FOR SALE
By Public Auction,
At the office of the undersigned, on Tuesday, the 15th day of October, at 12 o'clock noon, IF NOT PREVIOUSLY DISPOSED OF BY PRIVATE SALE, all that valuable Freehold Timber Land, containing in all about 100 acres, belonging to Estate of the late Monier W. Hutchings, and situate on the Topical Road, seven miles from town. This is a most desirable investment, as apart from the large quantity of timber which may be cut from the foregoing land, the soil has been pronounced very superior for farming purposes.
For further particulars apply to GEO. A. HUTCHINGS, Executor of Estate, or
P. C. O'DRISCOLL, Auctioneer.

Christmas Parcels
The Christmas rush is great in normal times. With millions of men under arms it is a tremendous strain on all Postal Staffs, and delays are unavoidable.

In the Old Country 75 per cent. of trained Postal Officials are with the Army, and their work is being done by untrained men and women.

For the Home parcels to reach England before Christmas, the sooner they are posted the surer will their timely delivery be.

To reach our gallant lads in France, parcels should be despatched as early this month as possible.

Please pack securely. Do not use sharp edged boxes. Square boxes should always have their edges padded.

J. ALEX. ROBINSON, Postmaster General.

Why it pays to eat Macaroni

It pays—in dollars and cents—because Catelli's Milk Macaroni gives nearly twice as much food value as a pound of lean steak, at less than half the cost. And it may be prepared in over a hundred different ways, to delight the appetite of young and old.

CATELLI'S MILK MACARONI

has a delicacy of flavor—a smoothness and richness—that gives a new piquancy to even the simplest dishes. Made of the choicest wheat (ground into Semolina) and milk, in a modern sunlit factory—it is a pure food product, deserving a place in every home. Get a package at your Grocer's, and try some of the dainty dishes mentioned in our recipe book.

THE C. H. CATELLI CO., LIMITED, MONTREAL.

"THE Girl at Catelli's" is the name of a dainty little book that tells how to prepare Catelli's Milk Macaroni in many attractive ways. Mailed free on request—

BERT S. HAYWARD, St. John's, Distributor for Newfoundland.

The Lost Will;

OR, LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST!

CHAPTER XI.

Almost lying on some cushions was a very beautiful young woman, with a pale face framed in a mass of yellow hair that shone in the sun like newly-minted gold. Beside the carriage rode a gentleman, whom, at a glance, Nora guessed was Lord Ferndale. He was very handsome, as Mrs. Feltham had said. The pallor of his clean-shaven face was accentuated by the darkness of his hair; his eyes were very nearly black; the whole face was almost Spanish, and it had a sombre and melancholy expression which reminded Nora of Don Quixote. The new arrivals on the scene pulled up, and Lord Ferndale rode up to the carriage. "Has anything happened? Can I be of assistance?" he began; and Nora noticed, even at that moment, that the tone of his voice harmonised with the expression of his face. The voice was low and clear, but very grave, and a trifle cold and reserved. As he asked the question he looked towards the lady, and Mrs. Feltham said: "How do you do, Lord Ferndale? You don't remember me. I am Mrs. Feltham—Mabel Chalfonte, you know." His brows lifted, and a faint smile relieved the sombreness of his face. "Of course I remember you, Mrs. Feltham," he said, as he raised his hat. "How do you do? You have broken a trace, I see. Are you staying here?" "I'm staying with Miss Norton, at Chertson," replied Mrs. Feltham. "This is Lord Ferndale, Nora." Lord Ferndale raised his hat again.

and turned his dark, melancholy eyes on Nora. She saw that he was puzzled for a moment; then, as he remembered hearing of her and her strange inheritance of the millionaire's fortune, he murmured: "Ah, yes. I wonder whether my sister has some string? She generally carries some odds and ends about with her; her chaise is old and comes to grief now and then."

"We'll go and speak to Lady Blanche," said Mrs. Feltham; and she and Nora alighted and went to the basket-chaise, from which Lady Blanche had been viewing the proceedings with a look of keen interest and sympathy. "How do you do, Lady Blanche?" said Mrs. Feltham. "I see you remember me. This is Miss Norton, of Chertson. I am staying with her."

Lady Blanche looked from one to the other with the soft, yet searching, glance of an invalid. Her eyes rested longer on Nora than on Mrs. Feltham, and suddenly, as if obeying an impulse, she held out her hand to the other girl.

"I am so glad to meet you," she said. "My brother and I were coming to call on you. We are sorry for your loss. Is the accident serious?" "No, it's only a trace broken," said Nora, as she released the thin, warm hand. "I'm used to that; where I come from we often break a trace, and we always carry some strips of leather with us."

"Perhaps a piece of string will do," said Lady Blanche. "There's some in that little box there in front." The driver of the basket-chaise, an old and withered retainer in a shabby, well-worn livery, had already got the strings. "Not strong enough for that trace, my lady," he said. "Oh, what a pity!" said Lady Blanche. "Edward!" Lord Ferndale came up to the chaise promptly. "They will have to lead the carriage home." He answered the appeal in her eyes.

after a moment's hesitation. "Perhaps you will come on to the Abbey and have some lunch with us," he said to Mrs. Feltham. "You cannot go back in the carriage."

Nora, to whom the walk was nothing, would have refused the invitation; but Mrs. Feltham, after a glance at her, accepted it.

"We shall be very glad, dear Lady Blanche," she said.

"There is only room for one of you in the carriage," said Lady Blanche, apologetically. Mrs. Feltham, obeying Nora's gesture, got in, and Nora was left to walk beside Lord Ferndale, who, of course, led his horse.

"It is not very far," he said. Then there was a silence. It was not embarrassing to Nora, because the man beside her was so palpably at his ease. He walked at her side as if he were unconscious of her presence, or, rather, as if the incident which had drawn them together was of so trivial a kind as to be absolutely not noteworthy. In this silent fashion they reached the gates, which were slowly opened by a very old woman, who came out from the lodge and dropped a curtsy. For an instant, as he nodded pleasantly to the lodge-keeper, the earl's impassive and melancholy face warmed up with a smile. The smile transformed the face so wonderfully that Nora caught herself staring at him; but the transformation lasted for a moment only. In silence they walked some way up the drive; then Nora broke the kind of spell which was stealing over her.

"You have some beautiful trees, Lord Ferndale," she said. "Yes, they are very old," he assented, turning his dark eyes on her. "Some of them were planted before the Abbey was built; they were planted by Rufus."

Nora had interrupted him involuntarily by an exclamation of wonder and delight; for they had turned a curve of the avenue and come in sight of the Abbey suddenly. It was the first place of the kind she had seen, and its marvellous beauty smote her as a bolt of revelation.

"Oh, how very beautiful!" she said. "It is like a picture; it's the loveliest thing I've seen since I came to England."

He glanced at the noble facade of his historic home, and then looked at her with a smile.

"I'm glad you admire it so much," he said.

"No wonder you are fond of it!" said Nora.

"Who told you I was fond of it?" he asked, with a twist of the lip. "But, whoever told you, it is true," he added after a pause.

He fell back into silence again; they reached the steps leading to the terrace, and Nora noticed that the place, though beautiful, was as badly in need of repair as the lodge and the gates. Some of the marble steps were broken; the huge griffins which flanked them were chipped; the great oak door needed varnish; the paint was worn off the window-frames; the condition of the whole place was not very far removed from ruin.

As they approached the door it was opened to them, not by a porter in livery, but by a maidservant, who looked somewhat flustered by the sight of a visitor. The pony-carriage had preceded them, and Lady Blanche was looking at Nora, with a half-suppressed interest; it was evident to Nora that Mrs. Feltham had been telling Lady Blanche about her. Lord Ferndale took his sister in his arms, and carried her through the hall into one of the rooms; there was so little of her that the feat was not remarkable.

CHAPTER XII.

THE room was a comparatively small one; the decorations were faded; the furniture was old and worn; the carpet well-nigh thread-bare; but there was something about the room which saved it from the appearance of shabbiness; its age was an honoured one; its uses had been those of refinement, a refinement which seemed to be in the very atmosphere; and the effect of this peculiar refinement and dignity on Nora was like that of a beautiful strain of music. The experience was novel to her, but it was pleasing and soothing; and the untarnished splendour of some of the newly-furnished rooms at Chertson seemed pleasantly to her as she compared the faded glories of this little room at the Abbey.

Through the tall diamond casement she could see a sunken Italian garden, as ill-cared for as were the avenues and the road by which they had reached the house; but it possessed a weird, old-time beauty and dignity which was in harmony with the rest of the place; it reminded Nora of some poetry she had once read and forgotten, but which now came back to her mind: a volume of Wordsworth she had come across in one of the hotels during her wandering with her father.

"You are looking at the garden," said Lady Blanche. "Do you like it? I mean, do you think it is as nice as one of the modern gardens?" "Lady Blanche's voice was like her brother's, but softer and more gentle; and she spoke to Nora as if she had known her quite a long time. There was no attempt at being polite, not a sign of that little effort to be friendly which most of us have to use with new acquaintances; and her eyes dwelt on Nora with a kind of appeal in them, as if she wanted Nora to know that she, Lady Blanche, was glad Nora was there, and already liked her.

"I think it's very beautiful," said Nora, in her direct fashion. "It's the kind of garden one can rest in. I suppose it is very old; it looks so."

"Yes," said Lady Blanche, as a matter of course. "It was made by an Italian gardener who came over with Charles II, and it has never been altered since. Of course, it is very neglected now; we are too poor to keep it in good order," she added, quite simply, as if she were stating a mere matter of fact.

