Asks Gouin to Give London Man Chance to Prove Claim

COUNSEL SEEKS NEW TRIAL FOR WM. McDONALD

W. H. Furlong Forwards Direct Application to Minister of Justice.

BURKE LAUDS PRISONER

Former Employer Declares He Handled $30,000 Monthly For Firm.

W. H. Furlong, barrister, Windsor, on Saturday morning dispatched to the Minister of Justice, Sir Lomer Gouin at Ottawa, an application for a new trial for William McDonald, the London man, alleged to have been unjustly sentenced to a five year term in Kingston.

Mr. Furlong says that he has taken this line of action as being the one which will ensure the quickest action to bring McDonald back to his wife and family in the briefest time possible.

The barrister states that in the application he presented to the justice department, he outlined the evidence which he wished to adduce in McDonald's favor which, it is claimed, should have been presented at the first trial.

This evidence is an alibi. It will tend, it is claimed, to prove McDonald's assertion that he is a victim of "mistaken identity."

Mr. Furlong was against an appeal to secure a new trial on a stated case.

The magistrate who tried the case said to have been a temporary magistrate, and Mr. Furlong believes that action along this line would secure quite a delay, and McDonald has already been in the penitentiary since September.

It is believed that Mr. Furlong's appeal, along with the strong case which Mr. Ed. Lance of the Soldier's Aid Commission has presented, will bring the desired result.

McDonald, the wife of the victim of this alleged miscarriage of justice, stated today that she had yet been unable to get into the city hospital to see her little babe, stricken with diphtheria. She is suffering considerably from her broken wrist and one of the little children she is taking care of at Westminster hospital is seriously ill.

Handled Large Sums. Edmund M. Burke, manager of Laidlaw's brewery, for whom McDonald was agent at Windsor, at the time of the alleged forgery, stated that McDonald in his position handled between $20,000 and $25,000 monthly for his firm. He was always prompt in his remittances. They had him bonded with a bonding company for $7,000 and, said Mr. Burke, "we never had to write a post card to the bonding company." McDonald, he says, was a first-class likeable fellow.

McDonald was born in the eastern part of the city and is known to practically every railroader in that section. He was for a considerable time employed by the Grand Trunk. Later he was transferred to Windsor and when the slack time came he was laid off. For a time he worked for a Detroit concrete firm and later took over Laidlaw's agency. Later he went to Bay City where he went into business for himself and it was there that he was first arrested.

ASKS REVISION OF LANDRU'S CASE

TO FLOAT LOANS AMOUNTING TO 400 MILLIONS

Liberal Government Faced With Gigantic Bonding Operations.

100 MILLIONS IN U. S. APPROVAL OF LARKIN

[Special To London Advertiser.] OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—Important and extensive bonding operations face the government during the present year. During the spring it is anticipated that a refunding loan will be floated in New York to meet a $100,000,000 maturity in the United States.

In addition, it is stated, the government will be forced towards the end of the year to float a domestic loan amounting to over $300,000,000. Of this amount, approximately $200,000,000 will be required to refund the Victory Loan of 1917, which falls due in December, while the remainder will be needed to meet deficits on last year's accounts.

Not Exempt From Taxation. The 1917 Victory Loan provided exemption from taxation upon the bonds. The loan for refunding purposes will not. It might therefore be assumed that an additional interest attraction will have to be offered.

In this connection, however, it is pointed out that long-term bonds today are decidedly attractive in themselves, owing to the general inactivity of business, and the consequent piling up of money. It is believed here that the refunding can be performed through the issue of taxable bonds at a rate of interest not higher than that paid on the original issue of 1917.

WANT CRIMINAL ACTION TAKEN IN BANK CASE

Suggestion Made That Courts Fix Blame For Big Losses.

APPROVAL OF LARKIN

[Special To London Advertiser.] OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—While the clamor for investigation into the cause of the Merchants Bank situation is insistent and widespread, it is believed at the capital that the only course open to the government is to ratify the agreement of merger with the Bank of Montreal, which was approved by the shareholders of the bank.

Whatever the cause of the depreciation in the reserves of the Merchants Bank, no alternative in the interests of the depositors and shareholders is open to the government. It has, however, been suggested that criminal proceedings be instituted through the courts to fix the blame for the situation.

Necessary Steps For Approval. The approval of the governor-in-council to the agreement of amalgamation is dependent upon the following provisions:

1. That approval of the agreement shall be recommended by the treasury board.

2. The application for approval must be made by or on behalf of the bank making it within three months from the date of the execution of the agreement.

3. It must appear to the satisfaction of the governor-in-council that all the requirements of the bank act in connection with the approval of the agreement by the shareholders of the bank and purchasing banks have been complied with, and that after the approval by the shareholders of the bank to apply to the governor-in-council for the approval of the agreement has been published for at least four weeks in the Canada Gazette, and in one or more newspapers published in May at Covilhã.

RANCHER FINDS MAN AT FRESNO NAMED SANDS

Hermit in Shack Answers Description of Former Taylor Butler.

MABEL NORMAND HEARD

Actress, Questioned by Los Angeles Officials, Denies Quarrel With Director.

Los Angeles, Feb. 11.—A man under surveillance at Fresno was found late yesterday afternoon by J. M. Cobb, a rancher, who lives on the banks of the San Joaquin River. Cobb told the sheriff the man had been there only a few days, and that the shack in which he was living had been built only a few days.

While herding cattle Cobb came upon the shack, hidden in brush along the riverbank, and also met the occupant. The man gave his name as Sands, according to Cobb, and answered the description of the former Taylor Butler. A number of the late daily papers were in and around the shack, he said.

Along what lines the investigation into the murder would proceed today was not divulged by Cobb, but he said it would be vigorously continued. The district attorney declined to say whether his program called for the summoning to his office of any persons believed to be in possession of information pertinent to the investigation or whether today would be devoted to some other angle of the case.

Question Mabel Normand. This followed closely upon a night session at his office, from shortly after 8 o'clock until nearly midnight, with more than three hours given to a questioning of Mabel Normand, one of the last persons to see Taylor alive.

Miss Normand was unable to add anything to the police data concerning Edward F. Sands, missing former butler-secretary to Taylor, but apparently confirmed the district attorney's belief in the importance of locating him, for he said: "Sands is the man we must find."

Miss Normand was the second film actress of prominence to respond to a summons from Mr. Woolwine, Mary Miles Minter having been questioned Tuesday afternoon. Both Miss Normand and Miss Minter have admitted close friendship with Taylor.

Chauffeur Interviewed. When Miss Normand arrived at the district attorney's office, she was accompanied by her chauffeur, William Davis, who drove her to the Taylor home, the night the director was killed, and who previously had stated Taylor accompanied her to her automobile when she departed.

Davis also was questioned briefly by Mr. Woolwine and his chief deputy, William C. Doran.

Before Miss Normand went into the private rooms with Mr. Woolwine and Mr. Doran, she issued a statement to the press in which she said she could not offer any solution whatsoever and denied she was in love with Taylor or had quarreled with him.

Bryce is chairman of the mothers' allowance commission for Ontario and director of child welfare for the Social Service Council. General business and the election of officers will also form part of the program.

"PEEPING TOM" SENT TO JAIL FOR 21 DAYS

Harry Harper, Out From England Three Months, Receives Sentence.

MAY BE DEPORTED

Chief Birrell To Make Application To Send Harper Back Home.

Harry Harper, out from England for but three months, was caught peeping in a bedroom window at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison, 18 Rathgar street, late Friday night, and was sentenced to 21 days in jail by Deputy Police Magistrate P. H. Bartlett in police court Saturday morning.

Chief of Police Robert Birrell stated that he would make application to have Harper deported.

Mrs. Morrison stated that she first saw Harper looking in the window of her sister-in-law's room about 11:25. He bobbed his head down several times while she was watching him from a darkened window.

Sam Cooley, a boarder, and a husky employee of the G. T. R., returned home from lodge at five minutes to twelve.

"When I was coming in the gate I saw him," testified Mr. Cooley, "and he was looking in the window with his hat off. I had him before he had time to put it on. He said he was looking for a lavatory. However, I held him until Constable Tomlin came for him."

Denies He Was "Peeping." "I wasn't looking in the window," protested the prisoner, who refused to go into the witness-box and give evidence on his own behalf.

"This is a serious charge," stated the court.

"We have had a number of complaints lately about this sort of thing," said Chief Birrell, "and quite a few from this district. I do not say that this man was guilty of all of them."

"This type of man watches the policeman go by and knows he is free for a certain length of time till the officer passes that way again. People as a rule alarm the man before they notice the police and it is hard to catch them."

"Are you guilty or not guilty," questioned the court.

"I've got nothing to say," replied the prisoner.

Will Ask Deportation. "I find the charge proved," said Mr. Bartlett. "This is a gross interference with private rights, and an exceedingly serious offence. I am going to fine you $20 or 21 days in jail. 'I'll do the 21 days,' spoke up Harper. 'I've got no money.'"

The prisoner stated that he had been living on Grey street with his brother.

"I'll make application to have this man deported," declared the chief.

"Yes, we don't want men of this stamp in the country," said Mr. Bartlett.

HUNGARIAN ASSEMBLY TO DISSOLVE FEB. 16

Budapest, Feb. 11.—The national assembly is to be dissolved by February 16, Premier Bethlen announced, the two-year term for which the members were elected having expired.

Election for the new assembly will be held on June 10. The government is endeavoring to put through the assembly before its dissolution a new electoral law requiring a higher intelligence test and depriving women under thirty of the vote because they are "romantically" inclined in favor of the deposed sovereigns.

TENANTS FLEE FROM OUTRENTON FLAT FIRE

Montreal, Feb. 11.—Fire believed to have originated through an explosion in the furnace at the flat in Outremont just after midnight spread until three flats were badly damaged by fire and six more or less by water. The occupants were all able to escape, some in their night attire. The fire which was not under control until about two o'clock, proved so stubborn that help from the city fire brigade had to be called in.

Estimated loss could not be ascertained this morning.

DRURY CHARGES BECK ENGINEERS ERRED IN PAST

Seeks Estimate That Will Stand For At Least Three Months.

COMMISSIONERS SILENT

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—"When Sir Adam Beck's experts can get an estimate on the work they are actually doing that will stand for three months, let alone six, without increases, I will pay some attention to his statement on radicals," was the comment of Premier Drury this morning, in regard to Sir Adam Beck's reply yesterday to the report of the Sutherland commission on radicals.

Beyond this the premier declined to go further into the subject at present, saying that he would deal with the radical question in his speech at Hamilton on Monday night.

J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, would make no comment upon Sir Adam Beck's statement or upon the propriety of such an independent report having been made.

"Mr. Drury will have to attend to that," said he. "It's a public matter, and one which does not directly affect this institution. It's not our child but that of the province."

Arthur Hawkes, who labored in the vineyards of the Sutherland commission, working under the standard of the Hydro Information Association, was not prepared to go further, stating: "I think any man in his senses would support the majority report of the Sutherland commission."

Justice Sutherland Away. Mr. Justice Sutherland, chairman of the recent radical railway commission, is in Providence, R.I., today, and the other members of the radical commission practically remain silent in regard to the statement.

A. F. McCallum of Ottawa, one of the majority members of the commission, states Sir Adam Beck is wrong in claiming that the conclusions were arrived at after listening to experts only acquainted with steam railway operation. General Mitchell is interested, but has nothing to say. The various counsel are also silent on the matter. One tragic feature is that Robert McKay, K.C., the indefatigable counsel of the hydro municipalities, has passed away recently, and his voice is silent through death.

RUSSIAN CHEKA HAS 2 MONTHS TO FINISH WORK

Must Transfer All Cases and Deliver Prisoners to Courts.

CAMPS WILL BE CLOSED

Moscow, Feb. 11.—Accusations against all persons under arrest for political offences in Russia must be made within a fortnight, and within two months all persons under arrest must either be freed or turned over to the courts, unless special permission for further detention is received from the central legislative committee.

This is stipulated in the decree published by the central legislative committee announcing officially the passing out of existence of the all-Russian cheka, the soviet secret police and judicial organization.

The decree orders the liquidation of all the branches of the cheka, creating in their stead a new "state political department," which will take over many of the cheka's powers, but will have greatly limited authority, having jurisdiction only in cases of open counter-revolution, espionage, banditry, the safeguarding of railway and river communication, protection against contraband and persons without proper credentials.

All common crimes and speculations and transgressions by government employees now in the hands of the cheka must within a fortnight be transferred to the courts, which henceforth are charged with final decision in all cases of crimes against the soviet regime.

The Pravda says that the Moscow soviet has decided to liquidate all the concentration camps at which many cheka prisoners have long been confined, as funds for their upkeep are no longer available.

ARRESTS EDITOR OF "JACK CANUCK"

Hamilton, Feb. 11.—The case of John Drylie, editor of Jack Canuck, Toronto, arrested yesterday on a charge of defamatory libel on the complaint of William Carroll, proprietor of a chain of grocery stores, was enlarged at police court this morning until next Thursday. Bail of $500 was renewed.

SIR JAMES CRAIG GETS ASSURANCE OF GOVERNMENT

Intimates Drastic Action Unless North Ireland Prisoners Released.

AMNESTY GRANTED

Provisional Government of Irish Free State Issues Proclamation.

BULLETIN.

Cork, Feb. 11.—A lorry load of police travelling from MacRoom to Brandon this morning was held up by armed men. The attackers captured the car, together with rifles and equipments but there were no casualties.

Dublin, Feb. 11.—Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, returned this morning from London announcing on his arrival that he had been assured four additional battalions of troops would be sent to Belfast immediately.

Sir James said he had set no time limit on British action to secure the release of the Ulster prisoners taken in the recent raids.

This statement was supplementary to the premier's declaration before leaving for home that in the event of failure of the British authorities to secure the release of the kidnapped men he would carry out his own plans.

Shootings occurred in the North Queen street area of Belfast this morning and police reinforcements were sent to the scene.

General amnesty has been granted to all members of the British army and police forces who have served in Ireland by the provisional government of the Irish Free State, over the signature of Michael Collins, head of the provisional government, in the following proclamation: "Now that a treaty of peace has been concluded between the peoples of Ireland and Great Britain, the provisional government hereby declares a general amnesty with respect to the recent hostilities. The amnesty extends to all members of the naval, military, police and civil services of the British government and to all other persons by whom acts of hostility against the Irish people were committed, aided or abetted, whether in Ireland or elsewhere during the past six years and full protection of the law will be afforded such persons against violence or injury of any kind."

