A QUEEN UNCROWNED
 — OR —
THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER V.

Captain Alfred Disbrowe had raised his handsome eyes, expecting to see a tall, dashing, whiskered, devil-care six-footer; but looking up he saw nothing! Until he lowered his eyes, and lowered them again, and at last they alighted on a coquettish little riding-hat, perched jauntily on one side of a little head, some four feet or so from the ground.

Captain Disbrowe started and stared; and his stare was returned by the brightest and clearest pair of eyes that ever were set in a human head—returned with compound interest, too. Jack De Vere was a girl—a small, slight, delicate-looking girl, of seemingly not more than sixteen, and most elegantly and becomingly dressed, who, after her first brief scrutiny, bowed and smiled, and held out her hand, and graciously welcomed her English cousin to Fohstalle Hall.

"Jack De Vere," Captain Disbrowe repeated, like one in a dream.

The young lady smiled.

"This is some of your work, Master Frank, with your Jack De Vere? My name is Jacquetta," said she, turning to Disbrowe, "while they have the barbarous taste to transform into Jack—thinking, I suppose, a boy's name writes me best. Whether they are right or not, I must leave it to 'Oh! beg pardon! I see it all now," said Disbrowe; and the next instant he had sprung from his horse, and stood with his hat off before her. "Dear I have appeared rather rude; but I was so surprised! Allow me to rectify my error, and salute my fair cousin."

And taking her hand, he would have suited the action to the word; but Miss Jack drew back, and interposed the other hand as a shield.

"Palm to palm is holy palmer's kiss," she said, coolly. "And I, as a staunch Yankee girl and patriot, have vowed a vow, ever since the war, of eternal enmity against all Englishmen. So, my very dear cousin, you will have to admire me at a distance, until better acquainted."

"Then permit me," and he raised her hand gallantly to his lips. "I shall try to induce you to break that cruel vow before we part. The sins of a whole nation should not be visited on one individual head."

There was something about Jack De Vere that puzzled and perplexed Disbrowe not a little; and that was, her strong and indefinable resemblance to some one he had met before—who, at that moment, he could not

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that your medicine would be the only thing to build me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight, having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and give you permission to use my letter."—Mrs. EDITH A. RYAN, 22 Rodney St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, yet cause such annoying symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a powerful medicine for such conditions. It has a many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Riche's experience is but one of many.

of polished oak at the further end, leading to the upper rooms. Opening a door to the right, Jacquetta ushered him into a spacious drawing-room, very high, very dark, very grand, and silent, and bearing over the high marble mantel the escutcheon of the house of De Vere, with its brilliant silver star. The furniture was carved and massive, and evidently belonged to a former generation; and a few rare old pictures, masterpieces of master painters, hung around the walls. The immense windows, reaching almost from floor to ceiling, were hung with dark purple damask, lined with coral-colored silk, and the thick, dark carpet was no dainty Brussels or Turkey affair, but one that had evidently been used for half a century, and was likely to stand half a century more. The chairs, and tables, and sofas were all of the young Englishman lit up with pleasure. As he looked around and half-audibly murmured: "A fit home for a descendant of the old De Veres. I hate new furniture and new houses."

Riding the Storm

TO MAKE THE AIR ROADS SAFE.
 BY C. LEROY MEISINGER,
 Meteorologist, United States Weather Bureau.

The meteorologist's laboratory is the atmosphere itself. Unlike workers in many other fields of science, it is not easy for the meteorologist personally to work in more than a small portion of his laboratory. His efforts usually are confined to that portion of the atmosphere that lies next to the ground.

The United States Weather Bureau, however, in collaboration with the Army Air Service, recently has undertaken a project that involves the actual making of flights by one of its representatives. A series of flights in spherical free balloons now is being made at the Air Service's headquarters at Scott Field, Ill.

While the Weather Bureau does not expect to make sweeping "discoveries" in undertaking these flights, it does hope to gather data concerning air movements at free-air levels that can be observed in no other way.

Where does a given mass of air travel in the course of several days? As we stand out of doors and feel the air blowing past us, what do we know of the path over the earth's surface that a certain particle of air is following?

Unless the air is considerably stirred up by local temperature inequalities, at a given level it will move approximately horizontally. Close to the surface, topographic irregularities also play an important part in introducing vertical motions into the air, but at higher levels this is not so conspicuous.

Therefore, if we may send a manned free balloon to some stated level, cause it to maintain its elevation as constantly as possible, and have the observer note carefully at all times the course of the balloon, the resulting path will be a close approximation to the movement of air at that level. This is precisely what is being attempted at Scott Field.

Sea of Blazing Oil

GALLANT RESCUE OF 2,000 REFUGEES RECOGNISED.

During the Japanese earthquake last year 2,000 lives were saved by a feat of heroism, which was brought to light when Captain Kostings, master of the oil tanker Iris, was presented with a silver cigarette box engraved with the Royal Arms. The presentation was made at The Hague, on behalf of the Government, by Sir Charles Marling, British Minister.

During the earthquake the steamer Empress of Australia, with 2,000 refugees on board, was in danger of being cut off by a mass of blazing oil advancing across the surface of Yokohama Harbour. The Iris went to the rescue, and at great peril, towed the Empress of Australia to safety. It became known later that the Iris had on board 2,000 tons of benzine and 2,000 of kerosene.

A series of flights in spherical free balloons now is being made at the Air Service's headquarters at Scott Field, Ill.

While the Weather Bureau does not expect to make sweeping "discoveries" in undertaking these flights, it does hope to gather data concerning air movements at free-air levels that can be observed in no other way.

Where does a given mass of air travel in the course of several days? As we stand out of doors and feel the air blowing past us, what do we know of the path over the earth's surface that a certain particle of air is following?

Unless the air is considerably stirred up by local temperature inequalities, at a given level it will move approximately horizontally. Close to the surface, topographic irregularities also play an important part in introducing vertical motions into the air, but at higher levels this is not so conspicuous.

Therefore, if we may send a manned free balloon to some stated level, cause it to maintain its elevation as constantly as possible, and have the observer note carefully at all times the course of the balloon, the resulting path will be a close approximation to the movement of air at that level. This is precisely what is being attempted at Scott Field.

During the Japanese earthquake last year 2,000 lives were saved by a feat of heroism, which was brought to light when Captain Kostings, master of the oil tanker Iris, was presented with a silver cigarette box engraved with the Royal Arms. The presentation was made at The Hague, on behalf of the Government, by Sir Charles Marling, British Minister.

During the earthquake the steamer Empress of Australia, with 2,000 refugees on board, was in danger of being cut off by a mass of blazing oil advancing across the surface of Yokohama Harbour. The Iris went to the rescue, and at great peril, towed the Empress of Australia to safety. It became known later that the Iris had on board 2,000 tons of benzine and 2,000 of kerosene.

His efforts usually are confined to that portion of the atmosphere that lies next to the ground.

The United States Weather Bureau, however, in collaboration with the Army Air Service, recently has undertaken a project that involves the actual making of flights by one of its representatives. Conflict Threatening in Vicinity of Shanghai

British and U.S. Warships Ordered to the Scene—Trouble Arises in Berlin Over Ratification of Dawes Plan—Giant Liners Battered by 120 Mile Gale.

TROUBLE IN CHINA.
PEKING, Aug. 28. The diplomatic corps, through the British Minister, Sir Roland MacKay, setting of the corps, to-day sent a note to the Chinese Foreign Office declaring the Chinese Government would be responsible for any injury to foreigners or their property as a result of the conflict threatening in the vicinity of Shanghai.

WARSHIPS ORDERED TO SHANGHAI.
SHANGHAI, Aug. 28. British and United States warships are proceeding here from Chefoo and Wei Hai Wei in connection with the seizure by Tu Shun-shan of the Chekiang and Kiangsu Provinces or different sections of the Peking-Hankow railway.

FORTY PASSENGERS KILLED.
ODESSA, Aug. 28. Forty passengers were killed and a larger number were injured when an express from Odessa to Moscow which left here last night was derailed 200 miles from here.

OUTLOOK FOR RATIFICATION WORSE.
PARIS, Aug. 28. The outlook for ratification by Germany of the Dawes plan became worse to-day, according to latest news from the German capital. The Reichstag probably will vote on the pact late to-night.

KYLE HAD TRYING EXPERIENCE.
SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 28. The Kyle, the passenger boat running between North Sydney and Port aux Basques, Nfld., arrived safely at North Sydney this morning after a trying experience in Tuesday night's storm.

