Benjamin Franklin—"Father of American Diplomacy"

AMERICA has never produced a greater statesman than Franklin, who was revered by the people second only to Washington. He was a signer of both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, and his wisdom made the latter a possibility. The great Lord Chatham pronounced him not only an honor to the Anglo-Saxon people, but to human nature. In every capital of Europe he was a welcome guest, and he it was who induced France to lend us ships, men and money during the darkest days of the Revolution. Upon his death Congress ordered a general mourning for three days. So long as Americans treasure the Republic and Personal Liberty as the noblest of all human blessings, the fame of Franklin can never perish. Personally he was possessed of robust health; he was a well-shaped man, of a wise but merry nature; he had the head of a Greek philosopher, while his grace, his noble bearing and winning personality made him a conspicuous figure in any assemblage of great men. He was a moderate user all his lifetime of Old Madeira and barley-malt beer. It is safe to say that he toasted the New Republic with every great man of Europe and America. Franklin considered his work in building the Constitution his greatest service to posterity. Upon the self-evident declaration of the Constitution of the United States Anheuser-Busch 48 years ago launched their gigantic institution. To-day, wherever Americans go for health, or business, or pleasure, their famed brand BUDWEISER is there. Its popularity, due to its quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor, has daily grown in public favor until 7500 people are constantly employed to keep pace with the ever-increasing demand. When in St. Louis visit the home of BUDWEISER.

Stella Mordant: —OR— The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XLIII.

Ralph accompanied his fellow-magistrates into the small room. It was only dimly lit, and he got out of the light as much as possible and stood with his back to the wall. He knew the date of his father's marriage to his mother well enough, and so longer Earl of Ratton, but a nobody and nameless; and he expected that the men around him would turn their backs upon him.

But it scarcely need be said that he was wrong. They were gentlemen, and gentlemen stand by a man when he is down, especially when he falls through no fault of his own.

So, to his surprise, they gathered round him, eager to express their sympathy, and to offer encouragement, and, if need be, consolation.

Lord Hatherley was the first to speak. He had mastered his agitation, and, though grave enough, spoke easily, and with a faint smile.

"This case abounds in surprises, Ralph," he said. "I imagine this is one we need not count as serious."

"No, no!" said Lord Parodel, laying his hand on Ralph's shoulder. "Too much like a play at a theatre, eh, Ratton? Don't you upset yourself, don't you worry; you'll find that there's nothing in it."

"Of course not," echoed the young duke, nodding at Ralph cheerfully. "People are always disputing one's title nowadays, and laying claim to one's estate; but it never comes to much, does it?"

"My opinion is that it's either a forgery or a piece of delirious raving on the part of the poor woman. Been wrecked, you know, and lost her reason. See?" said another.

Ralph looked round with a sickly smile. Most men would have been grateful for their kindly consideration; but Ralph was incapable of gratitude; it is a plant that only grows on gracious soils.

"Oh, it's all right, thanks," he drawled. "I'm not afraid. It's a forgery, I daresay; and I suppose it will give me some trouble; but I shall fight the claim, and win, in the end, I've no doubt."

"Of course, of course!" was the chorus of assent.

Ralph passed his hand over his clammy forehead, and smiled again, and Lord Hatherley drew him out of the room.

"The carriage is waiting, Ralph; and if you are half as tired as I am, you will be glad to get home."

As they made their way through the crowd which still hung about the court house, Ralph saw Workley standing talking to Green.

Ralph made a sign to him, and Workley, scarcely turning his head, nodded sullenly.

"This is a troublesome business, Ralph," said Lord Hatherley, as they were driven through the mob. "Of course the dates are wrong, and—"

"Of course!" responded Ralph, defiantly. "The dates in the certificate have been altered—I mean that my mother was married before this woman, whoever she was. Do you think Bulpit would have recognized my claim, that he doesn't know his business?"

"Just so, just so! We must meet the claim boldly; and I've no doubt it will soon be disposed of. But what a romance! If that young girl should be your half-sister, Ralph!"

Ralph swore savagely.

"She's an impostor!" he exclaimed. "She is as bad as the scoundrel in the dock! It is all a plant, a conspiracy! But we will deal with her after we have dealt with him. He'll be committed to-morrow, and—"

this awful business. She is ill enough as it is, poor girl!"

When they reached the Hall gates, Ralph stopped the carriage.

"I'll get out here," he said. "I'm tired, and shall be glad to be alone and quiet."

Lord Hatherley assented at once.

"Will you come round later—shall I come to you?" he asked, considerably; but Ralph shook his head.

"I think I'd rather be alone," he said.

He walked up the avenue with dragging step, for now that he was out of observation the fictitious courage waned quickly.

He fancied that the footman who opened the door, the butler who stood by, Parkins, who noiselessly hurried to meet him, displayed in their countenances their knowledge of his true position; and with a harsh, "Keep dinner till I ring," went straight to the den, and, of course, straight to the cellar.

"What should he do? The question hammered at his hot brain as, half unconsciously, he drank glass after glass of brandy.

At one moment he had almost decided to take refuge in flight; the next, as the brandy mounted to his brain, and lent him its insidious warmth, he resolved to face the situation, and fight against the claimant, whoever he might be.

A knock at the window made him start and clutch at a chair for support; but he knew who to expect, and opening the window, let Workley in.

"You want to see me?" he said, scarcely raising his eyes to Ralph's face.

Ralph noticed the absence of "my lord," and gnawed at his lip.

