STIRRING TIMES AT WINDSOR—A telegraphic despatch from Windsor, on Thursday, says: Reno and Anderson, through the connivance of Col. Wood's detectives, attempted to break jail this morning by getting through the floor of the building but were frustrated by the guard placed there by Mr. McMicken. A man who has been here for the last few days attempted to shoot Mr. Pinkerton of the United States detective force, to-day, on the ferry dock at Detroit, but was prevented by persons present and was arrested. The same person made a like attempt on Pinkerton's life on the road from Sandwich about an hour previous. The would-be assassin has been in company with Col. Wood's detectives since his arrival. THE GORE BANK DIFFICULTY AT

WOODSTOCK.—For several days an un-pleasant transaction on the part of the pleasant transaction on the part of the Manager of the Gore Bank at Woodstock has been a subject of public gossip, but we have deferred allusion to the matter until informed of the true facts. It appears that about two weeks since the President of the Bank visited the branch; and on examining the books, discovered an overdrawn account of $200. Mr. Robert Park, the agent, did not give a satisfactory reason for the delinquency, and the President made inquiry of the party so overcharged, who denied the account. Mr. Park then admitted peculations of the kind to the extent of $700. It had been his practical to fear out receipts from the back of the receipt book and receive money from depositors without entering them upon the books of the Bank, and when such deposits were withdrawn, false entries against others were made to Hamilton with the President, and made an admission of his transactions of the sort, and afterwards improved the opportunity to seeper faviltate diffusive to the strike of the contract of the stransactions of the sort, and afterwards improved the opportunity to seeper faviltate diffusive to a series of the sorters and the contract of the sorters and afterwards improved the opportunity to seeper faviltate diffusive to a series of the sorters and the sorters and the sorters are such as a such a Gentlemen, come to the

Centre Riding Fall Show.

The first Fall Show in connection with the Centre Riding Agricultural Society was held at Fergus on Wednesday. The weather was all that could be desired, with a bright warm sun and a clear sky. There was a much larger turn out of people than at any Show we have ever seen in Fergus. The same may be said of the Exhibition itself, the stock of all kinds, and every article for which prizes were offered being well represented. The Drill Shed not being ready, the grain, roots, &c., were exhibited in a building belonging to Mr. Matthew Anderson, and the dairy produce and ladies work in Whyte's Music Hall, attached to the Hotel. When the Drill Shed is completed, there will not be a finer Hall for Exhibitions in the County. The Fergus Brass Band turned out in the afternoon, and greatly enlivened the proceedings by playing some choice airs in first class style. Altogether the Show may be regarded as a great success, still we look upon it as only a beginning to what the Riding is capable of doing, and will yet do in the way of Fall Exhibitions.

The show of horses was excellent, much better in fact than we have seen at any place this fall. There was a fine lot of brood mares. In this class Messrs. Ellis, cromar, and Davidson beat all their competitors. We noticed a very handsome mare in this class belonging to Mr. W. B. Telfer. She is of the Black Hawk breed, with a sleek coat and fine symmetry. She ought to have been in the class of road-sters, being rather small to compete with heavy horses, for she is unmatched as a pacer and strength of wind. The younger classes of horses were above the average. Several of those which took prizes are the progeny of Mr. Buckland's fine horse.

The mechanics and implement department was an interesting feature of the shows, Mr. D. M. Potter of Elora had one of his improved separators on the ground. It is one of the best machines of the kind we have seen. Mr. Modeland had one of his premium reapers, and Mr. Geo. McInnes two of his unrivalled ploughs, Mr. Phelan showed one of his improved fanning mills, which have been thoroughly tested, and come of the ordeal with a first class character. Well made serviceable waggons were shown by Messrs. W. Anderson, T. Richardson, G. Hamilton and J. & R. Kenning. Two very neat buggles were shown by Messrs. Kenning of Elora and Little & Watson of Fergus, also a very fine cutter by Cuthbert & Noble of Elora.

The dinner took place in the evening in Whyte's Hotel, at which a large and respectable company attended. It is needless to say Mr. Whyte sustained his old fame as a caterer. The dinner and all its surroundings was first class, Mr. Mathew Anderson 1st Vice-President in the absence of the President Major Clarke, who is not yet able to be about, occupied the chair, and Mr. F. Cassidy, second Vice President discharged the duties of vice-chair. The usual toasts were given and duly responded to. Mr. Ferrier M. P. P. was present and in responding to the toast of the Legislature of Ontario, made a short and appropriate speech. After spending a pleasant evening the company separated at a seasonable hour.