NOW IN THE HANDS OF JUDGE.
CHICAGO, Aug. 28. Judge John R. Caverly took the Franks kidnapping and murder case, to which Nathan F. Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb pleaded guilty, under advisement to-day at 11.49 a.m. and announced he would give his decision fixing the penalty for the double crime on September 10th at 9.30 a.m.

ANOTHER STORM.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. The Weather Bureau to-day issued the following warning: Advisory 10.45 a.m., tropical disturbances of considerable intensity central, about sixty miles south west St. Kitts, moving west north westward.

CANADIAN DOLLAR AT PREMIUM.
OTTAWA, Aug. 28. At a slight premium in New York, the Canadian dollar stood for a time to-day the highest in world quotation of 1-82 of one per cent. This was the highest since the Dominion Government floated hundred million loan in New York in 1922.

CANADA'S INFANTILE MORALITY.
OTTAWA, Aug. 28. Canada's infantile mortality rate is improving, although in February, the latest month available, it was still 77.1 per thousand living births. This was the lowest infantile mortality record in February in the last five years.

BODIES NOT FOUND.
HALIFAX, Aug. 29. The bodies of Captain Miller and his crew of five men, whom it is believed perished Tuesday night when their ship, the tern schooner Anna MacDonald, was wrecked on Kitty Witly Shoals, at "Prong", have not yet been found. Searchers yesterday and to-day made repeated attempts to approach the wreck but have been unsuccessful on account of the heavy seas that are still sweeping the treacherous rocks.

ARCTIC DID NOT MEET MACMILLAN.
OTTAWA, Aug. 29. All is well aboard the Canadian Government steamer Arctic, now cruising in Northern waters in the neighborhood of Ellesmere Island. Nothing has been heard of the Arctic since August 10th, but yesterday an unknown amateur radio operator in Kenneth, Minnesota, picked up the Arctic and forwarded to the Northwest Territories branch of the Interior Department an Arctic message. The operator does not give his name, but it is assumed that he is a member of the Amateur Radio Relay League. The Arctic does not report having met with the American MacMillan expedition which wintered in Refuge Harbor, north of Etah, Greenland, and therefore it is assumed was unable to deliver the mail for the MacMillan expedition which she has on board.

SCHOONER LOST.
SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 28. The schooner Lady Thorburn, Capt. M. Person, broke her anchor chain and became a total wreck on "the rocks" on South Lardale, according to a message from that place reaching here. The crew escaped ashore. The vessel is a small schooner well known in coastal trade, handling principally coal. She was light at the time of the accident.

SUFFERED IN THE STORM.
NEW YORK, Aug. 28. Five liners bearing copious evidence of winning the struggle against the hurricane which on Tuesday lashed the western Atlantic in a seething cauldron, steamed into harbour yesterday several hours late, with hulls intact, but their palatial fittings smashed and battered by the force of the waves. Only one life was taken, the steamer Eliza Walker reporting that Capt. J. Maden had been swept overboard with the bridge of the Danish steamer Hordfarer, while South of Cape Hatteras. The record of half a hundred injured passengers and sailors who require the care of surgeons on the Arabic and Homeric, White Star greyhounds, scores of others who suffered minor hurts, and innumerable stories of heroism and thrilling escapes, provided for the spinning of fresh yarns in every forecastle on the Atlantic. Capt. Hickson of the Arabic, whose vessel and passengers were major victims, said the wind at times attained an intensity of 120 miles an hour, and Capt. Metcalf of the Homeric asserted it was the worst within his memory. Both said, while the crews pressed the engines to capacity to keep the vessels' bows heading into the wind they were stopped dead in their tracks with cross waves pounding at their sides. The Arabic on numerous occasions leaned dangerously close to a 45 degree angle which would have capsized her. The Arabic had an estimated casualty list of more than 150, with 52 persons, who required treatment.

VESSEL AND CREW SAFE.
SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 28. The schooner Julia F. G., Capt. Devons, which was reported abandoned and about to become a total wreck near Bird Rocks, sailed into port Wednesday night, just as several craft were about to be despatched in search of her. The Captain stated that his crew were dead beat, with fighting the storm and were sound asleep in their bunks when hailed by the vessel which brought news of their peril to Sydney, and did not hear either hail or whistles.

BODY OF FISHERMAN PICKED UP.
ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 28. The Eastern Steamship Liner Arthur, which arrived here this morning from Boston reported picking up a dry containing the dead body of a fisherman. There were no marks on the boat or clothing to identify the man who is about 30 years of age and was taken to be an Italian or Portuguese. Death had apparently been from exhaustion or exposure. The body was picked up yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock when the liner was approximately 13 miles east of Cape Anne.

THE STATE OF YOUR HOUSE.
Suppose it were said to you: "Man, you may dwell here. This house you may keep if you'll guard all things well here; See that no servant stoath the front of the garden. You may do what you will, but one thing I'll not pardon; With laws and restrictions I'll not bind you tightly. Save against thieves you must lock the doors nightly."

All the charms of the house you may take for your pleasure. You may work as you choose and may play at your leisure; All that I ask is to have the floors swept up. Pick well your servants and have the place kept up. Don't trust to others; don't view wrong too lightly. Guard it from evil and guard the doors nightly."

What do you fancy in such circumstances? Would you have the floors swept up? Would you hire servants you knew could be trusted? Or take whomever upon you was thrust? Would you, I wonder, lie down to sleep nightly. Without making sure that each door was locked tightly?

Well, this is your house, this great country's boast of. Your house to cherish and thus make the most of. Yet when its servants are chosen. I wonder. Do you take care to pick men who won't blunder? Are you on guard ever watchfully noting the state of your house, or too busy for voting.

"Scaramouche" to be Seen on Local Screen

WONDERFUL PHOTOPLAY AT THE NICKEL MONDAY NEXT.

This is truly the year of big things in motion pictures at the Nickel Theatre is an usual alert to the requirement of the amusement public, and in securing "Scaramouche" it registers another triumph in screen annals. This—spectacularly beautiful production will be screened on Monday next.

"Scaramouche" is a story of the French Revolution. It tells the romance of Andre-Louis Moreau (Ram-on Navarro) and Alaine de Keradion (Alice Terry). Andre-Louis has been brought up as the ward of Alaine's uncle, The Marquis de la Tour.

Richard Hudnut Three Flowers Talcum
Your choice of the Three Flowers color presented in a talcum powder form of quality and delicately scented.

Alain (Lewis Stone), a haughty aristocrat and man of fashion, killed Andre-Louis' friend, Philippe, because of his revolutionary sentiments, and on the Marquis Andre-Louis has sworn eternal vengeance. To make matters worse the Marquis is courting Alaine.

Andre's seditious speeches cause him to be sought for the galleys, and in escaping from the pursuing gendarmes, he joins a strolling band of players and becomes Scaramouche, the clown. Bitterness against Alaine leads him into an affair with the leading lady of the troupe, but he ends this when the girl accepts attention from the Marquis.

Skilled in fencing, Andre-Louis Moreau is persuaded to become substitute deputy in the National Assembly of France for a deputy who was killed in the series of duels brought by the aristocrats against the people's representatives. In a duel with La Tour d'Azyr, that is the culmination of his activities in the Assembly, Andre-Louis wounds the Marquis, and Andre's understanding of Alaine's actions after the duel, further widens the breach between them.

The remainder of the plot is vividly depicted, and would take up too much space to fully describe. Make no other appointment for Monday night.

SIDE TALKS.

THE JOY OF LOOKING UP.

"You'd think to hear her talk there never was anyone as perfect as Mrs. Sligwick," said my neighbor. "Sometimes I feel as if I must tell her that that woman is just an ordinary human being and has faults like the rest of us."

"Her" is a young college girl who has recently moved into our neighborhood. Mrs. Sligwick is an old friend of ours for whom this young girl has received a tremendous admiration. Some people might call it a "crush" but I do not use that word because I do not think the girl's feeling has the possessive quality of a crush. It is content to admire and worship at a distance. It has in it "all the sweet and sudden passion of youth toward greatness in its elders." It does, to be sure, require an audience of ordinary people now and then to be told of the wonders of her idol. Hence my neighbor's outburst.

A Natural Feeling.
 Of course my neighbor feels that way. Of course we all do. It's just an inevitable reaction of our own egos which feel slighted by an extravagant admiration of another. But I hope we shall never yield to the urge and try to tear down this youngster's idol.

I think people who do that sort of thing (and there is no doubt that many people do it) under the cover of "I really think I ought to tell you, I can't bear to see you so deceived in anyone") are among the meanest people in the world.
 It is a beautiful thing to have one's being flooded by a selfless admiration. There is something cleansing and uplifting about it. I am sorry for anyone who goes through life without this great experience.

