Rubbing Eases Pain

In his well-known Receipt Book, Dr. Chase writes: "You will allow me one remark about liniments—they ought in all cases to be rubbed in, from twenty to thirty minutes, until the part burns from the effects, instead of two or three minutes, as is the usual custom."

Rubbing with Dr. Chase's Liniment improves circulation, draws the blood to the skin away from the inflamed parts, and stimulates the blood vessels of the skin to healthful action.

Used in this way Dr. Chase's Liniment affords quick relief from Pains, Aches, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sprains and Strains.

Since it reduces inflammation and congestion it is used with good results in the treatment of sore throat and chest colds. Rub in thoroughly until a red glow appears on the skin.

Pains in the Back.

CHAPTER VI.

"Do let us have the balcony scene from 'Romeo and Juliet,'" cried Agatha. "Inez would make a better Juliet than the real one, I believe. You might be Romeo, Lord Lynne."

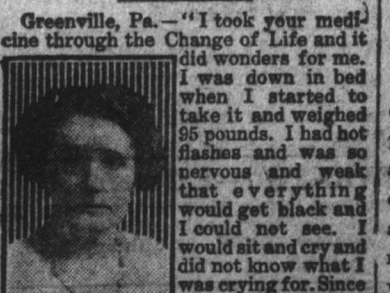

"We must have some rehearsals," said Allan. "I think it would be very nice to have the tableaux as a surprise, not to let any one know of them. But we shall want a little more assistance. My sister Evelyn and Miss Dacre, who is visiting her, would be happy to join our company. We might ask Bertie Bohun to help us also. We could manage some very effective tableaux then, and the surprise would be pleasant; better than if people came all ready to see and criticize."

So it was arranged, Allan Leigh undertook to bring his sister and Miss Dacre on the morning following, and Lord Lynne wrote to ask Bertie Bohun to join them.

The sound of silver laughter and gay words was now heard in the old hall of Lynnewolde. Inez was transformed; she was queen of the revels. Her ready wit, her brilliant repartees, her genius and gift of song made those meetings or rehearsals scenes of never-to-be-forgotten gaiety. She was universally admired. People did not quite understand her; they were not accustomed to that rare mixture of gay insouciance and imperial hauteur. Whatever seemed strange or unusual in her, they ascribed to her foreign education. In the whole county of Barford there was no one so admired as Miss Lynne. Her unusual and rare style of beauty, her wonderful voice, were talked about

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women Who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 86 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JAMES MYERS, 35 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

Many times they write in their letters their willingness to answer women who write them. It is an offer dictated by sympathy and a desire to help others.

wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsal took place in the library—they were pleasant to all; but to one they were dangerous as an intoxicating draught, or a sweet, honeyed poison. It was so easy to play Juliet with Lord Lynne as Romeo; it was so delightful to know that his eyes were dwelling on her face with a look of rapt love and devotion; to stand for that one moment and know that his very soul was in the look bent upon her. One of those rehearsals they never forget.

"Scene the Third!" cried out Allan Leigh—"Romeo and Juliet;" and Lord Lynne took his place and Inez hers.

"Capital!" exclaimed Allan; "only don't you think, excuse me, Miss Lynne, should you not look at Romeo. Those downcast eyes are very effective; but I think the other would be better still."

"Scene the Third!" cried out Allan Leigh—"Romeo and Juliet;" and Lord Lynne took his place and Inez hers.

"Capital!" exclaimed Allan; "only don't you think, excuse me, Miss Lynne, should you not look at Romeo. Those downcast eyes are very effective; but I think the other would be better still."

Yet the picture—the sky, loving, beautiful face, the downcast eyes, their long black fringe resting on the cheeks—was so perfect, it seemed wrong to alter it.

"Try," said Lord Lynne—"look at me."

Timidly enough she raised those dark, liquid eyes. Lord Lynne never forgot her face as she did so. When she saw the expression on his, this earnest, almost adoring love that he tried so hard to represent, a crimson flush seemed to scorch her cheek and brow. For one moment her lips quivered like the lips of a little grieving child. In that one look Inez told her secret. It was well for her that no one read it.

"I am tired," she said, impatiently. "I have been rehearsing all the morning. Let me go now, Lord Lynne; we shall manage it, I'm sure; and, Mr. Leigh, you may be a connoisseur in such things, but it does not seem to me that young ladies usually stand with open eyes to hear such speeches as Romeo made."

"But this is not real," said Allan in self-defense, "it is only acting;" and his words, although true, were like a sharp dagger to the passionate heart so nearly betrayed.

It was "only acting," and yet it was all strangely real to her. She lulled herself with sweet dreams, she cheated herself into believing it was real, while Lord Lynne was only waiting until the evening of the fete to ask Agatha to be his wife.

Bertie Bohun was a handsome, careless young fellow, who had just passed his examination, and was now at home at Bohun Court, awaiting a commission, for which his father had applied. He was a brave, honorable man, a good son to the aged father who loved him better than anything in the world. He was charmed with the brilliant society at Lynnewolde; the beautiful Anafanusa had a most ardent worshipper in Bertie Bohun. He would have suffered any hardship, have borne any peril, have risked any and everything to win one look from those bright eyes, one smile from those perfect lips; but neither look nor smile came to him. Inez received his homage, as she did the homage of all other men, as something that was simply her due. She would have laughed with scorn if any one had told her that the handsome young fellow loved her. She talked to him about his profession at times, until the boy's heart glowed, and he wished—ah, what vain wishes he had!—that she were a captive, and he the knight who rescued her; that she were a queen and he might fight and die for her.

But in his wildest dream no thought, no hope, ever came to Bertie Bohun of winning this magnificent woman and making her his wife. Sometimes, after she had been unusually kind to him, he would resolve that before "he rode away to war," he would tell her how mad and foolish he had been, and ask her to bid him "God speed!" But the "marching orders" were very long in coming, and poor Bertie dreamed the summer away at the sign of the feet.

Evelyn Leigh was a pretty, lively girl of nineteen—just the least in the world to flirting, and somewhat inclined, Allan feared, to be fast—still, the pretty face and gay, lively manner had many admirers.

Isabel Dacre was a tall, stately brunette, very good-humored, and given to great admiration of everything at Lynnewolde, from the young lord to his beautiful cousin. She had not much intellect; but then, as Allan Leigh said, she had figure, and that was very requisite in getting up good tableaux.

The invitations to Lynnewolde were issued for the eleventh of August, and very little else save this coming fete was spoken of, either in the Hall or out of it. Every one anticipated a dancing-party; the tableaux were to be a surprise. Yet many wondered why they were requested to be at the Hall at nine punctually.

Under the able superintendence of Allan Leigh the drawing-rooms were most effectively arranged for the fete; the inner and smaller one was divided from the large room by a long sweeping curtain of rich crimson silk; a kind of stage had been erected, and in the large room the chairs for the guests were arranged in a circle.

"I hope it will all go off well," said Agatha to Lord Lynne, on the morning of the eleventh.

"Never fret, little cousin," he replied, with a smile. "Even supposing there should be neither wit nor sense, wherever there are flowers, lights, and music, people amuse themselves, and famously too."

Soon after eight the roll of carriages began, and burden after burden was deposited at the Hall door. The drawing-room was soon filled. There was much curiosity as to the curtain and what it screened. The ladies best-dressed Lord Lynne, anxious to know what "charming surprise" he had prepared for them; but he refused to answer any questions, telling them that, when the clock struck nine, they would have the most complete reply.

When the silver chimes of the little clock rang out that "mystic hour," the lights in the room were subdued; there was a soft sound of music, and the curtain was drawn up on one of the prettiest tableaux ever arranged. It was copied from an old Spanish picture, called "The Surprise." One read the story at a glance. The center figure, upon which the light fell, was that of a beautiful Spanish girl, represented by Inez Lynne—the black mantilla, fastened coquettishly at the back of the head, fell upon the graceful shoulders and the half-quaint, half-artistic dress. One deep crimson rose glowed in the depths of her rich hair, and she held a magnificent fan in her white jeweled hands. Standing by her side, his handsome face peeping over her shoulder, was a Spanish cavalier, wearing the picturesque cloak and the plumed hat. It was a stolen interview, and at one window of the apartment stood a sister or friend, evidently watching that they should not be surprised. The expression on the face of the kindly guard (Evelyn Leigh) was excellent in its mingled archness and anxiety. But alas, at the other and smaller window—forgotten both by the lovers and their friend—shone the angry face of the old father, who had unexpectedly appeared on the scene.

wherever men and women congregated.

The rehearsal took place in the library—they were pleasant to all; but to one they were dangerous as an intoxicating draught, or a sweet, honeyed poison. It was so easy to play Juliet with Lord Lynne as Romeo; it was so delightful to know that his eyes were dwelling on her face with a look of rapt love and devotion; to stand for that one moment and know that his very soul was in the look bent upon her. One of those rehearsals they never forget.

