Lesson XIII., March 26, 1916.

The Great Multitude-Review.- Revelation 7. 9-17.

Summary.-Lesson I. Topic: Christ's parting promises, Flace: Mount of Olives, east of Jerusaiem. Before the scienciston of our Lord He promised that the Holy spirit would come upon the disciples, and he commanded them to continue in the city of Jerusalem until they should receive the prountil they should receive the pro-mised power. They were to be empow-ered to witness for Jesus in Jerusalem, in Judea and in every other part of the world the world.

the world. II.Topio--The bestowment of power. Place: Jerusalem. The disciples of Josus waited on the Lord in prayer for ten days after the Lord's ascension, when, on the day of Pentecost, the libly Spirit came in great power and filled every heart. They spoke with other tongues, and all understood what was said, even though many different was said, even though many different languages were represented. Al, Topic: Expository preaching. Place: Jerusalem. To the astonished multitude that came to the place where the disciples received the Holy Ghost Peter preached the Messiahship of Jesus, proving from the scrip-tures that Jesus is the Son of God. He told his hearers plainly that they had crucified Him. He exhorted them to repent and believe the gospel. Many received the word and were baptized. About three thousand souls were saved that day.

iV. Topic-The Christian life. Place: Written at Corinth. The Holy Spirit is engaged in applying the benefits of the atcnement to human hearts. He gives illumination and comes in to dwell in hearts that will receive Him. lie gives the assurance of salvation. He teaches us how to pray. It is the work of the Holy Spirit to bring con-viction, and it is His work to give spiritual life. V. Topic—The first apostolic mir² acle, Place: Jerusalem, in the temple. The apostles still observed the Jew-ish hours of worship. Peter and John went up to the temple to pray and a man who had been lame from his birth asked for money. Peter told him he had no money, but command-cd him in the name of Jesus to rise and walk. The man was healed and the neonle were amaged and crowded the people were amazed and crowded abo him

VI. Topic. A test of religions. Place: Jerusalein. The preaching of Peter and John at the temple angered the leaders of the Jews and they had the apostles arrested. Peter made his defense before the Sanhedrin and de-ared the Messiehship of Jesus. He reached repentance and faith in sus, through whom alone they could saved. The Jewish leaders demand-I that the apostles should not preach any more, and released them. postles went at once to their The 0179 volupary. They prayed, and the place was shaken where they were and they were all filled with the Holv Ghost. VII. Topic: Christian unity. Place: Written in Rome. The lesson, taken from the Epistle to the Philippians, urges units, and charge that the way urges unity and shows that the way to exaltation is the way of humanity. in teaching humility Paul refers to Jesus as an example. He left the glory that he had with the Father and became a man to suffer and die to re-deem the world. He is now infinitely and eternally exatted.

and eternally exatted. VIII. Topic: Christian fellowship. Place: Jerusalem. Because of the great interest in the salvation of the people in Jerusalem and because of the numbers who were there from dis-tant lands, it became necessary for those who had property to contribute toward the support of the needy. Many sold their possessions and placed time sold their possessions and placed the proceeds at the disposal of the apos-tles. Ananias and Sapphira, his wife, sold a pieco of land and brought a part of the money received for it and part for themselves.

as the enducement of power rested up-on the disciples, enabling them to wit-ness to the things which had been made known to them. The witness of the Holy Spirit became the test of songhip. The united work of the Fa-ther, Son and Holy Ghost was mani-fested in the plan of redemution. fested in the plan of redemption. Re-lationship was determined between children of God and servants of Sa.an children of God and servants of Sa.an by the inner life of the individua. The building up of Christ's kingdom rested with his faithful followers, who were enabled to continue in the things which "he began both to do and teach" through the inspiration and strength of the Holy Spirit. Miracles and testimony drow the lines of de marcation openly between the old sys marcation openly between the old sys tem of Judaism and the new spiritual experiences subsequent to Christ's re-surrection. The Jewish nation was re-presented in its rulers as Christianity was in those who had received the baptism of the Spirit. Judalsm was certain to fall under the mighty demonstrations which declared for the establishment of Christianity. As the chief rulers failed to see the purpose of God in the plan of redempticn, they placed their personal interests in the way of progress and continued the way of progress and continued their opposition to Christ's followers which they had used to compass his which they had used to compass his death. They recognized the likeness between Christ and his apostles. They recognized the same difficulty in bringing to naught their teachings the influence. The question of their authority over against the principle of "whether it be right" was the basis of contest. Their prohibitory injunc-tions in the balance with apostolic convictions soon proved the genuine value of the cutpouring of the Holy Spirit. This they could not control. Spirit. This they could not control. They could not dispute its wonderful benefit upon all who gave heed to apostolic teaching. They could not banish spiritual power. They could not prevent God's purpose for His church. They could not secure themselves. II. Under the process of develop-ment. Following the day of Pentecost the whole multitude of believers were so united in Christ that all worldly distinctions were lost. In that clear atmosphere of love the gospel spread with marrely set forth what life would be with merricity is results. This state of things set forth what life would be if separated from sin and governed only by the indwelling presence of the Holy Spirit. There was growth in grace and increase of numbers in the carly church. Not all who were joined to the company of believers proved of equal piety. In defence of the true standard of spiritual life the first intrusion of defect was visited by di-vine chastisement. The community of goods prompted by those who were "filled with the Holy Ghost" was hin-dered by the intrustion of counterfeit "Hiled with the Holy Ghost" was hin-dered by the intrustion of counterfeit piety. Being purged from that sin the church triumphed manifestly until danger arcse by the murmurings of disaffected members of the church. Reflection upon the ministration of the aposties called for a new order of church government. The system of or-dained deacons was best suited to re-store confidence and unity. Over gainst the number who were beneath the standard of piety the church prothe standard of piety the church pro-duced the first Christian martyr in the person of Stephen who feared not to preach a full gospel to the rulers of his nation. This issued in another disturbance in the young church. Per-secution forced a dispersion, but not the withdrawal of the Holy Spirit's presence and support. The promise of extended witnessing began to come to extended witnessing began to come to pass. Not only Jerusalem, but sur-rounding districts caught the message from the scattered disciples. T. R. Hardening of the Arteries

