MIGHTY FLEET AT SPITHEAD ABLAZE WITH DECORATIONS

Warships Representing Seventeen Nations, Gathered at Portsmouth Harbor for Celebration of the Coronation, Furnish Splendid Spectacle.

[Canadian Press.]

Portsmouth, England, June 24—This was the day of ships and sailors. The King and Queen and the foreign representatives at the coronation left the capital and came here for the great naval review off Spithead. Fine weather put the finishing touches on one of the most magnificent displays of the week.

Their majesties, accompanied by the official envoys of other countries, came from London in a special train. The King wore an admiral's uniform with a riband of the Order of the Garter. The Prince of Wales was in a midshipman's uniform. The Queen, Princess Mary, and nearly all of the royal ladies, were dressed in navy blue. With their majesties were all the other members of the imperial family.

Many special trains were run from London, carrying Indian princes, peers and peeresses, members of parliament, lords of the admiralty and diplomats. The regular and the excursion trains arriving during the morning added great numbers to the thousands already gathered here from all parts of the world.

Many Nations Represented.

Seventeen nations were represented in the vessels moored in Spithead roadstead in the English Channel, between the mainland and the Isle of Wight.

Of the number, ten were battleships of the Dreadnought class from the British navy and one visiting Dreadnought, the German Von Der Tann, and the American battleship Delaware.

The British Dreadnoughts were the Colossus, the Neptune, the Hercules, the Collingwood, the St. Vincent, the Vanguard, the Bellerophon, the Temeraira, the Superb, and the Dreadnought.

With them were the four British cruisers of the Invincible class, the Indefatigable, the Indomitable and the Invincible.

A Magnificent Fleet.

Other foreign naval powers sent vessels of the pre-Dreadnought type. France was represented by the Danton; Japan by the armored cruiser Kurama; Austria by the Radetzky; Italy by the armored cruiser San Marco; Russia by the armored cruiser Rossia; Spain by the cruiser Rena; Argentina by the Buenos Ayres; Chile by the cruiser Chacabuco; Sweden by the armored cruiser Fylgia; Turkey by the cruiser Hamidieh; China by the cruiser Hai Chi; Denmark by the armored cruiser Olfert Fisscher; the Netherlands by the armored cruiser Jacob Van Heemskerck, and Norway by the armored cruiser Eidsvold.

Greece sent the armored cruiser Georgios Averof.

In addition to the official representatives of the seventeen visiting nations there were secondary vessels from Japan, Italy and Chile. Various types of warships added to the British units of Dreadnoughts and Invincibles made the total British contingent 170 ships.

All the vessels in the roadstead, including the foreign warships and excursion steamers with spectators, were moored in lines supplemented by shorter lines of submarine and torpedo boats. The fleet occupied an area of about eighteen square miles.

[Canadian Press.]

Winnipeg, Man., June 24. — Hon. T. Mayne Daly, police magistrate, died at 5:15 this morning. He was on the bench yesterday and attended a late meeting of the police commission. His death was the result of the bursting of a blood vessel at 10:30 o'clock last night. POLICE CONSTABLE MILLS LIKELY TO RECOVER

Spent a Good Night at Hospital and Is Much Improved Today.

Police Constable Alex. Mills, who was so badly injured yesterday morning while trying to stop a runaway on Richmond street north, spent a good night at Victoria Hospital.

This afternoon Mills continued to improve, and the attending physicians believe that he will now pull through all right. His magnificent physique and good health will stand him in good stead. He is said to be the tallest man that has been in the hospital for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills, his parents, arrived last night from near St. Marys, and have been with him constantly. They are greatly pleased at the progress he is making, and are confident that he will recover.

MONTREAL WILL HAVE ANOTHER BIG THEATRE

Matter Was Decided at a Meeting Held Here Friday Night.

At a meeting of the directors of the Canadian Theatres, Limited, held last night in the head offices in the Bank of Toronto chambers, this city, it was finally decided to erect a new popular-priced theatre in Montreal, to cost $100,000.

It is understood that Mr. A. E. Dyment, of Toronto, and Mr. J. C. Duffield, of this city, will erect the theatre, and it will be leased and booked by the Canadian Theatres, Limited, of which company both gentlemen are stockholders.

The new building will be built on St. Catherines street, between St. Urbain and St. Charles Barromme, and will be in the form of an "L," with the stage backing on St. Charles Barromme. There will be three floors, and the balcony and gallery will be supported on the cantilever principle. The building will be one of the most modern in construction.

The plans were discussed Friday night, and were approved of. They have been in the course of preparation in New York for some time, and when inspected last night they were found to be entirely satisfactory.

This will be the second theatre controlled by the company in Montreal. The one at present booked by them is an up-to-date high-priced vaudeville house, and is doing a big business. The new place will be devoted to pictures and popular-priced vaudeville.

"The movement has been under contemplation for some time," one of the directors informed The Advertiser. "The matter was finally closed last night, and the construction will be commenced at an early date."

Vaudeville for London was also discussed, but the opinion was that it would not pay, and the Majestic will continue as a picture house.

PAINT PLANT AFIRE

Fierce Conflagration Raged Early This Morning at Montreal.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, June 24. — A fierce fire broke out about one o'clock this morning in the sheds belonging to the Canada Paint Company, between William and Basin streets. There was considerable excitement caused by explosions, and for a time it looked as if there might be a serious conflagration. The firemen, however, managed to get control of the blaze before it had gained much headway, and it was quickly extinguished without much loss.

LONDON GIRLS WERE DEPORTED WERE ARRESTED IN DETROIT

Gave Their Names as Helen Stinchcombe and Sadie Hodgins, But Local Police Are of Opinion That These Are Fictitious.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Detroit, Mich., June 24.—Helen Stinchcombe, fourteen years old, and Sadie Hodgins, seventeen years old, of London, Ontario, who were arrested yesterday when Detectives Black and Baker raided the Maryland Hotel on Bagley avenue, were deported this morning.

When the girls reached police headquarters they confessed that they became tired of living at home and ran away a week ago. They told the police that they came to Detroit, where they met Helen Polasky, who was arrested with them and who took them to her room at the Maryland Hotel.

The local detectives state that they believe the names given by the girls are fictitious. They say that no word has come from the Detroit police regarding them, and that no parents here have notified them of their daughters being missing.

THE LONDON CRYSTAL PALACE IN DANGER OF DISAPPEARING

England's Great Show Place, Valued at $7,000,000, Advertised for Sale and Appeal Is Made To Save It for the People.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, June 24. — London's Crystal Palace, which for half a century has been England's great showplace, is advertised for sale in announcements which are being sent to real estate firms, and wealthy men in this country, as well as Great Britain. The announcement is qualified with the statement that "it is earnestly hoped that someone may come forward and save the Crystal Palace for the people." The property includes about 200 acres valued at $7,000,000.

The palace has not been a financial success in recent years. Its inaccessibility has prevented it being used for many popular entertainments, while the growth of new amusement centres has withdrawn much of the old-time patronage.

"The entrance examinations will be finished on Wednesday evening. The students are well prepared as a rule, and we look for very satisfactory results."

3,000 PEOPLE WENT WITH G. T. R. SHOPS EMPLOYEES TO THE FALLS

Annual Picnic Is Being Held Down by the Big Cataract—Four Trains Necessary to Carry the Excursionists.

Three thousand people went to Niagara Falls today with the G. T. R. carshops employees on the occasion of their annual picnic. It took four long trains, with eleven coaches in each train, to handle the crowd, and four of the largest and most powerful moguls on the division were pressed into service so as to make fast time. The first train was made up in the East End yards at 6 o'clock, and when it pulled out it was jammed to the roof, as everybody was anxious, if possible, to get to the Falls on the first train. The three other specials followed at intervals of fifteen minutes each, and all were well filled.

Practically all of the 450 men at the car shops, together with their wives and families, and hosts of their friends, took advantage of the ideal weather and cheap rate to have a first-class outing.

In addition there were a number of people who came in from out-of-town and went down with them. The picnickers were a happy crowd, and as the long trains pulled out the parties in many of the coaches were singing merrily.

The big moguls took the heavy trains through at a great speed, the first special pulling into the station at the Falls at 9:10. The other specials arrived at 9:28, 9:45 and 10:12.

Judge Macbeth has set Wednesday, July 5, as the date when he will investigate the charges against Ward Foreman Patrick Mulhall, which were preferred some time ago by Ald. Tancock.

Mayor Beattie, Ald. Tancock, and Ward Foreman Mulhall were served with notices to attend and give evidence. City Clerk Baker was also served with notices for Henderson, Gilmour and the other witnesses to be present and give evidence regarding the occurrence.

It has not been decided whether or not City Solicitor Meredith will be present, the council taking no action on the matter at the last session. However, he may be so instructed a week from Monday at the council session.

Mr. Mulhall will be represented by Mr. J. M. McEvoy, it is understood, and will also have a number of witnesses on his behalf.

NEW MAINS TO BE LAID IN NORTH END

Decided Upon By the Water Commissioners—Oldsmobile for Engineer Glaubitz.

At a meeting of the water commissioners held at noon today, it was decided to lay an 18-inch main from Richmond street to Maitland street, on Central avenue.

Another main, 12 inches in diameter, will be run north from Central avenue to supply the northern section of the city. The commissioners did not decide as to the street up which they will carry this line. Superintendent Glaubitz being instructed to report on the best route.

The putting down of the large main is part of a large scheme undertaken by the water commissioners to better supply the city with water.

It is proposed later to run another 18-inch main down William street to connect with the main on Horton street, forming a belt for that district.

Later it is proposed to extend the 18-inch main through to the easterly limits of the city, probably down the Hamilton road.

The commissioners also decided to purchase an Oldsmobile runabout for Superintendent Glaubitz. It will be a four cylinder, 40-horsepower machine, with a 60-horsepower development. It will be the largest and strongest runabout in the city.

Those present were Chairman Philip Pocock, Commissioners J. H. Chapman, John Marr, Mayor Beattie, Superintendent Glaubitz, and Secretary Ellwood.

BOYLE ALLOWED TO GO MAN WASN'T IDENTIFIED

Assault Charge Brought by Mrs. Ivey, Richmond St., Was Not Proven.

"I wonder when they will give the name of Blackstock a rest in this town?" was the question that the famous ex-dog catcher and erstwhile taker of bees asked at the police court this morning.

After his exploit of yesterday, Ben was again in the limelight today as the star witness in an assault case which Mrs. Agnes Ivey, of 258 Richmond street, preferred against John Boyle, a young man residing in East London.

On Blackstock's evidence rested practically the whole case, and as a result of what he said Boyle was discharged. While he was waiting to be called, Ben kept everyone around highly entertained with yarns about his capture of the bees yesterday.

Mrs. Ivey, in the box, stated that on the night of April 15 when she went through by a back way to get some bread at a store she was set upon in her back yard by a young man who knocked her down. She said she called for help, and Blackstock came, and then the man made off in the dark. She said that Blackstock told her it was Boyle. She did not know the man herself.

The Cross-Examination.

Mrs. Ivey, cross-examined by Mr. W. R. Meredith, who appeared for Boyle, said that she occupied the front part of the house at 495 Bathurst street on April 15, and Blackstock and his family occupied the rear rooms. She admitted that she had had some drinks in Blackstock's, and had had to lie down on a bed, but couldn't remember anything about knocking a lamp over.

Blackstock, in the box, said that he had seen "the gentleman" going out of the yard, but it was so dark that he couldn't say who it was. He had been sitting at his supper when he heard a woman call "Blackstock, for God's sake come here quick." He went to the door and called "I'm here, what is it you want?"

"I can't convict Boyle on this sort of evidence," said Magistrate Judd. "Neither of you can identify him, and I am going to let him go."

The next will be a burlesque, and barrels of fun will be furnished by this event, Then there will be a humane wheelbarrow race, matured baby show, Veteran Firemen, and the Darktown Fire Brigade, tug-of-war, motorcycle races, watermelon contests, potato races and other features of equal interest.

There are several features in this programme, and it is expected that more than enough amusement will be furnished for the afternoon. Mr. A. T. Edwards is looking after the game of rounders and he has promised to make it worth while.

A committee composed of Dr. Wood, Ed Smith and H. Dyson, are working with the Thames Boat Club and the London Rowing Club relative to the regatta, and a report will be submitted later.

The secretary, James O. Weldon, reported that he would need some assistance in his office, and he was empowered to secure what help he required.

Dr. Wood Presides.

A number of detail matters were arranged. In the absence of Dr. Harry R. Abbott at camp, Dr. Fred L. Wood, one of the vice-presidents, occupied the chair.

Among those present were: James O. Weldon, secretary; E. Smith, E. Sid Little, Norman McLeod, Dr. W. J. Stevenson, Finlay Marshall, R. R. A. Emery, James Herrick, Samuel Steveley, Ald. R. W. TAFT TO VETO BILL IF ANY AMENDMENTS

President Says That Reciprocity Must Remain Unchanged.

Washington, June 24—It became known at the capital today that President Taft, talking over the long-distance telephone from Providence last night, repeated to several senators his determination to veto the Canadian reciprocity bill in case any amendment is added to it. News dispatches from Providence that the president would veto any tariff bills passed at this session are accepted by senators as accurately reflecting the president's attitude.

Senators accept the president's ultimatum on reciprocity as applicable to modifications which might be made at the instance of Republicans as well as Democrats, and say that it would have the effect of preventing any agreement on amendments for the tariff changes.

Many senators received telegrams and letters announcing a purpose on the part of the farmers to test the constitutionality of he proposed reciprocity law, if it receives less than a two-thirds majority in the senate. This position is taken on the ground that as the bill carried into effect the provisions of a treaty, it should receive the vote in the senate necessary to render a treaty effective. The friends of the measure do not concede the point, but they are claiming the two-thirds.

SCHOOL WORK FOR THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

A Collection of Art Is Being Prepared by Miss Mulveny.

Miss Mulveny, who is in charge of the art work of the public schools, is preparing a collection to be placed in the public library. It will embrace all the various branches of art taught in the schools of the city. According to the critics, it is the best yet gathered from the public schools in London, and as the pupils here are superior to most of the schools in the province, it is worthy to be placed anywhere. There are a score of excellent landscapes, with an infinite variety of other studies.

Inspector Edwards is particularly enthusiastic over the basket work, some very fine samples of this work being included in the collection.

"It is a very fine lot of work," said the inspector. "I have never seen better, and I am sure that the citizens will appreciate the work being done in the schools, if once they see the samples we have prepared. The basket work is particularly fine."

LAYING CORNER STONE

Ceremony Will Take Place at Ilderton on Wednsday.

The members of the congregation of the Methodist Church at Ilderton have arranged for the laying of the cornerstone of the new edifice on the site of the old structure, which was destroyed by fire some time ago, on Wednesday afternoon next at 2:30. Dr. Warren, president of the conference, will have charge.

At 5:30 the Meadowlarks and Ivan will meet in a baseball match, and from that time until 7:30 supper will be served. This will be followed by an entertainment, during which addresses will be delivered by London ministers and former pastors.

KILLED BY FREIGHT.

Standish, Mich., June 24.—Miss Edith Barhite, 30 years old, principal of public schools at Maple Ridge, was struck and instantly killed by a freight train yesterday.

RIGHTFUL OWNER TOOK THE FLOCK OF BEES

Now Man Who Bought Them From Ben Blackstock Wants His Money Back.

That swarm of bees on Talbot street have been the cause of additional woe. After laboring nearly all yesterday afternoon, Ben Blackstock and Jim Harris finally persuaded the bees to behave, and they all clambered into the barrel. Ben closed them in with a box and other handy utensils, and then started out to dispose of his capture.

He met Mr. Obadiah Cannom on the market and sold him the swarm for $2. Mr. Cannom went to his home on the Hamilton road to get a hive and thus properly care for the honeymakers.

In the meantime, the owner of the bees had traced his hive to Talbot street and then to the market. As there was no person minding the troublesome insects, he put them in his wagon and took them home.

Mr. Cannom had paid Blackstock, but when he came back he tried in vain to find his bees. They were nowhere to be found, and he was informed that the rightful owner had taken them.

No person seemed to know who the latter was, and Mr. Cannom immediately looked up Ben Blackstock. The latter refused to disgorge the money, it is alleged, so Mr. Cannom is minus the bees and also the coin.

At the present time, the bees are busy at the home of their owner, while Mr. Cannom is industriously endeavoring to get his money back.

HAYS LOOKS OVER WEST

Grand Trunk Chief Pleased with the Crop Prospects.

Montreal, June 23. — Mr. C. M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk Pacific, arrived here from a trip to the coast. He was enthusiastic over a strictly conservative estimate of this year's wheat crop, as the result of the ideal weather conditions, although there was, of course, the fly in the ointment of a possible scarcity of labor when the harvest was ripe.

"As regards construction, I found everything progressing satisfactorily," said Mr. Hays, "and possibly because of the cessation of railroad building in the United States, we have not had the same difficulty in securing men as we had last year. I went seventy-three miles west of our divisional point, Edson, by rail on my way out, and 100 miles east of Prince Rupert on the return journey. We expect to give out the contracts for the last remaining link of some 400 miles immediately, while we will be well on to the summit of the mountains by the fall, and Mr. Chamberlain still tells me that the whole line will be completed in 1913."

RAILWAY MERGER NOT ILLEGAL

Southern and Union Pacific Roads Get Verdict in St. Louis Court.

[Canadian Press.]

St. Louis, June 24.—The merger of the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific railroads is legal according to an opinion handed down today by the United States circuit court.

Judge Hook filed a dissenting opinion, in which he expressed the belief that the Government's petition was well founded and should have been granted.

The Government's suit in equity against the Southern Pacific Railroad Company and the Union Pacific Railroad Company to enjoin the continued control of the former by the latter was started in Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 2, 1908.

The bill charged conspiracy and the formation of a combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, passed by congress to protect trade and commerce against unlawful monopolies.

FELIX MOTTL WEDS.

London, June 24. — The Standard prints the following from its Berlin correspondent:

Felix Mottl, conductor of the Munich Opera House, married Fraulein Fassninder, one of the foremost singers of that theatre, today.

The wedding took place in Mottl's bedroom, where he lies on what is feared may be his deathbed.

When Mottl became aware of his dangerous condition he insisted on the marriage being solemnized with all possible speed.

Mottl's breakdown is due partly to overwork and partly to mental worry in connection with his recent divorce from his first wife.

He is 56 years of age and his bride is 35.

MONARCHISTS FOILED

Portuguese Gunboats Head Off Attempt to Land Arms.

Lisbon, June 23. — A mysterious ship is cruising off the northern coast of Portugal. The vessel, which flies the German flag, appears to be the steamer Polute, loaded with arms, including artillery, destined for the Portuguese monarchists.

The Government cruiser Adamastor and the gunboat Zao Rafael interrupted the operations of the steamer while she was endeavoring to land the contraband on the coast of Algarve, the southernmost province of Portugal. The Polute then put to sea at full speed, with the warships in pursuit.

LONDON, SATURDAY, JUNE 24

MR. GERMAN REPUDIATED.

While Mr. Borden sings his song that Premier Laurier had no mandate for the reciprocity pact, the Welland constituents who returned Mr. German are showing him in plain, blunt fashion what they understand their mandate to him to have been. His parliamentary career is apparently over. That he has been the representative of Welland for twenty years in Legislature and Commons and has a hold on many affections, does not save him from the general wrath at his desertion of the cause of reciprocity in natural products.

At the convention of Welland Liberals to elect officers of the county association and choose the candidate for the Provincial Legislature, an opportunity was given to Mr. German to explain his position. He refused to recant and met with general opposition and some anger. It is unfortunate that a man of his ability and long public service should have got so much out of touch with his party and misjudged so widely the temper of his constituency.

Liberals ought to be the last to resent a conscientious independence in a representative, but the sort of independence which repudiates the fixed principles of the party makes an irreparable breach. The unfettering of trade in natural products has been a settled ideal of Liberalism for twenty years, the policy in fact of both parties. A defection like Mr. German's in the hour of fruition after long deferred hopes deserves a flagellation. He refuses to see the error of his ways. In a long speech he fought back, fiercely at bay. A renomination is impossible, as the meeting, led by Hon. Mr. Harcourt declared unanimously and with keen enthusiasm for the pact. Even repentance on Mr. German's part now would be suspicious. He has made his political bed, and must lie in it and probably die in it.

THE FAMILIAR DOUBLE GAME.

In its persevering policy of misrepresentation, the Toronto News published a cartoon the other day which pictures Messrs. Monk and Bourassa as singing a duet on the Imperial Conference, entitled, "Let Laurier Finish His Work." The evident intention is to play upon and work up an uninformed notion that the Premier has made a disloyal showing among the statesmen of the Empire. It is an appeal to a narrow and stupid prejudice, which has its seat and stronghold in Toronto.

The dishonesty of such a cartoon is shown at once by the attitude of Mr. Bourassa's paper, Le Devoir. It says:

"The longer one studies the situation as it has been developed at the conference, the more one is convinced that M. Laurier is cleverly busy hitching us to the imperialistic chariot. He in no way increases our autonomy, but renounces voluntarily the right of Canada to exercise some influence on the policy which makes and unmakes the treaties; in short, under the pretext of making a nation of us, he is pushing us toward 'crime and suicide,' towards 'the vortex of militarism,' which he denounced not long ago."

This utterance, ridiculous throughout, does not mean "Let Laurier finish his work," in Imperial Conferences, or in anything else. It would be a wilful falsehood to assert in the teeth of such an utterance that its author is Laurier's ally. Touchstone, classifying the grounds of honorable offence, would have no difficulty in placing in its proper category the only possible answer to the slander conveyed by the News' cartoon.

There is no alliance possible between Laurier and Bourassa, but war a l'outrance, because the Premier is proud of being a British subject, and is a Canadian before he is a Quebecker. It is Mr. Borden and Mr. Bourassa who have a sort of entente uncordial to the extent of baiting Laurier, though the chemical combination of two such gases is bound to produce an explosion.

Both the Toronto-Montreal school of Imperialism and the Quebec Nationalists are determined to make a party issue or campaign football of the Imperial relationship. They aim a nagging cross-fire at Sir Wilfrid Laurier's moderate, practical and broadly national policy. On the one hand is raised an emotional, red-fire appeal to French spirit against the "Imperialist," on the other it is sought to represent the Premier to a certain Toronto-Montreal constituency as a foe to the British connection. The only common ground to these sectional policies is the hatred of Laurier.

THE VALUE OF VACATION.

As the years fly past, men's views of life are broadening. They are more eager to suck from existence all the wholesome juices that it offers. Work, steady and effective, careful and artistic, is the most solid part of the banquet. But there are the garnishings of social pleasure, laughter and excitement, travel, sport, or searching nature, not to speak of rest and change of work itself. Everything to be enjoyed, even successful work and the praise for it, has to be provided with a setting of lesser and varied experiences. So life broadens.

Hence our modern demand for short hours and vacations. These do not necessarily lessen the total amount of production. After all the man who knows how to rest or relieve his labor accomplishes more in the year than the unremitting plodder. But most of all, the labor-saving devices are making it possible for an increase of production, coupled with a cut in the working hours, and in many occupations a fortnight's vacation with pay.

Is the fortnight enough? The Cincinnati Times put in a plea for a month's vacation. Such a period would enable many a toiler to get his worries clean out of mind, to brace up as by no tonic of pharmacy. It would be possible to see his native land and old places overseas, to be a larger man or woman. Teachers have their two months, other nerve-wracked workers should have at least one, and the time will gradually come when this may be realized.

So, too, with those actually engaged in the work of production and supply, the farmers, the milkmen, the railroad hands, the factory and foundry myriads, a community cannot be satisfied until all these shall at least have an assured and reasonable period of release from toil. Their sinews and nerves are healthy and in tune, but conditions do not easily allow one individual's work to be shifted for a time upon others. Old Atlas once had a holiday, it is related, when Hercules lifted the globe from his shoulders for a while; but no Hercules goes about lifting the burdens from the backs of toilers in shop and farm. Yet may the time soon come when all may have the luxury or the necessity of a vacation, a month whenever possible. The advance of machinery is helping towards this end, and education must never lose sight of the duty of preparing each individual to enjoy a holiday as well as to do his work.

Mr. German is perhaps surprised to discover that he no longer carries the riding of Welland in his vest pocket.

A coronation ceremony which makes no recognition of the prime minister of the country is much in need of being modernized.

United States Senator Gallinger says annexation is "an iridescent dream." Which shows that Gallinger is no dreamer.

The prophets concur in a wheat crop estimate of 200,000,000 bushels for Western Canada. Yet some politicians would try to shut the western farmers out of another wheat market.