"Scene the Third!" cried out Allan Leigh—"Romeo and Juliet;" and Lord Lynne took his place and Inez hers.

"Capital!" exclaimed Allan; "only don't you think, excuse me, Miss Lynne, should you not look at Romeo. Those downcast eyes are very effective; but I think the other would be better still."

Corfu Now Habitation of Refugees.

LONDON, May 11.—One has always thought of Corfu as being a little earthly paradise, the haven of Athenian aristocracy who resorted thither to escape the rush, the turmoil and the heat of Athens, says a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian. But a world-war has been waged and Corfu is changed. The neat, well-ordered villas are falling to pieces; the one-time beautiful gardens are overgrown with weeds. The roads, good English roads made during the British occupation, are now a series of ruts and holes, torn up by heavy wagons which came with the retreating Serbian Army. To this island in the Ionian Sea—the most beautiful of the Greek Isles—the Athenians come no more. It is now the habitation of hundreds of refugees, part of the countless numbers who have fled before the persecuting Turk. The Greek Government has welcomed both Greeks and Armenians from Anatolia, with the result that every corner of Greece is full of overflowing. The forsaken villas of the Ionian Isles, now crowded with travel weary, hungry folk, who were for weeks, driven across the plains and over the hills of Asia Minor. The Prefect of Corfu has been most energetic in his endeavors to bring a state of chaos into something like law and order. The Prefect took the Guardian Correspondent up to the Achillion, where the grounds are full of Armenian boys, whose future looks very dark, although for the moment they seem very happy. The boys have access to the gardens, which are beautifully laid out. The private apartments of the deposed German Emperor are dirty and neglected in appearance, and some mirrors therein have been cracked from top to bottom by earthquakes. A large painting, in a perfect state of preservation, stretches from wall to wall on the main staircase, and depicts the victorious Achilles driving around the outside of Troy, dragging the vanquished Hector tied to his chariot. This picture suggests the thought of the modern Hector in the persons of countless massacred or deported Christians.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

Eruption On Face. Itched and Burned, Lost Rest.

"A small, sore eruption broke out on the side of my face and kept spreading until it was the size of a quarter. It was rough and scaly, and at times I was most crazy with the itching and burning. I lost my rest at night, and my face was terrible to see."

"I tried different remedies without any benefit. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and after using one box of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Eleanor Beckman, Springfield, Mass., Jan. 28, 1922.

Jugglers' Magic.

Many wonderful tricks are performed by Indian jugglers.

In one they make a boy disappear before a crowd of spectators. One moment he is seen plainly; the next he fades away and is quite invisible, though there is no hiding-place into which he could have disappeared.

The trick has been borrowed by the jugglers from an Indian butterfly which has dazzling blue and red wings. As it flies it attracts every eye. And yet the moment it settles on a twig or tree it vanishes completely, and those who are not in the secret might search for years and never find it.

The under side of the wings is the exact colour of faded leaves. Consequently, when its wings are folded, the creature looks like its surroundings and is invisible to anyone looking for a brightly-colored creature.

The trick of the jugglers is worked by the same simple means. The boy who is to disappear is dressed in brilliant clothing, the reverse side of which is put white. When the moment comes for him to disappear he merely waves his arms and reverses his garments. Then he sits against a white wall or similar object, rubs chaff over his face and the audience imagines he has vanished.

Britain Advises Germany to Submit New Reparations Proposals.

Reported Revolution in Bulgaria—Russia Resents British Note—Cape Breton Local Denounces Red Flag Utterances.

THE BRITISH REPLY.
LONDON, May 11.
The British reply to the German proposals for a separate peace with Turkey, has been issued as a stimulant and word has gone forth that the experts committee must be ready to report early next week. Everybody seems nervous and desirous that the Conference finish this work before political catastrophe follows last night's crime. The Swiss Federal Council, to-day issued a communication, expressing indignation over the attack on the Russians. Fears are expressed here for the safety of the Delegation. Swiss watchmakers are in Moscow, and members of the Soviet group here are said to have threatened reprisals against the Swiss.

RUSSIA RESENTS BRITISH NOTE.

MOSCOW, May 11.
The Soviet Government does not desire to break with Great Britain and is willing to confer with that country but it cannot accept such an ultimatum as that contained in Lord Curzon's note, said M. Gansolsky, Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs in a speech delivered at a meeting here to-day. The meeting passed a resolution against the British note, declaring Russia is ready, if necessary, to meet with armed forces any nations which endeavor to infringe upon its independence.

REVOLUTION IN BULGARIA.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 11.
Rumours are circulated here of serious revolutionary events in Bulgaria but they cannot be confirmed.

UNITED FARMERS WEAK IN NOVA SCOTIA.

TRURO, May 11.
Deploring division in the ranks and lack of interest in the organization, speakers at the annual gathering of the United Farmers of Nova Scotia here, to-day, prophesied deterioration to complete extinction of the organization. Only three hundred had paid their dues of one dollar last year, and it was pointed out that there should be three thousand. The Treasurer reported a deficit of over two hundred dollars.

Accepts Guarantee.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, announced to-day that he had accepted a guarantee of 50 per cent. of the gross receipts for the proposed Dempsey-Tom Gibbons match at Shelby, Montana, July 4.
"The percentage guarantee is satisfactory," said Kearns, denying the report that Dempsey would receive a flat sum. "I may go to Chicago to-morrow to sign binding articles if the promoters are unable to come to New York."

High Prices Bid for Rights Near Ontario Boundary.

Northern Canada Power gets the famous Des Quize water power rights just east of the Ontario boundary in Quebec. The power will be used to augment the Porcupine supply and 20,000 of the 60,000 potential power will be developed immediately. This will end Porcupine's power troubles. It is estimated that 20-horsepower will handle ore up to 2,000 tons daily and even estimating this at $10 a ton value, would mean $20,000 daily if all used on production. Mr. Alex Fasken, was the successful bidder. His price was $50,000 annual rental. There were two other bidders, the Nesbitt, Thomson Company, of Montreal, the Montreal Engineering Company, Limited. The last named was believed to represent Hollinger Mines interests. The upset price set upon the lease of Rapids was $8,000. The bidding was the keenest ever witnessed in connection with the lease of power rights in the history of the province.

There's Money in Bristles

A London merchant recently concluded a deal with the Soviet Government to purchase its entire stock of Russian hog-bristles for three quarters of a million pounds. A mint of money surely, but, as a matter of fact, bristles have taken up a quite important position in the world's markets of late years. Enormous quantities of bristles are needed for tooth, shaving and hair brushes. Artists, decorators and painters use bristles extensively, while the longest obtainable are used for bristles by saddlers.

Forestry is Big Problem of the Paper Companies.

Addressing the members of the American Paper and Pulp Association in session at New York, Dr. Hugh C. Baker, secretary of the association and himself a technical expert, urged the importance of the conservation of timber and advised co-operation with the government in its forestry plans. He emphasized that the question of forestry will be one of the most important problems of the future, a problem which the paper industry could not afford to ignore. He urged the association to not only watch radical and harmful legislation, but to develop constructive measures and take part in the educational activities of the government.

Midsummer sports frocks are made of vividly plaided Indian cottons.

These winter coats become very thick in time, and a single animal will produce a pound of bristles each year.
As soon as the warm weather comes, the swine shed their bristles by the simple method of rubbing and scraping them against the trunks of trees. The fallen bristles are collected, haled up in horse or ox hides, and sent off to the nearest town. Eventually they find their way to Leipzig or Warsaw—two towns which have become the centre of the bristle trade.
From there the bristles are sent all over the world. Sometimes they are put to a strange use, which shows their wonderful commercial value; for, if money is short, merchants find that they have to accept Finland's famous hog-bristles in place of cash payment.

GAS SERVICE.

The S.S. "Nevarra" has brought us a large cargo of "Westmoreland" double screened GAS COAL. This coal is mined in Pennsylvania, and is unexcelled for Gas Works operations. It produces gas of the highest value for light, heat or power. The tar is superior to the imported article, as nothing is taken from it. The coke is of very high quality, and is a fine substitute for hard coal. Our Ammonium Sulphate is the best fertilizer extant. We are prepared for increased business, and cordially invite enquiries. WEEK-END NOTES.

CHAPTER XIX.
(I. C. MORRIS.)

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND SHIPS, AND TRADE.

With the entire commerce of the country depending upon the sailing ships, there was of necessity a big demand for new ships, because every year had its quota of losses, and these had to be replaced so as to meet the demands of the trade. As remarked in the former chapter, one steamer such as the Rosalind carries as much cargo as ten or fifteen of the average local sailing ships of fifty years ago.