An Interesting Explanation of How This Dreaded Condition is Brought About.

You take out the garden hose in the spring, turn on the water, and if the rubber has got hard and brittle the tubing bursts and water spurts out in all directions.

The arteries of the human body may be likened to small rubber pipes, which go everywhere through the body and carry blood to the hands and feet, as well as to the nerves, muscles and vital organs. They carry all the blood in the human system, and if this blood is burdened with the poisons left over when the liver and kidneys are not properly performing their filtering work, these poisons form a deposit on the inside walls of the arteries.

The deposit thus formed gradually thickens and hardens the walls of the arteries. The tiny blood vessels of the liver are affected, and thence comes that fatal disease-cirrhosis of the liver. The cells of the kidneys become starved for want of blood, and Bright's disease gets its start.

In health the arteries have the elasticity of rubber, and expand, contract or elon-gate, as required by the demands of the blood pressure. Hardened, the arteries are like so much brittle rubber tubing. The blood pressure comes on, the tubing bursts, and the resulting blood clot on the brain causes apoplexy.

It will be plainly seen that the cause of trouble is in the inefficient condition of the liver and kidneys. When these filtering organs are kept healthy and active, and the bowels regular in the removal of waste matter, there is no chance, for such dreadful conditions as hardening of the arteries bring about.

As in all forms of serious disease, prevention is the only wise course to follow. You can positively depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to awaken the action of liver and kidneys, and also ensure the regularity of movement of the bowels. It is only by the activity of these organs that the blood can be kept pure and free from uric acid and other substances which form deposits in the arteries and at other points in the human system, causing pain, suffering and serious disease.

When you think of the scores of common ills, such as colds, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, backaches, etc., which arise from a torpid condition of these organs, you will better understand the reason why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the favorite family medicine in many thousands of homes. By keeping the liver, kidneys and bowels active they cure the common ills of life, and prevent serious disease. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

A SEASONABLE SUGGESTION.

Now that the regular factor patron is getting to think more and more about cow testing, preparing in many localities to take weights and samples as soon as the first cow freshens, it would seem opportune for more factory owners to consider this matter seriously. If a larger and better milk and cream supply is wanted, then talk up cow testing, get more patrons interested. If reduced operating expenses are sought, with view a larger output of better quality, then recommend cow testing to every dairy farmer in the vicinity For in the ways above indicated, and in very many others, the factory must benefit. After this there are the Thanksgiving and the Christmas markets to fit for. Young animals, according to their may be fed with an eye upon each of these coming periods of brisk demand for goods. NOTES.

A collie dog is almost a necessity on farm, but put him under good control. Do not let him form the foolish annoying habit of barking ail around a team every times it moves a hoof or chasing passing vehicles. A man who cannot train a dog to obedience has no business naving one.

Good roads are expensive, but they are less expensive than bad roads. We pay far more for the latter in lost time, horseflesh, wear of vehicles, depressed land values and social disad-vantages than we would have to pay for the former in cash. Which shall it be?

Cattle and horses used exercise, but they are not particularly benefited by being out when the weather is bad. If you have a good, warm barn for them in stermy in stormy weather, you will find they will do much better than to be turned out to exercise on the bad days.