"The provisional government appeals to all citizens to respect this amnesty in spirit and letter. In this, as in all other matters, we must not allow ourselves to be outdone by our late enemies in seeking that the wrongs of the past may be buried in oblivion."

Two More Slain in Irish Disturbances

BELFAST, Ireland, Feb. 10.—Intense excitement prevailed here tonight, when it was learned that during the past two days two more slayings had taken place.

Lieut. Morgan Brown of Kidder was shot dead by two armed men as he was returning to barracks at Curragh with £500 he had just drawn from a bank. His assassins escaped with the money.

Thomas Sadler, 60 years old, was shot to death at his home near Cavan today by five armed raiders. Letters were received in this morning from the two slain men.

LAW-BREAKERS GIVE WIDE BERTH TO WEST LONDON, HOME OF MANY POLICEMEN

WHICH of London's residential streets is the best "protected"? In other words, which of London's streets has the most policemen when it comes to home ownership?

The above question was more or less of a stickler to Chief Robert Birrell of the London police when it was propounded to him.

"I cannot tell you that," said the chief with a twinkle in his eyes. "But I do know that West London is the best protected section in the sense that you mean. I'll get you a list of the constables, and you can figure it out for yourself."

A "survey" of the entire force showed that constables report for duty from all sections of the city: north, south, east and west, being almost equally represented.

At the present time there are 49 constables guarding London's homes and places of business.

Sixteen constables went their way over the Dundas street bridge into West London when their shift for the day is over. Thirteen board street cars for East London, while ten go north and ten go south.

However, those citizens who reside in the vicinity of Central avenue and Talbot street feel that they can lay their weary bones down to rest without even locking the front door, because the chief himself lives on Talbot street, but a few doors from Central avenue.

On the other hand, Inspector-of-Detectives Thomas Nickle lives on Queen's avenue east, and citizens living in that vicinity feel the same sense of security.

It is indeed comforting to know in these days of aurore bandits and thieves that a big blue-coat, frequently referred to as the "powerful arm of the law," lives in your neighborhood, and in case of trouble can be located in a minute!

The homes of the detectives are also widely scattered. Detective Egleton lives on Fullerton street, near the center of the city; Harry Down travels to Duchess avenue, in South London, via a Normal car, while Detective Tom Bolton drops off a Dundas car at Ontario street. Inspector Lucas strides along Briscoe street until he comes to No. 160 before he turns in.

Desk Sergeant John Monahan lives north on Wellington street, while Sergeant McDonald spends his "days off" on Coiborne street, near Dufferin avenue.

The patrol sergeants are just as widely scattered as the constables. Sergeant Barnhill resides on Cherry street; Sergeant McCullough, Regent street; Sergeant Roy Monteith, Wharfedale road; Sergeant Elmer Walsh, Marley Place; Sergeant Fish on Briscoe street; James Oakley on Grey street, and Sergeant "Bill" Middaugh on Euclid avenue.

No one street in the city boasts more than two constables. These streets with two constables residing on them include Talbot, Egerton, Briscoe, Adelaide, Horton streets, and Wharfedale road.

Brantford Sergeant Believes

GIVES STANDER'S STATUS

Claims Interpreter Went
Bondsman and Sometimes
Paid Prisoner's Fines.

[Special To London Advertiser.]
BRANTFORD, Feb. 10.—When the police inquiry recommended this afternoon, Miss May Furlinger was called. Miss Furlinger said she had read an account of the proceedings in the papers, and she wished to answer a statement which Detective Schuler said she had made in the police office. It was to the effect that "she had acknowledged it was all a mistake." Witness characterized this as being an "absolutely false" statement on the part of Detective Schuler. Witness said she was surprised when she read of the denials in the papers referring to her charges against Detective Schuler and others. Sgt. Wallace was recalled at this point and he questioned about Louis Stander's activities around the police court. Witness said that Stander often laid information, served as court interpreter for these cases and also went bondsman, sometimes paying the fines. "This is a most extraordinary thing," remarked Mr. Jennings, lawyer. "Don't you think it's very peculiar?" The officer said he thought it was. Witness said that dissatisfaction existed among the men because he believed that some of the plainclothes men seemed to have been favored. Stander, witness said, seemed to be able to get off for football matches whenever he liked.

Tells of Quarrels.
Witness told of quarrels between the chief and his subordinate officers, sometimes over orders. He said that at times the force lacked confidence in the chief. At times witness felt that he believed certain police officers could not confide information to the chief about certain cases because they felt that either one or two members of the firm of Slemin & Slemin might defend the sons to whom the information applied.

Witness said that Slemin & Slemin, the chief's sons, handled a great many cases at the police court. "The Slemin brothers have been in great demand in the last couple of years," said Sgt. Wallace. He said he couldn't feel much confidence in the successful prosecution of a case when the Slemin brothers were acting for defendants.

To Mr. Brewster, lawyer, Sgt. Wallace stated that Magistrate Livingston was too lenient on vagrants. Pressed for his reasons, Sgt. Wallace referred to a man named Truckle upon whom Magistrate Livingston seemed to be too lenient. Truckle had been up for vagrancy. Witness, who was prosecuting, told what he knew of Truckle's character, and witness said Magistrate Livingston gave him the "ha, ha" and said something about Truckle being good enough to work in France.

Ridgetown Victim of Pitchfork Attack Likely To Become Blind

[Special To London Advertiser.]

CHATHAM, Feb. 10.—James Agner of Ridgetown was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from injuries to his eyes and face caused by a vicious attack made upon him on Wednesday last by his stepson, Robert Bruce Graham. In St. Joseph's Hospital this afternoon, Dr. J. R. Rutherford, the attending surgeon, found it necessary to remove the left eye, the sight having been destroyed, and the organ itself in a shocking condition. Dr. Rutherford stated late this afternoon that it is feared that the sight of the right eye is also destroyed. Agner was stabbed in both eyes by a fork in the hands of his stepson, the latter, brought to this city and lodged in the county jail, has since been adjudged insane, and will be committed to an asylum for the insane as soon as the necessary papers are made out.

GOVERNMENT WILL ASSIST IN RELIEF

G. W. V. A. Has Received
Notice From Provincial Command.

Official notification that the governments, both federal and provincial, will take on themselves the onus of three-quarters of all the expenses in connection with the extension of relief to unemployed veterans, provided that municipalities agree to bear the remaining quarter.

The word comes through the provincial command of the G. W. V. A. The notification states that the government will conform with that part of the order-in-council relating to unemployment relief, stating that in the case of unemployed former members of the Canadian and British forces now in Canada, discharged as physically fit or not, entitled to assistance by the department of ex-soldiers' civil re-establishment, the federal government will reimburse the municipal authorities to the extent of one-half the disbursements made for unemployment relief, the remaining part to be contributed in equal parts by the province and municipality respectively.

WANT CRIMINAL ACTION TAKEN

in places where the chief offices of the banks are situated.

4. Such banks shall afford all information that the minister requires.

Larkin Appointment Approved.

The appointment of P. C. Larkin of Toronto to the position of Canadian commissioner in London has created general satisfaction at the capital.

It is felt that under Mr. Larkin new vitality will be instilled into the office, and new activities will be inaugurated.

It is a fairly notorious fact that the Canadian high commissioner's office in London has been Canadian in name only.

The staff consists of a high commissioner with a salary of $10,000 a year, and a house allowance of $7,000; a deputy (W. L. Griffith), with a salary of $5,000, and eight other major officials, together with 32 minor clerks and employees.

The total cost of the office last year was $22,515.

Complaint is made by Canadian visitors that very few Canadians are on the staff, and that the majority are Englishmen.

Information offered to visitors is confined to textbooks and pamphlets, and there is no cordiality offered to those from back home, who seek a friendly handshake or some homely advice in their own office.

Reorganize Staff.

A complete reorganization of the staff is anticipated under the new commissioner.

It is further anticipated that there will be a consolidation under the roof of the high commissioner's office of other Canadian activities in London, including immigration, S. C. R. trade, etc.

In other words, it is anticipated that a sort of overseas department of government will be formed, which will keep closely in touch with the government here. In the past the relations of the government with the high commissioner's office have been of a decidedly detached character.

More and more as Canada's national status becomes defined, will the position take on a diplomatic aspect.

BEGINS LECTURES ON ASTRONOMY

Professor Kingston Addresses
New Western University Society.

The first lecture of the London center of the Royal Astronomical Society was given Friday night at the Western University by Professor H. R. Kingston and was illustrated by lantern slides reproduced from photographs taken with the aid of the giant telescopes in the observatory of the University of Chicago. Professor Kingston, who is president of the society in London, introduced to the members some of the wonders of the heavens in a way that all could understand, leaving out any technical phrases that might be misleading or misunderstood.

The lecturer explained to some length the reason that one could see certain of the stars at times and at other times could not. In dealing with the stars, the speaker showed just how to find most of the important ones, and gave their names. The society was formed only about a month ago, and already has more members than is called for to become a chartered society of the Royal Astronomical Society. The membership carries with it a copy of the journal published by the society every month.

Lectures will be given every second Friday evening of each month until May, and the society will resume its activities the following October. About thirteen new members were enrolled at the meeting Friday night, and it is anticipated that the membership will grow very rapidly as soon as the society gets known. Anybody may join who is interested in astronomy, a nominal fee of $2 being charged to cover expenses, in which is included the society's journal.

Every opportunity is given those attending to ask questions of the lecturer on any point that is not quite clear.

EDISON, 75, WORKS AS USUAL ALL DAY

West Orange, N.J., Feb. 11.—Seven-fifty-five years ago today, Thomas A. Edison was born. Today, however, was just another Saturday in his busy life. He had made no plans to take a day off, not even to delay rising beyond the usual hour. At the great Edison plant he and his army of fellow workmen faced the same routine. While Mr. Edison seemingly forgot the day and its significance there was no oversight on the part of the "Edison pioneers," an organization of men employed by him since 1875, or far an even longer period.

The Edison workers proudly displayed celluloid buttons having the figures "75." Messages of congratulation came in from all parts of the world from all manner of men and women. A private dinner party will be held at the Edison home in the evening.

CITY COUNCIL INAUGURATES MAYOR'S PLAN

Heads of Civic Bodies Decide To Adopt Suggestions Regarding Co-operation.

IDEA TO REDUCE COSTS

Pass Resolution Embodying Unifying Principles Beneficial to Taxpayers.

Mayor Wilson's plan for co-operation of various civic bodies was auspiciously inaugurated Friday night by a conference of the heads of all bodies. The progress made consisted in the passing of a resolution giving general approval of the proposal and the naming of a committee to make a rough draft of a scheme to put it in force. This will be submitted to the various bodies for approval, and another conference called.

Mayor Wilson at the outset said that he called the conference with the idea of promoting better co-operation and reducing the cost of civic government to the tax payers. The mayor suggested that what he proposed was really a test of commission form of government. The people of the city had twice voted in favor of such a system but on each occasion the legislature threw it out. If the heads of the various bodies would co-operate, they thought it would work out in a system in keeping with the desires of the people and in a year or so they would have a definite knowledge of the good points and faults of such a system and thus they would be able to go to the legislature with a concrete proposal.

The mayor thought that the first matter should be the consideration of a resolution embodying the acceptance of the general idea of his proposals. This resolution called for the working out of a scheme whereby a commission, composed of one representative from each body, would, as a commission, deal with the municipal program of the year.

Wished To Hear Opinions. The mayor expressed a desire to have the views of the different bodies represented on the general idea of his scheme.

Philip Pocock, representing the London and Port Stanley railway and the playground committee, said he was very sympathetic with the mayor's scheme. If carried out on proper lines, it would be very beneficial. As to the railway, the work of its employees was entirely different from that of any other department, and he did not think that it would be possible to enter into a question of policy of operation. Out of this matter, however, they would do their best to co-operate.

As to the playgrounds, all the money of that department came from the tax rate and he was willing that the estimates of that body should be laid on the table, as he thought the estimates of all bodies affecting the tax rate should be open to discussion. He suggested that there should be a survey of the city made. That they should get an estimate of what was wanted for capital expenditure and then arrive at what could be spent, to keep the rate within certain bounds. In such an estimate he thought they should eliminate the water, electric and railway departments.

Edwin Smith, chairman of the school board, was heartily in accord with Mr. Pocock's suggestions. He wanted to hear what the others had to say.

Would Employ Every Economy. Col. Garthshore said the hospital trust would continue to employ every economy. It was hard, however, to keep hospital expenditure down as there were always epidemics, etc., coming along.

Jared Vining for the utilities commission, expressed entire sympathy

London's M.L.A. Declares There Will Not Be 1922 Election

"THERE won't be a provincial election," Dr. Stevenson, M.L.A. for London, explained Saturday. "Not this year. It's out of the question to talk about Drury going to the country on the hydro-rail scheme, as has been stated. It is only being formulated now. It would be necessary to wait until the people see what the scheme is."

"In my opinion there are a number of people who are disappointed because the Drury government has enacted so much legislation of a direct benefit to the masses. No previous administration ever did as much for the ordinary citizen. The Drury government has always acted in a good common sense manner."

COLDER WEATHER IS SUNDAY PREDICTION

While parts of Canada were reporting stormy weather and temperatures away below zero, Lower Canada, including London, today basked in a summer sunshine which melted what little remained of the winter's snow. This February thaw, however, for the probabilities are for a decidedly colder weather tomorrow.

First public school for the blind was established in Paris in 1784.

With the mayor's resolution, the utilities, in so far as the water and electric departments are concerned, did not and were not likely to affect the tax rate, only insofar as water supplies would go to reduce the rate, he said. So far as they could, they would co-operate. However, Mr. Vining did not see how a board could do anything in regard to matters relating to their extensions, improvements, etc., which the utilities commission carry on. With their general manager, they have an expert knowledge of the situation which a finance commissioner could not have. But such an official might be of assistance in conferring over matters.

Mr. Vining did think, however, that the utilities and city hall proper might co-operate in regard to staffs at times when they were rushed. The utilities also had a pretty fair supply department, said the chairman, and in this regard might be of some assistance to the city.

Fund Raised By Taxes. T. W. McFarlane of the parks board, took the same stand as Mr. Pocock in regard to the playgrounds. The funds for this department are all raised by taxes. He was willing that they should put their estimates on the table, and if it was the wish that they be cut, it would only make it easier for the board.