The fleet of ships of which we write were mostly built in the old countries, and were constructed of oak, but there was also a large contingent of colonial built vessels, the most of which were of softer wood. Many ketches and brigantines were built in our own country, and those vessels did good service. Such ships as the bark Malina and Taso, were built by Messrs. Newhook of New Harbour, Trinity Bay. Such ships as the Rothsay and Ida were built by Kearney, and other builders, such as Pittman and Dalton did their share as master builders.

Nova Scotia also contributed her share to our local shipping, but the principal source of supply in this connection was Prince Edward's Island, which place for half a century, carried on a big trade in ship-building and produce, with Newfoundland, with the final object in view of selling the ships when the cargoes was disposed of here in port. Those ships built at Prince Edward's Island were principally brigantine rigs, though some were known as topsail schooners, and their tonnage ran anywhere from one hundred and twenty to one hundred and fifty or sixty tons register. The custom was to build those vessels in one season, mostly the winter time, and get them finished during the Spring and early summer, and load them with new potatoes, turnips, oats in bulk, and sail here to St. John's and moor them to Pitt's, or Cliff's wharf; and during the winter season sell the cargo from the ship's side, in lots anywhere from a barrel up.

Every winter saw four, or five, and six such vessels anchored at these premises, and their cargoes disposed of sometimes quite early in the year. The ships were then sold, and the purchasers fitted them for the Atlantic trade, and they would go off with a load of fish to Oporto, or the Mediterranean in time for the Lenten market. The trade between Newfoundland and Prince Edward's Island ions the scarcity was caused by the copper specie being taken away to Nova Scotia and Prince Edward's Island. On this there was a clear profit of twenty per cent. upon the copper coinage, to those who exchanged silver, and took the copper currency away to the provinces.

In addition to the gains on the goods, it was said that certain members of the ship's crews had got on to that feature of the trade, and made a business of collecting the coins, and exchanging silver for cents, and they gave a twenty-cent piece for twenty-four half pennies, as we called them, which were really twenty-four cents. It was quite imperceptibly done, but it shows lamentable neglect in those who should have done better for the country. Perhaps such transactions were legal, but whether legal or illegal, they were carried on for a long while, and at best could only be called "trick of trade." Of course our people got twenty-four cents for their silver, but the loss was a general one in the currency of Newfoundland, on the large amount of specie that changed hands with our traders from P. E. I. but then it was the same of the times. However, shipping between P. E. I. and Newfoundland was a big factor in the trade of the sixties and seventies; and there was a common interest between the two places; but like all other things, these phases of our trade have changed and passed; and the brigantines and schooners which made up our fleets, are like all their contemporaries, numbered with the past.

THE HOMELY FACE.

I never was a beauty, my map is a disgrace, and yet it seems my duty to wear that blamed old face; and so I grin and bear it—the mugs we all inherit have naught to do with merit, with nature's high or base. I view my misfit features, my ears that loosely flap, and say, "No human creature will love me for my map, so I must gain their liking by actions good and striking, seem not a piker piking, and be a decent chap. And so I'll love my fellows and do my chores with zest, remembering that yellow's a color men detest; I'll go to church on Sunday, and there will not be one day when I won't do my best. When famine seeks my portals and for refreshment calls, I'll greet the guest with cordials and hand out oddish balle; and all who weep and sorrow may comfort from me borrow, and rest until to-morrow within my humble walls." And if a man will follow a program of this kind, though he is not Apollo, good friends to him he'll bind; and all the boys who meet him most cordially will greet him; to Volstead drinks they'll treat him, and thus unseat his mind.

When Time Stands Still.

You must have noticed how when you are enjoying yourself the time seems simply to "fly by," whereas if you are in great trouble or anxiety, the hours drag past like days. And there are circumstances under which these effects are still more pronounced.

Under the influence of certain drugs it is literally true that a man can do an hour's hard thinking, review his facts, draw his conclusions, plan out his future—and, turning to his watch, find that only some fraction of a minute has passed!

What has happened, of course, is not that time has altered, but that a man's rate of thinking has been vastly speeded up.

WHAT TIME REALLY IS.

One sense of time is only the trick we all unconsciously fall into of comparing our own speed of thinking with the actions that are going on in the world around us. This thinking speed can be roughly likened to a reel of film being unrolled at the cinema. We notice the while we're unrolling much film—doing so much thinking—so many other things have happened.

But this sense can easily be upset, and it is, moreover, almost entirely dependent upon our being able to compare with outside actions to which we are accustomed.

Some experiments have been made where the subjects were deprived of any such comparison, by being set behind a screen where they could neither see or hear anything. The average guess at five minutes was six minutes, at ten minutes was fourteen minutes, and at a quarter of an hour was twenty-four minutes! That goes to prove that the longer we are deprived of our usual standard of comparison, the more thoroughly we lose all sense of time.

Precisely the same thing happens to the man in intense trouble. He is so wrapped up in his own sorrow that he loses touch with the outside world, and so misjudges his time. The drunkard or the drug maniac, too, lose their time sense, but for a different cause. With them alcohol or a drug has speeded up or slowed down the speed at which their thinking film unrolls. So, too, the person who is extremely pleased has unconsciously thrown his thinking rate out of gear through strong emotion.

CARPENTIER WINS IN EIGHTH.

Paris, May 6.—George Carpentier knocked out Marcel Nilles in the eighth round of a scheduled fifteen round bout for the French heavyweight title this afternoon.

Although he won, he added nothing to his reputation, as the old Carpentier spirit was lacking.

Georges was in difficulty as early as the second round, and weathered the third only through the inexperience and lack of combativity of his opponent. The experts opined that Carpentier's attempt to stage a comeback, although it ended in a victory for him, failed to demonstrate any of the fighting qualities required of a champion, and that had he been facing a real battler, the fight would have ended in the second round with Georges the loser.

Forty thousand people saw the bout. They gave Carpentier a great ovation; his popularity seemed greater than ever. Georges appeared to be in much better condition than when he fought Splé. Evidently he had trained hard for the fight, but he appeared to lack the confidence he had had in the former encounter, keeping on the defensive throughout the first round, instead of assuming a tiger-like offensive.

WILLARD FAVORITE.

New York, May 5.—Jesse Willard is almost a 2 to 1 favorite over Floyd Johnson for their battle at the Yankee Park, May 12. A bet of $3,000 to $2,000 on Willard to win was placed Thursday by W. L. Darnell & Co., of Wall St.—odds of 9 to 5.

Sweden Will Copy American Highways.

STOCKHOLM, March 10.—The complete modernization of Swedish roads made desirable by the rapidly increasing automobile traffic, is being undertaken in earnest. The latest significant step in this movement is the establishment of a "Good Roads Institute" on the initiative of the Royal Automobile Club, which is now celebrating its twentieth anniversary.

American highways will be studied as models for Swedish construction, and a Swedish expert highway engineer, Mr. Paul Wretling, is already in the United States for that purpose.

While the Royal Automobile Club has taken the initiative in establishing the Good Roads Institute, several other organizations and government departments are interested, according to Captain A. Nordlander, general secretary of the Club. Thus the board of directors will have representatives from the Department of Roads and Waterways, the Government Testing Institute, the Academy of Engineering Sciences, the Swedish Technological Association, and the Swedish Roads Association. The first financing has been made by the Royal Automobile Club, but further support is expected from the road-using public in general.

Brandram's Genuine B-B White Lead

IT POSSESSES UNUSUAL QUALITY
—THAT'S WHY IT HAS SURVIVED

BRANDRAM'S Genuine B-B White Lead is today being manufactured on the same formula that was discovered almost 200 years ago by one of the founders of the House of Brandram. For ten generations this famous White Lead has enjoyed a world-wide reputation for its possession of the essential qualities of white lead in oil.

Brandram's Genuine B-B White Lead works easily under the brush. Its covering capacity is greater than that of any other white lead. It lasts longer, protects better and gives a more beautiful finish than any other white lead yet produced.

Brandram's Genuine B-B White Lead is manufactured in Montreal in sufficient quantities to supply the ever-increasing demand for Canada's premier White Lead and at the same time to provide enough for the manufacture of B-B "English" Paints and other B-B Products of which it forms so important a base.

childhood in the schools of the parish, to his present position as rector of a large and important parish in the United States.