Let Her Keep The Glory.
 Of course it is seldom that the ob-

Bolshevik Growth in France

CHARGED TO SCHOOL TEACHERS.

PARIS.—(A.P.)—The spread of Bolshevism in France is beginning to attract the attention of political leaders and government authorities.
 The eventualities of a dangerous growth of communism in this country always has been regarded as very remote because of the natural conservative tendency of the farming element, which outnumbers the laboring class. Lately, however, evidences have been discovered that the Bolshevik virus has penetrated the peasantry, thought until now to be proof against all subversive doctrine. This outcome is attributed to the influence of school teachers, who are drifting more and more toward extreme radicalism.

An example was furnished the other day when a monument to the school teachers killed on the battlefield was to be inaugurated in the Department of Morbihan. The school teachers' association of the department decided by a large majority that the inauguration should not be allowed to take place unless the inscription, "To the School Teachers Who Fell on the Field of Battle," was changed to "To the Victims of the War." They also demanded that there be no mention of France or the "katharians" in any speeches, and that the Marcellite be neither played nor sung.

The unsuspectedly large proportion of the teachers of that department won to Bolshevism has started an inquiry into the state of mind of teachers generally, and one functionary of the department of education said the communists were certainly in the majority by a considerable margin.

In some departments teachers have prepared their own texts for dictation to pupils in which they have carefully cut out everything that in the regular text books smacks of patriotism or history. Even the word "international" is becoming unpopular with these extremists because of the last three syllables.

The fight between classes in the prevailing sentiment in the examples of these improvised text books, that have come to the notice of the authorities. How to deal with the situation is a hard problem. The present government is inclined to the greatest leniency in such matters, and the school teachers' influence in rural districts is such that there are no means of combating him on his own ground.

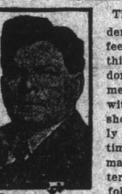

The Communists took 800,000 votes from the Socialists in the recent elections, and the coalition of the latter with the Radicals is expected to drive a great many more toward Bolshevism before another election is held. In this the school teachers' influence is not felt, but it is thought that the present generation of country school children will, if there is not a reaction in the meantime, swell the communist ranks immensely when it becomes a matter of voting age.

German Go-Getters Busy in China

LANCHOWFU, China, Aug. 23 (A.P.)—Kansu province is being invaded in force by German business interests. German agents are on the spot prepared to take any small offerings in a business way, looking to future possibilities. Negotiations are proceeding for improvement of communication with Szechuan province and the coast, as urged by Marshal Wu Pei-fu, the present military genius of North China.

CRIME.

WALT MASON

The latest murder made me feel that something should be done to curb the men who stab with steel, or shoot with deadly gun. The victim was a useful man, of character correct; he followed up the moral plan that gains the world's respect. An honest man of wide renown as being clean and white; and some cheap gunman shot him down, and robbed him in the night. They have the gunman in a cell, a loafer gone to seed, and if he would he couldn't tell just why he did the deed. You place a weapon in the hands of such a brainless jay, and in an alley's mouth he stands, prepared to rob and slay. He cares not if his victims be the finest gents in town; "Hand out your pocketbooks," says he, and calmly shoots them down. We've laws forbidding this and that, our statutes we are fed; but any crook may pack a gat, and leave his swath of dead. And we have laws prescribing doom for delegates who slay; but killers seldom reach the tomb until they're old and gray. The gunman that I have in mind may haply reach the pen, and there perform the convict's grind—but he'll come out again. In seven months or seven years his pardon will arrive, and pawnshop men or auctioneers will sell him his weapon free. And he again will take the trail in dark streets of the town, and to acquire some little kale will shoot good voters down.

WILDARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

Japanese Unfit for Citizenship

Valentine Stuart McClatchy, publisher of the Sacramento "Bea," who for many years has been a leader in the movement to exclude the Japanese from his state and from the country at large, says in "The Forum" that to permit naturalization of Japanese would necessitate abandonment of the policy inaugurated when the Republic began and consistently maintained since, which holds the privileges of citizenship from Asiatics of the yellow and brown races.

The difference between the yellow and the white races in standards of living, in ideals, religion, and psychology are so great that generations of association side by side will not obliterate them and permit that real assimilation, which is necessary to mould a homogeneous citizenry. Of all the yellow and brown races the Japanese are, for a number of reasons, least assimilable with whites, and most dangerous to our citizenship if concentrated in numbers in this country.

With standards of living and high birth rate similar to other Asiatics, the Japanese combine great industry, determination, and ambition as individuals, with economic and racial co-operation and an intense loyalty and pride of race which declines to submerge themselves into the American people, but to establish the proud Yamato race permanently on the Western Continent; and their leaders and writers make no secret of that ambition.

The Japanese Government forbids, in effect, the expatriation and assimilation with other nations, of Japanese, no matter where born. Japan governs them through local Japanese associations which report to central associations and these in turn are directed by resident Japanese consuls.

These are wise measures in the interests of Japan and illustrate the policy which has secured for her a national solidarity unique among the people of the earth; but they furnish conclusive evidence also that the Japanese constitute the most dangerous element which could be admitted to American citizenship, not because of lack of force or ability, but because their exceptional force and ability would be used not for America, but for Japan, and would tend ultimately and necessarily to the undoing of America and the white race.

Edward VII Told War Details in 1908

Almost exactly sixteen years ago, in August, 1908, George Clemenceau, made the following amazing prophecy, first in an English newspaper, and subsequently became editor of the London "Times," and a few days later to King Edward VII.

"The danger of invasion is very real. We know that on the morrow of the outbreak of war between Germany and England, the German armies will invade France by way of Belgium, and that Germany will seek in France an indemnity for the losses likely to be suffered on sea at the hands of England. What can England do to help us? Destroy the German Fleet! In 1870 there was no German Fleet, but the Prussians entered Paris all the same."

"One hundred thousand men in Belgium would not be much good, but 250,000 or 500,000 would change the course of the war. I am convinced that our position will continue to be one of extreme danger until England has a national army worthy of the name."

"And even if the men were forthcoming you have neither weapons nor ammunition for them to use. These things cannot be improvised. I know you Englishmen do not want to be entangled in a Continental war, but I ask you whether your policy is to-day what it was a century ago—to prevent the domination of Europe by any one power? If it is, then you ought to look things in the face."

"If war comes and we are smashed for want of timely and efficient help from you, you will afterward be obliged to incur obligations vastly greater than any law requires—or you will have to bow your necks to the victor. England cannot maintain her position in Europe and in the world nor can her friendship with France be secure against surprises, unless she has an adequate army. It was not at Trafalgar, a very brilliant naval victory, but at Waterloo, a rather little land battle that England smashed Napoleon."

The English newspaper man, Mr. Stead, made some notes and through Sir Edward Goschen, British Ambassador in Austria, they reached Edward VII. Mr. Stead says in "The Forum" that he met the King, after his talk with Clemenceau, and that the King said to him, "If you had published your talk with Clemenceau in your paper, and if Clemenceau had learnt it by heart, he could not have said to me more exactly what was in your notes."

Cost of Leopold-Loeb Trial to Exceed $300,000

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The trial of Nathan F. Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb for kidnaping and slaying Roberts will cost the prosecution and defense a total of more than $300,000, it was estimated to-day. The fact that the judicial hearing to determine their punishment is without a jury has saved the country and the boys' families an equal sum.

A summary of the expenses incurred by the prosecution so far, including salaries of state's attorneys, judge, officers, alienists and experts, totals $70,000 and before the hearing is over additional expenses will bring the total to nearly $90,000.

Attorneys' fees, which it has been agreed, will be fixed by a committee of the Chicago Bar Association, will be a big item of the defense costs. Retaining fees for the three attorneys, Clarence S. Darrow and Benjamin and Walter Bachrach, are said to amount to around $25,000.

Twelve alienists for the defense examined the youths, although not all will testify. One who did testify was being paid $250 a day for his services. A stenographic bill for the defense is estimated at $15,000, since all the testimony is being transcribed. At present, the defense cost is estimated at $215,000, and this will be increased if the verdict of Judge R. Caverly should be one from which the defense would appeal.

Doctor Says Education Fail to Lengthen Life

MOST PERSONS KNOW RULES OF HYGIENE, BUT DO NOT OBSERVE THEM, PROF. PAYNE ASSESTS.

Education has not helped man live longer, although the death rate has been decreased to an astonishing degree, due chiefly to the greater care given infants, Dr. E. George Payne, professor of educational sociology, said recently at the assembly of the New York University summer school. If anything the span of life has shrunk a little, Professor Payne said. This results from the fact that although most persons now know the elementary principles of hygiene, few of them take the trouble to observe these rules. The principal panacea, the lecturer said, is a programme of moderate daily exercise.