Sir George Ross should not be forgotten for the part he has played in opening up the great north land.—London Free Press.

He played it against the ridicule and obstruction of the present occupants of the Ontario treasury benches and their newspaper supporters.

Mr. Armstrong, M. P. of East Lambton, is president of a company that sells large quantities of cream to the United States. According to Armstrong's anti-reciprocity theory, there would be danger in selling cheese to the United States, but there is none in selling cream.

Marie Corelli professes to see something incompatible between Britain's radical legislation and the popular demonstrations of affection for the sovereign. There is a lack of ordinary common sense in her failure to realize that the crown stands above and outside of party politics, and that it owes its security and popularity largely to that condition.

Police Constable Mills, who may have sacrificed his life to stop a runaway horse, is a new member of the force, but has already given more than one instance of his bravery. It will be a pity if so fine and fearless a young man meets death as the result of an act which, however gallant, was unnecessary. A runaway horse is not worth risking one's life for, unless other lives are to be saved.

HE WAS NO MOSSBACK.

[Washington Star.]

John Adams Thayer, publisher, once declared at a dinner in New York that when he was a printer he used to change his job six or seven times a year.

"I always bettered myself," said Mr. Thayer. "I always advanced my pay a dollar or more by every change. I remember a Boston foreman who said to me, when I told him I was leaving for Chicago:

"'Well, I suppose you'll get a job out there, but remember, boy, a rolling stone gathers no moss.'

"'Moss, sir,' I replied, 'is for ruins.'"

SOME PROGRESS MADE.

(Chicago Record-Herald.)

In New York people are worrying over the propriety of wearing detachable cuffs. They seem to have settled the celluloid collar problem there.

MAY HAVE LOST IT SO.

(Toledo Blade.)

"Nature knew what she was doing when she deprived fishes of a voice."

"How do you make that out?"

"What if a fish had to cackle every time it laid an egg."

$600 A PLATE.

(Boston Post.)

It is said that the supper given to the defeated English polo players at one of the gilded lobster palaces of New York the other evening cost $36,000, or at the rate of $600 a plate.

That sort of thing is nothing but shameful extravagance and waste. It does nothing for home industries. It simply advertises the folly and lack of good horse sense on the part of our youth with more money than brains. The only satisfactory thing about it is the reflection that such blatant exhibitions of squandering are not typical of our real American manhood.

AT NOON.

[Chicago News.]

He rushed into an eating place
With eager eye and open face,
And there with wonderous art he threw
Much food that open face into

Three scrambled eggs, a piece of pie
Ice cream and coffee on the fly;
Three doughnuts followed in a wink;
Ice water—hurry up!—to drink.

Away, away, the luncher flew!
Ten minutes wasted. Oh, mon Dieu!
And through the door with nerves at tense
He fairly sailed. Check, 30 cents.

HIS FLAG WAS UP.

(From Success Magazine.)

When the crowd assembled for their game of ball Johnnie, the pitcher, was missing. Jimmie was sent to investigate.

"Is Johnnie at home?" asked Jimmie of the sister who answered the knock.

"Course," answered the sister, "don't you see his shirt on the line?"

THE CUCKOO'S NEST.

(Youngstown Journal.)

The teacher was giving the youngsters a talk on natural history.

"The field sparrow builds its nest on the ground," she said; "the kingfisher digs into the side of a hill or bank and the woodpecker bores a hole in a tree. Now, can any little boy tell me where the cuckoo makes its home?"

A small lad in one of the back seats immediately replied:

"In a clock."

THAT'S SO.

Some men in elective capacities serve the city so long that they think they are the city. There's no use mentioning names.

TO THE NEW "ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITANNICA."

[Manchester Guardian.]

I do not want thee, tho' thy price
Proclaims an awful sacrifice
That cannot be repeated twice.

I cannot bear thine endless row
Of volumes all compiled to show
The many things I do not know.

I would thy seven days' grace had fled;
Thy pictures wander round my head
And haunt me when I go to bed.

I see those volumes—twenty-nine—
Arrayed in aggravating line,
Morocco-bound, maroon, and nine.

I see the bookshelf where they stand
In order ready to my hand,
And lighter works forever banned.

Soon will the fatal die be cast,
Those days of grace are speeding fast—
I would the thirty-first were past.

Here goes my guinea! creature come!
Descend upon me tome by tome,
And educate my blighted home!

THE OLD ROLLER TOWEL.

[Montreal Star.]

Traveling Man—"Landlord, wasn't that the same roller towel in the wash room that was hanging up last time that I was here?"

Landlord—"Same one, Billy, but you're a day ahead of your regular time. You didn't send me word you were comin'."

NOT "COMME IL FAUT."

[Toronto News.]

Lawyers are particularly requested to refrain from calling anyone a slab-sided, cross-eyed imitator of Ananias, unless the person referred to is in the witness box.

ALMOST SWORE.

[Hamilton Times.]

The Toronto Telegram almost swore on Saturday when it heard that Premier Asquith had thanked Premier Laurier for his valuable suggestions for knitting the empire together.

SURE OF IT.

[Lippincott's Magazine.]

Presbyterian Elder—Nae, my mon, there'll be nane o' they new-fangled methods in heaven.

[Philadelphia Telegraph.]

A comely young woman named Jane,
While walking was caught in the rain.
She ran—almost flew;
Her complexion did, too;
And she reached home exceedingly plain.

A CHANCE FOR A SWAP.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.]

"I see that the latest census figures show that there is in this country one horse for every five persons, and one pig for every two persons."

"Well, what of it?"

"Oh, nothing—only I'm willing to trade my fifth of a horse for your half of a pig."

THE SUPERIOR SEX.

[Buffalo News.]

Oh, the artfulness of women! When a collector calls on a man, the man makes him all sorts of promises. We ken of one who called on a woman yesterday, and she made him fix the door bell. That's the difference, women have more starch in their spine than men by all of a million per cent.

THIRTY-FIVE

[T. P.'s Weekly.]

I am come to thirty-five
Still on earth and still alive;
And I climb the hill today;
Once it seemed so far away.
Let me look behind—before—
Lest the half of life is o'er

I am come to thirty-five:
How the gathering graves do thrive!
These like leaves my comrades dropp'd,
Weeping, smiling, so they stopp'd.
I went on and sadder grew—
Lonelier work I had to do.

I am come to thirty-five:
I must set my will, and strive
Better, nobler things to do
In the days that yet are new
Be it wealth or be it wrack,
Not a step can I go back.

I am come to thirty-five:
I must keep the faith alive.
Sunset hues old paths illume.
Presently the dark, still tomb;
But beyond them both may be
Sunrise clear for such as me.

REIGN OF KING GEORGE HELPS WORLD'S PEACE

France Sees in the Coronation Stretching of Friendly Ties Throughout Europe.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, June 24.—A cable from Paris to the Tribune says:

A deepening of the world's peace, a strengthening of friendly ties throughout Europe, an earnest effort to forget the old grudges between nations—this is what the majority of the French statesmen, philosophers and writers expect during the reign of King George, emperor of a quarter of the globe.

Striking changes are noted in world politics since Edward's accession nine years ago. Then the Boer war was just concluded and the nations were watching one another, snarling with uncertainty. France, torn internally by the strife of church and state, cast indifferent eyes across the channel, knowing Edward as a frequent visitor to Paris, but expecting little of him as King.

Entente Cordial.

Hardly had the echoes of the coronation died away, however, when England, which had held aloof from European alliances, began to be overrun by rumors that England, France and Russia needed to band together against Germany. Despite the apparent indifference of France this programme actually was carried out in Edward's reign.

That the entente cordiale has not been weakened by the time was shown by the unusual sight yesterday of the entire French capital aflutter with the crossed French and British flags, as if the coronation of Britain's King made a national holiday in France. George's known intention to increase the friendliness between England and Germany has not shaken France's confidence, and may even react in the establishment of a better feeling between France and Germany. Paris does not know the "sailor king" as it knew his father. His type of Anglo-Saxon character is understood with difficulty, although it is cordially respected in France.

LOST NO TIME IN GETTING OUT OF COURT

George Garlick Did Not Attempt to Make Charges Against High Constable Hughes.

George Garlick, the young man, who it is alleged, had attempted to secure a settlement from High Constable Hughes for injuries which he said the officer had inflicted upon him while he lay in the ditch on the Governor's road, near Crumlin, a couple of weeks ago, appeared before Squire Chittick at the court house yesterday afternoon on a charge of drunkenness, but the looked-for sensation did not materialize. The prisoner pleaded guilty and was allowed to go upon paying a fine and costs amounting to $7.

About twenty witnesses had been called in the case to prove that Garlick was drunk, and that in struggling about he cut his own face. He said nothing regarding his claim for damages in court, but made a hasty exit.

216 Dundas Street

Doctors, Judges, Lawyers, Ministers and Well-Known Business-men Among Those Now Testing This Great Remedy.

Everybody Interested

Dr. Munyon Claims His Remedy Will Not Only Cure All Forms of Indigestion, Constipation and Stomach Troubles, But Will Add Years to the Average of Life.

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills Are to the Human Body What Oil Is to Machinery.

As we expected, a large crowd thronged the store of the above-named chemists all day to obtain Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills. Among the crowd were some of our best known citizens—half a dozen doctors obtained samples. One of them volunteered the remark that he had heard of the curative qualities of the remedy, and would give it a thorough trial. One of our leading lawyers took a dose before he left the store, and said that "he expected now to live as long as Methuselah did." Most people seem to have an abiding faith in these pills, believing they are going to be cured.

One old gentleman said that he believed in Munyon and in Munyon's Remedy; that Munyon's Rheumatism Cure had cured him of a chronic case of Rheumatism that afflicted him for more than fifteen years.

Another gentleman said if this remedy is as good as his Kidney Cure, it should find its way into every home in Canada, as Munyon's Kidney Cure had cured him of a bad case of kidney ailment.

Dr. Munyon would possibly have felt a little abashed could he have heard the warm praises that a well-dressed lady showered upon his family remedies, which she said she kept continually in the house.

The crowd was so great at times that the attendant was unable to hand out the boxes fast enough, and one or two bystanders were called in to aid him.

We hope that every person who suffers with constipation, dyspepsia, or has anything the matter with his stomach, or any one who is nervous or cannot sleep, will obtain a free sample.

We would say to those who are unable to call for this free package that this remedy is for sale in all the drug stores throughout the Dominion.

PRICE OF PAW-PAW LAXATIVE PILLS, 25 CENTS.

The proprietors of the drug store, Messrs. Cairncross & Lawrence, will be pleased to hear directly from any person benefitted by the sample of Paw-Paw Pills given away from their store.

This great free distribution closes positively on Saturday evening. Do not fail to call if interested at the above-mentioned store. All are welcome.

Correspondence

Edited by Cynthia Grey.

Dear Miss Grey: Would you be so kind as to tell me of a simple shampoo for my hair? I have such a lot of hair, down to my knees, and so thick that it is impossible for me to wash it myself. I was told to have a barber shampoo it for me, and I did, but it was so sticky afterwards. It has been always light, but is turning dark. Do you think the shampoo made it turn darker? Would you advise me to have some of it cut off. But the more hair you have these days the better, it seems to me. I am twenty-two years of age. I hope I have not tired you. Yours truly, ETHEL.

A.—By no means part with any of your "love-locks" you may well be proud of their growth. The shampoo given by the barber could not have been properly done, or it would not have made the hair sticky. Try this shampoo: Beat the yolk of one egg with an ounce of spirits of rosemary, into a pint of hot rain water. Use while still warm. If you braid your hair very loosely before washing it may make it easier handled.

Dear Miss Grey: I have a fern for three or four years, and it grows only in little shoots at a time. I have heard say to wash the roots and spread them out would help it. Do you think it is possible or best to run a house by system? I have tried and failed, as each day brings different duties.
WORRIED.

A.—Yes, I do. That is really the only way to run the house. It is easier for the housekeeper, in the first place. It simplifies the daily duties and gives more time to devote to the new duties which come up each day. Each housekeeper must systematize according to her own capacity and endurance, and never must she use up her strength each day. In order to run a house on business principles, each member of the household must have his share in keeping the machinery going. The wife and mother should never be a slave for husband and children, which is a rut easy to get into and almost impossible to leave.

Dear Miss Grey: How can I launder a flattering dresser scarf to get best results? M. A. C.

A.—Wash in warm suds, rinse, and pin each lace point to a firm surface to dry. If there is a plain linen centre, iron that dry first, then pin lace. Do not iron lace.

Dear Miss Grey: What will set the color in plain blue, pink and brown, also plaid, containing yellow and green? A MOTHER.

A.—The color in all cotton goods may be fixed by soaking in an alum solution for an hour. Use one ounce powdered alum to half a gallon of cold water.

PLACE CARDS FOR WEDDINGS.

Many new ideas there are to be had for the looking. Fashionable stationers keep designers busy and one is always sure to find something new.

Cupid up in an airship is surely up to date.

So, too, is a fat and rosy little Cupid propelling an aeroplane.

These are not so large as to be unattractive and are not very expensive, either.

Then there is the ever popular bride and bridegroom place cards, with the new matron hanging devotedly upon her brand new husband's arm, while the little love god hollows long behind, wearing a bland and beaming smile.

Another new conceit is the sailor Cupid—a wee tar, dressed in wings, smile and sailor cap perched on top of a round life preserver.

But there are the more conventional ideas, also—wedding bells, lilies of the valley, wedding rings and hearts a plenty.

SOME FASHIONS FOR MIDSUMMER

To the disappointment of a few, and to the pleasure of many—spring styles will practically be continued throughout the summer. This, however, will bring a change in the usual midsummer modes of several years.

Every style is governed by simplicity, whether it is a morning frock, evening gown or chapeau, although simplicity has been in high form during the winter and spring, it will be more popular and charming in summer styles, as the lovely, fairy-like fabrics lend themselves to its perfection.

Millinery.

It is impossible to define the keynote of midsummer millinery. As usual, all the famous creators of chats in Paris have interpreted the new modes so differently. One favors large, flat hats, another insists upon the vogue of "pyramid" hats, others say that small hats will be worn throughout the summer. But there is one thing certain, flowers will be the favorite trimming.

Tagal hemp hats continue to keep "first place," as there is no more desirable straw from the viewpoint of either style or durability. White and light colors are much used, although black is well represented among the new hats. This charming straw is equally appropriate for tailored hats, as it is for chapeaux laden with delicious flowers, or superb plumes. These hats are very frequently covered on top, or faced with satin, crepe de chine or crepe chiffon—sometimes in black, a contrasting color or same color tone.

Leghorn Hats.

Leghorn hats are endeavoring to be popular, and, fortunately, the vogue has been successful to a degree. Quite the prettiest leghorns (fine Italian weaves) are in a deep sunburst shade almost red. And the weave is heavier and more attractive. One of the prettiest leghorn hats I have seen was a large roll brim style, edged with natter blue silk under a flating of ecru thread lace—the same encircled the crown, and two American Beauty roses added the final touch of charm. Leghorn hats are also simply trimmed with bows of velvet or silk—and to such a severe degree that they are typical tailored hats.

This reminds me to mention that Panama hats were never more chic. So many smart styles in small shapes with roll brims. Trimmings, of course, are very simple—sometimes an ostrich brush or a coque pompon is the only adornment, although scarfs of satin or pique are much used.

Lingerie Hats.

Lingerie hats show the most decided changes in millinery. Indeed, the modes of 1911 but slightly resemble those of a few years ago. The most unique styles are fashioned after Dutch and Empire bonnets—sometimes of dainty silk covered with rows and rows of narrow Valenciennes lace ruffles, with tiny rosebuds peeping through here and there. Garlands of gamint flowers and artistic bows of ribbon are favorite trimmings. Modified mushrooms and straight-brim hats with high directoire crowns are also included in the lingerie category.

Heavy thread laces—filet, ebny and Irish—adorn many of the new hats.

Sailor hats have already become so popular that they will soon be passe.

The situation in frocks is very unusual. The dress that we have always called "lingerie"—that creation of lawn or batiste—with its many tucks, elaborate lace trimmings and deep flounce—has had to step aside for the charming new modes.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

BY CLIVE PHILLIPS WOLLEY, Auther of "Gold, Gold in Cariboo," etc.

[All Rights Reserved.]

CHAPTER XV.

"Well, I'm Blanked!" Protheroe, you infernal drunken fool, come back! Come back, I say! You'll drown sure!"

But Protheroe took no notice of Jim's frantic efforts. The first of waves which was already about his waist, and seemed to be climbing to his ears, he could hear nothing from the shore which he had left, and if he had done so he had sense enough to know that it would have been more dangerous to try to turn back than to go on.

Jim saw that himself, as the words left his lips, and it is the fashion of human beings in dire straits to cry for the impossible. And Jim was at worst strait that the doctor. In the swirl at his feet Cody were two small objects somewhat darker than the heaving darkness around them. They might well have been pieces of drift wood being hustled down stream, but to Jim they would be in that dreary future in front of him the horse he rode and the man he rescued.

And the unsteady lights of the Soda Creek lanterns were dancing along the river's course coming down stream towards him, nearer and nearer, until he could hear the voices of those who carried them, in spite of the noise of the waters.

With a curse he swung himself into the saddle and, wrenching the horse's head around viciously, he galloped up stream for fifty yards, over a chaos of slippery boulders.

Then he turned his horse's head towards the river and drove his spurs home, but though the colt's spirit was broken by bitter hard work, his instinct revolted from this new peril, and he rose fighting and pawing the air on the very edge of the flood.

It was only vain. The man's blood was up, and the ice-coated boulders gave the beast no foothold. With a crash the two went into the river, the horse on its side, while the man, thrown clear of his mount, disappeared some feet down stream of him.

Twice the beast was turned over in the flood, and for a few moments the water swept over the man, but before either had been drifted to the level of Protheroe, Jim had regained his horse's head, and, twisting the fingers of one hand in the beast's long mane, swam steadily on the down stream side of it.

Once he had his head above water, the colt swam superbly, driving against the current with all the energy of young life battling against death, so that before they had half crossed from shore to shore, Jim and his horse were level with Protheroe, and making some sort of a breakwater for him.

But it was not enough. The doctor was still in the saddle, and Combe could see the latter's head sinking lower and lower. If the doctor stayed where he was, the horse, embarrassed by his weight, must drown, and in spite of his efforts Combe could not make his voice heard in that swirl of waters. On the bank, the noise was as the indistinct roar of a mob, but in midstream each voice became distinct, individual, and all hostile.

He heard the waves roaring at him, he could feel the under-current pulling separately at him, he knew what they wanted, and the fury and the number of them daunted him.

His only chance was to cling to his horse; his only hope of saving Protheroe seemed to be to let go, and if possible drag the doctor out of his saddle.

But at the last moment Protheroe seemed to realize what was required of him, and slid out of the saddle, holding on to his horse's mane, and swimming as Jim swam.

By this time both horses had drifted below the level of the ferry, which was now crowding with men, gesticulating and apparently shouting to the two in the water, and some of the most sober among the lantern-bearers having got the ferry out toward midstream, were endeavoring to let a rope down towards the doctor.

But it was hopeless fishing. The line was not long enough, and the casting of it inaccurate. Neither Jim nor the doctor attempted to avail themselves of it.

Side by side, stunned by the noise around them, they battled with the Fraser, while, though the farther bank seemed to come no nearer, the red lights of Soda Creek grew more dim and distant, and the figures on the ferry more indistinct.

Luckily for the swimmers there was even less ice in the river than there had been in the morning when Combe crossed it. The frost had not held in the upper country through which flow the tributaries that supply the Fraser with its first rush of ice, but there was enough of it to add to their difficulties.

Suddenly the light of Soda Creek went out altogether, and the dancing lanterns on the ferry disappeared, and at the same time a new sound—frank upon their ears, and more distinct with every second that passed.

They had drifted past a bend in the river, and at the next, to which they were being hurried, the ice was packing. If they got into that pack before reaching the further shore, it would be the end of them. The horses, spent already, must go under in the churning and grinding ice.

Straining his eyes to the utmost, Combe thought that he could just distinguish the line of the further bank. It was nearer than the ice pack which he could hear in the dark below him, but was it near enough? They were being carried down stream many yards for every foot which they made in the direction of the shore. It was just one of those positions to which death is made doubly hard, by the temptation to struggle against it. Death itself is probably not so very dreadful. Nature is full of bogies to coerce her wilful children, and the last bogie of all, used hardly to make us plan our escape even to the end, is possibly the most gentle fraud among them, but that struggle in the dark against the irresistible waters, with life and safety so near at hand, was a fine bogey, and at the very climax of it, Jim's horse gave in and turned its head down stream.

In a moment they were racing towards their death. After all that long stubborn fight against the stream, with the shore almost within reach, the failure of the roan's courage had ruined them. If he had been alone it is possible the Combe would have given in then and drifted down quietly to his death, rather than fight longer against the inevitable, but the sight of the other man still struggling and obviously spent, roused him to one more effort.

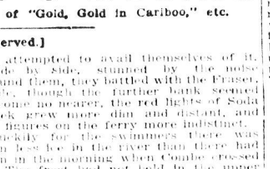

It was useless to shout to the horse, but with his free hand he managed to strike it in the face and drag its head almost under with the other, until in despair the beast turned up stream again. But it was too late. Jim knew it, for he could hear the ice smashing almost at his heels, and he only struck out still from a stubborn determination to fight to the last inch.

His reward exceeded his hopes. Since he plunged into the Fraser it had seemed to Combe that he and his horse by immense efforts had just managed to remain stationary upon a plane of sliding water, which carried them towards the ice pack, but now for the first time the long bank—which had bored down upon him, pushing him always nearer and nearer to eternity, began to forge ahead. There was no doubt of it.

IN THE GLADSOME PICNIC TIME, 'TIS WELL TO PUT LOTS OF SANDWICHES IN THE BASKET

When summer sun is shining (and good and hot, at that), picnic time is here. There's no mistaking the signs of the season when you get that feeling that the house is too warm a place to bide in, and the yard is too suggestive of weeding and mowing and straightening up. To the woods, to the park, with pa toting the basket filled with dandy "eats," and the youngsters just wild to be turned loose under the shady trees on soft green grass.

Then there's the lunch spread on the ground for pa and ma, and the youngsters, too, and maybe Sis brings her best beau along. Quite the most important thing, the basket divulges are the sandwiches, and ma should remember to prepare plenty of them, for what is a picnic without sandwiches?

Sandwiches made by cutting white bread into thin slices, spreading them with a paste of cream cheese and pimentoes, and putting them together with a lettuce leaf, are dainty and nourishing. The pimentoes should be chopped rather fine, and the spread should be a quarter of an inch thick.

Another sandwich made to gratify and satisfy the appetite has ham and eggs as the filling. Take hard-boiled eggs, chop the white and run the yolks through a colander. Grind the ham. Mix the yolks and ham together and moisten with mayonnaise. Spread on the bread and sprinkle over the chopped whites, then season. Press together firmly. The mayonnaise may be omitted if desired.

Chicken sandwiches may have the meat chopped and mixed with shredded lettuce, chopped nuts and mayonnaise, or simply sliced, salted and peppered, and put together with a lettuce leaf. Plenty of black pepper and a generous spread of butter is the secret of good, plain, sliced chicken sandwiches.

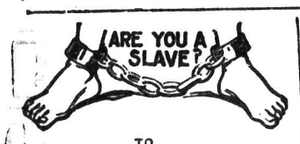

Brown bread, to be used for sandwiches, is best steamed in one pound baking powder boxes. Spread and cut bread as for other sandwiches. Put between layers finely chopped peanuts seasoned with salt, or grated cheese mixed with chopped English walnut meat seasoned with salt.

Fruit Sandwiches—Remove stems and chop figs finely; add a small quantity of water, cook in double boiler until a paste is formed, then add a few drops of lemon juice. Cool mixture and spread on thin slices of buttered bread; sprinkle with finely chopped peanuts and cover with buttered bread

When mother and the youngsters ask father to go with them for a little picnic party, there is one kind of 'em who says this:

"What's the use of going away to a picnic? Throw the dining-room table out and spread the dinner on the floor, then let all the flies in, throw some dust on the sandwiches, sprinkle a few ants in the water, turn the hose on ourselves to remind us of the rain which invariably comes when we are farthest from shelter, and cap it off by crowding in the pantry and hanging to the shelves for the usual time it takes us to ride home on the car. Nix on any picnic for me!"

RECIPROCITY'S FATE THE ONE BIG TOPIC

Senator Bailey To Press Rider, Adding Free List Provisions.