"The one in London—yes. And strange to say, I saw him a week after his other marriage—to your mother—in Melbourne. He was on a spree, and in a fit of the blues he told me what he had done. It was bigamy, right enough."

"Then—then—my mother—I—"

"You were born a year before her marriage," said Workley, with a callous indifference which intensified Ralph's agony of impotent fury. "You are, therefore, illegitimate—"

"I am not the earl—not—not—" "Certainly not."

"Curse—" broke from Ralph's white lips; but Workley stopped him with a gesture.

"Your own father! But please yourself. What do you want with me?"

Ralph paced up and down.

"What—what am I to do?" he asked, hoarsely.

Workley shrugged his shoulders.

"I don't know. See here, my lord—that is—ah, well! It doesn't matter—I've too much on my mind to interest myself in your affairs. I've been hit badly—" His voice grew husky. "The woman I loved—" He could not go on for a moment or two. "I've only one thing to live for—to see the man who did it, swing."

Ralph started, and eyed him sideways.

"There's no doubt of that scoundrel's guilt," he said. "The evidence—" "Yes," broke in Workley, savagely; "but the court's with him! I can see it! Don't tell me! I can see it!"

Workley looked at him with scarcely veiled contempt.

"Show fight," he said; "show fight as long as you can, and while the struggle's going on, get as much money together as you can, and"—he nodded significantly—"that is what I should do. What else is there?"

Ralph made a gesture of impatience.

"To lose all!" he whined. "I'll give you some money."

Workley mixed himself a glass of brandy and water.

"Your loss is nothing compared with mine," he said, brokenly. "My life's finished with. It—it was for her that I wanted that farm. Now I want nothing but my revenge. And I'll have that!"

His hand clenched on the glass as it struck his sharp-closed teeth.

Ralph shuddered as Workley moved to the window.

"Wait! Who—who is the heir?—but you won't know. I must see Bulpit—Bulpit will help me for his own sake."

Workley shrugged his shoulders again and opened the window.

"All the Bulpits in the world can't help you to keep the title; and the money belongs to that young lady your father's lawful daughter," he said. "Take my advice and—make hay while the sun shines."

Ralph watched him go down the terrace, then threw himself in a chair and tried to weigh Workley's advice.

Flight! It seemed the only thing to do. But to surrender everything—title, money, Mary— Ah, Mary! whom he was now free to marry! No; he would remain and fight it out!

But he wavered and hesitated two or three hours before he fell into a stupor of exhaustion and intoxication, and he even went so far as to try and calculate how much ready money he could lay his hands on; but the dawn creeping through the curtains found him lying in the chair with pallid face and twitching lips; and when the court assembled on the morrow he was in his former seat behind Lord Hatherley's chair, trying to face the curious, eager eyes of the crowd and the sympathy of his fellow-magistrates with a forced smile of confidence and serenity.

Ralph was a scoundrel of the worst type; but there was the Ratton blood in his veins; and, in that strange way in which blood shows itself, it was manifest in him now.

The crowd was, this day, a singularly quiet one. The intensity of the interests involved was too great to permit of any noise, and the jammed and packed mass stood shoulder to shoulder in perfect silence.

Even when Stella, accompanied by the Lisles, entered, it made no sound, and beyond a murmur, it gave no sign when Rath was brought in, and going to the front of the dock, looked round for Stella, smiled calmly, and waited as if he were the last person in the court to have cause for fear.

Almost as soon as the bench were seated, Mr. Bulpit rose.

"My lord," he said, "for reasons which will shortly appear, I retire from the case. Mr. Grahame will more worthily fill my place."

There was a start of surprise as the well-known barrister rose; for no one knew that Mr. Bulpit had wired for him and had been in consultation with him during a greater part of the night.

The famous counsel bowed to the bench.

"I have an application to make, your worships, and that is that the prisoner's name should be altered on the charge-sheet."

RIGID ECONOMY!

In a recent speech in London, Premier Asquith urged personal thrift throughout the nation so as to make it possible for the country to bear the strain of the expenditure entailed by the cost of War.

Let us show you how you can reduce your expenses at least 35%. Make frequent use of the Dry Cleaning and Dyeing processes. In the past you have discarded garments which could easily have been restored to original freshness and beauty through our cleaning process.

Twelve men were killed on the Anglo-Californian, including the captain and eight were injured. The ship was saved by the clever handling of her skipper, who manoeuvred the ship out of reach of the submarine's torpedo until he was shot down on the bridge. All were victims of a hall of shells. They were landed at Queenstown, most of them shockingly mutilated. The Anglo-Californian sailed from Montreal with a cargo of horses on June 23rd.

PARIS, July 5.
The French steamer Carthage was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine near Cape Helles on July 4th, according to an official statement issued here to-day. Sixty-six members of the crew were saved; sixteen are missing. Two German submarines were sighted yesterday in the English Channel by the second High French squadron. Both submarines plunged, but one was hit by several shells before it disappeared.

FRENCH SCHOONER SUNK.

The Spanish steamer Juan arrived to-day with the captain and seven men of the French schooner Hiron-delle, which was sunk on July 2nd, by a German submarine.

DRIVING BACK THE AUSTRIANS.
GENEVA, July 5.
Severe fighting is in progress on the plateau of Cornico and Doberdo between Italians and Austro-Hungarians. According to advices received here to-day from the front, the Austrians continue to cast down boulders and blow up hidden rock galleries on the advancing Italian mountaineers. A large Italian army is reported to be marching on Plava from Western Gorizia, and to be methodically driving back the Austrians despite severe resistance.