Ben Noble of the public library board said that body would co-operate and keep its estimates as low as it possibly could. The board was heartily in accord with the idea of a finance commissioner.

Ald. H. J. Childs, speaking for the council, said that the aldermen heard more complaints from the people than did members of other bodies. He thought that only good could come out of this conference.

Resolution Carried. The resolution endorsing the principle of the scheme carried, and then Mr. Vining moved that the mayor name a special committee to draft a skeleton scheme. The mayor named Philip Pocock, Edwin Smith, Col. Garthshore, Jared Vining and Ald. Childs.

Matters relating to a finance commissioner, inter-departmental insurance and other questions were laid over.

The resolution which the gathering passed is as follows: "Whereas the city council, board of education, police commission, utilities commission, London and Port Stanley Railway Commission, hospital trust, public library board, parks committee, playgrounds committee, aldermen of civic government with special duties assigned to such, and it is expedient that an effort be made to co-ordinate the several departments of civic government by mutual consent.

"And whereas the expenses of government are paid by the ratepayers,

"Be it resolved, that the several members of the boards present at this meeting express their approval of the effort to unify the management of the several boards by the formation of a commission composed of a representative from each board for the purpose of jointly determining policies for the year and increasing the co-operation of the staff of each of the several boards."

BY HELEN McMILLAN.

Why didn't you help me? You saw the inflexible arm of the law closing in around me!

You saw the iron gates of the prison opening before me!

You told me I ought to be good, and yet you let them cast me in among vicious men and women! You, who didn't try to help me, do you wonder that I am numbered among the criminals of the land today?

Such is the accusation which might be made to the citizens of London who have so long delayed in establishing a juvenile court in the community.

Only a fortnight ago, two boys, out for a lark, hit upon the plan of "playing burglar," and broke into a house which happened to be near. They weren't so lucky as the "crooks" that fill the pages of boys' yarns, and so they were arrested.

They were but 13 and 15 years of age, yet they were cast into a prison cell at the county jail. The law had no other course.

They were criminals in the eyes of the law, and in jail they must stay until the law decided otherwise. Only "13" and "15," out for a night's adventure!

And the representatives of the law, who have to arrest and who have to sentence, are not the least anxious among those who wish to better conditions.

INDIAN PROFESSOR URGES TOLERANCE

Principal Ernest Wood, Sincé College, To Address London Theosophists.

Just as the theosophist believes in the brotherhood of man, so he believes in the brotherhood of religions, according to Professor Ernest Wood, principal of Sincé College, Hyderabad, India, who arrived in London Saturday morning to deliver a series of three public lectures in the Theosophical Hall, 212 Dundas street.

The first of the series will be given at 3 p.m. Sunday. Touching on one of the objects of the movement, that of fostering comparative study of religion, philosophy and science, the professor stated that "Christ and Buddha and Mahomet would not have smitten one another had they lived at the same time, and that therefore it was unbecoming for their followers to be fighting one another."

There should be a mutual realization that there was something of good in each belief, continued Mr. Wood. Religious antagonisms had always been one of the world's great troubles. Theosophy by insisting that comparison should be made between only the best of each religion had pointed to the method through which all would be able to live side by side in harmony.

Turning to the primary objective of theosophy, the formation of a nucleus of the brotherhood of man without distinction of race, creed, caste, or color, Professor Wood claims that as no one member of a family was perfect or possessed all the qualities possessed by the family as a whole, so no one nation possessed all the virtues of mankind. Each was supplementary to the others. If in the family there were individual deficiencies, the individual was not blamed, else the "family" becomes a battleground. So with nations. None were perfect, but each possessed some individual perfection which was of benefit to the rest of the world.

Standard of Country Schools Must Be Raised, Says Dean Fox

Tells Middlesex Trustees and Ratepayers' Association of Work of Western University Towards Making Higher Education Possible To Rural Students.

In addressing the first meeting of the Middlesex Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association held in the Normal School on Friday evening, Dean Fox drew attention to the unique relation which Western University enjoys toward the county.

It is doubtful if any other county in the Dominion directly contributes toward the support of any university, we are more than anxious to help you solve any problems which may arise in your homes, your schools or your work. The fact that our extension lectures are under the direction of one head, in the person of Col. Brown, enables us to give you better service in this direction. We may be able to assist you by means of our laboratories and our libraries. We perhaps can help you solve your economic problems. At any rate, we appreciate to the fullest the attitude of the county toward Western University, and we are ready to place our services at your disposal.

A Help For Poor Pupils. Dean Fox defined the stand which Western University had taken with regard to the raising of the matriculation standard.

"There was, as you know, an agitation to make what is at present an honor matriculation standing, necessary for entrance to the university. It was felt, however, that all who can meet the practical requirements of a pass matriculation should have the opportunity of a higher education. It was evidence of our practical interest in rural education that we urged a standing which would enable students to go directly from continuation schools to the university, doing away with the necessity of an expensive term at a collegiate institute, which, owing to pecuniary circumstances, would deprive many students from attending university."

F. C. Warde, who presided, as chairman, called attention to the purpose of the meeting, that of properly facing, as an organized body, the problems which confront the rural school trustees.

"We must make the schools the center of community life," said Mr. Warde. "When boys go from the country to city schools there is a tendency to depreciate life in the country, and it is that which keeps the young men away from the farms. We must cure that by improving education in the country."

FATHERS OF "PREP" BOYS BANQUETED

Gather With Sons at Y.M.C.A. Entertainment, "Chums."

Fathers of the "prep" boys and the "prep" boys themselves, to the number of about eighty, assembled together as "chums" at the second banquet in the Father-and-Son week program at the Y. M. C. A. building Friday night at six o'clock.

The "prep" boys are the juniors, and includes all boys under the age of 12. W. H. Spearman, assistant boys' secretary at the "Y," led the singing, the opening event of the evening in which the boys and their fathers both lent their voices heartily.

Franklin Welch, one of the "prep" boys, addressed the diners on "Why I belong to the 'Y.'" Master Welch is but eleven years of age, but an ardent eloquence.

The toast to the "fathers" was proposed by Arthur Glen, and was responded to by Rev. J. N. Norton. Two educational reels, "A trip around Niagara," and "City of Toronto," were shown, after which A. G. Taylor, formerly physical director at the "Y," presided over a number of group games which the "dads" and "lads" both anticipated.

Allan Kay, mayor of the boys' council, was chairman of the banquet.

THERE IS LITTLE doubt but that Feb. 15 will witness the occupation of the new Victoria School. Trustee Rev. A. A. Rice, chairman of the board of education, reported Saturday morning that the school was "fairly well dried out" and should be ready for use next week.

"Our committee will probably meet again Monday," he explained, "and we'll have to decide definitely as to the opening. The school is all ready and in fine shape."

TORONTO APPARENTLY has just taken note of the fact that the London Street Railway has settled its outstanding account with the local hydro department. Manager Buchanan was in receipt of a communication Saturday morning from the general offices of the hydro-electric commission explaining that "it has been noticed that the railway has paid a bill and would be pleased to receive particulars of the controversy."

70TH BATTALION TO HOLD REUNION

Members of Unit To Gather Saturday Night at Masonic Temple.

Many veterans from all over Western Ontario, formerly members of the 70th Battalion, will attend the reunion of that battalion at the Masonic Temple Saturday night. A great number of these formerly in the ranks of the 70th, are widely scattered throughout the district, but a good attendance is expected both at the reunion and at the deposition of the colors in the Croyn Memorial Church at the 11 o'clock service Sunday morning.

Sir John Hendrie presented the colors to the battalion in March, 1915. After the battalion reached England the colors were placed in Westminster Abbey.

The towers of Sarnia, who was formerly the commanding officer of the battalion, will be in charge of the parade Sunday. Capt. H. F. Beresford of Sarnia, and Capt. Cecil Carling of London, will act as standardbearers. Capt. N. L. Lesner will act in the capacity of adjutant.

DRURY PLANNING "BLUE SKY" LAWS

In the opinion of Dr. Hugh Stevenson, M. L. A. for London, it will not be long before the Ontario government enacts so-called "blue sky" legislation to cover stock companies.

The London Chamber of Commerce, together with the various communities affiliated with the Western Ontario Board of Trade Association has interested itself in this matter for several months, and the question was but recently brought to the attention of Premier Drury.

"Premier Drury is considering this question," explained Dr. Stevenson, "and I believe that adequate legislation will be enacted during the next session of the house. If the Drury government enacts the law in such a manner as to make it possible to jail the heads of the stock companies that fail, it will soon put a stop to such enterprises."

And perhaps later become a hardened criminal. Yet what a greater understanding of boy nature was shown by the thrashing!

A juvenile court would put every facility into the hands of the law for properly dealing with juvenile cases. Why then does London delay with a juvenile court?

Judge H. S. Mott of the Toronto juvenile court brought home the need of such an institution in a very tender manner, while addressing the Kiwanis Club here some weeks ago.

"I see a little golden-haired boy in a garden," he said. "I see his innocent, happy face and the sun shining on his bright curls."

"At the window close by, I see his mother, peeping through the ivy leaves to watch him at play."

"He doesn't see her, for his little eyes are turned toward the garden gate—the wonderful gate, which leads to the big street beyond, where the bad boys play. Mother has forbidden him to go outside of the gate, but somehow it has a fascination which he can't seem to withstand."

"He begins walking slowly toward the forbidden spot. And his mother, up in the window, holds her breath in fear. Then heaves a sigh of relief as she sees him turn 'right about face' and watches his sturdy little legs carry him quickly back to his play."

A.—No, neither are your losses from such sources allowable deductions.

Q. 23—Does a taxpayer have to report to the government amounts of income paid to the individuals?

A.—Yes, if you pay to any person during the year, salary, rent, interest or other income amounting to $1,000 or more, or $500 for any part at the rate of $1,000 a year, you are required to file a return of information showing the amount and the name and address of the person to whom paid. Proper forms T-4 for this return can be secured from the inspector of your district.

Q. 24—What claim for depreciation can be made on buildings?

A.—The rate of depreciation now generally recognized by the government is 2 1/2 per cent on brick buildings and 5 per cent on frame buildings. This is an annual allowance based on the cost of the building only. The deduction can only be claimed on business or rented property is not allowable on a taxpayer's residence.

Q. 25—John Smith conducts a hardware store. On Dec. 31, 1920, his inventory was $15,000. During the year he purchased $35,000 worth of goods and his sales for the year were $75,000. On Dec. 31, 1921, his inventory was $17,000. How do these items enter into Smith's income tax return?

A.—The inventory at the beginning of the year, $15,000, is added to the purchase, $35,000, making $50,000 from which the inventory at

Seeking Building To Be Used as Salvation Army Domestic Lodge

BRIGADIER SOWTON of the Salvation Army emigration department, Toronto, is visiting London for the purpose of securing a building which could be converted into a domestic lodge. There is at present a Salvation Army boarding home in the city, but the object of the new institution would be rather to care for those in domestic service, who are temporarily without employment until work could be secured.

It is expected that an institution greatly aid in solving the domestic service problem and take care of immigrants to this country until suitable employment could be found for them.

REGRETS DECISION OF RAILWAY BOARD

Telephone Manager Claims Extensions Will Be Delayed.

Referring to the action of the Canadian Railway Board in refusing to meet the appeal of the Bell Telephone Company for an adjustment in charges, C. H. Beard, manager of the local branch of the company, in an interview, expresses his regret at the action of the board.

"Our failure to convince the majority of the railway commissioners that our appeal for relief was just and reasonable is to be regretted most by the thousands of would-be subscribers who are expecting to receive service," he said. "So soon as the necessary financing can be arranged, we shall be able to proceed with the building of the needed plant, work will be proceeded with, but the adverse decision just received means still further delay. Meantime, the public must accept the situation. Our existing facilities are taxed to the utmost, our plant margins exhausted, and to provide needed construction will take a lengthy period of time after financing is arranged. The statement in the majority judgment that our tariffs are somewhat out of line is admitted. Partially because of this, we have been endeavoring, without result, for the past three years to secure a proper adjustment of rates. We shall now make a further attempt to convince the commission that reasonable and non-discriminatory rates should be established with their approval."

the end of the year $17,000 is deducted which represents the "cost of goods sold." This deducted from the sales, $75,000, leaves $58,000, which is the gross profit from the business. In addition he can deduct his general expenses, losses, depreciation, etc., to determine his net income.

Q. 27—An individual owns an apartment house and lives in one of the apartments with his family. The entire building was heated by one furnace and owner furnishes heat, light, janitor for the entire block. How should the apartment figure in the owner's return?

A.—The owner must determine how much of the cost of heating, lighting, etc., is attributable to his own apartment and the balance of such costs must be deducted from gross income as an expense. Depreciation should be apportioned in the same manner. The rental value of his own apartment need not be included in gross income but the entire amount of rent received from the other apartments must be returned.

Q. 28—An attorney supporting a family uses an automobile both for business and pleasure. He employs an assistant and a stenographer in his office. He pays club dues, subscribes to legal publications and books and donates to charitable organizations. How should these items be treated in this return?

A.—The part of the automobile expense apportioned to the time it is used for business is an allowable expense. The salaries of the assistant and stenographer are a business expense. Club dues are not an allowable deduction.

DR. GIFFEN TO BE APPOINTED SCHOOL DENTIST

Recommendation Will Be Made to Board of Education.

WILL INSTALL EQUIPMENT

Room at Riverview School Will Be Fitted Up At Once.

Awaiting only the sanction of the trustees as a whole the appointment of Dr. J. F. Giffen, city, to the London public school dental staff is practically assured.

No. 1 committee of the board of education in session Friday afternoon considered the report by Senior Inspector Greer and will recommend to the board that Dr. Giffen be placed on the staff, his duties to become effective as soon as ratification is forthcoming from the board.

In the meanwhile the preparation of a room at the Riverview school will proceed as scheduled and the necessary equipment will be immediately installed. Dr. Giffen's services will be required during the mornings only at an initial salary of $1,000 per annum.

The committee also approved of the suggestion by Inspector Greer that another nurse be appointed to the local staff bringing the number to a total of five. This will make it possible for the local authorities to take advantage of the departmental grant available for last year. All nurses are required to give full time service. The provincial grant will practically cover the expenses of the additional nurse.