Washington, June 23.—A declaration for straight reciprocity at an informal conference of a dozen Democratic senators willing to vote down all amendments to the bill, an amendment by Senator Bailey adding to the reciprocity measure all the house free list provisions, except meats and grain products, a unanimous decision of the senate to vote Monday on the Root amendment to the wood pulp and paper schedule. These were features in the reciprocity fight today. But there were no speeches on the subject in the senate and the activity was confined to the office rooms and cloak rooms, where reciprocity was the uppermost topic.

Senator Bailey announced his intention to press his amendment vigorously. While looking forward to the addition of some of the tariff provisions to the Canadian bill he admitted that such action probably would come only as the result of a prolonged struggle. Another tariff amendment, this one to the free list bill, was presented by Senator Clapp, to add to the free list, alum, chloride of lime, aniline products, ultra-marine, vermillion, rosin, soda ash, sulphur, china clay or kaolin, woolen felts or jackets, and brass or copper wire cloth.

The informal conference was held in the office of Senator Smith, of South Carolina. Mr Smith was outspoken in opposition to amendments, and he and John Sharp Williams united with Senator Stone in declaring that it was unwise to risk reciprocity for something more which would render all uncertain.

THE WEST A UNIT FOR RECIPROCITY

Mr. Borden's Tour Not Changing the Views.

ALL INDORSE THE PACT

Opposition Leader Has Assumed a Defiant Attitude Towards the Western Voters.

Medicine Hat, Alta., June 22. — Mr. Borden tonight started in on Alberta at Medicine Hat. So far as Saskatchewan is concerned, it is apparent that the anti-reciprocity seed for the most part has fallen by the wayside or on stony ground. The soil, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier found out alst year, demands low tariff or free trade seed. Mr. Borden has assumed practically a defiant attitude, and at every meeting has declared that he would retire from public life rather than support the Government's proposals for freer trade wtih the United States to depart from the Conservative policy of adequate protection, as modified from time to time by the findings of the proposed permanent and non-partisan tariff board. His declaration of policy has been everywhere received wtih a courteous, attentive hearing, but without any very enthusiastic response.

Can't Change West.

The West has heard him, and as far as one may judge from the temper of the audience, has declined to change its mind. At Regina last night an audience of a little over two thousand gave the Conservative leader a cordial reception, but the contrast, both in numbers and in enthusiasm, to the meeting held there last summer by Sir Wilfrid Laurier was a matter of general comment. Mr. Bordens' promises with regard to Government operation of the Hudson Bay Railway and of the terminal elevators and his policy of handing over all the public domain to the Provincial Administration are applauded. But on the paramount issue of reciprocity, on which the result of the coming election will hang, Mr. Borden's appeal gets no swing of victory cheers. The most faithful of his supporters in Saskatchewan are only warm in their support on this issue. One hears of many leading Conservatives who will not vote for reciprocity.

A Clean Sweep.

Messrs. Turiff, Knowles and Martin, the Southern Saskatchewan M. P.'s, confidently assert that there will be a clean Liberal sweep in this province at the next election, and that Mr. Borden might just as well save his voice and his energy, so far as Saskatchewan is concerned. That seems to bealso the general concensus of opinion in the Province. The chief effect of the tour is apparently the rallying of the old-time Conservatives and the preventing of a general stampede. Anti-reciprocity literature is being generously distributed, and having, together with Mr. Borden's meetings, considerable effect in securing a hearing for the other side of the case.

Mr. oBrden, with his special train and elaborate advertising, is creating more of an impression than when he came five years ago on his last tour under humbler circumstances, but the handicaps are too great for him to overcome. He has had practically no support from the provincial Conservative leaders. Mr. Haultain put in a belated appearance at last night's meeting, but preserved a discreet and eloquent silence. The board of trade, booming Regina, whose population has doubled in less than five years, and where fortunes in real estate are made overnight, has, with only two dissenting votes, declared in favor of reciprocity. With the exception of a few Conservative local organizations, every representative association or organization in the province that has spoken has heartily indorsd the agreement.

Those who should be able to speak for Alberta say that practically the same conditions prevail in this province.

Today Mr. Borden's special travelled 150 miles across Mr. Knowles' constituency of Moose Jaw, which is in itself about as large as the whole Province of Nova Scotia. It has considerably more than trebled its population in the past ten years, and probably half the electors don't know their member. It should make three good-sized constituencies after the coming redistribution.

This afternoon Mr. Borden gathered about two hundred of Mr. Knowles' constituents at an open-air meeting in a grove at Maple Creek. The town claims about 1,500 inhabitants. Not oneman in six bothered going to hear the federal Conservative leader. The applause which marked the conclusion of his speech was about equal to that which marks the close of the chairman's address at a church social. However, Mr. Borden was not at his best and did not exert himself. He introduced no new matter in his half-hour address. He noted with pleasure the large attendance of ladies and babies, and observed that there were no signs of race suicide in the West. He repeated his statement that in the last two general elections the manufacturers had contributed more liberally to the Liberal than to the Conservative campaign fund. Messrs. Brodeur and Bergeron also spoke, and Mr. Sydney Roe, the Montreal Gazette correspondent on the press car, got the heartiest applause of the meeting by giving one of the Ottawa press gallery songs, the parody on the reciprocity pact.

ONLY CRUMBLED BONES.

Havana, June 23. — Silver from the officers' mess and a large quantity of crockery, unbroken, but covered with barnacles, were found in the hull of the battleship Maine today.

The crumbled bones of a number of victims were also found. The water disintegrated and the coral insects incrusted them to such an extent that it is difficult to ascertain precisely how many of the unfortunates are represented.

Several pieces of clothing were unearthed. In Capt. Sigsbee's quarters the searchers discovered a uniform coat probably discarded by that officer shortly before the explosion, as it was not in a wardrobe.

The presence of this coat effectually disposes of the statement several times made, but always denied, that Capt. Sigsbee was not aboard the Maine when the explosion occurred. On the evening of the disaster he attended a dinner, but returned to the ship.

WELLAND LIBS. FOR AGREEMENT

"Fielding the Farmers' Friend," Cry at Convention.

A CLASH WITH GERMAN

Standing Vote in Favor of Reciprocity Passed With Great Enthusiasm.

Welland, June 23.—"That this convention hereby heartily indorse the reciprocity pact now before Parliament, pledges itself to support the Government in carrying it into effect, and desires to emphasize its continued and fullest confidence in the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

By a standing vote and with a remarkable display of enthusiasm, this sweeping pro-reciprocity resolution was passed by the Liberals of Welland in their convention today in the face of the position and pleadings of Mr. W. M. German, M.P., the sitting member, and one of the three Liberal members who opposed the reciprocity agreement in the parliamentary debate at Ottawa. This was Mr. German's first appearance before his party convention since his "bolt" on this question. The resolution was submitted by Hon. Richard Harcourt and Mr. J. F. Beam.

"The motion is carried unanimously," was the announcement of President J. H. Crow, who occupied the chair.

Mr. German Defiant.

Mr. German had a severe task. He stood his ground boldly, at times almost defiantly, but the cordiality with which he was greeted at the outset chilled as the breach widened, interruptions became insistent, even acrimonious. Withal, the sentiments of a score of years occasionally found outlet. His declaration that he took no stock in the annexation talk of the anti-reciprocity campaign was almost drowned in a roar of applause, all the more emphatic because cheering was at a premium from the patently dissatisfied gathering. For over an hour the big parliamentarian argued and pleaded his case without avail. Finally he concluded: "This is not a pleasant or an easy position. I was never confronted with such a hard task before. I am sorry that we, who are friends and fellow-workers of so many years' standing, can no longer see eye to eye on this matter. But the people rule, though the King may govern. If I never set foot again in the House of Commons I have consciousness that I have done my duty to myself and my duty as I believe it to my country. I leave my political welfare or otherwise to the people of Welland. I have won six elections as your candidate. I know how you have stood by me and fought for me. Whatever my fate in future, I shall never forget the friends of the past. And I shall hope to regain that friendship when the clouds of reciprocity roll by and the sun shines again in the blue sky of Canadian prosperity."

There was ominous significance in certain of the exchanges between member and constituent that indicated a serious trend of public sentiment which the character of the anti-reciprocity campaign is arousing. Arguing that tariff changes caused lack of business confidence, Mr. German asked: "What creates landslides of hard times in finance?"

"Just these corporations and trusts that are fighting reciprocity," shot back a farmer at the rear, amid applause.

Another expressed regret that the member was aligning himself "with the trusts and the Tories," and urged that he stay with the farmers, who were his friends.

"I hold no brief for the manufacturers or corporations," declared Mr. German indignantly.

A moment later he referred to the fact that Mr. Flavelle and the pork-packers had appealed unsuccessfully to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mr. Fielding. If reciprocity went through it would put them out of business.

"Then put them out," shouted another voice, amid cheers and commotion. "We want no meat trust."

"Toronto millionaires, Grit or Tory, have no right to dictate to us," exclaimed another.

Several shouted questions at once. Finally Mr. Charles Priestman got the floor. "They've all made their millions, haven't they?" he queried. "Tell us what this man Flavelle is worth, and how much of it he made out of protection at our expense."

Mr. German answered warmly. "I think he is a wealthy man, but I do not know that he made it all in the pork-packing business. I care not whether the man is poor or rich, I say it is a narrow, prejudiced and unpatriotic position to take. I don't begrudge any man his success and good fortune. I say that a policy which destroys any legitimate business is a detriment to the country. And I hold no brief for the meat-packers."

"Fielding's the friend of the farmer," volunteered another voice, amid the commotion, "not the estimable sirs."

When Mr. German concluded he left the convention, without waiting for the final proceedings. Mr. George B. Lundy, Stamford Township, stopped him. "We have voted unanimously in opposition to what you advocate," said he. "What are you going to do with our mandate? Are you going to represent us or misrepresent us or get out of the way?"

There was a pause, which was almost painful. Then the fighting instinct returned to the member. "I never misrepresented anybody," he retorted, "and I never got out of the way of anybody." With that he left the hall.

WIRELESS WATCH HIS PREDICTION

Manufacturer Says the Present Pocket Timepieces Must Go Soon.

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—Gold and silver watches soon will be melted for the precious metal which they contain, according to a prophecy made today at the jewelers' convention by Chas. Higgenbotham, of South Bend, Ind.

A great system of central clocks, absolutely correct and connected by wireless electric waves with individual timepieces carried in men's vest pockets will supersede the present regime of individual watches, in the opinion of Higgenbotham, who is superintendent of a South Bend watch company.

"In a few years the man who wants to know the time will take a dial from his pocket, something like the watch which he carries now," said Mr. Higgenbotham, "but instead of looking at the dial and figuring out how slow or fast the watch is running he will simply press a button on the watch and the waves of electricity from a controlling clock, perhaps many miles away, will spin the needles around to the proper position and show him the correct time.

"Such a timepiece will be simple, as probably only a few wheels will be needed for the 'works,' thus making the price low and the probability of its needing repairs or other attention slight. It will work with the simplicity of a telegraph key."

ROW IS STARTED OVER CATHEDRAL

Trustees of St. John the Divine Abruptly Dismiss Architect C. Grant La Farge.

New York, June 22. — A report that almost subversive changes are to be made in the plans for the completed cathedral of St. John the Divine, Morningside Heights, followed today an announcement by Dean William Grosvenor, chairman of the building committee of the board of trustees of the great Episcopalian edifice now less than one-third completed, that Ralph Adams Cram had been retained as consulting architect in place of C. Grant La Farge, who with the late George L. Heins, made the plans for the cathedral.

News of the changes that are to be made in the original cathedral plans by the architect who has just succeeded to Mr. La Farge's place divided interest in the offices of the city's prominent architects with the report that the ethical status of Mr. Cram's acceptance of the position from which Mr. La Farge was ousted without warning, will be presented before the executive committee of the American Institute of Architects, now in session in Washington. Mr. La Farge's partner, Benjamin W. Morris, said that so far as he had been able to hear from Mr. La Farge, who is now abroad, no protest against Mr. Cram's acceptance of the position which he has lost will be entered by him. It was learned that a disinterested third party will present the question to the executive committee of the architect's association.

Accepting Dean Grosvenor's announcement of radical changes to be made in the La Farge plans, architects are of the opinion that the cathedral has progressed so far toward completion that if the building committee should dictate to Mr. Cram any great departure from the scheme laid down by La Farge the new consulting architect will find it difficult to comply without endangering the artistic whole as conceived by the original architect.

"The Heins-La Farge plan for the cathedral has not been closely followed," Dean Grosvenor said.

"In that part of the structure already completed there is not a single window where it appears on the original plans. In future there will be a still wider departure. No one can say now how the cathedral will look when completed. That is 50 years off."

Dissatisfaction with Mr. La Farge's plans and work had been growing in the building committee for some time past. The matter in disagreement was an architectural one at all times. Certain members of the building committee found fault with many of the details of Mr. La Farge's scheme as they were worked out on the grounds of artistic effect and practicability.

COUNTESS CASSINI WED SOCIETY IS SUPRISED

Spirited Friend of Mrs. Alice Longworth Become Bride at St. Petersburg.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The foreign mail which came to society people and members of the diplomatic set this morning brought the greatest surprise of the year. The Countess Marguerite Cassini, formerly the closest friend of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, has been married to Alexander Le Jewski, attache at the chancellery of the council of ministers at St. Petersburg.

The announcement came in formal fashion from Count Cassini, uncle of the bride, who was formerly Russian ambassador to the United States.

Washington friends of the spirited little countess had not the slightest warning that she contemplated matrimony. They have been smiling for a week over the story from Paris that the countess' love for the chafing dish and its fattening foods had ruined her operatic career.

The verdict of the teacups this afternoon, however, was that the surprise was just what might be expected from the countess. When she was hostess of the Russian embassy she gave Washington many surprises, and her merry pranks will long be remembered. Le Jewski, the bridegroom, is not known here, but he will come in for no end of congratulations.

LATENT PHTHISIS SAVES

Most Poor Children Have It, But Are Made Immune.

Denver, Col., June 23.—That practically all children in the poorer classes of society are affected with tuberculosis in latent form, but that this latent infection gives in most cases an immunity against fatal tuberculosis in later years, was the statement of Dr. William H. Welch, of Baltimore, here today. Dr. Welch spoke on this subject in his annual address as president of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which opened its seventh annual convention here today.

In the afternoon the sociological section of the convention discussed "The Child and the School." Among the papers read was one by Dr. W. A. Evans, former health commissioner of Chicago.

Tonight a meeting of the advisory council discussed "Official Responsibility in the Tuberculosis Problem," after whicha meeting of the new board of directors was held to select officers for the ensuing year.

HIGHEST OF HOTELS

Plans Being Drawn For a 24-Story Building in New York.

New York, June 22.—New York is to have a big new hotel at the northeast corner of Seventh avenue and Thirty-seventh street, says the New York Sun. It will be 24 stories high and will cost about $4,000,000. The building will be put up by a syndicate of bankers, who are represented by L. M. Reniach & Co. and Preston S. Faust.

The site measures 98.9 feet on Seventh avenue, and on Thirty-seventh street it extends toward Broadway 244 feet. The syndicate paid $1,350,000 for the property.

A prominent hotelkeeper has arranged to lease the structure for 84 years. The lease is arranged in four periods of 21 years each. For the first 21 years the lessee is to pay $350,000 a year. The rent to be paid for the renewals will be based on 5 per cent. of the appraised value of the property at the expiration of each period. It is estimated that the aggregate rental for 84 years will be more than $30,000,000.

The structure will be two stories higher than the Greeley Square Hotel, now building, but in area it will be smaller. It will contain 1,200 rooms, or 200 rooms more than is in the Waldorf-Astoria. Each room will be provided with a bath and will have southern exposure, which is one of the features of the structure. This is made possible by the construction of three courts in the facade of the building, which will divide it into four sections. Each court or opening will be 22x71 feet.

On either side of the rotunda on the main floor will be the dining-room, cafe, waiting room and private dining-rooms. The public dining-room will have a floor space of 100x100 and a balcony.

It is estimated that 1,000 diners may be accommodated there. In the rear of the hotel office will be eight high-speed passenger elevators. The rotunda will be reached from Seventh avenue and from Thirty-seventh street. One entire floor is to be given over to a banquet hall and a breakfast room.

The women voters of Washington State have formed a committee to defend themselves from misrepresentation by persons opposed to woman suffrage. At a meeting held the other day at Seattle representatives of the suffrage clubs of the state organized the committee, which consists of one representative from each of the suffrage clubs, and is especially to reply to untrue statements "regarding any control of the votes of women in favor of any particular candidate or party."

Kansas is one of the three states which have no women dentists. The other two are North Carolina and Idaho. This is somewhat unusual for Kansas, where municipal suffrage prevails, where nearly one-half of the county superintendents are women, where 10,000 out of 12,000 teachers are women, where the only woman in the world is probate judge and where more woman's rights laws grace the statutes than in any other state of the Union.

JOHNSON'S CREW MAULED BY KEENAN'S SLUGGERS

Londoners Came From Behind 5 to 2 Lead of Visitors and Won.

SCORED SIX IN FINAL ROUND

Fryer, Orth and Muir Unable To Hold Runaway Tecumsehs—Score 13 to 6.

Slamming, hammering, hitting and mauling the offerings of three of Abbie Johnson's twirlers to all corners of Tecumseh Park yesterday afternoon in the first match of a two-game series with Guelph, London pulled out of a conflict that toward the finish developed into a slugging bee, the like of which had not previously been witnessed in the Canadian League. The battle ended with the count 13 to 6. Incidentally the Tecumsehs fattened the batting averages and caused attacks of charley horse among the Maple Leaf gardeners.

Matt Hynes commenced the festivities for London after a couple of weeks of idleness, and was touched up rather freely during his five-inning stay on the mound.

The Leafs offered Fryer, who was with them some time ago, but who has since been tried out by about half the towns of the circuit, but promptly derricked him when the first three men up found his offerings with ease. Orth succeeded him, and for five innings retired his opponents in order, not a man reaching the first sack in safety.

Muir to the Rescue.

Then his Wilbur Wright occurred, and a procession started around the paths. Muir, who was working middle garden, went to the rescue, and fared little better. Johnson ordered his one remaining twirler, Mason, to warm up, but before he could enter, the battle was too far gone.

Doubles were numerous, while Brant, whose running members are still in bad shape, was able to negotiate three-quarters of the circuit on a beautiful drive to the fence. Lane, the big first-sacker of the visiting crew, put one through Pancratz for a home run, but the paths were clear at the time.

Andy Kyle again came through with a sensational catch easily the equal of that famous play of a few days ago when he pulled the pill off the fence boards. Yesterday he hauled down a foul to deep left by a brilliant running one-hand catch. He made valiant tries for others equally as difficult, but owing to the rough ground was unable to turn the trick.

"Chucker" Dunn, an erstwhile citizen of this fair city, showed his friends that he is among the best on the Guelph outfit by scoring three times and making two hits in three trips to the plate. One of his bingles was a beautiful double into centre field.

Strowger in Trouble.

Umpire Strowger officiated for the first time in London, and while his work was fair on the whole, he found himself in the midst of a fine little difficulty when McWhirter attempted to catch an advancing runner at second base. His umps turned to see the play, when the crab motioned to throw, and consequently did not notice that the ball struck the bat of Brant who was at the plate. After much unnecessary wrangling Brant was called out for interference, and the runner sent back to the initial corner.

The eighth round kept the losers on the move every minute, and despite their best efforts the tally ended with London six runs to the good. McIntyre was given a base on balls but was caught going from first to second on Pancratz's attempt at a sacrifice. Andrews doubled and scored Pancratz. Nicholls was passed and both moved up on McWhirter's passed ball. Brant was sent along by Muir, filling the sacks.

Keenan Clears the Paths.

Kyle went out on an infield fly, but Keenan's double cleared the sacks. Bierbauer hit over third and Keenan scored when McWhirter missed the throw in. Reske hit to left for a pair and Bierbauer crossed the pan. McIntyre ended the bloodshed by the whiff route. The six runs were the result of four hits, three bases on balls, an error and a passed ball.

TURNER, BERLIN PHENOM, EASY FOR BRANTFORD

Latest Addition to Dutchmen's Twirling Staff Touched For Fifteen Bingles.

Berlin, June 23.—Brantford landed on Turner for fifteen safeties today, and when it was all over the visitors had the big end of a 7 to 1 score. Turner shut out Hamilton on Tuesday, and his showing today came somewhat as a surprise to the fans. The visitors found him without any trouble, and among the bunch of hits was a home run by Barry, a triple and three two-baggers.

The Green Sox could do but little with Jerger, who was on the mound for the visitors. While he allowed nine hits, they were well scattered. Bramble's triple and Dunn's single were responsible for the home team's one run. Jerger struck out four men and Turner three. Errors were chalked up against Burke and Shea for Brantford, and Dunn and Cameron for Berlin. Umpire Pritchett handled the indicator, and while a number of his decisions were questioned, he appeared to be endeavoring to give impartial decisions. The score:

Berlin	000 100 000	1	9	2

DAILY HISTORY OF BASEBALL

JUNE 24.

1890—The Chicago Players' League club defeated Brooklyn, 22 to 5, the vanquished team being charged with fourteen errors. In the third inning the winners scored thirteen runs.

1893—Hits were mighty scarce in the Harvard-Yale game, which went ten innings, and which the Crimson team won by a score of 3 to 2. Dutch Carter, pitching for the Elis, yielded one safety, and Jack Highlands, twirling for Harvard, three. Highlands fanned nineteen men, Carter twelve.

1893—Pitcher Hawke and Second Baseman Reit of the Baltimore club, collaborated in a triple play against Boston.

1901—The Phillies scored 27 runs in the double-header with Cincinnati, winning the first game 8 to 0, and the second 19 to 1. In the nightcap portion of the bargain bill, Harry White, now with the Chicago White Sox, showed that pitchers could hit, by getting three singles and a home run. In the second game every Philadelphia player except Hugh Jennings made one or more safeties.

1902—Larry Lajoie, of the Cleveland club, made a home run with the bases filled, off Pitcher Harper, of the St. Louis Browns.

1903—The Des Moines Western League club defeated Denver, 7 to 6, in 18 innings. Charley O'Leary, now with Detroit and then playing short field for the Iowans, accepted fourteen chances. The losers made twenty-one.

1905—The Chicago Cubs downed St. Louis, 2 to 1, in an 18-inning affray, Reulbach pitching against Jack Taylor II. The winners played perfectly in the field, the members of the inner cordon — Chance, Evers, Casey and Tinker—being credited with 37 put-outs and 26 assists.

Ragged Play of Red Sox Is Offset in Double Header by Brilliant Hitting.

Boston, June 23.—The Red Sox won two games from the world's champions this afternoon in the presence of 19,335 people. Home runs by Wood and Speaker accounted for five of the six runs made by Boston in the fourth inning of the first game. Both hits went far over the right field fence, the high wind pushing them along. The locals fell on Plank in the fourth inning of the second contest, and scored enough runs to win the same. Score:

THE LEAFS WERE HITTING

Spanked Holmes and Shontz for Even Dozen and Seven Runs.

Newark, June 23.—Helpless before the superb twirling of Arthur Mueller, a former member of the Indians, now the best pitcher on Joe Kelley's payroll, the Redskins were decisively beaten by the Maple Leafs this afternoon by the score of 7 runs to 1. The Egg Harbor lad had everything necessary to puzzle the braves and fanned nine of the warriors. The Indians succeeded in filling the bases on him in the seventh, with but one man down, but Mueller forced Benny Meyer to hit into a double play. Score:

Before Bresnahan could strike back other players interfered and took him to the club house.

St. Louis had made a fine rally in the ninth, getting four runs, and with the man needed to tie the score on third, with two out, Keefe pitched two strikes to Moyrew, and Bresnahan protested that the second strike was a balk. While Bresnahan was protesting, Keefe put over the third strike, ending the game, 8 to 7, in favor of Cincinnati. Bresnahan made an enraged rush at Klem, who met him with a straight right to the face. The score:

DETROIT TO BE DROPPED FROM ORGANIZED BALL?

CAPER SAUCE CHANGES HANDS AT HAMILTON

Entered For $500 and Run Up to $900 in Selling Event Yesterday.

Hamilton, June 23.—The most industrious and successful province-bred horse below the first-class—Caper Sauce—changed owners today after winning a selling race, and henceforth will carry the colors of the Valley Farm Stable.

The old hero ran his one hundred and fourth race today, and scored his thirty-second victory. Entered for $500, he was carried up to $900, at which figure Mr. Crew said "Let him go." As Commola was second the Valley Farm Stable received half of the run-up money, so that Cape Sauce cost only $700. Mr. Crew got the purse and $500, a total of $920.