She really had a remarkably beautiful voice, flexible, and highly cultivated, so that Denzil was properly charmed, and, forsaking his anegance to Lacy Caroline for a while, went over to the plano to tell her so, and beg her to sum and beg her to sing again. "The queen was seldom troubled with mauvaise honte, so she safg directly everything song to carry on an animated discus-sion about its different charms, and also, it must be confessed a little for think so," returned Sir George, also, it must be confessed, a little flir-tation as well. Mabel always flirted openly and upon every available op-portunity, and Denzil seemed well enough content to help her in her fav-orite pastime to-night.

orite pastime to-night. Sitting there at the piano, with fin-gers idly strumming musical chords every now and then, so as to give some excuse for the gay conversation she was holding, Mabel looked extreme-ly lovely. She rose, graceful and girlish, from the folds of soft white greenading that fell around her: her greataline that fell around her; her manner was gracious, her voice sound-ed sweet and friendiy. It was small wonder then if Denzil Hingered giadly by the side of the younges circle around the sound of the sound by the side of the younger sister, and contrasted her kindly glance with the cold, almost haughty demeanor of the elder. And yet, even then, in that early hour of their acquaintance, Denall younge knew well that he would have gladly given all Mabel's pretty smiles for one gentle look from Mil-

This broke up the tete-a-tete at the piano, as the picture in question lay in Mabel's room, and she ran away to procure it. George was the youngest the boys, and, being an ac knowledged "beauty," was admired and idelized accordingly, and the fond mother could never refrain from showing off this private Adonis to her friends

When Mabel had gone Denzil Groped back again into his former place by her mother, and tried manually not to grance in the direction where Mildrea iounged listlessiy among her cushions. Lady Caroline, ike all good-locking, middle-aged, aminole women, liked young men extremely - the younger he better. in fact, as then she could enter into such supjects as coneg roubles with them, what she considered and agministe and administer what she considered golden advice in a pleasant monerly manner. In tur she was adored, not only by her own . Y but by the sons of half the surrou.id a gentry, who generally convident gentry, who of haif the surrou. do gentry, who generally confided to in strict con-fidence both their numerous pecadil-loss and their love affairs.

This was agreeable enough to Lady Caroline's soul, but to have a young man who had no college mistorunes to relate, and who had two charming giris in the room with him, come from choice and talk to her, struck upon her ladyship's mind as being something, to say the least of it, pecul-iar. Things did not often strike Lady Caroline, but this certainly dia; and she looked across at Mildred instant-aneously when first Denzil Younge canne and took possession of the seat by her side. Mildred, however, to the eyes of her wondering parent, had looked totally unconscious and inno-cent of wrong-folds, and Denzil him. cent of wrong-doing, and Denzil him self not apeparing in the least put out, Lady caronne was rain to believe that he really had felt a desire to come and be agreeable to her alone, from no other motive whatever beyond common liking.

When sne had fully satisfied herself that it was no unamiability of Mil-dered s that had driven him to her for sheiter, Lady Caroline leaned back in her chair and allowed herself to be amused.

He seems to me quite the thing, and very much to be liked." As he spoke he came from his own into his wife's room, and, finding ner alone, continued the brushing of his hair at her glass.

Lady Caroline sat before the fire in her flannel dressing-gown, and warmed her feet meditatively.

"He is quite everything a young fellow should be." Sir George weat on presently---"handsome, clever and---agreeable"--he was going to say "with" but stored blowed bits "rich," but stopped himself in time. "If it were not for the cotton!" sighed Lady Caroline. She was not blessed with a strong mind, poor woman, and generally clung with praiseworthy pertinacity to the first idea formed. The Younges might be everything most charming, but still the atmosphere around them appeared to her ladyship's eyes heavily laden with innumerable bales of soft goods "Oh, bother the cotton!" growled Sir George. "Such old-fashioned prejudices are quite done away with now -and quite right, too. Is a man to be taboced forever because his great-grandfather dabbled in trade? Money makes the man in these days. The young fellow, from his appearance, young fellow, from his appearance, might be of royal blood—and I hear "But it wasn't his great-grandfather their wealth is fabulous."

Lady Caroline; and after that truesson there ensued a pause. Sir George gave up ill-using his head, and, coming over to the fire, drew a chair near to his wife's, and fell into a contemplative frame of mind which lasted, by the little china mind which lasted, by the little china clock on the chimney-piece, precisely two minutes and twenty-five seconds. "After all people may say what they will, but there is nothing like money, Carry," he said, a propos of nothing al parently, when the last of the twenty-five seconds had expired.

