of real and affected meekness, to justify, encourage, and promote, after having formally promised to prevent, an odious act of spoliation, the inevitable consequences of which would be to establish everywhere force in the place of right. In truth, what possession is the more ancient, more legitimate more worthy, even by its very weakness, of all respect, more frequently guaranteed by treaties, more generally proclaimed as necessary for the tranquillity of the world, than the temporal dominion of the Papacy? How can we do otherwise than recognize in this work of ages a decree of Prividence sccuring to the chief of the Church the principal source and venerated centre of Christian civilisation, the spiritual independence which is necessary for the fultilment of its holy and sulutary mission? Who but must feel that to annul a right so sacred is to annul every other right? To despoil the sovereign in the person of the auccessor of St. Peter is to menace all sovereigns ; and to overthrow his throne, which has stood a thousand years, is to sap the foundations of every throne. It is sad to see France thus made use of as the instrument against her own conscience, her heart, her traditions, and all her interests, in order to carry out attempts which can end only in new convulsions. Thus, in this common danger to the voice of episcopacy, which has raised the cry of alarm, or joined other voices no less courageous, no less zealous, in support of the cause of right and liberty, confounded and attacked at the same time as they are in their august representative the Pontiff-King. But no one has done so with more energy. reason, talent, and eloquence than M .----, and] have read, not without being deeply affected, what he says at its close to a Pontiff so meek, so confiding, so generous, and now so tried by affliction .-The Count de Chambord here quotes a passage from the pamphlet alluded to, which encourages the Pope to resist, and to defend his rights, and with them the rights of the weakest sovereign.) "May those noble and touching words be heard pressure which now keeps down in the depths of the heart the most noble sentiments, the absence of a wise liberty, abandoning to the mercy of arbitrary will all rights and all principles, leaves without defence, without protection, without guarantee, the dearests interests of France, of religion, and of so-) clety.

The suppressed Univers has made its appearance under another title. M. Tacoaet, its proprietor, bas purchased a small semi-daily paper, published in Paris, called I.a Voix de la Verite, and has obtained the leave of the Government to change it into a daily paper, with the new title Le Monde. No. 1 of this revival of the Univers appeared on Saturday last, printed in precisely the same type and manner as its able predecessor. Its articles are signed by Mesara. Chantrel, Rupert, and Barrier. But we miss such names as those of MM. Louis and Eugene Venillot, and Coquille. We are told that in authorising the new paper, the Government stipulated that these writers should be excluded from its editorship. We cannot but wish success to our new companyion in arms, in our very militant part of the service of the Church. - Weekly Register.

self ? We find instead of it a despetism more rigid and relentless than ever. The Press silenced ; the Univers and the Bretagne suppressed ; upwards of thirty avertissements supplying the place of those which in the first gush of vanity and elatement he cancelled ; the Bar silenced, except on the condition of a slavish subservience; the Bishops warned of the coming wrath; the Prefects throughout France commanded to put in force against the Church the law that the Revoltion of 1848, of which this Imperihyporrite was the venemous spawn, enacted against Socialists and blasphemers. Is this honoor? Is this justice? Is it a policy which deserves the approbation of honest men ? Is it decent in English statesmen to invite closer bonds of amily with such brazen infinny, and by doing so, show to the world that this grand mation, so powerful and so boastful of its love of truth and virtue, values the increase of its exports and imports far above considerations of honour? It is not decent, but it is the fact. And we have this week read in the columns of the leading English journal the urgent advice tendered to that French Eurperor whom in days still recent it. denounced in terms of the most inordinate abuse, to imitate the "illustrious Henry VIII, and exalt him-self more glotious than ever over the Church's ruin. Alas for human wickedness, the evil spirit is willing but the beggarly flesh is impotent. Infidels, like wise, have but their day. And when the last printer's devil in Printing House-square carries the last libel or panegyric, as circumstances may require, on Napoleon to the compositor's room ; and when French parvenues and British Whigs are guashing their tecth in despair, the Catholic Religion and all who are faithful to its Divine Head and His Vicar on earsh, will pursue their appointed course, not un-clouded indeed as the flesh and the devil, British Whigs and parvenu Emperors have power-but indestructible.

There then is the contrast between Louis Napoleon and the Emperor of Austria. Profession and lies on one side, Truth on the other .- London Tablet.