"I think I like it as it is," said Nora, quite truthfully. "While I have been looking at it, it has reminded me of some of the places where I used to live, the wild places in Australia."

"Yes!" said Lady Blanche, with gentle eagerness. "That's very interesting. You must tell me about it. You have travelled a great deal! How I envy you!" The confession was made, without a note of complaint or appeal for sympathy, and Nora felt that silence was the best response. (To be continued.)

THE Sunlight enterprise and organization for production, manufacture, and distribution were made complete long before the war. But during the war the difficulties and costs of transport have been multiplied. Therefore, Lever Brothers have purchased a fleet of steamships to convey raw materials direct from their plantations to Port Sunlight.

The Housewife is given the full benefit of this enterprise, and thus, in spite of the difficulties caused in England by the war, Sunlight Soap remains the best soap throughout the world, and gives the fullest value for the housewife's money.

Kaiser's Toothache.

THE DENTIST'S STORY. In the second chapter of his book, "The Kaiser as I Knew Him for Fourteen Years," now appearing in The Times from day to day, Mr. Arthur N. Davis, the Emperor William's American dentist, writes of an early morning call to Potsdam to attend the War Lord for toothache; "The Kaiser laughingly remarked, 'Look here, Davis, you've got to do something for me. I can't fight the whole world, you know, and have a toothache!' 'At various times I had suggested

I could save him pain by the use of a local anæsthetic, but he had always refused it. I never observed him to flinch while in the chair. It often occurred to me, after the war started, that in his own callousness to pain lay the secret of his disregard for the suffering he caused in others. "When the Kaiser's pain was relieved he explained why it was that he was so anxious to have his tooth trouble removed as quickly as possible. "I must go down to Italy, Davis," he said, "to see what my noble troops have accomplished. We had advanced our intended offensive in Italy so thoroughly that the Italians thought we couldn't possibly intend to carry it through. For three months it was common talk in Germany that the great offensive would start in October, and so the Italians believed it was all bluff, and when we advanced on Riga, they were sure of it. They thought we were so occupied there that we could pay no attention to them, and so we caught them napping! "Never before had our armies seen such an accumulation of ammunition. I must certainly go down to see if Italy will never get over this delusion. This was really my first day! "On a subsequent occasion, when he called at my office for further treatment, he remarked: 'If our armies could capture 500,000 Italians, we can do the same thing against our enemies in the west.'

Giving Teutons no Rest --- British Only Six Miles From Lille --- Germans Burning Towns as They Retreat --- British Cavalry and Whippet Tanks Sweep Through Hindenburg Line Taking Village of Fresnoy.

WAR REVIEW.

Nowhere are the armies of the Teutonic allies being permitted to rest. On the fronts in Flanders, France, Italy and Turkey, the enemy still continues to lose ground, or is being compelled to throw strong reinforcements into his battle line to hold back his aggressors. In Belgian Flanders the Belgian, British and French troops are still driving forward, although their speed has been somewhat lessened by the bad condition of the ground. The enemy is actively evacuating the salient between Armentieres and Lens, and the British now are standing only a scant six miles northwest of Lille over a front of about four miles between Wavrin and Equinghen, at the former place, having gained a position astride the Lens-Lille railroad. Notwithstanding violent counter attacks on a line strengthened by fresh reserves, the British between St. Quentin and Cambrai have materially pressed eastward from the region of Le Catelet, and to the north have improved their positions in Cambrai so well that apparently these important towns must fall. Taken all in all, the situation of the Germans in this region seems to be critical, and the crisis is at hand. Far to the rear aerial observers report the roads congested with retreating troops, who are being harassed by the machine gun fire of the airmen. In Flanders, fires are everywhere to be seen, and it is evident the enemy, realizing that he must give further ground, is vigorously applying the torch. Around Rheims the French have further extended their gains north and northwest of the cathedral city, where they are all along the Aisne Canal. To the east in Champagne American forces are fighting with the French between the Sulpe River and the Argonne forest. In addition to holding their original battle line inside and east of the Argonne forest, west of the Argonne, with the aid of French tanks, the Americans have taken the important height positions of Blanc Mont and the Modchah farm and pressed farther northward. Simultaneously the French have advanced their front eastward around Challenge, and gained better positions for their operations up the railway towards Voussiers and in keeping the Germans inside the northern portion of the Argonne forest by an enflaming fire through the Air valley while the Americans press northward through the forest driving the enemy before them. The latest reports are that the Americans have advanced almost two miles in the forest and on the eastern side of the great wood are slowly pressing northward. Throughout this entire region the Germans are resisting most stubbornly. In the mountain region in Northern Italy the Italians on several sectors have attacked and defeated the Austrians, while in Albania the Austro-Hungarians are in fast retreat before the Italian armies. The Italian cavalry is working far in advance of the infantry harassing the enemy. The Semeri River in Western Albania has been crossed and the enemy's supply center invaded. In Palestine the Turks have been driven far beyond Damascus with the British still on their heels harrying them. Reports are to the effect that Austro-Hungary is again seeking peace having invited Holland to request the belligerents to participate in negotiations. The Hungarian premier who has arrived in Vienna with a number of Hungarian statesmen, is quoted as saying that the Hungarians "again are laboring unfruitfully in the interests of peace and we are already negotiating."

enemy to stem the daily advance of the Allies. The Germans are putting in their best troops and, according to all correspondents, are fighting with despair. There is no movement of any great retreat except the withdrawal in Flanders sector where the British have occupied Armentieres and Lens and are closely pressing the retreating enemy. The recapture of the great French coal region affords great satisfaction here. In the Squahert Bony sector the allies' breach in the Hindenburg system was extended today and are fighting in the outskirts of Mont Brehatin where Australian units with tanks are operating. The importance the Germans attach to the retention of this portion of the line is indicated by the Frankfurt Gazette which says that in order to prevent a total break through Cambrai and St. Quentin, General Von Boehn's army has been made so strong, that it is equivalent to a complete army group. The Gazette declares: There is great danger along the whole western front. It cannot be long before an important enemy retreat from the Hindenburg line is bound to happen, according to universal military opinion here. Interesting news come from eastern Europe. Austria has withdrawn her troops in Albania, and the Italians recaptured Berat. It is learned in official quarters that the German residents of Sofia and Constantinople including officers and their families are leaving hastily and going through Roumania to Germany.

HINDENBURG SYSTEM SMASHED.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN THE ST. QUENTIN SECTOR, Oct. 3. (By the A.P.)—British forces broke through the entire Hindenburg defence system in the neighborhood of Fresnoy today. As soon as the break had been made, cavalry forces swept through, being followed closely by "whippets" tanks and armored cars.

LENS AND ARMENTIERES OCCUPIED.

LONDON, Oct. 4. News from all sectors of the Western front tells of giant efforts by the

According to reports which are considered reliable the village of Fresnoy itself was taken soon afterwards. Allied airplanes which have been flying low over the rear of the Hindenburg line report that there are only one or two thinly held, hurriedly built trench lines in front of the advancing British. This is a perfect cavalry country and with this force free behind the enemy's line the entire German positions north and south of St. Quentin are gravely menaced. The enemy appears to be in full retreat. North of the break in the line Allied patrols have penetrated further into Cambrai from which the Germans seem to be withdrawing. There was fighting of the most desperate character before the last line of the system was smashed. Fresh troops which had not been in the earlier fighting here were poured into the battle. Strong enemy positions were taken by storm. An immense number of Germans were killed during the fighting. During the afternoon the Germans delivered a terrific counter attack against Gouy and Le Catelet. Unconfirmed reports say that they gained slightly here, but their advance was short lived. New British attacks were launched and desperate fighting is still in progress. Last available air reports are to the effect that the advancing British troops are six thousand yards beyond the Beaurvoir line. Machine gunners in large numbers are said to have poured through the breach in the Hindenburg system aboard motor buses.

THROWING IN GENERAL RESERVES.

LONDON, Oct. 3. Germany is now throwing general reserves into the battle on the St. Quentin front. This accounts for the stiffening resistance there also along the German left flank and marks the beginning of the last phase of the great battle.

REINFORCEMENTS NEEDED.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4. Cause was pointed from overseas indicating heavy losses among the Canadian forces, are likely to cause renewed consideration as to providing further reinforcements. The classes called up under the amended Military Service Act have pretty well gone overseas, and if more are needed an additional call seems in prospect. The Government has come to no decision yet whether to call up the second class, abolish more exemptions, or summon the 25,000 who have attained 20 years of age recently. The last mentioned course is regarded as the most probable in some quarters.

CANADIAN FARM PRODUCTS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4. The total value of over $90,000,000 worth of meats and dairy products has been purchased in Canada by the British authorities in the twelve months just ended. All the commodities bought were produced on Canadian farms, and the returns go to the farmers.

EXPLOSION.

PERTH, Amboy, N.J., Oct. 4. Doctors who have returned from Morgan with patients, express the belief that at least 100 persons have been killed in an explosion there. Many injured are being brought in.

COULDN'T FOOL BRITISH.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY ON THE ST. QUENTIN SECTOR, Oct. 3. —As the 4th English division had crossed the St. Quentin canal today one party was sent to one end of the Bellengise tunnel and another to the other end. There were signs immediately that the tunnel was full of men therefore a captured howitzer was brought up to one end of the tunnel's mouth and a shot was sent screaming through it. Germans then literally poured from the tunnel with their hands up yelling "kamerad," and terror stricken. One shot from their own howitzer was enough completely to change the plans of the Germans who were apparently in hiding hoping that the Englishmen would pass on and enable them to come out and attack them from the rear, as others of their comrades did in the case of the Americans who reached advanced positions in the neighbourhood of Gour. The tunnel was found to be littered with machine guns, rifles, ammunition and all equipment of a thousand men who abandoned it in their terror.