Inspector Greer recommended the appointment of Miss Isabella Davidson, of Victoria as domestic science teacher. Miss Davidson is a Londoner and unable to obtain a position on the local staff at the time she went to Victoria. She comes back to the city, it is explained, at a smaller salary than she now receives in the west, in order to be at home. The committee viewed with favor the suggestion to exchange a city teacher with one in England. Inspector Greer will ascertain who is willing to make the trip.

The choir of the church will present on this occasion Stanford's "Te Deum" in B flat.

WILL ISSUE WRIT FOR BY-ELECTION

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—(By Canadian Press.)—A writ for the by-election in East Kootenay will probably be issued tomorrow. The date of the by-election was decided on at a meeting of the cabinet council late this afternoon, but announcement of it was withheld pending approval by his excellency the governor-general, who is not at present in the city.

Whether or not Hon. J. H. King, minister of public works, will be opposed in East Kootenay is not known here. Robert E. Beattie, member for the riding, accepted an appointment to the income tax department branch of the finance department at Vancouver, thus creating the vacancy.

Headache

Recurring headaches usually come from an exhaustion of the nervous system, and they do not disappear until the vigor of the nerve cells is restored by such up-building treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Temporary relief by use of powders is often obtained at an enormous expense to the nervous system and the general health.

Get the nerves right and the headaches will not return.

Mrs. W. J. Pearce, Nunn St., Cobourg, Ont., writes:

"My system became run-down and I suffered greatly with pain in my head. This was so severe that I would have to bind a cloth tightly about my head so that I could get my work done. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after taking the first box I found quite an improvement in my condition. I continued using them until I had taken about seven boxes, and they strengthened and built up my system splendidly, completely relieving the pain in my head."

Foments Unrest 'Neath Egyptian Sky!

Adly Pasha (center), one of the leaders in the Egyptian unrest, talking with Lady Allenby, wife of Lord Allenby, British high commissioner in Egypt, shown at the right.

[Special To London Advertiser.] CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 10.—Egypt today is menacing the peace and safety of the British Empire.

Egypt wants independence. And it has 13,000,000 people, mostly Mohammedans.

Religion is a big factor in the Egyptian situation, for trouble with the Moslems there means unrest among the Mohammedans of India.

Boycott is the newest weapon the Egyptians have adopted—as the Sinn Feiners did with Ulster, as Ghandi's followers are doing in India.

Leaders in the Egyptian unrest are Seyid Zaghlul Pasha, representative of the extreme nationalists, and Adly Pasha, representative of the moderates.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 10.—Members of the Elgin County Municipal Association have joined forces with other organizations of the county in the fight against the natural gas companies of southwestern Ontario and the natural gas act of 1921.

As the result of this action, at the annual meeting of the organization in the court house of this city the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"That in the opinion of the 14th annual convention of the Elgin Municipal Association the natural gas act of 1921 should be repealed, owing to the fact that existing municipalities, individuals and the gas companies are ignored; and that the secretary be instructed to forward copies of the resolution to the minister of mines and to President Drury at the earliest possible date."

That Boy of Yours.

IN A RECENT court case where a father was called upon to appear because his son had got into trouble, the judge, who was a fairly broad-minded man, took the trouble to go beneath the surface.

After hearing the evidence he asked some questions of the father, and it did not take him long to establish three points:

1. In the previous six months he had not been at any place in the evenings with his boy, not to a concert, a hockey game or anything of that sort.

2. In the previous six months he had not any definite knowledge of where the boy had been spending his evenings.

3. In the previous six months there had never been a social evening arranged at the home for the boy or his friends.

That case comes into prominence because it was noticed in a public way.

It differs in degree only from a large number of homes right in this fine Western Ontario of ours.

The father doesn't think—in many cases—until it is too late. He knows he buys the clothing, the boots and all the rest of it, probably comes across handsomely on birthdays and at Christmas—but he has never gone right down to the boy's heart and taken the big place that is waiting for him in that wonderful place.

Matters are just drifting. The father is tied up with a dozen things, lodges, dinners, business, friends, public office—all fine things in themselves—but while all this is going on the boy is reaching out for the friendship that he yearns for, and the chances are that in his efforts to secure that, he is following the lines of least resistance.

Chances are the father reckons many times the Sunday school (if the boy goes), the church, the Y. M. C. A. or some other organization is going to catch the boy before he gets too far, and exercise an influence for good on his young life. The father, in some cases, might not admit much concern in this regard, but he feels it at times just the same. Every man wants to see his boy grow up in such a way that in years to come he can feel a regular little current of paternal pride run up and down his old spine as he refers to "My son."

Well, right now, father, when the boy is on the way up is your golden opportunity to score.

Never make the mistake of thinking that your boy won't meet you half way. He will.

And once on that track you are paying the way for the time when the boy will be mightily pleased to introduce you to his friends as "My father."

It's worth the effort, fathers. Better try and try hard.

Marketing the Grain.

THE PROPOSED re-establishment of the government wheat board is being discussed by the Financial Post of Toronto. The Post, for instance, represents the Western farmers as believing "that by the establishment of some machinery for fixing prices they can control the markets to the extent of getting larger prices for themselves." The Post further remarks:

"As Canada exports a large surplus of wheat we believe that such a course would be justified in the interests of the whole country. If the results referred to could actually be obtained, even though the Canadian consumer of bread were placed at a disadvantage. But there is no real evidence upon which to base such hope."

"The re-establishment of the wheat board in Canada might result in fixing a higher price to the Canadian consumer, but that would not be in the national interest if this same increased price could not be secured for the exportable surplus. And how could a Canadian board control the price being paid in Liverpool or the big grain-broking ports of Europe when consignments are being received from all the other grain-exporting countries?"

The Winnipeg Free Press, on the other hand, points out that the Western farmers have no intention of trying to bolster up prices, or bring about a situation whereby the home market would pay a price for wheat out of proportion with the prevailing Liverpool price.

According to the Free Press, the farmers are convinced that, without any relation to variations in the overseas demand for wheat, the price on this side always slumps in the fall because of the sudden and heavy rush of grain to the market. It is felt that if the flow of grain could be regulated a large number of farmers would benefit considerably by obtaining the returns which the Liverpool price entitled them to. It is also held that the railways would save a very considerable amount of money if they did not have to make such a great effort every fall to handle the grain that is thrown on the market. A large amount of extra rolling stock must be kept on hand all year round in order to be ready for the annual grain rush. And it is further argued that the proposed system would help the farmers who are some distance back from the railway—who cannot avail themselves of the usual high price at the opening of the grain season and who cannot ship by the

THE WEEKLY PRESS

THE Chesley Enterprise is going to be an all-home print paper, so if Wm. McDonald, the editor, is not as young as he used to be, he's a bit more lively. "Running a newspaper," the Enterprise says, "is much like it was forty years ago when we bought the Enterprise for $2,000 and had only $100 to pay on it. Today a linotype alone costs from $3,000 to $5,000, and a well-equipped plant in a country printing office means an outlay of ten thousand to fifteen thousand dollars. In the days of cheap printing plants, when type was set by hand in country offices, a publisher had to be very careful lest he offend some man of means in the town or country, for the result would be a job printing plant costing from $500 to $800 would be started in opposition to him to put him out of business. An opposition newspaper and job office were both started against the Enterprise to drive it to the wall, but here we are on the job after all the rough and tumble of newspaper and public life, still level and as good at sprinting as they were 20 years ago."

NEWSPRINT was reduced on the first of January one-quarter of a cent a pound, and the price now stands at 90¢ per ton at the mill. The reduced price will only mean the reduction of one and three-quarters cents per subscriber per year for a newspaper such as the Free Press. Postal rates this is the increase of cost against newspapers of 100 per cent to all subscribers outside of the local zone. In view of this newspapers can see little encouragement to hope for the possibility of any reduction in price in the near future.

ACCORDING to Attorney-General Raney in court cases will be insisted upon. He declares that there is too much "bullying and browbeating of witnesses" in such cases, and he gives the warning that a magistrate who is not able to preserve decorum and dominate his court is not fit to be a magistrate. That is all right as far as it goes; but why restrict the denunciation of "bullying and browbeating" to liquor cases? Have not witnesses in other cases quite as much right to be carried.

And if the price of wheat in Canada were a little higher in the fall than usual because it was based throughout on the Liverpool price and not subject to the annual sag, the Canadian consumer would not suffer or be unfairly treated any more than he is in the case of any other commodity, the domestic price for which is regulated by the export price.

The whole country, regardless of east or west, want all the information that can be brought to bear on the handling and financing of the western grain crop. The more money that the West gets for its crop the greater will be the volume of business coming to Eastern Canada to supply merchandise to the West.

The consumer is interested also, and should be protected from paying prices higher than those warranted by world market conditions. The question, when it comes before the house, should receive the attention the size of the issue demands. Any move that can reasonably be made to establish the grain-growing industry of the West on a better basis, and secure better returns to the man on the land, should have the best consideration that Ottawa can give it.

Real Reform.

GOOD MEN cannot get well paid in some parts of the civil service because there are so many superfluous employees, and because the grading of salaries in departments where skill and technical knowledge is essential, keeps the men down to less than they can get elsewhere—such is the conclusion of a critic after looking over the civil service situation at Ottawa.

Many of these men have left the Public Works Department, the Seed Branch of the Department of Agriculture, the department of the Chief Analyst and the Geological Survey. They have started to sniff the fresh spots of private concerns and find them good. They have gone to various industrial or educational posts at larger salaries. They claim that the limit set by the Civil Service Commission was too low; and as it has not been high enough to retain the men, this claim must be presumed to be correct. It was the somewhat spectacular resignation of six or seven men from the Geological Survey staff at one time, a year or two ago, which first drew public attention to the condition of discontent existing in the Civil Service as a result of the reclassification.

This reclassification brings with it some peculiar gradings.

The assistant engineer of a bucket dredge who must have had "at least two years' experience as crane-man on a dipper dredge, or other on a clam-shell or orange-peel dredge"—whatever those things may be, could earn $1,500 a year and subsistence—probably only at least $2,200 a year; while an associate map and chart architect (who was required to have "education equivalent to graduation in arts from a recognized university" with special

THE Hon. Adam Beck and his party of radical enthusiasts got a setback when Grantham and Humberstone Townships voted against the purchasing of the Niagara, St. Catharines, and Toronto railway acquisition. The townships of Thorold and Crowland gave majorities of 12 and 23 respectively for the proposition. Grantham gave 62 and Humberstone 58 against it. We feel that this vote should have a sobering effect upon the hydro knight and his admirers, but apparently it has not. He is still the idol of the Toronto papers. It would seem as if there was nothing to it but that the government will have to take over hydro and place it under a minister responsible to the people. Sir Adam and staff have too much authority. If the people own anything they have very little to say in the handling of affairs. The automatic machine of hydro is but a reflex of the autocracy at its head. The time has come when change is necessary and Premier Dwyer will not find the people of Ontario, outside a few cities, adverse to having the supreme power of hydro removed from its present resting place and put into the hands of the government. Sir Adam Beck had defied and bulldozed governments long enough.

THE Daily Star asks is Toronto unpopular? Were it to leave King street and come out into the free and undefined zone of the broad acres of the province it would not have to lose much time in finding an answer. It would learn right off the reel that bigotry, pettiness, narrowness and other breeders of distrust and creators of ill-nature have their innings with the result that the name of the Queen City has been sadly tarnished before the mind of those away from the bright lights, the shouting, parading, hurrahing and unpractical groups or cliques who have been privileged to get into the limelight. For Toronto there is some housecleaning ahead if it is to regain the confidence of the outside public. It must come to recognize that it is not the whole province, that because it wants radicals all Ontario must, that because it will not allow a few children to be taught French in a school after hours, though the parents pay the bill, that other parts of the province need do the same, or because it will elect a certain class of men to run its political affairs, municipal and otherwise, all Ontario must necessarily remain at the same standard, particularly if it is accepted as being below the average. Investigation apparently goes to give the Star an affirmative answer. For this the responsibility alone rests with Toronto.

ization in certain branches) might, in the course of years receive $1,950 per annum. One can imagine some of those worried scientists saying to their hopefuls: "My son, eschew university training and the life of an archivist. Be diligent and you may yet become assistant on a bucket dredge!" It was things of this sort that made the scientists in the service despair. No doubt the work of an orange-peel dredger is something less frivolous than it sounds; but at that, it seems to be ranking it rather higher to put it ahead of the work of the government scientists. It was incidents of that kind, comments "Byrstander" in the Halifax Chronicle, that made some of the best men in government employ sick of the service. The best men still in it are dissatisfied and in many instances with ample reason. They are being sacrificed to the system which maintains thousands of superfluous and incompetent employees and by so doing makes it impossible to pay its good men adequately. Real civil service reform in Canada would mean much more than anything that has been yet done. Appointment to the higher offices and more important positions in the service by examination and promotion by merit are both highly desirable; but for the good of the service itself and for the welfare of the taxpayer, fewer drones and better salaries should be the policy.

COMMON SENSE WAYS TO KEEP WELL

Ban the Roller Towel, It Spreads Disease

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.

THE old roller towel, like the common drinking cup and the family toothbrush, is fast passing away. Its place for the most part is being taken, especially in public wash rooms and factories, by the tissue towel, made of paper and used but once.

Still, despite the convincing and surprising tests made by Dr. R. C. Rosenburger several years ago, there are many common towels in use. Dr. Rosenburger found that, no matter whether roller or hand, towels are tireless spreaders of skin and contagious diseases.

In these tests, towels from many different sources and in all conditions of grime and filth were examined, including those from hospitals, hand, kitchen and roller towels, soiled towels from private homes and new towels, fresh from the laundry, which were allowed to hang several days unused in rooms exposed to dust and air.

The Toronto Star and the Toronto Telegram have been having a battle as to which is the cause of Toronto's unpopularity with the outside world. As they are hogging the battle all to themselves, as usual, the unpopularity can readily be understood.—St. Catharines Standard.

READ YOUR CHARACTER

NO. 122—FINGERS OF DETAIL. If you didn't know anything about the science of character reading and had to rely solely upon instinct and untrained observation, there would only be one way in which you could decide whether or not a person was fond of detail, and good enough at manual tasks, by observing them at work and noticing the kind of work they turned out, as well as their customs and habits.

The science of character reading presents another method, far quicker and more convenient. You just look at a person's fingers. If they're short you know that they belong to a person who has a natural aptitude for detail work. If they're long, slender and tapering, as described in a previous article, you'll know he's a dreamer.