"He is certainly very charming," ob-served his wife, who seemed to under-"Exactly so," returned Sir George, "Exactly so," returned Sir George, yaguely; adding, with a miserable assumption of careless gossip, "did he seem to admire either of the girls?" "I think no seemed to admire Mabel," Lady Caroine answered; "at east, he talked to her a good deal at the piano when she had finished singing

"I didn't notice him," exclaimed Sir George, as though wishing to disbe-

What is the motive behind the Ger-man attack on Verdun? Is it a mil-itary operation undertaken with a purely military purpose? Or is it a demonstration intended primarily to influence opinion outside Germany and to strengthen the logic of Ger-man arguments in favor of an early peace?

From the strictly military point of view the capture of Verdun would materially improve the German posi-tion on the western front. It would break the great French salient which has stretched since September, 1914, to the northeast, east and southeast to the northeast, east and southeast about Vordun-running in the form of a halt circle from Brabant, on the Meuse north of the French fortress, to St. Mihiel, on the Meuse south of it. The most easterly point of this semicificle is almost within artillery range of Metz, the chief German base in Lerraine. So long as this French salient is held the safety of Metz is compromised.

St. Mihiel the Germans drove late in 1914, a long, thin wedge into the French line. At the tip of this wedge they hold the banks of the Meuse. But they are cramped into But they are cramped into Meuse. But they are cramped into an uncomfortably narrow space by the French forces holding the south-ern curve of the Verdun salient and other French forces stretching east from below St. Mihiel to a point diretcly south of Metz. Pressure on this German wedge would be relieved and the German line would be advan-tageously straightened and shortened if the French should be obliged to retire from Verdun and take up new positions to the westward of the line of the Aire. Perhaps as an offensive-defensive peration the capture of Verdun or its particular reduction, would repay the sacrifices made by the Crown Prince's armies to clear this section of the Meuse. The British made just as heavy sacrifices relations as heavy sacrifices, relatively, gains much less important, at Neuve Chapelle. The French and British for had to submit to losses just as severe in their offensive last fall about Lens, in proportion to the numbers engaged. But Germany does not need to fol-low—she can hardly afford to follow —the policy of "nibbling" on the western front. She is playing the Allies' game in engaging in a war of attrition. She holds both French and Belgian territory, and for fifteen months' past has been satisfied mere-ly to attack on the Russian and Bel ly to attack on the Russian and Bal-kan fronts, economizing her strength by remaining on the defensive in the west. It is not probable that she would have undertaken a task so costwould have undertaken a task so cost-ly in lives as the capture of Verdun if she has had no other object than the local successes involved in a straightening of her long line along the Meuse. She must have had in mind the moral and political effect at this juncture of a victory on the at this juncture of a victory on the west front and have been willing to gamble on that victory, however lim-ited in values its strictly military

Submarines were very busy on a certain trade route, and the admiral in charge was very keen on rooting out their base of supplies. Every niche and opening in the coastline was thoroughly searched, but nothing was found

The commander of the destroyer was in a very unamiable mood, and swore he would not return to the Fleet empty-handed to be globed at by the admiral, who was evidently, I gather-ed, a man of pungent and profane tongue. To all appearances it look-ed as if they were doomed to cruise about till the day of judgment.

But the cherub that sits up aloft, and the luck of the British navy, interened.

One morning a disreputable-looking Dutch tramp hove in sight, wallowing along westward at the rate of eight knots, and the skipper decided to in-terview her for news. But he learned nothing, and found the ship's papers in perfect order. Still he besiteted to in perfect order. Still he hesitated to leave her; he had an intuition that something was wrong, and ordered a party of men to search her. The ves-sel was loaded with barrels of dairy produce; nothing incriminating was discovered, and the Dutchman began to get impatient at the delay. And then the unforeseen happened.

In restoring the cargo one of the bar-rels slipped, and, assisted by a very heavy lurch of the vessel, rolled up to a bulkhead and smashed. Lo and behold! the innocuous dairy produce proved to be tightly packed and carefully wrapped-tins of petrol! Others barrels were then staved in, and all the contents were the sametins and tins of petrol. The command-

According to the German view the Allies are unreasonable to see that prudence counsels them to accept the terms of peace which Germany is now willing to offer. The Kaiser's armies have won victories on every front. They hold tens of thousands of square miles of every territory. The German government is naturally willing to make any settlement which will able it to cash a respectable share of its winnings.

But the Allies will not confess themselves beaten. They still cling to the theory that members must tell in the end and that German resources must fail before their own begin to fail. That is an argument which Berlin despises. It can be met only one way-by violent efforts in the field, to prove that Germany can still defy the Allied overweight in numbers.

