CHAPTER II

Claire had stood motionless during the whole of the scene, which was the most dramatic she had ever witnessed. She stood motionless still, being, as she felt, desirous of concealing her presence. But presently she was somewhat startled by seeing something moving at her feet. It was nothing more terrible than the poor little fox terrier, creeping up to her for protection and consolation.

She stopped, as gently and noiselessly as possible, and picked it up in her arms, where it nestled closely, still trembling, and pressing its soft head against her warm throat.

Cautiously as she had bent down, the sharp eyes of the young man had seen some movement. He looked up, and, as he saw her standing in the half light—a vision of loveliness and grace, and dignity—his brown eyes opened to their fullest extent, and he held his pipe rigidly suspended away from his lips. Astonishment held him there.

Their eyes met, and the color began slowly to rise to the ivory of her face. Would he speak—come toward her? He did neither. Lowering his eyes slowly, he rose and stretched himself, with an exaggerated air of ease, as if he wished to convey to her the impression that he had not seen her. Then he put on his hat, yawned slowly and moved away.

Claire drew a long breath. If she had had any doubts about it before, the light was now dispelled, and she knew for certain that the man was a gentleman. Nothing could have been better done than his affection of not having seen her. It was the perfection of delicacy.

She waited for a few minutes, feeling relieved, and—must it be admitted?—vaguely disappointed, by his departure. Then, with the puppy still in her arms, she went quickly to the house.

She gave the dog to a groom, and told him to look it up, and that she would see it in the morning, and then she went into the drawing-room, where Mrs. Lexton awoke from her slumber, was half-nervously awaiting her.

"I fell asleep, dear—I'm so sorry," she said.

"But I'm very glad," said Claire. "It is the very best thing you could have done."

CHAPTER III

In her surprise Claire started slightly, and a faint color came into her face. The young man regarded her gravely, and inclined his head.

Claire saw by the light of the lamp that he was good-looking if not actually handsome; the dark eyes looked from under level brows; there was a slight wave to the short hair; the mouth was firm, and looked rather pugnacious, and the square chin carried on the impression. In short, strength spoke from the face as distinctly as it proclaimed itself in the figure.

Claire noticed, also, a certain air of pride which belonged to face and manner. For instance, though the inclination of the head was respectful enough, there was nothing approaching the servile in it, but a kind of restraint which seemed to intimate that the young man considered himself to be in the presence of an equal.

All this Claire took in, just as a camera takes in a view, in an instant, and as she stood, waiting for him to speak.

"Miss Sartoris?" he said.

And the voice, though much gentler than that in which he had spoken to Mr. Mordaunt Sapley, was grave and not without dignity.

"I have to apologize for disturbing you at so late an hour, Miss Sartoris," he said, "but I found this ornament, in the little wood or spinney over yonder, and, guessing that it must belong to you or some lady staying at the house, I thought it best to bring it here at once. The owner would naturally be anxious about it."

"Thank you; I am very much obliged to you," said Claire. "It belongs to me; I must have dropped it in the wood."

While they were at their tea, a footman entered.

"A gentleman wishes to know if he can see you, miss?" he said.

"A gentleman? What is his name?"

"He did not give it, miss. He said you would not know it. He apologized for coming so late, but said it was important business, and that he would not detain you for more than a minute. He is in the library."

"Very well," said Claire.

She poured out another cup of tea for Mrs. Lexton; then rose, and with a glance at her hair, and that little touch which the least vain of women seem bound to bestow upon it on such occasions, went into the library.

The principal actor in the melodrama of the wood was standing under the candelabra, and on the table in front of him lay her diamond spray.

He did not say "I saw you there," but he took up the spray, and looked at it thoughtfully.

"They are diamonds, and of great value, I suppose," he said, as he handed it to her, and his dark eyes sought hers.

Claire took the ornament, and glanced at it indifferently.

"Yes, they are diamonds. And I suppose it is of value."

"Then I'm very glad I found it," he said. "But you'll forgive me—must it not have been very insecurely fastened for you to have dropped it without knowing it?"

"There is only the long hairpin to which it is attached," said Claire. "Will you not sit down?" she added.

He declined, with a slight movement of his hand.

"I will not detain you," he said. "I was only going to say that it would be as well if you were to fasten it more securely for the future. Some man as poor, but a little more dishonest, may pick it up next time, and then—"

He smiled.

Claire colored, but smiled, too.

"I am afraid one is very careless about such things, she said, "and deserves to lose them; but I didn't make the thing, and—she looked at it—'I'm sure I don't know how to fasten it more securely."

"Permit me," he said, and held out his hand.

He examined the long double pin.

"Nothing could be easier," he said. "You have only to fix a couple of small screws or nuts on the ends of these pins when you've placed the ornament in your hair."

"That would be a great deal of trouble," said Claire.

"Yes," he admitted; "almost as much trouble as looking for it when it is lost. But, I beg your pardon, I am presuming to offer you advice which I'm afraid is not very valuable."

Claire's eloquent lips parted with a smile.

"I don't think it is," she said. "No one could possibly fasten screws on this thing when it was once in the hair."

He laughed, and it was a very pleasant little laugh, as frank as his eyes.

"I might have known it was presuming," he said. "It was the old business of 'fools rush in where angels feared to tread.' My only excuse is that I meant well."

He took a step toward the door as he spoke.

"No excuse is necessary," said Claire. "It was very kind of you to make the suggestion; and I am grateful to you, both for it and the restoration of my spray. Will you tell me to whom I owe my thanks?" she added, with a certain timidity which made her voice sound graver than the occasion required.

He stopped and looked at her steadily.

"My name is Gerald Wayne," he said.

"I have to offer you an apology for trespassing," he went on. "I was on the way this evening to the village, and I was tempted to stray off the footpath into the wood. I am aware that in these parts wanton trespass approaches a capital offense; but I hope you'll forgive me."

Claire smiled.

The wife: "Does this new novel end happily?"

Henry: "It doesn't say; it only says they married."

Subscribers Impatient

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Some considerable time ago, I wrote some impressions of the policy of the Board of Trustees of the city for educational purposes. I expressed the opinion then that great impatience was being created amongst the people of the West End because of the failure of the Board to take prompt measures to remedy the educational defects of this portion of the city. Some little discussion was created at the time, but it has not led to anything definite along the lines so ardently desired by those who are interested in the educational advancement of St. John's West.

On the other hand, I see that an energetic effort is being made at the rapid reconstruction of the old Methodist College, situated in a section of the city which is better supplied with educational institutions than the other. I understand that the old Board of Governors of this institution is still functioning. Altogether, with hundreds of my fellow-citizens of this section of St. John's, I am puzzled over the obscurities of the situation. Did the undertakings given us during the drive mean anything at all? Why the persistent neglect of our interests, when the interests of others are being so promptly and so energetically served?

I understand that a couple of months ago the Board of Education for St. John's West wrote the Trustees of the fund recommending the purchase of a certain site for a school in this section. To-date, I am told, no response has been received from the Trustees, though it was agreed that the Trustees would act promptly on any such recommendation forwarded them by the Board.

The West End Board of Education has given a great deal of time and attention to this question of the best site for a new educational institution. They have gone into all aspects of the matter and are satisfied that their recommendation is in the general interest of this portion of the city. Surely, their decision should be accepted with that promptness and finality that was agreed upon when this matter was first under discussion.

Then too, I am told, some members of the Board of Trustees are disposed to try to force on the people of the West End for purposes certain projects that are neither of themselves nor of their location suited for educational work. This, surely, cannot be true. If anything is undertaken here it must be in the nature of absolutely new and thoroughly modern school buildings, well equipped for their special purpose and suitably located as to playgrounds and other accessories of school life. We have had to be content with makeshift schools long enough. We want the real thing and the best procurable in this line, now that our money has been pledged in amount sufficient for our realization of this ideal. The interests of our children will not be permitted to take second places for any other consideration whatever. If the College Board of Governors have demanded and obtained prompt and effective educational provision in the rebuilding of the Long's Hill institution, the population of St. John's West will accept nothing less for their own children.

The delay in action on the part of the Trustees in giving rumor a chance to get in work that will certainly play the mischief with their own scheme, if they don't substitute prompt and satisfactory action for the dilatoriness that has up to now marked their relation to educational problems in this portion of the city. A word to the wise should be quite sufficient.

Spectacular Drama at the Nickel Monday

THE GREAT LUBITSCH "KISS ME AGAIN."
"Kiss Me Again," the Ernest Lubitsch production that will give its premiere showing at the Nickel Theatre on Monday is the highly amusing story of a Parisian wife who left the guarded confines of marriage to seek romance, but soon found that she yearned again for the arms of her philandering husband—more desirable now that he was finding pleasures away from her.

Maria Prevost is cast as the restless, flirtatious and highly-strung Loulou who loses some of her aplomb when she discovers that her husband, played by Monte Blue, is quite pleased to give her up to another. That phase of the triangle bursts upon Loulou's vanity with all the peaceful efforts of a bomb, and leaves her prey to a thousand demons of jealousy, convinced that her husband has a paramour of his own. To help the situation, Gaston's manager suggests that the beautiful Chevalier's part be played by Clara Bow, in consolation enough for Loulou's absence. The result is a fast-moving story, funny in the extreme.

John Roche and Willard Louis complete the cast of "Kiss Me Again," which was produced by Warner Bros. from the story by Hans Kraly.

"The End of the World"

Having read the article in your paper entitled as above, I would like, if you will permit me, to give a short description of the Biblical teaching concerning the end of the world.

In the first place positively the Bible does not anywhere teach that the world—meaning the earth which God made—is going to be destroyed. On the contrary it states in no uncertain terms that "the earth abideth forever." Eccl. 1:2; and in the Book of Genesis we may read the following account, chap. 8: 21 and 22: "And the Lord said in His heart I will not again curse the ground anymore for man's sake, for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth, neither will I again smile and move everything living as I have done. "While the earth remaineth seed time and harvest and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease."

Here the prophet Moses records the words of Jehovah himself declaring that he would not again curse the ground anymore nor smite everything living, but that seed time and harvest, day and night, etc., should not cease. The whole trouble is due to the lack of understanding of the respective words used in this connection in the Bible. The second presence of Christ is to mark the end of the "world." Did the Master mean the earth when He replied to the Disciples question: "What shall be the sign of Thy coming (presence) and the end of the world?" If we look up the word that is translated "world" we find that it is from "Cosmos" which, everyone will agree, means order, social order of things, and systems under which we live—that is to say, Satan's organizations or kingdoms. Understanding the matter in this light puts a different complexion upon the whole subject of the "destruction of the world," and gives the Christian no cause for alarm but rather cause for rejoicing knowing that "deliverance draweth nigh." It simplifies the matter. All other references to destruction and so forth can be easily reconciled. The handy work of God will never be destroyed, rather it will become more "glorious." "The earth... is become as the Garden of Eden." "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."

So, sir, if we use the same reasoning in these matters as in forecasting the weather, and other affairs of daily concern, there would not be so much diversity of opinion and guessing, and people would have a clearer vision and a firmer faith in God's promises.

What Do Boys Think Of?

World-wide Test. An attempt to find out what the boys and young men of to-day are thinking is to be made during the next nine months by the Y.M.C.A. organizations of the world.

Three sets of questionnaires—one for boys between the ages of 12 and 14, another for youths between the ages of 14 and 18, and a third for those over 18 years of age—are being sent out to all Y.M.C.A.s all over the world.

They will be printed in twenty different languages. The replies, which are expected to total several millions, will be sent to Mr. Oliver McCowen, in Geneva, where they will be sorted and tabulated and the results prepared for presentation at the great Parliament of Youth, organized by the Y.M.C.A. to take place at Helsinki, Finland, 1st August.

The following are a few specimen questions: Boys Aged 12 to 14. What is the difference between a good home and a bad one? How do you show that you love your own country? Boy Aged 14 to 18. Who are the most important men in the world? Should you always do and think as older people tell you? Does the companionship of girls help you? Are there any races (of mankind) better than others? If so, in what order would you list them? In the programme of political parties, what is there of real interest to you? Boys Over 18. What is your opinion and experience of organized religion, churches, chapels, and so forth? Do you think industry in business could be organized to-day on a Christian basis? What has Christianity to say about the race problem? Are any races better than others? What steps should be taken to avoid class warfare? Do you think many people to-day have lost faith in political methods? Up-hill or down-hill, around the corners or on the level, you're safe when you have W.F.O.D. CHAINS on your car. Get them at Bowring's Hardware Department.—dec11.25

The Greatest Man, 1925

(With Apologies to the Shade of Pelicia Hemans)
"I hear thee speak of the greatest man in all the British Empire's span—The man who's supreme in our midst to-day.
Who is he, Mother? Tell me, pray—For my mind at so vast a question falls.
Is it the King, or the Prince of Wales? Is it Baldwin, Winston, or Balfour? Please, Mother, say, is it one of these?"
"Not they! Not they, my child!"
"Mother, Mother, who can it be?—The Earl of Oxford or D. L.G.? Rothermere, is it, or Beaverbrook? Or Jimmy Thomas, or A. J. Cook? Or the Church, the Stage, is he one of those?
The Bishop of London, or Owen Nares? Or is he the Navy's or Army's pride—Beatty or Haig of Bemersyde?"
"Not they! Not they, my child!"
"Oh! He must shine, then, Mother, I'm sure, In the realms of Art or Literature, Or in those of Science, Medicine, or Law—
Is his name Simon or Bernard Shaw? Is it Barrie or Epstein (Phyllis's name)? Or Galsworthy, Gye, or Arbuthnot Lane?
Is it Hardy, the weaver of Wessex spells, Or our one and only H. G. Wells?"
"Not they! Not they, my child!"
"He knows no rival, my simple boy, No others such splendid fame enjoy, Statesmen, artists, scientists?—Pooh! They're naught but kittle-kattle to shoe Compared with Him, Yee! His the crown, The Glory, the honour, the gods' re-nown,

HAD SUCCESSFUL SALE.