The record of Caper Sauce is a remarkable one. He was bred by Mr. Seagram and has changed owners several times. All told he has run one hundred and four times, of which he won thirty-two races, was second twenty times, and third eighteen times. His earnings amount to $15,815, of which he won $1,195 this year at two meetings, Toronto and Hamilton. He never looked better and apparently will go on indefinitely.

A Lack of Attendance at Bennett Park Causes Rumors in Tiger Camp.

DRAW BETTER ON ROAD THAN HOME

Story to Effect That St. Louis and Detroit Trade Clubs Denied by Hedges.

The Detroit News says today:

"Lack of attendance at Bennett Park may cause the removal of the Detroit Baseball Club to some other city," was the report that reached Detroit today. The rumor further stated that President Ban B. Johnson, displeased at the slight interest shown here, may send the club to St. Louis. In that event Detroit would probably be left out of organized baseball.

"Although the Detroit team is the strongest drawing card on the road," the story goes on to say, "the support given in the home town has been so limited that other clubs are constantly protesting to Johnson that the franchise be removed to some other city.

"Other club owners in the league figure that if the team now representing Detroit were in St. Louis the treasury of the league and the treasuries of the other clubs would be fattened immensely."

What Will He Say.

The high mogul of the American League has made no sign; has spoken no word. But those who are acquainted with the workings of the mind of Ban B. declare that a statement may be expected soon. He has held several conferences with President Hedges, of the St. Louis Club, but that gentleman denies in a dispatch received here tonight, that the deal was contemplated.

President Frank J. Navin, of the Detroit Club, said this afternoon that he had heard of the rumors, but nothing of that nature had been brought to his attention. He has not heard from Johnson. He does not register a public protest in regard to the attendance, but it is known that the club is not the moneymaker, by far, this year, that it has been in the past.

Johnson draws his salary from the five per cent. of the club receipts each year. His $25,000 must come from that fund, and the balance turned over to be divided among the rest of the clubs. If it should happen that the fund is greatly diminished it naturally means that there is a great deal less to be turned over to the other clubs. And Johnson, perhaps extraordinarily farsighted, may be looking forward to the time when the five per cent. will be so greatly reduced that he will be barely able to get his pittance.

Hedges Denies Story.

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—"Say for me that no deal involving a transfer of the Detroit and St. Louis Browns Club has been contemplated by Owner Frank Navin, of the Tigers, or by myself, that no negotiations have been entered into along this line, and that such a transfer of clubs is impossible."

Such was the statement of Magnate Hedges of the Browns today when asked about the rumors that the Detroit Club would be transferred to St. Louis.

"A change of this sort could be made only through the unanimous consent of all the clubs in the American League and National League," he continued. "It is certain that the alleged invasion of Pittsburg by the American League would not meet with the approval of Mr. Dreyfuss, who owns the National League Club there now, neither would a number of teams consent to bringing the Tigers here. The national agreement to which the American and National Leagues subscribe makes a shift of this kind an impossibility, even if we did desire to put one through."

ON BUFFALO LAKE

MIRROR

ALBERTA

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

Mirror is one of the most promising townsites to be placed on the market on the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Situated in the heart of Sunny Alberta, in the centre of the finest farming district in the province, it is destined to become one of the most important commercial centres. There is a need for such a centre and the company has made preparations to meet the demand.

There are many reasons why Mirror is destined to become a factor in the development of the province, all of which must have direct bearing on the outcome. The geographical location is ideal and its situation in regard to railway facilities could not be improved upon. The country has been proved and the rate at which it is filling up means that there will be a tremendous production within the next year or two.

FUEL and SOIL Under the whole of this section of Alberta there is a high-class grade of coal and there are now several mines in operation a short distance from Mirror and these mines will be enlarged to meet the demands of the whole district. The country is well wooded and watered. The soil is a rich black loam carrying a heavy layer of vegetable mold. Gently rolling and well drained it offers the ideal conditions for mixed farming or for grain raising on a large scale. For years this has had the reputation of being the finest cattle-raising district of Alberta, and the ranches still in evidence are the best proof of the contention. After the dry season of last year thousands of cattle were shipped in there to be wintered, for there was an abundance of feed despite the drought which occurred throughout the West.

SOLD BY AUCTION JULY 11th, 1911

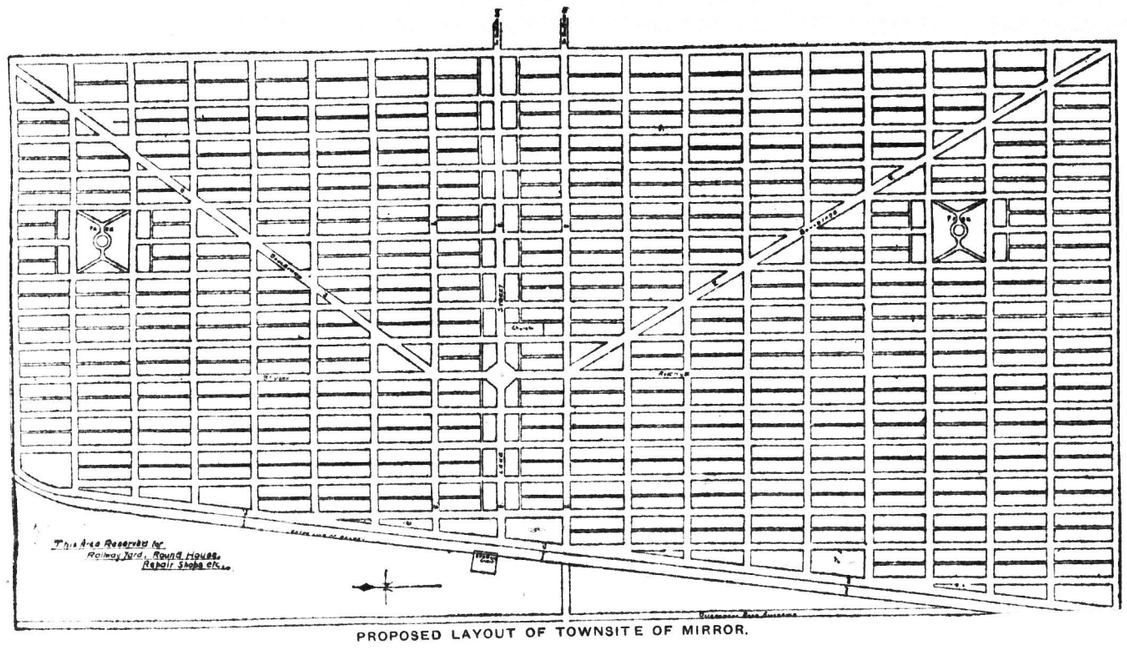

When it was announced that the Grand Trunk Pacific proposed to locate its divisional point at Mirror this company was immediately swamped with applications for lots from men who desired to get in early Realizing from past experience that the demand would be great, and wishing to give all the applicants an even chance, the company decided to sell the lots at public auction. On the day appointed for the sale special trains will be run from Winnipeg and other points to Mirror. This is felt to be the only fair plan.

Should it be impossible for an intending purchaser to be present at this sale in person, arrangements can be readily made with responsible parties to attend the sale and buy any desired property. Ample accommodation will be provided at Mirror for all who wish to look over the townsite for themselves before making their purchase. The railway line has been completed past that point and a first-class daily train service is provided

Mirror Beach

Buffalo Lake for years past has been the gathering point of residents of this district for miles around, where a pleasant holiday could be spent, bathing, fishing and shooting. The lake is filled with fish and phenomenal catches have been reported, while the many tiny lakes of the surrounding country furnish breeding places for innumerable ducks and geese, which flock in the larger waters late in the summer.

Buffalo Lake also possesses some of the very finest bathing beaches, and with the easy access to them which the Grand Trunk Pacific affords, should become a great bathing and summer resort for all towns and cities of Alberta and Saskatchewan. This lake should also become the home of the regattas and motor boat races, and an ideal spot for a summer home.

PROPOSED LAYOUT OF TOWNSITE OF MIRROR.

Natural Advantages

Mirror townsite has been selected with especial regard to the needs of its future development. The company has secured a large area of choice country on the west end of Buffalo Lake, the most charming body of water in Alberta. The land is gently rolling and covered with clusters of vigorous trees. A long ridge runs the length of the townsite, sloping westward to the railway and eastward to the lake.

In the layout of the streets full advantage has been taken of the natural features to combine business facilities and residential attractivness. On the high ground in the centre of the townsite a central business section has been laid out, and from this a broad boulevard runs to each of the corners. Another broad street runs to the depot. Ample reservations have been made for municipal buildings, public parks and schools, so that at no time in the future will there be congestion or cramping due to lack of forethought in the providing of space.

DIVISIONAL POINT - - - - DISTRIBUTING CENTRE

The townsite is half-way between Edmonton and Calgary, on the Grand Trunk Pacific line, which connects these two cities. The company has decided to make it a DIVISIONAL POINT.

There are a number of small towns serving rich farming communities, which must have a wholesale and distributing point, and there is no place that can compete with Mirror for this business. The country is bringing such rich returns that the farmers now are among the most wealthy in the province. Progressive and optimistic, they are the kind of men who build up prosperous cities with their trade.

Farming Community

The farmers on Buffalo Lake and to the west of Mirror are among the wealthiest in Alberta and their homes are second to none. Cattle, horses and sheep paved the way, and now that grain raising is rapidly supplanting it the development is even more rapid. Crops of 40 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of oats to the acre are common, and crop failure due to dry weather or any other cause is unknown. The tremendous profits which have resulted have been put into more extended holdings and into permanent buildings and homes. The settlers are of Canadian, English and American birth, progressive and enthusiastic.

Business Opportunities

Apart from its attractiveness as an investment centre, Mirror offers every inducement to the businessman. There is now a demand for tradesmen, artisans and professional men, which will increase as the town develops. It is a notable fact that these features of the opening of the west have not kept pace with the demand, for it has been the case that the farmers have in every instance preceded the opening up of towns. The result has been that men who have started up in business have found a market ready and waiting for them, and a market which brings tremendous returns on a very small investment of capital. It is the greatest country in the world for a man with the courage and enthusiasm to make the venture.

With such a large territory to serve when backed up with such superior railway facilities, wholesale and manufacturing houses cannot but see the advantage of the location. The summer resort will attract its patronage from Calgary, Edmonton, Moosejaw, Regina, Saskatoon, and, in fact, from the whole of Alberta and Saskatchewan, for it is the most charming location in the two provinces.

Men Must Succeed

To build a city such as Mirror must become demands artisans of all classes, and it must be remembered that the wage scale of the Canadian west is higher than in any other part of Canada. It means that the man of ability will be his own master, the contractor and employer of the future. So, too, in business. The man who gets in early will have the opportunity of developing a business of his own, where with the same amount of effort he would remain but an employee in the older cities of the east. The professional man who first gets a footing will have the control of the situation in his own hands.

Mirror affords splendid openings for general stores, hardware merchants, lumber yards, blacksmiths, grain dealers, butchers, bakers, hotels, boarding-houses, restaurant keepers, barbers, amusement places such as pool rooms and bowling alleys, doctors, lawyers, dentists, and the need is a pressing one, for the business is waiting. Today farmers are hauling their produce miles to a shipping point and bringing their supplies back with them. A closer market will be appreciated.

Think It Over

We can but bring these opportunities to your attention. There is no place where a young man has the same chance to win to independence in a few years. If you have an idea that you might be able to do better if you had a wider scope, then Mirror should appeal to you. If you have a little capital to invest, then this opening should not be passed by. Invest now. Thousands of others have won with much smaller opportunities in towns which possess practically none of the advantages. The Western failure is non-existent, for the west develops possibilities in the most unpromising material. If the West interests you, write us, and we will try and make clear any point in regard to which you are in doubt.

Warning to the Public

We wish the public to know that the TRANSCONTINENTAL TOWNSITE COMPANY, LIMITED, of Winnipeg, have the exclusive sale of all future townsites on the Grand Trunk Pacific in the Prairie Provinces, and all official announcements of these townsites will be made through that Company, or their representatives.

All bona fide plats of G. T. P. townsites bear the signature of "G.U.Ryley, Land Commissioner." And as other townsites throughout the country are being misrepresented as Grand Trunk Pacific townsites, we wish to warn the public before buying, to write the Transcontinental Townsite Company, Limited, or The Land Commissioner, G.T.P.Rly., Winnipeg, Man.

FOR THIRTY YEARS PASSED AS WOMAN

A Man in Skirts Acted as a Domestic in Best Boston Families.

Boston, June 23.—Following the funeral of "Harriet Kelby, stewardess," of the steamer Governor Andrew, who perished when the steamer was destroyed by fire on Sunday, the discovery has been made that although believed to be a woman for 30 years, this was a mistake. Letters from three enamored men, residents of Boston and Wellesley, have been found among "Miss Kelly's" effects.

Harriet lived as a trusted servant in many well-known Back Bay families, performing all the duties of a housemaid and enjoying the usual freedom of women in the household. The father and mother of this strange person are living in Wolverhampton, Staffordshire, England.

Harriet Kelly was born in Wolverhampton and reared and educated as a girl. When 23 years old Harriet came to Boston as the servant of John Fleming, of Brookline. False sex was never suspected. Although having many male admirers Harriet seldom accepted their advances seriously.

Harriet shaved regularly, but that habit was believed to be only "peculiarity."

WEST LAMBTON CONS. ELECT AND NOMINATE

Mr. S. E. Lesueur Once More Selected to Contest Commons.

Sarnia, June 23.—The Conservatives of West Lambton met here today and renominated R. E. Lesueur for the Dominion elections on the first ballot. The convention was largely attended from all parts of the riding. Mr. Carstairs, Dominion organizer, presided, and the following officers were elected: President, P. McGibbon; vice-president, Robert Beatty; secretary, R. V. Lesueur; treasurer, F. C. Watson.

The following candidates were placed in nomination: Hon. W. J. Hanna, Ald. John McGibbons, Mr. John Wilson, Dr. Bentley, ex-mayor; A. J. Johnston, John R. Logan, R. E. Lesueur. Hon. Mr. Hanna, in withdrawing his name, urged each delegate to vote for the candidate who would poll the largest vote in his particular subdivision. He paid a high tribute to Mr. R. L. Borden in his leadership of the party. A ballot was then taken on the names of Messrs. Lesueur, Bentley, Johnston and Logan, and Chairman Carstairs announced the election of Mr. Lesueur with a clear majority in the ballots cast. On motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Logan, the nomination was made unanimous.

The candidate, in accepting, stated that he had faced a majority of 447 in 1906 and reduced it to 246 and still further reduced it to 146 in the election three years ago. With the present favorable conditions it should be possible to wipe out this small margin and place West Lambton safely in the Conservative column.

DUEZ FOUND GUILTY

Embezzled Over a Million From the French Government.

Paris, June 23. — Ferdinand Edmond Duez, receiver for the dissolved religious congregations, was convicted by a jury today of embezzling $1,200,000. He was sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment at hard labor.

Charles Breton, a lawyer, and Henri Lefebvre, a clerk, were convicted of aiding and abetting Duez in the embezzlement, and were sentenced to two years' imprisonment, which was suspended, pending good conduct.

Duez was judicial administrator of the civil tribunal of the department of the Seine. He was in charge of the liquidation of the property of thirteen of the congregations dissolved by the association law of 1901.

In March, 1910, Duez confessed to the embezzlement of $2,000,000, and was held for trial before the assize court, charged with breach of trust and forgery.

The total value of the properties Duez was liquidating had been appraised at $212,000,000, and the Government expected that they would yield $200,000,000, out of which the old age pensions voted by Parliament could be paid.

When Duez was arrested about half of the liquidations had been made, and the total sum actually turned over to the treasury was only $1,461,331.

ROUEN CELEBRATES.

Rouen, France, June 23. — President Fallieres arrived here today on a special train from the capital and participated in the ceremonies in celebration of the one thousandth anniversary of the landing of the Norsemen. Rouen became the capital of Normandy in the tenth century.

DAN O'REILLY DISBARRED.

New York, June 23.—Dan O'Reilly, one of the counsel in the Thaw case, was disbarred today from practice by the appellate division of the supreme court because of his conviction on the charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with the Bancroft securities robbery.

COMES A TIME

When Coffee Shows What It Has Been Doing.

"Of late years coffee has disagreed with me," writes a matron from Rome, N. Y.

"Its lightest punishment being to make me 'logy' and dizzy, and it seemed to thicken up my blood.

"The heaviest was when it upset my stomach completely, destroying my appetite and making me nervous and irritable, and sent me to my bed. After one of these attacks, in which I nearly lost my life, I concluded to quite the coffee and try Postum.

"It went right to the spot! I found it not only a most palatable and refreshing beverage, but a food as well.

"All my ailments, the 'loginess' and dizziness, the unsatisfactory condition of my blood, my nervousness and irritability disappeared in short order and my sorely afflicted stomach began quickly to recover. I began to rebuild and have steadily continued until now. Have a good appetite and am rejoicing in sound health which I owe to the use of Postum." Name given by Canadian Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Windsor, Ontario.

CANADIAN LOCOMOTIVE COMPANY TO ENLARGE THEIR PLANT

Company Will Issue Million and a Half Bonds and Three Million and a Half Stock.

The remarkable railway development of Canadan railways has enormously increased the demand for locomotives of ever-increasing size, power and cost. The demand is one of the most certain in any line of manufacture.

There is a big field for a larger and up-to-date locomotive building plant in Canada—the present plant of the Canadian Locomotive Company, of Kingston, is entirely inadequate to handle its orders, and just now there are contracts in sight which would keep an augmented plant busy until the end of 1913. The owners of the plant—a powerful syndicate of English and Canadian capitalists—intend to enlarge the works so as to cope with the increasing demands for locomotives in Canada. The present output is not much over 75 engines a year—depending on the type required, and many valuable contracts have to be declined owing to the company's inability to deliver. It is now intended to double the capacity of the plant, and perhaps treble it.

To enable them to make this expansion the company are issuing one million and a half of first mortgage, 6 per cent gold bonds. One million and a half 7 per cent cumulative preferred, and two millions common stock. There will remain in the treasury half a million of bonds to be used for further extensions.

Being exempt from taxation, and with little danger from labor troubles, as explained in President Harty's letter, it is in an exceptionally favorable position to manufacture most profitably.

The company's premises occupy three blocks in the city of Kingston, having a street frontage of 865 feet by a depth of about 255 feet—to a frontage on Lake Ontario of about 1,175 feet—the area inclosed being 333,000 square feet. There are about a dozen buildings, including one of the finest power plants in the country, a magnificent erecting shop with huge travelling cranes, boiler-shops, riveting-shops, machine-shops, tank-shops, tender-shops, blacksmith-shops, foundry and pattern rooms, paint-shops and carpenter-shops. In all the works occupy 7 acres. The company has its own branch railway line in Kingston, and its own wharves and docking facilities on Lake Ontario.

The engines it turns out are the most up-to-date possible, and that they are satisfactory in service is proved by repeated orders from all previous buyers. The C. P. R., the G. T. R., the I. C. R., the National Transcontinental, the Canadian Northern and the Government-owned Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad—all are patrons of the Canadian Locomotive Company, of Kingston. Six engines recently turned out for the T. and N. O. are said to be the largest ever built in Canada. Chairman Englehart, of the T. and N. O., speaking of these engines, declared them to be the finest he had ever seen, and were giving the greatest satisfaction. At present the company has contracts for some 50 engines with the C. P. R., the C. N. R., the I. C. R., and the Algoma Central, and it is becoming increasingly difficult to keep up with the orders.

The working staff is about 800 strong, and a big proportion of the employees have grown up with the works, and own their own homes in the neighborhood. This fact is a pretty strong safeguard against labor troubles common in other centres.

The men who are to control the new company are recognized powers in the financial world. The banking firm in charge of the business is Aemilius Jarvis & Co., of Toronto, and associated with them are the well-known firm of Brown, Shipley & Co., bankers, of London, England. Mr. Pryor, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company, of London; Lord Glenconner, better known as Sir Edward Tennant, a brother-in-law of Premier Asquith, and Mr. E. Balfour, first cousin of ex-Premier A. J. Balfour.

Of the large amount for which foreign subscriptions have been received, and which will be allotted in full, it is worthy of note that Paris (France), and London (England), have taken a substantial sum.

UTTERING THE COINS

Important Decision Made by a Magistrate at the Capital.

[Canadian Press.]

Ottawa, June 23. — In the police court today August Roeder, arrested by the Dominion police on a charge of defacing coins by stamping them as coronation souvenirs, was found guilty and fined. The case is one of general interest, as Roeder has been defacing coins in a similar way for years, under the impression that he was not violating the criminal code, section 566 of which reads:

"Anyone who utters any coin, defaced, by having stamped thereon any names or words, is guilty of an offence," etc.

He produced letters from the license department of the Toronto police and the Quebec authorities giving him permission to operate the machine in those cities. The magistrate held that as Roeder was selling the coins he was "uttering" them.

JAPS TRY U. S. TAR.

Yokohama, June 23.—John E. Atkins, a seaman, of the U. S. cruiser Saratoga, was tried before three Japanese judges today, charged with having caused the death of John L. Saunders, a bluejacket of the New Orleans, while both were inmates of the American naval hospital here on June 4. The men got into a row while intoxicated.

The proceedings lasted 3½ hours, and the verdict will be announced next Monday.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE ENDED.

Southampton, England, June 23. — The strike of seamen, which has seriously inconvenienced many of the shipping lines, particularly at the English ports, for several days, was finally ended today, when the employees of the White Star Line accepted the terms of the company and returned to work. The other lines had already compromised with the strikers.

GEORGE LIKES BOOKS BETTER THAN BRIDGE

The King and Queen Essentially Middle Class, Declares Daily News Editor.

[Canadian Press.]

London, June 23. — An interesting character sketch of King George by the editor of the Daily News is printed this morning, in which he describes the King as eminently a sailor, and a man of the middle class who loves to be among his people.

The King's comradeship with the common people, says the editor, is not and elaborate pretence to gain an end, but springs from a genuine fellow-feeling and a desire to win their goodwill, although he is fully conscious that he lacks his father's royal road to their hearts.

While Edward's orbit was the continent of Europe, George V. is the first king of Greater Britain. Edward was sybaritic, George almost spartan. Edwas cosmopolitan, George singularly British. Edward was diplomatic, George is simple and direct in thought and speech, with no subtlety or cunning in his intellectual composition. His tastes nearly all belong to the common people. Except for shooting, he has few sporting passions. He has no liking for games of chance, but prefers music and the drama in the old-fashioned form. Wagner bores him; the modern problem play leaves him cold. King George is not a clubbable man. His friendships are few, but firm.

The Queen also, like the King, has a middle-class seriousness and a sense of duty. She is almost the only woman in society who cannot be called "a society woman." Perhaps the court may be less gay than formerly, for the Queen prefers knitting to ceremony, and the King likes a book better than bridge, and his children better than either.

SPLENDID ATTRACTIONS

Western Fair Visitors Will Witness Some Grand Spectacles.

Secretary Hunt, of the Western Fair, is a very busy man these days, and will continue busy until the big exhibition, which opens on Sept. 8 and closes Sept. 16, is over.

"We are making splendid progress with the arrangements for the fair," Mr. Hunt told The Advertiser today, "and I think I can confidently say the show of 1911 will be the best ever held."

Further conversation with the secretary brought out the fact that the special attractions this year will be ahead of anything of the kind ever seen in Canada.

Prominent among these are the aerial ladies, a thrilling act, giving a good idea of the advance of aerial navigation. Londoners and the people of Western Ontario have not yet been given an opportunity of witnessing anything of this kind, and to the vast majority of visitors this act will be entirely new.

Another of the unique features is the pantomime dog act, which is an exceedingly clever and highly amusing animal entertainment. This is a feature that will appeal to old as well as young.

In addition there will be a score or more of standard attractions, all the artists being the best in their peculiar lines.

Arrangements have been completed for a grand military tattoo and musical ride every afternoon and evening, detachments from local corps and the Boy Scouts taking part, and there will be a magnificent display of fireworks every evening.

There will be music galore, three of Canada's best bands having been engaged.

The Midway, always a point of attraction to visitors, will be larger than ever, and the various shows the best procurable.

Applications for booth and refreshment privileges must this year be made to the Western Fair offices, corner Richmond and Carling streets (upstairs), instead of at the grounds, as formerly. This will no doubt prove more convenient to those desiring concessions.

MURDER CHARGE

Three Arrested in Connecticut With a Disappearance in 1908.

[Canadian Press.]