TURKISH CASUALTIES.
LONDON, July 5.
The total Turkish casualties in the Dardanelles operations between June 28th and July 2nd, were 5,150 men killed, and 15,000 wounded, according to an announcement made to-night by the British Official Bureau.

NO PEACE TILL BELGIUM IS RIGHTED.
SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.
Mrs. Ethel Snowden, wife of Philip Snowden, M.P., told the women peace workers of many nations here to-day that no peace advocate in Britain wants peace until the wrongs of Belgium have been righted. She spoke to the International Conference of women workers to promote permanent peace, from a rostrum hung with peace pennants, canopied by a giant white banner lettered in purple with the words, "Revolt against war." The peace workers of Britain, she said, realize that to a martyr nation, the theory of obtaining peace is not practical politics and cannot succeed.

WARNS COMPATRIOTS.
BERLIN, July 5.
Admiral Oscar von Truppet, who was at one time Governor of Kiau Chau, the German concession in the Chinese Province of Shan Tsang, which was captured in November last by the Japanese, contributes an article to-day to the "Der Tag" warning his compatriots not to underestimate the danger of a breach with the States, and asking them to weigh seriously the question to whether the value of Germany's submarine warfare against British commerce is enough to justify the continuance in its present form at the expense of a rupture with the trans-Atlantic nations. The article is remarkable not only for its open statement regarding the wide reaching effects which the participation of America in hostilities would have on future course of the war, effects which Admiral von Truppet says are greatly underestimated in Germany, but also as a contribution to be heard from a naval officer. All the naval publicists of Germany hitherto heard from have been devoted their energies in accelerating public opinion against any modification of submarine campaign, endeavoring to prevent or limit the concessions in the American demands in the forthcoming German note to Washington. The campaign between the advocates and opponents of a compromise is intense, and the delivery of the note, which a few days ago was scheduled for Monday or Tuesday, will probably be delayed several days. The kernel to the problem, from a German standpoint, concludes von Truppet, is contained in this question: "Can we hope, so far as we are able to foresee, to force England to its knees through submarine warfare against her commerce?" If the answer is negative, our submarines can find better employment against hostile warships, particularly in hunting the grounds of the Mediterranean, the Dardanelles, and the Suez Canal. Submarine warfare against merchantmen in that case could be modified or abandoned in order to obtain a more favorable neutrality from, and friendship of, America, which would be of great value to Germany after the war. If the answer is in the affirmative, then the law of self-preservation would justify us, in the situation that England has forced upon us, in using to the fullest extent our superiority in submarines, and we can calmly accept all consequences of it.

Collegians Win From Casuals.

In last evening's football game the Collegians defeated the Casuals by a score of three goals to all. During the first half of the game the Collegians were in excellent form, and through Pike, Coultas and Kendrick finding the net in turn. During the second half the Casuals put on a spurt and both sides gave a good exhibition, the combination of the Casuals being a particular feature of the game. They pressed their opponents hard but failed to score, and when the final whistle sounded the score stood 3 to 0 in favor of the Collegians. W. Duggan refereed the game and the line up was as follows:
Collegians—Goal, Worrell; backs, Heath, Quick; halves, Pike, Barnes, Pike; forwards, Ellis, Coultas, Kendrick, Searle, Gear.
Casuals—Goal, Peters; backs, Heston, Hartley; halves, Goudie, Pike, Reid; forwards, Marshall, Smith, Rendell, Pearce, Chauncey.

A SUFFICIENCY.

It's good to have the dollars, enough to buy cigars, and handsome linen collars, and maybe motor cars. It's good to have a plenty, to keep the wolf away, and lay up ten or twenty rolls for the rainy day.

Blames the War Office
Will Crooks Says Woolwich Arsenal is Not Working at Capacity.
London, June 30.—The Daily Chronicle publishes an interview with Will Crooks, M.P., for Woolwich, who asserts that the Woolwich arsenal is not working at its full capacity, and with proper organization its output could be increased by one-third. The men are not at fault, he says; they are willing to do all in their power to facilitate the output of munitions, yet in some departments the men are only working the ordinary eight hours a day.
Crooks also gives examples of munitions which could have been made at Woolwich which were not.
The Chronicle, commenting editorially, says:
"We can also give cases of orders which Woolwich executed promptly, while private firms were behind. Take the case, for instance, of a certain type of gun. The Royal Gun Factory was asked to make thirty-six at the same time as three armament firms, Vickers, Armstrong's and the Coventry Ordnance received orders for precisely the same number of guns. Woolwich delivered the guns on time, but the three firms had only eight ready in advance of 168."
"From information of this kind which has reached us we can only deduce that in the early months of the war the responsible heads of the ordnance department showed little foresight. The usual armament firms were filled up with orders which they could not execute within contract time. The War Office gave orders, but did not make arrangements to guarantee that the nation had munitions in time. The immediate responsibility for the belated delivery of munitions should be brought home to the department."

THE SWISS PEOPLE.