Dr. Payne hinted that attending games and races is the nearest approach the average person takes to getting exercise, and while he had no fault to find with witnessing such exhibitions, he insisted this pleasure could not be taken as a substitute for individual exercise.

"Thousands of men and women have learned from childhood that daily exercise is a necessity," he said, "but in spite of that they continue to take their exercise vicariously. It is equally important to study the science of nutrition and map out, and adhere to, a correct diet."

Slayer of 5, Photographed Atop Coffin

GOES TO GALLOW'S SMILING.

VILLE PLATTE, La., Aug. 8.—Eusebe Vidrine, self-confessed slayer of five men in the last three years, was hanged in the Evangeline Parish jail for the murder last May of Robert Leo Wiggins, Jr. The trap was sprung at 12.42 p.m.

Simultaneously steps were taken to obtain the release from the Texas penitentiary of Frank Smith, serving fifteen years for the murder of Lee Duke, taxi driver, near Orange, Tex., December 12, 1921. Vidrine having confessed to the killing.

The condemned man asked that his body be placed in his coffin and mounted on a bier in the courthouse square, so those who desire to do so might view it. He also requested before the execution that he be photographed while seated on the coffin. His requests were carried out.

Vidrine looked forward to the execution with great interest. Sheriff Pucheu said: "Eusebe would not miss what is coming to him for anything."

The condemned man was in good humor, swapping jokes and laughing with the death watch.

On mounting the scaffold he asked for an opportunity to talk. "How many of you speak French?" he queried.

There were a few affirmative replies from the officials and witnesses and the sheriff advised him to make his address in English.

Vidrine tared badly in English and the priest standing beside him urged him to speak in French. He spoke thirty minutes, urging his hearers not to gamble or drink whisky.

First Export OF LEAD CONCENTRATES FROM NFLD.

The first shipment of lead concentrates from Silver Cliff mine is being forwarded by the Rosalind to New York. There is a great demand for this ore in the foreign market to-day; in fact, many of the British lead smelting plants have been compelled to close down on account of shortage of raw material.

Silver Cliff has been worked up to the present under great difficulties owing to the fact that operations have had to be carried on entirely by manual labour. With the application of electric power, however, early next month, those who are interested in the mine anticipate great results in a short time.

This shipment of Newfoundland ore, small though it is, is an event of importance. Apart from the export of iron ore from Bell Island, nothing in the nature of minerals has left our shores since the days when the copper shipments from the north gave every promise of putting us on the map. Unfortunately operations were suspended, but not because the ore had run out.

The Enemies of Peace.

The reference in the cable message to the effect that a hitch had occurred in Berlin over the ratification of the Dawes' plan is disconcerting, following the satisfactory conclusion of the London Conference and the strong approval given by the French Chamber of Deputies and the Senate to the terms of the Treaty.

Everywhere the announcement that the powers were in full agreement in London was received with jubilation, and it was taken for granted that the pact marked the beginning of a new day in Europe. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in expressing his gratification to the French and Belgian Premiers is said to have remarked: "Now we are all agreed, Satan alone can separate us." Apparently this opponent of peace takes the form of the Communist party in the Reichstag, where they are reported on Wednesday to have created such an uproar that the sitting had to be temporarily suspended. It seems incredible, however, that the whole people of Germany will be so blind to their own interests as to permit one crowd of disgruntled extremists to render the plan inoperative.

Citizens to Meet Monday

NAVAL RECEPTION TO BE CONSIDERED.

In reference to any reception of a public nature in connection with the forthcoming visit of the Special Service Squadron, the Prime Minister is quoted as having expressed the opinion that this was a move which should be initiated by citizens and whilst it is not up to the Government, yet in any movement that would be started, they would co-operate. At the regular meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade held to-day, the matter of a reception was discussed, and it was decided to hold a public meeting of citizens in the Board of Trade rooms on Monday afternoon next, at 4 o'clock, when plans will be formulated. It is hoped that as many representative citizens as possible will attend.

Result of Investigation into Railway Accident Received

In reference to the derailment at Cape Ray a short while ago, it is understood that the report of the investigation held by Magistrate Squerry Chaney, has been forwarded to the Minister of Justice, who has passed the correspondence on to the Prime Minister, Chairman of the Railway Commission. The letter is now giving the matter consideration and the result of their deliberation will be made known in a few days.

A message received by the Deputy Minister of Customs from the sub-collector at St. Jacques, states that the Gloucester, Capt. E. Caribou on the Coat of Arms

FOR NEARLY 800 YEARS.

It will be of interest to learn that the well known figure of a caribou has been in use nearly three hundred years on the Newfoundland coat of arms. Some short while ago Col. Nangle took up the matter of our coat of arms with the Home authorities, and forwarded them a print of the one in use namely a shield supported on the left and right sides by Esquimaux figures. Surrounding the shield is a caribou and at the base is the inscription, "Qualite Prime Regnum Dei." A response to the enquiry has been received which states that investigation at the College of Arms has resulted in a definite assurance that the arms and supporters in the sketch forwarded were duly granted "in the form in use at the time on January 1st, 1687, to all that whole continent, island, or region commonly called Newfoundland for the greater honor and splendour of that country."

Magistrates Court

A 45 year old labourer, Field Street, charged with being drunk and disorderly was fined $2.00 with the option of 7 days.

An incorrigible woman named Barrow was found wandering about the streets at an early hour this morning, and was charged with being a loose and disorderly person. She was sent down for 3 months.

A Canadian traveller who imbibed too freely last night, was arrested and charged with attempting to force an entrance into a house on Gower St. This morning he explained to the court that he was late arriving at the hotel, and finding the door barred, he went to call on a friend and mistook the door. He was discharged.

A cabman charged with being drunk while in charge of a horse was convicted and fined $2.00 with the option of 7 days.

Vessels in the Atlantic Ocean north of Scotland will be able to see it as sunset. In the middle of the Atlantic it will be visible at noon.

Another total eclipse will take place Jan. 14, 1928. This will start in Africa, crossing the Indian Ocean and the island of Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies, and the lower islands of the Philippines.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

THE TOLL OF THE STORM.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 28. The gale that swept the Nova Scotia coast on Tuesday night wiped out the lives of six men, including the crew of five of the schooner Anna MacDonald, and a fisherman at Yarmouth Bay, destroyed the tern schooner Anna MacDonald at Prospect, the fishing smack Leslie E. at Yarmouth, the New York auxiliary yacht Shanghai at White Head, near Canoe, the schooner Lady Thorburn at South Lardos, Cape Breton, the coastal steamer on the north coast of Cape Breton Island, and sank two schooners, the Golden Cup, and Bridget and Freeman, at their moorings at North Sydney. The passengers and crews of crafts in many cases had most miraculous escapes from death. Ornamental and fruit trees suffered severe damage. The roof garden of a city hotel was carried away, and damages of varying degrees were sustained by property holders throughout the Province. While the toll is severe, it is not as bad as at first was feared. The steamer Fort Hamilton bound for New York, the Silvia for New York, the Rosalind for St. John's, Nfld., the Marisa for Boston, John W. Mackey for Carolina, for all of which fears were entertained, were reported to-day as being safe. The damage to the fruit crop in Annapolis Valley, which was yesterday considered as serious, will not, in the opinion of A. E. McMahon, President United Fruit Companies, amount to more than one or two per cent. of the crop.

FLIGHT DELAYED.

(On Board U.S.S. Richmond at Ice Tickle, Labrador, Aug. 28.—Postponement of the flight of United States army world fliers from Iqviut Greenland to Indian Harbor, Labrador, until Saturday was definitely decided. Throughout Wednesday night the wind off Ice Tickle died down, and a rising barometer seemed to promise the possibility of the fliers continuing their air voyage from Iqviut to Labrador to-day, in accordance with pre-arranged schedule. During the day, however, the cruiser Milwaukee which was stationed off Iqviut reported that a storm which had been moving up the coast for several days affecting the Labrador side of Davis Straits had reached the Greenland shore.

Monkey Glands May Send Man Backwards

If man has fallen a victim to many of the diseases which his cousin, the chimpanzee, has escaped, if our teeth rot and premature senility seizes so many, if we must have recourse to simian remedies for our ills, it is because we are staggering under the burden of a civilization to which our physical powers are inadequate, writes L. Adams Beck in The Forum. The operation of Dr. Voronoff for the renewal of youth, according to his own statements, will convey character. It will restore force and energy, but what force? That of the ape? A pretty possibility, truly! If with physical energy are granted also lust and cunning, released from human self-control, the worst nightmares of modern literature may be realized and a race produced, semi-immortal and lower in instinct and passion than the Neanderthal man, who had at all events climbed above the common progenitor of ape and man. Man has struggled up through many and terrible obstacles. We may yet witness a self-chosen descent.