But if they're long, but not tapering or slender, you know that you're looking at a person who may be by force of circumstances, is capable of taking real delight in the handling of details, who is slow and exact, both in mental processes and manual tasks. If it's a lecture you're looking at, you can make up your mind that a very great number of people will consider him tiresome. He'll be so slow and exact in the details of his discourse.

Men with long fingers make good watchmakers, accountants and engravers, for these are occupations calling for the physical and mental characteristics with which they are liberally endowed. But the long-fingered ones also have a tendency to worry over trifles, because trifles usually are details.

When clouds is hangin' in the sky, they wear a look of desperation, and cough out things that speak about the chances of precipitation.

In simple little walks of life they always try to score a point, by usin' words that strain their neck and throw their face all out of joint.

BILLY SUNDAY FLAYS EVIL IN MOVIE COLONY

Deplores Righteous Disgust Arbuckle and Taylor "Incidents" Arouse.

URGES HIGHER STANDARD

Demands Ban On Undesirable Pictures As Well As Actors and Actresses.

BY REV. BILLY SUNDAY, World Famous Evangelist. Special to London Advertiser. (Copyright, 1922).

"I THINK the exhibition of a certain type of moving picture is the severest indictment that can be brought against the silver screen in Canada today.

"And I do not doubt that constant work on such pictures is in part responsible for alleged looseness in the lives of a few of the inhabitants of Hollywood—that goal of a million foolish dreams, and subsequently quite often the G-Word."

"There is no excuse for the exhibition of any picture which cannot be seen and enjoyed, and, best of all—understood by a boy or girl of seven. And there is still less excuse for the 'picture colony' to permit the presence there longer of the two-score vulgarians who bring discredit and unfavorable publicity by their actions to decent residents of California's movie Mecca.

Condemns "Jamborees."

"I condemn the 'Fatty' Arbuckle jamboree from start to finish, but judging from the evidence published by the newspapers at two trials on a charge of manslaughter, I do not see how he could be convicted on that charge, no matter what other crime he might be guilty of.

"Regardless of the outcome of the case, however, Arbuckle has suffered severe punishment in his fall from a position of popularity and admiration, and his is a striking example of the fact that no matter how popular or prominent a man is he cannot defy public morals and get away with it.

"The fact that the Canadian public vigorously criticized Fatty, a popular favorite, for his part in the stenchful affair, is one of the encouraging signs of the times, and one that the movie heads should pay heed to.

"And now comes the slaying of William Desmond Taylor, with all its mystery, scandalous and love letters, to further disgust all clean-minded citizens.

Flays All Corruption.

"Many of the same emotions and impulses that corrupt men and women give full rein to also stir the hearts of decent folk.

"The Dominion is as clean as it is because most of its citizens are men and women who practice self-restraint, and obey the commandments of God. The conventions of society and the fear of public opinion are responsible in others.

"But nothing more true was ever spoken than that sin soon too often becomes a familiar face, and finally a thing that we embrace. In this lies the condemnation of certain movie offerings and all allied cussedness in some of the pictures thrown on the screen and in plays acted.

"Girls their teens under ordinary circumstances abhor all that which is not best in womanhood. Yet suggestiveness is flaunted in their faces day after day on the screen or on the stage until their shame is dissipated, and they witness in pictures without a blush things there is not one chance in a hundred of them ever seeing in everyday life.

"Newspapers are often compelled as a matter of news to publish a certain amount of scandal, distasteful as it is to all editors, but it is because in this country scandal is still something out of the ordinary, and out of the ordinary things are news, but that is no excuse for the movies to cater to sinful impulses.

"The matter of public morals is so vital to the health and prosperity and happiness of any community that it should not be difficult to enact laws prohibiting the exhibition of certain types of pictures. If a few public-spirited producers and exhibitors will set the pace, the entire industry will follow, and the undesirable picture and actor and actress will disappear from the earth as completely as the dinosaur."

Monday Billy Sunday will discuss the movies power for good.

IS ALIVE, BUT HE MUST PROVE IT

MONTREAL, Feb. 10. — Jerome Bellevue will probably be the first living being to form the subject of an inquest, which will take place tomorrow morning concerning the existence or non-existence of a man by that name whose body was identified and who was buried six months ago, after being dragged from the Lachine canal.

The body was identified by a Mrs. Bellevue, of Lachine, as that of her husband who had been missing for several days. An inquest was held, a verdict of accidental death returned and the corpse interred.

For a while all went well, and Mrs. Bellevue prepared to marry again.

Her horror, therefore, can be imagined when the other day the "ghost" of her husband returned and claimed the right to occupy his former position. The case was therefore brought to the attention of the coroner. The "ghost" claimed that he had been serving a six months' sentence in jail.

Your Estate

There is but one certain way of having an Estate, and that is through life insurance.

Canadian Government figures recently compiled show that out of 107,109 persons who died in one year, 100,031 left estates of less than $10,000. The vast majority left nothing.

This fact, that 93% of persons at death leave practically nothing, makes clear the necessity for Life Insurance.

Creating Your Estate

THE CANADA LIFE will guarantee to provide at your death an Estate which is twenty or thirty times greater than the amount of your annual deposit with the Company. And if you live—

Every dollar of regular annual deposit will be returned at the end of twenty years, and substantial dividends will be paid at intervals.

Our "Capital Return" Policy

1st. Deposits are made yearly. This is what you are saving, and at the end of 20 years the Canada Life guarantees the return of every dollar paid in.

2nd. Your life is insured from the day you make the first deposit—for $5,000, or whatever amount you decide.

3rd. Dividends are paid at stated intervals in addition to the return of all deposits at the end of 20 years.

4th. These dividends may be used to increase the amount of your insurance, or be allowed to accumulate at interest for 20 years.

5th. The cash value of Policy and Dividends represents a valuable asset, useful in business, and your "estate" is protected by the insurance.

6th. At the end of Twenty Years you can draw out all you have paid in, along with the accrued dividends—

—or—

you can draw a Special Cash Guarantee, together with the Accumulated Dividends, making a substantial sum, and leave the $5,000 Policy fully paid for and continuing to earn Dividends as long as you live—

—or—

this Special Cash Guarantee may be applied to increase a $5,000 policy to more than $7,500.

SOCIETY and NEWS of INTEREST to WOMEN

Job Chasing Girl or Woman Who Can Really Do Her Work

"Any house-worker or factory worker who knows her work doesn't need to be out of a position for ten minutes. One difficulty we are up against all the time is to find efficient women for positions."

The speaker very much knows what he is talking about. He is no less an authority than Superintendent J. C. Spencer, superintendent for the London zone, extending from Guelph to Windsor, of the Dominion Government Employment Bureau, with headquarters at the local bureau, corner of Talbot and Richmond streets.

"So that explains why a number of girls and women wanting positions cannot get them?" asked the women's department of The Advertiser.

"Precisely—that is, if they are looking for house or factory work. Clerical workers are more difficult to place under any circumstances. An important reason is that all the business colleges and commercial schools are looking out for positions for their students, and many employers have been in the habit of engaging their help through the schools and colleges. Again, when there are important clerical positions in any business or industrial concern, some employers have a habit of seeing work where she is doing good work where she is placed elsewhere, and making an effort to secure her services."

"Does it pay?"

This evidently answers the question, "Does it pay a girl to improve herself and do her work to the best of her ability?"

The obvious moral is that she gains not only the approval of her own employers but builds a better position for herself elsewhere, if she wants it.

But, back to the subject of the employment bureau's view of the present situation regarding employment for women.

As soon as a competent girl or woman applies for a position to do housework, there is somebody waiting to snatch her up, a number of "somebodies" frequently. To a large extent, this is also true in the case of the woman or girl who knows how to run a factory machine or sewing machine, or do some other branch of factory work accurately and well.

There are two classes—a-seeking work of the "manual" variety (the more head work associated with it the better) who cannot always find themselves placed as promptly or frequently as they would like. One is the woman who has home ties but must turn a bread-winner for the time being, owing to the unemployment of men in the family. She can only go out by the day as Queen Mother's Song Bade Prince Good-Bye.

MADAME ELEANOR HAZARD PEOCKOC, dramatic soprano, of Detroit, who has frequently sung in recital in London, and has a number of friends here, is spending the winter in Honolulu. Greetings received from her in this city have been accompanied by copies of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, the special edition issued in connection with the death and burial of Prince Kuhio, "a prince of Hawaii's vanished monarchy, a staunch citizen of the American territory that succeeded it." Among the many touching stories related in the edition in connection with the death and burial of the beloved prince, a delegate to Washington, was that of the tribute paid by a handful of "haole" spectators gathered outside the palace at 5 o'clock in the morning. Some of them had been there for an hour, held by the exotic beauty of the scene in the throne room, massed with the flowers the prince had loved.

Suddenly, as if by a kind of unconscious impulse, somebody started to sing. His song was the Hawaiian melody best known to Canadians, the "Aloha Oe," composed by the late Queen Liliuokalani.

"Hardly had the first note been uttered," states the chronicler of the incident, "when the whole group began to sing softly and reverently the words, and when they had finished, the group began to break up. They had said farewell to Prince Kuhio."

"A casual worker," if she can cook, set a table and attend to the more fussy features of housekeeping as well as wash clothes and clean, there will be competition for the treasure. The one who volunteers only for "charing" must wait her turn to get daily work.

At the present time a number of young girls, unskilled workers, are looking for factory positions. If they cannot get these they frequently state they are willing to do housework to fill in.

Here another difficulty arises. They do not know how to do housework. Home-makers who have engaged this type of girl, it is stated at the employment bureau, have made this complaint: "I just succeeded in training her how to work satisfactorily and she wanted to make a change. She was tired of housework and wanted a factory position."

Whose Fault? "What is the trouble?" The Advertiser asked at the employment bureau Friday afternoon. "Whose fault is it that the girl brought up in a home where the household duties must be performed by the members of the family does not know the rudimentary things about housework? Is there something wrong with the educational system which is supposed to give a certain amount of household science training?"

The bureau admitted there was something wrong somewhere. While there is a certain amount of unemployment among women and girls at present, it is negligible, compared with the unemployment among men, according to Mr. Spencer.

Always there is a big demand for women to do housework in farm homes. Whatever the reason, however, a strong preference is manifested for city positions, notwithstanding the excellent homes assured in many cases in the country.

If She Can Milk. "The old-fashioned girl who can and is willing to do some milking as well as housework, can choose her position," stated the London superintendent.

And that recalled the resourceful young farmerette. Is she to continue a factor in Canadian life, or has she already passed with the passing of certain other wartime institutions?

"I don't think there will be much more demand for the farmerette," is the view of Mr. Spencer. "That is, the farmerette who drives wagons and carries, cleaned stables and did general farm work. The men are back to these occupations. We anticipate, however, there will still be demand in the coming summer for a number of girls as fruit pickers."

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL IN WINTER. Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are changeable—one bright, the next one cold and stormy, that the mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. In consequence they are often cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds or grippe. What is needed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. They will regulate the stomach and bowels and drive out the colds and by their use the baby will be in perfect safety. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.—Adv't.

Ornamental Capes

BY MARIAN HALE.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—From the Italian Riviera where skies are sunny and the air summer soft, comes word of frocks and hats of wondrous delicacy and vividness.

This Claire gown is a fascinatingly simple thing—the snow crepe skirt is quite straight of line and swings a graceful cape from the shoulders at the back. Little capes, which serve no purpose more than that of ornament, and sleeveless jackets are exceedingly good this season.

The cape is held to the gown by a wide band of black velvet which circles the throat and ties loosely on the left shoulder. Handmade ornaments, huge buckle-like affairs, accent the waist line which is slightly held in by a metal girdle. A panel effect is found in two wide streamers of black velvet which begin at the back waist line, follow the skirt to the hem and there are caught to it.

The frock itself is pink—the most delicately lovely pink imaginable! The hat which is worn with the frock, also a Claire creation, is of black tulle, sashed in black velvet and faced with pink snow crepe.

THE HEALTHY, HAPPY WOMAN IS THE ONE WHOSE KIDNEYS ARE HEALTHY. DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS MAKE HEALTHY KIDNEYS.

Notre Dame des Quinze, Que., Feb. 10.—(Special).—"Yes, I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills with good results. I am now well again."

In these few words Miss Aline G. Perreault, well-known and highly respected here, tells the story that is coming from other women all over Canada. They have suffered and found relief. They are praising Dodd's Kidney Pills.

For being purely and simply a kidney remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills strike directly at the seat of women's troubles, the kidneys.

The woman with healthy kidneys is the healthy woman. The weak, sickly woman whose footsteps drag and who carries with her every-where a weight of weariness and pain should look to her kidneys.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the greatest of all kidney remedies.—Adv't.

WITH BRIDES THE BRIDES SHAW-WOODWARD.

There was a quiet wedding at the Methodist parsonage, Wardsville, when Miss Rosina Woodward was married to Charles Alfred Shaw, son of Alfred Shaw of the first concession of Aldborough. Reginald Dickson and Miss Hancha Shaw supported the happy couple during the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. J. Huser, pastor of the Methodist Church. After a wedding dinner at Mr. and Mrs. Mort. Wilson's the happy couple took the 6 o'clock M. C. R. train at Rodney for Tilbury, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will settle on a farm in Aldborough, about four and a half miles from Wardsville. Last Thursday evening a shower was given at Mr. and Mrs. Mort. Wilson's in honor of the bride-to-be, when some 30 of her friends took possession of the house and presented her with many beautiful and useful articles for housekeeping.

"Little Women" Makes Big Hit

Pollyanna Club Cleverly Presents Miss Jean Waugh's Dramatization.

Almost every seat in St. Andrew's Hall was filled on Friday evening for the presentation by the Pollyanna Club of the Y. W. C. A. of the dramatization by the leader, Miss Jean Waugh, of the delightful book of girlhood life "Little Women," by Louisa May Alcott.

Away back far into the days of the nineteenth century the audience was carried by the quaint stage settings, the clever interpretation of the various roles by the capable young members of the cast. While the costumes and styles of hair-dressing longed to a period of many decades ago, the realization was brought home that girl nature is very much the same in all ages.

Five scenes were included in the dramatization, which retained in a gratifying manner the humor and pathos of the original. And of course, practically everybody present was able to fill in from memory "what happened between," which naturally enhanced their enjoyment, their feeling that they were spending an evening with delectable old friends.