AUSTRIA AFTER PEACE.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4. A delegation of Hungarian statesmen headed by Premier Werkele, have arrived at Vienna in connection with a new peace move, according to the Cologne Gazette. The other members of the Wekerle party were Count Stephen Tizza and Count Julius Andressy, former Premiers of Hungary, and Count Albert Apponyi, the Hungarian Minister of Information. Austria-Hungary has requested Holland to invite the belligerents to take part in peace negotiations, says the Vienna correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt. The correspondent adds that Holland already has sent out the invitations.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.
11.00 A.M.

THE SPIRIT OF INDIA.
SIMLA, India, via London, Oct. 4. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency).—The Viceroy of India, in closing his speech to the Council to-day, paid a tribute to the spirit of co-operation of all sections, and especially drew attention to the unwavering loyalty of Moslems throughout these trying times. The latter would be given an opportunity of presenting their case under the reform scheme, before the committee about to investigate the franchise question, but Moslems could rest assured that their wider interests would always be safeguarded. The Viceroy referred to the victory in Palestine in which India had played so glorious a part.

NOON.
MUST SPECIFY PEACE PROPOSALS MORE PRECISELY.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4.
The Berlin "Tageblatt's" Vienna correspondent says, the British reply to Baron Burians recent Peace Note has been received by the Austrian Government according to the correspondent, the Note is politely couched and requests the Austria-Hungarian Government to specify their peace proposals more precisely. The correspondent adds that Professor Heinrich Lammach, jurist and professor in the University of Vienna, has been charged with drafting a memorandum on President Wilson's fourteen points of peace, for transmission to President Wilson.

CLEMENCEAU AT THE FRONT.
PARIS, Oct. 4.

Premier Clemenceau passed the day at the Front where he had a long conference with Marshal Foch.

"FEARS NEITHER PRISON OR DEATH."

AMSTERDAM, To-day.
The proclamation of the independence of Bohemia will be issued shortly, according to the Budapest newspaper Aezet: "The members of the Czech National Committee fear neither prison nor death," says the newspaper. "They have all made their wills and settled their material affairs and the independence of Bohemia is virtually assured. All preparations have been made for the proclamation of the independence of Bohemia. Every portfolio has been distributed and the State programme is ready, while new Czech money is circulating privately."

LATEST!
LENS IN RUINS.

PARIS, Oct. 4.
The Deputy Mayor of Lens, M. Basly, says the liberated city is in ruins and the coal mines flooded and otherwise damaged. To reclaim the mines will require an enormous amount of work. The Government has made a loan of over 2,000,000 francs to Lens to cover the first expenses, such as the buying of tools and other implements. Several of the mine owners declare that all efforts will be put forward to get the mines on a working basis as soon as possible.

AIRMEN'S BIG PART.
LONDON, Oct. 4.
The British aviators have played a big part in the progress on the Western front. It is learned that three hundred tons of bombs were dropped in the past week upon German military organizations between the coast and the Somme. In one day alone, 15 separate air raids were carried out of which seven were upon the railroad triangle at Metz-Sablona. In the air fighting over northern France and Belgium, 124 enemy machines were brought down, and 46 driven down out of control. Ninety British machines are missing.

TURKS FOUGHT DESPERATELY.

LONDON, Oct. 4.
A Turkish official statement, dated Wednesday, and received here to-day, says: "After desperate fighting on the heights south of Damascus, in which our rearguards in conjunction with the Germans defended themselves with the greatest gallantry against superior numbers, until the night of the 30th, when we were compelled to leave the town in the hands of the enemy."

ATTACK RESUMED.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.
General Pershing's communique for this date, received at the War Dept. to-night, reports the resuming of the attack west of the Meuse and the advancing of the American line from two to five kilometres. Several villages were also reported taken from the enemy.

FRENCH CAPTURES.

LONDON, Oct. 5.
A statement dealing with the operations around St. Quentin issued by the French War Office, and just received here, says: "We have taken Chardon-Vert, south of Sequehart, and many fortified woods. We have also captured Morcourt, where we took 400 prisoners and 4 cannons."

WANT COMPLETE AUTONOMY.

PARIS, Oct. 5.
Recognition of the right of the Slav-Latin States of Austria-Hungary to dispose of their own fate, and demand for the same, self-determination for the German people in Austria, are contained in resolutions adopted on Thursday by the Socialist Deputies of the Reichsrath, according to despatches received here.

IN DOUBLE MEASURE.

PARIS, Oct. 5.
(Havas Agency).—Threats by Austria that Allied aviators dropping or carrying proclamations would be punished by death, has brought a threat of reprisals from the French Government, and the Austro-Hungarian Government has been informed that if French aviators are executed, the French authorities will retaliate by inflicting the same penalty in double proportion upon Austrian officers who are prisoners.

HINTZE NOT RESIGNING.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4.
Admiral Von Hintze, who has repeatedly tendered his resignation, has now joined the majority party and will continue in office, it is said by the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin. This change in Von Hintze's attitude has occasioned considerable surprise in Berlin, it is said.

Getting the News "Through."

The man in the street seldom gives a thought as to how the newspapers obtain the war news. Could he get but a glimpse into a newspaper office during these times of continual strain, when everyone is on the alert to best somebody else, he would realize the amount of work and rivalry that goes on behind the scenes. This is particularly the case in the offices of the leading London news agencies, from which the newspapers, especially the evening ones, draw the majority of their news, apart from what they receive from their own special correspondents. The competition among these agencies, and particularly among the chief three that cater for foreign news, is extraordinarily keen, and "scoops" are eagerly sought.

The official communiques are all made the object of fierce tussles as to who shall be the first to get them on the "wire"—as the tape machine, on which the messages are sent to the newspapers, is technically known. Not a moment is wasted from the second the communique is issued in the foreign capital until it actually appears in print in London.

At least one agency has a special private wire from the Press Bureau, to which, of course, the communiques are first sent, to the office, over which the message is sent by means of the usual Post Office Morse instrument. As the message is ticked out, letter by letter, and word by word, on the instrument, the operator in the office of the agency writes it down on a receiving pad, while the editor responsible for sending the message out to the papers reads over his shoulder, and at the same time dictates to a typist.

Only a few words are taken down on each sheet, which is then rushed up to the wire which communicates with all the papers.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Rev. F. S. Coffin of St. Andrew's Church, who is on a visit to his old home at Charlottetown, P. E. I., writes to a friend that he is enjoying his stay there, and that his health has greatly improved by the change.

Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, the newly-appointed incumbent of Christ Church will occupy the pulpit for the first time at Evensong on Sunday next at 8.30 o'clock. We extend a cordial welcome to the rev. gentleman to Harbour Grace.

We have often heard curious reasons for selling houses and other property, but the funniest of the lot came under our notice a day or two ago. An old gentleman in selling his house gave as a reason that as he has always been a constant reader of the Telegram, there is nothing he enjoys so well as sitting by his window, off Water Street, and reading the various interesting items in that paper (Hr. Grace notes included). Of late a large number of motor cars, are continually passing and repassing. The old gentleman says he can't resist the temptation of looking at the passing cars, and in that way he loses the place he was reading, and before he finds it another car comes along, so he has to look again. The old gentleman has thus decided to take the Telegram and live in some narrow, rocky lane where no motor cars can annoy him.

A very enjoyable social and dance was held in St. Patrick's Hall last night by a number of young gentlemen and ladies. The pleasant affair was kept up until 3 a.m. to-day.

Mr. E. Simmons' schr. Studland, W. Day, Master, leaves shortly on a trading trip to Labrador. Mr. O. Davis will go on the schooner as clerk.

The schr. Minnie Maud arrived from the north yesterday with a cargo of lumber to her owner, Mr. E. Simmons.

Mrs. H. Cumberland, of Montreal, and Mrs. W. W. Wareham, of Haystack, P.E., arrived on Saturday on a visit to their sister, Mrs. W. A. Mac-been at her old home for a couple of months visiting her parents. While enroute from Montreal Mrs. Cumberland had the great pleasure of meeting her brother, Lieut. H. Wareham, who is now in charge of one of the ships guarding the coast.

Master of Shipping.

Here's a pen picture of the Rt. Hon. Sir Joseph Maclay, the Controller of Shipping. He was one of the most brilliant appointments made by Mr. Lloyd George, and the millionaire from Glasgow has more than merited the confidence reposed in him by the Prime Minister. He was well known in shipping circles before the war as head of one of the oldest firms of shipowners on the Clyde. Sir Joseph, who is the author of an entertaining book on prayers, is a tall, thin man, and possesses a decided Scottish accent of the educated type. Inexhaustible energy, tact, and good humour equally unbounded, a refreshingly individual personality, and irresistible resolution to have his own way are a few of his characteristics which have impressed themselves upon Sir Joseph's huge staff, which occupies quarters built upon the bed of the dock pond in St. James' Park. Sir Joseph Maclay once told me the following story, but would not vouch for its authenticity. A trawler was on naval patrol duty.

The skipper thought he would like some fish for breakfast, so commenced operations. Soon up popped a German submarine close by. The trawler's skipper, an Aberdonian, was about to ram it and earn the prize money when the commander of the U-boat, not suspecting this evil intention, offered to buy some fish.

Motorless Sundays.