The Child Welfare Association conducted a successful sale of work in the Presbyterian Hall yesterday afternoon, and the proceeds, which amounted to a handsome sum, will be devoted to the very deserving purpose of caring for the children of the city. Lady Horwood declared the sale open about 3 o'clock, with a very interesting speech. She regretted the absence of Lady Alaridge, who in past years opened the sale, as she had always been a strong supporter and one who took a deep interest in Child Welfare. Lady Horwood hoped the sale would meet with the success which the unselfish efforts of the ladies deserved. The various stalls were attractively arrayed and they were well stocked with a wide variety of articles. From the opening hour there was a large number of visitors and good business was done, so that by 6 p.m. close up time, everything had been disposed of. The tea tables were also largely patronized and from this end alone the receipts were very gratifying. The Sale was equal to the best ever held and all concerned are to be heartily congratulated.

JOHN LACEY, 55, DIES IN HOSPITAL—RELATIVES UNKNOWN.

Rev. Canon C. R. Cumming is anxious to hear from anyone who may be able to give him information as to the relatives of John Lacey, 55, who died recently in the City hospital. So far as can be learned, he has no connections in this city, and his relatives, if any, must reside in Newfoundland, from whence Lacey came to Sydney years ago.

Lacey had been employed as fireman and janitor at the Quirk Building, Whitney Pier. He was one of those men who are well known to a large circle of friends, and yet of whom but little is known personally.

While chatting with friends, on Saturday night, November 23, he was taken suddenly ill, and had to be removed to the hospital where he passed away on December 2. He was laid at rest on Thursday at Hardwood Hill, Rev. Canon Cumming officiating.—Sydney Record.

"Seven Chances" is Keaton's Best

YOU'RE TAKING NO CHANCES IN SEEING STAR'S LATEST FILM.

Buster Keaton has done it again! The frozen-faced comedian has hit the mark square in the bull's eye with his latest Metro-Goldwyn comedy, "Seven Chances," which opened yesterday at the Nickel Theatre. If this is not the funniest comedy of the year, then this reviewer's funny bone is not working. "Seven Chances," which is a film version of the Belasco stage success of several years ago, tells the story of a young man about Wall Street whose code in life is of such a generous nature that he gives away the funds of his partner and himself for the sake of sweet charity, and everything seems about to crash.

Just then his uncle leaves him a legacy of $7,000,000, with the only proviso that he be married by seven o'clock that same evening. He rushes to the home of his best girl, and asks her to marry him so that he can get the fortune. She refuses him on such ground, so he is left to find some one who will marry him.

Here the picture becomes a run-away, and the audience is left gasping for breath and holding its sore jaws. Needless to say, the "one" girl finally marries Buster in time for him to get the $7,000,000.

Concert Broadcasted From Station 8WMC

Wesley Church Lecture Hall last night was the scene of a very enjoyable concert which was broadcasted from Station 8WMC. The concert programme was a splendid one, the performers, all of whom are well known to concert-goers, were in great form and each item was well received. The following programme was rendered:

Selection—M. G. Band.
Vocal Solo—Miss Marion Coyle.
Violin—Miss Theresa Power.
Trio—Messrs. Cranford, Snow and Skirving.
Piano Solo—Mr. Gordon Christian.
L.R. Solo—Miss Ruth Calvert.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Bert Colton.

Vocal Solo—Miss Anderson.
Solo—Mr. Wardell.
Selection—M. G. Band.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Wardell.
Orchestra—Happy Hooligans.
There every item was so well rendered and so well received by the audience and radio fans it would be difficult to make any special mention, but those who were present think only just to say how especially enjoyable were the orchestra selection and the happy band of hooligans who were dressed in fancy costumes with blackened faces. It was gratifying to receive the full benefit of an attraction. The programme as broadcasted was heard distinctly by every ear, and many were the messages received. Rev. J. G. Joyce acted chairman, and at the conclusion he thanked the different performers, the M. G. Band who had kept the appointment for the concert, and particularly Gordon Christian, not for his presence but for his help on the radio project. Rev. Mr. Joyce also announced before the close that messages had been received from Dr. Parg of Catalina, and Mr. Max Parg of St. John's, stating that the programme was coming through splendidly and was highly appreciated. Last night's concert was given to defray expenses incurred by improvements to wireless apparatus at Station 8WMC, and met with a fair success. A number of ladies who sold candy during the evening realized a goodly sum.

Chances to Cure Cancer Good in Earlier Stages

DR. JOSEPH COLT BLOODGOOD SAYS FEAR DEVELOPS AT LATE STAGE WHEN FEAR ONLY MAKES LIFE UNCOMFORTABLE—NATURE ALWAYS GIVES HER WARNING—MOST PREVALENT IN SKIN, MOUTH, BREAST.

(Special to the Toronto Star) BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 26.—The necessity of getting medical attention in the early stages of cancer, was emphasized today by Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, the international specialist on cancer, who delivered a lecture in Convocation Hall, Toronto.

"Left alone, uninformed, ignorant, the average individual," said Dr. Bloodgood, "waits until the late stage of cancer. During this waiting period, which is usually painless, the chances of the cancer becoming hopeless are fifty per cent., and the chances of a cure, if not hopeless, less than 20 per cent."

Chances of Cure.
"The people who have received correct information and have been influenced to act quickly after the first warning, often come under observation before cancer has developed, and in this group, cancer is prevented. In the other cases cancer is in its earliest stages, 97 per cent., and hopeless in less than three per cent. Instead of 50 per cent. in the late stage, the chances of a cure are more than 67 per cent. in the early stage of cancer instead of less than ten in the late stage."

"With the rarest exceptions, every individual will be warned in time, but the warnings of early cancer do not differ from the warnings of local conditions that are not cancer, but may later be cancer, or which may never develop into cancer. No individual so warned should wait. An immediate examination after these first warnings by a member of the medical profession will either protect you from cancer or give you the best assurance of a cure if it is early cancer."

Should Fear Early.
"The uninformed and ignorant develop fear in the late stage of cancer, when fear only makes life more uncomfortable. Educating the public allows fear to creep in with the first warning and if this leads to immediate examination, fear becomes a protective instinct."

"The average human adult seems to have little or no instinct which leads to the prevention or the early recognition of disease. Nature always gives her warnings, but the uneducated and uninformed adult is ignorant of the language of disease. Only when these warnings become insistent by their repetition or distressing by their pain, or only when they interfere with important functions, does this type of individual seek the help of the medical profession."

"Unfortunately human efficiency is greater in war and least in peace. The doctor does his best when the patient is critically ill, and his worst when the patient is well. If the same efforts by doctor and patient were made in the beginning of the disease as are made in the end, many diseases would be prevented, and the number of cures in others greatly increased. This is true of cancer."

Three Types of Research.
"There are three types of research. One is the search for the unknown, for example, the cause, the prevention and the cure of cancer. The second is the study for the better education of the medical profession, for the development of the medical sciences, and the improvement of hospitals, and health departments. The third is an educational movement which will influence the people to seek the advice of the medical profession in time."

"Just now the education of the public so that they can reap the benefit of the preventive serums and measures of the better educated doctor and the better hospital, has not kept pace with the two former educational movements. In fact, it has lagged behind. It needs money and the support of the public until they realize its influence and reap its benefits."

Should Remove Lump.
"What are the warnings which nature employs in the beginning of cancer, or things that are or may be cancer?"

"First, there is a lump which the woman feels in her breast, or a lump that one feels anywhere. No one needs any education or training to feel a lump. But everyone needs to know that some lumps are dangerous and only one trained in medicine can tell the dangerous lump. The dangerous lump should be removed at once or it will carry you to the grave. If every woman who felt a lump in her breast to-day reported for examination tomorrow, in 60 per cent. of the cases, after a careful examination, she would be told: "This lump is only part of a lumpy breast. It is nothing serious. There is no indication for any operation or treatment." In 40 per cent. the lump will be definite and an immediate, but not dangerous, operation would be indicated at once. The chances would be that in 50 per cent. the lump would not be cancer, and the breast would be saved. If the lump proved to be suspicious of cancer or definite cancer, the breast could not be saved, but the life of the patient would be protected from death from cancer in almost 70 per cent. of the cases. When women wait until the lump becomes more definite for weeks or months, and then seek an examination, the chances are that an operation will have to be done in 88 cases out of every 100. Cancer will be found in 80 instead of 50 per cent., and the chances of a cure will fall from 70 to less than 10 per cent."

Develops in Sore.
"In the skin and on the mucous membrane of the mouth cancer never develops in a healthy spot. There is always something there first which every individual will see or feel. On the skin it is a mole, a wart, or a scaly area, or an unhealed sore, or a scaly area which one picks and makes bleed. Some of the moles, warts and nodules may have been there since birth, others have appeared since. They are exactly like lumps in the breast or elsewhere and like mushrooms. Only the expert can distinguish and properly remove the dangerous kind. Dirt is also a factor in cancer of the skin."

"As in the skin, so in the mucous membrane of the mouth, the irritation of tobacco and ragged, dirty teeth produces an irritation of the mucous membrane which at first is not cancer. It may be a white patch (leucoplakia) or a definite burn, or a wart, or a thickening of the mucous membrane, or a red area, or a painful area, a sore spot. It does not make any difference. When one feels a sore spot in the mouth, or sees a patch of the lining of the mouth which looks different from normal, then is the time to act. Stop tobacco in all forms and have the teeth cleaned and smoothed. All smokers, chewers and snuffers should be more than particular about their teeth."

THE PASSING HOUR

MORNING DRESS.
A man was showing his collection of East Africa trophies to a girl friend. Among them was a fine buffalo head.

"I had a deuce of a time with that buffalo," said the man. "Never had such a morning in my life. I shot him in my pajamas."

"Heavens!" gasped the girl. "How did it get into them?"

IMPLICATIONS.
A new member of the Golf Club, trying to be offensive to another man, went up to him and said: "Are you the caddy master?"

"No," was the reply, "but I saw him just now and he said he didn't want any caddies."

A Thing of Beauty and a Lovely Gift

Unquestionably nothing in the Compact field has ever approached in beautiful design the new Richard Hudnut Compacts. This season many ladies are selecting these Compacts as gifts for particular friends. Ladies know that these things are fashionable and highly appreciated. The Three Flowers toilet soap, packed three cakes to the box makes a lovely gift also, and it must be admitted that Three Flowers Bath Crystals in the beautiful Crystalline Bottle, is a gift to charm the most fastidious. Before selecting your gifts, it would be wise to look over the Three Flowers things; they are high class—attractively packaged—very popular and inexpensive, and these are the principal points to be remembered when selecting gifts.—dec11.11 have not included football playing under the heading of hazardous occupations, but they admit that with the growth of professional game statistics will have to be kept, and in a few years they will show whether such a classification will be justifiable.

It is the consensus among close followers of football that, while the casualty list this year has increased, it actually is shorter than in previous years when compared with the number of players now taking part in the game. While none could quote figures on the number engaged, it is obvious that the injuries are comparatively low, that the open game has had a slight nullifying effect on the chances of serious injury, and that no great alarm need be felt over the sudden statement that twenty persons were killed playing football this season.

Most significant is that fact that the average of those who met death is 19 years. The youngest was 14, and the oldest, a professional player, 27. Thus it is seen that the younger players were in the majority. Only two college men were killed, which makes the inference even plainer that systematic football, with trainers, coaches and medical advisers, makes for a diminution of injuries.

The New York public schools, with thousands of boys playing the gridiron game, did not have one serious injury this year, nor did it have a single death that in any way could be attributed to gridiron activities. Of course, accidents will happen. In spite of the best supervision in the world, mishaps occur, and the football field cannot be an exception, all of which makes the New York City record all the more noteworthy.

"Ten Scars Make a Man"

A PATHE SERIAL—FAMOUS PHOTO-PLAY STARTS AT MAJESTIC TO-NIGHT.

In addition to the regular feature and the concert programme of the musical artists Hope and Menton at the Majestic Theatre to-night, the management have arranged to commence a serial story under the title "Ten Scars Make a Man."

"Ten Scars Make a Man" is a photograph that will charm, thrill, and entertain both the grown-ups and the kiddies. It is a marvelous story of the West—the West of the plainsman, of hard-riding cowboys, of two-gun bad men, of vast stretches of wild and primitive country, of trackless desert, of rearing, plunging bronchos, of countless herds of cattle.