There is no Swiss race. There is no Swiss language. The people of Switzerland are German, French, or Italian in race and language. But in patriotism they are all Swiss.
Of the twenty-two cantons fifteen are German, five are French, and two are Italian. Incidentally it may be mentioned that twelve of the cantons are strongly Protestant and ten strongly Catholic. Yet there is absolute national unity. Switzerland stands solidly and harmoniously for Switzerland. The German Swiss of Schaffhausen are not for Germany; the French Swiss of Geneva are not for France; the Italian Swiss of Ticino are not for Italy; and this in spite of the fact that these outlying cantons are almost surrounded by Germany, France and Italy respectively. Racial ties and ties of language may be strong, but the ties of patriotism are much stronger.—Cleveland "Plain Dealer."

BRITISH THEATRE.
To-night patrons of the popular British will have their last opportunities to see the really great program which is offered. To-morrow and Thursday the usual entire change will take place with the addition of extra pictures in the afternoon for the children. The feature is a splendid two reel Lubin photo-play entitled "His Brother's Blood." This is a remarkable story and it is intensely interesting. The great American Satirist and humorist, George Ade, will be presented by one of his famous fables that of "The Good Samaritan" who got paralysis in his helping hand." It is a splendid example of high class satire. Miss Elsie Tapper and Arthur Priestman complete the bill.
"SEED AND THE HARVEST" AT THE CRESCENT.
The fine pictures displayed to-day at the Popular Crescent Picture Palace attracted all the sessions yesterday; the two act Kalem drama, "Seed and the Harvest" is the story of a too indulgent mother and contains a fine moral. Leah Baird features in "Fine Feathers Make Fine Birds." The "Lonesome Trail" is a story of ranch life and "Josie's Legacy" is a rich comedy. A cool, well ventilated theatre makes the Crescent an ideal place to enjoy a good picture show.
A BIG HOLIDAY PROGRAMME.
Don't forget that the Crescent Picture Palace has a big holiday programme, five all feature pictures including a Bunny comedy with an appropriate musical programme and good singing; afternoon, 2 o'clock; evening, 7 o'clock. Admission, price 5 cents all sessions.

Swimming Pool for Bowring Park.
Since his return from the Old Country, Sir Edgar Bowring has been giving Bowring Park his careful attention for a couple of hours every day. Speaking in the Telegram he said he contemplated improvements to the Park at his own expense, and work has already begun, under the direction of landscape architect, Cochius, who has a staff of 25 men employed. Amongst these improvements will be the making of a swimming pool at the south river of the park, which will be 70 and 80 feet in length. Nearby will be a dressing room fitted with all modern conveniences. This structure will be for public use as well as the swimming pool. It is proposed to install an electric plant in the new Bungalow, which will be surrounded by a water tower about 20 feet high and it is also the intention to dam the river passing the Bungalow. The interior of the Bungalow is being nicely furnished, well lighted with electricity and well ventilated, and a lady has been put in charge to serve light refreshments to visitors. It is Mr. Bowring's intention to plant a new lot of trees and the entire additions when finished will enhance the beauty of the park and be attractive to the visitor and pleasure seeker. Mr. Bowring said he expected next month some fine young swan or cygnets will be hatched. Nor has he forgotten to direct his attention to the property surrounding Quidi Vidi Lake also acquired at a cost of several thousand dollars and presented to the city. Mr. Bowring intends to have a park made of that area also. He informs us that whilst there is nothing doing at present, the work of building a substantial fence around the Lake will commence next month; also trees will be planted just inside the fence and operations for a park will start next summer.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
BINGHAMTON, N.Y., June 20.—P. E. Shurtlein, a bricklayer who keeps a chicken farm near here, just to have someone else laying for him, has an amazing pullet in Gwendolyn, a black Minorca, which lay puzzles and seems to be a natural coop shell worker. For days Mr. Shurtlein has been undecided whether to boast of Gwendolyn or knock her head off, but now the latter course would seem to be reasonable and pardonable.
For a considerable time Gwendolyn has been kept in a separate coop to see if it were possible to get her mind on her work. Each day Mr. Shurtlein has hurried home from work to see what had developed—expecting almost anything.
He has found gray eggs, eggs with mosaic work on them, diamond-shaped eggs and two-cylinder eggs, and he has been waiting patiently to discover one pluck-lined, with a bit of statuary in it or a note from a lost sailor.
One day this week he discovered a ten inch egg in Gwendolyn's apartment, and on breaking it he found, instead of a yolk, another perfectly formed egg, shell and all. He broke this, and found within, instead of a yolk, another egg of small diameter, with a heavy shell. By this time Mr. Shurtlein was willing to break anything, including Gwendolyn's neck, so he broke the new obstruction and found—no, not a flatiron, as one might expect, but a regular egg yolk.
Mr. Shurtlein has no idea what is the matter with Gwendolyn or why she persists in overdoing everything, but he is determined that she shall do no more reading of heavy literature or war news. He believes her merely inattentive to her regular business or terribly absent-minded.
A SPANIARD ON GERMANY.
They have directed their national conscience by the ludicrous and devilish belief in the vast superiority of the German to all other races, fascinating the popular will by the practical corollary: "Since we are superior to all other men, it is our right to take whatever pleases us of their possessions. Those who refuse to abandon their goods quietly are thieves, and it is our duty to exterminate them. It is thus that Germany lays claims to the colonies of other nations—her 'place in the sun'—part of France and all Belgium, and Holland next, and soon, very soon, American territories."—"Aspectos de la Guerra" by Santiago Perez Triana.

Our Debt to Our Gallant Seamen.