The object sought by the Fuel Controller of Canada, and the Fuel Administrator of the United States, in requesting motorists to give up their Sunday pleasure, is for the purpose of conserving the gasoline supply. From Vancouver to Halifax in Canada, and east of the Mississippi River in the United States, the past few Sundays have been practically regarded as motorless, universally, car owners having acquiesced generally to the request. Such patriotic action was purely voluntary on the part of motorists, and clearly showed a strong determination to see the war terminate in victory for the Allies. There, as here since gasless Sundays were suggested in the Telegram last week, people have been asking themselves if it is not too much to expect that the man who works, early and late, six days out of the week should be expected to give up the only day in the seven in which he can obtain much needed recreation in his automobile. The sacrifice being, however, purely voluntary, no restrictions have yet been imposed, and the pleasures of motoring are not prohibited by law. It is simply a question between enjoyment and patriotism, and the matter is left to be threshed out in the heart of each individual car owner. There is, it must be borne in mind, the question of conservation. We have been restricted in our use of sugar, we have been asked to economize in our daily use of the necessities of life, and it may be in future found wise to carry out the same idea with regard to the use of gasoline. Conservation of this motive fuel may be forced upon us if the exigencies of the war demand it; and should the American Government decide upon limiting the export, it follows that a rigid application of the regulation will be adhered to. In Montreal, the Association of Motorists propose that a system of "rationing" be adopted in Canada, their idea being that instead of relying purely upon the voluntary efforts of the public to save gasoline, there should be strict governmental regulation of the amount, which each car owner be permitted to purchase. This proposal will be laid before Mr. C. A. Magrath, the Dominion Fuel Controller, officially. From Winnipeg comes the telegraphic news that "stricter measures are being urged by prominent citizens to ensure compliance with the government request to save gasoline." Vancouver newspapers are asking their readers this question: "Were you out in your automobile Sunday? If so, can you honestly say that you were using your car for a purpose that could have been omitted without serious detriment to yourself, or did you perchance forget that there is a war, and that gasoline is needed in France? Apart from the actual saving of gasoline, there is the saving of money. Every dollar will be needed by Newfoundland before the war is ended, and for long afterwards, for national purposes; also the average citizen will need every dollar that he can obtain for his own and family requirements. The money markets of the world are as good as closed to this Dominion, consequently we must finance ourselves to sustain our efforts in helping win the war. If we are extravagant or wasteful the difficulties of life will increase. We should not need to have the importance of thrift taught us by unfortunate and distressing experiences, therefore our first and chief duty is conservation in everything. The true test of our sincerity will be shown by the willingness with which we deny ourselves pleasures and luxuries. Every time a car is taken out for pleasure, a certain quantity of gasoline is being used, and that quantity in the aggregate will total up a huge amount. Sundays bring their big opportunities to make personal sacrifices which will do a big national service. Money and gasoline are both needed for Victory. Save them and help defeat the Hun. The opportunity to demonstrate real patriotism is offered. If you go "joy riding" to-morrow you will have a lot of explaining to do to the boys "over there," who need the gasoline. So if you really do want to go out for a pleasure spin, just hitch up old Dobbin to the carriage, and remember that "they also serve who save gasoline."

Big Sporting Event

Thursday night next has been set down for the presentation of the sport trophies. The affair will take place in the British Hall and will include the football and baseball leagues and Blue Puttee football players. The golf and curling club members and the hockey leagues will be invited. This should be the greatest event in the history of sport. It is hoped that His Excellency will be able to present the trophies. The smoker promises to be an outstanding part of the program.

Woman Drinks Florida Water.

A female, who was well under the influence of Florida Water, created a scene in an uptown hopping house last night. The unfortunate woman was so crazed with the drug that she threatened to do herself bodily harm, and to protect her from committing a rash act, she had to be closely guarded till the effects wore off. The girl who is of a respectable outer harbor family drank only a small quantity of the poisonous liquid not knowing its awful effects.

10-MORROW'S JOINT SERVICE.—The C.L.B., including the college companies, are holding a church parade to-morrow afternoon and will attend the Bible Class annual service at the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist at 3 o'clock.

DIED AT ST. ANTHONY.—Mr. T. Carter, Ship's Broker, has received a message, informing him of the passing of Capt. Jensen, of the Danish schooner Immanuel, at St. Anthony hospital. Death resulted from lung trouble.

At Rest.

The funeral of the late E. J. S. MacGregor took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence, Bannerman St., and was attended by a large number of citizens, practically all of whom were personal friends of the deceased. Included in those present were Dr. Robinson, P.M.G., Mr. G. W. LeMessurier, chief clerk, the superintendents of the various departments and many clerks from the G.P.O. and postal telegraph. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. G. A. Moulton, and interment was at the C. E. cemetery. At the mortuary chapel the favorite hymn of deceased "Jesus, Lover of my Soul" was sweetly and reverently sung.

Put Clock Back.

At eleven o'clock to-morrow evening, the hour hands of all clocks must be put back one hour, that is to ten o'clock, and thereafter must run on the same as before the law came into force. It is a pity that the law cannot be continued as the extra-hour of daylight will be sorely missed now that the evenings are shortening.

DIED AT ST. ANTHONY.—Mr. T.
Carter, Ship's Broker, has received a message, informing him of the passing of Capt. Jensen, of the Danish schooner Immanuel, at St. Anthony hospital. Death resulted from lung trouble.

At Rest.

The funeral of the late E. J. S. Mac-Gregor took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence Bannerman
St., and was attended by a large number of citizens, practically all of whom were personal friends of the deceased. Included in those present were Dr. Robinson, P.M.G., Mr. G. W.
LeMessurier, chief clerk, the superintendents of the various departments and many clerks from the G.P.O. and postal telegraphs. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. C. A.
Moulton, and interment was at the C. E. cemetery. At the mortuary chapel the favorite hymn of deceased "Jesu lover of my Soul" was sweetly and reverently sung.

Put Clock Back.

At eleven o'clock to-morrow evening, the hour hands of all clocks must be put back one hour, that is to ten o'clock, and thereafter must run on the same as before the law came in force. It is a pity that the law cannot be continued, as the extra-hour of daylight will be sorely missed now that the evenings are shortening.

A Canadian soldier in the region of Vimy Ridge met a swanking English officer, whom, according to good
Canadian custom, he did not salute.
The officer stopped him.
"Look here, my man," he said,
"don't you know I'm an officer? Why don't you salute?"
"Oh," said the Canadian, "are you an officer?"
"Yes," replied the officer, and then noticing for the first time that the man was a Canadian, he added with annoyance: "Oh, you're a Canadian, aren't you? Well, do you know that you Canadians give us more trouble than the whole rest of the English army put together?"
"Yes," replied the Canadian, with a slow smile. "That's what Fritz thinks too."

Household Notes

Some small collars are at the back only.
Fine knife pleats are excellent as trimming.
V necks are almost as popular as square ones.
Embroidery in worsted and angora
is smart.
The smartest veils are those with spots and dots.
Caps to match the dress are made for tiny children.
Draped bodices are best developed in soft charmeuse.
Set-on sleeves for wraps retain the kimono effect.
Bead bags are pulled up with strings or ribbons.
Metal-thread embroidery is smart on satin or velvet.
Square collars edged with beads are very attractive.
Some of the newest nightgowns
have pockets in them.
Many gowns of black satin have collars of pink satin.
The waistcoats of the new tailored suits are often of fur.
A toque of brilliant jet beads may be worn with any costume.
Some straight slim skirts have two or three side flounces.
Gloveskin velvet seems made especially for afternoon frocks.
Empire dresses for young girls are trimmed only with tucks.

Denominational Ratio.

We copy the following denominational percentage of enlistments in the Royal Newfoundland Regiment from a despatch dated St. John's N.F., Sept. 3, cabled or written Toronto and published in that city on Sept. 12th. The extract is quoted verbatim: "The total membership of each religious denomination in 1911 and the numbers of each who volunteered up to June 28th last, are as follows: Church of Rome, membership 81,779; Volunteers, 1639. Church of England, membership 78,618; Volunteers, 2044. Methodist, membership, 68,042; Volunteers, 1818. Salvation Army, membership 10,141;
Volunteers, 265. The percentage enlisting from each church, per thousand of population, is, according to this table—Church of Rome, 30.02;
Church of England, 28.00; Methodist, 26.72; Salvation Army, 26.01." We do not assume the responsibility for the compilation of these figures, merely reprinting them from the Toronto journal in the public interest.

T. P. U. Meeting

The executive of the Truckmen's Protective Union held their regular meeting last evening when the proposed new tariff came up for discussion. The matter of handling the R. N. Co.'s freight bills on the shipments of goods carted by the Union was also discussed, carmen complaining that they usually pay the freight bills on shipments of goods they cart, which means delay and loss of time without remuneration. The executive did not arrive at a decision on either matter discussed, but on Monday night, at the annual meeting of the Union, both will be further considered and possibly finalized.

The Allies

SOME CONTRASTS.

England and America—one sees them side by side out here in France for purposes of comparison, and what strikes one everywhere and all the time is the difference between them. There is no mistaking one for the other.

The American is taller, narrower, not so thick through, carries himself more erect, and moves more stiffly. His comparative straightness may be due to the lesser period he has been under a pack; almost every British soldier has a bent-forward look from that 66 lb. burden. The American's clothes look to fit him better, but they may fit him worse when they have been soaked a few times. Our men's coats are sogged with the rain they have so often carried, which makes them look—in Paris, for example, where one can compare them—the more slovenly.