Biddeford, Me., June 23. On the strength of information given to the York County authorities in support of an allegation that Charles Wrimouth, a Saco butcher, who disappeared in September, 1908, was murdered, the sheriff arrested Joseph Buzzell, of Dayton, O., Onley Miller and Mrs. Maud Snow, of Dayton, today. All three were taken to Alfred, the two men to answer to charges of murder and the woman to a charge of having been an accomplice.

The authorities announce that information had been obtained from two persons whose names they withhold and who claimed to have seen Wrimouth at Mrs. Snow's home. According to their story, as given out by the sheriff, Wrimouth's body was then placed in a box and buried. Officers today went to the alleged place of burial, near the Snow home in Dayton, to endeavor to locate the body.

LIFE PENALTY FOR BOYHOOD ACCIDENT

John Wilson, a Grand Rapids Youth, Hurt by a Brick, Committed Many Crimes.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 23.—Imprisonment for the remainder of his natural life in the Ionia Reformatory was the sentence passed by Judge McDonald Monday afternoon on John Wilson, the 19-year-old highway robber, who Saturday held up Miss Irene Carmody near Reed's Lake. This is the speediest justice handed out here in years. Wilson was taken on the train to Ionia last night.

Wilson forced the girl in broad daylight to walk at the point of a revolver into the woods at the roadside, where he robbed her and mistreated her.

His case is interesting both to the pathologist and criminologist. At the age of 14 years Wilson was struck by a brick which fell from the third story of a building in course of construction. Since then he has showed criminal tendencies. He served a term in the industrial home for boys at Lansing, but on being released immediately got into trouble.

In 1910 he was convicted of burglary and larceny, but drew a suspended sentence. In December of the same year he again robbed two stores. He was sentenced to five years at Ionia, but on the advice of physicians the sentence was recalled. An operation was performed in which a portion of the skull two inches square was removed and trephined with a silver plate. The youth seemed much improved and his morose spells were less frequent. But Saturday the final outbreak came. It is probable Wilson may be transferred to the asylum for the criminal insane.

FRENCH CABINET OUT

Paris, June 23.—The Government was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies today on a question relative to the supreme command of the army in case of war.

The deputies voted against the Government 238 to 224, and this evening the minsters decided to present their resignations to President Fallieres.

The adverse vote of the chamber was due to the admission by the Minister of War in the Senate last Tuesday that the present organization of the army does not provide for a commander-in-chief in time of war, the direction of operations in the case of war being in the hands of the Council of War, made up of the Minister of War and the generals of the army.

This announcement by the minister came in the nature of a revelation to many parliamentarians. Today in the chamber, Deputy Messe interpellated the Government on the subject and opposed the system of military control, as outlined by General Goiran. Thereupon the Government asked for a vote of confidence and failed to obtain a majority.

The sudden reverse to the Government was wholly unexpected.

The Monis cabinet was formed on March 2 last, following the resignation of the Briand Ministry on Feb. 27. General Goiran, who became minister of war following the accidental death of Minister Berteaux, was recently quoted as saying that in the event of war the chief of state, the President, would have the supreme command.

MAKES TROUBLE WHEN A HOLIDAY OCCURS

Hiram Cushman Taken Into Custody by the Police.

Hiram Cushman, of Longwood station, was arrested Thursday and brought to the county jail on a charge of assault and battery. The complaint was laid by High Constable Hughes, when the alleged assault was brought to his attention by residents of the village.

It is said that at each public holiday or celebration Cushman becomes pugnacious and causes trouble among the residents.

He was bailed by Squire Chittick until June 28, but it is expected that he will deliver himself up this afternoon to provide sureties to keep the peace.

A REAL DUEL

Madrid, June 23.—Lieutenant Don Manuel Segura, who is on the editorial staff of the Debate, has just fought a duel with Don Luis Soria, vice director of the Compania Madrilella de Urbanizacion. The encounter was with sabres and was a most determined one, lasting one hour and fifteen minutes, but, owing to the skill of the combatants, no fatal wound was inflicted. Though the principals were reconciled and received many congratulations for the bravery they exhibited, many protests have been made to the Bishop of Madrid against the editorial staff of the Debate, which is a Catholic newspaper, because one of its writers fought this duel.

The protestors ask the bishop to take measures against the Debate, or at least compel it to drop its contention of being a Catholic organ, as, according to the Roman Catholic dueling is a deadly sin, and this is the second time a member of the Debate's staff has fought, the other occasion being the encounter between Senor Olmet and Senor Bueno of the Radical.

Senor Soria was offended by an article published some days ago in the Debate, but could not challenge its author, Father Basilio Alvarez, a Catholic priest. He replied, therefore, in the Ciudad Lineal, a weekly review, stating his case and asserting that by such methods certain newspapers avoided personal responsibilities. This article prompted Lieutenant Segura, military editor of the Debate, to send his seconds, the officers Senores Pomes and Mezquita, to Senor Soria, who immediately appointed as his seconds Marques de Altamira and Don Alonzo Saavedra.

The seconds agreed upon an encounter with sabres, "filo contrafilo y punta," according to the Spanish custom—that is to say, using the point and the two edges of the weapon. This kind of duel, which any one in France can refuse, according to the rules of dueling, if he is not a cavalry officer used to the saber, is very common among the Spaniards. It is generally sanguinary.

The encounter between Lieutenant Segura and Senor Soria consisted of ten bouts. The courage shown by the duelists was only equalled by their dexterity, which, according to the seconds, was the reason that no mortal wound was inflicted. In the fifth bout Senor Soria's saber was broken and a new one was provided.

Lieutenant Segura received a cut in the right elbow, a thrust in the forearm, a cut on the right knee, several cuts on the right arm, and one in the left hand. Senor Soria received cuts in the right wrist and forearm and a slight one on the right cheek. Both combatants bled profusely and were quite exhausted when the seconds interfered and declared that "honor was satisfied."

IT TELLS ABOUT THE SANE HEATING OF HOMES

"Comfort & Health" tells about a heating system.
It goes into the question of healthful heating and shows how important a part the furnace plays in the health of your family.
It explains the principle of warm air heating; how the furnace draws in fresh air, warms it and circulates it moist and pure to every room in the house.
Then it tells about the perfect warm air furnace—the "Hecla." The furnace that cannot leak gas. The furnace that gives heat without dust. The furnace that is easy to run, and what is more important, how that furnace—The "Hecla"—saves you one ton of coal in seven.

"Hecla" Furnace
Cannot Leak Gas
Gas in the house is disagreeable. Often it proves dangerous to the health. The "Hecla" is so constructed that gas cannot get into the living rooms. The places where gas leaks occur in the ordinary furnace are fused in the "Hecla" so that gas cannot possibly find an outlet.
Saves 1 Ton in 7
The "Hecla" uses only six tons of coal where others use seven. It is the steel ribbed fire pot that makes this saving. How flanges are of steel plate placed close together and welded into the fire pot get more heat from your coal is told in "Comfort & Health."
Investigate The "Hecla"

LOCAL ITEMS

Poor Families Entertained.

The "Inasmuch" Society of the First Methodist Church on Friday entertained 35 poor families at Springbank Park. There were games and amusements for all and a very dainty lunch.

No High Court.

Owing to the fact that no high court judge arrived this morning no session of the weekly high court was held. But one case was listed to come before the judge.

Fire in a Dump.

The firemen were called at 2:30 this afternoon to the vicinity of the Protestant Orphans' Home on Richmond street north, when a number of boys had set fire to some rubbish in a dump. There was no damage.

East Ender Fined.

Fred Biggs, a citizen residing at the corner of Cabell and Rectory streets, was fined $2 and $2.85 costs by Magistrate Judd yesterday for discharging firearms inside the city limits. Biggs gave as an excuse that he was trying to kill a cat that had been slaughtering his chickens.

Fifteen Years Ago.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier in London and Mr. Borden in Saskatchewan were reminded yesterday by their calendars of an interesting event. On June 23, 1896—fifteen years ago—occurred the general election which looms large in the political destinies of Canada; the election which brought Sir Wilfrid Laurier into power.

Flower Sunday.

Tomorrow will be Flower Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church, and a special service will be held in the morning. Rev. J. G. Inkster sails from Montreal on Wednesday for a two months' visit with his mother at his old home in the Orkney Islands. He will be accompanied by Mr. Thomas Smith, a St. Thomas artist, who is going to the Orkneys to paint. Mrs. Inkster and baby will spend the summer at the home of Mrs. Inkster's mother at Oakville.

A Recital.

The Nordheimer Concert Hall was well filled last evening, when the annual piano recital was given by the senior pupils of Mr. Thomas Martindale in a very creditable manner. Those taking part were: Miss Irene Barnes, Miss Nora Little, Miss Mertie McIver, Miss Thomas, Miss Jessie Strong, Miss Florence Woolley, Miss Estelle Young, and Mr. Jack McAlpine. The Steinway Grand and Nordheimer pianos were used.

A Bowling Boom.

Bowling is having a great boom in South London as a result of the establishment of a splendid new green on the property adjoining Mr. A. M. Hunt's house. The Elmwood Club, as the new organization is known, has already a paid membership of 86, and every one of them is an enthusiastic bowler, and practises steadily. There are eight rinks on the new green and all are brilliantly lighted at night, with the new hydro lights, presenting a lively scene. There is some talk of arranging a contest between the Elmwood Club and the London Bowling Club in the near future.

A Presentation.

Friday afternoon the members of the W. F. M. S. of King Street Presbyterian Church, to the number of about twenty, met at the home of Mrs. Scott, Queen's avenue. The chief item of interest was the presentation of a crescent of pearls to Mrs. Hector Maclay, accompanied by an address expressive of their appreciation of her services and interest as president of their auxiliary. Special emphasis was laid on the fact that in the absence of a regular minister and minister's wife she filled so large a place in their work and life. Refreshments were served at the close of an hour's delightful intercourse. Mrs. Mackay and family leave next week to spend the hot season at the lakeside, Bruce Beach.

Used Heated Language.

A couple of east end citizens who became so incensed at one another a couple of days ago that each insinuated in no uncertain manner that the other was a prevaricator, appeared in court today as a result of one charging the other with using abusive language. After listening to the evidence for some time, Magistrate Judd bound the defendant over to keep the place and warned the complainant not to molest him in any way in the future. The trouble arose over a dispute about a barn. At this morning's session of the police court Jacob Harris, charged with not having paid a license for his moving picture show, produced one which he had secured since the charge was laid, and was allowed to go on payment of $1.85 costs.

Archdeacon Richardson, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

Miss Hilda Shoebottom, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Mr. Fred Clarke, of London, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

The bride wore a pretty costume of golden brown silk, trimmed with silk and madeira work, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid wore silk voile and carried pink carnations.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold bracelet, to the bridesmaid a pearl ring and to the groomsman a signet ring.

After the ceremony the young couple left for their home in Nissouri.

BABY'S LIFE THREATENED BY SUMMER COMPLAINT

The life of every baby is threatened during the hot summer months by that dreaded trouble—summer complaint. Thousands of children die every summer from this trouble—thousands of happy homes are made dark and sorrowful because a precious little life has been snuffed out. But mothers, though you fear this trouble, you can yet fight it—yes, fight it and defeat it with Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Joseph Stefa, Coutts, Alta., says: "During the hot summer days my little boy took ill with summer complaint. He was seized with vomiting and nothing helped him till I got Baby's Own Tablets. They relieved him and made him a strong healthy child." The Tablets are for sale by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FLEET AT SPITHEAD

Greatest of Armadas.

Never before has such an armada been brought together for review by a monarch as was assembled in the narrow waters of the Solent on this, the navy's day in the round of coronation pageantry.

Ranged in a line six miles in length and two miles broad floated 167 British warships and eighteen foreign vessels representing seventeen nations.

The aggregate tonnage of the British craft alone was over one million as compared with a little more than one-half this total present at Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee review in 1897. This aggregation of British Dreadnoughts and smaller sister represented approximately the huge outlay of $400,000,000, while if the value of the eighteen foreign warships is added there was moored in this historic roadstead of Spithead an international war fleet representing a total initial expenditure of $500,000,000.

Dressed from stem to stern in a riot of bunting, the gray lines of the warships with a background formed by the nine miles of the Isle of Wight, made a magnificent spectacle. A strong southwesterly breeze blowing across the anchorage raised a choppy sea, and incidentally conflicting emotions in many among the scores of the thousands of spectators who viewed the scene from the multitude of beflagged excursion craft crowding the roadstead.

The King and Queen and princes were on the bridge as the royal yacht entered the water highway between the lines of foreign warships and British Dreadnoughts. As their majesties passed the American battleship Delaware, the sides of the big craft were manned with cheering bluejackets and her band played the National Anthem.

Throughout the length of the line each successive ship took up the cheering, and the National Anthem was heard from end to end of the long lines.

At the completion of the royal progress of the Victoria and Albert and the Alexandra, the latter with the foreign envoys, together with the accompanying vessels took up their moorings, in a group, the Victoria and Albert stationed in the centre of the line of foreign warships and abreast the Lord Nelson, the flagship of Sir Arthur Moore, admiral in command of the fleet.

His majesty then received the British flag officers and foreign flag officers and the commanders of all foreign warships not carrying a flag officer.

The visiting officers were introduced to the King by Sir Arthur Moore, and were also presented to the Queen and the Prince of Wales, who stood beside his majesty on the quarterdeck.

Tonight the fleet will be illuminated from 7 to 11 o'clock.

The tombola will continue through the afternoon and evening, and refreshments will be served on the grounds. An effort will be made to secure the presence of Bishop Fallon for the occasion.

STRAIGHT TALK TO BORDEN

West Must Educate Him, Says Grain Growers' Guide.

Winnipeg, June 23.—The Grain Growers' Guide says: "Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party of Canada, and the man who will be Premier in the event of a change of Government, has begun his tour of the west. His address at Winnipeg on the evening of June 15 was the opening speech of his campaign. In that address Mr. Borden dealt with the questions that are at present agitating the west. As will be seen by the reports of his address in another column, Mr. Borden stands right with the western farmers on the Hudson Bay Railway, terminal elevator and chilled meat questions. His statements upon these questions were clear and definite, and are certainly gratifying to the western people. But, satisfactory as is Mr. Borden's attitude on these matters, his attitude on reciprocity and the tariff in general is equally unsatisfactory. He opposes reciprocity, and gives no hope that the great obstacle to trade will be removed. Mr. Borden should be given to understand that he cannot expect the support of the west upon his present policy any more than can Sir Wilfrid Laurier expect the support of the west upon the Government policy towards the Hudson Bay Railway, terminal elevators and chilled meat industries. Sir Wilfrid was skeptical when he came west, but not so when he returned. So let it be with Mr. Borden. The people of the west know what they want, and are willing to pay for it. Mr. Borden nor Sir Wilfrid Laurier are entitled to deny them their rights. The farmers should make it their duty to see that Mr. Borden is fully informed as to their views on the tariff question. All emphasis should be laid upon this matter, as Mr. Borden is already converted upon most of the other questions. Let his education proceed. He is younger than Sir Wilfrid, yet even the Premier was not too old to learn."

BERRY SUPPLY WAS LARGE TODAY

Sold at Somewhat Lower Prices But Quality Was Not so Good.

EGGS SOMEWHAT SCARCE

Wool Offered in Large Quantities—$6 90 Per Hundredweight Will Be Paid For Live Hogs on Monday.

The market this morning while not particularly large was an excellent one, there being a great variety of farm products offered for sale. The demand was good, and, on the whole, the prices were firm.

Contrary to expectations, there was a large supply of strawberries. The quality was not the best, most of the berries being quite small. The prices were 7½ to 8½, wholesale, and from 8½ to 9, retail. One extra fine load was bought outright at 10 cents. They were a particularly fine sample.

Eggs were not abundant, and the demand heavy. The most of the supply was cleaned up early, at 17 to 18 cents a dozen, wholesale, and 20 cents, retail. There was a good supply of butter, but there was no trouble in disposing of the whole supply. The wholesalers paid 18 to 19 cents, while 20 cents was paid for rolls. The quality was extra good as a rule.

Wool was offered in large consignments, 20 cents being paid for washed, and 12 cents for unwashed.

Potatoes were not plentiful, and there was a rise in price. The most of the supply sold for from 80 to 85 cents a bag.

The dealers will pay $6 90 for live hogs on Monday. Last week the price was $7, but the price for Monday will be 10 cents lower.

There were several loads of oats offered, the prices running from $1 12 to $1 16.

There was a very large supply of vegetables, and the prices ruled firm. There was not much poultry for sale, 16 to 18 cents a pound being paid for spring chickens.

PORCUPINE

We would advise the purchase of HOLLINGER on all reactions. We recommended the purchase of this stock three months ago at $6, selling now around $16, and it would not surprise me if the $25 mark is passed before long.

Just received word from our man in PORCUPINE that very rich ore had been struck on the FOLEY O'BRIAN at the 160-foot level. Would strongly advise the purchase of this stock and DOME EXTENSION at present prices.

Our WEEKLY MARKET LETTER on PORCUPINE is a GUIDE to market profits, and will be mailed FREE upon request.

We have examined the books and accounts of The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, for a period of four years ending December 31st, 1910, and certify that the Current Assets and Liabilities included in the above statement are correct.

During the period covered by our examination, the profits of the Company, including interest on investments (which has aggregated about $27,500.00 per annum), after providing for depreciation, have in no year amounted to less than $300,000.00, excepting in the year 1910, when the profits amounted to only $167,032.03. The profits for the three years, 1907, 1908 and 1909, on the basis mentioned, have averaged $533,282.08 per annum, and the falling off in the business of the year 1910 is explained by the management as being largely due to the curtailment of operations resulting from the delivery of defective steel castings purchased by the Company under contract.

Yours very truly,

FIELD OF OPERATION.

Canada to-day has over 25,000 miles of railroad in operation and over 6,000 under construction or being surveyed. According to statistics furnished by the Department of Railways, one locomotive is required for every six miles of track. Last year there were 4,079 locomotives in use in Canada. The completion of the present 6,000 miles under construction will call for 1,000 new locomotives. In addition, 400 locomotives will be required each year to replace existing equipment. The railroad development which is taking place in Canada is really only at its beginning, and it is expected that within the next ten years the present railway mileage in Canada will be more than doubled. The field of operation is therefore almost unlimited.

PLANT AND EQUIPMENT.

The Canadian Locomotive Company, Limited, have been building locomotives since 1855 and have therefore a thorough knowledge of the business. At the present time they are turning out 75 locomotives per year, but have had to refuse many satisfactory orders owing to their limited capacity. The Company have the most up-to-date and modern plant in Canada, covering 333,000 sq. ft.

In addition the Company have 180,000 sq. ft. of reclaimable land on which they can erect additional buildings and, as required, still further enlarge their plant at the minimum of cost. The Company are fortunate in having cheap power, unexcelled shipping facilities, and in being exempt from taxation, except School taxes, up to the year 1916. They have probably the best trained and most loyal staff of skilled workmen on the continent.

ESTIMATED EARNINGS.

It is estimated that as a result of the contemplated increase to the plant, the earnings within the next few years should be at least $600,000 per annum; or in the neighborhood of 18% on the Common Stock after providing for Bond Interest, Sinking Fund, and Preferred Stock Dividend.

In making provision for an increase in the capacity of their plant, the Company are not entering into a new and untried field. They have a thorough knowledge of the business, and the increased output can be managed with the same office and selling staffs. Other economies will be effected through manufacturing in larger numbers than has been the case in the past. The reputation of the Company is so good that the demand for their locomotives far exceeds the supply.

Applications will be made in due course to list the Preference and Common Shares on the Toronto and Montreal and London Stock Exchanges.

A FAMOUS FAST RAILROAD RUN

It Was Back in 1877 Over the Canada Southern From St. Thomas to Amherstburg.

FASTEST long-distance run on record — Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, June, 1905; Buffalo to Chicago, 525 miles, 7 hours 50 minutes.

The fastest long-distance run less than 500 miles — New York Central, September, 1895; New York to Buffalo 436½ miles in 407 minutes.

Among the fastest regular trains in the United States, for a shorter distance, is the New York Central, "Empire State Express," between New York and Albany, 143 miles in 147 minutes.

Pennsylvania railroad, "Congressional Limited," Jersey City to Washington, 227 miles in 286 minutes. Also, same road, "Pennsylvania Special," Jersey City to North Philadelphia, 84 miles in 83 minutes; and from Jersey City to Harrisburg, 194 miles in 196 minutes.

Foreign roads: special runs: London, Northwestern and Caledonian, 1893; London to Edinburgh, 400 miles, 458 minutes.

London and Northwestern, August, 1896, London to Aberdeen, 540 miles in 512 minutes. A specialily forearranged and guarded train.

Great Western, July, 1903; London to Plymout, 246 miles in 234 minutes.

Northern Railway of France: Paris to St. Quentin, 96¾ miles in 93 minutes; St. Quentin to the Belgian frontier, 33¾ miles in 31 minutes.

Eastern Railway of France: Paris to Basle (first 104¾ miles), in 107 minutes.

The Michigan Central flier, called 'The Detroiter,' has for its regular schedule, Windsor Tunnel station to St. Thomas, 109.7 miles in 102 minutes.

This line is the same as the one over which the fast run was made in 1877, which we are about to describe. It was then called the Canada Southern. Not long thereafter the Michigan Central purchased the road and it now forms part of the main line of the latter company.

Frank E. Snow was general passenger agent of the Canada Southern at the time the road first attracted public notice by a surprisingly fast run. Muir B. Snow, son of Frank E., is assistant general superintendent of the Michigan Central.

The son has supervision of "The Detroiter," which daily makes the same points on its eastern run, namely, Detroit to St. Thomas.

New types of locomotives and other railway improvements enable "The Detroiter" to better the time slightly, and so the Snow boy may be said to "have it on the old man" in respect to speed.

The former track of the Canada Southern was not direct to Detroit, but via Amherstburg. Henry B. Leonard built the line direct from Windsor to Essex Centre, where it joins the original main track. It was a vast advantage to the road.

The Charm of a September Day.

The scene opens at St. Thomas, Canada, afternoon of Sept. 13, 1877. A bright, clear day, sufficiently warm for the season. The charm of autumn is in the air. The distance is rendered vague by the haze veiling the trees, but not obscuring them as one looks toward the sheltering woods forming the rear portions of each farm in this lovely part of the Province of Ontario. The day is still; hardly a breeze is stirring. The corn is standing green and uncut, and sheep are contentedly standing in the pastures, having fed abundantly, the grass growing thriftily after the autumn rains that marked the beginning of the month. Forehanded farmers are plowing for the fall seeding. Industry is remarked in every field. A lovely day, with the charm in sky and on earth that painters call "atmosphere."

This run, remember, was made when wood was the fuel mostly used on railroads. Coal was used in the east, but western roads universally employed wood-burning locomotives. Wood yards at every station, the wood being sawed into two-foot lengths. Seasoned wood that burned quickly. The light sparks were carried by the draught high above the top of the smokestacks and fell away in showers.

How the Fast Run Came About.

The Right Reverend Casper H. Borgess, bishop of the Catholic diocese of Detroit, had passed the summer in Rome, was on his return to Detroit. Rome was on its return to Detroit. It was desired to welcome him from his arrival. The regular train from New York, on which the bishop had taken passage, was not due in Detroit until late in the evening, too late for any public demonstration.

The gentlemen organizing the reception to the bishop called upon General Passenger Agent Frank E. Snow, of the Canada Southern Railroad. Mr. Snow said he would provide a special train to take over the bishop from the regular train on its arrival at St. Thomas, and send the special with express rights to the track, cutting out all stops, bring the bishop, his party and the reception committee to Detroit in time to carry out the programme for a parade and other ceremonies arranged for the occasion.

This decision pleased the reception committee. Two coach loads of members departed for St. Thomas Sept. 13, 1877, there to await the arrival of the bishop and speed him home.

And now for the story to retold of the famous run as we find it printed in the press of Sept. 14, 1877. The caption is that placed upon the article by the New York Sun. The story, by the way, was reprinted in many newspapers in every civilized nation.

A HUNDRED AND ELEVEN MILES IN ONE HUNDRED AND NINE MINUTES.

The Train That Left a Whirlwind in Its Wake.

The tender was piled high with the best quality of beech wood, water tricked from the overflowing tank. There was to be only one stop in the one hundred and eleven miles that separate St. Thomas from Amherstburg. The engineer, Macomber, was surrounded by an admiring throng. Passengers and railroad men congregated on the handsome appearance of his iron steed. He attended to the oiling of the engine and the filling of the journals and boxes. His demeanor affirmed his determination "to thunder the run through by the card."