The submarine warfare by Germany against commerce with the British Isles, has now been waged for nearly twenty-one weeks, and Admiral Oscar von Trupprecht, who was at one time German Governor of Kia Chou, in China, which was wrested from Germany by British and Japanese forces, raises the question in 'Der Tag' yesterday whether the value of this submarine warfare against British commerce is enough to justify its continuance in its present form at the expense of a rupture with the United States.

For Home Defence.

Dear Sir—There are a lot of young men who did not pass to go to the front, yet would be very good for home service, many of which are all brave boys. Why not allow them to drill with the volunteers and form a corps for Home Defence? By putting in their time in the night they would not cost the Government anything. Some might but little practice to put them in on the drill, and yet are very sturdy, but might not pass for the front. Several young men have been talking to me on the subject. Kindly give the Old Boys a chance. Yours truly, ARTHUR WHEELER. July 4th, 1915.

Says Britain's Main Desire is to Protect Egypt. London, July 1.—An interesting discussion of the German policy is reproduced by the Times this morning from German newspapers.

Count von Reventlow, military writer for the Tages Zeitung, agrees with Dr. Jaschch in the latter respect. He says that the attempted invasion of Egypt in January was only an experiment and that German engineers are now building a Syrian railway and a Sinal railway which will convey the necessary heavy artillery and open the way from Constantinople to Suez.

PARIS, To-day. Official. There has been relative calm along the whole front without infantry action.

AN HEROIC CAPTAIN.

QUEENSTOWN, To-day. With nine dead sailors stretched on her deck and eight men lying wounded below, the sides riddled with shots and shells, the British steel ship Anglo-Californian steamed into Queenstown Harbor this morning, after having withstood the attack of a German submarine for four hours. The ship's escape from destruction was accomplished with no other means of defence than the indomitable spirit of her Captain and crew, combined with masterly seamanship which enabled her to frustrate the efforts of her assailant to torpedo her. The story of how Captain Parslow stood on the bridge of the Anglo-Californian amidst a rain of shot and calmly directed the movements of his ship, until he was killed by shell, how his place was taken by his son, until British destroyers appeared and the submarine was compelled to flee was told by the survivors.

SCHOONER TORPEDOED.

LONDON, To-day. The schooner Sunbeam, Kirkwall, Scotland, was sunk by a German submarine; crew saved.

DIRIGIBLE BOMBARDMENT.

ROME, To-day. Italian official last night. One of our dirigibles bombarded and seriously damaged Cantonment at Trieste. The airship returned undamaged.

NORWEGIAN SUNK.

HARWICH, To-day. The Norwegian steamer, Pick, has been sunk as a result of being torpedoed or striking a mine off a Lightship near the mouth of the Thames. The crew was brought here.

DRIVEN OFF.

LONDON, To-day. The British Admiralty announces with regard to the Berlin report of the air raid at Harwich, the following are facts of an incident, which otherwise is hardly worth recording. On Saturday forenoon, a German seaplaner appeared at Harwich, flying very high. Our air craft immediately started in pursuit and drove them off. The hostile aircraft then dropped bombs into the sea and made their escape still flying at a great height.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day. Much activity was apparent yesterday in all three elements, where the air raid at Harwich, flying very high. Our air craft immediately started in pursuit and drove them off. The hostile aircraft then dropped bombs into the sea and made their escape still flying at a great height.

TEUTONS GREATLY IMPEDED.

PETROGRAD, To-day. General Von MacKenzen's march towards Cholm and the operations of Archduke Joseph between the Vistula and the Bug are being greatly impeded by the successful defensive tactics adopted by the Russians. The country is cut up by many river courses and hilly ridges and is remote from railroads and modern communication. The enemy is losing heavily every day. A giant Russian aeroplane flew along the River San and threw bombs on the enemy's trains, setting them afire. One train filled with artillery shells was exploded. Thirty thousand shells were destroyed, many men killed and a long stretch of railway rendered useless.

1.45 P.M.

COPPER FOR THE GERMANS.

LONDON, To-day. A Stockholm despatch says that the revenue cutter which went to the assistance of the leaking Norwegian motor ship Hnasea discovered that her cargo consisted of thirty tons of copper consigned to Luebeck, Germany. At the request of the Norwegian authorities the ship and cargo were arrested.

SWEDISH VESSELS SEIZED.

LONDON, To-day. Five Swedish vessels were seized on Sunday in the Baltic Sea and taken to Swinemunde, says a Copenhagen correspondent.

A RUSSIAN APOLOGY.

LONDON, To-day. The Russian Government has apologized to Sweden for a violation of the latter nation's neutrality by the fact that a stray shell accidentally fell within Swedish waters owing to fog during the pursuit of German vessels.

SIXTY P.C. OF WOUNDED GO BACK TO THE FRONT.

London, July 5.—Sir William Osler, speaking at a meeting of the Research Defence Society, said that there should have been only 1,000 cases of typhoid fever during the period of the war among the forces of the Empire was something which only those who understand the history of typhoid in other wars could appreciate. It was a matter of much satisfaction that at least 60 per cent. of the wounded returned to fight. We were going for the first time to have a war in which bullets would be accountable for the larger number of deaths, not disease.

NEARLY EVERYONE MUST REGISTER IN GREAT BRITAIN.

London, July 5.—The text of the National Registration Bill was issued to-day. The only persons exempted from registering are prisoners, lunatics and those afflicted with mental or physical infirmities. All persons arriving in Great Britain must give notice of their arrival at once or pay a fine of $25.

of German troops preparatory to an effort to drive the French from Alsace, part of the plan to clear the German and Austrian territory from invaders. The expected opposition to the British National Register Bill elicited a statement from Premier Asquith that the Government does not contemplate the introduction of forced labor or conscription.