But on the march the tables are turned. Thomas Atkins is a marvel for keeping himself up to form under adverse conditions, and the Yankee has not yet learnt how to steal the odd five minutes for a shave and a wash, so that a British column always looks fresher than an American when on the road.

And the contrast is accentuated in their transport. But Tommy's wagons are a wonder the world over; they alone seem able to just at dust.

In face the difference between British and American must be apparent to all. It is curious and unexpected to find the American, with his more varied ancestry, conforming more to type. A composite photograph made from 100 Americans would look much less like a composite than one made from the same number of Englishmen.

The American head is longer, narrower, and straighter of profile than ours. The features are more regular and with less variety, and the expression is altogether different, closer, tighter, falling less about itself.

Of course it must be remembered that these men have still the civil stamp on their faces; they are fresh from business and professions, whereas our men have acquired the queer blank, casual look of war. And curiously enough the American in no way resembles the men from our Dominions—no, not even from Canada—while he is totally unlike both Australian and New Zealander, who certainly have the most decisive and self-confident countenances of any troops out here.

And the differences run to character. Under fire it is the British habit to grow more casual, but the American men of a Scots regiment, and they were not all Scotsmen, on a shell-swept field putting their heads together to take a thorn out of a kitten's foot. Americans would have felt just as humane, but they would probably not have seen the kitten; their minds would have been too sternly concentrated on the Boche. That's a point in their favour the Boche will not appreciate.

Of course the American of the Western Plains differs from the New Yorker, but not sufficiently to affect the general American resemblance, which is a very notable thing. The Americans have made themselves very much at home in Paris, but you will see them sitting erect, alert, in the cafe, taking every novelty in. Thomas Atkins lounges at his ease as though the whole place had belonged to him for centuries.—Daily Mail.

Italy's Soldier-Poet.

The most heroic figure of the war has yet produced is Gabriele d'Annunzio, the Italian poet. He is epic, a hero, a superman, whose wonderful life and deeds are already become a legend, a myth. Like France, this great poet and mighty prose writer was stigmatized as a decadent by the hall-room minds of literature and philosophy. But his voice was the Lexington of Italy. One eye gone, one hand shot away, his fortune given to Italy, his mother killed by a Prussian airplane, he rides the air and scours the Adriatic for the foes of his soul, calling with pen and sword his countrymen to fight to the last drop of their immortal Italian blood, sending his bitter defiance over the Alps to the hordes of hell.

In Palestine.

(Toronto Star.)
The Plain of Esdraelon (Jezreel), which has been overrun by the allies, is of supreme historic interest, not only because of the location of such places as Nazareth and Nain in the neighbouring hills, but because the plain itself has been the greatest battleground of Palestine. It was thereabouts that Salu and his sons died in battle with the Philistines. It was at Jezreel, the city, that Ahab had his warlike capital. The Crusaders were well acquainted with plain, which they called Parvum Gerinum. The occupation of this historic district by the British will have a depressing effect upon the morale of their enemies effect upon the morale of their enemies in the East.

In Old Age

Health and comfort in old age depends largely on keeping the liver and kidneys in healthful action. Pains and aches, stiffness of the joints, lumbago and rheumatism, all of which are left in the blood by sluggishness of the liver and kidneys. People in advanced years hold Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in high esteem because of the promptness and certainty with which they awaken the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Help! Help!

The husband of one of the local church-goers had set out on a sea voyage, and the wife wrote and requested the parson to conduct a prayer for his safety during the service. What she intended to be read out was this: "Mr. Sparkes having gone to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation on his behalf." Imagine her confusion, however, when on Sunday the parson severely read: Mr. Sparkes, having gone to see his wife, desires the prayers of the congregation on his behalf."

Britannia Rules The Waves.

(Ottawa Journal-Press.)

In a New York newspaper on Sunday appeared a photograph of a vast mass of Chinamen assembled at Tsing-Tao in China, waiting to go on board British ships for transportation to Europe. Below the picture appeared the following lines:

"Chinese coolies mobilized at Tsing-Tao for transportation to England and France, where they are to be released, for the fighting, men now used in necessary work behind the lines."

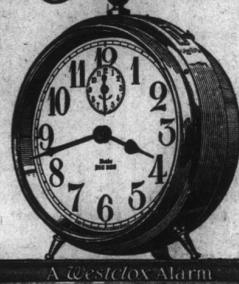

And beneath another picture on the subject appeared this:

"Chinese coolies bound for England boarding a ship at Tsing-Tao. So far, 150,000 of these laborers have been transported and employed by the British government, and 50,000 by the French government."

Who could look at such pictures without having borne in upon him the tremendous nature of the factor the British navy has been in this war? Under its protection, two hundred thousand Chinese workers have been taken many thousands of miles across the oceans to assist in the struggle against the Hun, and thousands continue to go. Looked at by itself this is an impressive item, and a peculiarly picturesque and suggestive one, when an idea of the nature and extent of the thing is contributed to by photography as well as type. And yet, it is a bagatelle in the count of what the British naval power has meant. That power alone has rendered possible the world rally against the German evil. That power has carried millions of British troops to France, and hundreds of thousands of them to destinations elsewhere in Europe, Asia and Africa, together with incalculable supplies of food, fuel and war munitions. That power has taken nearly two million soldiers into the war from the British overseas countries and India, and half a million laborers in addition. That power has protected the transport of nearly two million American soldiers across the Atlantic. That power has enabled the use of all the industries and resources of civilization to defeat the Huns. That power has destroyed all German foreign trade, it has enabled the capture of all the German colonies, it has largely prevented neutral countries from contributing to German supplies, and by these things it has been exercising a continuous strangle-hold on the German ability to endure the strain of the war.

It is hardly too much to say that only the British navy has prevented the triumphant attainment by the Huns of their evil end of world supremacy. Other things have helped, but this was vital. The other things could not have been effective without it. The great mass of Chinese coolies waiting on the ocean front of Tsing-Tao was a thing illuminating the secret of the course of the war, and indicating its sure ending.

Big Ben

Westclox is Big Ben's family name. Westclox is a name an alarm clock is proud to bear. Westclox is a mark of quality.

All Westclox must earn the right to wear it. Like Big Ben they must be as good all through as they look outside. The Western Clock Co.

makes each one in the patented Westclox way—a better method of clock making. Needle-fine pivots, of polished steel greatly reduce friction. Westclox run on time and ring on time.

Grand Falls Exhibition

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—The Annual Exhibition in connection with the Grand Falls Gardening and Industrial Association took place in the Town Hall, Thursday, Sept. 26th.

The Show was even better than last year, especially the display of Potatoes and Beet Root, and considering the very unfavourable weather, have had this year, this was very remarkable.

There were Four Hundred and Sixty Exhibits, Three Hundred and Sixty Seven Agricultural, and Ninety Eight Industrial.

In the absence of Professor Smith of Truro, N.S., Mr. E. Powley, Farmdale, acted as Judge of Agricultural Section, and Mrs. Simpson, Miss Berteau and Miss Finn of Industrial Section.

The show opened to the public at 2 p.m., and was kept open until 9 p.m. when Mr. T. F. Judge called on Mrs. Lamb to present the prizes.

Great credit is due to the members of the Show Committee, and ladies who took charge of the Industrial section, also to the people generally for their patriotic action making the Exhibition such a success.

Yours very truly,

MAGIC BAKING POWDER

Great Britain

BY THE RIGHT REV. H. G. RYLE, D. D., DEAN OF WESTMINSTER.
"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."—Psalm xxxiii. 12.
Once again, in every church and chapel throughout the land, the people has dedicated itself to a sacred cause. Great Britain kneels. It is no formal gesture. She kneels in penitence for many things of shame. She kneels in proud thanksgiving for the dear lives who cheerfully laid down for her sake. She kneels in passionate intercession for those dear loved ones, risking all, enduring all, for her sake. She kneels to renew the solemn vow to contend for right and truth, for humanity and liberty. And in her heart there rises up the great sobbing de-estation of the curse of war.
The author of the "Hymn of Sacrifice" that we have sung this afternoon in the Abbey has put in strong and simple words the thought of our country's act of renewed self-dedication. Let me quote to you the lines:—
To-day within His ancient House—
The Hallowed courts our fathers trod—
She seeks the altars of her God
To make renewal of her vows.
[High vows for truth and honour sworn,
The sword she drew for righteousness,
Again she asks that He will bless These—and her heavy crown of thorn!]
Her heart is fixed: before her lies
The inexorable road again—
The shadowy vale of death and pain,
The stormy heights of sacrifice.
But she must follow truth and right,
For truth and right they guide her still.
Like beacons on the distant hill,
Or trumpets calling through the night,
The night shall pass: and she behold
Above her, at the break of day,
The Hand that led her on her way,
Outstretched in mercy as of old.

Grand Falls Exhibition

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—The Annual Exhibition in connection with the Grand Falls Gardening and Industrial Association took place in the Town Hall, Thursday, Sept. 26th.

The show was even better than last year, especially the display of Potatoes and Beet Root, and considering the very unfavourable weather, have had this year, this was remarkable.

There were Four Hundred and Sixty Five Exhibits, Three Hundred and Sixty Seven Agricultural, and Ninety Eight Industrial.

In the absence of Professor Shaw of Truro, N.S., Mr. E. Powley, Farmdale, acted as Judge of Agricultural Section, and Mrs. Simpson, Miss Berteau and Miss Finn of Industrial Section.

The show opened to the public at 10 a.m., and was kept open until 9 p.m. when Mr. T. F. J. was called upon by Mrs. Lamb to present the prizes. Great credit is due to the members of the Show Committee, and to the ladies who took charge of the Industrial section, also to the people generally for their patriotic action making the Exhibition such a success.