Before we renounce ourselves with the ape, some may think the trial of the common sanities of the body, worth while. It is only the healthy and simple races which can ultimately inherit the earth. Can they grow in the environment we have made? We talk of the safeguards of religion, philosophy, science, and mental control, and I dispute none of them. But why give them so much to contend with—why make their work all but impossible? Why not begin where Nature began, with the misused body.

Match Industry to Remain Govt. Monopoly The match trade in France which had formerly been a government monopoly and was to have been abolished as such and left open to private enterprise under the terms of the finance law voted by the French Parliament last March at the request of Mr. Poincaré's ministry, may remain a government monopoly after all, according to a recent decision of the finance commission of the chamber of deputies which however recommends a complete re-organization of this industry. The Bankers Trust Company of New York is advised in this connection by its French Information Service that a new bill has been introduced in the chamber of deputies which aims at creating a separate and financially autonomous administration for the manufacture of matches on behalf of the government. This administration would have to render accounts annually to the ministry of finance but would not be dependent upon the voting of budgetary credits for its working capital. The necessary funds for the initial equipment of this industry with the most modern machinery would, according to the proposed bill, be provided by public loan. It is expected that this measure will come up for discussion before the French chamber during its autumn session.

Status of Dominions

DIFFICULT AND DELICATE QUESTIONS—IMPERIAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN AUTUMN.

The need has become more and more urgent of late for machinery by which the Dominions can be given effective voice in the control of our foreign policy. The Government attaches so much importance to the matter that they have invited the Dominions to a conference which it is hoped will take place in October next. Mr. Amery, in the course of a discussion on the subject in the House of Commons, pointed to the difficulty which had arisen with Canada over the Lausanne Conference, and thought it was a little unfortunate that so soon after that difficulty we could only devise makeshift arrangements for the Allied Conference which was now discussing the Dawes Report. Mr. Lloyd George also emphasized the importance of full recognition being given to the Dominions. He declared that it was a matter of vital moment to the unity, strength, and even continued existence of the Empire. "Anyone who knows anything of some of the disintegrating elements which may exist in parts of the Empire," he remarked, "knows perfectly well that this is a matter of such moment that any mishandling of it might produce very disastrous results upon the unity of the Empire." The war made a very great difference. The sacrifices made by Canada and Australia were greater than the sacrifices made by this country in either the Crimean War of 1854 or the Boer War. When it was realized what the Dominions had done it was impossible not to comply with their demand that in future they should be consulted as to foreign policy which committed them to enormous sacrifices. He was not sure that it was altogether a question of machinery of consultation. The methods ought to be adapted to the conditions of the time. The Downing Street tradition had gone, and gone for ever. The Colonial Secretary observed that too much importance could not be attached to the matter. There had recently been an incident where one of the Dominions had openly denounced what had been called "Downing St. methods." That was the thing they were anxious to avoid, and the avoidance in future of all dissatisfaction was a matter that should receive the undivided attention of all parties in the House. Mr. Thomas, as proof of the sincerity of the Government in this matter of open dealing with the Dominions, read a long telegram that had been sent to them asking them to help in the solution of the great problem. During the present negotiations every day the whole of the Dominion representatives met the Prime Minister and other officials, when the situation was explained up to date. The Prime Minister had said that the system was not to be regarded as a satisfactory precedent for the future. Mr. Thomas then announced the intention of the Government to summon a conference in October, and explained that it was the desire of the Government to explore the whole situation and avoid, if possible, the difficulties that, unfortunately, they had to deal with up to now. Those domestic differences were not going to weaken them.

Consulted As To Foreign Policy

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 28 (A.P.).—After 13 years of waiting the University of Michigan has a prospect of beholding its new telescope, the fourth largest in the country, completely assembled and ready for use, late this year. Soon afterward it will be dismantled again and taken to South Africa for eight or ten years of study of the southern sky by university astronomers. Only three refracting telescopes in United States will have lens surpassing its 27 inches of diameter measurement, that at Yerkes with 40 inches, that at Lick with 36 inches and one other measuring 30 inches. Difficulty in getting glass sufficiently large to make the lens was responsible for the delay. Orders for the new telescope were placed June 10, 1911. Two years ago the big piece of glass reached this country from Germany. Sent to the shop of Robert R. McDowell in Pittsburgh, it had been shaped and was being polished when Mr. McDowell died in 1922. Search revealed no man able to continue the work except one in McDowell's shop who was then working on a lens for Yale. He turned his attention to the Michigan lens in June, and will be finished with it in six months. Slowness of the work of polishing is due to the fact that each three minutes of polishing demands a wait of 60 minutes for cooling. Eventually, after its trial test at Ann Arbor and its sojourn under the skies of South Africa, the new lens will become part of the equipment at the university observatory.

A steady or intermittent call

GETTING up in the morning is largely a matter of habit. Some fellows get up as soon as the bell rings, others want to be called several times.

That is why Big Ben and Baby Ben have two alarm calls. A steady call for the light sleeper and an intermittent call for the sound sleeper. Baby Ben's call is just a little bit softer than Big Ben's but just as insistent.

Look for the names Westclox Big Ben and Westclox Baby Ben on the dials.

Address on Road Building

The following is a brief summary of the address given by Mr. H. A. Winter to the Motor Association on Tuesday on the subject of road building. The lecturer's suggestions are comprehensive and are based on knowledge that has been gained by road builders in other countries.

Mr. Winter, by way of preface, disclaimed any expert knowledge of what was really a highly technical matter. He brought to the subject merely a little theory and study, some modest experimenting on his own part and, perhaps, a little more observation than most of actual road conditions and their behaviour.

The subject fell into two natural divisions, and so he would treat it. There was, first, the technical side—of what materials and roads should be made and how those materials should be applied; and, second, the whole system, political, mechanical and financial, upon which the work should be done.

1. Material. There is only one answer—gravel. It existed in superabundance here and was the finest quality for the purpose. We must read foreign text books and articles with caution, and allow for local conditions. Many experts did not mean by "gravel" quite what he did, and often used the word loosely to denote clay or loam as well as the pure gravel. It is most important to remember this.

It was very easy, the lecturer said, for any of the audience to point out what he meant by gravel. Let him go to his backyard and dig. He would find: (1) sod; (2) dark earth, about 12 in. deep; (3) 2 or 3 inches of red clay; (4) pure gravel, sometimes of a blue colour and sometimes whitish. There was no need of a microscope to see it. It consisted of stones entirely, however small. Hence were derived two invaluable properties: (a) it was capable of resisting great pressure; (b) it was always porous and pervious to water, no matter what the pressure.

The proper employment, and the preservation of these two properties were the whole secret of good road making. How was it to be done?

First, gravel is always porous, no matter how it is put on. Hence, roads are bound to be improved if only gravel is used, no matter how badly they are built. Half the battle is merely to forbid the use of earth.

Second, how to consolidate gravel road. This is very simple. Build up your road in pyramid or filter style: use big stones on the bottom, smaller stones on them, still smaller stones, and so on up to the top. An inch or so of pure fine gravel sifted as fine as possible should form the surface. It is absolutely essential to observe the principle, that no stone should rest on a stone smaller than itself, but always between 2 or 3 larger ones. They could not then get out of place.

To hold this structure together, two pressures are necessary, vertical and lateral. The first is provided by the steam roller and regular traffic; the second is just as important as the first. Most of our roads are laid down and are not retained on the sides. After a time the side stones are pushed out and the road slowly disintegrates. Every road built by gravel should be just in the form of a trench.

A road made like this will last indefinitely. There is nothing to go wrong. Water goes right through and leaves nothing to freeze in winter. A demonstration was given by means of two roads made in glass bottles, with gravel and clay tops respectively. The gravel let the water pass right through, whereas the clay became sticky mud by repeated shaking.

The theory that water drains off the road sideways is a fallacy. Hence ditches and high crowns are both great evils. Ditches are bad because:

1. They take away in most cases from width of road.
2. They are awkward for pedestrians.
3. They do not get the water from the road. Vehicles make ruts which retain pools. The only place where water drains into ditches is on the side of a hill.
4. If the water went over the surface into the ditch, it would carry the top of the road with it and fill the ditch up.
5. They prevent the making of a retaining wall; hence stones get pushed into the ditch.

Ditches should be made, but should be a part of the road. This method is known as Trench Drains. High crowns are unnecessary. Traffic keeps to the middle of the road to avoid the slope, and wears out great ruts and holes.