Here is drama! Drawn with bold, powerful strokes like a Remington painting. Tinged with the warm, sweet coloring of romance. Vivid with the thrills of rarest mystery.

Allene Ray plays the role of an heiress—beautiful as a western dawn, charming as the fragrance of a rose. Supporting her as the hero is Jack Mower, big, handsome, dashing—truly an ideal player for the part. The rest of the cast are all favorites.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Red Grange trod a golden path in his spectacular week-end visit to New York.

The former hero of college gridirons, now starring as a professional with the Chicago Bears, left this afternoon for Washington to fulfil a playing engagement there to-morrow, after realizing close to $400,000 here within the short space of 24 hours on his famous name.

The climax of Grange's financial operations, now as sensational as any of his performances on the football field, was the signing of a motion picture contract to-day, under which he was immediately handed a cheque for $300,000, representing a flat guarantee for his first appearance on the screen.

In addition to this Grange was paid $36,000 for participating in the 19 to 7 victory scored by his Bears over the New York Giants yesterday at the Polo Grounds, before a record crowd of 75,000, and received $40,000 more from metropolitan business concerns for obtaining his endorsement of sweaters, shoes, tobacco and souven-

Leaves For Washington To Fulfill Playing Engagement.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Red Grange trod a golden path in his spectacular week-end visit to New York.

The former hero of college gridirons, now starring as a professional with the Chicago Bears, left this afternoon for Washington to fulfil a playing engagement there to-morrow, after realizing close to $400,000 here within the short space of 24 hours on his famous name.

The climax of Grange's financial operations, now as sensational as any of his performances on the football field, was the signing of a motion picture contract to-day, under which he was immediately handed a cheque for $300,000, representing a flat guarantee for his first appearance on the screen.

In addition to this Grange was paid $36,000 for participating in the 19 to 7 victory scored by his Bears over the New York Giants yesterday at the Polo Grounds, before a record crowd of 75,000, and received $40,000 more from metropolitan business concerns for obtaining his endorsement of sweaters, shoes, tobacco and souven-

Enthusiastic Reception to His Grace Archbishop Roche

Thousands of Catholic Citizens Unite in Impressive Parade Through the City—Address Presented in the Cathedral and Papal Blessing Given.

The official reception given in honor of the return of His Grace Archbishop Roche from his Ad Limina visit to Rome was participated in last night by practically all the people of the Archdiocese. The parade of Catholic Societies and citizens was perhaps the largest ever seen in the city and the mile and a half route of march was practically lined with people. Three bands participated in the parade. The homes of Catholic citizens were illuminated and at various points there were displays of stage powder. Holy Cross Schools building was illuminated and the bell rang continuously as the parade passed by. At the Deanery the altar boys were assembled each carrying a light whilst across the street in several places were coloured electric lights and a big sign of welcome. A large electric sign of welcome was also displayed on the front of the Cathedral, whilst from the towers their joy bells pealed forth.

The parade began from the College Campus and was in charge of Major J. J. O'Grady. At 8 o'clock, headed by the C.C.C. Band the parade made up of Societies walking mostly four deep, citizens and a long string of motor cars in which were the priests and Christian Brothers, moved off along LeMarchant Road, thence to Patrick Street and along Water Street to the National War Memorial, where a halt was made and a wreath laid on the Memorial. The bearers of the wreath were Col. G. T. Cart, representing the Army and Eng. Com. R. Howley, R.N., representing the Navy. They were accompanied by Col. C. O'N. Conroy of the C.C.C. and Major O'Grady. After laying the tribute the parade moved on to the Cochrane Street and proceeded to the Cathedral grounds by way of Military Road. The parade reached the Cathedral grounds at 9:30 and the ranks opening, His Grace the Archbishop with the clergy who drove in motor cars, passed through. On entering the sacred edifice, they were met by a guard of honor of the K.O.C.

4th degree Howley Assembly and conducted to the Sanctuary. The officers of the Societies followed and took up positions inside the rails.

The executive of the citizens committee awaited outside the Sanctuary until His Grace ascended the throne when they passed through the guard of honor which with drawn swords was lined up at the foot of the High Altar. Mr. W. R. Howley as Chairman then read the following address:

ADDRESS.

To His Grace the Most Reverend F. P. Roche, Archbishop of St. John's. May it please Your Grace:

The Catholic Laity of Saint John's wish to record their feelings of joy on this auspicious occasion when Your Grace returns to them from your visit ad limina and your reception by His Holiness the Pope, which by a happy coincidence have taken place during the Holy Year of Jubilee. The Eternal City with its centuries upon centuries of Imperial and Pontifical traditions must have left innumerable memories that will continually recall to your mind in years to come the time you have spent there, but we feel that none the less the rejoicing Your Grace witnesses now and the whole-hearted welcome extended to you upon your return has its counterpart in your own feelings of satisfaction at being once more in your own native country and amidst the familiar scenes and occupations of your Archepiscopal See.

We feel that this is a most fitting occasion for us to assure Your Grace of our unflinching loyalty to you as the Head of the Catholic Church in Newfoundland and at this fresh starting point in Your Grace's High Career to promise our continual support and co-operation in the various works for the advancement of religion and education and the material well-being of the Archdiocese which have benefited by Your Grace's fostering care in the past.

In concluding these brief but heartfelt words of welcome we hope and pray that for many years to come Your Grace may be spared to preside over the Archdiocese and we assure you that the devotion and loyalty of the Catholic Laity will always attend you in the discharge of the duties and responsibilities of the high office in the Church which Your Grace so worthily fills.

Signed on behalf of the Catholic Laity of Saint John's.

W. R. HOWLEY, Chairman.
F. J. MORRIS, Vice-Chairman.
J. V. O'DEA, Treasurer.
J. C. PIPPY, Secretary.

December 10th, 1925.

The Address, a most beautifully illuminated manuscript, was executed by Sister Mary Josephine of the Presentation Convent. After the reading of the address, Miss Stella Murphy, dressed in white came forward and presented a handsome bouquet. His Grace then ascended the Pulpit and spoke as follows:—

ARCHBISHOP'S REPLY.

The first sentiment to which I feel impelled to give expression this evening is that of the joy and happiness it affords me to be once more amongst our faithful Catholic people of Newfoundland, and to have this early opportunity of addressing this large and representative gathering of the Catholic laity in the Cathedral Church of the Archdiocese. Of the many sacred scenes and places that it has been my privilege to visit and to witness during my absence, nothing thrilled me with deeper emotion than the sound of the job bells and the sight of the lofty towers of our Cathedral standing out over the City as I entered the harbor to-day. They spoke to me, as they always do, and as perforce they always must speak to all who pass through the rugged portals of our harbor, of the Catholic faith of Newfoundland, of the faith of our people in ages past which raised up this structure, of the faith of our people to-day, of which this Cathedral is the embodiment and the symbol. Of that faith and Catholicity the enthusiastic and cordial reception accorded me on landing this evening is another eloquent and forcible expression.

Two months ago I went to the Eternal City bearing a message of loyalty and devotion from our people to the Holy See. To-day I return as the Ambassador, as it were, for the time being, of the Holy Father, bearing from him a message of blessing to this portion of his flock. It was, therefore, meet and become-ing, and fitting that such an event should be made the occasion of a public declaration of our Catholic faith and our loyalty to the Holy See. The address to which I have had the pleasure of listening interprets very accurately and eloquently the deep and abiding Catholic instincts of our people, and in its expressions of loyalty to the Church, is fully in keeping with the best traditions of our Catholic past. I wish to express my deep appreciation to the sentiments it contains, as well as of the many evidences of welcome that have greeted me to-day on my home coming. It is little to say that I am deeply touched and profoundly moved and I trust I may be allowed to add that in resuming the arduous, responsible, and oftentimes trying duties of my office, I have gained new strength, new encouragement, new inspiration from this tribute of loyalty and devotion from the Catholic people of St. John's.

I had intended describing this evening in some detail experiences of my visit to the Eternal City but owing to the lateness of the hour and the fact that the day has been strenuous, I shall confine my remarks to an account of my official call at the Vatican for the purpose of seeing the Holy Father. The Vatican, the stately palace of the pontiffs, from which the Pope rules, with gentle and benign sway, the millions of his Catholic subjects, is the great objective of every Christian, every Catholic visitor to the Eternal City. No Catholic who goes to Rome regards his visit as being complete unless he has knelt at the feet of the Holy Father and received the blessing of the Father of Christendom.

And if this is true of all, it is particularly true of the Bishops of the Church, whose main object in going to Rome is to have private audience with the Holy Father, to come into close personal contact with the Bishop of Bishops and the Pastor of Pastors, to kneel themselves at the feet of the Great White Shepherd of Christendom, who has charge alike of the sheep and the lambs of the flock of Christ.

I need not say that the outstanding feature of my visit to the Eternal City, the event which will long remain amongst my most cherished recollections, was my audience with the Holy Father, a privilege accorded me some few days after my arrival in Rome.

The formal and official visit to the Pope is necessarily surrounded with much pomp and elaborate ceremonial. Everything in and around the Vatican Palace, with its spacious apartments of regal splendour and magnificence, lends itself to ceremonial pomp and stately ceremony to that dignity and formality which are always associated with visits to persons of high and exalted rank. Outside the Pontifical apartments, in the various halls and ante-chambers and rooms through which visitors are ushered to the Papal presence, are stationed the Papal Guard, their high Swiss Guard, as they are known, with their picturesque mediaeval military dress; the lay chamberlains of the Papal household, with their varied and brilliant uniforms; the ecclesiastics and dignitaries of the Papal Court in their robes of royal purple, in personal attendance on the Holy Father. All the settings and surroundings are of regal pomp and magnificence, and eminently in keeping with the dignity of the Pontiff King, to whom so many hundreds of millions throughout the world owe, and loyally and lovingly give, unswerving allegiance and homage.

In marked and striking contrast, however, with the pomp and magnificence displayed outside the Pontifical apartments, is the simplicity within, and the simple, unaffected cordiality of the reception given by the Holy Father, particularly to the Bishops who came to give him an account of their spiritual charge. Everything in and around the Papal apartments breathes that simplicity which is always the attribute of true dignity and true greatness. Seated at his desk, robed in the chaste white caspock of his office, the reception accorded by the Holy Father is not the cold and formal reception of a Monarch, though Monarch indeed he is, proudly receiving the homage of his subjects, but rather the warm and cordial reception of a father for his children, breathing paternal tenderness, paternal solicitude, and paternal affection. Despite the many and grave responsibilities that press upon the shoulders of the Father of Christendom, by virtue of his world-wide care, the Holy Father nevertheless has a keen interest in, and a personal care for the smallest and most remote portion of his world-wide charge. The Holy Father was graciously pleased to manifest the keenest interest in all that pertained to this portion of the Master's Vineyard, to our little Church in Newfoundland. The number of our Catholic people, the number of our priests, ecclesiastics and Religious, the number of our parishes and missions, the territorial extent of the Archdiocese, our Cathedral and other Church buildings, our schools, and our educational system, the Religious Orders teaching in our schools, the civic status of our people, the system and method of our Civil Government, the relations between Church and State, and the freedom enjoyed by the Church, in one word, the social, civil, moral, and religious conditions of the people, all these were the subjects upon which the Holy Father made the most minute inquiries in the course of my audience with him. To me, my dearly beloved brethren, it was a source of unalloyed happiness and of genuine pride, to be able to speak to the Holy Father with unfeigned sincerity of the great faith of our Catholic people, of their high standards of moral living, of their high sense of civic duties and responsibilities of citizenship of their loyalty to their pastors and the Church, and their devotion to the Holy See.

Reverently and humbly I laid at the feet of the Holy Father the fealty and the homage, the loyalty and the love of our people, and without diffidence I assured the Holy Father that amongst the millions of his Catholic subjects, none were more loyal to the Church, none more devoted to his own august person, than his faithful Catholic children of Newfoundland. The Holy Father was graciously pleased to receive this tribute of our people's loyalty and love, and in a cordial, and affectionate conclusion to the interview, charged me solemnly to convey his fatherly Pontifical Blessing to our Church, to the faithful people, the devoted Religious, and the zealous Clergy of the Archdiocese of St. John's.

I pray that this gracious message of blessing from the Father of Christendom, from his throne at the centre of the Catholic world, may strengthen us more and more in the spirit of faith, that it may inspire us to live up to the lessons of virtue and morality which our Church is ever teaching us, that it may increase our devotion to those high ideals of faith and conduct for which at all times the Catholic Church stands. I hope that this message of blessing direct from the heart of the Father of Christendom to the heart of our people may keep us all more and more proud of our membership in that one universal Church, whose branches are everywhere to be found in the world, and whose wonderful unity is symbolized in the person of the Supreme Pontiff and Head of the Church.

If I were to be asked this evening what it was that most forcibly impressed me and made the most indelible and lasting impress upon my mind, amongst the many impressions of my visit to Rome, I should say that it was the loving lesson of the Catholicity and unity of the great Church to which it is our privilege to belong. The Catholicity of the Church was strikingly demonstrated by the number of pilgrims from every part of the world who assembled in Rome for the Year of Jubilee. During all the past year they came in their thousands and their tens of thousands, at the call of the Holy Father, with all the spirit, with all the enthusiasm and faith of the pilgrims of old, from all over the world. They came, from Asia and Africa in the East, from the America and Canada in the West, from Australia and New Zealand in the South, from England and Ireland in the North. From every country of Europe, they came, not for amusement, recreation or sight-seeing, but drawn by the irresistible, magnetic force of the centre of the Catholic world.