It gives me much pleasure to quote the following from a copy (March 8th) of "The Old Town Enterprise," a weekly newspaper of Old Town, Maine, U.S.A.:

"Rev. David Bailey of St. James Episcopal Church accepts a call to Fall River, Mass. after a successful four years pastorate. The many friends of Rev. David Robert Bailey, both in and out of the parish will be sorry to learn that he has resigned the pastorate of St. James Church, and has accepted an unsolicited call to one of the well known Episcopal Churches in Fall River, Mass., where he will have a larger parish, and a larger field for pastoral work. Mr. Bailey has been remarkably successful in his four years pastorate in this city; he has seen the parish doubled in numbers, and the yearly budget trebled. Mr. Bailey is an untiring worker, has a clear insight of the work of a preacher and rector, and al-

The Most Useful Manufactured Building Material

The Red Beaver Border on Wall Board means:

- The only wall board made from virgin SPRUCE fibre through and through—long, tough, strong.
- Positive insulation against heat and cold and sound, because the use of long virgin spruce fibres gives us millions of microscopic "dead" air cells in Beaver Wall Board.
- 2 1/2" layer construction. Several layers give great strength and stiffness. Beaver Wall Board is 1/2" heavy.
- The only wall board kiln-dried and seasoned before leaving the mill.
- Sealed against moisture by our patented sealant process.
- A wall board specially calculated and primed to produce our Art Finish Surface. No staining is necessary.

was a daughter of Mr. George Blandford of Twillingate. We are proud of him as a product of Trinity Parish, and we wish him "good luck in the name of the Lord."

Since writing the above references from Old Town, I have received a clipping from the "Fall River Evening News."

"Practically the entire parish of St. Stephen's turned out to welcome their new rector and wife, Rev. and Mrs. D. R. Bailey, at a reception held in the parish rooms Fall River on Tuesday night. An address of welcome was read, and Mrs. Bailey was presented with a large bouquet of carnations. A collation was served by the women of the parish, and after some vocal solos and piano selections the evening was given over to various games and social chatting. Practical evidences of the people's good will were given by their representatives, the Women's Auxiliary, and the Girl's Friendly Society. Well begun is half done. So mote it be.

SOME OF THE BOYS OF LONG AGO.

With the busy harbour of Cork only twenty miles from Yongal and Yongal Harbour and Bay so situated as to enable one to see the vessels passing along the coast to and from Waterford and Newfoundland, it was but little wonder that the boys of Yongal were attracted by the salt water, and that a longing to be on it and to cross to the other side of the ocean that lay beyond the horizon—it was but little wonder, I say, that the longing grew stronger year by year, and that when it was eventually satisfied, Yongal, Tallow, and Dunbar were short one boy short one fine morning, and that Trinity, Newfoundland, had that same number added to its population some six weeks later. On such a morning as this in June 1786, Patrick Carin, of Tallow, and Edward Sulley, of Yongal, met by appointment just outside the village, and eight hours later they were on the pier in Cork, and were making inquiries at the emigrant office as to the opportunities of getting to Newfoundland.

They were fortunate, for the brig "Thomas," Captain Turnell, had just arrived from Trinity, and would be ready to return in a few days. In the meantime the boys had signed the necessary papers as "youngsters," and had been ordered to report to Benjamin Lester, Esq., Trinity, for details as to their immediate future. After they got somewhat over their seasickness, the passage was fairly enjoyable, though anticipation had run far ahead of realization so far as "life on the ocean wave" was concerned; and they were glad when the long roll of the ocean, and the short-sou-west top of Trinity Bay were over, and the vessel was at anchor under the shadow of Gun Hill in Trinity Harbour. Patrick Carin was apprenticed to Mr. William Pottle at English Harbour, and Edward Sulley was apprenticed to Mr. James Morris of Cuckhold's Cove. During their apprenticeship they went occasionally in the summer time, at the wharves in Trinity when they went there with their respective masters in the big seine skiffs, to ship off their dry fish. In due time their apprenticeship came to an end, and each settled down to an independent life. Their daily life was common place, and apart from the entries in the old Church of England Registers, there is nothing to mark the life's work of Patrick and Edward. The following is all that tells of Patrick: "1792, October 21st: Married, Patrick Carin, of Tallow, near Yongal, in Ireland, and Mary Lambert, daughter of James and Elizabeth Lambert of Trinity." And: "1794, October 12th: Baptized, Mary, child of Patrick and Mary Carin, of this harbour."

There has been, I find, in early settlement days in Newfoundland, a tendency on the part of the individual to select some little place along the coast, where (together with his wife) he could be alone, and thus enjoy without interference, monopoly of the hunter and fishing that a quiet, unoccupied place ever has to offer to the first settler. As Edward Sulley did his work as a fisherman with James Morris, he was attracted by just such a place on the shore between Jigging Hole and Cuckhold's Cove, and he made up his mind that when he became his own master he would marry and settle down there. The year 1796 marked the accomplishment of both objects in Edward's life. His apprenticeship ended on August 1st, and the following entry in the old Church Books indicates the taking of the next step: "1796, August 16th: Married, Edward Sulley, of Yongal, Cork, Ireland, and Elizabeth, daughter of James and Frances Morris." Edward Sulley died in 1840, and his wife died a few years later, and though so far as I can find, no child was born to them to perpetuate the family name, that name is still remembered, for the little unattractive place in which they lived so long, and so contentedly, and which since has been deserted, is known to-day as Sulley's Cove.

PECULIARITIES.

As individuals we have our pet words, and expressions, which by frequent use have become permanent parts of our vocabulary; and though we, as individuals, are blissfully unconscious of them, they are woven into the texture of our every day conversation. Those with whom we associate in daily life quickly notice our peculiarities in word, and deed. In this respect, and we in turn as quickly notice theirs; but not being allowed to see and to see and to hear us, we go along day by day, each in turn getting some amusement at the expense of another's peculiar sayings or actions. At the same time each of us, like the Quaker who believed that all the world was queer but himself and his wife, and that she was "a little off" sometimes—each of us, I say, goes on his way quite content with his own superior, infallible, individual self. One man interposes his remarks with the question, "Do you see?" or "see?" Another, without any thought of doubting your mental powers to follow his simple statements, punctuates them with the question, "Do you understand?" or "Understand!" Whilst the expression of to-day most common in the conversation of our young women is "you know!" and "you know!" This is a positive assertion and is more complimentary to the other person's eyes, or mental powers than, "Do you see?" or "Do you understand?" though it sounds none the less silly, and should be given up. It requires no small amount of courage to call another person's attention to his or her peculiarity, and so it is allowed to go on. If, would, I believe, be well if we had what bankers have in a city—a clearing house for this purpose; a time when we would meet, and exchange and adjust—not our balances—but our opinions of one another, and each would call the attention of the other to a peculiarity of his, so noticeable to others, but of which he is unconscious. Just here, however, I hear my subconscious self laughing, and assuring me that after the first meeting neither of us would ever speak to one another again. No doubt many of my readers are familiar with the story of the man, who in the hearing of several others, made the statement that "every person has his or her own peculiarity." One of his hearers disputed the truth and asserted that he had no peculiarity in speech or action. In defence of his statement the man said to the objector, "Well, perhaps you have no peculiarity; but how do you stir your tea, with your right hand or your left?" He replied, with a tone of voice that indicated resentment, "Why, with my right hand of course." "Yes," said the man, "just as I thought. You see, the majority of people stir their tea with a spoon. The stirring of it with your right hand is your peculiarity." And doubtless, it was—at least, one of them.

Glider Prize.

EXPERTS' HOPES.
Every branch of flying—research, invention, commercial, sport, war, and peace will be advanced by the great motor-glider contest next September, when a Daily Mail prize of £1,000, open to the world, will be awarded to the competitor who flies the longest distance over 50 miles with a small handy popular low-powered aeroplane over a triangular course.
A contest will be held at the same place and time and under the same rules for a prize of £500 offered by the Duke of Sutherland for purely British competitors flying British machines. It will be possible for one competitor to win both prizes with one flight.
Brig-General R. K. Bagnall Wild, speaking as technical representative for the Duke of Sutherland, Under-Secretary of State for Air, on the Royal Aero Club Gliding Committee says:
The Duke of Sutherland, like The Daily Mail, is most anxious to promote the invention, manufacture, and use of the small motor glider. His prize is offered for a British machine flown by a British pilot in the hope that the contest will produce a machine which will enable the public to fly for themselves with safety and at a reasonable cost.

Monday's Tremendous Show at the Nickel.
The programme advertised for Monday's attraction at the Nickel is one every hard to duplicate. It contains Charlie Chaplin's big Million Dollar picture, "A Day's Pleasure," and that great dramatic feature, "The Man Worth While," adapted from the famous poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox. "A Day's Pleasure" ranks among the greatest pictures ever turned out by Charlie Chaplin, and it contains all the funny antics performed by this star in his previous films. It is produced in three big acts and is one continuous roar of laughter from start to finish. "The Man Worth While" is one of those features that appeals to the heart—a picture not soon to be forgotten.