WHITAKER'S OPPOSITION TO NATIONAL REGISTER BILL.

LONDON, To-day. The National Register Bill encountered opposition in the Commons last night, when Sir Thomas Whitaker, Liberal, opposed its provisions, asserting the passage of the bill in its present form would split the country. The meeting also declared its trust in the present coalition Government, saying he knew the man who had destroyed the late Government continued to dictate the policy of the present Government. Cries of "Name" rang through the House, and Sir Thomas said—It was Lord Northcliffe who was advocating virtually all the clauses of the Register Bill. Percy Alden, Liberal, asked the Premier whether he was able to assure the House that the Government did not contemplate forced labor or conscription under the Bill, and was told by the Prime Minister that no such change was contemplated. Walter Hume Long, father of the bill, moving its second reading, said the Government would resist to the utmost any suggestion to recede from its position to withdraw the bill. He said Lord Kitchener, Secretary of War, thought the bill would assist him to avoid difficulties with which he had previously been confronted, who should have been left in the workshops. Sir Thomas Whitaker moved the rejection of the bill, until evidence was produced that the Government's present powers were inadequate. He did not object to conscription or conscription, if necessary, but he asserted the bill was needless, and raised the greatest controversy of the day. The bill he viewed with grave disgust, especially as men always came forward when asked. The powers conferred by the bill at any rate must not be placed in the hands of the military, who were hopeless in business matters. He concluded by saying: It is not a register that is wanted, but wholesale dismissals in the War Office. Conservative speakers followed, and earnestly appealed to the House to support the Government Bill. The House passed the second reading of the bill, after rejecting Sir Thomas's motion by a majority of more than 200 votes. The debate proved the opposition to the bill came from a somewhat small minority of Radicals.

LIKE ME!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"I hate a person who is always losing his temper," I heard a woman say the other day, "but I do think one should have a v e enough spirit to keep people from imposing on one."

She smiled, a No-m a ' a m-l ain't-seen-y o u r canary smile.

The inevitable inference of smile, tone and manner was this, "One should have enough spirit, but not too much—like me."

Yet she isn't a woman who is ordinarily chided conceited. On the contrary! She is always wishing she had talents, or clothes, or looks, like yours and if you praise her for anything she is most deprecatory.

The Instinct of Self-Belief.

She is only unconsciously expressing an instinct of the human race, almost as deep rooted as self-preservation—the instinct of self-belief.

"It's all very well to be unselfish, but there's such a thing as being too unselfish," says one. "Now I think it's better for yourself and everyone around you to have a reasonable amount of selfishness."

In other words, just that amount of justifiable selfishness she conceives herself to possess!

"Idealism is beautiful," says another, "and the world couldn't get along without it; but if it's going to do any good it should be leavened with practicality. Rose, for instance, is altogether too idealistic. She hasn't having some common sense."

Now I believe in any common sense. Now I believe in—

In other words, her own temper.

ment, which is really without a grain of idealism, but which she imagines is a combination of the two qualities, is the bean ideal.

A DEFINITION OF CHARM.

A very clever short-story writer has one of his characters ask the other to define 'charm'. Whereupon, says the writer (or words to this effect, I'm quoting from memory), "he proceeded to set forth the qualities which he considered charm and which, when he had finished, she found were his own qualities."

We never realize that we are imposing the ideal balance of qualities to ourselves. In fact we may not ever be conscious that we feel that way. If anyone taxed us with such a high opinion of ourselves we should refute him indignantly and scornfully. And then we should probably say, "I hate self-satisfied people as much as anyone. Of course, I believe everyone should have a proper self-respect. But that's quite another thing."

Question—My sister and I do not get along well together. Do you think it is our duty to live together? We are the last of the family.—M. F.

Answer.—It is unfortunate that you two sisters cannot be at peace in the same home, but if you have given the thing a fair trial better live at peace apart than in discord together. Doubtless you will get more happiness and profit out of occasional meetings when your idiosyncrasies don't get tir e on wear on each other, than out of the friction of constant uncongenial companionship.

From Reservist Hiscock

H. M. S. Eclipse, Devonport, England, June 8, 1915.

Mr. John Churchill, Seward's Mill, Dear Friend,—In answer to your letter which I received a few days ago, I now take the pleasure of writing you. Very proud I was to hear from you. No doubt I was surprised when I got your letter. But very glad indeed to know I am not forgotten by you, and as you said I can't see how I should be, for the duty I have taken upon me is not only for my own benefit, but for the benefit of the whole Empire, which includes our little Colony as well; and which duty I am more than proud to have taken.

Well, John, I am feeling fine in health and enjoying myself lovely. But I guess I would be enjoying myself a little better if I were handy. I fact I would like for you all to be about the water and flying in the air. I sometimes think I must be dreaming; but still it's real, and I suppose it will be no good for me to tell people when I come out of them, I don't suppose they will believe. You ever spares me to do so which I hope and trust He will. Some of the things which we have seen in England I don't suppose they will believe. You ask if I saw any of the Scilly Cove or New Perlican chaps. Well there are only three of us over here from Scilly Cove, but I haven't seen one of them. They are not out from this Depot. But I saw some of the Perlican boys. Mr. Pittman came over with me. He is now at Hantsgate, Dover, and George Pitts is here with me now on the Eclipse and William Hefford is on a trawler out from here. I see him often. They all are O.K. Pitts and I are here now on the Eclipse, waiting draft. We are likely to be going to sea at any moment. If it is not downhearted, no. I think it's getting pretty hot with the Germans now. The yare putting their sailors in the field to fight. They don't care about coming out of the Kiel to face our fleet, for they know very well what is waiting for them.