Scene one presented their family group minus the dear father, whose homelike March, Meg, the womanly and demure, irrepressible Jo, gentle, shy Beth, and winsome, if a bit vain, Amy.

Later there was John Brooks, "Laurie," every girl's hero at some time in her career. Miss Crocker, Miss Vaughn and father.

A particularly clever bit of characterization, which sent the audience again and again into gales of laughter, was that of Miss D. Saunders, in the role of "Jo." The other parts, all played convincingly, were as follows: Father, Miss J. Saunders; Mother, Miss M. Vagenfeld; Aunt, Miss M. Wood; Meg, Miss A. Saunders; Beth, Miss P. Keating; Amy, Miss Q. Vouden; John Brooks, Miss A. Storey; T. Laurence, Miss B. Goucher; Miss Crocker, Miss J. Farrell; Miss Vaughn, Miss McDonald.

Previous to the play a striking and colorful pageant revealed "the secret of a girl's life." In order to achieve the ideal life the girl was obliged to cast aside false ambition, ignorance, selfishness, pride, timidity and discouragement, and led by the spirit of awakening, to fix her eyes on the white spirit within the machine, the Christ spirit in the church.

POLLY AND PAUL AND PARIS

CHAPTER XIX—The Dream Dress.

By Zoe Beckley

EVERY morning after Paul had set out for the "stove studio" Polly would walk to where English and Americans frequently gathered. It was so good to hear the familiar English voices, to see the clean-shaven, well-set-up men, the whole-home girls with their neat silken kinkies and pointed shoes and smart clothes.

She often made acquaintances and went shopping or sightseeing with this woman or that. One of them proved uncommonly pleasant—a self-reliant girl named Norma Brady, who had come to France as a war worker and had remained to study. It was with Miss Brady that Polly went to Paver's to get her "real dress" after the heartbreaking failure of the one from the side street.

"I don't want another such experience," said Polly with a shudder all too real.

"Bless your heart, I should say not! I know just how you feel. I had the same thing, trying to economize, and I've learned to go either to the big departmental stores for madryades, or to the good modistes. You get stung every time if you don't. Even at the best places you sometimes have to scrap like every thing to get exactly what you want. Come on, I'll help you."

Norma was a comfortable girl. Kindly and good humored. Polly found her an immense relief from Violet Rand who, try as she would, she could not like. Violet, she felt, endured her only to be with Paul, and took a catlike pleasure in scratching whenever possible.

At Paver's this time they were ushered into the "Special Salon d'Exposition"—a little theatre-like showroom exquisitely decorated in mauve and pale yellow. There was a stage draped with many thick, heavy chiffon in shades of purple, mauve and cream, and bright with footlights.

The audience sat in small gilt chairs under amber-shaded lamps and the models undulated slowly out upon the stage, walking, standing, sitting and sometimes taking little dance steps to show off the ball-trunks.

There was a blue one—Paul loved blue, what man doesn't?—of taffeta, marvelously simple but with what lines! The lowness of the bodice made Polly gasp a bit, but the skirt was round and full, falling from a very long waistline.

"I should call it a hip-line," whispered Norma, "but it would make a woman of seventy look seventeen! Why don't you get it? You'd be a perfect dream in it!" But Polly said firmly. "No. It's too evening-ish. I must have something more practical!"

"Then that tete-de-negre lace with the silver underneath—what a darling. How do they manage the draping on that skirt?"

"No-no," considered Polly, "looks too costly. I've about decided on a satin crepe or taffeta. I could wear it afternoons or evenings either. Look at that one with the adorable puffs of sleeves! And the wide, shal-low neck-line, and that wonderful rosette-thing on the hip. Oh, I believe—Would I look well in that shade of brown with the orange?"

"You'd be a perfect duck in it. It's so simple and distinguished. I'd have it, no matter what it cost."

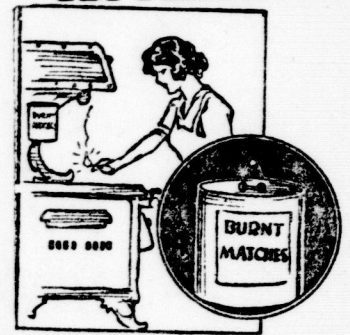

Rather timorously, Polly signaled the saleswoman that she would try on the brown with the orange. It was exquisite on her.

But as she finally gave the order, her heart stopped beating at the price. Nearly $180! But then, it was a dress of a lifetime...

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

RAISIN BREADS

They Are Nice To Serve With Tea, Jam or Marmalade.

QUICK light breads are always nice to serve with afternoon tea or may be served with jam or marmalade to take the place of dessert for the family dinner.

Housekeepers often forget that the sweet may be introduced early in the meal and a fancy dessert made unnecessary.

Freshly baked raisin brown bread and cherry or strawberry preserves would make dessert quite "de trop."

Raisin Brown Bread.
Two eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 1/2 cup molasses, 3 cups graham flour, 1 1/2 cups white flour, 2 cups sour milk, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 cup raisins.

Beat eggs well. Beat in salt and sugar and add molasses. Add graham flour and mix thoroughly. Add one cup milk. Dissolve soda in remaining cup of milk and add to mixture. Sift flour over raisins and stir into batter. Be sure that the whole is perfectly blended. Pour into 3 one-pound baking powder cans which have been well buttered and floured. Bake an hour in a hot oven.

Raisin White Bread.
One-half cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 1/2 cups milk, 4 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind.

Beat egg well. Beat in salt and sugar. Mix and sift flour and baking powder and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Stir in raisins. Turn into buttered and floured baking powder cans. Put in a warm place and let rise twenty minutes. Bake forty-five minutes in a hot oven.

Raisins Scones.
If friends come in and there doesn't seem much for dinner make these raisin scones and serve them hot.

One and one-half cups flour, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1 egg, 1/2 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 1/2 teaspoon salt. Mix and sift flour, sugar, salt, soda and cream of tartar. Rub in butter with fingers. Beat eggs till light with 1-3 cup of water and cut into flour. If not soft enough to roll add more water. Cut in raisins. Roll about three-eighths of an inch thick and cut with a cookie cutter. Bake in a hot oven.

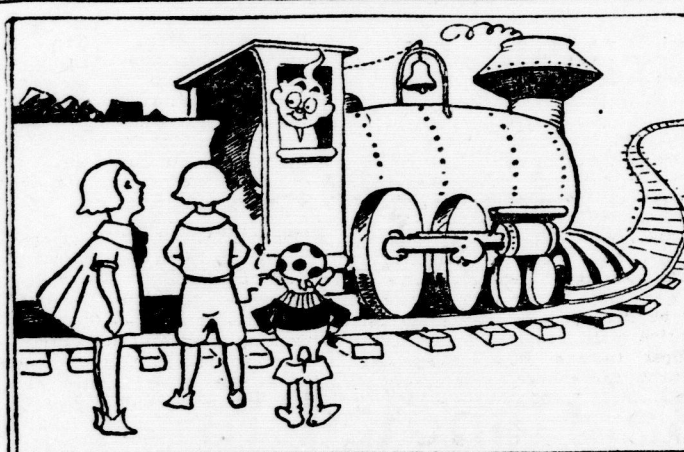

Raisin Hot Cakes.
Serve these with maple syrup some Sunday night for supper or as dessert after a light dinner.

Two cups sour milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 2 1/2 cups white flour, 1/2 cup corn meal, 1 egg, 1/2 cup seeded and chopped raisins. Mix and sift flour, salt and soda. Beat egg well and add sour milk. Add raisins to first mixture and stir in milk and egg. Beat till thoroughly mixed and then do not stir. Drop by spoonfuls on a hot, well greased griddle.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS.

[By Olive Roberts Barton.]

There was a nice little train of cars to meet them.

THE next place to which Buskins took the Twins was called Mist Land. It was another part of the Kingdom-of-Up-in-the-Air.

When the magic apple-tree elevator stopped and they all got out, there was a nice little train of cars to meet them and a jolly engineer looking out of the window.

Buskins introduced them. "Nancy and Nick, this is Scootalong, the steam-fairy. Scootalong, these are the Twins and we're on adventures. I'm glad you are here to meet us."

Scootalong touched his cap and said that he was much obliged to meet them, and that he'd been looking for them ever since he'd received Buskins' telegram that they were coming.

Buskins explained to the Twins that the reason all steam went straight up to the sky was because it was really a million fairies going to Scootalong for orders. He was chief of them all. "No one knows how important a person he is," went on Buskins, "for the 510 express down on the earth all depends on him and his fairies for being on time. He tells the steam fairies just how to push the wheels of the engine around when the engineer opens the throttle, and how to blow the whistle at the crossings, and how to stop the train at important places, and everything. Yes, Mr.

Scootalong is a very important person."

Mr. Scootalong bowed and touched his cap again and repeated that he was much obliged for the compliment. "Won't you hop in now, young friends?" he asked. "I'll take you around and show you things. We're all busy up here in Mist Land from the teakettle-fairies to the fog-fairies. Mr. Sprinkle-Blow doesn't make all the weather."

Nancy and Nick thanked him and followed Buskins into one of the funny little cars.

Evolution of Coward To Hero Is Comedy Plot

BY JAMES W. DEAN.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Cowardly youth. Runs away from fights. Realizes his weakness.

His grandmother lectures him. Tells him of his grandfather. He, too, was yellow. But he had been given a carved figure, a talisman of courage.

Grandmother presents youth with the carved figure. He thrashes a big youth who had been bullying him for years. Believing in the talisman, he is brave.

Then grandmother tells him the tale about the grandfather was spun from the whole cloth. She takes the carved figure and fits it on her umbrella as a handle.

The coward, believing in the symbol of courage, came to believe in his own courage.

That's the plot of the comedy Harold Lloyd is making now. He told me about it himself. It seems far removed from slap-stick. Lloyd also told me some illuminating things about comedy making.

"I don't know how successful that comedy will be," he said. "It has only six laughs in the first reel, but that first reel creates sympathy for my character. I believe it builds the foundation for the laughs that come in later reels."

When Lloyd makes a comedy he counts the number of laughs in it. Each situation is built with a definite play for a humorous reaction.

There is very little originality in the "gags" that are used to produce laughs. Most of them are suggested by situations in old comedies that have produced laughs. The originality lies solely in presenting them in a new manner.

Lloyd is the most serious screen player I have yet met.

That includes Chaplin. Chaplin may be more serious about life itself, about the plight of the underdogs of humanity. But he is not so serious as Lloyd about the business of being funny.

These glassless specs of Lloyd's, for instance. He has worn the same pair in all his comedies for two years. They fit so snugly he forgets he has them on. The upper rim of them coincides with the arch of his eyebrows. Thus the audience is not constantly reminded that he is wearing glasses, he believes. The double line of spectacle rim and eye-brow would focus attention to the glasses.

And Lloyd was allowed to develop his he-spectacle character only after he threatened to quit the firm he had contracted with. Lloyd's climb through his own endeavors. He directed many of his comedies and wrote most of them. At least one-third of all the situations in his present comedies are his own innovations.

GUNSIGHT PASS

CHAPTER XXVI.

"So you've come back to old Dug, have you, my pretty?" a heavy voice jeered.

The girl writhed and twisted regardless of the pain, exerting every muscle of the strong young arm and shoulder.

"Let me go," she cried, terror rampant in her white face. "Don't touch me!"

There was a swift flash of white teeth. With a startled oath Doble snatched his arm away. Savage as a tigress, Joyce had closed her teeth on his forearm.

She fell back, got to her feet, and fled from the house. Doble was after her on the instant. She dodged round a tree, doubled on her course, then deflected toward the corral.

Swift and supple though she was, his long strides brought him closer. "You young cat, I'm not gonna hurt you," he said. "What's the use o' actin' crazy?"

There was a patter of rapid feet. A small body hurtled itself against Doble's leg and clung there, beating his thigh with a valiant little fist.

"You're my sister go! You're my sister go!" the boy shouted, repeating the words over and over.

Doble looked down at Keith. "What d'ye want?" he demanded, amazed.

The Mexican came forward and spoke in Spanish rapidly.

The outlaw was irritated. All this clamor of fear annoyed and disturbed him. This was not the scene he had planned in his drink-inspired reveries.

"Lead this kid off my leg and hit the trail, Juan. I don't care where you leave him so long as you keep an eye on his till afternoon."

With difficulty the Mexican swung to the saddle, dragged Keith up in front of him, and rode away at a jog-trot. The youngster was screaming at the top of his lungs.

As his horse climbed toward the notch Otero looked back. Doble had picked up his prisoner and was carrying her into the house.

An hour's riding through the chaparral brought him to the watershed far above the Jackpot. Otero picked his way to the upper end of a gulch.

"Leesten Muchacho. Go down—down—down. First the gulch, then a canyon, then the Jackpot. You go on these trails."

He dropped the boy to the ground, watched him start, then turned away at a Spanish trot.

The trail was a rough and precipitous one. Stumbling as he walked, Keith went sobbing down the gulch. He had wept himself out, and his sobbing had fallen to a dry hiccup.

A forlorn little chap, tired and sleepy, he picked his way among the mesquite, following the path along the dry creek bed. The cat-claw tore his stockings and scratched him. Stone bruises hurt his tender feet. He kept traveling, because he was afraid to give up.

He reached the junction of the gulch and the canyon. A small stream which had survived the summer drought, trickled down the bed of the latter. Through tangled underbrush Keith crept to the water. He lay down and drank, after which he sat on a rock and panted himself. In five minutes he would have been asleep if a sound had not startled him. Some one was snoring on the other side of a mesquite thicket.

Keith jumped up, pushed his way through, and almost stumbled over a sleeping man. He knelt down and began to shake the snorer.

"Wake up, man!" Keith shouted in his ear in the interval between snatches.

The youngster roused the man at last by throwing water in his face. Shorty sat up, at the same time dragging out a revolver. His gaze fastened on the boy, after one swift glance around.

"Whadya doin' here?"

"I want my daddy."

"Who's yore daddy? What's yore name?"

"Keith Crawford."

Shorty bit off an oath of surprise. "Howcome you here?"

"A man brought me."

As far as he understood them, the boy told the story of the night's adventures. Shorty's face grew grim. He appreciated the meaning back of them far better than the little fellow. He jumped to his feet. "We'll go, kid."

CHAPTER XXVII.