Differing in nationality, differing in race, differing in customs and in language, differing in everything that can differentiate one people or one from another, yet they were all one in their Catholic faith, one in their acceptance of the same Sacraments and the same Sacrifice, one in their submission to the spiritual jurisdiction of the successor of St. Peter and the Vicar of Jesus Christ. Nowhere, save in Rome, the centre of Catholic Christendom, will there be thus strikingly exemplified the marvellous unity and world-wide Catholicity of the Catholic Church. Nothing but the divine unifying power of a divine Church could bring together people from the ends of the earth, from every nation, and from every clime under heaven, and in spite of national characteristics and racial differences, unite them together in the solid unity of the one Catholic faith. This is the great moral of the Year of Jubilee, and the practical lesson it teaches us is this, and with this let me conclude, our duty at all times to appreciate the privilege, and to recognize the responsibilities of our membership in the one, holy, Catholic Church of Christ.

Concluding his address the Archbishop said that the Holy Father had charged him to convey to the priests and people of the Archdiocese his Paternal Blessing and he would proceed to perform this injunction at the conclusion of his discourse. After the Archbishop descended, and again took his place on the throne, Rev. P. J. Kennedy went in the pulpit and read the Pontifical Delegation giving His Grace authority to impart the Papal Blessing after which the Blessing was given. The immense congregation kneeling in reverence to receive it.

Talking the Ocean Floors

is an undertaking that calls for titanically labor. Now the men who pursue this trade may have the aid of light, a thing more precious to them than the gold, because it means safety. Recently a larger and better light has been developed, enabling work at greater depths than ever before. Three of these lamps will illuminate a circle of about 25 feet, enough to speed any kind of work beneath the ocean's floor. Estimates of how much gold and gems may lie in Davy's locker run into fabulous figures. A fairly careful compilation of known wrecks in the last two centuries, and a reasonable estimate of their treasure, foots up some billion and a half dollars. Sunken treasure is the special incentive of undersea illumination. But the moving pictures provided the original stimulus. About nine years ago J. E. Williamson, producer of films, discovered that the mercury vapor light proved an excellent medium for photography under the sea. Further experiments developed a flexible tube leading from a vessel on the surface, with an air chamber at the bottom, where a photographer might work at ease as the submarine drama unfolded. Just before his chamber hung a kind of candelabrum with a cluster of lights, radiating their rays over a space of about 35 feet. The study of submarine life also has much to gain from undersea illumination. The American Museum of Natural History in New York is now fitting up its new 'Ocean Life', which will be the principal display of the kind in this country, and one of the best in the world. An important and original feature will be a typical exhibit of coral and sea growth found in the quiet waters of the Bahamas. Photographs, moving pictures, and water-color sketches of this life and background recently were obtained by an expedition under the direction of Dr. R. W. Miner of the Museum. J. E. Williamson, general manager of the Submarine Film Corporation, put their entire apparatus at the disposal of the expedition. When Dr. Miner ventured down the tube into the photographic chamber a wondrous spectacle greeted his eyes. The living coral, extending in all directions, had the general aspect of a weird forest in which the trees were of marble wrought into a thousand fantastic shapes. Sunlight pouring down through branches of this mystical, illusory forest, made the coral gleam in a thousand colors, from delicate pinks near at hand to dark blue and black in the midst of all this beauty were myriads of ocean fish, big fish and little, swimming about hither-skeiter, thrown into panic by such strange intrusion. Meanwhile, divers were at work, breaking off branches of the coral, which soon will be placed in the Hall of Ocean Life. Another suggestion arising from this development of undersea photography is the possibility of lowering a specially constructed camera, almost to any depth, surrounded by a battery of electric lights, thus taking photographs by the hour of whatever passes before the lens. With an equipment of this kind, lowered a mile or two, we might get an entirely new conception of what goes on in the depths of the sea. Even the great depths in the Pacific, five miles and more, possibly could be explored by means of electric torch and camera, manipulated from the surface. Would we find those fabulous monsters which have been reported sailing about with a headlight between their eyes? The depths of the ocean soon must yield their mysteries.

mythology, guarded Heaven's portals. Dogs figure prominently in Irish and Scandinavian legends; one of the best-known was Sam, a hound "huge of limb and for a follower equal to an able man." Dogs, the author shows, have enjoyed the close friendship of kings as well as commoners. Everyone remembers, for example, King Edward's wire-haired terrier Caesar. Charles I. inherited the Stuart love of dogs. He had a great personal affection for Prince Rupert's white poodle, Boye. "He never sups and dines," writes an old chronicler, "but he continually feeds him. And what think you, even with the sides of capons and other such-like christian morsels. It is thought that the King will make him Sergeant Major General Boye. But truly the King's affection to him is so extraordinary that some at Court envy him." Charles II's name is permanently linked with a breed of dog, the black and tan toy spaniel, which he first introduced to this country. Oliver Cromwell had a dog named Coffin Nail! James I. had for his constant companion a hound called Jewell. James V. of Scotland's favourite dog, Basche, used to sleep on his master's bed, and was fed on delicacies from the royal table, until he had to be banished, for "his crimes were such that they came to James's ears. He worried sheep, fought and killed other dogs, and chased five foals through the brushwood till, in their terror, they jumped into a bog and were drowned." During her long imprisonment, Mary Queen of Scots had the companionship of a Skye terrier, of which a pathetic story is told. The animal seemed to have a premonition of his mistress's approaching end; he crept out as she passed to the scaffold, and, as she laid her head on the block, whined piteously and snuggled into the folds of her black gown. Afterwards he gradually pined away. Queen Victoria, the author records, was devoted to dogs, especially to Dash, a little spaniel; another favourite was Sharp, a collie. At one time King George had a favourite dog, Happy; while the Prince of Wales's fondness for dogs is well-known. His special pet is a Cairn terrier, which is seldom away from his side when he is at St. James's Palace. Every dog-lover should make a point of reading this book.

interests of the majority of the people. Anti-dericalism is applied not only to Turkish but to foreign institutions, and this policy is offensive rather than defensive in its nature, since, generally speaking, religious instruction in schools is not merely non-compulsory but forbidden. In addition to the abolition of the Caliphate, to the suppression of the Sheik-ul-Islam, and to the closing of many of the religious institutions, the religious Courts have been done away with and their work is now carried on by the ordinary tribunals. For the moment the Religious Law exists, but a scheme has been framed for its replacement by a modern civil code which will govern even such questions as marriage, divorce, and inheritance, which have always been sacred in Turkey.

Education In Newfoundland

"Just as surely as the wages of sin is death, so the fruits of ignorance in the body politic is damnation."

DR. W. W. BLACKKALL,
 Supt. of C. of E. Schools.

The Annual Report on Education in Newfoundland is a book, the contents of which, it may safely be said, are perused by few, apart from the teachers and those officials directly concerned, and yet it deals with a most important movement in the community. Further it is the only means whereby a grasp of the operating system may be obtained and conclusions drawn as to the merits or demerits of that system.

To scan its pages casually is likely to give the impression that nothing is to be gleaned therefrom by the ordinary layman owing to the mass of complicated statistics by which one is immediately confronted, but the compiler has summarized these tables and have lucidly explained their inner meaning, so that there is no reason why any reader may not make himself familiar with the situation.

In the general review given by the Deputy Minister, while there are certain improvements recorded, there are also certain features pointed out that are anything but satisfactory. In all classes but one the Report for 1923-24 shows an increase in the number of pupils over that of 1922-23, and, what is more important still, an increase in the number of those over 14 years of age, which would seem to indicate that the community is realizing the importance of higher education. Against this, however, is the fact that in the grand total number of attendances there is a decrease of 74,476. The actual percentage of attendances is 59.41. This figure in different years may vary according to circumstances—the absence or illness of a teacher, an epidemic, general unemployment and so forth and it may be hasty to conclude that it is mainly due to indifference. At the same time the attendance seems lower than circumstances would warrant, and the fact that in certain settlements methods devised by teachers to improve it have been successful would make it appear conclusive that it is not unavoidable.

Compulsory attendance may be difficult of enforcement in certain settlements, but in others it is quite feasible and would seem to be the only and the fair remedy. The grant for Education is $339,851, which shows $14.45 per child, and therefore in those places where the attendance is irregular, the money expended is proportionately greater than it is elsewhere. Consequently from an economical point of view at least compulsory attendance would be justifiable, and from the opinions expressed by practically all the Superintendents, it is eminently desirable.

A feature generally deplored is the inferior status of a considerable number of the teachers. The Superintendent of the Church of England Schools states that out of his 480 teachers, 162 hold Third Grade Certificates and 99 have no grade. He describes this as lamentable. He would not be far wrong if he attributed to this state of affairs the indifference to education and the lack of appreciation of its value which in certain places are only too evident. If the leader lacks sufficient enthusiasm to improve his or her own position, it is unlikely that any great amount of zeal will flow from that source. It is however gratifying to find many of the teachers pressing on in their pursuit of knowledge, gaining a reputation for themselves and adding materially to the standing of the institutions of which they are in charge.

The following comparative summary of the cost per head (through the Government and otherwise) of education would indicate that Newfoundland has still some distance to travel before she can be said to be doing her utmost to further the movement.

Country	Amount per cap.
Prince Edward Isld.	$ 5.04
Nova Scotia	7.00
New Brunswick	6.86
Alberta	20.47
Manitoba	23.45
British Columbia	14.95
Saskatchewan	20.62
Newfoundland	3.62

If education spells progress, it is evident that it is necessary for us to get wheels under the vehicle, and additional energy to move them. While it may be argued that the revenue of the country does not warrant any further expenditure in this direction, may it not be possible to divert a portion of the wealth, which is pouring in another direction, into this channel?

Is there food for thought, for example, in the following reply by a correspondent in the Observer to Sir W. Johnson-Hicks's suggestion that there should be an economy in education?

"Public expenditure on education amounts to £31,257,000. The net bill for drink, that is to say, after deduction of the proportion which goes to the Treasury in taxation, was £121,164,189 in 1914. Now it is £172,592,833. Though the country has grown poorer, the drink trade takes £51,000,000 more out of the public than it did before the war.

"If Ministers have reached the point where they have to ask, 'Can we afford to spend so much on education, which ranks with defence as a vital public service?' the public is forced willy-nilly to consider whether it can afford to spend more than double that sum on alcoholic refreshment.

"Put it in this way to any large work-class audience in the country, 'Retrenchment is called for. Where is the axe to fall first? On drink or on education?' There is not the smallest scruple of a doubt what the choice would be. Money spent on education comes back. Money spent on drink does not.

"The idea of curtailing the already inadequate facilities for self-improvement existing in England while, by common consent, a great and sustained effort of organized intelligence is wanted to pull British industry up to the level again is an idea straight out of a lunatic's head. Hardly less alarming would be the presumption that we can continue to pay £50,000,000 annually for alcohol above what we paid in the days of our prosperity.

"The children have good right not to be penalized further by the deprivation of knowledge and training. They are being made to pay no little part of this £50,000,000 waste already through parental alcoholism, disease, and poverty. The State pays its share, too, as bearing the cost of crime and disease attributable to alcohol. Industry and trade bear perhaps the heaviest share of all.

"Every industry, every shopkeeper would feel the advantage of this sum if it were converted from non-productive into reproductive expenditure, if it were annually available in the form of savings. A rich economy return might be reaped if only a fraction of this sum were free to be devoted each year to the provision of technical education. Cuts in education are cuts at life itself, at the means of life.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Dec. 10th.—Reading in "Judge" this day, do find the following:
 "Who steals my purse steals trash."
 —Shakespeare.

And he who steals a lady's purse steals:
 A hipstick.
 A powder puff.
 A nail file.
 Four coppers.
 A shopping list.
 A lead pencil. (Much chewed).
 A key.
 A ring.
 Some loose cigarettes.
 Three postage stamps. (Stuck together).
 A handkerchief.
 Three buttons.
 Three or four kinds of powder. (Spilled).

No news anywhere this day, search as I may, and so I about my business all day long, and do get through more work than is my wont when I am about seeing news.
 This night a great parade through the city in honor of His Grace Archbishop Roche, being lately returned from Rome. This, methinks, the largest parade I have ever seen, and for a time the whole town lit with great fire.

The weather turned colder at night and some snow, so seems as if we shall not have the dry Xmas that so many did confidently expect.

A drunk and disorderly was released.

An old offender named Fahey, who gave his residence as the Goulds, was charged with the larceny of one overcoat, one hat, vest, pair of gloves, one shirt and other articles, all to the value of $64.00, the property of J. Trahey, on December 10th. The defendant was also charged with the larceny of $10.00 from the person of John Ryan on the same date. The accused pleaded guilty to both charges, and was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labor. The defendant in this case had a previous conviction against him for larceny.