Germany's first rejoinder to the arithmetical argument was the Gal-ician-Polish campaign. Her second was the campaign in the Balkans. Her third is the attack on Verdun. She DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

For many years a favorite pastime of the literary diletante has been to ferret out mistakes made by cele-brated authors. Writers of the h.gh-est standing have been guilty of ab-surd "bloomers," such as Flaubert's assertion that "the two adversaries were placed at an equal distance from each other." Mistakes of this sort were placed at an equal distance from each other." Mistakes of this sort have been excused on the ground that the authors were working under pres-sure of inspiration and were therefore likely at any time to make minor errors. Stories of to-day do not, as a rule, Stories of to-day do not, as a rule, appear to be written under the stress of temperamental excitement. Yet, in spite of their seemingly cool sophisti-cation, they are not lacking in curious mistakes. A short list of these er-rors has been compiled by a writer.

are nearly always suggestive of this method of portrayal and figure subjects largely preponderated in early decorative schemes.

Another peculiarity of art decora tions, in the period nearest its dawn, was the absence of attempts at grouping of the figures, they were mostly profiles and separate and outline only, without relief modelling. The advent of the scuiptor relieved this monotony in adaptation and application without passing from the theme of the art mo-tifs of that age. For centuries the human figure remained the prevailing feature of ornamentation. In the early days of Greece, where sculpture first took definite artistic form, we find Daeodalus, 1400 years before the Christian era, producing such representations of the deities worshipped in his age that he ob-tained sufficient celebrity thereby to ensure the existence of his name as

He rose to eminence from a very humble position through his efforts to faithfully depict the "human form divine" by the direct study of nature. He rejected many of the old conventional rules which earlier artists had followed. He aimed at idealizing human beauty rather than that of the gods, and at representing the grace and mobility of the male figure, Hercules being his favorite study. The Word "Canvassing."

How "canvassing" got its election significance is a puzzle. The word ap-pears originally to have meant togs-ing in a canvas or blanket and thence ing in a canvas or blanket and thence generally mishandling or assaulting. "I'll canvass thee in thy broad car-dinal's hat," is the Duke of Glouces-ter's threat to the Bishop of Wan-chester in "King Henry VI." The next stage of meaning was that of next stage of meaning was that of destructive criticism, from which to thorough discussion-"canvassing" a subject—was simple enough. But how exactly did it arrive at the election Dr. Johnson explained that sense? the term meant "trying votes previ-ously to the decision" and derived it from "canvas, as it signifies a sleve."

Our wedding cake is the remains of a custom whereby a Roman bride held in her left hand three wheat cars, and many centuries later an English bride wore on her head a chaplet of wheat. The attendant girls threw corn, either in grains or in small bits of buscuit or cake, upon the heads of the newly-married couple, and the guests picked up the pieces and at them. Such was beginning of the wedding cake, which did not come into general use until the eighteenth century and was then composed of solid blocks laid to-gether and leed all over with sugar so that when the outer crust was bicken over the bride's head the cakes inside fell to the floor, and they were

Dan R. Conway Bucks the Line

Dan. R. Conway, editor of the Scobey Sentinel, East Scobey, Montana, U.S.A., once an apprentice in The Athens Reporter office, has been forced by the liquor interests to re-sign his position. He has been taking a leading part in the anti-saloon activi-ties of his county; his paper, the Sentinel, coming out strongly on the side of County Option.

The liquor men, by acquiring some of the joint holdings of the newspaper concern, and forcing an incorporation of the company, placed Conway in a position where his attitude must necessarily have been neutral, or "wet." He, however, resigned, and the last edition of his paper announced his intention of starting a new one, The Scobey Plaindealer.

Increase Wheat Output

"The country whose agricultural industry can be kept up to the maximum of production in war time is the one whose armies can remain in the field the longest," declared Mr. A. E. Donovan, M.P.P., speaking on "Canada's Responsibilities" "Canada's Responsibilities" before the Empire Club at the Cafe Royal on Thursday afternoon in Toronto.

"While the old maxim, 'An army marches on its belly,' has been made to read in these days of motor transport, 'An army marches. on its gasoline,' still the old maxim is still true," continued Mr. Donovan. "Not only must production be increased to supply the millions of men under arms and therefore withdrawn from productive labor, but it is out of the agricultural respuces of the country that the nation is mabled to pay the war debts that have had to be contracted; not only military efficiency but food supply also, a great factor in the struggle now being waged.

"Ontario's farmers have responded heartily to the appeal of the Minister of Agriculture to plow more land, break up more pasture and sow an increased acreage of fall wheat. Our annual production of wheat totals some 27 million bushels, an increase of seven millions over 1914, which could easily be increased to 35 million bushels.

"Our agricultural production has not kept pace with the rapid growth of the country and the consequently greatly increased requirements of the population. Manufacturing has more than doubled in the past dozen years. Horses have increased in number 50 per cent. and food animals 20 per cent.

"We must produce more and im port less. In the last nine months we have reduced the balance of trade ageinst us by $80,006,000.' Mr. Donovan stated that out of

"I presume you will need a little something for carriage and other tri-fles," handing the man five five-dollar hills

"But, my dear sir, you don't know me. What is to prevent my pocketing this money and not seeing you again?" "Excuse me for contradicting you.