On Thursday next Anita Stewart will be seen in the greatest picture in which she has ever appeared. It is entitled, "A Question of Honour," and is produced in eight acts. On the following Monday, "Smilin' Through," which is conceded to be greater than the greatest, will be shown; the star in this picture is none other than Norma Talmadge. The entire pictures are all First National attractions, which means the "utmost" in motion pictures.
By a unanimous vote "Quarantined" has been declared by theatre goers a huge success. One more chance to see this great comedy at St. Joseph's Hall on next Monday night, May 14th. Place: St. Joseph's Hall. Price 50c. and 30c.—may 10, 13, 14

Threading Bead Necklaces.
It is very tiresome when a necklace breaks; the business of re-threading the beads after a breakage requires time and patience, and most women find that, in spite of reasonable care, the fashionable long string of beads is constantly becoming "flicked up" and severed, with the result that their labour has to be gone through again.
DARKNESS!
The shades of night were falling fast. When for a kiss he asked her; She must have answered "Yes," because— The shades came down still faster!

London's Government.
182 AUTHORITIES HAVE THEIR SAY.
LONDON, May 11—London will continue to be governed by one hundred and twenty-two different authorities, as it is at present, and no immediate change is in prospect as a result of the report recently presented by the Royal Commission on the Government of London. The Commission, which was headed by Lord Ullswater, (formerly Sir Jas. Lowther, speaker of the House of Commons), failed to agree on a report, but presented three reports. The upshot of the whole matter is that the question is left pretty much where it was before the Commission touched it. The commission was appointed to determine what, if any, alterations were needed in the local government of London and the surrounding districts with a view to securing greater efficiency and economy in the administration of local government services. The majority report, which was signed by the chairman and three other commissioners, expressed the view that no advantage was likely to accrue to the surrounding districts if they were included in a centralized government as had been suggested by the London County Council. The majority report adopts the "widely accepted doctrine of the community of interest between the inhabitants inside and outside London," and would "distribute burdens and benefits among all districts which can fairly be said to compose the community of London in the widest sense." It even proposes on these grounds a level half-crown rate for the whole area, but would relegate the spending of it to the existing heterogeneous mass of local authorities. The majority report, however, does not recommend the creation of an authority embodying and giving effect to this community of interest. It concedes the case for unification but does not draft a unification scheme.

Chinese Move to Boycott Japanese.
SHANGHAI—Refusal of Japan to restore Port Arthur and Dairen to China has caused high feeling here among Chinese merchants and students, and a series of meetings has been held at which strong resolutions of protest have been adopted. A strong boycott against Japanese goods is urged in one of the resolutions passed by a meeting attended by over 1,000 merchants and business men of Shanghai. They also call upon the foreign powers to give their moral support to China's claims. A resolution asking the Peking Government to issue an ultimatum to Japan and prepare for war was voted down. The proposed boycott will extend much further than a movement to curtail purchase of Japanese merchandise. Landlords will be urged not to rent houses to Japanese. Newspapers will be asked to refuse Japanese advertisements. Efforts will be made to discontinue export of rice to Japan and Japanese banknotes will be refused, if the present plan materializes. In the meantime there are huge parades participated in by representatives of more than a hundred different organizations. Placards calling for the abrogation of the "21 demands," which Japan refuses to modify in any degree, are being everywhere displayed.

Business Prospects.
(La Patrie)
Business in Canada is manifestly improving. Building activities promise to create a new record for the season which has just commenced. The volume of exports is increasing and interior trade has taken on new strides, the origin of which can be traced to the exceptional agricultural yield of last year. Manufacturers and traders see in present conditions indications that inspire confidence. That confidence is in itself an important factor which will contribute to the expansion of business. Thanks to the renewal of business activities coincident with the coming of the spring, the people, reassured as to the future, are beginning to buy more liberally. The retailer who does not see any improvement in his prospects would do well to follow the counsel of Mr. Babson and find out if his sails are set in a manner which will catch the wind of prosperity that has already inflated the sails of his neighbor.

Grow Old Slowly.

How old are you? Under the age of forty this question truthfully. Between forty and sixty there is a long way among many towards under-achievement. After three-score years men begin to show less interest in giving a correct reply. The seventy hale old men are to add a year or two to their list of pride.

It is said that comparatively few of more than thirty years are accurate in stating their age; that the fear of old age is more in women than in men.

Chronological veracity is not of importance in determining the chances of life in a woman or man. Age is a question of physiological vitality.

Signs of Age.

In a recorded case of a boy of ten years who reached the age of three inches, and the deep wrinkles and the deep lines of the face, the defective action of the pituitary gland, an organ the size of a hazel-nut in the base of the brain, may produce a fat, dull, youthful dwarf, or a feeble old man at twenty-eight.

Early speaking, middle-aged weariness and fear such as grey hair and defective teeth. The degenerative process that causes physical old age may, however, be arrested.

Disfigured From Eczema

The horse who finally tried D.D.D. had his eyes and ears away from him. He had become disfigured. Since the use of D.D.D. his eyes are growing, and his ears have returned to their natural position.

There is many a man who may admit his wife is wrong or his political party is wrong, but you ever run across one who would admit his watch is wrong.

Swedish Noble Houses Fast Becoming Extinct

STOCKHOLM—Knighthood is still in flower in Sweden, though the petals are falling one by one. The sentiment is suggested by the fact that the House of Nobles, which comes once every three years, has just been held in the historic Hall of Knights, attended by scenes of countess and baronesses many hundreds of years old.

The Chamber of Nobles as such has not been active in Swedish government since 1888 and scarcely any titles have been created since that time. Statistics soon to be printed show that there are at present in Sweden 52 lines of counts, 135 baronial lines and 485 other titled families. During the last generation about 125 different lines have terminated. It is a law in the Chamber of Nobles that a line ends if the family holding the title changes its nationality. Thus many emigrants to America and other countries have sought other fortunes at the price of old titles. It is also a law that a Swedish aristocratic house must be declared extinct when there has been no male birth in it during a period of 90 years.

Swedish nobility had its origin, probably, in the twelfth century, in privileges awarded for military services. And a great number of titles were created during the first half of the seventeenth century by the famous King Gustavus Adolphus. A few years after his death was built the beautiful Hall of Knights, where the assemblies are now held. With its curiously carved copper roof, its walls hung with gorgeous armorial bearings and its romantic air of past glamor, it is one of the show places of the capital.

The Swedish nobles of to-day are great patrons of art and sciences. Many are found in military and political posts, while others engage in model farming on their estates.

Home Hints.

The following hints are from a handy little volume entitled "A Manual of Naval Cookery," published by His Majesty's Stationery Office:

To prevent fruit sinking in cakes and puddings, flour it well before mixing.

When cutting bacon into rashers, warm the knife first and it will cut both easily and neatly.

Stoning raisins will not be found nearly so sticky a task if a little butter is rubbed on the fingers.

Sour fruit will require less sugar for sweetening it, when it is stewed, if a pinch of baking soda is added to it.

Beware of butter that exudes milk when cut. It has been imperfectly washed, and will turn rancid very quickly.

Game will keep sweet for several days longer than it would otherwise do if it is sprinkled over with fresh-ground coffee.

If the vessel in which milk is to be boiled is previously rinsed in cold water, the milk is much less liable to stick or scum.

If new tinware is rubbed over with

Home Hints.

When cutting new bread, dip the knife into a jug of boiling water. The thinnest slices of bread may then be cut from a perfectly new loaf without any trouble whatever.

To prevent cheese moulding and to enable it to retain its moisture, wet a cloth in vinegar, wring out, and wrap it round the cheese. Put it in a paper bag and keep in a cool place.

If hot grease is accidentally spilt on the kitchen table pour cold water on it at once. This will cool the grease, which can then be scraped off instead of it being allowed to sink into the wood.

When silverware becomes tarnished, place it in potato water and you will find afterwards that it looks like new.

Make Beautiful Home Interiors

On all interior or exterior woodwork (except floors) SUN VARNISH furnishes a brilliant lasting lustre that will maintain its beautiful gloss. Hot soapy water cannot mar the beauty of a Sun Varnished surface. For door fronts or porch ceilings it is particularly good because it withstands the ravages of the weather.

SUN FLOOR VARNISH is the most satisfactory finish for Hardwood Floors. Defacement and discolorations quickly vanish when SUN FLOOR VARNISH is applied. It dries out stone hard with a satiny beauty that will never crack, chip or show heel marks. Even if the radiators do leak or the rain drives through the window, your floor will be unharmed if SUN FLOOR VARNISH is used.

We carry a complete stock of SUN VARNISHES. Come in and let's talk about that particular job you have in mind. It will be a pleasure to furnish you with estimates and information.

PERSONALITY IN INSECTS.

Did it ever occur to you that there is a vast difference in the personality of insects? Before you laugh at that, stop and think what a different feeling one has toward the different insects that intrude themselves upon our attention.

The ant is the insect which started this train of thought with me. I love to kill flies. I hate to kill ants. Even when I find them crawling hopefully up the sides of my sugar bowl I am apt to warn them off and give them a chance for their lives. With a fly it is different; one has a feeling of positive virtue when one succeeds in swatting one. Perhaps this is purely because the fly has a chance to get away and is therefore fair game, while an ant is so helpless that it doesn't seem sportsmanlike to kill it.