Two women, named O'Neill and Teene, who were arrested on Water Street by the police last night in an intoxicated condition, appeared before Judge Morris this morning, when they were charged by the Board of Liquor Control with a breach of Section 24, Sub-Section 3 of the Alcoholic Liquors Act. The evidence of one of the constables who assisted in the arrest was that the defendants were found in a drunken condition on Water Street, and that their language was vile. Upon conviction they were each fined $10.00 or in default 30 days' imprisonment. A second charge was made against the woman O'Neill of damaging the cab which conveyed them to the lock-up. For this a $5.00 fine was imposed.

A married woman of Cuddihy St., who was summoned at the instance of a 17-year-old girl and charged with slander, was convicted and fined $50.00. Mr. Hugh Garland appeared for the plaintiff.

A woman with her three children, who applied for shelter at the police station last night, will be looked after by Inspector Noseworthy, the Probation Officer, to-day.

Obituary

WILLIAM ALEXANDER MCKAY.

There passed peacefully on Monday last, the 7th instant, under very sad circumstances, William A. McKay, son of W. A. and Elfrida McKay, on the very threshold of manhood, at the early age of 20½ years. In March last he sprained his wrist while working at a motor car. At first there was no indication that anything serious would occur, but blood poisoning set in, and despite the best medical skill, nothing could be done to avert the inevitable.

Billy, as his friends were pleased to call him, who had been cut down in the very prime of life and in the midst of useful career, was a young man of fine presence and charming personality, which won for him the respect of all who knew him. He seemed to possess all those qualities of mind and heart in a man so that his memory will not soon be forgotten.

Billy was a piper in the Newfoundland Highlanders, and he was one of the brightest boys of that Company—one who by his bright and sunny disposition and his kind and thoughtful ways endeared himself to his comrades. It is a significant fact that whilst Billy entered the Newfoundland Highlanders about five years ago, his grandfather, John McKay of Harbor Grace, was one of the famous 42nd Highlanders, the Black Watch, 50 years ago, which rendered such a good account of themselves in India, Russia, Egypt, South Africa, Great War and almost every battlefield in which the British Army took part, and upheld the heroic and unconquerable spirit of the "boys in kilts led by their pipers" on many a hard fought field.

He has left to mourn their great loss father (W. A. McKay of Telegram Staff) mother, three brothers, Fred, manager of Parker & Monroe's Factory, Jack, twin brother, at R. J. MacDonald's Drug Store, and Bert of the Royal Stores; also four sisters, Mrs. H. P. Harvey, of Winthrop, Mass., U.S.A.; Mrs. George Stewart, Mrs. Austin Carter, and Mary, of this city.

The funeral took place on Wednesday and was one of the largest seen for some time, thus testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held by all classes. The beautiful casket was adorned by floral tributes from sincere friends. Interment was in the General Protestant Cemetery and Undertaker Bursell had charge of funeral arrangements.

The Deputy Mayor

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—It appears to be generally assumed that the Councillor polling the largest number of votes becomes ipso facto Deputy Mayor. I believe that used to be the practice but I would point out that, according to the City Charter of 1921 (Section 34) "There shall be a Deputy Mayor, who shall be elected by the Council from amongst its members at its first meeting after election. The Mayor shall have a vote for the election of Deputy Mayor." The office is therefore in the gift of the Council, not of the electorate.

Yours truly,
 X.
 Dec. 11, 1925.

Mrs. Julia Salter Earle wishes to heartily thank the twelve hundred and forty-four voters who so nobly responded to her appeal, and to assure them that the end is not yet.—dec11.11

A shipment of Eel Grass is being forwarded by the Newfoundland, consigned to the High Commissioner, at London. The last shipment sent forward was sold at £12 sterling per ton, and there was an unlimited demand for further shipments of the same quality.

New Machinery Works Satisfactorily

The new unit installed in the Telegram press, used for the first time yesterday gave the utmost satisfaction, but unfortunately trouble developed with the paper, owing to its electrical content, which was due to its highly galvanized condition.

Efficient Handling of Traffic

Much credit is due the committee in charge of last night's demonstration for the efficient manner in which the affair was handled. To the police who directed the traffic a special word of praise is due. The handling of the large number of cars assembled at Port Townsend was done in a manner satisfactory to all concerned, and it is a pleasure to record that not the slightest accident occurred.

Doctor Confirms Findings of Blood Pressure Remedy

EXTRACT OF LIVER FOUND TO REDUCE ARTERIAL HYPERTENSION.

TORONTO, Dec. 2. — (C.P.) — Six months of quiet but intensive work in the physiology laboratories of the University of Toronto, undertaken to test the use of extract of liver as a possible treatment for high blood pressure was reported here last night by Dr. W. J. Macdonald, of St. Catharines, Ont. Dr. Macdonald, whose investigations announced last May held the first promise of relief for sufferers from abnormally high blood pressure, spoke at a dinner tendered to him by the Academy of Medicine.

The experiments have confirmed the first findings entirely, he said, and both continued treatment of laboratory animals and a preliminary chemical analysis of the potent extracts indicate that the discovery is at the same time old and new. It is old in the sure and accepted foundation on which it is based, and new in the possibilities which it presents for a weapon more powerful than any known before with which to attack the prevalent ailment of high blood pressure, and the attendant complaint of hardening of the arteries. The facts as revealed by the investigation to date were summarized by Dr. Macdonald as follows:

"An extract of liver has been obtained which possesses the property of reducing to a certain extent arterial hypertension when there are no complications. This extraction contains neither protein nor peptone—but contains histamine in small quantities. It contains choline in relative large quantities. It is quite possible the effect produced by a proper combination of these two substances may be responsible for the lowering of pressures noted in both laboratory animals and clinical cases.

Unknown Substance.
It is more probable, however, because of the much greater effect produced by a given quantity of extract than can possibly be obtained by injection of even many times the quantity of histamine and choline contained in the said extract, the result is due to an unknown substance, or that this unknown substance may activate either the histamine or the choline or both.

"Intramuscular injection is much more efficacious than the intravenous. The extract is more effective in hypertension than in normal cases." Pointing out that much still remains unknown, the doctor said: "Whereas our method of assaying the extract in units is definite, we have as yet no method of determining the dosage in units for any given cases. Neither have we any method of determining our selection of cases for treatment."

In the meantime, sufferers are given the assurance that the corps of investigators is at work night and day to supply the data on which wide use may be based, and the resources and machinery which perfected insulin speedily stand ready to work on the liver extract.

Detailing his early experiments with the liver extract on rabbits, Dr. Macdonald told how of 28 animals injected, the effect on 21 of them was so violent that the blood pressure was lowered to zero, and the rabbits consequently died. This was owing to the fact that there was no clue as to the proper dose. Of the remaining animals, five displayed a long and decided fall in blood pressure, and in the case of two there was no effect. Similar, but more conclusive results, were obtained in the case of dogs and cats, which were studied by the score, and they are at present being used for all the investigations on animals.

Among the vital points which have been definitely settled is the fact that the lethal dose is definite and can be ascertained, and hence, that the preparation can be used with some safety. "The effect appears to be in direct proportion to the amount administered, and to the weight of the animal," Dr. Macdonald stated.

Proper Doses
Equally important is finding that proper doses can be given without deleterious effects, experimental animals were intentionally overdosed in order that effects might be betrayed which would injure the tissues, organs or body as a whole. Post-mortem examinations indicated that only such unfavorable effects were obtained, as could be prevented by the use of a reasonable dose. The ill results, if any, were much the same as when fatal doses of histamine, an older, but feeble depressor substance, were administered, and hence the workers knew what to watch for and what to prevent. Here again the beauty of liver preparations was evident from the fact that the ill effects of histamine, though slight, were minimized with liver extract, since a very much smaller quantity served the purpose.

Not satisfied with this, it was decided to treat animals with correct doses, but at frequent intervals, in order to reveal any unfavorable cumulative effect of small doses. Here again it was found that there were no detrimental results. Dr. Macdonald summarized this set of data as follows: "Both toxicity tests on laboratory animals and the effects of the extracts on the isolated heart have not revealed any unfavorable action which would contradict their repeated injection into man. Repeated injections at intervals of several days have not brought out any anaphylactic-like reactions."

Progress has been made also on the standardization of the product, since it would not be possible to prescribe doses unless there were a yardstick by which to measure the material. Success has been obtained in this direction by comparing the extracts with histamine, which is a standard laboratory product readily obtained in known concentration.

Chemists of the Connaught Laboratories who undertook to probe the constitution of the liver extracts soon found that both histamine and choline, another depressor, were present. Following this lead, Dr. Macdonald and his colleagues tried mixtures of these two substances, and, as was expected, a lowering of blood pressure was obtained. The liver extracts remained by far the most potent, however, and, more important, they caused a pronounced fall of long duration. Any previously known substance, including either choline or histamine, caused only a temporary drop, and therefore held little hope for a clinical purpose. This phase of the research shed light on the mechanism by which liver extract acts, and suggested that in it was some elusive but powerful mixture of choline and histamine, or else some hitherto unknown substance of a similar nature.

Growing Old

Some Secrets of Perpetual Youth—The Disillusions of Age—The Palace We Want and the Shed We Get.

By TERENCE TRAFERINE.
("Weekly Post" Special)
To everyone there comes a day when they realize with a sense of shock that they are growing old. Sometimes the occasion is a birthday; or when shaving a man notices he is growing bald; or a woman combing her hair sharply detects a silver streak, and with a pang she knows her fresh young beauty is passing. Dr. Karl Pearson recently said that a man reaches his highest development at the age of twenty-seven.

But against such a cruel verdict of the scientist it is comforting to dwell on the perennial youth of a Bernard Shaw or of other young "old men" we all know, like the gentleman over eighty who began learning Spanish in a class I once attended, because it was going to be useful to him in his business, as his firm was opening up in South America.

To most people it is not the fact that they are ageing which brings a pang. It is the disparity between their ambition or desire and their inadequate achievement. As a wise man once said: "The youth sets out to build a palace, and ends up by helping another fellow to put up a wooden shed." This contrast is not most poignantly felt by the average man who has failed to realize the rose-coloured dreams of his youth, but by those geniuses who feel that death will snatch them before they have uttered what they feel they must pass on to their fellows.

That was the tragedy of Keats, who worked three times as hard as an ordinary man to pass on something of his vision before his young life had ebbed away. He joined in a grim race with death, and left a fragmentary, but immortal, legacy of poetry. Victor Hugo, shortly before his death, in spite of his long life and immense output of work, said he had only expressed one-hundredth part of what was in him to write about life.

The Secret of Achievement.
Probably the truth is that most people who take life seriously expect too much of themselves. There are only 24 hours a day, and life offers so bewildering a choice and variety of human activity that people dissipate their energies over too big a field. There is a profound saying of Goethe: "By limitation the master reveals himself." This, probably, is the deepest secret of all truly great achievement. It is a lesson which is badly needed by the modern man in the modern world. Life for half the people is a gradual discovery of their powers, and for the other half a gradual realization of their limitations. Some people go down to the grave without learning either. Happy is the man who in his youth has discovered both his strength and his weakness. The trouble with a lot of young men and women to-day of the introspective type is that they are like swimmers shivering on the brink of life. They want to stay the passing years, but they are afraid to take the plunge into life until they have perfected their philosophy, until they are quite sure of themselves. But until they plunge they cannot be sure of anything. The only philosophy of life worth having is one that has been purchased by actual living. One gets a scrap here and a scrap there—the slowly accumulated results of a sincere heart and mind working on its experiences.

The Women of 45.

It is no good rebelling against time. The acceptance of the fact that we are growing old is the necessary preliminary to acquiring a satisfying philosophy of age. And involved in that acceptance is the need to live only in the present. This may seem paradoxical, but the fact of the matter is that those people who are unhappy because they are growing old are unhappy simply because some parts of them are living in the past. This is the plight of the pathetic woman of 45 who in her dress and manner is trying desperately hard to convince herself and other people that she is only 25. That is not keeping young. It is refusing to grow old. There is all the difference in the world. Possibly if she had lived fully and healthily like a girl of 25 when she was 25 she would now probably have no desire for her ridiculous pretence.

It is right the boy should live the life of a boy, and for a young man or woman to drink of the pleasures of youth. A tragedy is the man whom circumstances robbed of the joys of boyhood and the pleasures of youth. Instead of being old for his years he is of the type who has never grown up. St. Paul was after the same truth when he said "When I was a child I spoke as a child—but when I became a man I put away childish things." Or a modern psychologist, Dr. Hadfield, in his book, "Psychology and Morals," says: "The secret of perpetual youth is to grow old." This is to lose our life to gain it, to accept our age, to live in the present and to grow old graciously.

Tragedy of Unpainted Picture.
Then there were those people equally mistaken who are always living in the future. They create fantasies of what they are going to achieve. They are going to paint a great picture, but they never set brush to canvas; they are going to write a great poem, but they never set pen to paper. Perhaps it is because they know in their hearts the actual attempt would be such a sorry failure that they prefer the perfect dream to the imperfect experiment. They grow old and fret at age and circumstance, and they die with the picture unpainted, the poem unwritten, and the music unsung. They have forgotten that life offers no opportunity in the past nor in the future, but life can only be lived in the present day to day effort.