II. System. Much more machinery is imperative. Nowhere else is work like this done by pick and shovel. We should have a large supply of (a) steam shovels; (b) screens; (c) rollers; (d) motor trucks.

There is an absurd idea that roads can be made "as you go." Large gravel pits should be selected at convenient sites, and steam shovels going constantly should be used digging out gravel. Screens sort stones into heaps. This is absolutely essential, but rarely done here. Trucks come and load up with the size of stone required and take it out where the road is being made. This system is much more efficient, far more expeditious, and cheaper in the long run.

The system and Act should be changed. We should have a competent

It is an absurdity to put on this work men who know nothing about it. Even we don't do this in other directions, e.g., sewers, public buildings, railways, etc. Always an engineer in charge there, but apparently anyone can survey, plan and build a road!

The system and Act should be changed. We should have a competent engineer in charge of the whole work all over the island, and he should be given plenary powers. The Board of Works should be merely a clerical and financial depot. At present, no one really supervises the work.

The Government has made a good beginning by voting a large sum for roads. It would be advisable to expend as much as possible of this on machinery. We might be able to get a lot of this from contractors on the Humber, as well as other assistance. If our roads were built this way, and on this system, they would be among the best in the world, beautiful to travel on, cheap to maintain and a delight to the eye. How can the motor Association help?

1. By sympathy and interest.

2. By offering suggestions and help.
3. By striving carefully and not making bad roads worse.
4. By forming a Vigilance Committee and reporting bad bits of road and bad work.

Jingling Silver Coins Displace Paper Money

VIENNA, Aug 18 (A.P.)—The long reign of paper money in a number of European countries is coming to an end with the reappearance of the metal coinage which various governments have introduced within the last few months. France led the way with a new franc, and a little later introduced smaller coins of nickel.

Germany some time ago issued one, two and three Renten mark pieces in silver, as well as a platinum of nickel, while Austria several months ago began the coinage of one shilling pieces of silver, worth about ten cents each, as well as nickel coins of various denominations.

Russia too is planning to put silver into use, and some weeks ago placed an order for a new coinage with the royal mint in London, the first of which will soon be completed and sent to Moscow for distribution to the principal banks.

The Free State of Danzig, Poland and Czechoslovakia are also planning issues of metal coins within the next few months.

Lon Chaney's Great Feature

"THE NEXT CORNER" IN ABSORBING DRAMA.

A reckless young wife is trapped by a written confession of love for another man. Her struggle to hide the truth from her husband is told in romantic settings of Paris, Spain and South America.

Lon Chaney the star in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" admits "The Next Corner" his best production. The following is the cast: Robert Maury.....Conway Tearle
Elsie Maury.....Lon Chaney
Dorothy Maccall.....Dorothy Maccall
Don Arturo.....Ricardo Cortez
Nina Race, Elsie's mother.....Louise Dresser
Countess Longueval.....Renea Radzina
Paula Vrain.....Dorothy Cumming
Julie, Elsie's maid.....Mrs. Bertha Feducha
The Stranger.....Bernard Selgic

Despite the cost of this wonderful production the admission fee will continue the same, twenty cents.

Last night the Majestic patrons were highly pleased with the subject. The story opens in France. In turn it deals with the Argentine, Spain and the United States, returning once more to France. In its picture form.

"The Next Corner" offers an elaboration of both books and stage production by Kate Jordan. The picture deals with the situation which arises when a man and his wife, devoted to each other, are separated by the necessities of the husband's profession. Robert Maury, portrayed by Conway Tearle, goes to the Argentine for three years. He leaves his young wife, Elsie, played by Dorothy Maccall, in a setting which she herself selects, the city of Paris.

Ricardo Cortez, in a heavy role, Lon Chaney, as you've always wanted to see him—without "make-up," and Louise Dresser complete the featured players in the cast of the picture which will be the feature. Today and to-morrow is the last opportunity the movie lovers of St. John's will have to see Lon Chaney and his co-stars in this outstanding production.

Flogging Advocated as Cure for Lawlessness in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, August 20 (A.P.)—As an outgrowth of an epidemic of lawlessness that in recent weeks took the form of almost daily armed robberies in dwellings and on the streets, the police of Shanghai's International Settlement again are vigorously advocating flogging as a punishment for offenders.

As a rule armed robbers, convicted in Shanghai's Mixed Court, are sentenced to death and are shot after being turned over to the Chinese authorities. The foreign police contend that Chinese criminals fear this punishment less than they do corporal punishment, which they assert will deter many criminals inclined from being caught with weapons in their possession.

The Chinese press in Shanghai generally voices opposition to any return of the use of the bamboo.

Agnes Ayres Has a Startling Scene in New Photoplay

A beautiful girl with her hair hanging down her back, her shoes off—in a hotel room alone with a married man! This is the startling situation in which Agnes Ayres, Paramount star, finds herself in her new picture, "A Daughter of Luxury," which will be a feature at the Star Theatre to-day.

The situation, however, which immediately conveys the idea of scandal proves to be the most innocent imaginable.

Mrs. Fenton, the character played by Mrs. Ayres, hungry, penniless and homeless, sees a man whom she thinks to be an old friend from her former home town. She accosts him, then discovers she has made a mistake. The man, seeing she is faint with hunger, invites her to dine. She accepts.

"They find the only tea room in that section has just closed. He suggests that they go to his room and he will order tea and cake sent up. She wavers between propriety and hunger and finally yields to hunger. After the tea, during which she removes her shoes to rest her aching feet, she stands in front of the mirror to redress her hair so she may once more start out in search of a job. It is at this point that she is discovered by a gossip.

Out of this complication grows the big climax of the story, when Mary, to save the honor of the man who has befriended her, allows him to introduce her to the gossip as his sister-in-law, an heiress, and thus is forced to play the impostor during a good part of the remainder of the story, and suffer the humiliation of final exposure. A jewel robbery is one of the big incidents.

The picture is an adaptation by Beulah Marie Dix of the play "The Impostor," by Leonard Merrick and Michael Morson. Tom Gallery plays opposite the star.

Living in Italy

ROME, Aug. 1 (A.P.)—Italy eats more, drinks more, and smokes three or four times as much as before the war. In the old days each Italian disposed of an average of 30 pounds of fresh meat a year and eight of preserved meat; now the consumption is 46 to 40 respectively. The use of sugar has risen from 11 to 17 pounds a year per capita, while the consumption of coffee has nearly doubled. Where the average Italian drank 40 litres of wine a year, he now consumes 500.

There has been a heavy increase in the consumption of tobacco, as the average Italian used to spend nine lire every year on his smokes and now spends 63.

Perhaps the greatest increase of all is in means of transport. Before the war the bicycles in Italy numbered 1,200,000; now the country contains 2,800,000; motor cycles numbered 17,000; now there are 38,000; automobiles were 19,000 and now they number 54,000; public automobiles which were 1,500 are now 7,000; there were only 100 motor launches and now there are 1,600.

There is no doubt that whatever Italy has suffered through the war, the standard of living of her people has gone up refreshingly.

FLOUR MILLS.

Ancient and Modern

(H. F. SHORTIS)

Certainly no country in the world is more prolific in stories, traditions and legends, than is Ireland—and Newfoundland is by no means backward in this respect. In my young days, we had no daily newspapers published in this country, and very few weeklies. Communications with the outside world were very irregular, and very few, except the better-off class, subscribed to a foreign newspaper. The Irish people, or at least a few of them, subscribed to such papers as the Dublin Morning Freeman, Cork Examiner and a few others, while another few received the Boston Pilot or some other popular American paper. These papers contained choice literature upon various subjects, such as the affairs in Ireland, the movements of the armies during the American Civil War, excerpts from pastoral letters of some great ecclesiastics, etc. All these papers were authoritative contributions of the most famous writers and most distinguished scholars. Unfortunately the writers of the present day are too much given to sensationalism. As somebody has said—that is precisely the trouble with editorial pages of many newspapers and magazines of the present day. These writers read a highly colored account of a crime, a riot, a fire, a railway collision, a prison escape or some other news item; and forthwith set down word and deed to the printers, not that well-thought-out and reasoned opinions of the occurrence—not a statement which logically fits into or coincides with theories previously propounded by themselves—and apparently representing their settled convictions, but a mere series of shadowy impressions, the fleeting notions of the moment, the haphazard views inspired by the reporter's graphic story of meagre facts eked out with a superabundance of fanciful fiction. As a result of this fashion of writing successive issues of the same paper or periodical, not infrequently, furnish unnumbered instances of the most flagrant inconsistency; the editorial of to-day absolutely contradicting an equally ponderous and important one of last week, and judgements authoritatively pronounced in one number being masterfully reversed in the next.