Yours very truly,
G. E. SANDERS,
Hon. Secretary
Grand Falls, Oct. 2, 1918.

Great Britain Kneels.

BY THE RIGHT REV. H. G. KYLE, D. D., DEAN OF WESTMINSTER.

"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."—Psalm xxxiii. 12.

Once again, in every church and chapel throughout the land, the people has dedicated itself to a sacred cause. Great Britain kneels. It is no formal gesture. She kneels in penitence for many things of shame. She kneels in proud thanksgiving for the dear lives so cheerfully laid down for her sake. She kneels in passionate intercession for those dear loved ones, risking all, enduring all, for her sake. She kneels to renew the solemn vow to contend for right and truth, for humanity and liberty. And in her heart there rises up the great sobbing de- testation of the curse of war.

The author of the "Hymn of Sacrifice" that we have sung this afternoon in the Abbey has put in strong and simple words the thought of our country's act of renewed self-dedication. Let me quote to you the lines:—

To-day within His ancient House—
The Hallowed courts our fathers trod—
She seeks the altars of her God
To make renewal of her vows.

[High vows for truth and honour sworn,
The sword she drew for righteousness,
Again she asks that he will bless
These—and her heavy crown of thorn!]

Her heart is fixed; before her lies
The inexorable road again—
The shadowy vale of death and pain,
The stormy heights of sacrifice.

But she must follow truth and right,
For truth and right they guide her still.

Like heacons on the distant hill,
Or trumpets calling through the night,
The night shall pass; and she behold
Above her, at the break of day,
The Hand that led her on her way,
Outstretched in mercy as of old.

Not All Things True.
I believe that it is a fine conception

This solemn Remembrance Day emphasizes the same thought. We are to take our religion sincerely for daily life. Before the war, men thought it fine and clever to try and do without it. The agony of the war has revealed the barrenness of Mammon worship and the hollow sham of modern counterfeit cults.

And while to-day we are praying that during the coming twelve months there may be restored to the world the blessing of peace, let us be on our guard against the old pagan idea that God is one who safely may be forgotten in prosperity and remembered in trouble. God is with us at all times. Shall not the tragedy of this four years' continuous agony have compelled us to understand how God pleads with us; how slow we have been to realize the Divine call to service, the Christ-like glory of sacrifice, the power of the unseen and the spiritual value of religion. Why have the King and Queen, the Peers and the Representatives of the people, the Houses of Parliament, the greatest and the simplest, been joining in worship with us to-day? They and we feel the need of God in our lives. We confess how far astray we have gone. We come back in our weakness and danger, as we shall in the hour of death, to the thought of the Cross of Christ. We pray to be brought back into the old paths. We have gone after other gods—pleasure and money and self-indulgence, frivolous distractions and wealth. And we are guided back by a way of suffering to seek the God of our salvation in truth and purity, in practical love of our fellow-men, in willing service for others.

We Pray Thee.

Yes: let them bide with us awhile,
Who've prayed for them throughout the years;
Who've steeled upon our yearning hearts
Their cherished memory with our tears.

The old gray mother bent with toil,
The sister, please, you'll let them stay;
"They are our long desired guests,
We want them home for Christmas Day."

But deem us not forgetting quite
The homes bereft of stalwart men
Who bravely marched into the fight
And may not e'er return again.

There lifts a mound by many a gleam
In France and Flanders far away
That hold the laughter and the light
That cheered a home on Christmas day.

And yet, more anxiously we pray
For those who—this we love so dear:
Ah! blame us not, 'tis love we own
And not the coward streak of fear!

How can we help when they are near,
With all our hearts to bid them stay?
Hearken a woman's prayer, and let
Our boys remain for Christmas day.
Oct. 4th, 1918. NELL.

these men. Remember them in your gratitude for their consummate self-sacrifice, in your thanksgiving for their heroic spirit. Remember them in prayer for their preservation, for their reward in victory, and for their restoration to their homes. Remember them in your own supplication that as their brothers and sisters you and I may by God's grace not altogether fall short of their high example in simple single-hearted patriotism and in self-sacrificing service.—The Canadian Churchman.

Two Ideals in Collision.

There are, I believe, now in collision two ideals, that of Paganism and that of Christianity. There is no alternative civilization. The spirit of Paganism was in the old days denounced by the Hebrew prophets. It is typified in the figures of Assyrian kings which you can see cut out in the imperishable marble of the monuments. See there the monarchs, depicted in more than mortal stature, seated on their thrones while before them "dette processions of tortured captives of subjugated races, to gratify their insolent love of despotism and their arrogant confidence in the superior civilization of a more mighty military organization. There is no difference between the Sennacherib of Nineveh, the Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, Frederick of Prussia, the Napoleon Bonaparte of France, and the Wilhelm of Berlin. They embody the same debased appeal to selfish violence as the test of true greatness.

My brethren, we follow another ideal. It is that of the Cross of Christ. His emblem is on our country's banner. The Cross of St. George, the Cross of St. Andrew, the Cross of St. Patrick are blended in one. The flag of our country stands for suffering in behalf of the weak. It stands for sacrifice in resistance of the evil. It stands for Christ. And it has become hallowed for us insofar by the blood of our brothers who have laid down their lives for their homes and yours, and for the overthrow of the world-menace of materialistic force. The Cross stands for a more enduring world than that for which the German Kaiser has plunged the populations of the globe into mourning and misery. Suffering is not God's last word. It was not for Christ Himself. It shall not be for us.

My friends, right is right, and wrong is wrong. Four years do not alter it. Difficult as it may be for those who do not know Germany and German institutions to realize, yet it is, in my belief, indisputable that a wrong peace hastily made now would lead in a few years to a more terrible conflict and annihilation of European liberties by an enemy who has never ventured to trust its people, and whose bureaucratic rule is militarism transported into municipal control, lowering social life and invading the liberties of private citizenship.

Our brothers have died. Their sacrifice must not have been made in vain. Their blood cries to us from the soil of France and Flanders, from the rocks of Gallipoli and Salonica, from the sands around Gaza and Baghdad, of Palestine and Mesopotamia, and its cry is: Finish the work that we have gladly died to begin.

The Debt We Owe.

And as I say this, I am impelled to ask whether the country realizes its debt of gratitude to our ordinary seamen of the Fleet and to the privates and N.C.O.'s of the Army? For four years they have been incomparable—risking all, enduring all, tough, good-humoured, patient, valiant. They are earning their modest wage; they are striking in order to take advantage of the people's difficulties. There is no special gala day, no flag day for them. They are taken for granted, condescendingly patronized. They have borne the brunt of it all. A few days' leave is their best reward, just a glimpse of home, and then back again to the weary succession of war's horrors by day and night, in sight and sound and smell, with frequent loss of friends, with utter weariness, and cold and wet, drowned in mud, choking with dust, and covered with filth indescribable.

It is Remembrance Day. I think of the ordinary sailor and the common soldier, and I say to you, as you look back over the four years, remember

Convoy Orders. Canned Salmon. Siam Does Its Bit

The convoy system is now an integral part of our naval policy, but it is only after much effort and considerable experience that it has been possible to bring it to its present efficient state. Credit is due not only to the Navy, which escorts our shipping, but also to the masters of the merchant ships which form the convoys, as without implicit obedience on their part and a thorough understanding of what is expected of them, the value of the escort's protection would be much reduced.

An important part of a convoy's organization is the conference, which has been found invaluable and always necessary in the case of large ocean-going convoys. This conference is really a lecture which the master of each ship about to sail in the convoy has to attend in order to receive his instructions for outwitting "Fritz" during the forthcoming voyage.

Picture to yourself a smallish room with dirty whitewashed walls and a long deal table running down the centre. At one end is a raised platform facing a large blackboard covered with little discs; at the other is a small table littered with multifarious documents, guarded by a Naval Reserve officer.

Grouped round the table, some sitting, others standing, are about 40 masters of all ages; jovial-looking, fair-haired Swedes are mingled with tall and serious-looking Norwegians and Danes, while the remainder are obviously British. Some are attired in well-cut blue suits and "bowler" hats, others are content, with a suit of "reach-me-downs" and a muffler, but the stamp of the sea is clearly marked on each face.

A corner of the room contains the commanding officers of the escort vessels, and in front of the platform stand the port convoy officer and the senior officer of the convoy itself.

Convoy Orders. Canned Salmon. Siam Does Its Bit

The canned salmon situation, as it develops, offers plenty of opportunity for conjecture as to the likely quantities to be available for civilian consumption this year. The government requisition has gradually been increased so that it now includes practically the entire pack, but it is questionable whether or not the entire pack, estimated at 7,500,000, can be used in feeding the army and navy if there is to be one ration of salmon per week during the year. The opinion seems to be logically taken that there will be an overplus of canned salmon for governmental purposes, and that considerable quantities will be available for domestic use. It would seem that 4,000,000 cases ought to cover the requirements of the army and navy, and that would leave 3,500,000 cases as the estimate given for other purposes. This is not the time to take too serious a view of the situation. There may yet be canned salmon for everybody, even if it is in smaller portions than in happier days.—N. Y. "Ethie's" Report.

(Western Star.)

About 60 schooners were at Assizes Harbor on the way southward when the Ethie was there last week inward bound. The Ethie reached Curling on Wednesday shortly after noon. Capt. English reports Sagoons arrived at Battle Harbor on Sunday, going north and the Seal left there Saturday northward bound. Cod continues plentiful on Labrador from Red Bay northward, but weather has been rough for operations. No cod west of Elnواره. Herring plentiful from West St. Modeste to Cape Charles. Some few squid and a sign of cod about Port au Choix and St. John's Bay.