The men and women who have conquered age, who have redeemed the past, and who create the future, are those who have their wholesome reflections on the past and their stimulating dreams of the future, but who never forget that actual living is an affair of the fleeting moment and the eternal present.

Who Invented Radio?

Professor Henry J. Spenser, F.R.S., in a letter to Wireless, explains the pioneer work done by the late Professor David Edward Hughes, F.R.S., in the development of wireless.

"Hughes, using an interrupter and a small battery as the transmitter and a carbon microphone as a detector, succeeded in performing some very interesting experiments in wireless transmission and reception. He was, however, discouraged," states Wireless.

"It is a long story of intensive research in this fascinating field which led up to the triumph of successful aerial transmission in December, 1879, when, at the invitation of Hughes as a small party, including W. F. Preece, F.R.S., Sir William Crookes, F.R.S., Sir W. Robert Austin, F.R.S., Prof. W. Gryll Adams, F.R.S., and Mr. W. Groves attended at his residence in Portland Street, W., to see the results," writes Professor Spenser.

"This was followed by another demonstration on February 26, 1880, when the party included Mr. Spottiswoode, Pres. R. S., and the two Hon. Secretaries of the R. S.—Prof. Huxley and Sir George G. Stokes. They all saw the experiments upon aerial transmission, which were most successful, the results being heard upon

"Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value"

Average Monthly Nash Sales Increase Is a Full 82 p.c.

For the past 13 consecutive months, ending September 30, the average monthly Nash sales gain has been 82 p.c.

These are the plain facts of one of the most phenomenal sales successes known to the industry.

No good dealer who is to-day less than 100 p.c. satisfied with the line he handles can afford to overlook the pointed significance of such figures. And, mind you, this refers only to the tremendous nation-wide demand for Nash cars.

The new Ajax is another string to the Nash bow—and already sales and production of this unique motor car value is running well ahead of 100 cars per day.

The Nash Advanced Six Series for the upper crust of the popular-priced market; the Nash Special Six Series for the great middle market; and the Ajax Six for the far greater lower-priced field.

"The transmitter and receiver were in different rooms, about 60 ft. apart. At first the distinguished scientists seemed astonished at the results, but towards the close of three hours' experiments Prof. Stokes said that all the results could be explained by known electro-magnetic induction effects, and therefore he could not accept Hughes' view of actual aerial electric waves, unknown up to that time, but thought he had quite enough original matter to form a Paper on the subject to be read at the Royal Society.

"On the departure of the distinguished visitors Hughes became so upset and discouraged at his inability to convince Stokes of the truth of these aerial electrical waves that he declared nothing would induce him to read a Paper on the subject, and he never did. In fact, he felt so much wounded and annoyed that he was on the point of throwing a large pile of manuscripts relating to these discoveries on the fire when Mrs. Hughes rushed forward, and was just in time to rescue them.

"The profound Cambridge mathematician little knew how this one great unfortunate mistake in his brilliant life was going to retard the progress of a great discovery and invention for nearly two decades; for, although Hughes continued his work, he drifted into researches on magnetism and was content to sit and see others rediscover what he already knew without making a single claim to priority; but in it not sad to think of how much his golden silence cost the world?"

To Relieve Vagrant Children

MOSCOW, Russia, Nov. (C.P.)—Lunacharsky, the Russian Commissioner for Education, has appealed for subscriptions to relieve "hundreds of thousands of vagrant children, some degenerated into a state of semi-savagery, some horrying on idly, while others have had their wits sharpened and excited by collision with life that they have become dangerous enemies of society. He describes the problem as "the most ghastly one on the Soviet body."

Guilty or Not Guilty?

TWILIGHT SLEEP AS AN AID TO CRIME VERDICTS.

The fact that when under the influence of anaesthetics, patients sometimes talk, though unconscious, may lead to the most amazing step for many years in the administration of justice. Anaesthetists and legal authorities are closely watching certain experiments that have been and are being made in order to test whether it is possible to make criminals tell the truth by the action of drugs and to use as evidence the words of innocent though accused persons who have no other way of clearing themselves from grave charges.

Without Will Power
The technique and procedure involved are briefly as follows: Most people have now heard of "twilight sleep," the condition induced by the administration of the drugs scopolamine and morphia. When these anaesthetics are administered by injection the effect follows in gradual stages. The patient loses the power of the senses, hearing, sight, touch, smell. The will also can no longer function. But the centres in the brain which control the power of speech are not affected. Sense of hearing goes first, but as the effect of the drug begins to wear off this sense is the first to be recovered. If, therefore, the stages at which this happens can be artificially controlled and prolonged, it means that the individual under the anaesthetic can hear and speak, can be asked and can answer questions, though totally unable to control the replies by will.

The giving of answers to questions is controlled by the will. In a normal condition a man may choose whether he will tell the truth or lie in reply to what is asked. Under the effect of drugs such as those mentioned, however, he is totally unable to control his replies, though his memory can reply for him.

At a recent meeting of the Eastern Society of Anaesthetists of the United States one of the members of the society, Dr. R. E. House, gave a report on his use of what is technically called scopolamin-apomorphia amnesia in criminology. He vindicated his method as a humane and scientific alternative to the brutality of the "third degree," and then proceeded to give the results of his test, which included two acquittals of boys accused of grave crimes, who could not in any other way have proved their innocence.

"Notwithstanding what might be said to the contrary," said Dr. House, "I wish emphatically to state that with clinical doses there is no harm in the use of scopolamins. There are no dangerous after-effects. . . . When this technique of criminal analysis is clearly understood, the technician can prove the guilt or innocence of a suspected criminal."

A boy had been imprisoned for highway robbery with firearms because he could not prove his innocence at his trial. In Dallas County Jail Dr. House called for volunteers for an experiment from among those who maintained their innocence. This boy volunteered.

At his examination under the drug the local district attorney was present. The boy's story was absolutely corroborated by other facts in the district attorney's possession, which had till then not been suspected of having any bearing on the case. The boy was released.

Leading authorities in this country who have been consulted in the matter consider that Dr. House's claim as to the action of the drug can well be taken seriously. While it is doubtful whether in every case the results would be as clear as he claims, it may well be that in due course the method will receive experimental trial.

Notes for Women!
I have just received a new shipment of Lantic Brown Sugar. It is packed in drums which conserve its superior qualities. You will find it best for making Christmas cakes and for all cooking purposes. Before you buy brown sugar you will find it worth while to see Lantic Brown. In my opinion it is the best obtainable, but if you don't agree with me you are under no obligation to buy. A cupful of Lantic Brown melted in a cup of boiling water makes a splendid syrup for pancakes or puddings. 8 pounds of Lantic Brown (which costs only 56 cents), when dissolved in 8 cups of boiling water, is equal in strength but better in quality than a gallon of molasses. Try Lantic Brown instead of white sugar in your coffee. Don't fail to use Lantic icing on your Christmas Cakes. I sell it in one pound sealed packages. 'Twill improve them wonderfully. C. P. Uncle: I can't do that, dear. But why do you ask?

Information on the Reduction of Armaments

Disarmament is the big question of the immediate future. It will be the subject of local, national and international conferences for some years to come. For the guidance of those who will have to take part in reaching a solution of this problem the book by Mr. J. W. Wheeler-Bennett, Jun., honorary secretary of the Association for International Understanding, which has been published under the title of "Information on the Reduction of Armaments" is certain of wide appreciation. It shows what has been done, what is suggested, and what can be accomplished, and is certainly the best informed text book on the subject which has yet been issued, and will probably be the standard work for years to come. As its title implies, it is informative rather than discursive, and as most people believe in disarmament of some kind a book of facts is likely to prove of greater service than one which only discusses the theory. Mr. Wheeler-Bennett's book is strongly commended to all interested in disarmament.

Miami Citizens Sweep Off Mud

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 1.—Leaving behind a trail of mud and debris, Miami's flood which placed this famous winter resort under nearly two feet of water following a terrific rain-storm Sunday night, receded to-day.

The entire city got busy at once with brooms and water-hose and washed away the "muck."

The damage to Miami alone is expected to run into thousands. Lobbies of hotels and first floors of business houses were over-run with the high water and a careful check was underway to estimate the losses.

Hialeah, a suburb of race tracks and other sporting attractions, also suffered considerably from suspension of business.

The familiar sight yesterday when many of the tourist crowds mingled with natives on the streets of Miami in bathing-suits was missing to-day as the populace went back to the more sober business of trading in real estate.

Secret Service Work

The instalment of the Page Letters in the current issue of The World To-day give the history of the interception of the British Naval Intelligence of the Zimmermann despatch to Mexico which finally brought the United States into the war. The following correspondence tells the tale: London, February 24th, 1917. Secretary of State, Washington. In about three hours I shall send a telegram of great importance to the President and Secretary of State.—Page.

London, February 24th, 1917. Secretary of State, Washington. Confidential for the President and the Secretary of State.—Balfour has handed me the text of a cipher telegram from Zimmermann, German Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to the German Minister to Mexico, which was sent via Washington and relayed by Bernstorff on January 19th. You can probably obtain a copy of the text relayed by Bernstorff from the cable office in Washington. The first group is the number of the telegram, one hundred and thirty, and the second is thirteen thousand and forty-two, indicating the number of the code used. The last group but two is ninety-seven thousand five hundred and fifty-six, which is Zimmermann's signature. I shall send you by mail a copy of the cipher text and of the decode into German and meanwhile I give you the English translation as follows:

"We intend to begin on the first of February unrestricted submarine warfare. We shall endeavour in spite of this to keep the United States of America neutral. In the event of this not succeeding, we make Mexico a proposal of alliance on the following basis: make war together, make peace together, generous financial support and an understanding on our part that Mexico is to reconquer the lost territory in Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona. The settlement in detail is left to you. You will inform the President (that is, President Carranza of Mexico) of the above most secretly as soon as the outbreak of war with the United States of America is certain and add the suggestion that he should, on his own initiative, invite Japan to immediate adherence and at the same time mediate between Japan and ourselves. Please call the President's attention to the fact that the ruthless employment of our submarines now offers the prospect of compelling England in a few months to make peace.—Zimmermann."

The receipt of this information has so greatly exercised the British Government that they have lost no time in communicating it to me to transmit to you, in order that our Government may be able without delay to make such disposition as may be necessary in view of the threatened invasion of our territory.

The following paragraph is strictly confidential: Early in the war the British Government obtained possession of a copy of the German cipher code used in the above message and have made it their business to obtain copies of Bernstorff's cipher telegram to Mexico, amongst others, which are sent back to London and deciphered here. This accounts for there being able to decipher this telegram from the German Government to their representative in Mexico, and also for the delay from January 19th until now in their receiving the information. This system has hitherto been a jealously guarded secret and is only divulged now to you by the British Government in view of the extraordinary circumstances and their friendly feeling toward the United States. They earnestly request that you will keep the source of your information and the British Government's method of obtaining its profoundly secret, but they put no prohibition on the publication of Zimmermann's telegram itself.

The copies of this and other telegrams were not obtained in Washington but were bought in Mexico. I have thanked Balfour for the service his Government has rendered us and suggest that a private official message of thanks from our Government to him would be beneficial.

I am informed that this information has not yet been given to the Japanese Government, but I think it not unlikely that when it reaches them they may make a public statement on it in order to clear up their position regarding the United States, and prove their good faith to their allies.—Page.

The manner in which the British had acquired this message is disclosed in Page's telegram. An interesting additional fact, says The World To-day, is that this is not the only way in which the British obtained this priceless treasure. The German Government was so determined to make this Mexican Alliance that it did not depend upon a single route for transmitting the Zimmermann message to von Eckhardt. It dispatched it in several other ways. Not until the war was concluded did the Germans learn the truth: that the British for nearly four years had had continual access to their most confidential information. This German confidence in their Intelligence methods cost them dear. Relying upon the secrecy of their codes, they developed an amazing telegraphic loquacity in the course of the war. They were constantly filling the atmosphere with the most intimate news of their navy, army, and their diplomatic service, and all this information the British were quietly taking out of the ether and promptly deciphering. The result was that the British Government had an accurate information about everything German as the Germans themselves.—Review of Reviews.

Bird Value to Trees

"The service that birds perform in protecting woodland trees," writes Mr. E. H. Forbush, State Entomologist of Massachusetts, in Useful Birds and Their Protection, "is more nearly indispensable to man than any other benefit they confer on him. Were the natural enemies of forest insects annihilated, every tree in our woods would be threatened with destruction, and man would be powerless to prevent the calamity. "He might make shift to save some orchard or shade trees; he might find means to raise some garden crops; but the protection of all the trees in all the woods would be beyond his powers. Yet this herculean task ordinarily is accomplished as a matter of course by birds and other insectivorous creatures, without appreciable injury to his great woodland interests." The above is quoted by Bird Notes and News.

Coughs and Colds

Are dreaded by Mothers who do not know of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Limes and Turpentine.

What a weight of responsibility rests on the mother of the family during the cold weather-season. In every cough and cold she seems to hear the warning of serious developments. She dreads croup, bronchitis, pneumonia and consumption and realizes that these are the natural result of neglected colds.

But Dr. Chase has provided a prompt relief for coughs and colds and a preventive of more serious ailments of throat and lungs, in his Syrup of Limes and Turpentine.