Suelph Evening Mercury

OFFICE:.....MACDONNELL STREET FRIDAY EVENING, OCT. 16TH, 1868

Some months ago we announced the early publication of a story from real life under the above title by Mrs. Ross of Montreal, a lady not unknown inliterary circles, as an acceptable contributor to some of the leading Magazines. The book has just been received, and is now being supplied to subscribers. It is issued from the press of Mr. John Lovell, Montreal, is neatly printed and handsomely bound and got up. Of the merits of them will be formed from the following just and discriminating notice by the Toronto Tolegraph: "The tale which Mrs. Ross relates with a keen, unflagging sympathy for the central figures in the picture—and with more than common artistic skill—takes the form of an autobiography. Devoid altogether of anything that can be called 'plot,' the thread of the narrative which bears principally upon the fortunes of an orphan girl, and abrother younger than hersell, to whom she nobly resolves to act as guardian and protector, unwinds itself with a naturalness that challenges admiration. Founded on certain actual occurrences of almost tragic interest—illustrating the desperate and cruel recorts of avarice, the courage and resolution of a pure and honeat heart, the sharp discipline which reveals the true, herico soul, the terribic test of unforseen misfortunes which often rack to madness common unsanctified natures—the woof, as it were, of the story is charmingly developed, while the filling in is not only rich in incident that keeps the attention bound, but is colored with seenes as thrilling as any that we remember in thirty or more years' reading. When it is observed that the most exciting—we may say tragic—of these scenes, bear evidence of being pictures drawn from actual experience, our recognition of the wonderful descriptive faculty of the authoress is irresistibly quickened, and we incontinently discover that it is not the garish daubing of a novice that has captivated us, but that the attraction is art, real, genuine, our recognition of the wonderful descriptive faculty of the authoress is irresistibly quickened, and we incontinently discover that it is not the garish daubing of a novice that has captivated us, but that the most exciting—we may say that we remember to other sensitive minds, in this, the most absorbing portion of the work.

"Certain pictures of conventual life possibly bearing a higher color than may be to the taste of some; and there may be not the taste of some; and there may be not the taste o of the book itself, a pretty correct idea of them will be formed from the folto the work.

"Mrs. Ross's book is healthy in sentiment. It is a safe family book. It conveys instruction, in no didactic form, but by a beautiful portraiture of life—partly shaded—and yet, also, lighted up with sunshine of faith, hope, and ultimate victory for those in whose fate the interest of the reader is centered."

Molasses Spilt.-An untoward accident happened at Mr. Hugh Walker's grocery store on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Armstrong's teamster had brought the Great Western Station, and was backing up the waggon to the sidewalk. In doing so the rope which bound the puncheons broke, they both burst, and the contents finding their way into the gutter ran along in a broad black stream. Some was saved, but of course it is not fit for domestic use. The loss is about $80. Some of the young urchins thought the thing a good joke.

Mr. Stonk's Sale.—Mr. F. W. Stone's annual sale of Sheep and pigs took place at his farm yesterday (Thursday) and was attended by a large number of prominent breeders from various parts of the Province as well as from our own County. Upon awaking, he proceeded to the bush, is company with a constable, and having measured the distance from where the child's body was found, repaired to the spot, and there found the heap of logs, ander which the clothing was found, and which had been brought so vividly before him in his dream. The clothing, it will be remembered, was brought into court, on Monday, during the progress of the trial. Dreams, after all, are not always mentiable.

TELEGRAPH

Despatches to the Evening Mercury.

Paris, Oct. 17, evening—The 'Epoque' thinks it likely that some of the Great Powers of Europe will soon ask the United States Government the cause of Admiral Farragut's movements in Europe.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 15.—The 'Rigsdag' in reply to the King's opening speech regret the failure of the negotiations with Prussia in the matter of Schleswig Holstein, rejoice in the unity of feeling between the King and the people, hope for a continuation of friendly relations with Prussia, and that the international differences may be easily settled.

LONDON, Oct. 15—Mr. Gladstone made a speech yesterday at Liverpool. He examined the question of Feinanism and the discontented Island and assigned the causes therefor. He spoke earnestly of the need of reform and quoted and dwelt on the works of D'Arcy McGlee, a Conservative, on these causes as 'a voice of the dead from over the ocean.' The joint committees of Anglo-American and Atlantic Telegraph companies have decided to aboliza from and after the lat of November, le88, the system of counting letters in estimating tariffs, and to count only by words. It is reported to day that the French Government has furloughed 30,000 men from the army and navy. Maddin, Oct. 15—Forty-eight cities, being all the admisistrative centres, adhere to the Junta and monarchial principles. Seven denounce the clergy, and all denounce religious orders. The meeting of the Cortes has been fixed for December 15, so that the representatives from Cubs and Porto Rico may appear. The army will be exempt from the tax about to be levied.

Reported Withdrawal of Seymour and Blair.

New York, Oct. 15
The Herald's Washington special makes an important announcement that a movement is on foot among prominent members of the Democratic party to have Seymour and Blair withdrawn in view of the certainty of a defeat in the Presidential election, in order that the new and more available ticket may be to mominated. It is stated that August Belmont has been advised with, and that a committee will wait on Seymour at Utica to day. The nomination, it is said, has been tendered to Chase, who has expressed his willingness to accept it, and there is a probability of the nomination of John Quincey Adams or Ger. Franklin, for Vice President.