Nine doctors, medical students and nurses from the Grenfell hospitals at Battle Harbor and St. Anthony, and several other passengers came by the Ethie.

The ship sailed for the Belle Isle Straits again on Friday evening.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a restful night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of quick better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Flying side panels are especially attractive on trucks of heavy material. A charming coat is of sea-green velour, and is lined with beige velour. Some of the heavy top-coats have schu-like collars that end at the belt.

REMOVING THEIR GUNS.

LONDON, Oct. 4. There is every indication, according to authoritative naval sources of an early abandonment by the Germans of the entire Flanders coast. The Germans already are removing their guns. The Belgian coast has been under a heavy bombardment for the last two days.

MUCH MATERIAL DESTROYED.

LONDON, Oct. 4. In the levelling of the fortifications and depots of Durazzo, on Wednesday, the Entente squadron, according to a Central News despatch from Rome, destroyed much material for the Austrian Army in Albania.

SPECIALLY MENTIONED.

LONDON, Oct. 4. A supplementary statement from Field Marshal Haig says: In the operations undertaken by the Second British Army in Flanders on the 29th of September and subsequent days, the Ninth, Twenty-Ninth and Thirty-Fifth Divisions rendered distinguished service. Under most unfavourable conditions of weather they advanced to a depth of over nine miles across extremely difficult country, clearing the whole ridge east and southeast of Ypres and taking a prominent part in the capture of more than 4,000 prisoners and 100 guns. The Ninth Division, the first day of the attack, took Beclaire, five miles east of its starting point, and three days later reached Ledeghem. On the first day the Twenty-Ninth Division passed beyond Ghelvelt and captured Kruseke, having advanced over five miles along the Menin road. On the right the Thirtieth Division passed far beyond our old positions of 1917 and took Seandvoorde.

A DYING GASP.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4. Responding to a demand for the establishment of a dictatorship in Germany, Herr Von Berg, chief of Emperor William's civilian cabinet, has sent the following reply to the citizens of Hanover: His Majesty confidently expects at the present time that the entire German people will unanimously and trustfully support the Kaiser and his Empire; and with its competent leaders pursue only one aim: staking its blood and treasure to free the Fatherland from threatening dangers.

4,000 PRISONERS TAKEN.

LONDON, Oct. 4. British forces pursuing the retreating Germans in the Lens region have reached the railway east of Lens, Field Marshal Haig announced in his official statement to-day. To the southeast the British have made progress between Oppy and Mercourt. More than 4,000 prisoners were taken yesterday by the British in their operations north of St. Quentin. The point of the British wedge in the region north of St. Quentin has been pushed at the end of yesterday's fighting to the high ground a mile north-east of Sequehart. The British are holding this ground, having repulsed a counter-attack.

NEW GOVERNMENT IN GERMANY.

LONDON, Oct. 4. There is little room for doubt that the solution of the German governmental crisis will be found in the shape of Baden. No official news of the situation has as yet reached London, but according to German newspapers there is a possibility that among the ministers there will be some Royalists. It is understood that the government will be considered a collective body. All the secretaries will participate in its decisions. But the Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor and the Secretary without portfolios, Philipp E. Scheideman, and a central deputy will form a committee. It is stated that Prince Maximilian will outline his programme before the Reichstag on Saturday.

BULGARIANS BURNING VILLAGES.

SALONIKI, Oct. 3. Burning villages mark the trail of the retreating Bulgarian army in Macedonia according to telegrams received here from the front. Bodies of slain civilians were found in the smoking runis at many places by the advancing Allies. Advice state that this work of destruction surpassed even that which has been reported from districts in France and Belgium from which the Germans have been driven.

A Dyspepsia Cure

M.D. advises: "Persons who suffer from severe indigestion and constipation can cure themselves by taking fifteen to thirty drops of Extract of Roots after each meal and at bedtime. This remedy is known as Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup in the drug trade." Get the genuine. 50c. and $1.00 Bottles.

Cordling is one of the prettiest methods of self-trimming a dress.

This new, thick, fruity sauce from England is simply delicious, and such a welcome change to the old-fashioned sauces.

Wouldn't it be worth your while to try the one and only H.P. Sauce?

Congratulations.

Our congratulations to the Acting Prime Minister, and Minister of Finance and Customs, Sir Michael Patrick Cashin, Knight Commander of the British Empire, also to the other ladies and gentlemen who have been made officers and members of this Order. The new honors have been conferred for meritorious work in connection with the various activities of the patriotic associations of war workers, and we are quite sure that all those mentioned in the official list, which we publish beneath, deserve the recognition and honor conferred upon them. Again, congratulations.

ORDER OF BRITISH EMPIRE—NEWFOUNDLAND LIST.

The King has been graciously pleased to give orders for the following appointments to and promotions in the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire, for service in connection with the war:

To be Knight Commander of the said Most Excellent Order (K.B.E.) the Hon. Michael Patrick Cashin, Minister of Finance; member of various patriotic committees.

To be Commander of the said Most Excellent Order (C.B.E.) Mrs. Adelaide Elizabeth Browning, Mr. Walter Baine Griev; promoted from O.B.E.

To be Officers of the said Most Excellent Order (O.B.E.) Mrs. Mary Chisholm E. John, St. John's; Mrs. Margaret Mary Power, Bell Island; Mrs. Sophie Oke, Hr. Grace; for devoted work for the Women's Patriotic Association.

To be Members of the said Most Excellent Order (M.B.E.) Miss Violet Macpherson, St. John's; Mrs. Katherine Scott, Grand Falls; Mrs. Mary Goodison, Carbonar; for devoted work for the Women's Patriotic Association. Mr. John Williams Morris, St. John's, for services as Musketry Instructor; Mr. Frederick William Angel, St. John's, for general patriotic services; Mrs. Isabella O'Reilly, Placentia; Mrs. Jemima Wilton, Bonne Bay; Mrs. Edith Mary Facey, Smith's Sound; Mrs. Christina Harvey, St. John's; Mrs. Eliza Schlarer, St. John's; Mrs. Isabel Ryan, Placentia, work for the Women's Patriotic Association; Miss S. Knox, London, Secretary of Newfoundland War Contingent Association.

Girls! Just Try It, Beautify Your Hair

Makes it thick, glossy, wavy, luxuriant and remove dandruff—Real surprise for you.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's. Just try this "Dandarine hair cleanser." After a try this—moisten a cloth with a little Dandarine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Dandarine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair. But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Dandarine from any druggist or toilet counter for a few cents.

Celebrated 100th Birthday.

According to a message received in the city yesterday, Mrs. Charlotte Housell, widow of the late George Housell, living at Stocking Harbor, near Nipper's Harbor, celebrated her 100th birthday the day before yesterday. Over a hundred friends from nearby settlements visited her, and the old lady, walked to a field and partook of refreshments provided by friends in honor of her centenary. To show how good her eyesight is, Mrs. Housell can thread her needle and sew without the aid of eyeglasses.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I went to see Ambassador Gerard's experiences in Germany, as shown by authorized photos by Mr. Gerard, last night. No words of praise are too great to apply to them. They are magnificent, and one would want to see them to realize what this war means. The negotiations between the Allies and Germany before the declaration of war, and Germany's scornful refusal to listen to reason from the British, American or other Ambassadors, are so plainly depicted, that it makes one realize for the first time, no matter how many "White Books" one has read, the real abolitionism of German Kultur.

The coming of the British and Americans into the war, as shown on the screen, was the signal for the wildest enthusiasm, and one can readily understand how it was that American audiences rose en masse at the sight of them and amidst the wildest excitement sang the Star Spangled Banner, God Save the King, the Marseillaise and other national hymns. If any Allied subject needed a spur to his patriotism, viewing these pictures would certainly give even a spineless man a patriotic thrill. It is a pity the price of admission is so high, because every soldier, and every sweethearts mother and sister and well-hearts ought to see these views. It would pay the Patriotic Association, the W.P.A., the Red Cross and all patriotic committees to make arrangements to show these pictures more generally, because no one can miss the lesson or avoid feeling a thrill, when he sees what Britain and her colonies have done in this war.

Yours, CITIZEN.

Hard Salted Salmon.

While there is not the least question as to the demand for hard salted salmon, the fact of a greater production may have its influence on prices during the remainder of the season. It is reported from many sources that the catch of salmon has been sufficient to make a larger pack of this cure than was anticipated earlier in the season. Not only is this true of the Pacific, but there appears to be a greater quantity of hard salted salmon offering from Newfoundland and Nova Scotia packers and exporters. The most recent quotations from Seattle are as follows: Alaska reds, $23 per bb; medium reds, $20; pinks, $16.50 and $17, and chums, $14 and $15. Quotations from Newfoundland sources are on the basis of $16.50 f. o. b. St. John's, but it is known that sales have been made at lower figures than these, and supplies have been contracted for at $16.50 New York. There have been no important developments in this market. Quotations remain at the basis of last quotations, reds being held at $27 and $29, medium reds at $26, and pinks at $21.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, Sept. 21.

"Boat Ahoy!"

Certain laws and customs concerning boats dating from the middle of the eighteenth century are still strictly observed in the Navy. There is that which concerns the approach of boats to ships after dark. Its observance is, for obvious reasons, enforced with a stringency which permits of no excuse on the part of those whose duty it is to see that it is carried out; and in war-time other precautions are taken which must be kept a close secret.