This medicine is so well-known that only a reminder is necessary to most people to recall its effectiveness in relieving croup, bronchitis, asthma and all forms of throat and bronchial troubles.

GERALD S. DOYLE, Distributor.

Recovery

"There must be many days without a storm. And many peaceful nights, before this tree Can be itself again. The branches hang In order now; the leaves are very still— But the wind upturned and tore them yesterday. And all they held was poured into the rain. The tree is empty now as an old bell Suddenly swung. . . . The darkness gathered here. We filled with silent movement, of the shapes That never speak. Each bird that fluttered through Hung up an echoing wing-beat, like a leaf. The gentle winds that hourly wandered in Made hesitating music, never lost. Nor ever heard by any but the nights That folded round the days and darkened them— All sleeping till the tempest burst about. . . . The tree has not lamented what is gone. Time, and the open air, and the quiet Already work together with the wrens And noiseless, climbing spiders. They collect New treasure now, sufficient for a while."

Ex-Kaiser's Glitter

DECORATIONS AND UNIFORMS IN EXILE AT DOORN—TALK OF ENGLAND.

"The Kaiser was in glittering uniform. Decorations and medals gleamed on his breast. The Kaiserin was magnificently dressed. The staff were in uniform." In these terse sentences Mr. Alexander Carlisle told an Evening News representative how Wilhelm, monarch without a throne, is still his Imperial Majesty the Kaiser, holding court at Doorn.

Mr. Carlisle is the seventy-one-year-old friend of the ex-Kaiser, and brought back from a week-end visit to Doorn the impression that the ex-Kaiser's life there is "just like Potsdam!" "Dinner was a most stately affair," Mr. Carlisle said. "Even in the old Berlin days there was not more ceremony." "The Kaiser looked ever younger than when I last saw him in 1913—and that in spite of his white beard, which indeed becomes him well. "He talked with all his old enthusiasm. He still has his old dignity. "Speaking of England, he said: "Two of the visits I enjoyed most in bygone years were visits to Lord Rosebery and to Beaulieu Abbey. "I have always had friendly feelings towards England. I am attached to England by family ties." "Talking of England's future, he remarked: "I think her future is terribly insecure. Her financial burden would appear intolerable. She has to pay untold millions to the United States every year, whereas her Allies are not paying their debts to her."

Raising the Seam

CRICKET'S LATEST CONTROVERSY Quite a futter has been caused in Australian cricket circles since Malley raised the question of lifting the seam of the ball, says an Exchange Melbourne message.

The outcome will be a discussion to establish definitely against artificial aids likely to give advantage to a bowler. Bob Crockett, who has umpired the international games for thirty-two years, and is regarded as the greatest authority on Australian cricket, interviewed, said he could not understand what all the discussion was about. He had not seen one bowler lift a seam during the past fifteen years.

A Bishop's Three Remedies

"The world was still a tired, totering old world. To put it right he suggested that three things were needed: Comradeship, leadership, and strength. The comradeship must not be too big to exclude individualism, nor too small to exclude leadership with the nations; leadership must be sane, reasonable and something more than bookish. As to strength, the meaning of the word would be without spiritual force and power. The Bishop of Chelmsford.

Sir Oliver Lodge

BY FORETELLING THE FUTURE.

The extent and power of human foretelling has been considered fully known as yet, and it is unwise for the law to condemn people for attempting to forecast the future as if that were so manifestly impossible as to be ipso facto fraudulent," writes Sir Oliver Lodge in a letter to the Times.

"Admittedly, there are certain ridiculous superstitions—as if human destiny could be determined by the fall of playing-cards or by the position of planets—but the extent to which forecasting of the future can be achieved is a matter for scientific inquiry. There is nothing absurd in the idea.

"A railway time-table predicts the trains at least a month ahead. An astronomer can predict eclipses several centuries in advance. Some experts succeed in foretelling the weather for hours. And statesmen attempt to foresee the result of an election or the probable attitude of a self-governing state. So some power of foretelling is known to exist, though manifestly subject to uncertainty."

"The law against foretelling was passed in times of ignorance and scientific infancy. Legislation should be not be used for stopping material for investigation, even if intended only as a wholesome check on fraud. I would not deny that foolish people may be misled by shillings or half-crowns by pretended seers—who are an admitted nuisance—but it seems a trivial evil about which to set the law in action.

"It is proverbially easier to prosecute the rogue who steals the goose from off the common than the practitioner on a larger scale who steals the common from the goose.

"The serious aspect of the present position is that the law makes no discrimination between honesty and dishonesty. How far foretelling of the future is possible is not a legal but a scientific question."

"What is certain is that in his concern for seeing more clearly into the future Sir Oliver is thinking of knowledge in general," writes "A.R." in the Manchester Guardian before launching into a forecast of the future on his own account.

"The indifference of the rest of us may, no doubt, partly be explained by the present incompetence of foretelling as a science. Sir Oliver himself can only bring forward, as examples of those who are doing their bit in this direction, statesmen who forecast the results of general elections, officials who draw up railway time-tables, astronomers and weather forecasters.

It is not a very encouraging list. Prophetic scientists who cannot do better than most of these may expect to be "ignored." But, nevertheless, we dare not laugh altogether. Some day even weather reports may be put beyond doubt of inaccuracy, and the whole future may come flooding into the expert's laboratories as smoothly as the latest news is now spun by the tape machine into the lobbies of the clubs.

"We are congratulating ourselves at the moment on having brought up the speed of flying to over 200 miles an hour. It is impossible that some of us who read about the Schneider Cup will live to read a leading article, beginning 'When Sir Oliver Lodge made his first successful experiments in "time-variation" (the very phrase was unknown to most of us in our youth) it was thought a remarkable thing to be able to see a day ahead. The latest improvements in the "Cassandra" apparatus, will bring our range of vision up to over 220 years?'

"Fantastic such an idea may be, but it is not, alas! impossible. Indeed, it has all the marks upon it of the best of scientific progress. First, to our generation, living, perhaps, on the eve of its arrival, it sounds absurdly remote, just as many of our grandfathers have laughed out of court the railways, telegraphs, and broadcasting. The point is too obvious to need stressing.

"What is much more significant is the second and decisive characteristic of a coming invention that "time-variation" possesses. Nobody could say, even roughly, how it would affect our lives, and nobody is in the least likely to inquire until the thing is upon us. What could be more typical of scientific inventions?

"Again and again in the last century and a half the impressively fertile scientists have launched their bolts at us out of their obscure blue heaven of research, and yet we have never taken the slightest interest in what they are doing until they have done it. That their activity is beyond good and evil to a far more sinister extent than is that of artists in a commonplace.

"They give us a poison gas with one hand and an antiseptic with the other. They cause machines to move swiftly, and then make the multiplications of those machines so easy that we cannot move. There is the credit (or the shame) of having killed the old sleepy world and created the world we live in. Whether they are our creditors or our debtors we do not ask and they do not care. Only every time they offer us anything we accept it without worrying about how much harm and confusion it may be bringing in its train."—Public Opinion.

THE BEST "BULL" I

Many "bulls" (a correspondent reminds me) have been let loose in the House of Commons. The following was perpetrated by Mr. Charles Craig, an Ulster M.P., in a debate on the Irish Labourers' Bill: "If this Bill is passed I see before me the Irish labourer a future from which they have been for too many years past kept out."

Free Trade Logic

Manchester Guardian: (Since shingled hair became the fashion the sale of hair brushes has greatly diminished, leading to a request for a duty on imported brushes under the Safeguarding of Industries Act). Surely the more reasonable thing to seek would be a general prohibition of bobbed and shingled tresses? If a market is collapsing because of the failure of the internal demand for its wares, how is a duty on the imported product going to restore its strength and vigor? This is one of those mysteries which are only to be apprehended by the thoroughgoing Protectionist. To the uninitiated it looks a little like an example of that touching faith in tariffs as a sort of white magic which can work all sorts of miracles just because the true believer would like to see them worked. In all the frequent discussions of the new fashions in hair-dressing it is certainly the oddest development yet encountered.

South Africa Native Policy outcry

General Hertzog's proposed solution of the native problem, the biggest question confronting South Africa, satisfies neither the whites nor the blacks.

The proposals mark the opening of a new political era and will split the parties and divide the provinces. It is even asserted by some that it will go a long way towards destroying South Africa, the critics saying that it is a policy of racial fear on the part of the minority.

While the natives will be dissatisfied by the small number of representatives in Parliament assigned to them by General Hertzog, the Dutch die-hards, particularly from the Orange Free State, object to the extension of the franchise to other provinces.

The natives recently have become increasingly restive, demanding a larger share in legislation and higher pay.

THE POOR FISH.

Said the fish to the man
On the rivulet's brink,
As he reached for a bottle
And started to drink:
"I am just a poor fish
And when hungry I eat;
I am lured to my death
By what seems to be meat!"

"It is true I'm a fool,
And I don't stop to look
When a minnow I see
If it's tied to a hook.
I take a long chance
For the food I require,
But not every minnow
Is tied to a wire.

"You are smarter than I,
But I'll venture to say
You play with your life
In the very same way.
If the label reads 'whiskey,'
You don't stop to think,
It may be rank poison,
But you'll take a drink.

"You laugh at a fish
That is caught on a hook,
Though a bass that is hungry
Has no time to look.
But the man who will drink
The All that's labelled to-day,
As whiskey, is truly
A poor fish, I'll say!"

Light Wine From Apples

CIDER MAKERS' EXPERIMENT.

Cider making is in full swing at the National Fruit and Cider Institute at Long Ashton, Somerset, where the countryside is replete of apples.

The juice is of average quality, but it is too early yet to judge the cider. Eighty-six different ciders have already been made from various apples, and there are more to come. The farmers will therefore have plenty of scope for their palates at the annual cider tasting next summer.

An experiment, based on a suggestion by Lord Bledisloe that the institute should try to manufacture a dry cider like the light French wines, is being carried out at present with small and unmarketable culinary apples. The chemical composition of their juices renders them suitable for the production of a dry "apple wine," in making which a certain quantity of sugar is added to the juice before fermentation.

About half a dozen casks of this "apple wine" are maturing, and the cider should be ready next summer for bottling.

LOST THAT "UP-AND-AT-EM" FEELING?

Do you think it's too much work—or too much "fat" that's the reason? Maybe it's just a slight liver-try 15 to 20 drops of Seign's Syrup in glass of water. Seign's Syrup cleans you back. At any drugstore—try it tonight.

Sir William S. Glyn-Jones, Secretary of the Proprietary Articles Trade Association, during his address to members of the Incorporated Sales Managers' Association of the United Kingdom at the Old Colony Club, Aldwych, on his return from a visit to Canada, stated that he found conditions there as regards price cutting as chaotic as it was in this country thirty years ago. He had purchased the same article in three different places at three different prices.

Scotland Yard Honoured by Prince

LONDON, Dec. 8.—The Prince of Wales yesterday made a surprise visit to Scotland Yard where he inspected the famous "Black Museum" in which relics of murders, burglaries and other crimes are stored, also witnessed various phases of the police activities.

The Prince is taking a comparative rest from society, most of his engagements being cancelled owing to the death of his grandmother, Queen Alexandra, but he finds time hanging heavily for one of his restive nature. He spent several mornings recently exercising his hunters in the country, but he did not join in any actual chase. When not making duty calls in London he visits all sorts of odd places.

Don't let constipation drag you down. Cleanse your system of its poisons. Thousands have regained their old-time vigor and vim, stopped constipation forever, by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

On my seventy-fifth birthday I take great pleasure in letting you know that it is due to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN that I am now enjoying good health. I was compelled to take an enema or cathartic every night. Since May, 1924, when a friend recommended Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, the poison in my system has been eliminated without the aid of purgatives. I heartily recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to everyone afflicted with intestinal trouble.

Why Some People Die

Dr. L. P. Clark, one of New York's best known neurologists, gives a predominant place to sentiment in the death list.

"The loss of friends and love is the most frequent cause of mental and physical breakdown, resulting in death. The spiritual decay of friendship and love attributes, their break-up and consequent scattering, both within the individual and around him, render a person more susceptible to disease."

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE PORTRAIT GALLERY.

Recently I opened an unusual degree the universal gift of seeing things as she wants to see them.

She seldom Harbors A Grievance.

She is not the kind to give up her way and then harbor a grievance about it. She doesn't give up her way if she can help it and hence is free from the unpleasant bitterness that grievance hugging is sure to engender.

Her mouth generally turns up at the corners unless life has crossed her in spite of herself, in which case she will probably have a petulant mouth, but not a sour one.

She sometimes has the lovable in-consequence of a kitten and receives an amount of love out of all proportion to her equipment of solid virtues.

She is apt to be lazy.

She Brings Out The Worst.

She brings out the worst qualities in an unselfish person if thrown into daily contact with her because, through her passive, non resisting selfishness, she engages the latter to a point where she will surely put herself in the wrong and show herself in an ugly light.

She receives favors with very real pleasure and expressions of delight most gratifying to the donor, but a sense of indebtedness ever prompts her to return the kindness if inconvenient.

She is much needed in a world which must be made up of all sorts of people for while she does not do things for good company, she does things for good company. Her cheerfulness and her amiability brighten the world and she gives the "unco guid" something with which to favorably contrast their own super-consciousness. And what would they ever do without that?