I do know you. What you say is by no means complimentary to my discernment. I know a gentleman when I see him and would know him if he vere in the garb of a huckster."

"Thank you very much." The agent, Mr. Pulsifer Short, took the man's name and address, the name given being Ralph Plummer. "Assumed?" said Mr. Short dryly.

"As you like," was the response. When Mr. Plummer appeared at Mrs. Ritz's-he was directed to be on hand in time to be looked over-she brought a lorgnette to bear on him and after asking him a few questions s "My most blueblooded guest for the evening is Miss De Witt. wait to send it to him. He games as it and handed it back to her. "Excuse me, Mrs. Ritz," he said, "but Mr. Shoft has settled with me." "But this is extra."

Plummer winced. What! Accept a tip for entertaining his dinger companion? Poverty had brought him to hiring himself out for a social purpose, but to be paid for the pleasure Miss De Witt had given him-this was more than he could bear. Seizing his hat and coat, he bolted for the door.

He had no idea of accepting Miss De Witt's invitation. Being a gentle-man, he felt that to do so while he was thus making his living would be an outrage. He had no choice but to proceed, fo the present, in the only occupation that was open to him and must use it or starve. Mr. Short gave him all the employment he would accept, which was barely enough to keep body and soul together. He did not meet Miss De Witt again at any of the places he danced or dined, for she did not know the persons who gave the entertainments

But one morning he received a valuable invitation-not a paid one-to a musicale given by a Mrs. Yearsley. Who Mrs. Yearsley was or why she had invited him he did not know. Curiosity led him to accept. What was his surprise, after greeting the hostess, to be led up to Miss De Witt.

"You two have met before, I believe," said Mrs. Yearsley. "I leave him with you, Catherine; see that he is properly taken care of." "Am I indebted to you for this invitation?" he asked. "I am indebted to my friend Mrs.

Yearsley for inviting you. But you don't deserve it. You have been very rude to me." "In what way?"

"You have paid no attention to my request that you should call on me." Plummer hesitated in replying to this, finally saying that it would not be proper for him to accept an invitation to call upon a lady into whose social circle he had no entree.

"Your excuse is not accepted." "Very well; I will do myself the honor to call very soon."

"I shall expect you."

"I must impose one condition." "What is it?" "That you ask for no more invitations for me." "Certainly," replied the lady, "since you do not wish it."

She asked for no reason, which some what puzzled Mr. Plummer. Did she know that he had been present at Mrs. Ritz's as a filler? He thought not.

Those who hired such persons were not likely to tell of their action. He made the call and continued his acquaintance with Miss De Witt. One day a letter was handed to him by a young man, who said to him: "Are you Mr. Ralph Plummer?" "I am."

"I am from Elkins & Elkins, attorneys. They have been hunting you for some time."

Plummer tore off the envelope and ancovered another addressed to Sir Ralph Trevor. "Is that you?" asked the lawyer's clerk. Plummer's only reply was to open the second envelope. A letter contain-ed in it announced to him that an un-cle in England had died childless and he was heir to his title.

Plummer, or, rather, Sir Ralph Trevor, leaving the messenger to take care of himself, went out, called a cab and directed the driver to take him to Miss De Witt's home.

"I have come," he said to her, "to make a confession. Poverty and an unwillingness to be dependent on those in England who"-

The above figures represent the estimated loss by farmers through Smut in grain crops in Ontario in 1915.

If you had a field of oats, barley, or wheat, you no doubt contributed to the great loss. By reason of the prevalence of Smut last year, the danger is rendered greater this year. There is one way to prevent this,

TREAT YOUR SEED FOR SMUT

The method adopted is as follows: Mix one pint of formalin with 40 gallons of water, or 2 tablespoonfuls to 1 pail of water. Place the grain to be treated in a heap on clean canvas or floor. Sprinkle the formalin moistened by the solution: then cover the pile with sacking, and leave for 3 or 4 hours. At the end of this time, spread the grain out thinly to dry; shovelling it over three or four times will hasten the drying. Forty gal-lons of the formalin solution is sufficient to sprinkle thirty or forty bushels of grain, smaller amounts in proportion. Immersing the grain in a bag is sometimes. practised, and is equally effective.

Mr. Plummer was shown into a room where the guests were assembled. They were not all unrefined, and Miss De Witt was evidently high bred. But she was not as Mrs. Ritz had described her, being unassuming and ladylike. Though she was not among persons of her own set, she did not indicate by her manner that she was out of place. When her dinner companion was introduced to her she looked at him with an expression that he could not well define. It might have been surprise. "Mr. Plummer, did you say, Mrs. Ritz?'

"Yes. This is Mr. Plummer, an old friend of ours."