The Difference.

But I think it is also because the ant is a cleaner, more amiable insect. There is a thrift, a business-likeness about him that makes one respect him. The fly, on the other hand, has been widely press-agented as unclean, and on top of that he is just plain pestiferous. He walks in unspeakable places and then wipes his feet on your food. There is something unspeakably offensive in his buzzing. It is fairly insulting. He reminds me of the people of whom George Elliott says that "their very good morning is charged with offense." There may be something more maddening than a fly buzzing about one's head at five in the morning, but I do not know what it is.

Bee buzz, but there is something entirely different about their buzzing. It may harp but it does not annoy. I cannot bear to kill a bee. If one comes into my house I always conduct him carefully out with the aid of a bottle and a piece of paper slipped over its nozzle, a trick left over from childhood when I used to catch them that way.

I suppose our respect for the bee proceeds partly from the feeling that he is a useful member of society, that he is doing something worth while and should be encouraged. One certainly does not seem to have the same kindly feeling for the hornet.

Varying Antipathies.

Antipathies to members of the insect world vary with different people and seem to be rather subjective than objective. For instance, I have a sister who has a mortal terror of a June bug. Personally, I don't mind any kind of beetle (except the great big ones with pinchers). I keep all my antipathy for worms and things that squash. Beetles have such nice, hard, unquashable shells; I think they are quite respectable. But anything that squashes fills me with horror. I really think I mind a large, fat, fuzzy caterpillar more than a snake.

To think that I was about to close this paper without mentioning the one creature about whom most people feel the most strongly, especially just about this time of the year! I don't suppose I need to name him. Other insects may have friends, but I cannot believe this one has a friend in the world. It is the fashion these days to praise the ugly and defend the defenceless. Truly a fit task for the ultra radical's pen would be an essay "In Praise of the Mosquito."

on out of condition, "kipper" is now associated with a herring cured in a particular way.

TELLING IT TO KITTY O'GRADY. So you'd play the lady, Miss Kitty O'Grady?

You'd sit in the parlor as nice as you please.
An' wear your silk dresses, an' fuss with your tresses.
An' let your white fingers run over the keys.
With your elegant manner, you'd strum the piano,
An' merrily warble a ballad or two.
Though work may be painful, don't act so disdainful,
Come out in the kitchen, there's dishes to do!

Come out to your duty, my proud, hangary beauty.
Those hands would look finer now holding a broom.
I know it's a pity, but you can look pretty.
An' powder your nose when you've dusted the room.
The parlor is cosy, but you're not a posy.
You're no pink geranium stuck in a vase.
Come out here, I need you! Don't think that I feed you.
Just for the smirk on your beautiful face.

'Twere better, my lady, to be an O'Grady.
Plain Kitty O'Grady who works when she must.
Than your time to spendin' with sham and pro'adin'.
An' know that your dreams will all vanish in dust.
'The truth that I'm statin', the work that your battin'
Will fall to you some day in spite of your prayers.
Though your smile is bewitchin', there's always the kitchen.
The kitchen of life with its duties an' care.

The parlor can never be sat in forever.
With a home of your own you will learn that is true.
An' the finest of places gets all of its grace.
From the dustin' and sweepin' the women folk do.
So don't be ashamed of the work your hands do.
Don't think it beneath you an' turn up your nose.
For a lady's a lady, Miss Kitty O'Grady.
Even when into the kitchen she goes.

Why is a Kipper so Called

"Kipper" comes originally from the Dutch word meaning "to spawn" or hatch, and was first applied to salmon, which during the spawning season become unpalatable. The male salmon in particular grows a sort of beak with which to fight his rivals and this "kip" as it was called, by preventing him from feeding properly, makes him lean and out of condition.

So that the flesh of these fish should not be wasted, the practice was adopted of splitting the fish open, removing the organs, and then taking away some of the unpleasant taste by salt smoking the rest.

Later on the same plan was adopted for other fish, especially herring, which sometimes were caught in too great numbers to allow of their being eaten fresh, and the word "kipper" was also given to them.

So that from meaning a male salmon

Tunnel-Making Marvels.

Water is the Tunnel Engineer's Greatest Enemy.

All sorts of unexpected difficulties crop up in the course of tunnel-construction work.

When the London Metropolitan Railway line was being extended in an easterly direction, it was found necessary to underpin a church near Aldgate which threatened to collapse as a result of the disturbance of its foundations.

Another City church became the site of boring operations during the construction of an underground railway. All the pews were removed from the church and a shaft was sunk through the floor. Through this shaft thousands of tons of earth were thrown-up and as many thousands of tons of material taken down.

The engineers responsible for the construction of the Central London Railway had the greatest difficulty in completing their scheme, owing to the presence of an underground river near Westbourne Grove. Similar trouble was experienced in making the great Dove Holes Tunnel, between Manchester and Derby.

Fish in a Tunnel.
Water springs, gushing from the rocks, caused a delay of three years in the building of this tunnel, as well as the expenditure of much additional capital. The tunnel is unique in that it shelters a stream which, incidentally, is still inhabited by fish.

Until recently the Oxted tunnel, a few miles south of Croydon, baffled the most expert engineers in the kingdom. The tunnel burrows deeply into the North Downs, and at intervals great cracks appeared through which water poured in considerable quantities.

Examining the tunnel alone occupied several months, while the task of repairing it took two years.
But most tunnelling undertakings in this country pale before those of other parts of the world. The recent completion of the second tunnel through the Simplon Pass, in the Alps, for example, marked the end of a long series of big fights with Nature, in which man was very nearly defeated on several occasions.—Parson's Weekly.

Child Welfare in Great Britain.

MUNICIPAL SYSTEM DESCRIBED BY DR. FLORA SHEPHERD, OF LONDON.

Within the past nine years the infant mortality in Great Britain has been reduced from 148 to 49 per 1,000. It is stated by Dr. Flora Shepherd, of London, who is at the Mount Royal Hotel for a few days on her way back to England, after an extended tour, including a visit in Australia and New Zealand, Dr. Shepherd is assistant medical officer of health in charge of maternity and child welfare for the district of Hornsey.

This great reduction in the death rate of children under a year old, Dr. Shepherd told The Star, is to be ascribed to the system of infant welfare work carried out in every municipality under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Health. Each municipal unit has a statutory committee on maternity and child welfare, composed of two-thirds members of the Municipal Council, and one-third of co-opted members, of whom two must be women. The maternity and child welfare sub-committee prepares the scheme of work for that particular area, and submits it to the Council, after which it is sent to the Ministry of Health.

At the head of the work in each municipality is a medical officer of health, seconded by an assistant medical officer in charge of maternity and child welfare, who draws up her own working scheme, according to the conditions and circumstances of the district. The object in view, Dr. Shepherd explained, is to keep the babies from becoming ill, rather than to cure them after they have developed illness. The war had impressed the public consciousness with the importance of saving child life. From revelations of physical fitness at the time of the South African war, came the medical inspection of schools. Then it was found that it was wiser to prevent the defects found in the school examinations by caring for the babies from birth, and, back of that, giving the mothers ante-natal instruction. The maternity and child welfare work in the municipalities puts expert advice for keeping the babies well; within the reach of the class who could not afford it by themselves.

Dr. Shepherd, in her Borough of Hornsey, holds these clinics every week. Another clinic, ante-natal and post-natal, is held by a gynaecological specialist, who has a mid-wife under her direction. Three nurses are employed. Notification of birth, made to the medical officers of health, is compulsory. The list is divided into areas, each taken by a nurse, who visits the home before the tenth day. The nurse, Dr. Shepherd pointed out, does not enter the home, when she calls to inquire after the baby's health, unless she is asked to do so, but as a matter of fact her visits are welcomed. She calls as often as necessary, and the mother is instructed to bring her child once a week to the clinic.

In Hornsey, births total about 2,000 a year. Dr. Shepherd sees about 60 a day in the clinic, and she divides the babies into two classes, those perfectly healthy and normal in one class, and the babies who have fallen in any degree below the normal into another. These are received in a separate clinic, for special attention.

"Each mother must be educated on her own child," said Dr. Shepherd. "Abstract theories, or directions for treating children in general, do not interest the average mother, but if you point the lesson of her own child's need she will take it to heart. We aim at educating the mother with one child so that it will count for all the rest."

Besides the nurses, Dr. Shepherd has some twenty-four volunteer workers, who give half a day a week assisting in making up model-garments for infants and teaching the mothers to make them, looking after the correspondence, registration, etc.