When I opened the gallery, I hung on the all a sketch of The Domineering, Kindly, Self-righteous Type.

To-day's portrait is the Pleasantly Selfish Type.

This is the type of woman who is more concerned about enjoying herself and having things as she wants them than with earning other people's gratitude or living up to any lofty ideal of herself as a benefactress of the human race.

She Praises The Others.

This type of woman seldom serves on committees and if she does consent to serve she always has a reason for not doing any great amount of work, or perhaps she simply fails to do it without bothering to give any reason. But she is very gracious about congratulating the people who have worked, on the wonderful things they have accomplished. . . Which has its uses since people who work hard need to be cheered on by their need of praise.

She is generally good company. She likes to have a good time and people who like to have a good time make good company.

She is not given to self-analysis and has her conscience under perfect control.

She is not the kind to give up her way and then harbor a grievance about it. She doesn't give up her way if she can help it and hence is free from the unpleasant bitterness that grievance hugging is sure to engender.

Her mouth generally turns up at the corners unless life has crossed her in spite of herself, in which case she will probably have a petulant mouth, but not a sour one.

She sometimes has the lovable in-consequence of a kitten and receives an amount of love out of all proportion to her equipment of solid virtues.

She is apt to be lazy.

She Brings Out The Worst.

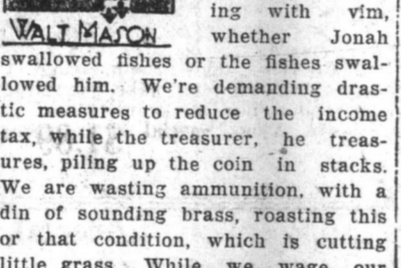

She brings out the worst qualities in an unselfish person if thrown into daily contact with her because, through her passive, non resisting selfishness, she engages the latter to a point where she will surely put herself in the wrong and show herself in an ugly light.

She receives favors with very real pleasure and expressions of delight most gratifying to the donor, but a sense of indebtedness ever prompts her to return the kindness if inconvenient.

She is much needed in a world which must be made up of all sorts of people for while she does not do things for good company, she does things for good company. Her cheerfulness and her amiability brighten the world and she gives the "unco guid" something with which to favorably contrast their own super-consciousness. And what would they ever do without that?

THE MONSTER.

We are fighting, always fighting, for some cause we deem of worth; we are lecturing, a n d writing, scarping up a n d down the earth. We are throwing rocks and dishes, we are arguing with vim, whether Jonah swallowed fishes or the fishes swallowed him. We're demanding drastic measures to reduce the income tax, while the treasurer, he treasures, piling up the coin in stacks. We are wasting ammunition, with a din of sounding brass, roasting this or that condition, which is cutting little grass. While we wage our battles futile, brandishing our ten-foot poles, there's a monster, foul and brutal, that is wasting lives and souls. There are frightful figures showing how narcotic drugs are spread, and the Pottery's Fields are growing with the dead, the doubly dead. Here's a plague whose virus slaughters souls and bodies every day, and our own blithe sons and daughters yet may go the dope-dependent way. Every victim tries insanely to make others share his sin; the result is written plainly where the hosts of darkness grin. Gird your loins, oh, friend and neighbor, smite the beast and make it reel; here's a cause in which to labor that is worthy of your steel. Here's an evil that is calling for the use of sword and fire; let us cease our bootless brawling and attack this monster dire.

John Bull and His Other Island

London Observer: If the Boundary Report has served Ireland within, it cannot but serve England too. It may be the means of building up the moral re-union of the two nations, and realizing the noblest ambition that appears on the records of Irish patriotism and English statesmanship. We earnestly hope it may prove so. These two islands are too near each other for either to live successfully in assumed indifference to the future and feelings of the other. Geographically, it is impossible. Materially, it is detrimental. Morally, it is without defence. The estrangement of soul works injury all round, injury that neither nation will be content to suffer forever.

Lessons of History

London Morning Post: London has become so vast an emporium of world trade that her merchants might be tempted to forget how her foundations rest in English soil and her security depends on British industry. But the decline of certain ancient rivals in Europe, which once held the monopoly of world trade, like Venice and Amsterdam, should serve to remind them that there is no security of continuance in the business of carrying other people's goods; but that the true policy of commercial greatness lies in marketing our own. But if we are to continue to depend chiefly upon our own industries there is one condition which is even more necessary than peace in Europe, the condition of peace in industry.

Contradictory Results

OF INDUSTRIAL PROFITS IN BRITAIN.

Industrial profits in Great Britain in 1924-25 show quite contradictory results. For instance in the coal, iron and steel industries the ratio of profits to capital fell off from 4.8 p.c. in 1923-24 to 2.6 p.c. in 1924-25. In the engineering trades there was a drop of 1 p.c. from 6.5 p.c. to 5.5 p.c. On the other hand the electrical industries showed a substantial increase in the manufacturing departments from 6.8 p.c. to 9.9 p.c. while in the power and supply departments there was a decrease still the ratio was large, in the former period being 13.9 p.c. in the latter 12.8 p.c. Cotton manufactures held up well showing a ratio of 12.6 p.c. in the last year as against 12.2 p.c. in 1923-24. Woolens showed a drop from 10.1 p.c. in 1923-24 to 6.1 p.c. in 1924-25. The chemical industries held their own at 11.2 p.c. for each year and soap manufacturing also held its own at 9.7 p.c. for each year. Oil and petroleum advanced splendidly from a ratio of 9.9 p.c. in 1923-24 to a ratio of 14.0 p.c. in 1924-25. Rubber showed a correspondingly gratifying increase from 5.5 p.c. in the previous year to 8.3 p.c. in the last year, while the tea trade had an increase from 33.2 p.c. in 1923-24 to 38.2 p.c. in 1924-25. It will thus be seen, according to advices received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its British Information Service that the year 1924-25 was not, as many have thought, a year of unmitigated adversity in Great Britain, on the contrary it was a year of mixed conditions of adversity and prosperity, and as the year closes the situation seems to be more hopeful.

The return of the pound sterling to its old parity, the lifting of the embargo on foreign financing and the lower price of cotton are all factors which give hope for the coming year to the banking and industrial world of the British Isles.

Fools as Fascists

London Morning Post: London has of the British "Fascists" who purloined a van and 70,000 copies of the Labor organ, the London Daily Herald, was dropped by the Attorney-General solely because a conviction for larceny was out of the question). The young fools in this country who masquerade in the guise of Italian patriots may do more harm than they are probably capable of understanding. There is no room for serious "Fascism" in England. The sound sense of the common people, who are instinctively on the side of law and order, renders it inconceivable that the restoration of law and order should ever depend (as it may once have depended in Italy) on mysterious hands of black-shirted enthusiasts. And to play at "Fascism" though it may often be ludicrous and even harmless, is simply to play into the hands of the very Communists who are the professed objective of the movement. The game began by being comical. It had better be dropped, before the Public Prosecutor's case, before it ends by becoming tiresome.

Germans Who See No Joke

"BLOODSUCKERS" SOUGHT AT A TAX-OFFICE.

Berlin.—A countryman went into the shop of an Oldenburg chemist and asked for a couple of those useful little creatures which we call leeches and the Germans "blood-suckers."

"Blood-suckers!" said the chemist: "I've not kept them in stock for years."

"Well, where can I find a pair?" asked the countryman.

"At the office for rates and taxes," said the chemist with a twinkle in his eye.

The countryman took him at his word and went to the office. "I want two blood-suckers," he said.

The dusty official whom he addressed came to life and called him a blockhead.

The countryman retorted that the chemist had assured him that blood-suckers were to be found at the office of rates and taxes.

The matter was at once reported to the head of the office, who, being a German official, did not laugh but instituted proceedings against the German for insulting official personages.

The chemist was fined £1. He sent an account of the incident, with a copy of the correspondence with the authorities on the subject, to that excellent comic paper Kladderadatsch.

The editor was delighted and paid £3 10s. for the story. The chemist has now written to the head of the office of rates and taxes to inquire under what heading he should return the £2 10s. profit on the transaction for the purposes of taxation.

Growth of the Easy Payment System

It is obvious to any observer that the purchase system, as it is expanding. There is still progress to be made in extending before it reaches the dimensions which it has grown in America and South Africa," says the Express.

In America, for instance, it is estimated that the amount of outstanding indebtedness on purchases on the instalment plan is $1,000,000,000. This sum equals the per head of the population in the United States.

It is, however, by the common practice which we have of the practice among the middle and middle-class section of the population in the United States, it would not be an exaggeration to state that one-half of the population of forty millions, makes advantage of the method of deferred payments for goods.

The weekly obligations vary between a few shillings for clothes and necessities in the poorer quarters of furniture and motor-cars for those of moderate means.

The economist should complain of these benefits, but it is interesting to note that his most cherished theory can be directed against the instalment system as a whole rather than against this most recent branch of it.

The rich have long been able to make payments to those from whom they buy on the strength of reputation. That those who are healthy, or who do not display outward evidences of wealth, can equal advantages must be better for general relieving.

The hire-purchase system in its early days was unpopular because it was conducted by persons who had no credit, and who took advantage of their temporary inability to pay a monthly instalment to back their goods without completing their undertakings by the means of default. Now that the reputation of the system has been of unquestionable repute among their customers to receive the benefits of the system on honorable terms, intending purchasers reasonable safeguards against default, and there is no one who could contend that the hire-purchase system has not proved a boon to production.

Credits for Russia
The Daily News (Franklin, Mass.) says $15,000,000 worth of credits will instantly be placed in the hands of Russia gets credit on the same terms as other nations.) There is probably no other Government in the world which is more anxious to promptly commercial debts contracted, or which would go to such extreme lengths in order to get a treaty well that its good will is an universal trial, and that to its peculiar obligations to a customer anywhere in the world give the coup de grace to financial development in Russia and its painful efforts at economic revival. A very able representative of British interests who returned from Russia has told us that these circumstances he would be likely at the moment to contract commercial debt in Russia than elsewhere in Europe. That is all good. It is significant of the new realism and responsibility, which it is not an adequate preparation for the permanent development of inter-continental transactions in the long-term credits must inevitably an important part.

TREASURY ECONOMY SCHEME.
The Treasury is about to adopt a new economic policy with regard to the issue of £1 and 10s. notes. When the banks make their next demand at the Bank of England for new notes to replace dirty ones they may be rationed. In other words, they will be able to withdraw notes from circulation less paper than hitherto. In the head office some specially busy branches of banks it has been customary to issue new notes only. As the new notes are packed in bundles, some of which has been avoided, the first numbers indicate the date of issue.

The New Chrysler Six, with Startling New Results.

Startling new results are attained in the new Chrysler Six—results made possible by the kind of engineering and manufacturing genius which never rests satisfied.

Walter P. Chrysler and his staff of brilliant engineers, with the fine Chrysler manufacturing facilities, had every excuse—every reason, some might say—to rest on the laurels their cars have won. Inevitably, the great tide of public approval would have carried the Chrysler Six to still more conspicuous success.

But Mr. Chrysler, his producing organization and his engineers have never relaxed for a moment their labors to emphasize and enhance its wonderful performance qualities.

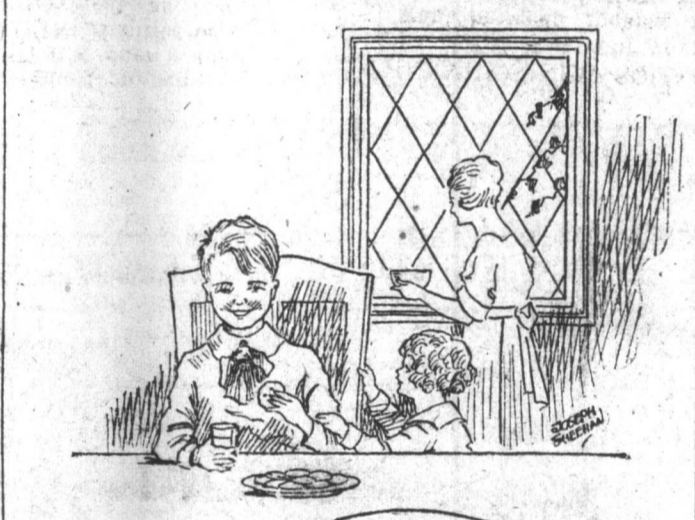

The most surprising thing about the greater Chrysler Six is not its new lower price—remarkable though THAT achievement is.

Its most impressive feature is the amazing ability which succeeded in improving the quality and the performance of a car that everywhere had met with overwhelming public acclaim—AND WHICH MARKED A REVOLUTIONARY ADVANCE OVER ALL PREVIOUS PRACTICE AND RESULTS.

In this new Chrysler Six, the power is increased approximately 10 per cent. The 70-mile speed is more easily and quickly attained. The breath-taking get-away and acceleration are still swifter. In smoothness, this new Chrysler actually exceeds the former super-smoothness introduced by Chrysler.

The beauty originated by Chrysler—and which still belongs to Chrysler alone—is re-expressed in refined and attractive body lines and new body colors, with Chrysler-designed closed bodies built by Fisher.