I suppose the men at home are beginning their old trade fishing by this time, and I sincerely hope and wish for a successful voyage to all. I was sorry to hear of the death of the persons you spoke of, but I suppose the old saying is true—they are better off.

And as I haven't got any more news at present and wishing to be remembered to all friends and with every fond love to dear I must close my letter by wishing you, as a faithful friend, every success and godspeed through a happy summer. I am yours ever for a worthy cause.

AMBROSE HISCOCK, Devonport, England.

Max Resigned to Fate

Brussels Burgomaster, interned in German Fortress, Adapts Himself to Prison Life — Captivity Now His Normal State, He Says.

Paris, June 30.—Burgomaster Max of Brussels, interned in the German fortress at Glatz, is resigned to his fate, according to a letter written by him to the Havre correspondent of the Matin, in which he says:—

"I take no merit for enduring my fate stoically. Besides, I see in my patience only an application of the physical law that every being adapts himself to the conditions of life imposed upon him by circumstances. I have been shut up now 240 days, and captivity has become a normal state for me. The sufferings I experienced during the first weeks following my arrest are lessening more and more."

Briton in Dramatic Air Duel.

OBSERVER AND PILOT BURNED.

London, June 28.—A dramatic air duel, in which a British aeroplane, reconnoitering over the Belgian town of Poicappelle at a height of 4,000 feet met and engaged a large German biplane, which had double engines and propellers, is described by the eye-witness at the British army headquarters in a narrative made public to-day by the official press bureau. He writes:—

"The German machine first circled around ours at the same time shooting a machine gun, but so far as known not inflicting any damage. Then our observer fired fifty rounds in return at a range of less than 200 yards. It had some effect for the hostile biplane was seen to waver and after more shots its engines stopped, the enemy airplane then dived to a level of 2,000 feet where it again plattened its course, flying slowly and erratically.

"Under heavy anti-air craft fire from below, our pilot turned toward our line to complete his reconnaissance. When his machine was hit he decided to make for home, but the petrol tank had been pierced and as the aeroplane glided downwards on a slant the petrol was set alight by the exhaust and ran blazing down the front of the body of the aeroplane which travelled on to the accompaniment of a rattle of musketry as the unused rounds of machine gun ammunition exploded in the heat and the pilot's loaded revolver was discharged.

The pilot, however, did not lose control, and the aeroplane proceeded steadily on a downward course. Before it reached the ground a large part of the frame work had been destroyed. Even the hardwood blades of the propeller were so burned that the propeller ceased to revolve. When the machine finally landed back of our lines both officers had been severely burned, and the pilot climbing out of the blazing wreck tripped over a wire and sprained his ankle. The serviceable portions of the aeroplane were then collected and removed under the shrapnel of the German guns."

VENZELOS' ROLE.
Philadelphia Evening Ledger:— It seems that only the hesitancy or objection of the other Balkans can stop Greece now. Yet we must remember that it was this great Premier, Venizelos, who brought the Balkans into league against the Turk. Once Greece is in—and with her, doubtless Rumania and Bulgaria—the possibilities are definite enough. The forcing of the Dardanelles, the fall of Constantinople, and driving of the Turk from his last European provinces will come quickly. They will also bring a clear advantage at last to Russia in her Austrian game of seesaw.

BOY OF FIFTEEN A VETERAN NOW.
The adventures of a lad of fifteen years and eight months are recounted by Rifleman Ernest W. Aron, 8th City of London, who writes to his home from the Howard Ward, Lewisham Military Hospital.

The lad's name is Private Patrick McCann, 2nd Battalion Royal Scots Fusiliers.

August 13—Enlisted (then only fifteen years eight months).

October 4—Went to France.

October 18—Fought at Ypres. In battalion when nearly surrounded. Only seventy-three left out of 1,100.

December 7—Went to Bailleul.

December 18—Went into action with Warwicks, and helped capture three lines German trenches.

March 10—Went into battle of Neuve Chapelle; fought six days.

April 29—Went back to Neuve Chapelle trenches.

May 5—Relieved.

May 6—Entered the engagement of Fleurbaix.

May 8—came out of that.

May 16—Attacked on right of Aubers.

McCann is now in hospital through straining his back by falling on a barricade while crossing German trenches.

The lad gave Rifleman Aron, the above account while both were in hospital at Merville. The boy had just had his boots and socks off for the first time in eighteen days.

Poison Gas Avenged With Bayonets.

HOW BRITISH RE-TOOK TRENCH-ES LOST AT HOOGHE.

Men Nothing Could Stop—Terrorized
Huns, Unable to Flee, Whine for Mercy.

"Early this morning, in the neighbourhood of Ypres, we successfully attacked the enemy's position north of Hooge. We occupied the whole of his first line trenches on a front of 1,000 yards, and also parts of his second line."

In these few words, Sir John French told a story of a great achievement on the part of the British forces, who wrested from the Germans strongly held trenches which had been previously won from us by the use of poisonous gas.