There is nothing of the charitable nature in the work, the only two parts being the services of doctor and nurses who are paid, half by the Ministry of Health. The work began in a voluntary way and was carried on by volunteers for several years, until it was taken over and standardized throughout the country by the Ministry of Health. Its effects are already to be noted, Dr. Shepherd says. In spite of congested areas, poor housing, and other adverse conditions, children even in the slums have a healthy appearance through the intensive education given to the mothers.

There are 4 grades of roofing felt selling in Newfoundland, "BARRETT'S" is guaranteed the highest grade.

"Barrett's" 1, 2 and 3-ply felts have been in use in Newfoundland for more than 50 years.

The best roof known in America is a "Barrett" roof, "Barrett's" felt ONLY is used in putting on a "Barrett" Roof. Ask any Architect.

"Barrett" 1, 2 and 3-ply felts are really made of felt saturated with genuine coal tar--the 2 and 3-ply felts have a layer of coal tar pitch between each ply.

"Barrett's" felts are made to give good wear, therefore they cost more than roofings made of paper saturated with diluted asphalt.

If you use "Barrett's" felt instead of common felt, a new roof covering for your house may cost you $2.00 more for the whole roof.

Roofs covered with "Barrett's" felt are secure, the extra cost of one or two dollars (for the entire roof) is money well spent.

Which felt do you intend to use?

Architects, Builders and Contractors prefer "Barrett's" Felt.

Salonika Recovering Former Prosperity.

SALONIKA, Greece.—While other parts of Greece have been suffering from the economic blight and commercial stagnation engendered by the disastrous Asia Minor military campaign, Salonika has been making remarkable strides toward regaining the prosperity and prestige it enjoyed before the war. The city where Paul first preached the gospel to the unbelievers is fast becoming one of the most important ports in the Near East.

Three factors have contributed to this. The destruction by fire of Smyrna has diverted a considerable part of the traffic of that once great port to Salonika, which is only 30 hours distant. Then the recent agreement between Greece and Jugoslavia, by which the latter country is given a free commercial outlet at Salonika, has given a distinct impetus to the import and export business of the city. The third element in Salonika's commercial rehabilitation is the vigorous work of the residents in reconstructing the city, which was laid waste by fire in 1918. Whole blocks of modern business buildings, hotels, warehouses, garages and cinema houses are springing up, seemingly overnight.

Greece and Jugoslavia are now working in the closest economic and political harmony. This is due principally to the policy of the present revolutionary government in Athens in adopting the former Venizelist attitude toward Jugoslavia, which always was based upon the most friendly relations with the Serbs. The commercial convention by which Jugoslavia is given customs and administrative control of Salonika while that city remains under the sovereignty of Greece, will be of vast benefit to both countries. Greece is assured of the fullest military and moral support from Jugoslavia in the event of aggression from Greece's troublesome neighbors, Turkey and Bulgaria. For the first time in centuries Jugoslavia will have free access to the Aegean Sea. This will give her direct trade routes to the markets of Europe and is of vital importance to the Serbs, as their only other ports are small and inaccessible towns on the Dalmatian coast.

A continuous avalanche of wholesome, irresistible fun, constructed from an ingenious starting point, developed into side-splitting situations and told with a dialogue that cannot be beaten. It stands out as one of the funniest farce comedies that has ever been staged.

REXALL MILK OF MAGNESIA.

EFFECTIVE AND PLEASANT TO TAKE.

The foundation of healthy, happy manhood and womanhood lies in a healthy childhood and babyhood, keeping babies and children healthy frequently demands the use of a good laxative to keep the bowels open. Rexall Milk of Magnesia is therefore, very generally prescribed and used for this purpose. It is mild, hence especially suitable for young persons. Price 50c. bottle.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

CANADA'S BUDGET SPEECH.
OTTAWA, May 12.—The Hon. W. S. Fielding in delivering his seventh budget as Minister of Finance announced a 10% extension of the British preference, except on goods which were now dutiable at less than fifteen per cent. and on condition that the extension should apply only on goods entering through Canadian ports. Mr. Fielding said it was most essential that the House give some assurance to the country along the lines of tariff stability and he would like to convey the impression to manufacturers and business men that they were to enjoy a reasonable opportunity of carrying on their business without fear of disturbance. Continuing, he said the present tariff was moderate but was not low enough to suit the Progressives and not high enough for high Protectionists. The changes announced by to-day's Budget were mostly downward. Mr. Fielding in his speech moved a resolution authorizing negotiations between representatives of the two governments with a view of making a commercial agreement between the United States and Canada. The resolution stated that if the President of the United States, under the authority of the United States Tariff Act, determined to reduce by fifty per cent. duties on Canadian wheat, flour, and on barley, potatoes, onions, turnips, hay and fish. The Governor in Council may by Order in Council make such reductions on similar articles imported into Canada from the U.S. as may be deemed reasonable by way of compensation. The Finance Minister said that the last paragraph was a direct appeal to the President of the United States notifying him that Canada was ready to meet him on fair ground if he should be willing to enter into an agreement with this country.

U. S. AMBASSADOR TO BRITAIN
ARRIVES AT NEW YORK.
NEW YORK, May 12.—Conditions in Great Britain are rapidly improving, said Ambassador Harvey, arriving here to-day. Credit has been re-established and unemployment is decreasing at the rate of twenty thousand weekly. Harvey said he knew nothing of the reports of his resignation regarding changes of being pro British. Harvey said, "I am an American but not a damn fool."

RADICAL OFFICE RAIDED.
SYDNEY, May 12.—Silby Barrett, formerly a member of the International Board of District 26 of the United Mine Workers, accompanied by his brother Tom, last evening visited the office of the Radical Maritime Labor Herald, at Glace Bay, and after a stiff fight chased the staff into the street. It was stated that warrants would be issued for the arrest of the two Barretts on charges of assault and of damaging property. The raid followed attacks on Barrett by the Herald, as Barrett is regarded chief of the Conservative faction in the District, while the Herald is the organ of the more Radical Party.

REPUBLICANS CAPTURED.
DUBLIN, May 12.—Large captures by the Irregular troops in the South and West are reported in the Official Army communication issued last night. The communication also reports the seizure of ten thousand rounds of Thompson Gun Ammunition.

Japs to Study Canadian Lumber Methods.

TOKIO—A Japanese lumber mission to visit British Columbia and the Northwest States is now being organized here by Y. Yuki, a prominent lumber merchant of Kobe. The mission plan to spend about two months in Canada and the United States, and will sail late in May. Japan was recently visited by a party of American silk merchants, who made a thorough investigation of the conditions in the silk industry here. The Japanese lumber mission plans to make a similar survey of the lumber industry and its activity will be largely in accordance with the example set by the silk men. The Japanese foreign office and the department of agriculture and commerce have commissioned members of the party to make reports concerning various business conditions in Canada and the United States. Thirteen lumbermen from Kobe and Nagoya have so far expressed their intention to join the party. The lumber trade here is facing problems similar to those in the raw silk industry—mainly a disparity between American lumber mill prices and Japanese buying offers. The Japanese market has been lagging behind the Vancouver and Seattle market all winter.

Physician Says Smoking is Harmless.

The danger to smokers from nicotine poisoning is declared by Dr. E. P. Rodger, of London, to be "so small as to be almost negligible." This should be tidings of comfort and joy to many smokers in America, where, according to despatches received there something like a crusade is underway against "My Lady Nicotine." She is there denounced as a "disappointed jald who is responsible for much that is injurious to health." Dr. Rodger's opinion is based on experiments conducted by himself to determine the action of fire on the tobacco consumed. He has just published an account of them with the conclusions he has reached.

He first took ten grains of tobacco steeped in alcohol and water in order to extract all the nicotine. He said the solution was strong enough to kill a dog weighing four stone.

He then took a similar quantity of the same tobacco and burned it in a pipe so constructed as to retain the whole of the smoke produced. The liquid resulting was found to have no worse effect on a dog than to trouble his indigestion. The dog was of the same weight as the dog on which nicotine had been used with fatal effect.

Dr. Rodger said he found that combustion destroys the nicotine, or rather transforms it into creosols, phenols and other substances which if they are rather irritating are nevertheless antiseptics. The pipe or cigarette-holder, he says, should be kept clean, but with that danger guarded against there is no other. "In these conditions," he states in conclusion, "tobacco may be even good for the health."

of the Westmorland County medical society, that the cure is possible through the "inhalation of practically pure carbon in an amorphous form of carbonate, phosphate, chloride and lactate. Seventy-two cases, mostly far advanced, he said, have responded to the treatment so well that they could be pronounced cured. He said he had been assisted in reaching his conclusions by Dr. Askar Klotz, of the Rockefeller foundation. Dr. Klotz is reported to be in Ottawa.

What's in a Name?