The steam gauge, just before starting, showed a pressure of 85 pounds—a moderate figure for a locomotive. The air-brake cylinders clunked in an impatient manner. The light-colored smoke ascended perpendicularly in the still air of the delightful September afternoon.

The fireman was pointed out by an acquaintance. "He's a stout young fellow," said he, "as you see; but there'll be nothing but a grease spot left of him by the time the train reaches Amherstburg. That is, if Macomber tries to beat Vanderbilt's time, for this train is one car heavier than Vanderbilt's 'train.'"

"Oh, don't talk," said another railroad man, "no fun there on the engine won't warm him up. What's two hours of firing?"

This conversation, and these potations excited a number of the more timorous passengers. A half dozen of them made straight for the ticket office and purchased accident insurance tickets.

General Manager Muir heard of it. "Why," said Muir, "that's preposterous. There is but one curve in our track between here and the Detroit River. That's at Charing Cross, where we stop for water. The roadbed is in perfect condition. There are no bridges, once we leave the town and our rails are the heaviest on any railroad in America. Our rolling stock is first-class. I'm going to Detroit on that train, so is Division Superintendent Webster and Train Dispatcher Noble."

The Pacific Express arrived thundering in from the east. The transfer of Bishop Borgess to the waiting special train was made without any particular ceremony. Conductor A. E. Crawford sang out "All aboard!" and the special pulled out from St. Thomas at 5:27 p.m. A grand hurrah from the people on the station platform signaled the departure.

As soon as the St. Thomas bridge had been cleared, Macomber "let her out." Bishop Borgess, in the palace car, after receiving the salutations of the gentlemen of the escorting party sat down. Dinner was served to him and his traveling companions upon a small table. No one noticed any unusual motion in the car. There was no disarrangement of the dishes, crowded and small as was the table. The hum of the train was somewhat sharper than is common; the rushing air against the windows sounded like the sweeping of a rain storm. Otherwise, to a person in the car, there was no indication of unusual speed.

Presently watches were taken out and observations made. The reverend clergy, as well as the more worldly-minded laity, became interested.

"A mile in sixty seconds!" ejaculated one.

Shortly after: "A mile in fifty-eight seconds."

Again: "A mile in fifty-seven seconds."

And then enthusiastic Fred Moran, with a shout and a cheer that intensified the excitement, announced that his stop-watch marked but fifty-three seconds to the mile!

At the rear end of the last coach sat General Manager Muir, his eyes fixed on the ever-appearing, ever-vanishing track, with a demeanor philosophic as if such speed was an everyday affair on the Canada Southern. Opposite to him sat Superintendent Webster, and near at hand Train Dispatcher Noble. Frank P. Taylor counted the miles.

Before one could point out an object it had vanished. Before a brief question could be answered as briefly a mile had sped. Five miles were traversed in the interval while cigars were lighted by as many men. A flock of blackbirds flying toward the west, with all their fleetness in cleaving the air, were soon left up and down from the movement of the wings and lost to view.

The wires of the telegraph poles swung to rain. Bushes growing beside the railroad ditches shook as if sweet by a hurricane. Tall and lovely goldenrod, that grew on the right-of-way, clear up to the fences bent to the ground in a seemingly overpowering desire to get loose from the earth and follow the rushing train.

Dust from newly-ballasted portions of the track, the chips and leaves detached by autumn from the forest trees rose up heavily against the force of gravitation and whirled and gyrated like vapory clouds in a tempest. A thin line of smoke stretched interminably in the distance. It was the spiraling out from the locomotive, floating to the rear of vision, lacking time to be left behind. The stillness of the air and the back draft of the rush kept the smoke in suspension.

The fineness of the train was augmented by the velocity with which it shot forward created a vacuum that apparently took nature some seconds to overcome. The spirits of the passengers were exhilarated by the unprecedented speed at which they moved through space.

A full-throated passenger train saluted with cheers and locomotive whistles. Neither was heard before the sound could reach the ears of the passengers in the special it was beyond hearing. One could see the rising steam from the whistle cord and get a fleeting glimpse of waving handkerchiefs.

Train Dispatcher Noble reported that six miles between Highwood and Ridgetown were made in five minutes; the first seven miles in seven. St. Thomas and Charing Cross were made in fifty-six and a half minutes. A halt at Charing Cross of four minutes for water, and then on again with the same overpowering speed.

To go fast as it might, the Canada Southern train could not overtake the sun. It sank and nightfall came on. Then could be seen the work of the fireman. Every time he opened the furnace door a column of sparks shot upward, the reflecting fire seen down upon the track like the pyrotechnics of an aerial mine.

Finally a twist that sent the standing passengers over to the right, and directly another that sent them in the other direction, and Amherstburg station was reached. The train had arrived!

Hurrah, one hundred and eleven miles in one hundred and nine minutes! The fastest time in America! Beating by three minutes the remarkable run of William H. Vanderbilt's train!

Bishop Borgess complimented Engineer Macomber, excitedly did the same, being sincerely proud of his achievement. Likewise the firemen, the two excellent types of the companions, fine, intelligent railroad men of America. The bishop had not believed he had traveled on the fastest trains in England and in Europe. On none of them had such amazing time been made. He further said that on no European railroad had he seen cars comparing in point of beauty with the coach he had just had the pleasure of occupying on this wonderful run.

TO STOP HICCOUGHS

If It's a Simple Case, Try a Sneeze or Hang From a Beam.

SIMPLE cases of hiccough are often relieved by such measures as sucking ice or taking salt or vinegar, says the New York Medical Journal. Pulling the tongue forward and holding it for some time is an effective procedure.

Sometimes obstinate hiccough is relieved when the patient is strong by having him hang with the arms extended and grasping some beam or pole, so that his feet do not touch the floor. With all the abdominal muscles tense, have him hold his breath as long as possible.

Sneezing is very efficient in certain cases, since it is the exact opposite to hiccough, being a sudden expiratory act. In Plato's "Symposium" the physician Eryximachus recommended too much, either to hold his breath or to gargle with a little water, and if not relieved to tickle his nose and sneeze, whereupon the hiccough would be sure to go.

The spelling of "hiccough" is recent, being a combination of syllables "hic" and the latter term of "cough" which is without either physiological or etymological basis; the pronunciation, with perhaps the rarest exceptions, is still that of the older form "hiccup," earlier given variously—as "hickup" "hickupsnickup," "hickhop," "hickcock," "hichcock," and "hickett," with quasi diminishing suffixes ock, et; but the "hick" a syllable aptly expressive of the spasmodic sound produced by the conditions giving rise to the particular disturbance. Is found in all references to the origin of the term to which the writer has been able to obtain. The term singultus is rarely used.

SINGERS' REMEDIES.

In ancient Athens the singers often used a demulcent containing gum tragacanth. Onions and garlic were considered beneficial to the voice. Eels and starchy vegetables were also recommended. Cubebs, gum arabic, gum tragacanth, extract of pine, oil of almonds and thyme oil were among the remedies and preservatives used by the Athenian public singers.

One modern opera singers have not changed much from such remedies. Yet there is much difference among operatic stars as to what is best to use for toning up the throat. In a long career as musical critic, Louis Elson, writes that he has been brought in contact with many vocal celebrities and has garnered up some of their favorite prescriptions. Here are a few of them:

A very prominent English tenor used sherry and egg shaken up just before going on the stage. A celebrated alto pinned her faith upon cold tea with a slice of lemon squeezed into it. A distinguished baritone believed that a few raw oysters were beneficial to the song following after them. Usually all doctors agree that smoking dries the throat and is prejudicial to good singing, but two eminent basses, one German and one English, constantly smoked in the green-room, one of them stating that he believed it kept the throat warm and prevented taking cold. One great Swedish soprano would often eat, or at least chew, a salt pickle before going on to sing. In short, scarcely any two singers seem to agree upon a prescription in this important matter. Yet a single exception may be made here. Three very prominent singers, one of them the greatest living soprano, have turned to light drafts of champagne when singing under a cold or in a fatigued condition.

A LONG-RANGE WEDDING IN HIGH LIFE.

Enver Bey, the Young Turk leader, who is military attache in Berlin, was married in Constantinople on Monday to Princess Nadidi, that is, they have been officially notified that they are married. Neither of them was present at the solemn ceremony, at which the Sheik-ul-Islam, head of the Mohammedan Church next to the Sultan, presided. Enver Bey remained in Berlin and Princess Nadjli stayed at home. This was one case where the bride was not the cynosure of all eyes at the wedding, but the absent bridegroom was no less conspicuous than a bridegroom is at a marriage. The incident throws a strange light on progress in Turkey. Envers did not want to marry the royal princess, and Nadjli did not want to marry the man who played a prominent part in the actual dethronement and exile of her father, the Sultan Abdul Hamid. But it was decreed by the present Sultan, Murad V., that this belligerent alliance should be Envers' reward for his part in the revolution. The whole situation has a sides of comic opera. Envers did not make the journey from Berlin to Constantinople to be present at his own wedding. Princess Nadjli sulked in her own apartments, presumably in a state of high dungeon, and every woman will sympathize with her. Now the Sultan intends to recall Envers to Constantinople and give his nephew-in-law a high military post there. Because he does not think it desirable that the bridegroom should "live abroad." It would seem as if the royal bride considers life undesirable in any country where the redoubtant bridegroom happens to be sojourning.

NOVEL USE FOR RATS.

That the much-abused rat can be of real service in the world was shown the other day, when from underground life in Chicago, a crate containing twenty of the rodents was shipped to Frank Elsey, manager of the Rockford telephone exchange.

"We are laying several miles of conduit," Mr. Elsey explained. "The cable could be fished through by using a thick wire, but it is a quicker operation to use rats. A light cord is fastened around a rat's neck. It is released at the mouth of the conduit. Instinctively it runs to the other end, where our men capture it. With the string we pull through a heavier cord and finally the cable."

MAKING USE OF THE RHINE.

The German Rhine is commercially the most important stream in the world. It furnishes a most illuminating contrast to the decadent Mississippi.

United States has expended more money in the twenty years ended in 1907 on the most importat stretch of the Mississippi, 206 miles between St. Louis and Cairo, than the German central government has expended in the improvement of the Rhine from Strassburg to the frontier of Holland, a distance of 355 miles.

Yet the amount of tonnage handled on this portion of the Mississippi in 1908 was 374,093 tons, while that on the Rhine in the same year was between 40,000,000 and 45,000,000 tons, an amount from 80 to 100 times as great.

RIB NOW PART OF HIS SKULL.

A wonderful case of bone grafting is reported from St. Louis, where George Williams, a patient in the City Hospital, has had part of one of his ribs grafted on to his skull. Williams met with an accident some time ago, and in order to save his life a portion of the parietal bone at the back of his skull was removed. The pressure of the scalp on the unprotected membrane beneath it caused an irritation of the brain cells, and Williams became subject to frequent paroxysms. There have been many cases of bone grafting, but heretofore these operations have been confined to taking a slice of bone from one part of the skull and putting it on another. In Williams' case this was impossible, so large a portion of the skull had been removed. The visiting surgeon suggested that a rib would do. The patient's sixth rib was removed. A piece four inches long and an inch wide was cut from the end of the rib and carefully fitted into the hole in the skull. The scalp was then sewed up over it. Williams has not had a paroxysm since the operation was performed.

Palpitation of The Heart.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beats fast for a time, then go slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

The least excitement or exertion seems to affect it.

Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable, through this unnatural action of the heart.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and premanent relief.

Mrs. John Thompson, Mill Cove, N.B., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart; would have severe choking spells, and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all suffering with heart and nerve trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE NOMINATIONS FOR NORTH HURON

Provincial Convention of Liberals at Wingham Yesterday.

J. S. McKENZIE SELECTED

Strong Address Delivered by Hon. A. G. MacKay — The New Officers.

Wingham, June 23. — Hon. A. G. MacKay addressed a convention of North Huron Liberals today. Messrs. John T. Currie, Wingham, and John N. McKenzie, of Laurier, were nominated, and after each had urged the claims of the other the ballot gave a majority for Mr. McKenzie, and on motion of Mr. Currie the nomination was made unanimous. Mr. Arch. Hyslop, ex-M. P. P., East Huron, also spoke.

Mr. MacKay opened with an expression of satisfaction in Mr. McKenize, and he urged the delegates to commence work at once. North Huron was a fighting field; John McKenzie was a fighting candidate, and he looked for victory here. No question so important had come before Canada in his memory as reciprocity, but there were things that went deeper into the life of the country than trade; things in the jurisdiction of the Legislature.

There were no resources like the children in the public schools, and what had the Government done for them? He pointed to the mistakes of the Government, and said they were made in spite of warnings. He declared that through the bungling of the Government the education of the Province was not as well conducted today as ten years ago, and cost twice as much. The Minister of Education, said Mr. MacKay, was well named Pyne; he could not be more wooden, so far as education is concerned. The abolition of model schools he criticised as against the principle of allowing the poor man to make teachers of his children. Mr. MacKay was ready to go into any rural constituency and fight on the one issue of the school question.

Reciprocity.

He also exposed the farce of the Government's school book claims. The whole machinery of the municipality was affected by the Legislature. Good roads and assessment were especially mentioned, and Mr. MacKay declared in favor of leaving it to the local bodies whether they would assess land without assessing improvements and industry.

He proceeded to relate Mr. Borden's experiences of yesterday, where he found Conservatives leading the westerners in their demand for reciprocity, and not one of his own men supporting him. Mr. MacKay briefly referred to the many evidences of the Conservative policy of Sir John Macdonald in favor of reciprocity in natural products. The prophecy of Sir John had now been fulfilled, and the Opposition must be hard pressed when they would dishonor the memory of their departed distinguished chieftain to say that he did not mean what he said.

A point driven home by the speaker was that if the Conservatives were so sure reciprocity would be a bad thing, why did they not go on record against it, let it pass, and after a year's trial have the dissatisfied people turn the Liberals out? During the first five months of this year 625 cars of hay had been exported to the United States from Ontario north of Stratford. At twenty tons to the car and $4 a ton duty, that was $50,000 lost in duty.

He closed with a reply to the annexation bogey, and urged the electors to vote against Mr. Musgrove, who had forgotten them when he had voted against reciprocity.

Mr McKenzie made a fighting speech, and asked that his friends join him in a fair and square battle, demanding them that his opponent was always a gentleman.

Resolutions were adopted in support of reciprocity, and expressions of loyalty to the sovereign, and of confidence in their political leaders.

The following officers of the association were elected: President, Wm. Isbister, Morris; first vice-president, Robt. Shiell, Wingham; second vice-president, John McKenize, Laurier; third vice - president, S. Bricker, Fordwich; treasurer, J. A. Morton, Wingham; secretary, H. B. Elliott, Wingham.

Are You Anaemic or Bloodless?

IF SO, THE SPRING IS A MOST TRYING TIME FOR YOU

Your Hope Rests in Getting the Blood Rich and Red by Using

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Shortness of breath and fatigue with slight exertion, failure of the vital organs to properly perform their functions, and pallor of the gums and eyelids, are among the indications of anaemia or bloodlessness.

The blood is thinner and more watery in the spring than at any other season, and for this reason the person who is subject to anaemia, or lack of blood, suffers the most.

You must increase the number of red corpuscles in the blood, and this can best be done by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great restorative treatment does not merely stimulate the organs to renewed activity, but cures by building up the system. For this reason its benefits are both natural and lasting.

Sleeplessness, indigestion, neuralgic and sciatic pains and weakness and irregularities of the vital organs become a thing of the past when Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is used.

It is only natural that you should get strong and well when this building-up treatment is used, for it supplies to the blood in condensed and easily assimilated form the elements which go to form new, rich blood.

Your digestive system has failed to extract sufficient nutrition from the food you eat, and hence the necessity of such direct nourishment as is supplied to the blood by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50., at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

THE GOVT. TO CHARTER HUDSON'S BAY ROUTE

Steamer Minto Is To Be Sent North for This Summer.

Ottawa, June 23.—The Government steamer Minto has been assigned for the surveying of Hudson Bay and Straits this summer. It is the determination of the Government to, as speedily as possible, have the Hudson Bay route charted, so that navigation may be conducted with safety as soon as the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway to salt water will provide business for steamers in the north.

The Government will be in a position to make a choice between Nelson and Churchill this autumn, as two big survey parties are being sent to the mouths of the Nelson and Churchill Rivers to complete the survey of the approaches begun last year. The Minto will leave Halifax near the end of the month, and in addition to taking soundings and charting the route through the straits and bay, will locate the points at which such navigation aids as buoys and lighthouses should be located. The two schooners for the port survey will leave about the same time or a little sooner. The fact that the Minto is being sent north this summer will enable the surveyors to take a far more complete equipment in the way of launches than they could otherwise do. The surveying operations will again be under the direction of Mr. Fred Anderson, C. E., of the Canadian Hydrographic Survey. It is expected that the port will be definitely located this summer, so that railway construction can be commenced from the Hudson Bay end next summer, and the whole road pushed to a speedy completion.

BATTLESHIP MICHIGAN HAS BEST GUNNERS

They Win Championship Trophy Over All Battleships and Cruisers.

Washington, June 23.—The battleship Michigan, commanded by Captain Nathaniel R. Usher, is the premier shot of the American navy. In the spring battle practice the Michigan scored 59.929 points of merit and will be awarded the gunnery championship trophy, a red pennant with a black ball in the centre, which will fly from her masthead until the honor is wrested from her by a sister ship.

The Michigan far outclassed every other battleship or cruiser in the navy, the nearest approach in marksmanship being the North Dakota, with 72,948 points. The New Hampshire, whose splendid firing battered the old battleship San Marcos into a mass of twisted steel and sent her to the bottom of Chesapeake Bay in the recent ordnance tests, made the poorest record of all the ships in her general rating, being credited with only 14,380 points.

The standing of the ships, with their points of merit, follows: Michigan, 59,929, North Dakota, 72,948; South Dakota, 70,956; Maryland, 64,033; Virginia, 59,709; Vermont 59,617; California, 53,349; Pennsylvania, 50,384; Connecticut, 47,497; West Virginia, 59,096; Idaho, 34,801; Rhode Island, 24,271; Louisiana, 23,503; Kansas 21,824; South Carolina, 21,389; Mississippi, 21,244; Georgia, 21,221; Minnesota, 18,995; Nebraska, 18,167, and New Hampshire, 14,380.

LOST HUSBAND'S ASHES

Had Them in Grip, Which Was Given to Another Man.

New York, June 23.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company yesterday kept the wires to Pittsburg and Chicago hot in an effort to find Mrs. Mary H. White, to notify her that her husband's ashes, contained in a small box, had been found in this city. The box has figured in a strange adventure.

Mrs. White, who lives in Chicago, arrived in Pittsburg several days ago, and checked her grip at the station. About the same time a metal worker, who had been employed in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards at Pittsburg, left for this city. When he called for his grip, which had also been checked, he was given one that closely resembled his. On the train he discovered a mistake had been made. While seeking employment at the National Metal Trades Association yesterday the man told Frank Caske, an agent, of the mix-up of the grips. He turned over Mrs. White's grip to Caske, who examined it.

"The first thing I found was the little metal box," said Caske last evening. "It was tied up with a yellow ribbon and sealed with the seal of the Graceland crematory, Chicago. With it was a coffin plate, bearing the name, George Shires White. In addition were several letters written to Mrs. White."

Caske informed the Pennsylvania Railroad of the facts and the company sent a representative to take charge of the grip.

SAYS GIRLS OF U. S. LACK SENTIMENT

Beautiful but Cold, Declares E. Phillips Oppenheim, British Novelist.

New York, June 23. — Having had a jolly, well-entertained stal with us for six weeks, E. Phillips Oppenheim, rapid-fire novelist, sailed on the Oceanic today.

In his rooms at the Majestic he talked of many things last night. Mostly it was about women—our own American women—with a flitter of comparison now and then that brought in British and French women.

And he was surprising, this British novelist. We are so used to having our American women lauded by foreign visitors of distinction that when one of them drags forth his little hammer—why, the jolt is almost enjoyable. It may be said the English novelist was at no time brutal. His hammer had a velvet cushion on the head of it, but he was busy with it, just the same.

He put his hand half-tragically to his forehead when he began about the women.

"Pretty—beautiful? Oh, yes, yes; I should say so. But they're too much for me. They're—well, they are so deucedly self-contained; so bally well sure of themselves, don't you know. They are such a stunning combination of beauty, new hats, cocktails and self-concentration.

"Do you know," added Mr. Oppenheim, with bated breath, "I think the fair American creatures are totally devoid of sentiment. And there you are—really. I've been around a great deal in my six weeks' stay—been to Boston, New York, Newport and other famous spots, and have seen a good deal of American society and American society women, and—well, that's my opinion. They are totally devoid of sentiment. They do not suggest any of that charming trait of femininity which requires that somebody must be around making love to them.

Needs No One to Make Love.

"An American girl doesn't need anybody to make love to her. If she feels the necessity she can create the situation, believe me.

"All she cares about is to know where she can positively find and possess a man to buy her hats. Apparently she must always have new hats. She can get along without sentiment, but if life is worth living with her it must be crowded with hats, hats, hats.

"It is so different with the Englishwoman. She prefers sentiment always. She can get along happily with last year's hat, but if you take away this year's sentiment she will mope grievously. Fact, I assure you."

The novelist, who is a trim little man, with a semi-bald head and a cynically turned mouth, looked wholly in earnest.

"They are not intellectual," he said, "but they are dreadfully inquisitive. They ask so many searching questions they suggest the intellectual, but they really are only inquisitive. But, by the same token, they are highly stimulating.

"But they all seem so devoid of sentiment—beautiful, but cold. They've been compared to French women, but that's absurd. French women have no intellect whatever. They don't know anything and nobody wants them to. They are just attractive and stand simply on the good old platform of their sex. And that isn't disagreeable to a fellow."

LONSDALE A HERO

Famous Sporting Peer Captures a Thief and Knocks Down Confederate.

London, June 23. — The famous sporting peer, the Earl of Lonsdale, was the hero of an incident at the Piccadilly Circus late last night. He seized a man who had snatched a brooch from a lady, knocked down a confederate of the thief, who attacked him, and held the thief until the police appeared. The crowd on recognizing Lord Lonsdale gave him such a strenuous ovation that he was compelled to take refuge in a police station.

So great have been the difficulties of distributing newspapers on account of the congestion of traffic, that some of the London morning newspapers for the past two days have been compelled to go to press before 9 o'clock in the morning.

THIS MAN WOULD DIE FOR "SOO" MURDERESS

Cleveland Doctor Is Willing To Take Her Place on the Gallows.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 23.—Dr. Alexander Aalto, of Ashtabula, Ohio, is willing to be hanged in place of Mrs. Angelina Napolitano, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., the woman condemned to die on the gallows Aug. 9, one month after the expected birth of her fifth child, for killing a husband who tried to force her into white slavery.

Dr. Aalto is a middle-aged bachelor, with a mother and sister in Finland. He has a large office practice among Finnish and Swedish citizens, many coming from Detroit, Youngstown, Pittsburg and Cleveland to be treated by him.

"It would only be fair to Mrs. Napolitano for a man to give his life for her, inasmuch as her life is in peril on account of a man's persecution of her, and because men condemned her," says Aalto. "I know my old mother would consider that I was honoring her motherhood in dying for Mrs. Napolitano."

A BRAND NEW WAY TO COMMIT SUICIDE

You Attach Trigger of Gun to Window Shade and Let It Go.

[Canadian Press.]

Pittsburg, Pa., June 24.—One of the latest and unique methods of committing suicide was used successfully by Frank Ciecra, who ended his life with a shotgun, fired by a spring window shade roller. Ciecra had placed the gun against his breast while sitting on a chair, and had sprung the trigger by releasing the spring roller of a window shade, the string of which was attached to the trigger.

ARCHDEACON CLARK CONSECRATED BISHOP

Takes Over the Diocese of the Late Bishop Du Moulin Today.

[Canadian Press.]

Hamilton, June 24. — Venerable Archdeacon William Reid Clark, M.A., was today consecrated Bishop of Niagara, succeeding to the vacancy created by the death of Bishop Du Moulin. Distinguished ecclesiastics and laymen from all over the province gathered at Christ Church Cathedral for the solemn and imposing ceremonies, which began at 8 o'clock with holy communion, followed by prayer. The consecration service proper began at 11 o'clock. Charles, metropolitan of the ecclesiastical province of Canada, officiated. His Grace the Archbishop of Ottawa, the bishops of the province, and their chaplains, were present. The Lord Bishop of Ontario and the Bishop of Huron conducted the communion service, the Bishop of Algoma preaching the sermon.