When she recovered consciousness Doble was splashing water in her face. She was lying on the bunk from which she had fled a few minutes earlier. The girl made a motion to rise and he put a heavy hand on her shoulder.

"Don't be a fool," he told her irritably. "I ain't gonna hurt you none—if you behave reasonable."

She tried to slip by him and he thrust her back.

Round the corner of the house a man had come. He spoke quickly. "Turn yer gun this way, Dug."

It was Shorty. His revolver flashed at the same instant. Doble staggered, steadied himself, and fired.

The forty-fives roared. Yellow flames and smoke spouted.

Out of the battle Shorty and Sanders came erect and uninjured. Doble was lying on the ground, his revolver

BOOKS

EDITED BY CABR.

ENTER JERRY. By Edwin Meade Robinson. The Macmillan Company.

ANOTHER addition to the long list of books about children written for grown-ups is provided by Edwin Meade Robinson's new volume, "Enter Jerry." It begins, not indeed with Jerry's birth, but with his very earliest recollections, and ends when, at 17, he starts for college. He is himself the narrator of his history, his school and factory experiences, his youthful love affairs and ambitions.

The scene is laid in a small town, which had hoped to be the county seat and been disappointed.

Jerry is a likable lad, who does all the usual boy things, skating and swimming, getting into trouble and out of it, being attracted by small girls, and so forth. No doubt many a grown man will find in Jerry's youthful experiences his own reflected. When his parents go on a trip abroad, Jerry is sent to Osborne Academy as a boarder, having formerly been there as a day pupil only.

Dr. Wareham, rector of the Episcopal Church, was head of the school. An excellent teacher, with a real gift for imparting knowledge, and a very eloquent preacher, he nevertheless thoroughly believed in corporal punishment.

And the way in which he came presently to like, and at a while ghoulishly to enjoy, the sight of the pain he inflicted is very well indicated.

It was part of his duty to prepare the boys for confirmation.

"He gave us gruesome details of mental and physical disease resulting from infractions of the moral law; he frightened one sensitive boy into hysteria, and he made some sort of psychic twist from which he never recovered."

How was playing with something he did not understand; and, in trying to build up our morals, he wrought sad havoc in the dim penetralia of our unconscious."

The book is delightfully written, and often very amusing. Jerry and his friends are real boys, not at all vicious, but with plenty of capacity for mischief-making—which they use to the fullest extent. But, besides its amusing edge, the book clearly shows the influence upon the plastic character of many insignificant-seeming events, events which make impressions never to be effaced.

CASEY-RYAN. By B. M. Bower. Little, Brown, Toronto.

This is no more than a series of highly picturesque anecdotes concerning the adventures of an Irishman with a Ford car in the wilds of the American Rockies, with no other connection than the fact that they successively happen to that philosophical, daring and loquacious personage.

Readers of the Bower output, which now consists of eight volumes, will not need to be told that these anecdotes are narrated with great vividness and humor, and introduce a large number of amusing characters.

THE BELOVED WOMAN. By Kathleen Norris. Gundy, Toronto.

Little Norma Sheridan had a mysterious about her, and people were constantly telling her their confidences about it as if they were certainties, which was hard on Norma, because they were very contradictory and always wrong.

Norma was picked out of an upper working-class family and hurried suddenly into the empty and undesirable life of the richest old family of New York, where she had to associate with people who had had "belles a la mode," which our dictionary tells us meant the "fine area," although we hardly think that that is what Mrs. Norris intended it to mean.

Somewhat we always distrust novelists who write about high society in low French.

Eventually Norma returned to her upper working-class friends—one of whom she had married in a moment of pique—and she and her husband went away to California. It is a messy tale.

smoking a foot or two from the twitching, outstretched hand.

The outlaw was dead before Shorty turned him over. A bullet had passed through the heart. Another had struck him on the temple, a third in the chest.

"We got him good," said Shorty. "It was comin' to him. I reckon you don't know that he fired the chaparral on purpose. Wanted to wipe out the Jackpot, I s'pose. Yes, Dug sure had it comin' to him."

"Yes," said Sanders.

He walked across to the corral fence, where Joyce sat huddled against the lower bars.

She lifted her head and looked at him from wan eyes out of which the life had been stricken. They stared at him dumb, amazed questioning.

Dave lifted her from the ground. "I . . . I thought you . . . were dead," she whispered.

"Not even powder-burnt."

"Is he?"

"Yes. He'll never trouble any of us again."

London's Big Annual Motor Show Proves An Unqualified Success

REDUCTIONS IN PRICES BRING MANY BUYERS

Improved Models and Better Materials Appeal To Motorists.

SALESMEN SANGUINE

Visitors To Exhibition Pleased With Way They Are Treated.

London's automobile show of 1921 was designed so that people could not resist buying and the plan has worked out.

To overcome the skepticism in the public mind as to final revisions in prices, and to introduce buying in the face of the general business depression, it was necessary to go to unusual lengths in creating buying appeal. The London Automotive Dealers' Association, forewarned with this knowledge, went far beyond the bounds of the average year's show and it has been rewarded.

Attendance at the armories ran far ahead of last year's mark while buying is also ahead of 1921's mark and compares favorably, particularly in the low and high priced field, with last year.

Eleven thousand three hundred and sixty-two was the number of paid admissions to the show yesterday. According to Mr. Kirby, show manager, this is over 3,000 more paid admissions than was registered in any single day last year.

Hesitancy has been experienced in the medium price field, ascribed in the main to speculation on the retroactive price to be announced by one of the big producers, but there are evidences of strong buying in this field seeing that this uncertainty is cleared away.

Show For Business.

Dealers say it is a "business" show in everything that word conveys. Satisfaction is expressed at the volume of sales, at the interest of attendance, and with the practically definite assurances of buying with the appearance of driving weather. London is a city which in summer is alive with motor cars. In winter a large number of its cars hibernate. The show is being held in the late stages of the hibernation period with zero weather prevalent. It is not the season when anyone here feels the urge of the road. It is the time, however, when dealers are as to what a car will be driven in the driving weather, and many a salesman at the show is treasuring a card which is as good as a sale two months from now.

The effect of price indecision has been overcome to a large extent by the introduction of special paint jobs, and specially equipped cars, which make a buying appeal that cannot be overcome by a deviation of slight sums of money in cars of other manufacture. Except where cars are to be used almost exclusively in everyday business life, there is a movement toward individuality in motor car possession which finds its best expression in the special paint and special equipped car. When it is considered that these cars mean the expenditure of $100 to $200 over the price of the standard model of similar make, it can be seen that the price appeal is losing some of its potency.

See Big Buying.

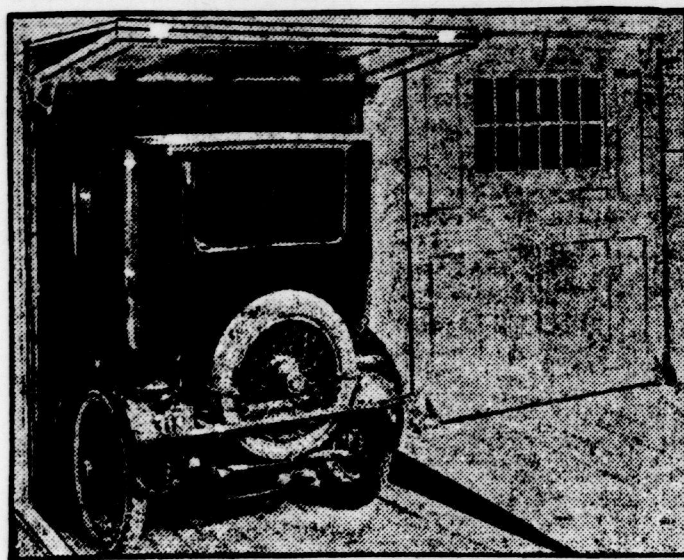

Judging from indications at the London show it may be expected that 1922 will witness a distinctive movement on the part of the city buyers toward cars, expressing personal tastes in paint treatment and refinements. There is almost a visible effort on the part of manufacturers to encourage this, particularly as to roadsters and cars for light use.

Dealers see in the attendance at the London show and glean from inquiries a fundamental buying desire which presages good business in 1922.

Tight here it may be said that the salesmen are sanguine over the prospects of good business during the year, particularly over business developing as a result of the show. There is a wholeheartedness in their treatment of a visitor, and in their interest in seeing him buy right (one of their cars), which gives the impression that dealers have been successful in keeping up their staffs to a point where genuine co-operation may be expected in the battle for business. Also there is no tendency to knock the car "you are driving now." No one could leave the show with the feeling that a real honest effort has not been made to sell them.

A number of the exhibits have their prices printed on imitation license tags and it makes an attractive presentation of the "bad news."

LIFE OF TIRES DEPENDS ON AIR AND EXERCISE

Insufficiently Inflated Tubes Suffer Most From Rough or Muddy Roads.

GREASE AFFECTS RUBBER

[BY J. L. MIDDLETON.]

"If I'm designed you lordings' slave, To satisfy his mind, Why does he not consider me And stop that awful grind? Alas, why am I subject to His cruelty or scorn? Or why has man the will and power To make his servants mourn?"

"Many and sharp the numerous cuts Inflicted in my frame! More prominent they seem to be When in the mud and rain! But I suppose they only knew What grief by me is borne— Man's inhumanity to mine— Makes countless thousands mourn!"

—With apologies to Robert Burns.

OBSERVING the number of automobiles running along our streets, you would never think for one moment that the numerous tires equipping those cars could—each and every one of them—tell a heart-rending story of how their masters have ill-used, kicked and abused them.

Did you ever stop to think how cruel masters are? Many of them never think they are "driving" these helpless creatures to an untimely end—the junk pile. Standing in a repair shop some time ago my attention was diverted to one of these poor wretches that had been rolled in, all battered and cut, to be examined by the tire doctor. As I belong to the motor world it naturally impressed me very much, and when a favorable opportunity presented itself I broke the temporary silence.

"Well, old man, had an accident?"

"Oh, no!" responded A. Tire. "Just wear and tear. So they say."

"The pen is mighty. Relate your life story—I may be able to help your brothers in misery."

"Well, I shall be glad to, if it will help some of my kin," it responded and continued as follows: "I was born last September, and arrived in London full of ambition. I was put on a nice show rack, which afforded me much pleasure, watching the different slave-masters come in and look me over. But as I was very anxious to get started to work, I envied all the other tires going out on different cars, and wondered how long it would be before I would be the lucky one."

Squeezed and Pounded.

After a while a merry looking gentleman came along and following a little argument with my boss, I was rolled from the rack into the garage, and from then my active life began. They attempted to squeeze me on the rim, but I was so stiff, having had no exercise, they could not get me on. They pounded me on the sides with a heavy hammer, leaving big bruises all over my body. For nourishment I need food. Like an underfed child, my strength diminishes if I am deprived of it. My food is the cheapest thing in the world—AIR—but my master only gave me half the amount I needed, and expected me to carry the heavy load without any kick. He was unaware that I was underfed, never having studied my requirements. My food—AIR—needed to be measured out to me, but as my master had no gauge, he merely gave me what he considered sufficient, and afterward a good kick on my body to satisfy himself that I had had enough.

"Everybody Happy."

Everybody was feeling happy and gay—excepting myself—when we set out for a town 30 miles away. I felt the load very heavy, but made up my mind I would do the very best to support it, which was really intended for my brother—Oversize. We returned at midnight, and although I looked well after the journey, I felt exhausted and my body was badly bruised with stones. The next morning found me much weaker. My master cranked up the car and drove off again without giving me any refreshments, only another kick. This continued for several weeks until I felt I must give up, but being made of the real stuff, I kept struggling along. Day and night, I carried my thoughtless master over rocky roads, regardless of the knocks and bumps which I received. These little things would never have worried me had I been well-fed—the tracks for the street cars, but I think when in the city I use them as much as the street cars do. I am not particularly fond of it, but what can I do? I am aware of the nasty cuts I get, but I cannot tell my master.

Let us turn for a moment to another page in my life story. If you wanted a house built, would you call on your tailor? Certainly not. Yet that is exactly what they do with me. For weeks I have been mis-spending my precious time on a rim entirely unsuited for me. I am of the straight wall type and the sharp edges of the clincher rim have hurt me terribly. Then cuts along my side are the result of this.

Now, my kind friend, I have related to you the most important events of my life. But you will doubtless wonder why I am in this dilapidated condition. Before you leave me I will tell you about it.

About two weeks ago while running along the country road at about twenty miles per hour a big rock suddenly loomed up in front of us. The speed we were traveling indicated to me that I could be prepared to receive a terrible jolt. On we sped. I felt like a man leaping over a precipice to certain death, but still did not flinch.

"Then I Collapsed."

Crash! The impact was terrific. My poor body shook under the terrible strain, and I felt that my day's work was done. Although I was badly injured, we kept on going.

Glass Cuts Painful. During my travels I have had a great deal more to encounter than this. If there is one thing more than another that I detest it is broken bottles. I have no objection whatever to a man drinking as much water as he can get, providing he buries the bottles some other places than on the main road. It is bad enough to undergo a surgical operation, and receive proper nursing, but to leave the cuts neglected, inviting dirt and water, is something more than I am able to tolerate. Water may be all right to drink, but it doesn't help me any.

Another thing I strongly object to is a man driving me against the curb, and knocking his wheels out of alignment, then expecting me to live the allotted span. Nothing draws my end nearer as I am compelled to "wobble" along like an intoxicated man until the limit of 500 miles is reached—and my life ekes out despairingly.

"A Little Air Helps."

Stones are really objectionable! If there were no stones there would be no roads, but they cannot be considered very annoying if my body is strengthened a little with air. You see I bounce over them without feeling hurt, as the pressure reinforces my carcass. Otherwise, I feel soft and yield to these violent blows inflicted on me, and my inner soul is unable to assist me.

An automobile would be a dangerous thing were it not equipped with brakes, but venturesome drivers rely upon them too much, and apply them with such force that I am compelled to skid over the road, tearing my skin unmercifully. Sometimes a little adjustment would relieve my troubles considerably, lengthen my days, and save a doctor's bill.

Everybody has their likes and dislikes. Nobody likes to wallow in the filth and dirt, but I am "Queen of the Earth." I love to roam over nice mud roads, or clean asphalt, but I decline to associate with oil and grease. I am contrary to the scriptural because I hate my enemies. If my master values me, and wishes me to live long upon the land, he will keep me apart from these destructive foes.