After nightfall every approaching boat is challenged directly it comes within hail. "Boat ahoy!" rings out from the fo'c'sle head or the quarter-deck. And the reply is flung across the water to the challenging ship with that promptness which is characteristic of the Navy.

The nature of the reply depends upon who is in the boat. If it contain an officer of flag rank—an admiral, a vice-admiral, a rear-admiral, or a commodore—the reply will be "Flag!"

If it may be the galley of Polyphemus returning with the captain of that vessel, which lies astern of the chaloupe, it will be "Polyphemus!" Or it may be a party of commissioned officers coming back to their units from the hockey ground or tennis courts. In that event the answer will be "Aye, aye!" And when the approaching boat contains only ranks lower than that of a commissioned rank the reply in all instances is, "No, no!"

All boats are challenged by all ships after dark. All have to reply whether they are bound for the challenging ship or are merely passing on to other ships of the fleet. And the look-out, having received an answer, passes it duly on to the officer of the watch: "Answers, Flag, sir!" "Answers, Polyphemus, sir!" "Answers, Aye, ye, sir!" or "Answers, No, no, sir!" as the case may be.

Then there are the laws and customs to be observed when boats are passing one another. Junior officers salute senior. A boat carrying a junior officer salutes by tossing the oars if rowing, by letting fly the sheet if sailing, and by stopping the engines if steaming. A captain is saluted by laying on the oars (ceasing to row); other officers get the command salute—touching the cap.

The Royal Navy lost much of its beauty, if none of its charm, with the passing of oak and hemp and masts and yards, but there are still in vogue many laws and customs which came into being during that picturesque period, and that most of them fulfil a useful function in these days of steam, electricity, and steel is—well, merely to state a fact.—(O. A captain is saluted by laying on the oars (ceasing to row); other officers get the common salute—touching the cap.

What Soldiers
Do Not Want.

America is sending over many vaudeville artists to entertain her soldiers in France, and she is taking great care of them, too.

Criticism of a high class is found in the instructions issued by the Over There Theatre League to the players about to embark for the battleground. Among the jokes barred by these regulations are the following offences:—

1. Any "Can the Kaiser," "Berlin by Christmas" stuff unless the boastfulness is redeemed by sufficient wit. The boys over there have a wholesome respect for the enemy's fighting qualities.
2. Any "fight for home and country" stuff. They are doing it. They don't want civilian advice.
3. Jokes about trench and camp life or military procedure should be accurate with the facts. The boys are likely to buy any obvious mistakes.
4. Local jokes and names and allusions unless nationally known. Ninety-five out of every hundred boys were never nearer Broadway than Hoboken. Camps in their neighbourhood are no criterion.
5. "Drunk" and "bar-room" stuff, unless of the right sort. Temperance is one of the army's big problems.
6. Any joke of even questionable taste. Performers should remember that they will not be facing an audience of men only. The front seats will be occupied by the most honoured of the regimental guests—Red Cross sisters, canteen workers, and Y.M.C.A. women.
7. Jokes derogatory to women. The "I'd rather go to jail than live with my wife" sort of wheeze. Absence from home has surrounded women in the boys' eyes with a sentimental halo, and this sort of thing may subtly hurt.
8. Unnecessary oaths, and particularly the use of "God." Most of the boys come from small country towns where old-fashioned prejudice still prevails.

These rules might well be posted on every stage and in every auditorium.

A Prayer in Time of War.

Thou whose deep ways are in the sea,
Whose footsteps are not known,
To-night a world that turned from
Is waiting—at Thy Throne.

The towering Babele's towers raised
Where scoffing poppists brew,
The little Antipodians we praise—
The night is on them all.

The fool hath said . . . The fool hath said . . .
And we who deemed him wise,
We, who believed that Thou wast dead,
How should we seek Thine eyes?

How should we seek to Thee for power,
Who scorned Thee yesterday?
How should we kneel in this dread hour?
Lord, teach us how to pray.

Grant us the single heart once more
That mocks no sacred thing,
The sword of Truth our fathers wore
When Thou wast Lord and King.

Let darkness unto darkness tell
Our deep unspoken prayer;
For while our souls in darkness dwell,
We know that Thou art there.
—Alfred Noyes.

Mr. Page Resigns

The news that Mr. Page, the American Ambassador, has been compelled by ill-health to resign his post will be received with general regret. Many American Ministers in the past have won a place in the heart of the British people, but for some has it ever felt a deeper respect and a warmer affection than for Mr. Page. How much we owe to his tact and cordiality the nation will learn one day. To him more than to any man other than President Wilson, it is due that the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes now float side by side and that after 140 years of division the English-speaking peoples are united once more in heart.—Daily Mail.

Peace on Earth.

The great interest shown by all thinking people in the League of Nations scheme to ensure future peace, recalls that beautiful giant statue of Christ marking the boundary line between Chile and the Argentine.

For sixty years the unfortunate people of these lands fought each other, and were again at the point of a new war when two Catholic Bishops appealed for peace and succeeded in reconciling the people.

King Edward VII. was asked to adjudicate between them, and the statue cast in bronze from the now useless cannons, was erected in 1904 as the token of peace and friendship.

On the granite pedestal are graven the following words:—

"These mountains will crumble into dust before Argentine and Chileans will break the peace which at the foot of the Redeemer they have sworn to keep."

Six Centuries Ago.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)

If there had been daily papers about six centuries ago, when Edward III. was on the English Throne, the readers would have seen ray by day the same names of places that are so familiar to us to-day as we follow the course on the maps of the desperate struggle on the western front.

The turning of the kaleidoscope of history gives new combinations of nationalities at each twist, and in the fourteenth century King Edward of England was fighting King Philip of France, and the English King was Vicar of the Empire of Germany. The headlines one day might have been:—

Cambrai Besieged.

King Edward with a force of 40,000 men-at-arms is closely pressing the city of Cambrai by different assaults.

The French at Peronne.

King Philip is reported to have assembled his forces at Peronne, in the Vermandois.

From the Froissart News Agency: Arras, Ypres, Bruges, Ghent, St. Quentin, Cambrai, Peronne, Montreuil, Bethune, Mons, Cherisy, Rheims, Roze, and the rivers Marne, Seine and Vesle, all figure in Sir John Froissart's Chronicles.

Fence Broken Down.

We would point out to the Municipal Council, or whoever has to do with the matter, that the fence on the Southside Road, mentioned by us yesterday, remains broken down, and the danger of horses or children falling over the bank is still open. If this fence is in the care of the Municipal Council authorities, why not have it repaired before an accident calls down the wrath of the public on the heads of those actually responsible?

Real Zeppelin Inventor.

How many people are aware that Count Zeppelin was not the real inventor of the Zeppelin? As a matter of fact, a Frenchman, Maurice Chevreux, conceived the idea, and it was from his plans that the first monster airship was able to fly.

Chevreux, who was a naval engineer, has recently died. Since the commencement of the war he had practically lived the life of a hermit; some say because of his grief at being the innocent cause of placing in the hands of the hated enemy such a terrible machine of war.

He resided for some years in Germany, and was employed in the Zeppelin workshops, and while so engaged designed the six-cylinder motor, by which Count Zeppelin was able to eventually triumph over the difficulty of making a dirigible airship that would keep up for hours in the air.

"An Autumn chill is in the air,
The Winter cold will soon be here,
And whilst the burning question's Coals,
Still must you have warm Underwear."

Men's Winter
Underwear

is a specialty of ours and we advertise it a lot, as there is always, somehow or other, a lot of winter around Newfoundland. And sometimes people say, "Are you agents for Stanfield Underwear?" And we say, "We are sorry we aren't." We suppose the reason we are asked this is because we are always advertising that

Stanfield's Underwear is Real Good Underwear.

Perhaps we stock more Stanfield's Underwear than any other Underwear, but we also carry a large stock of Men's New Knit Underwear.

The "New Knit" is made by St. John's labor, and many lines are good value, and that is what we are always endeavouring to get for our customers as well as rendering them the best service possible in those strenuous times.

Our Prices

PUBLIC NOTICE!

Notice is hereby given that, under the provisions of Sec. 1 of "The Daylight Savings Act, 1918," at eleven o'clock on the evening of Sunday, October 6th instant, all clocks throughout the Dominion are to be put back to ten o'clock, and time thereafter shall continue to run from day to day as before the operation of the said Act.

W. W. HALFYARD,
Colonial Secretary,
Dept. of the Colonial Secy.,
October 4th, 1918. oct4,21

MEMORANDUM.

The hands of ordinary striking clocks should not be moved backwards; the change of time should be made by putting forward the hands eleven hours, and allowing the clock to strike fully at each hour, half hour, and quarter hour, as the case may be. The hands should not be moved while the clock is striking. An alternative method, in the case of pendulum clocks, is to stop the pendulum for an hour.

Removal Notice.
MR. M. O'REGAN, Meat Dealer, LeMarchant Road, wishes to inform his many patrons and the public generally that he is about to transfer his business to that store on Duckworth Street recently vacated by the late M. Connolly. On Wednesday, October the 2nd, he will be open at the new stand and prepared to cater to customers.
In soliciting a continuation of public patronage, Mr. O'Regan would emphasize that the same faithful service which for so many years characterized the LeMarchant Store will be carried on in his new premises. Together with taking care of the requirements of citizens he will specialize in the supplying of ships.
The new quarters are the most up-to-date in the city, having been built with a view towards the utmost cleanliness, fitted with modern refrigerators and other useful appliances.
With sincerest appreciation of the patronage of the past a hearty invitation to the new stand is extended to all.