London.—The reason why Michael Sadler, the novelist, spells his name differently from his noted father, Sir Michael Sadler, the Vice-Chancellor of Leeds University, who was recently appointed master of University College, Oxford, and who visited Canada and gave a number of public addresses early in April, is given by a writer in the Teacher's World following an interview with the novelist. The two Michaels spelled their names alike until the son published a novel, "The Anchor." Then confusion arose as to the author. Sir Michael being a celebrated person it seemed natural that the book should be attributed to him, particularly as the son was little known. The father wasn't enamoured of this attribution, however. Here is the way Michael Junior, in the interview, tells why he changed the spelling of the family name, so far as he personally was concerned. "A Yorkshire newspaper came out with a full-column review of 'The Anchor.' The paper headed the review, 'The Vice-Chancellor's Love Story.' The reviewer evidently had not a high opinion of the book. He expressed wonder that so busy an educationist as Sir Michael could find the time to do this sort of thing. He implied that it was rather poor stuff to be the work of such a man, as indeed it was. My father was much annoyed about it. I was young and conceited, and I too, was annoyed, because I thought I ought to have had the credit. I then decided to spell my name as it should be spelled, 'sir.' Now, of course, I am getting all the kicks myself."

A New Public House.

LONDON.—The opening recently of a "reformed public house" in Edmund Street, Camberwell, S.E. London, caused quite a sensation in the district. It was crowded all the evening by men and women who took the liveliest interest in the original design bright—almost jazzy—decoration, and the general atmosphere of cleanliness and comfort. It is called the Rose. Edmund Street is by no means jazzy. It is a typical London poor street. The Rose is the only bit of color and brightness in the neighborhood. There is no doubt that it will be popular. The Rose pays a subtle tribute to the people of the locality. It assumes that they like artistic, clean and orderly things. Chairs, floor coverings, decoration and lighting are all on the "West End" level. The people are offered what is really an attractive club house, where they may meet and talk or listen to a wireless concert, and get food any time of the day. There is one part where no intoxicants are served. Children are admitted there.

Our Most Powerful Light

The discovery of X-rays was a lucky accident. Professor Rontgen, who has just died, was certainly not searching for them when in 1895 his eyes for the first time beheld a light more powerful than any ever known before.

He was experimenting in a darkened room with a Crookes' tube, stimulated internally from an induction coil, and covered by a shield of black cardboard, when he became conscious of a faint, greenish, flickering light on a paper which he had painted with a fluorescent chemical preparation.

The value of this ray to medicine has been incalculable. Prior to its discovery the position of an internal injury had to be guessed at, and a patient might even have had to be cut open so that the surgeon might see exactly where the mischief lay.

Now the Rontgen ray can disclose the exact position of the broken bone or foreign matter in the body.

The rays have caused the death of many experimenters since their discovery by Rontgen, but, fortunately, those days are passed, and the X-ray is doing ever increasing work for the service of man.

Starvation in Russia Halted.

MOSCOW.—The American Relief Administration's fight against starvation in Russia is won. Colonel W. N. Haskell announced recently in the Russian press, Grey reports, throughout Russia are most favorable.

Emergency exists no longer; there is no longer starvation in Russia; there may be under-fed people, but none will die.

If the American administration stops immediately there are stocks here sufficient to feed the people until August.

A joint distribution commission of Menonites, Y. M. C. A. workers and Lutherans is staying to perform reconstruction work.

There is no longer the necessity for the administration remaining in Russia.

Be Kind to Your Suit.

TREAT IT WELL, AND IT WILL LAST MUCH LONGER.

Don't make your new suit old before its time. Trousers stretchers are dangerous things if not properly used, as most men overstretch the cloth. It is best to hang trousers by a clip from the bottom; their own weight will take out bagginess. This method is adopted by many of the immaculately dressed stars of the theatres.

Another unwise habit is the excessive hitching up of the trousers before sitting down. Just ease the trousers not more than one inch—otherwise you will stretch them and spoil the shape of the "taper cut."

Don't hang up your jacket by the loop. Coat hangers are very cheap and preserve the shape of the shoulder and the lapels. Be sure you get into the habit of brushing your suits before putting away, as dust soon works into the cloth.

Mud splashes should never be brushed until dry; there is great danger of rubbing dirt and grease into the cloth and discolouring it.

Study your buttonholes, and don't rip your clothes off at nights. The best buttonholes will soon look shabby and thus spoil your suit unless you treat them calmly and kindly at nights when disrobing.

Nothing spoils the look of a suit quicker than filling your pockets with bulky articles. That's why women score in looking better tailored than most men. It's really surprising how quickly unnecessary things accumulate in the pockets of the male.

It is a good investment to obtain two or three extra suits so that you can allow your suits to rest on the hangers. Make your suits your best friends and treat them as such. You will not regret it, for appearances count for much nowadays, and your personality is summed up often at first glance.

The square, sleeveless décolletage, is quite effective.

The Prince's Two Gifts

MOTOR CAR FOR BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM—FOR LADY ELIZABETH.

It was announced that the wedding gift of the Prince of Wales to his brother and Lady Elizabeth is a handsome motor car. In addition, the Prince has given Lady Elizabeth a beautiful fur stole.

The Star of the Order of the Garter which is the wedding present of the officers and men of the Navy to the Duke of York, contains 439 diamonds. The centre panel of its case is inscribed "From the Officers and Men of the Royal Navy, 26th April, 1923."

The present to Group Captain the Duke of York from the officers and men of the Royal Air Force consists of several pieces of old Georgian furniture.

In a letter of thanks for the Army's gift of Chippendale chairs and a miniature grandfather clock, the Duke of York writes:

I understand that there is a balance of money unexpended, and I hope you will allow me to suggest that this money should be handed over to the Royal School for the Daughters of Officers of the Army at Bath.

THE CAKE.
SEVEN GOLDEN CHARMS.

The wedding cake made for the Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth Bowers-Lyon was delivered at Buckingham Palace recently, and the Queen was the first member of the Royal Family to obtain a glimpse at it when it was unpacked. She was delighted with it.

The Duke of York and Lady Elizabeth selected and ordered the cake from Messrs. McVitie and Price on the occasion of their visit to Edinburgh a few weeks ago.

At first glance it gives the idea of a Chinese pagoda in general outline, but of delicate, almost fairy-like structure, despite its size and weight. It stands 8ft. high and weighs 800lb.

The cutting with the bridegroom's sword on Thursday, April 26th, will be theatrical only; the actual cutting of the first section by the bride will be done with a specially made silver knife. A wedge-shaped section of the main tier is separate from the bulk except as to its supporting, and the breaking of this thin crust will free the wedge, which the bride will withdraw by means of a broad riband. Read gold charms are embedded in this section.

The officially supplied expert description reads:

The bottom tier is round in shape and is divided into six panels. It is chiefly ornamented with the finest sugar lace work. The principal features of this tier are the six delicate ly wrought sugar lace caplets forming the cake into six panels.

On five of these panels are sugar plaques representing love, and on the sixth, which forms the wedge, is a silken plaque bearing the combined coat of arms representing the union of the Houses.

In the wedge are the cake charms made of eighteen carat gold. They are seven in number and comprise a ring, a thimble, a button, a three-penny piece, a horse shoe, a donkey, and a goose.

On the second tier ornamentation of the top and bottom borders causes this tier to assume the shape of a hexagon. On each of five of the sides is a sugar plaque, depicting Romeo and Juliet on the balcony.

She Wants All Other Sufferers to Know

THAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS WILL HELP RELIEVE THEM OF ACHING BACKS.

Mrs. Hemeon Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Sandy Point, N.S., May 11—(Special)—Mrs. L. Hemeon, who lives in this place, is another of that great army of Canadian women who are always ready to say a good word for Dodd's Kidney Pills. Every one of them has a reason. This is what Mrs. Hemeon says: "I had a very weak back which caused me great pain, taking several boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills it improved very much and now I am hardly ever troubled at all. I should like other people who suffer with their kidneys to know this."

Dodd's Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. They have relieved thousands of sufferers all over Canada.

There is no reason why anyone should continue to suffer from kidney complaints, when Dodd's Kidney Pills can be obtained from druggists everywhere at 50c. per box.

The advantage of having the head of Machine drop into the table—out of the way and out of sight—when not in use, is at once appreciated by every house-keeper, and has made this type of machine the most popular ever produced.

These are wonderful values. Come in and have one sent home to-day.

Wallace Silverwear.

Is your Table Silver as good to-day as when you bought it?

Have you noticed that at the parts most exposed to wear, the plate has become worn?

Do you think this condition of your Silver is in keeping with your idea of a well appointed table?

Then why not, when you decide on replacing your old ware, give place to it with the "Wallace" Brand, the Silver that refuses to wear and is guaranteed without time limit.

Start with the Tea Spoons and gradually complete your Set with the one pattern—there are several for you to choose from and the price is very moderate.

Tea Spoons cost $3.00 for a Dozen.