The filler passed one of the pleasantest evenings of his life, feeling from the first en rapport with his companion. Mrs. Ritz conducted herself quite well, considering that her husband had started his career as a foun-dryman, but several of her guests made serious breaks. At such times Miss De Witt either went on with what she was saying to Mr. Plummer or listened attentively to what he said to her altogether ignoring the Plummer was too much enbreach grossed with her to even know that a case of ill breeding had occurred.

When the hour for departure came Miss De Witt did not wait for Mr. Plummer to ask permission to call upon her. It is well she did not, for he would not have made the request. He was, however, much pleased when she

Call it rather pride.

"Call it what you like, my position in America has been contemptible. But there has been a change. I am going to tell you who I really am."

"There is no need to tell me that. You are a gentleman, for I once met you in London society."

"You met me?"

"For only a moment. I don't wonder that you have not remembered

"Why have you not told me this?" "Because you seemed to prefer to re-main incognito."

"And you know how I have been keeping myself from starvation here?" Miss De Witt prevaricated. She knew, for Mrs. Ritz had told her. But she wished to make it easy for him. She said that was none of her affair. He informed her that he was an or-phan; that his uncle had led him to suppose that he would be his heir to his fortune, as well as to his title, and had thereupon undertaken to direct his every action. The young man had rebelled and gone away. Death had brought a great change and he was going back to England.

Among the American born ladies prominent in English society is Lady Trevor, who was Miss De Witt of New York. When she comes to America she comes alone. Her husband does not relish being reminded of the period when he was a social hireling.

But in this Sir Ralph is oversensitive. In America there are no titles. Consequently Americans-that is, the social climbers-place very high value upon them. It would not matter among such if a title were smirched all over; it would still be coveted. Arms, quartered with prison stripes are still arms, and the social climber would prefer any bar sinister to no arms at all. It is quite likely that if Sir Ralph returned to the scene of his op-erations as a social filler the fact that he was capable of being a filler would redound to his credit.

"Neu-Tone" for the Walls

It is so easy and so economical to have a beautifully decorated home, with "NEU-TONE" Flat Finish.

The soft, restful "Neu-Tone" tints will delight the woman and man who appreciate refinement and delicacy in the home.

When you "Neu-Tone" the walls, you save all fuss and bother of washing and scraping the plaster to re-decorate. Simply apply another coat of "NEU-TONE" in any shade or tint desired.

"NEU-TONE" is cheaper than wall paper. It is truly economical-absolutely sanitary-can't fade, scale or rub off-AND IS WASHABLE. Soap and water cleans a "NEU-TONE" wall and takes away dust, stains and finger prints.

To-day's effort achieved even less success than that which preceded it and the Germans, failing to secure a foothold anywhere in the French linos, were forced to fall back to the Pors des Corbeaux.

was the only offensive at. tempted by the Germans in this sector to-day, although on the right bank of the river the artillery of both sides greatly increased its activity in the regions of Douaumont and Vaux. Gorman troops in movement in this region were brought under the French fire on several occasions, suggesting that these troops may have been in-tended for some infantry action which was blocked by the effectiveness of the French guns. Both artilleries contirued the cannonading on the slopes between the Woevre plain and the latights of the Meuso.

Last night the French artillery gavo particular attention to the district west of Douanmont, where the Germans were building defence works.

The French bombardment of Ger-man positions in the region of Nicuport, Belglum, yesterday, resulted, according to reports of French patrols, in completely destroying the German communicating trenches about La Plage, and a number of enemy fatalities.

London Cable-I have just return d from a short trip to the leastern front in France, toward Verdun, and from a visit to the first line trenches at another part of the line. The French are well prepared and officers and men are all cheerful and confident of success.

French artillery officers whom met on the train from Bar-le-Duc to Paris on Sunday tota me that the German fire had been slackening for three days, with an occasional heavy rain of shells at sundown. To prevent reserves being moved up, the Germans, they said, were wasting an enormous number of enelis from their 5.9-inch guns on a curtain of firc which was really spraying the ground rotween the first and second lines of the French forces. A major, said that his battery was shelled at the rate of six shots per minute for twenty-four hours, while battleplanes operated overhead, directing the gunfire and unsuccessfully dropping bombs. Ger-man aeroplanes also trieu to drop bombs on a bridge leading to Verdun, to cut the French line of communi-cation. The French anti-craft guns cation. The French anti-craft guns failed to hit the battleplanes, but suc-ceeded in bringing down one Zeppelin ceeded in bringing over on March 8 while it was flying over Verdun. After having shelled his battery for twenty-four hours, the major said, the Germans tried to take his guns by assault. As they came on in close for-mation the "seventy-fives" mowed, them down in hundreds. At one point there was a small gully in which the German dead were piled twenty-five feet high through the assailants trying again and again to advance over the bodies of their comrades. From the bodies of their comrades. From the opening of the bombardment until the cessation of the infantry assaults, a period of thirty-six hours, the of-ficers and men of the main battery on a hill outside Verdun had neither food nor water. This officer said he believ-ed that the critical stage of the battle had passed.