As I said before, the old folks in my early days selected nothing but the choicest literature, and while they were waiting for the arrival of the mails once every three weeks or so, waited on one of the vessels of our mercantile marine arrived with a supply, they invariably devoted their spare time during the long winter nights to reading aloud some beautiful fascinating story or calling up some reminiscences of the past. They generally took turns in reading, and as I look back they were indeed happy times. The large open grate, well filled with North Sydney coal, the great birch and hickory, and the happy smoking seat, had an impression that can never be effaced. It is by calling up these happy days, and the interesting and instructive conversations of our forefathers that has induced me to write the present article on the "Flour Mills both Ancient and Modern"—more particularly as we are about to have one erected in Newfoundland in the near future.

His Excellency the Governor has promised it in his speech, and the Government are ready to assist the promoters in every reasonable way to make this industry a success. No wonder that the people are delighted, for it is not Four that makes the Staff of Life. It is the very essence of good government and political economy to encourage Home Industries, and more especially an industry that produces an actual necessity which every person requires and cannot do without. I could write a long story about the history of Flour Milling, which may justly claim to be the longest continued existence of any industry in the world. Its origin dates back uncounted centuries, beyond the reach of written or pictured records, for grain was unquestionably used for human food in prehistoric times, and wherever grain was so used then likewise was the germ of Flour Milling. Wheat was a gift of the Gods among the Egyptians and Greeks, and among the Chinese wheat was a grant from Heaven.

It is unnecessary for me to give a description of the primitive ways in which wheat was milled by pounding for thousands of years, then crushing by crude stones until Roller Mills were evolved and everything performed by machinery. What I wish to tell my readers is the names of the men who were famous, and were the first to erect mills in America. I recently came across a list of these men of which I will now give, but what struck me most was that here in Newfoundland we can claim the very first Flour Mill on this Continent. The old records always tell us that Grist Mills—that were used in the grinding of all kinds of grain.

In the instructions given to Governor John Guy before he left Bristol in 1610, was the request to erect a Grist Mill for the use of the colony. Not much is stated about this mill, but in the records of Governor John Mason in 1620, we have the interesting fact that the belligerent West Countrymen, who resented the assumption of authority on the part of the Crown by its Royal Charter, had attempted to destroy the property of the Company, and damage to the extent of £40 is mentioned as having been committed to the company's mill by incendiaries.

AMERICAN MILLS.

The first mill owner known in the United States was Van Rensselaers, one of the Dutch settlers around the New Amsterdam, before the British took charge, and was called New York. The mill was situated on the Hudson River, up towards Albany. The first Millwright came from Holland in 1681; with two small mill stones, which cost 39 florins in Holland money, or equal to $10. In the course of the next year or two a water mill was erected at this place, and in 1688 it was in charge of Barent Koeymans, who had been engaged for that purpose in Holland, with a salary of 30 guilders per year.

The Mill near Boston or the New England States was erected by John Winthrop, after a town meeting had been held at New London, in November, 1650. The inhabitants all promised to build the dam, and perform the heavy work in erecting the Mill. In case there was a flood in the river, or heavy ice, or any accident stopping the Mill, the inhabitants agreed (or were possibly impressed) to repair the damage gratuitously. It was also agreed at the meeting that no other Mill should be set up to grind grain within the limits of the town, so long as Mr. Winthrop or his men maintained the Mill in condition to grind the grain.

Nicholas Easton and his two sons erected the first Wind Mill for grinding grain in Rhode Island, in 1663. The boys directed the management of the Mill till 1675, when it was blown down. Nicholas Easton was a very important man, and became the Governor of the Colony. In all probability, he must have been a relative of Peter Easton, who became equally famous in Newfoundland for other work besides milling.

star, and of the same height. It was supported by eight arches, resting on thick columns about 10 feet high, standing on a foundation about 5 ft. deep. The top of the Mill revolved, so that the sails would face the wind. This Mill long afterwards received a great deal of undeserved fame through being credited by unlearned antiquaries to the Norsemen. There was no doubt of its origin, as Arnold mentions it several times in his manuscript as "my stone Wind-Mill."

"Let antiquaries say what they will. It was nothing but an old stone mill."

The first great mill in Pennsylvania was built by John Printz, the Governor of New Sweden in 1633. It was a fine mill which ground both fine and coarse flour, and was running early and late. William Penn erected a mill in 1682, with Richard Townsend in charge.

General Sir William Pepperell was a miller, and the greatest of pre-revolutionary soldiers. His mill was erected in Maine, and he appears to have made a fortune at the work, and became the greatest mill owner of the North East, as well as merchant prince, and retired, probably the first millionaire of America. It was he who captured Louisburg. It was he who, from the French, assisted in a small manner by ear own gallant Governor, Sir David Kirke, at Ferryland, who captured Quebec at the same time. Now I will bring my readers back to

NEWFOUNDLAND.
In the year 1849 there was a great deal of interest taken in agriculture in this country, and the growing of wheat was encouraged by His Excellency the Governor and his Council at that time. I may here mention that the hardy and industrious pioneer, the late Mr. William Coughlan who, for many years conveyed His Majesty's mails round Conception Bay in all weathers, father of Mr. John Coughlan, the present equally reliable careful courier, and chip of the old block, often told me that he raised wheat and barley of a very superior quality, on his farm, over 90 years ago, and was highly commended by the Governor and Council of that day.

We have it on record that John Mann and Thomas Ridley, merchants of St. John's, agreed to erect a grist mill, if they were adequately supported by the general public. This mill was erected on the Bay of St. George's, near the present location of the Bay of St. George's, and was in charge of a Scotchman named Cockburn. He charged a fixed price for grinding wheat, corn, oats, etc., for each stone of 14 lbs. The merchants and independent citizens of the town had shares in the concern. Two old friends of mine, told me that many a time they carried their bag of wheat to the Old Mill to be ground, and people from Carbonar, Bay Roberts, Spinnaker's Bay and other settlements did the same. In fact the whole history of the Old Mill was often discussed in my presence when I was young, and I can remember when the building was in existence, but not working. It was a good industry for several years, but when Cockburn died, the enterprise was not followed up, and I think the Mill was torn down. The large mill-stones could be seen for many years near the railway track, and probably are there yet.

Conductor Lee should know. Mr. Allick Harvey erected a Flour Mill in St. John's, in connection with his Biscuit Bakery, almost 40 years ago, but what it was destroyed by fire he never rebuilt it.

Where is the Automobile Going?

AN EXPERT'S FORECAST OF IM-PROVEMENTS IN THE NEXT 25 YEARS.

By LESLIE V. SPENCER, M.E.
Where is the automobile going?
What sort of motor vehicles will
the drivers of the future operate?

At the rate of development maintained during the last 25 years, the motorist of 1950 will laugh heartily at our finest gasoline creations of to-day, just as we cast an amused eye upon the horseless carriages of 1900, with their funny dashboards, their chuggy engines underneath, and their short wheel base. For undoubtedly the forces that have developed the motor-car to its present degree of perfection will continue their influence.

The quality and price of fuel, for example, will play an important part,
for gasoline transportation units always must take the fuel problem into consideration. Then, the demand for power along with small bulk and low price must be reckoned with.
Comfort, dependability, utility—these also are controlling factors.

Each year sees a greater tendency toward making cars easier to drive and simpler to handle. Beginning with the self-starter some years ago, development along lines of simpler operation has been marked, until today cars are very easy to handle, even by the frailest woman driver. Steering gears have been refined in every particular, gears have been studied closely with the idea of bringing the shifting down to the least arduous degree possible. Pedal actions and accelerator mechanisms have been arranged so that brute strength is not essential to efficient handling. All these factors have tended to bring motor-car operation within reach of an ever-increasing number of persons.

Yet there is still much to be done along these lines; for, after all, with most cars, it is still necessary to shift gears around to change from one speed to another. Undoubtedly the day is not far off when there will be none of the manual gear lever manipulation almost universal in gasoline cars to-day. Some form of automatic or semi-automatic change of speed operation is in the offing. It will not be a tacked-on mechanism to be through the motions required at present, but it will be an integral part of whatever type of gearing is used.

Looking a little further into the future, undoubtedly we shall laugh whenever we inspect cars with any sort of intermediate system of gears at all. The gasoline engine of the years to come will run so smoothly and have such a nearly continuous flow of power that such a thing as drive through gears will be unnecessary.