The active consecration began when the Bishops of Huron and Toronto presented the bishop-elect to the archbishop and Chancellor Martin.

Following the reading of the certificate of election, Canon Abbott chanted the litany, the bishop-elect retiring during the anthem and then returning fully robed to answer the consecration sentences put by the metropolitan and bishops.

The installation will take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon, when the keys of the cathedral will be handed over to the new bishop.

LUMBER MEN INDICTED

Chicago Jury Says That Trust Laws Are Violated.

Chicago, June 23.—Fourteen secretaries of as many lumber dealers' associations, indicted by a special federal grand jury here today for alleged violations of the Sherman law, constituted a new kind of "trust," according to the United States attorneys who conducted the investigation.

The retail lumber dealers, it was admitted at the close of the investigation, had no incorporation, no capital stock, and did not try to control prices and did not prevent competition among themselves. Instead, they had what the attorneys saw was a "trust of power" and sought to provide that all lumber should be sold to consumers only through retail dealers and not directly by wholesalers or manufacturers. The secretaries of the retail associations constitute the lumber secretaries' bureau of information, incorporated in Illinois in 1905, and represent thousands of retailers.

FORMER LONDONER WELLAND'S NOMINEE

Mr. Dores Chosen by Liberals for the Provincial House.

Welland, June 23.—O. E. Dores, of Niagara Falls, was today unanimously chosen provincial candidate by the Liberals of Welland County. Mr. Dores will give his answer later.

Mr. Dores is a native of Middlesex County, and was a resident of East London for some time, having conducted a grocery business there.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt addressed the meeting, touching upon the principal questions of the day, and advocating the proposed reciprocity pact.

William M. German, M. P., addressed the meeting at considerable length, principally in opposition to the reciprocity pact, which he declared would not be a good thing for the country.

A resolution that equal taxation be made a plank of the Ontario Liberals was carried. A resolution expressing confidence in Hon. A. G. MacKay, and one indorsing the proposed reciprocity pact now before the Commons, and expressing fullest confidence in the Laurier Government was also passed.

LINDSAY ARRAIGNED

The Farmers' Bank Case Again Remanded for a Week.

Toronto, June 23. — W. J. Lindsay, charged with conspiracy in the Farmers' Bank case, was arraigned before Magistrate Kingsford today and again remanded for a week.

H. E. Rose appeared for the defendant. He told the court that Lindsay's bondsmen, T. R. Parker and Dr. Noble, were going away for a few weeks, and asked that they be allowed to give assurance of their bond covering a period of three weeks.

The crown had asked for a remand of one week, and the crown attorney declined to accede to this request. The law calls for the appearance at each remand of both the bondsmen and the defendant, though in minor cases exceptions are sometimes made.

However, in this case, both the magistrate and crown attorney refused to take the responsibility and would accept nothing but a renewal of the $8,000 bond for one week.

"Will you accept Lindsay's own bail?" Mr. Rose asked.

"No," was the emphatic response. "I am going to take no chances in the matter."

Finally the bondsmen agreed to appear with the prisoner a week from today and Lindsay was allowed his liberty again.

Travers, who is still in the Toronto jail, was not in court.

Two Desperate Cases

These Two Men Owe Their Lives To GIN PILLS

Stone in the bladder is a direct result of kidney trouble—one of the results of neglecting the kidneys that have taken cold or are slightly out of order. Mr. Herman and Mr. Lessard whose letters are given below, were in a bad way until they tried GIN PILLS, which cured their trouble by removing the cause.

There is no other kidney pill anywhere that has the merits of GIN PILLS. Sick and diseased kidneys respond quickly to their treatment. Many a case of incipient Bright's or Diabetes has been cured by them. They cleanse, restore and build up the entire urinary tract.

573 James St. North, Hamilton, Ont.

Gentlemen,—Four years ago I was taken down with Inflammation of the Bladder. During the attacks, which occurred more and more frequently, the agony was unbearable, and I became so weak I could not walk across the floor. The doctors could do nothing to relieve or cure me.

My wife sent for a box of GIN PILLS to try and see if they would help me. From the first they did me good—the pain was relieved at once, and the attacks began to come at longer intervals. I continued taking the pills for six weeks, and then, to my surprise and delight, the stone I sent you some time ago came from me and my pain stopped. It is now three years since GIN PILLS cured me. I have had no return of the trouble, and I have not lost a day's work on account of it since.

There is not the slightest doubt that GIN PILLS saved my life. Yours gratefully, JOHN HERMAN.

Collette, P. Q.

"During August last I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with stone in the bladder.

He decided to operate, but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS.

They relieved the pain. I took two boxes and went back to the specialist. He said the stone was smaller, but he could not remove it, although he tried for two hours and a half. I returned home and continued to take GIN PILLS, and to my great surprise and joy, I passed the stone.

GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world, and because they did me so much good, I will recommend them all the rest of my life."

J. ALBERT LESSARD.

GIVING IT TIME.

[Success.]

Judge Stevens had a slight hesitation in his speech, but that affliction did not prevent his using long words. One morning his dog Snip got into a fight with another dog. Tapping him with his cane, Judge Stevens exclaimed: "D-d-d-dfe-con-t-t-t-tin-ue."

World's War Budgets Rise $405,400,000 in Eight Years

Terrible Cost of Armed Peace—Germany First, Russia Second, and Great Britain Third.

THE LATEST computations of the cost of incessant preparedness for "the coming European conflict," were compiled by G. de Contenson and Jules Roche, the latter the editor of the "Petit Annuaire du Contribuable" (Taxpayer's Handbook). These include the military and naval expenses of the eight principal powers of the world, England, France, Russia, Germany, Austria, Italy, Japan and the United States. They show in the first place that whereas the aggregate war budget of these powers was, in round numbers, 8,179,000,000 francs, or $1,635,800,000, in 1901, they had only attained a total of 8,384,000,000 francs, or $1,676,800,000, in 1909, the latest year for which a complete set of statistics is available.

Of course, in 1901 the British army expenses were altogether abnormal. The drain of the Boer war was at its greatest, and the budget was approximately two and a half times that of an ordinary year. Making allowances for this, the figures show that the annual cost of armed peace in Europe has swollen in the first nine years of the century, not by 205,000,000 francs, or $41,000,000, as appears on the face of the returns, but really by about 1,622,000,000 francs, or $405,400,000. In practically every country the expenditures for war preparedness are still on the increase.

England reached high water mark in the matter of naval expenditures in 1904. Starting from 694,000,000 francs, or $138,800,000, in 1900, she reached 930,000,000, or $186,000,000, in the year named. Her expenditures dropped to 741,00,000 francs in 1906, but by steady stages have advanced again to 882,600,000 in 1910. France, starting with 372,000,000 francs in 1900, never went higher until last year, when she approached 375,000,000 francs for her navy; her low point was 292,000,000 in 1904; her naval appropriation has been from 200,000,000 to 335,000,000.

Russia's maximum naval budget was 511,000,000 francs in 1905. It dropped to 238,000,000 in 1909. Last year's figures are not given, but they must have been much larger, as the appropriations included large sums for the building of new ships. Germany starts with her minimum of 190,000,000 francs in 1900 and progresses regularly year by year to 286,000,000 in 1904; then she leaps to 310,000,000, and by rapid stages, she reaches 538,000,000 in 1910, being still, however, 344,000,000 behind England.

Italy progresses pretty regularly from 117,000,000 francs in 1900 to 170,000,000 in 1909. Austria climbs from 45,000,000 to 66,000,000 in the same period. Japan, starting with 104,000,000 in 1909, drops as low as 59,000,000.

Turning to the cost of the great armies, it appears that after the Boer war England's war budget dropped from 863,000,000 francs, or $172,600,000, in 1903, to 631,000,000 francs, or $126,200,000, in 1906, the low point. It was up to 687,000,000 francs, or $137,400,000, in 1910. France made an increase of about fifty millions in 1901, reaching 726,000,000; in 1906 she jumped from 715,000,000 to 859,000,00. In 1908 she was back to 782,000,000, but last year her appropriation was 872,000,000.

Russia rose steadily from 883,000,000 in 1900, passing the milliard in 1905. An increase of 200,000,000 was made in 1908, and last year the total was 1,282,000,000 francs. In these figures the extraordinary expenses of the war with Japan are not included. Germany's army expenditure, like that of her navy, has been steadily progressive. It starts with 670,000,000 in 1900 and reaches 1,005,000,000 in 1910. It was 1,079,000,000 in 1908.

Italy's expenditures between 1900 and 1909 grew from 264,000,000 to 308,000,000 francs; Austria's from 312,000,000 to 350,000,000. Japan ended the last century with 95,000,000 spent in the year on her army; in 1909 she appropriated 227,000,000.

In the following table the massed amounts for army and navy purposes spent by each of the powers studied are given for three sample years in millions of francs:

	1901.	1905.	1909.
England	2,973	1,597	1,487
France	1,070	1,031	1,133
United States	1,056	1,240	1,421
Russia	1,140	1,320	1,498
Germany	953	1,190	1,539
Italy	390	416	478
Japan	239	159	412
Austria	358	369	416
	8,179	7,322	8,384

The authors point out that the anomalous item is the expenditure of the United States, especially as respects the army figure, given as 311,000,000 francs in 1901, as 608,000,000 in 1905 and 611,000,000 in 1909. These amounts in no way represent the relative efficiency of the force, the pay and maintenance of the officers and men being on an incomparably higher scale than in any other country in the world.

While England has kept her total expenses down amazingly, France also has been very economical. The increase in her total war figure is hardly more than 5 per cent. Germany, Russia and the United States show enormous increases, in Germany in the neighborhood of 60 per cent. In the decade from 1900 to 1910 there was in fact an increase of 79.5 per cent. Such an increase, borne apparently without inconvenience affords a proof of the growth of German financial resources. Of the increase about 35 per cent, was for the army the rest going to the naval account.

Worthy of remark is the very small expenditure by which Italy, Austria-Hungary and Japan maintain their positions as important military powers. Their budgets range between one-fourth and one-third of what the five powers of the first magnitude lay out. It is also remarkable that Italy spends more on her army and navy combined than does Austria.

One deduction that French commentators draw is, as might be expected, that the powers of the Triple Entente, allowing for the boundless wealth of Russia and the relative poverty of Italy and Austria-Hungary, are "keeping their end up" on much easier terms than their foes of the Triple Alliance. If the outcome of the contest in peaceful armament is to depend on the depth of purses, they infer that those who have kept increase of expense within bounds will not be the ultimate losers.

Sir Edward Grey Speaks at Dinner to Carnegie

Says the Forces Against War Are Gathering Weight—Peace and National Character—Great Britain and the United States Can Never Be Brought Into Confilct.

SIR EDWARD GREY was the chief speaker at a dinner given at the National Liberal Club in honor of Mr Andrew Carnegie and to mark appreciation of his efforts in the cause of international peace. Earl Carrington presided.

With regard to the Parliament bill, Sir Edward Grey said: The other day there was someone—I think on the front Opposition bench—who suggested that I had been abstaining from attending the House of Commons in a certain week because I did not approve of some part of the bill under discussion. (Laughter.) Well, it is a very ingenious and ingenuous gentleman who can imagine there is no other reason conceivable for absenting yourself even for a few days from the House except that you are not attracted by the particular measure under discussion. We are all united in this—that the experience of the last two years has shown us that till that bill is passed we cannot in any constitutional question, either by controversy, by conference, or by negotiaton, make any progress. (Loud cheers.) But when that bill is through (cheers) I shall be very much surprised if it does not appear that it becomes most unexpectedly a great favorite with the Conservative party. (Cheers.) They use hard words about it now; they call it revolution, they call it single-chamber government—they had better reverse these words in case the real thing should come some day. (Cheers.) A bill which leaves the hereditary principle untouched, which leaves it with power for the first half of every future Parliament to paralyze every Liberal measure for two years and to kill it altogether for the remaining half of the Parliament (Shame)—is not single-chamber government. That bill, in my opinion, is not the real dividing issue between the parties. If there had not been another issue dividing us much more deeply we might never have had the Parliament bill. If the other side at any time would have been prepared to agree with us that there should be a second chamber in which each party should have for a term of years as good or as bad a chance as the other, that that second chamber should be smaller in number than the House of Commons, and there should be some adjustment between the two houses, such as joint sittings, by which when the House of Commons had a substantial and decided majority its will should prevail—if anything like that had been possible by agreement with the other side we should not have been divided as we are at the present moment. It is because they who call themselves the two-chamber party have never been willing to adopt a fair two-chamber system (cheers), which should allow for power of discussion, of reasonable delay, while leaving as it ought to be left the predominant power to the House of Commons—it is because that is so that we have been driven to the course we have now adopted, and the first stage of which we are on the eve of completing. (Cheers.)

The Burden of Armaments.

Proceeding to discuss the question of international peace, Sir Edward Grey said that it had made comparatively slow progress, because people had found such difficulty in finding an objective for which they could work. I really think, he continued, that some progress is being made now. Two things especially are making progress in men's minds, and as they progress they will diminish the probability of war. One is the increasing sense which nations have of the burden of expenditure upon armaments. That is being increasingly felt at any rate in Europe. It is now and then supposed if any individual in any country dilates upon the pressure of war expenditure he is doing so because he thinks his own country is breaking down under the burden. It is sometimes interpreted as an opportunity of other countries to get ahead. This pressure is being increasingly felt in the great countries of Europe, and more heavily in some of them than in ours, due perhaps to our fiscal system and to the recent adjustment of taxation. (Cheers.) The hope of the matter is that it is being felt in Europe generally, because if you are to have anything really effective, operative, in diminishing expenditure in armaments it must be something which makes countries go together. We cannot move alone in this matter; we must have company. The burden is being increasingly felt, partly because of increases of taxes and also because of the growing aspirations amongst those who possess the greatest share of power for more security and a general raising of the level of life. (Cheers.) In this country the pressure of taxation is realized not so much because the burden falls more heavily upon the shoulders of the wage-earners—it falls less heavily here than in some other places—but because their aspirations are growing increasingly that their demands should be increasingly met by reforms like old-age pensions and the workmen's insurance bill. They know that all these things cost money, and that the amount of progress you can make with social reform of this kind is bound to be impeded if you have to spend money increasingly on armaments.

Peace and National Character.

Another force at work on the side of peace, Sir Edward proceeded, was that people were beginning to realize that in its financial and economic results war between two great nations was bound increasingly to become a disaster not only to themselves but to other nations that were taking no part, and even as between the two nations themselves it was quite possible that in the most successful war the victor might lose more than be gained. This consideration attacked war in a much more vulnerable place than it had been attacked in before. It was said that if war was abolished nations would decay, but he did not believe that it would be so any more than the abolition of force between individuals had led to deterioration of the individual character. It was not peace but sloth which undermined character. (Cheers.) If public spirit was to die out, then national character would deteriorate; but he thought, on the contrary, that devoted public service was on the increase—and he said it in spite of the prospect of payment of members. (Laughter.) "I believe that in modern civilized nations, if, as I trust, in future years the prospect of war will get progressively less and the prospect of peace more and more assured, there will yet remain an increasing number of opportunities of showing public spirit—with living for your country as well as in dying for it." (Cheers.)

Arbitration Treaties.

If they looked for concrete objects for which to work to make the chances of war less they had the impulse given to the question of arbitration. We are, said Sir Edward, at the beginning of a new departure. (Cheers.) It may, no doubt, take time to make progress, but I consider progress is assured by the initiative which the United States has taken. (Cheers.) It will be realized that the progress made will be greater than perhaps will appear immediately on the face of any particular treaty. It has been said that if you had the most perfect arbitration treaty it would burn like tinder if a dispute arose. Yes, but once you have a treaty between two nations people will be less likely to light the fire. (Cheers.) Now when a dispute arises between two nations perhaps the public opinion of both countries is watching for the moment when through the ordinary channels of diplomacy the last word will have been said, and after that they expect the storm to break. Once you have a treaty which makes it sure that when diplomacy has said its last word the storm will not break, that you will proceed to arbitration or a commission of inquiry to look into the question and make recommendations, you will have deprived the press and public opinion of both the countries of one of the great incentives they now have to inflame a question by getting excited about it.

After alluding to Mr. Carnegie's work for peace, his building of the Palace of Peace at The Hague, and his giving of £100,000 a year for ever to be devoted to furthering peace, Sir Edward Grey said that the present interest in arbitration was an indirect result of the discussions at the last Hague Conference. He believed that by increasing not only the number of arbitration treaties but their scope—the habit, the expectation of arbitration—they would be undermining the probability of war. "We believe that between the United States and ourselves there is the probability of making a more extended arbitration treaty than has yet existed. We believe it because we believe that public opinion and the policies of the two countries can never bring them into conflict."—(Loud cheers.)

NEW HEALTH AND NEW STRENGTH FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

ACHING BACKS, TIRED LIMBS AND SPLITTING HEADACHES NEED NOT BE ENDURED.

In silent patience nearly every woman endures suffering that casts a shadow over half her existence. An aching back, tired limbs, attacks of faintness, and headaches and backaches, need not be part of a woman's life. Such trials indicate plainly that the system requires the new blood that is supplied through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are valued by suffering women who have used them above all other medicines, because they give the rich, red blood that makes women well, bright and at their best. Mrs. Fred Collard, Poplar Point, Man., says: "I can give you but a very small estimate of the suffering I endured before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After the birth of my first child I suffered intensely from ailments that too often afflict my sex. This was complicated by an attack of bleeding piles, and the agony of the days and nights I endured is almost past comprehension. I tried many remedies, but they did not help me in my trouble, and from a healthy young woman weighing 140 pounds I fell away in weight to 95 pounds. I grew so weak I could hardly walk across the floor, and there were times I hardly knew what I was doing so great was my agony. I went to Brandon and consulted a doctor who said that nothing would help me but an operation for both my troubles, and that I would have to remain in the hospital for at least eight weeks. Being a farmer's wife I felt that this was impossible, and while in Brandon I met a friend who strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, telling me that they had cured her trouble similar to mine, after an operation had proved of no benefit. She had such strong faith in them that she gave me the first box, and I began using them. It was not long before I found much relief. I continued to use the Pills all the rest of that summer, and the result was they restored me to perfect health. I told the doctor what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for me, and his reply was that he considered what they had done for me little less than a miracle. I have since recommended the Pills to many others who have suffered from woman's troubles, and they always produced beneficial results. I hope that this statement will be of benefit to some other suffering person."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2 50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

"I recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' on every possible occasion, and would say that if every general storekeeper, who stocks medicine, would keep 'Fruit-a-tives' prominent displayed, he would increase his business many fold."

CURATIVE SUNLIGHT.

It is still a disputed question among the scientists whether sunshine kills the germs of disease by penetrating the tissue or by the stimulus that it gives bodily vitality through the eyes and the blood. But the fact remains nevertheless. The power of sunlight to cure tuberculosis or consumption is now generally recognized. This recognition has taken the form of tuberculosis exhibits in all parts of the country, and multitudes of out-of-door camps, sanatoriums, hospitals and similar institutions of a private nature. State and municipal institutions have been equipped after the same pattern. In this respect the medical world and the world at large have exhibited a degree of good sense that has not always been evident in their attempts to effect the cure of maladies that scourge mankind. That the Great White Plague is now mastered by fresh air and sunshine and a scientific diet, is a triumph for the physical culture principles on which the treatment is based.

Perhaps there is no class of men who can better testify to the stimulative action of sunlight than explorers in the frozen regions of the north, where the nights are six months in length. They describe the first sight of the sun after a half-year of darkness as bringing veritable new life to their light-starved bodies. Capt. B. S. Osbon, who has figured prominently in the Cook-Peary controversy, and who spent a couple of years in the Antarctic regions, told the writer recently that under the best circumstances white men who undergo the rigors of the long nights become morose, gloomy and pessimistic. They suffer from indigestion and other bodily ailments; dislike efforts of all kinds, and remain alone and silent for hours at a time. Some of them become nervous and physical wrecks. But a day or so of sunshine, weak as it is in the early periods of its return, puts hope and vigor and life into them.—Physical Culture.

THE ROPING OF AFRICAN LIONS

Wild West Methods Used in Securing King of Jungle.

"IT'S a lioness," said Flyate "The dogs have got her bayed. Look out! She's just on the other side of that bush. When I got here I found the colonel seated on his horse, facing the beast and trying to rope her. He didn't even have a knife on him. Why she didn't charge him I don't know. He couldn't get away over this kind of ground. He told me to call the others, and so I fired."

When the cowboys arrived from the distant donga they came threading their way toward us through the brush, leading their horses. A short consultation was held.

"Get a pole," said the colonel, "and we'll poke a noose over her."

On the bank of the donga the lioness stopped to fight the ropers. She had run far enough, and meant business now, and the hunt came up and halted a short distance away for a breathing spell.

The lioness had decided the issue and had bolted of her own accord. There was a streak of yellow through the bushes, a scrambling of dogs and the hunt was on once more. The beast ran to an open cave at the edge of the plateau and crouched there facing the dogs. To manoeuvre the horses was absolutely out of the question, so the lioness had to be shifted again. For upwards of two hours then, by means of the dogs, firecrackers and lighting the grass, we drove her from one stronghold to another, from crevasse to crevasse, in trying to force her down off the reef.

The sun rose and the heat commenced. The dogs were feeling the strain of the constant baying. One by one they would seek a spot of shade and lie panting there for a while and then return to the fray. The day advanced and the dogs showed signs of tiring fast, yet the lioness still clung to the stronghold of the rocks. Every means at hand to drive her into the open had been tried time and again without avail. The task began to look hopeless. We had already reached the stage when we saw our resources coming to an end.

Eventually the colonel fastened a forked stick to his rope and dragged it across her hiding place to uncover her. At the sight of the rope coming toward her through the air she hurled herself like a flash, so that it was only the side jump of his horse that saved Loveless; then she turned and broke away along the donga.

With a roar the beast sprang at Loveless—sprang through the loop—and at the other end of the rope he yanked quickly and caught her by the last hind leg going through. Putting spurs to his horse, Loveless galloped away, hauling the lioness back across the gully and up into the tree, where she swung to and fro, dangling by the one hind foot and snapping upward at the rope she could not reach.

"Got her!" yelled the colonel. "Now the rains can come when they like."

The beast was furious. She was still swinging head down like a pendulum, from the limb of the tree, and was tossing her body about in frantic endeavor to get loose. A noose was deftly slipped over one of the wildly gyrating fore legs. Leading the rope over the branch of another tree, she was stretched out in a helpless position parallel with the ground.

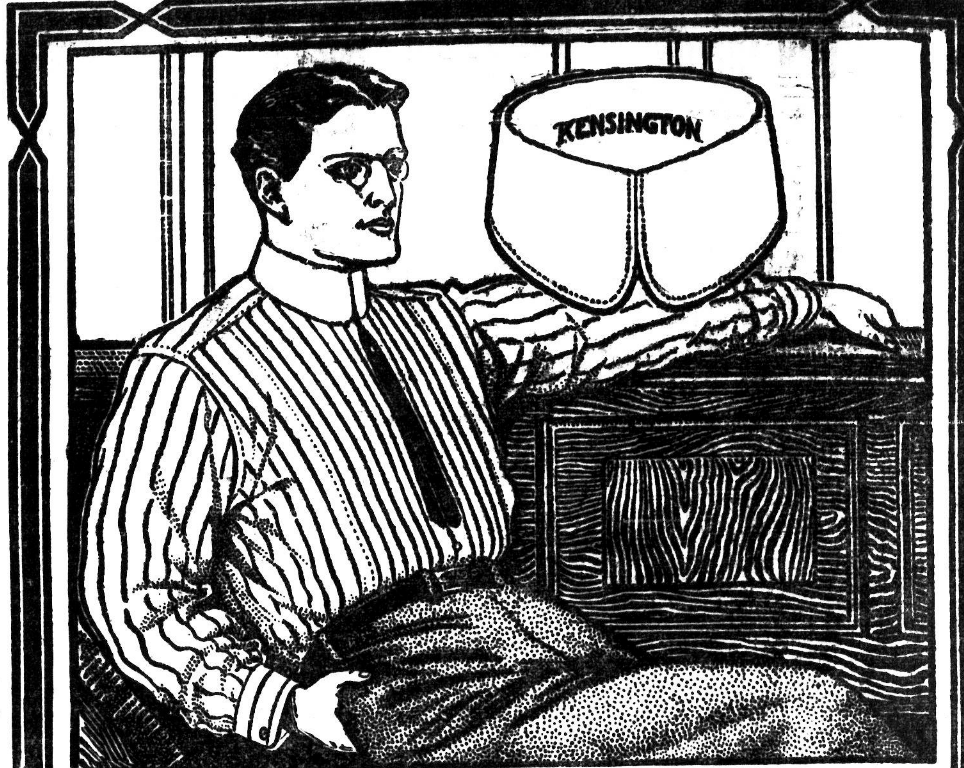

She came within Means' reach and with a quick grab he caught and held her two hind legs with both hands while they were bound together with a piece of light line.