Fitteen Cotswold rams were sold. Those put up first including one or two imported rams did not fetch good prices, the figures paid for ach running from $28 to $34. Prices g to better when the one shear rams were brought out, two being sold at $60 each, one at $51, one at $50, and the others ranging from $50 down to $31. No Cotswold ewes were sold. The bidding on the Southdown rams was not brisk, and only two were sold—a two and a one shear—for $23 each. Some Berkshire spring pigs were sold at from $14 to $16 each and a sow for $22. Near ly all the sheep were sold to breeders outside of this County.

Are Dreams True—We would be loth to publish the following story if we found it in an American paper, for in them such yarns are continually being spun, but having a journal like the London Prototype for authority we insert it as something "strange, if true." That paper says: On Sunday last, Dr. Billington, of Delaware, being in attendance upon a patient at Caradoc, returned to his residence, and feeling tired, fell asleep on the lounge. While in that state, he dreamt that he saw the heap of logs which concealed the wearing appared of the murdered girl, Mary Jones. The Braes of Yarrow

An Historical Tale of the Sixteenth Century.

Angus strode from the apartment and Barras, coolly seated himself with a sneering smile. He smoothed his close shaven chin meditatively, the while he muttered with intense self-gratification—
'So I pull the string and the puppet dances to the tune that pleases me. He will to his sister straight, apbraid her with her passion for a poor hireling; and whether she feel it or no, her spirit, haughty as his own, will rise in such isdignation as will be to him proof strong as knowledge of my words.—Next he will to her Majesty, and if she heed him one degree as much as I credit her, Master Elliof's good fortune will play him an illutra. Then to the priory, Mistress Mary, and once there, I will find means to reconcile even the proud Douglas to an alliance with the ford of Binram.'
Cool, cunning, and utterly selfish, this man recognized in the success of one evil acheme only the stepping stone to another; alike indifferent to the late of high or low, of kindred or stranger, so that his own ends were statained. Dress Materials.

CHAPTER XLV .- UNDER THE BAN. Half naked, glistening dark, with oily limbs h came.

His long-rail'd fingers card'd, his little eyes adams, Shricking in his own tougue as on the chief he

"Yield thee thy sword of fame and thine own flesh thereto!"

Then Roland gazed and frowned, though nigh unto his death.
Sat still and drew up all his strength in a great breath,

Pray'd quickly to the saints he served in former days,
With right hand clutched the sword he was too
weak to raise,

weak to raise.

Master Elliot occupied, like other gentlemen of the Guard, a chamber in the Constable's Tower, and thither he had repaired on his return to the Castle to snatch a few hours' slumber after the peril and faigue on when he was startled from his repose to hold semmons at his door. He drowally inquired the meaning of the strubnice, and was answered that the most noble lord the Earl of Angus desired his immediate attendance, and that the messenger waited to conduct him to his lordship's presence.

waited to conduct him to his lordsnip's presence.
It was several minutes before Gilbert sufficiently recovered his senses to comprehend the import of the message; but the repetition of the all-powerful nobleman's title quickened his-drowsy ideas, and he sprungalertly from his couch. He dressed himself with more than usual speed, and in that occupation had no time to speculate as to the purport of his lordship's summons which bore such an imperative stamp. When, however, he had completed his attire, opened the door, and joined the ordinary who waited in the corridor to conduct him to the presence of the august lord, he began to marvel somewhat at the singularity of the circumstance.

vel somewhat at the singularity of the circumstance.

As he followed the conductor across the court, he had a little time to think of the probable cause for this hasty summons, and his thought was none of the happiest. He felt that he had sadly failed in the discharge of an important trust—a trust, too, imposed at his own earnest and even bold solicitation. That fact which should have formed the chief ground for exculpation from any charge of neglect, was in his eyes the strongest ground for his condemnation. For, he argued with the self-upbraiding warmth of a youthful and generous hature, if he had so signally miscarried a trust in which he was personally interested, how reckless must be seem of any trust which simple duty might impose. So it was with a heart whose heaviness and anxiety were reflected in the pallor which fatigue and distress of mind had given to his visage that he tound himself in the ante-room of the Earl's chamber.

Bank Robbery in Hamilton.

The following despatch was received last evening after nearly all our edition had been worked off:

Within a few days past the fact has reached the ears of the public, that an extensive robbery had been perpetrated at the Bank of Montreal in this city, the matter having been kept quiet, pending the efforts of detectives to discover the direction the treasure had taken. As the occurrence is now generally talked of, no harm can arise from a simple statement of the facts as we learn them from good authority. It appears that about the 1st instant, the officers of the Bank discovered that a bag containing $5,000 in gold had been abstracted from the vault. No evidence appeared that a forcible entrance had been effected to the Bank or vault, and the precise time of the robbery seems to be also unknown. Of the efforts of the detectives to ferret out the guilty party we are not informed, but believe that the affair is still enshrouded in mystery.