Steam cars to-day do not need gears because the steam engine develops a steady power flow at any speed, whereas the power of a gasoline engine is intermittent. As gasoline engines have developed, however, they have approached nearer and nearer to the constant torque of the steam engine, and it is logical to expect this development to continue.

This will mean an entirely new satisfaction in driving. It will mean that you will simply start your engine, move a connecting lever while the clutch pedal is depressed, let in the clutch and proceed, governing the car's speed simply by the accelerator and the judicious manipulation of the clutch pedal.

There will be no shifting of gears back and forth, for there will be no gears to shift. The drive will be direct from the engine to the rear axle, just as a great many racing cars are built even now.

Already we have hints of changes in gearsets. One prominent make of motor-car is one with a gearset that effects changes of speed between driving and driven shafts without meshing of the gears. This means less shifting trouble since one of the chief difficulties in shifting gears without grinding is that teeth of one gear actually must slide into engagement with those of another.

In the new gear mechanism referred to, an ingenious shifting of keys is effected, the shaft thus picking up the desired gear, which is never out of engagement with its mating gear.
The motions of gearshifting are gone through with just as with any other gearset, but the resulting movement of the parts is not the same. This interesting development is, without doubt, the forerunner of a new order of things in the transfer of the power from engine to rear wheels.

The entry of non-transmission vehicles into the field may be along with multi-cylinder engines such as we have not yet seen. One way of bringing about greater motor flexibility is to increase the number of cylinders.
Although so far we have not gone beyond 12 cylinders in commercial cars, it is not at all improbable that the gasoline engine of 1950 may have 24 or 48 little cylinders so arranged that the power impulses come with a frequency that will be the next thing to continuous flow.

In that future day when there are no gearsets at all, cars naturally will be much lighter and simpler. Simplification means increased efficiency and dependability. The simpler the mechanism, the cheaper it is to manufacture, and the less the public has to pay for it.

Also, when you reduce the number of parts, with consequent reduction in weight, you make a car cheaper to run. Less weight means less power required to operate the machine, and hence less fuel cost. In it, therefore, too much to say that we are almost on the threshold of the era of cheaper car operation as well as cheaper cars? Even if nothing is done save to cut out gear mechanisms, this era is assured.

Another factor that has its influence on reduction of weight is the constant progress in metallurgy.
Metals used to-day in car construction are far in advance of what they were a few years ago. The Ford car, for example, would not be possible at the price nor the weight if the present vanadium steel alloys were not used most extensively. Alloys with aluminum, many of which have been perfected within the last few years, mean lightness with real strength, a most desirable combination.

We are certainly nowhere near the ultimate in the development of combinations of every big concern employing metals constantly are trying to come nearer to the ideal type of metal alloy for and given purpose.
Perhaps in no industry is this activity
more pronounced than in the field of car building.

The cost of gasoline is going to force the development of engines which will efficiently use heavier oils that can be purchased for less money. Fuel oils that cost from five to seven cents a gallon are not adaptable now for motor-car use, but the days ahead will undoubtedly force the development of power plants that will run on such cheap fuels.

One of two things soon must happen if internal-combustion engines are to keep other types from crowding them out as the means of motor car propulsion. Either present-day gasoline must come down radically in price, which seems highly improbable, or cheaper oils must be brought into use. As the number of cars increases, competition and public insistence will force engineers and inventors to develop ways and means for cheaper car operation.

Think what it would mean to the automobile public if every gallon of oil brought from the ground could be used in nearly its crude state in the operation of cars! Perhaps going all the way back to the oilwell is too big a step, but at least the type of oil now used by ships and for similar purposes ought to come eventually into motor-car use—a step forward that means almost unbelievable advance.

But when the day comes that we have direct-drive cars propelled by heavy-oil engines, then we shall have gone as far as we can along the internal-combustion-engine path. With the rapid strides electricity is taking, scientists and engineers predict a day when we shall have wireless power transmission for automobiles.
The air will be filled with tremendous electrical energy from power stations, perhaps municipally operated. Each user of such power will have some sort of collector device, and he will be licensed and charged so much a month, say, depending upon what amount of electric energy his intake meter indicates he has drawn from the ether.

The big factor will have its giant collector of power; each automobile will have, instead of an engine as we know it, a collecting device in proportion to the size of the vehicle.
Then from this collecting arrangement the power will enter an electric motor to drive the car.

Looking still further into the future,
one well can imagine the day of the combined airplane and road vehicle.
Obviously, for short runs such a machine could be operated on its wheels,
but once out of the city, or other congested area, it would stretch its wings and take to the air for long-distance hops. All one has to do to realize that such development is possible is to think back a hundred years. Do you suppose the wizards of 1824 dared risk their necks by predicting any one of the mechanical marvels we think commonplace to-day?

But coming back to the near future, I think we can safely say that the open car, as we know it to-day, will be discarded. Every car built probably will have some form of convertible body, making it a simple matter to open it or close it, depending upon the weather. Disappearing windows, doors, and side panels to convert the body already are on the way.

The demand for cheap, quick transportation probably is going to mean the building of vehicles that are a cross between the motorcycle and the automobile—perhaps little three-wheelers with light, smooth-running engines. Such cars will be most economical to buy and to run, and very easy to manipulate in traffic.
They will be little one-seaters—or two-seaters at the most—perhaps with inclosed bodies to make them independent of weather. They are a needed utility, and they are undoubtedly right ahead.

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon at 7:30 p.m. in the presence of Mayor Mott, Aldermen Downes, Collier, Ryan, and the various officials. After the usual preliminaries, the following matters were discussed. A communication was read from the Inspector General, in which he stated that no objection to erection of a bridge by Mr. H. Y. Mott, Barnes, had been received. It was ordered that permit be issued accordingly.

A petition was tabled from the residents of Franklin Ave. with regard to the conditions in that locality. This was referred to the City Engineer for consideration.

Mr. James Murdoch, Cockpit Road, presented the Board of his petition for proportion of cost according to frontage if water and sewerage be extended to this locality. As the cost of this road would be considerable, the Council is unable to undertake same at the present time. It was therefore decided that the matter be left over for consideration.

The placing of a concrete curb and sidewalk was taken up by the estimates for the work on Monkstown Road, from Corner of Catherine to Mullock Street. It was ordered to be proceeded with; the residents of this section having undertaken to pay their proportion of cost for improvement.

Permit to give the Imperial Tacco Company to make repairs to the building. Contract for painting of house numbers and street signs was awarded to J. J. Duffy.

PLANS. The following plans were passed, subject to the approval of the City Engineer, at whose office the necessary building permits may be obtained.

William—J. A. Cranham, Penny Road; C. A. Hall, Bates St.

Ernest—J. Wiseman, Carter's St.; F. Taylor, Beaumont Street; extension and alterations to premises, Bowring Bros., Water St.

Following yesterday's storm considerable damage was done to the fence surrounding the Sanitary Station. It was ordered that tenders be called for the immediate erection of a new fence.

The Medical Officer of Health reported ten new cases of Scarlatina and three of Typhoid in the city during the past week.

Following the notice given by Councillor Ryan, at a recent meeting, he presented before the Board a Resolution to amend the schedule of fees for attending to the carcasses of animals. It was agreed that present fees be reduced to $2.00 per head.

During the past week a number of cases have been engaged in building a dam at Windsor Lake, and the City Engineer hopes to have the work completed with as little delay as possible. Complaint was made of the condition of drains, Hamilton Avenue. It was ordered that the Sanitary Department be notified to immediately attend the same.

Following the reading of reports of the City Engineer and other departmental heads, passing of accounts and other matters of requisitions, the meeting adjourned.

Another Tremendous Programme at the Nickel

"THE SLEEP WALKER" AND "THE FOURTH MUSKETEER" TONIGHT.

A tremendous big double bill is to be presented at the Nickel. The first is "The Sleep Walker," a play by Johnnie Walker and Constance.

The story of "The Sleep Walker" is a thrillingly dramatic story of a woman who suddenly falls into a vortex of intrigue, controlled by her own habit of sleeping.

The fact that it was written by Aubrey Stauffer, former writer and manager, is of itself a proof of its possession of artistic quality. Wells Hastings wrote the scenario while Edward Le Saint acted. The supporting players are excellent.

Everybody has heard of "The Three Musketeers," but Johnnie Walker and Dumas one better and launches his "The Fourth Musketeer," in which production he will be seen at the Theatre to-night.

"The Fourth Musketeer" was written by H. C. Wither, one of the foremost writers of humor in America. The story is rich in romance and drama. Johnnie appears as a noble and ambitious prizefighter who has a great love in his heart for a girl.

Here Percy plays the leading role in "The Fourth Musketeer," which has been conceded to be the best production ever turned out by F.B.O.