The rest was easy, explains Guy H. Scull. In less than five minutes she was bound securely and lowered all the way to the ground to rest in the shade.

WOMEN OF INDIA.

The women of India have no desire whatever to become emancipated. They like a comfortable home, they love their children, jewels and pretty clothes and sweetmeats and gossip, and they like also to drink sherbet made of melon and sweetened with rosewater. The Indian woman likes to be married and her husband is her god. In all other things she is indifferent. A survey of woman's influence discloses the fact that they are at that stage of slavery where the serf, though suffering the horrors of thraldom, has become so indifferent that he does not appreciate and, indeed, stoutly resists proffered release. Many slaves actually take pride in the fetters that chain them, especially when the coming slaveholder gilds and bejewels these shackles. The woman of India is suffering, explains Leslie's Weekly, yet she wants to be left alone to go on suffering.

Mr. John Tyrrell

Scratched Until I Tore The Flesh

"It was in the latter end of the year 1908 that a nasty itch came through my skin, and I scratched it until I tore the flesh. I tried several ointments to no effect. I went to a skin hospital. They advised me to go to the —— Hospital, but I refused. I could not sleep with the constant itch. I was that way until on or about the month of January. One day I chanced to see in the papers a case like mine, but I gave it no credence. At last I said, 'I will try the Cuticura Remedies.' With the first wash and Cuticura Ointment I used, I found their effects. I got one box of the Ointment more, and in less than one week the skin was all right, and left no traces after it. I have not had a return of the same since, and I shall always praise the Cuticura Remedies as being the means of my cure."

(Signed) JOHN TYRRELL,
94, Scotland Road, Liverpool.

In a further letter Mr. Tyrrell adds: "The first appearance of my skin eczema was a burning itch which I tore and left my body, legs and arms one mass of sores. It caused sleepless nights, but now I can sleep as well as ever."

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleriver, Que. — "Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise." — Mrs. EMMA CHATEL, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Another Operation Avoided.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y. — I run a sewing machine in a large factory and got all run down. I had to give up work for I could not stand the pains in my back. The doctor said I needed an operation for womb trouble but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did more for me than the doctors did. I have gained five pounds. I hope that everyone who is suffering from female trouble, nervousness and backache will take the Compound. I owe my thanks to Mrs. Pinkham. She is the working girl's friend for health, and all women who suffer should write to her and take her advice. — MISS TILLIE PLENZIG, 3 Jay St., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases.

Cowboys and Rough Riders Pose For Moving Pictures

Forsake the Ranches for the Easy Wages of the Biograph Makers —Scarcity of Men Causes a Scarcity of Steers.

EVERY time you sit in a picture show and watch a horseman ride a bucking, rearing, stampeding broncho you are making the cost of living higher.

Every film wherein a band of plainsmen rescue the heroine from a band of redmen, is increasing the cost of your beefsteak.

Every reel that has a cowboy as a hero, a villain, or any other character in the story, is striking directly at your bank account if you eat beef in any form whatever.

The fact that the picture film has increased the price of the sirloin, the porterhouse and the rib roast, is one of the queer things that happen, because of the complexities of modern existence.

The men who gallop after Indians, rescue heroines, shoot up bars, play the hero and leer villainously at the tenderfoot in these photo-plays of the wild and woolly west, were cowpunchers long before they were moving picture actors. A year ago they were galloping in the wake of a runaway steer or branding yearlings for the munificent sum of $40 a month. They were glad to eat in the cook tent and sleep rolled up in a blanket somewhere out on the prairie. They got a glimpse of civilization about once a year, and always returned to the ranch sorrier and wiser.

Now they are actors. The moving picture people have invaded the west and hired all the good riders, ropers, and marksmen. The range owner is without enough help to look after his herds. There is no one to take the place of the veteran rope swingers, and the number of cattle has decreased, and is decreasing still more.

No One to "Ride Herd."

Without men to look after them you cannot raise many cattle. When cattle grow fewer the price of beef goes up, following that old law of supply and demand that is older than the ranges. Shipments have fallen off from many points because the cattle have dwindled in numbers. They have dwindled because the stockman has had no one to "ride herd," brand yearlings, and look after the fences and water holes.

The erstwhile cow-puncher is now earning $100 a month and upwards by his riding and roping ability. When he rides now he is galloping in front of the all-seeing eye of the moving picture camera. When he "busts a bronco" now the "busting" is recorded on a film, and the people give up their nickels and dimes to see it done.

He does not eat in the cook tent any more. Canned goods and stale bread have been wiped off his bill of fare. He sleeps and eats at a hotel, and dresses like ordinary folks when he is not working. During the time when he is posing he wears the habiliments of the stage cowpuncher. His own greasy, dusty overalls and dilapidated vest have been thrown aside as lacking in picturesqueness.

There were few enough cowpunchers before the moving picture man came along and hired the best of them as actors. Fewer lads go west to become cowboys than there used to be. The good men were the older men, the veterans of the saddle and the rope. Now that they have left the ranges, the stockman is shorthanded. So short-handed, in fact, that he has sold off many of his cattle and restricted his operations. He has to depend now on Mexicans, "lungers," and the chance tenderfoot, who has to be taught horse sense, cow sense, and who must be tied on his horse during his first season's work.

Within the last two years the American picture maker has been coming to the front as a reel-maker. Recalling the never-dying popularity of the western melodrama he decided to create photo plays of the west and its old life. He invaded the cow camps and made pictures of round-ups and ropings and brandings. Then he decided that he would restage some of the thrilling episodes of the old west.

The ordinary moving picture actor did very well on that sort of pictures so long as it was not necessary for him to ride a horse. In those photo-plays where he had to straddle a cow-pony he was apt to fall off at the big dramatic moment and spoil the film. Neither did it look well for the dashing hero of the border to ride across the screen holding with both hands to the horse's mane in order to keep from being pitched off at a cantering speed. It made the audience laugh when the manager wanted them to be serious.

Something had to be done, and the enterprising film makers went out to the roping and riding contests and into the cow towns and hired the best of the riders and ropers. While they might not be good actors they were certainly able to stick on a horse without clasping the steed around the neck with both hands.

It was bad enough when the half-dozen big circuses of the country came out and gobbled up the cream of the cowboy talent. They robbed the west of many of the real horsemen and the expert ropers. However, the invasion of the moving picture makers was the blow that hurt most. A score of film-makers, hiring ten or fifteen men off the ranges, in order to stage the old days properly, cut the available supply of good men away down. The cowman groaned as he saw them go.

There are still many big cattle ranges throughout Oklahoma, West Texas, the western part of Kansas, and in Colorado, Montana and Wyoming are still the haunt of the cowman and the sheep herder. Much of the supply of fresh and canned beef comes from these lonesome ranges. The sheep man and the "nester" has been crowding the cattleman closer and closer to the wall for years, but he still managed to keep freight cars on the faster eastbound trains filled with future beef.

Need Real Cowboys.

When the picture men began to need the services of the rider and the lariat swinger they turned naturally to the remaining country left the steer. First of all they hurried out to the big riding and roping contests, where the cow-punchers gathered to participate in feats of strength and skill. The winners were approached with offers to quit the ranges and come east. All they would have to do to earn the salary was to ride and rope, and they had been doing that all their lives. Many of them came as soon as they were free of the year's work.

Still the man with the camera was not satisfied. The western pictures caught on. There was something real about them that caught at the jaded fancy of the film lover. Western nights became a feature at scores of picture shows in every town. People still loved the cowboy and his doings, and there were more actors needed. The agents of the film makers travelled westward and hired more men. Then they went back and hired still others. As soon as they would hear of a rider who was above the ordinary, or when they saw a cowpuncher handsome enough to be a matinee idol, they besieged him with offers and inducements.

Before the stockmen realized it they were getting shorthanded. There was nobody left who could be depended upon to stop a stampede or take care of a herd of thirsty cattle when the water holes began to go dry. When winter came there was no one to go up into the mountains and take care of the winter herds. Fences began to break for want of proper care, and, filled with disgust, the stockman wired a commission firm in Kansas City, Fort Worth or Chicago, to make him an offer on a few thousand head of range cattle. It all helped to raise and keep raised the prices of the sirloin and the steak.

The men from the ranges are far more picturesque in the garb forced upon them by the picture makers than they were in the old days when they were acting as chaperon for a herd of steers. The costumes they wear are always painfully new, and they lack the worn and rough look that the real cowpuncher's dress always has. Their hats are even bigger than those worn by the plainsman, and their chaps are always entirely whole and very flamboyant as to hair trimmings. Only a few of the horses used are typical cow ponies, as the real thing is hard to find when you get east of the Mississippi.

It is easier for the cowpuncher, however. He no longer has to roll out of his blankets when the first streaks of dawn redden the east and gulp down a tin cup full of hot coffee, a few slices of bacon and some sour-dough biscuits and strike out for a sixteen-hour day. He can lie abed and allow his muscles to get soft and flabby from good living and lack of exercise.

Has Become a Real Problem.

It has become a real problem to the stockmen, who have had some of their best men lured away from them by the film companies. They cannot afford to meet the wages paid by the picture men. If they could, the easy life would appeal too strongly to the cowboy for him to be willing to stay on the plains. The men who formerly never worried about getting enough help are now making numerous trips to the near-by towns in the hope of picking up a man or two who is able to sit on a horse and be taught to use a rope. Even a husky individual capable of using a brand-iron can get taken on at regular range riders' wages during the busy season.

Every year a great meeting of cowpunchers is held at Cheyenne, Wyo. The best riders and most expert cowboys are always there if they are anywhere near that part of the west. Many of the picture agencies have their agents at these meetings selecting the men that will most nearly suit the purposes of the camera man. Contracts are made, and as soon as the season is over the chosen ones quite the ranges to become "heroes" or villains, in the new dramas that are to be photographed. Horses and all the man's equipment are frequently brought east to the studios in order that the picture may be complete in every detail.

For years the cattle raisers of the west have had to depend upon the veteran range riders for their help. There are not so many folks wishing to be cowboys now as there was ten years ago. No younger men have been trained to take the places of the veterans, as the demand has not been heavy enough to make the wages worth while. Now that the best men are leaving there is no one to take their places. Without men a ranch is helpless within a few weeks. Fences get down, cattle wander away and break out into the open, and young calves die through lack of the proper care. The natural consequence is that the cattleman is forced to cut down his herds to a size that can be taken care of by a few men.

This reduces the number of cattle cars that come into the big stock-yards, and the price of beef rises and stays up. The farmers of the middle west cannot raise enough cattle to take the places of those that formerly came in by the trainload from the natural grazing grounds.

Cattle buyers find that the supply is failing and the price goes up. The packer pays more for his raw material. The butcher has to pay more and the consumer of beefsteak and sausage finds that his meat bill is climbing steadily higher. He never connects his fondness for moving pictures of the old west with the amount of his butcher's bill.

The Vanishing Cowboy.

Many of the older cowpunchers have quit the business and gone into cattle raising for themselves on a small scale. Some of them have become orchardists and truck farmers in the new irrigated lands. The circuses buy up the talent among them by the scores, and the moving picture man has taken many of the rest. The more people who go to the picture shows the greater will be the demand for pictures. The more pictures necessary, the greater the competition for the real cowpuncher who can handle a gun, rope and ride a bucking horse naturally and gracefully. The future looks dark for the cattle owner who must depend upon the range rider in order to market his beef.

The moving picture people admit that they have lured many of the riders off the ranges. The stockmen are certain that they have been greatly handicapped by the raids made upon them by the film people. Everybody knows that beef is high, and has been for some time. Possibly the rush of the cowpuncher into the picture studios has helped to make existence hard for all the rest of us.

Monsters Dragged From the Ocean's Floor

MORE than one carload of weird and uncanny creatures whose kind has never before been seen by human eyes is now on its way to New York city from the Pacific coast.

The strange consignment represents the pick of the important catches, made by Dr. Charles H. Townsend, acting director of the American Museum of Natural History, in a deep sea dredging expedition off the coast of Lower California.

The major portion of the creatures were raked out of the abyssmal darkness and extraordinary conditions that obtain on the floor of the Pacific Ocean. Before they were hauled to the top of the water they never before had come in contact with sunlight or air. The effect of these elements on them was immediately to deprive them of life, and the release of the tremendous pressure to which they had been subjected, and which is estimated at six tons to the square inch, caused the bodies in many cases to fall to pieces.

In form and feature, the creatures resemble nothing on this earth, in the heavens above, or in the ordinary depths of the ocean under the earth with which man generally is acquainted. The only things to which they can be likened are the demoniacal and mystic designs evolved from the imagination of Chinamen, and with which the Celestial loves to adorn his banners of war and the flags of his secret societies.

The value of the work performed by Dr. Townsend was augmented by G. C. Bell, of the preparation department of the American Museum, who succeeded in making models of many of the specimens before their form had ben changed by light and air. These models will be put on exhibition in the museum in New York.

The trawling or dredging for the most part was conducted between San Diego, Cal., and Guadaloupe Island, some 250 miles off the coast. After finishing its work in these waters the expedition moved up the Gulf of California, searching mainland and islands for new specimens of animal and vegetable life. Here it obtained wood rats, mice, mountain sheep, coyotes and rabbits in large numbers.

Two crates of snakes and lizards captured on hitherto unexplored islands, and in which were many new specimens, were sent to the Bronx Zoo in New York.

In dragging the floor of the ocean the expedition made use of the most improved machinery and trawls, some of which was invented by the Prince of Monaco, who for years has devoted the major portion of the vast revenues he receives from the gambling tables at Monte Carlo to the development of the science of deep sea dredging.

In this work he has employed several yachts and has given much of his own time to the improvement of appliances for the investigation of the ocean's depths. His most notable invention, it is said, is a big automatic trap capable of capturing fish at a depth of more than two miles.

Fishing at Six Miles.

The method in which this fishing at depths of two, three and six miles is conducted seems very simple according to the telling. It consists in the dropping overboard of a bag-shaped net stretched out by a beam, with wire taking the place of the ordinary hemp or cord "fishing line." This net is trawled or dragged along the ocean bed, enmeshing everything sufficiently small to enter its mouth. The fact that it has been impossible to construct apparatus by which a net with a mouth of more than about eleven feet by two could be operated has militated against the discovery of any very large specimens of animal life which it is believed exist on the ocean floor.

Those that have been obtained, however, are extremely interesting, and will serve to fill many of the links that have been missing in the chains scientists have constructed in the study of life in this universe.

One of the most remarkable things about the fishes found on the floor of the ocean is that they are all carnivorous. That is due to the fact, it is said, that no plant life can exist at such a depth to which not a ray of the strongest sunlight can penetrate, therefore all these abyssmal creatures are forced to devour one another. Most of them, too, are absolutely blind, with jaws so enormous that they seem to have no bodies at all. Like human beings who have been born blind, or deprived of sight, their organs of touch seem to have been abnormally developed.

Many of the creatures, however, possess eyesight, although the eyes are extremely small. These are also phosphorescent, and they seem to catch their prey by the light shed from their own bodies and those of other creatures whose faint lamps are continually flashing in the pitch darkness of the ocean floor.

Notwithstanding that no light ever penetrates to the regions in which these strange creatures have their beings, the colors of their skins are as brilliant as those under the influence of the brightest sunshine. Reds, yellows, purples and green predominate, but there is a conspicuous absence of blue.

NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

"Something Just As Good."

A discovery can be made but once. After that all similar acts become emulation, imitation or an attempt at substitution.

Newbro's Herpicide is a discovery. It was the first remedy ever given to science to kill the dandruff germ. Other preparations have since been offered to the public, some similar in appearance, some in odor, but all bringing the daring promise of doing the same things that Herpicide has been doing for years.

Every article of this kind is merely one more instance of vicious emulation, vile imitation or a base attempt at substitution.

The "something just as good" story is old. Why give it a thought? Herpicide is the Original Remedy. It kills the dandruff germ and prevents the hair from falling. Itching of the scalp stops almost with the first application.

Don't be deceived by "something just as good." If your druggist does not keep the genuine dandruff germ destroyer, Newbro's Herpicide, go to one who does.

One-dollar size bottles are sold under an absolute guarantee.

SUNSHINE FURNACE

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE WATER-PAN

is not appreciated by many furnace manufacturers or the general public as much as it should be.

Without the moisture evaporated from the water in the pan, the hot air distributed throughout the house is dry and dusty. Cracks and opens up the furniture—is not fit to breathe into the lungs.

Yet, mind you, some furnace makers place this important water-pan where there is often not enough heat to evaporate the water. Put it out of sight in an awkward position at the side or back, where it cannot readily be filled without being removed—and when filled it would take a juggler to replace it without spilling a big share over himself.

Note the convenient location of the large water-pan of the Sunshine—just above the fuel door. Takes but a moment or two to fill it.

THE AWKWARD COMMON WAY

THE EASY SUNSHINE METHOD

It is placed right in the path of the hot air as it circulates around the dome of the furnace. It is impossible for any heated air to pass out of the registers before extracting its due share of moisture from the water-pan. That means you breathe healthful, clarified air, free from dust and dryness.

For the sake of your furniture, your own health and peace of mind, you should decide on the Sunshine.

If your local dealer does not handle the Sunshine write direct to us for FREE BOOKLET.

MARRIED IN THE SADDLE.

Married on the main street of Fort Klamath, Ore., while astride of their saddle horses was the unique way in which Joseph Hessig and Mrs. Fannie V. Marsh, a pretty widow, began life together the other day. The bridegroom came from his home in Siskiyou to Fort Klamath, where he formerly lived, and purchased a large number of beef cattle. He was met there by his bride-to-be, and they went out and rounded up the stock. Mr. Hessig had secured a marriage license, and he and Mrs. Marsh drove the cattle from the feeding grounds into the city. Rushing them into a corral they rode to the store of John H. Hessig, brother of the husband-to-be, and asked him to telephone for Justice C. C. Jackson, who soon answered the call. While the two sat on their horses in the street he pronounced the words which made Mrs. Marsh the wife of Mr. Hessig.

MATTY BALDWIN EASY FOR FRED WELSH IN 20

Englishman Had Decided Advantage Over Boston Lad After Fifth Round.

[Canadian Press.]

San Francisco, June 24.—Freddie Welsh was easily the superior of Mattie Baldwin, in their twenty-round battle here last night. The Englishman showed himself a better tactician than the American, handling himself splendidly in the infighting and raining volleys of short-arm blows on his opponent.

Welsh took a decided lead after the fifth round, and although Baldwin made a desperate effort to land a lucky punch, every dangerous blow was blocked or avoided, while the Englishman fairly smothered the Boston boy by his fast work in the clinches.

After the twelfth round, Baldwin attempted to fight at long range, but Welsh rocked his head with straight lefts, and closing in, battered Baldwin's face and kidneys with snappy, short-arm jabs.

BOYS LEAVE SUNDAY SCHOOL TOO SOON

Committee Will Endeavor To Find a Reason For This State of Affairs.

At a meeting of the committee of 25 recently named to look into the "Men and Religion Forward Movement" in the city, held yesterday, the situation was discussed at some length.

A number of questions will be reported on by the committee, dealing particularly with the fact that 75 per cent. of the boys drop out of Sunday school in their teens, and a large majority of them are lost to the church altogether. The committee will endeavor to discover a reason for that, and will if possible suggest a remedy. They will also seek to discover what kind of an evangelistic campaign would prove attractive to the men of the city.

"It is undisputed that a large proportion of our boys, perhaps 75 per cent. of them drop out of Sunday school in their teens," said Secretary Wilson, of the Y. M. C. A. "It is quite certain that the Sunday school teachers are doing what they can, but the fact remains that the boys quit Sunday school, and many drift away from the church. We want to find the cause of this, and apply the remedy. We will make a thorough investigation."

The committee consists of 25 of the most prominent gentlemen connected with Y. M. C. A. work in the city.

LONDON TEACHER SCORES SUCCESS

The results recently announced by the Ontario Institute of Chartered Accountants are of a most gratifying character to Mr. J. W. Westervelt, jun., C.A., vice-principal of the Forest City Business and Shorthand College. Six of the seven successful candidates for the C. A. degree were prepared by him. The percentage of passes secured by his pupils in the intermediate and primary tests was nearly as large as that on the final scholarships in first and second years secured by his candidates.

Mr. Westervelt has for some years in addition to his work in the F. C. B. C. been principal of the accountant department of the Shaw Correspondence School, Toronto. Because of increasing attendance at the local school Mr. Westervelt has resigned his position with the Toronto College. He is to be congratulated upon the fact that this year's candidates, who were the last he will prepare in connection with the Toronto school, gave such a good account of themselves, emphasizing the broad and thorough character of their training.

FIRE AT BOYNE CITY.

Boyne City, Mich., June 24.—Fire which for a time threatened Boyne City last night swept through a large portion of the lumber yards of the W. H. White Company, causing a loss roughly estimated at $150,000. Rain helped to prevent a more serious conflagration. The fire is still burning.

MUSICAL FETE PROVED A SPLENDID SUCCESS

A Large Crowd Listened to an Excellent Programme of Music.

The grand musical fete in Victoria Park last night proved a great success and drew a large crowd of citizens. The big booths, gaily decorated with colored lights, did a thriving business, and many dollars' worth of ice cream, candies, lemonade and flowers were sold, and a good collection was obtained at the gates.

The concert last night was held in aid of the Sacred Concert Club, and all funds obtained will be devoted to paying the expenses incurred in connection with the concerts that are being given in Victoria Park on Sunday afternoons, and any money left over will be distributed among local charities.

The programme was rendered by the London City Band and was thoroughly enjoyed throughout. Thousands of citizens, taking advantage of the welcome drop in the temperature, for an outing, promenaded about the park, listening to the music and enjoying themselves. Incidentally they liberally patronized the booth. The peanut sales alone amounted to $25.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock the Seventh Regiment Band will give a concert in the park, and Mr. Chris Pink will sing the new coronation song, "Hail, King George." The time has been changed from 4:30 o'clock to 4 o'clock, as many people complained that it did not give them time to go home afterwards, have supper and get ready for church.

GREY DINES SOVEREIGNS

Banquet Given Yesterday by the British Foreign Office.

London, June 23.—Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey's official dinner to the sovereigns and the foreign representatives tonight brought to the foreign office the same throng of distinguished persons that has been seen at other coronation functions. The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, as the host of the evening, escorted Queen Mary into dinner, and King George acted as the escort of the German Crown Princess.

Other guests were: The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, Princess Patricia, Prince and Princess Christian, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, the Duke and Duchess of Argyll, and all the foreign royal personages and the special representatives to the coronation.

Altogether sixty royal personages attended the function. The entire company numbered 150, among those present being various members of the royal household, attaches of the foreign office, the papal delegate, Mgr. Di Belmonte; Premier and Mrs. Asquith, the Duchess of Devonshire, and the Countess Minto.

The dinner was served in the banqueting hall at two oblong tables and six large tables. All were splendidly decorated with flowers and silver candelabra, and pictures loaned by the Indian office and from other sources hung on the walls, enhancing the effect of the handsome mural decorations. The general effect of the decorations was extremely rich.

The Queen and Sir Edward Grey and a score of guests sat at the principal table, while King George and the Crown Princess of Germany, with an equal number of persons, were opposite at the head of the other oblong table. The Duke of Connaught and Premier Asquith also presided at tables.

The Grenadier Guards' Band furnished the music for the occasion. All the men were in black court dress of knickerbockers and wore swords. The toilettes of the ladies were magnificent and the display of jewels a gorgeous one.

FRASER CASE GOES HIGHER

When Argument Will Be Resumed in Highest Court of Province.

Toronto, June 23. — The case known in the courts as "re Michael Fraser" has been entered in the court of appeals. The formal notice of the appeal was filed today at the registrar's office by John King, K. C., counsel for Mrs. Fraser.

The famous attempt by Miss Catherine McCormick, relative of the Midland octogenarian bridegroom, to have the old man's marriage to Miss Hannah M. O. Robinson, set aside, will be reopened and argued again before the highest court in Ontario. The two courts which have heard the case so far have given opposite opinions as to Fraser's sanity, but at present the old man is declared a lunatic, his property being in charge of a trust company.

The marriage has as yet been untouched by the courts.

The argument will not take place until September.