AMBULANCE WORK.

Walter Stanley, an English ambu-lance driver attached to the French Red Cross, returned yesterday after working sixteen days rushing the wounded from Verdun to Bar-le-Duc. When this bombardment began the French wounded were placed in bar racks at Verdun, which had been converted into a hospital. There was also small hospital with 125 beds near the main battery on the south side of the city. In: de of three hours the latter was filled, while more than 500 were lying on stretchers outside. When the Germans began shelling the town wounded had to be removed from the hospital. As there were not en-cugh French motor ambulances to do the work, forty were rushed to Verdun from the British Red

Austro-Italian Front Sees Hand-to-Hand Struggle,

With the Ally Power Gaining the Advantage.

London Cable says-Desperate attacks on the Austrian lines along the Isonzo are being continued by the Italians in their determined offensive in that region, according to the Austrian headquarters statement. On the Podgora heights the Italians were only driven back from the Austrian positions by bitter hand-to-hand fighting.

The Italian statement claims that some of these positions were captured, and states that there has been fierce and states that there has been herce fighting on the Carso for the posses-sion of the positions captured by the Italians Tuesday in the san Martino zone. After severe artillery prepara-tions the Austrians launched two strong attacks, and succeeded in reach-ing the brink of the new Italian trenches, but were on each occasion vigorously repulsed, leaving the ground covered with dead. Austrian artillery subsequently endeavored to force the evacuation of the trencaes by the Italians, but the latter were enabled to hold the positions.

ITALIAN REPORT.

Rome Cable—The official state-nent from general headquarters ment says

"Artillery duels and minor infantry actions have resulted successfully for us in Lagarona valley on Astico Heights and in the Sugana valley. A thick fog yesterday impeded artillery activity on the Isonzo heights, but the irring was more intense on the hills to the west of Gorizia.

"There has been fierce fighting on the Carso for the possession of the position we captured Tuesday in the San Martino zone. After severe artillery and musketry preparation, the enemy launched two strong attacks and succeeded in reaching the brink of our new trenches, but was on each occasion vigorously repulsed, leaving the ground covered with dead.

"In the morning the enemy artil-ery renewed the attack, maintaining it with increasing violence until night, but the firmness of our infantry and the constant and effective support of our batteries enabled us to hold our positions.

"Along the rest of the front our detachments continued their attacks, wrecking the enemy's trenches with tachments grenades in various places, inflicting lesses and causing explosions.'

BACKING DOWN

A Berlin Cable says-For the first time since the outbreak of the war all is not harmony among the various representations in the Reichstag. When the German Parliamentary body reconvened yesterday it became at once evident that the Socialists, heretofore the only party from which trouble was expected, and usually came, are not the only dissenters, but that there is a strong under-current of opposition to the Government even among the National Liberals and Conservatives, hitherto its most loyal supporters.

Berlin's political atmosphere is today fraught with ominous tension. Many Recenstag Cologates who thus The proved the Government's c-if memorandum and no phars, are now openly intreatening intra-received situation, the Govern-precedented situation, the Govern-the lid off the discussion of the Govrmacents foreign policy, and through the medium of a speech by Foreign Minister Jagow, reviewing and ex-Allineter Jagow, revenue and ex-plaining this poley, to invite an open debate. SAW SAFETY FIRST FILM C.P.R. Officials Viewed Sile Drama to Stimulate

A realastic moving picture film in the interests of the Safety First Movement was recently displayed in a specially fitted car at Windsor Station be ore Vice-President Bury and a number of C.P.R. officials.

The film was produced by Mr. Macus A. Dow, general safety agent, New York Central Lines, and tells the story of a railroad man, Jack Foster, whose carelessness endangered the happiness of his wife and home until his friend, Jim Stevens, a booster for the Safety First, convinces him by demonstrating awful examples that it is worse to gamble for life than To gamble in any other way. One man loses his leg, and other accidents are realistically portrayed in an exhibi-tion at the Safety Rally to which Jim Stevens takes Jack Foster-such as the shopman who loses an eye through not wearing goggles, the carpenter losing a finger while working at a bozz saw without the guard, the brakeman being iun over while iunning between moving cars, the engine-man being killed while boardin, the footboard of an engine in motion. Particularly impressive is the picture of a collision due to slowness in flagging.

In order to promote the Safety First Movement in Canada, Mr. Bury has secured a copy of the film, which will be offered to moving picture houses at divisional and other important railroad points along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.