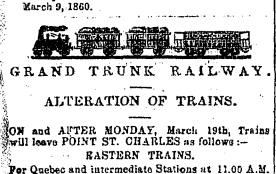

Lord John Russell's Bill extends the franchise to £10 occupancies in counties, and £6 in boroughs Twenty-five of the smallest boroughs are to have one instead of two members, and the seats thus gained are to be distributed between the most populous counties and boroughs of Ireland and Scol-land, which get two additional numbers each. A corresponding reduction is to be made in the franchise, but the present representation is not to be disturbed. Liberal journals are not satisfied with the monagure.

The Stork gunboat, tender to the Excellent gunnery-ship at Portsmouth, proceeded yesterday up Porchester Lake and made practice at short range with solid shot from her eight-inch pivot gun upon an iron plate affixed to the side of the old Briton frigate. At the conclusion of the firing the plate, which appeared to be upwards of four inches thick and about six feet in length by four in breadth, was carefully covered up with canvass. The result of the trial, however, was precisely the same as on former occasions of the kind, the third shot from the gunboat besking the plate and driving large portions through the frigate's side, strewing the dock with broken pieces of iron.

DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. Ballou's Pictorial of 24th July says :- Realizing the true sense of responsibility assaching to the Relifer of a widely chould be point with the widely chould be point to we have a sense of a widely chould be the sense of a widely chould be the sense of a sense o should deem it little less than a crime to recommend any medical compound the real virtue of which? we could not conscientiously indorse. This balsamic compound has become a home fixture ; and all persons who suffer, and have in vain attempted to cure their Coughs, Colds, Bronchial or Pulmonary Com-Daints, make use of this unequalled remedy. The following Certificate from a distinguished gen tleman is equally conclusive :

From Rev. Henry Wood, formerly Rditor of the Congregational Journal, Concord, N. H., more recently American Consul at Beyroet, Syria, and now Chaplain in the Nevy.

CONCORD, N. H , March 2. Messrs. Sath W. Fower & Co., - Genilement - Two years ago, a sudden and violent stinck upon my Lungs confined me to my bed for several weeks, and when I recovered, I was so much oppressed by difficulty in breathing, that I was often unable to sleep or rest upon a hed by night. The suffering was extreme, and judging from the inefficacy of the remedies used, I supposed the disense incurable. Bring persuaded to try a bottle of Wister's Balkam of Wild Cherry, without confidence in its efficacy, I found the difficulty almost entirely removed before one bottle was used up. Sympathy with my fellow sufferers induces me to make this public statement, and recommand the article to others similarly afflicted.

With respect, yours troly, HENRY WOOD.

THE TOILET COMPARION is the name by which Mosars. Joseph Burnett & Co., at Boston, designate the nest and convenient case in which the famous chemists and perfumers put up their superior preparations for toilet use, "ix, "Kalliston," " Occuane," "Oriental Tooth Wash,' and "Florimel." Kalliston is an article the ladies already regard as an indispensable preparation for promoting the healthy condi-tion of the skin and beautifying the complexion .--The Cocouine, containing a large proportion of Cocoanut Oil, imparts to the hair a glossy appearance, invigorates it, and gives it a healthy growth The Oriental Touch Wash arrests decay of the teeth, cures canker, hardens the gums, and imparts fragrance to the breath: Florimel is a delicate and enduring perfume, of exquisite odor, and so pure as not to discolor the lightest fabric. for CANADA, for the sale of CAST STEEL CHURCH and FACTORY BELLS, are now prepared to execute Orders for them to any extent that may be required.

These Bells are made by Mesers, NAYLOR, VICK-ERS & CO., of Sheffeld, England. They have a pure, melodious sound, peculiar to steel, owing to the class licity of the metal the sound penetrates to a great listance.

Cast Steel Bolls are much lighter than those made of ordinary bell-metal of the same size, and are consequently more easily rang; and owing to the den-sity and also to to the well-known strength of the material, it is almost impossible to break there with ordinary usage.

These bells have been successfully introduced in some of the largest cities and towns in the United States and Ganada, for Fire Alarma, Churches, Factories, &c., 5 and being sold much chesper than Composition Bells, this fact in connection with their lightness, strength and sweetness of tone, cannot fail to commend them to public favor.

Cast Steel Bells combine, therefore an improvement in quality and power of tone, with greater facility for lacing and ringing them, from their diminished usight and a very material saving in price.

CHIMES CAST TO ORDER WITH GREAT ACCURACY Rvery Bell is warranted for one year, with proper usage, in any climate. Printed Circulars, with descriptions, recommenda-tions, prices, &c., will be furnished on application to FROTHINGHAM & WORKMAN,