Some of the men who took part in the great bayonet charge a few days ago are now in hospital at home, and one of them, Private F. A. Fyfe—formerly a member of the Daily Sketch staff—gives a vivid description of the fight. Soon after the outbreak of war, Mr. Fyfe joined the 10th Liverpool Scottish Territorials, of whom he says: "I should think our fellows have gained a lasting name," and his narrative of the fierce encounter is one of the first to be given.

"We had," he says, "to attack the German trenches at Hooge, which they recently captured by the use of gases, and when we passed over the ground some of our victims were still lying there."

"In the afternoon we set off from the camp, and reaching Ypres marched silently to the point of attack."

"The attack was prepared by the artillery, and while the bombardment lasted it was absolutely murderous.
Our men poured out high explosive shells and shrapnel by the hundreds, and the whole earth seemed to be in eruption, made worse by the reply of the German guns."

Amazing Dare-Devilry.

"Our first trench was not more than eighty yards from the first German trench, and our men, who practically anticipated the order to advance, swarmed over the parapets with the utmost keenness. Their dare-devilry was amazing. Later, I saw our O.C. being helped away, blinded with blood, but he would not leave the fight until he was practically compelled."

"From the first the Germans, when they found that their machine gun fire availed them nothing, turned round, and ran, and in their frantic haste wounded and dying alike were trampled underfoot."

"It was a terrible time, but in the midst of it all the splendid spirit of regimental rivalry which exists throughout our army, was much in evidence. Jocks and Tommies forced ahead at breakneck speed, eager for the honor of being the first in the enemy's stronghold."

"Shattered forms were everywhere, and the destruction of life and limb was appalling. The force of the British artillery was such that the German trenches became mere shambles, and in places only glimpses of grey cloth showed through the masses of shattered sandbags."

"A dense pall of greyish black smoke overhung the scene, and choking fumes mingled with the sickly blood smell."

"Charged Into the Teeth of Hell."

"There could be nothing finer than this attack of our infantry, as led by the officers, they charged, stubbornly and steadily, right into the teeth of hell—machine gun and rifle fire—with the sole unanimous desire to get at it."

"There were mighty explosions as the big guns sent shells over the whole area. Many of our fellows had their heads blown clean off, and others were simply smashed to red fragments."

"The slaughter of Germans was tremendous and their losses far exceeded ours. There were dug-outs in their trenches full of smashed remains, and we had to make our victorious way over hundreds of dead and dying."

"Our fellows got in some useful work with the bayonet, and all round you you could hear them and see them running. I have made a note of some of their exclamations. 'Mercy, mercy! Plenty good England,' cried one; and another yelled, 'No kill me. Me not want to fight. Kaiser make us!'
—while they came like devils all—was the sullen tribute of one of the captured Germans."

Abject Prisoners.

Mr. Fyfe was wounded in this great attack on the German trenches, being struck in the leg by a bullet, but he managed to dash a further hundred yards, though falling twice on the way. Then numbness began to affect his leg, but in spite of this he crawled back to the first trench he and his comrades had taken.

Subsequently, he had charge of four German prisoners, and to use his own words: "I made them sit in a row on the ground just in front of their own trench." One was a sub-lieutenant of the Prussian Guard, a massive

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.

"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household.
Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the Instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water
"upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber"—without any labour at all—indeed, of the state of the kitchen fire.

The cost is reasonable.

FOR THE BATHROOM.

An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance.

Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost!

Think of the coal that is wasted—
the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!

A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no fuss to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.

The master of the house has hot shaving water and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSE-HOLD.

When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife, then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.

But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.

Latter-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toll of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates and the removal of dirt and ashes.

The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12,15 fellow who, although untouched, was trembling like a child.

"They could speak but little English, but I made them understand.
Not one of them moved. Amongst other prisoners were Bavarians and Saxons—old men and young men—and one of them told me that troops leaving Berlin were crying as they left."

Owing to the proximity of Newfoundland it is expected Newfoundland will be well represented particularly as the matters to be considered are of great importance to the Order both in Newfoundland and the Maritime Provinces.

Local Fishery Good.

Last evening cod were plentiful on the local grounds and good catches were secured. One man from the Battery got 40 quintals in his trap. At Quidi Vidi, Torbay and Logy Bay fishermen also met with success. Hook and line men are doing just as well as in the early part of the season, though such is not the case any where else at present.

Save Fifty Dollars on a Typewriter!

Why pay one hundred or one hundred and twenty dollars for a Typewriter when we can give you an Oliver at $60.00, a Remington at $50.00, an Underwood at $80.00, an L. C. Smith at $75.00. You may pay more but you can get no better service. We have sold over thirty of these Machines; they were sold with a guarantee, in fact, two guarantees. The Factory guaranteed them and we guaranteed them. They were sold on a "Money-back-if-not-satisfactory," and though we have been selling machines for over two years we have not yet had a complaint. We will be pleased to refer you to those to whom we have sold them. You save fifty to sixty dollars if you buy a Typewriter from us.
We now have in stock an Underwood at $80.00; we have another coming which we will sell at the same price. We have an Oliver at $60.00 on the way which we sold since it was shipped to us; and we have on order a Remington at $50.00, and another Oliver at $60.00.
We can also give you any machine for which you have a preference at a saving of from fifty to sixty dollars.
Do not place an order for a Typewriter until you have at least looked into our office.

FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.
They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.
They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.
They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."
If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.
You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.
REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.
We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so, buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.
We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.
REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.