FORD DRAFT CHECK. Drafts coming up through the long opening for the Ford emergency brake can be prevented by the application of a new form of cover for this slot. The apparatus is made to slip back and forth with the brake arm so that when the brake is released and the car is moving the cover keeps air from coming through.

PERFECT CANDOR.

"These hills," explained the motorist to the heart of his heart, "are too abrupt for our 'benzene bug' to climb. Even a mountain-trained donkey couldn't make the grade—so I'm not to attempt it." And still he wondered why the girl laughed.

LATEST FEATURES MARK "LONDON SIX"

Improvements Are Result of Close Study of Auto Industry.

There are many details of refinement on the 1922 cars which are the results largely of better production methods and a putting into actual practice much of the vast amount of information obtained by the engineers of the industry during the war.

On looking over the London Six chassis at the Auto Show one cannot but be impressed with the strength of the frame, which is made of cold pressed steel, beam 7 3/4 inches deep; flange from 2 to 3 inches, with four rugged channel cross members giving strength where it is absolutely essential to have it.

Another good feature is the propeller shafts and universals—No. 1, no doping, no oiling, no squeaking, no rattling, insuring practically a level drive.

Then the springs—semi-elliptical, of full chrome vanadium steel. The extra long and practically flat rear spring gives real riding comfort.

The wheels on this fine local product are of the laminated wooden disc type, with a demountable rim, stability, resiliency, and at the same time they give the car a very dignified appearance.

Conversing with the manufacturers, they stated: "We are sanguine over the prospects of good business during the year, particularly over business developing as a result of the show. Not a prospect has left our exhibit without the feeling that a real, honest effort has been made to sell him."

CHAINS USELESS IF PUT ON WRONG

Wear Out Tires Quickly When Clamped Too Tightly.

CHAINS will not do away with all chances of skidding but they will reduce the danger to a minimum. Careful driving will do the rest.

Muddy and wet pavements during cold weather produce greatest danger of skidding. Chains, therefore, are almost indispensable for staid at such times.

If the motorist has only one chain, it should go on the left rear wheel, to avoid damage when stopping or starting at the curb. The second chain should go on the other rear wheel.

Chains put on wrong will cause considerable harm to the tires. If they are too tight they will cut into the fabric and shorten the life of the casing. They should be allowed to "creep" so as to cause even wear all around the shoe.

The chains should be put on so that the clamps are at the back. Thus they are drawn around with a whipping motion which keeps them closed. If the chain is reversed the clamps have a tendency to open.

A special repair tool and extra links should be in every motorist's equipment. Broken links may be removed on the road without necessity of taking the chain off the wheel.

As soon as the roads are dry, chains should be removed. They should be hung up and painted with a mixture of cylinder oil and kerosene to keep them from rusting.

VARY MEANING IN TERM "FULLY EQUIPPED" CAR

Many Dealers Quibble Over Types of Accessories Included in Sale.

SPECIAL LENS EXTRA

London Man Refuses Bill For Change Necessitated by Quebec Law.

Catalogues, advertisements and the statements of salesmen practically universally offer a car at a given price f. o. b. the factory, "completely equipped." A few years ago cars were sold with almost nothing on them that was not absolutely necessary to their actual running. Even windshield, tops, lamps and horns were extras. At the other extreme today, many come with power-driven pumps and clocks and some even have cigar lighters and smelling salts, which shows that there are various interpretations of what complete equipment means.

It does seem, however, that any car selling at over a thousand dollars, or at any price for that matter, should not be advertised as completely equipped, without without qualifying that statement.

A London man a few days ago bought a limousine car and was asked by the salesman if he expected to drive it over in Quebec. Answering that he did occasionally, he was advised that he could not go with the lamps at present on his car. Naturally he said he didn't want the car until it was in shape so that he could take it into Quebec, and he got it equipped with lenses that made that possible, but also with a bill for the lenses. And who will say that he was not justified in refusing to pay the bill? Certainly a dealer that would quibble over so small an item, as compared with the car cost, would be quite as short-sighted as a man selling a suit of clothes and demurring over sewing on a loose button gratis before turning it over to the customer.

It is decidedly time that dealers and manufacturers get together and see to it that cars sold comply with the laws of the provinces into which they are going, and even adjoining provinces, and arrange somehow to have it covered in their selling price. A man does not like to find, after buying a trunk or a suit case, that he has got to pay fifty cents extra for a key so that he can use it. When all of the Canadian provinces have uniform laws, and may that day be hastened in its coming, there will be no excuse for manufacturers not completely equipping their cars.

in the sense that they are legally usable the moment they are turned over to the buyer at the established price.

Higgins Shows Careless Owner He, Not the Car, Was At Fault

Voices Opinion of Man Too Lazy To Even Grease His Automobile.

BY LEN. G. SHAW.

The frown on Dick Stanton's brow deepened the further he read in the two-page letter that the mail carrier had deposited on his desk a few moments before. When he had finished the last line he held the offensive missive at arm's length for a minute and glared savagely at it. "Higgins," he called, and receiving no reply, he roared at a salesman who chanced to be nearby, "Tell Higgins I want him at once."

As district manager for one of the big automobile companies in Western Ontario, Stanton had the reputation, both in his own establishment and among his competitors, of being one of the most even-tempered of men, a reputation that appeared to be in a fair way to be hopelessly shattered. "I want you to go up to High River and straighten out that Crews-Howard automobile some way," he announced curtly, when Higgins, "trouble-shooter" for the establishment, made his appearance from the service station, where he had been ironing out the ruffled feelings of a disgruntled car owner.

"The car's in litigation now. Crews says he was handed a lemon and refuses to settle," and Howland, our dealer up there, insists that he has done everything he can, and that he won't do anything more. I think they're both wrong, but that's up to you to determine. You can go the limit, and we'll back you. But for heaven's sake get it fixed up some way. It's getting on my nerves. Now beat it."

The next morning after an all-night snow storm and a five-mile drive into the country over roads that would be counted bad in midsummer, let alone this early winter period, Higgins presented himself to Crews, with the announcement that he had come to look over the car.

"It's a fine mess you folks handed me," exploded Crews, chewing viciously at a cheap cigar, and pouring forth a torrent of abuse, as he led the way to a lean-to he had improvised beside the barn, and which did duty as a 'garage.'

Higgins gritted his teeth at the sight. His love of the motor car was as strong as that of a fancier for a good specimen of horsepower, and his gospel of horsepower was that an automobile was entitled to just as considerate treatment as the individual who drove it.

Covered With Mud.

Crews's car was covered with mud until anyone but an expert would have had difficulty in determining the make. Three chains were held to the half-deflated tires by a coating of gumbo, and to cap the climax water had run under the wheels and frozen until the wheels were imbedded in solid ice up to the rims. As he surveyed the spectacle Higgins forgot all about the bitter wind that swept through the shack, his own temperature mounting every second.

"Do you think I'm going to look that car over under such conditions?" he inquired when Crews paused in his tirade to catch his breath. "Not by a long shot. You can take it to any garage you see fit—I don't care whose it is—I'm playing no favorites—and I'll be glad to look at it. But I won't touch it here."

Crews stormed, but to no avail, and as Higgins strode off toward the car in which he had come, Crews capitulated.

"I'll have it at the Sun Garage in High River this afternoon," he called. "All right," was Higgins' response, as he drove away.

It is doubtful if a sorrier car ever trundled into the Sun Garage than that which made its appearance with Crews at the wheel. It knocked and bucked in a manner that threatened momentary dismemberment.

Higgins was on hand, and he groaned inwardly as his exploration progressed. The electric starter was coated with rust and ice and mud, until it was out of commission. The engine was frozen up, through absence of oil, and not a drop of oil on the car had ever been given a twist, although the speedometer had showed better than 2,500 miles. The oiler was on the hummer, the radiator disclosed a leak as a result of having frozen, and the tires had "mushed" along the sides from lack of air.

Voiced Opinion. With a hasty inspection completed, Higgins turned to Crews, who had been standing by voicing his opinion of the car and every one in any way

ECZEMA ON FACE AND HEAD FOR FIVE YEARS

Eczeema or salt rheum, as it is so often called, manifests itself in little round pimples which contain an extremely irritating fluid. This break and subequently a crust or scale is formed and the intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to a strong heat, is almost unbearable and relief is gladly welcomed. There is only one way to get well and no remedy like

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Take it internally and it gets at the seat of the disease in the blood and drives it out of the system.

Apply it externally and it takes out the itching, stinging and burning, and promotes healthy healing.

Mr. J. Sage, 215 Princess avenue, Vancouver, B. C., writes: "Having suffered with eczeema on the face and head for the last five years, I consulted several doctors, and tried various kinds of salves and lotions, but I derived no benefit from any of them. I did not know what to do until a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after I had used two bottles I began to get better and now after taking eight bottles I have not even a blotch on me. I feel that I cannot praise B. B. B. too highly. I hope you will make full use of this recommendation for the benefit of those who are suffering from this terrible complaint, eczeema."

The somewhat monotonous sessions of the average city police court are sometimes enlivened by a touch like the following: I can get a chauffeur's bag brought in after having run down a pedestrian.

"Did you know that if you struck this pedestrian he would be seriously injured?" the judge asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the chauffeur.

"Then why didn't you zig-zag your car and miss him?"

"He was zig-zagging himself and out-guessed me, your honor," was the answer.

DOING IT BY PROXY.
"William," said the clergyman to his new chauffeur, "do you—er—ever employ strong language?" The new man looked a trifle uneasy.

"Well, sir," he faltered, "I know most all the words and sometimes when I'm careless they do seem to get away from me before I can stop 'em."

"Ah," observed his employer, "I'm sorry, William—I'm sorry! But we will consider that at some more fitting time and place. Just now I

DOING IT BY PROXY.
"William," said the clergyman to his new chauffeur, "do you—er—ever employ strong language?" The new man looked a trifle uneasy.

"Well, sir," he faltered, "I know most all the words and sometimes when I'm careless they do seem to get away from me before I can stop 'em."

"Ah," observed his employer, "I'm sorry, William—I'm sorry! But we will consider that at some more fitting time and place. Just now I want you to go to Stickem and Cheetem and settle this bill for overhauling my car for the third time this season. And you might talk to them, William, as if it was your own bill, in a careless-like sort of way. Will you do this, William?"

SEES SOLUTION OF FARM NEEDS IN AUTO TRUCK

F. W. Fenn Urges Grain Growers To Use Motor Transportation.

REDUCES COSTS LARGELY

Claims Present Opportune Time To Supersede Tedious Wagon Trips.

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—Canadian farmers producing corn and wheat were urged to use motor truck extensively in the interests of economy by F. W. Fenn, secretary nation motor truck committee, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who addressed today the farmers' conference at the University of Toronto. He said that the farmers in the States had found that the motor truck traveled 25 per cent longer distance, made 183 per cent more round trips, carried 48 per cent more corn and 50 per cent more wheat. This work could be done at 45 and 50 per cent of the ton mile cost of wagon hauled corn and wheat.

Time for Economy.
Mr. Fenn said in part: "Present period of drastic deflation and liquidation is just the time for Canadian farmers to effect economies in their farm properties, particularly in their transportation facilities. I sincerely believe that the motor truck will be found to be the solution of the farmers' transportation problems."

"Ninety-five per cent of the farmers in the Eastern States believe that their trucks will turn out to be profitable investments. The trucks save them from one-half to two-thirds of the time required for hauling their produce and supplies to and from their farms, as compared with horses. About four-fifths of the farmers in these states state that their trucks decrease their expense for hired help. On the average they estimate that this decrease amounts to $324 a year."

"On farms up to 160 acres in size the one-ton truck seems to have a slight preference. On farms over this size the two-ton truck is greatly preferred."

Better Storage Needed.
"The individual farmer cannot

Walks To Undertakers After Taking Poison.

[Special to London Advertiser.]

GODERICH, Ont., Feb. 10.—Walking into Brophy's undertaking parlors this morning, William Johnston, aged 77 years, astonished those present when he informed them that he had deliberately taken a quantity of poison two hours previously in attempt to end his life. As he made this startling announcement, Johnston, who has been employed as a tailor here for years, collapsed the toxic effects of the deadly poison becoming more marked. Medical aid was immediately summoned, and a stomach pump was utilized in an attempt to save the life of the aged disciple of preparedness. He now lies in the hospital, and physicians declare that hopes for his recovery are slight.

alone supply the methods which are necessary to success in his business under modern conditions, as Governor Miller of New York State pointed out in one of his recent addresses. Private enterprise has got to be stimulated to provide more adequate storage facilities, which will naturally be followed by a better standardization of farm produce. Especially is it necessary that communities take this step so that markets will not become glutted, resulting in a great deal of waste.

"To the small Canadian farmer who does not feel that he requires a truck for his market work, I would suggest that he patronize a rural motor express line. In this manner he will be able to spend more time on his farm to insure greater efficiency in the supervision of his help and properties. Experience shows that breakage of crates, damage of goods and loss by theft are reduced to almost nothing by shipments in trucks."

Depends On Roads.
"The scale of charges that the farmers will have to pay depends very largely on the condition of the roads. The improvement of the country highways is a common ground on which all agricultural interests can co-operate to the end that the Canadian distribution costs may be lowered. In the state of Michigan it was discovered recently that it took twice the amount of gasoline to take a loaded truck over dirt roads as it did over improved roads."

RIDICULES U. S. PLEA FOR SLICE OF QUEBEC SOIL

Taschereau Hits Utah Senator's Proposal As Biggest Joke of Century.

KING REVEALS HIS OBJECT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(Canadian press).—Senator King of Utah, who today introduced a resolution in the United States Senate, looking to the acquisition by the United States of a slice of Canada in return for United States indorsement of the St. Lawrence waterways project, does not seriously expect that Uncle Sam will acquire added territory as a result of his move.

To a Canadian Press correspondent, in an interview tonight, Senator King admitted that he was prompted by his opposition to the whole St. Lawrence project.

The move of the Utah senator, as understood here, is intended merely to put obstacles in the way of the projected waterway, and the resolution was not presented with any serious thought that Canada could be induced to give up a rich slice of Quebec.

The resolution, it is generally stated, has practically no chance of being adopted by the senate.

It is merely a spectacular way of advancing the argument that if the United States enters the project, it will be paying half the cost of a work which will be largely outside United States territory.

RIDICULES KING PLEA.

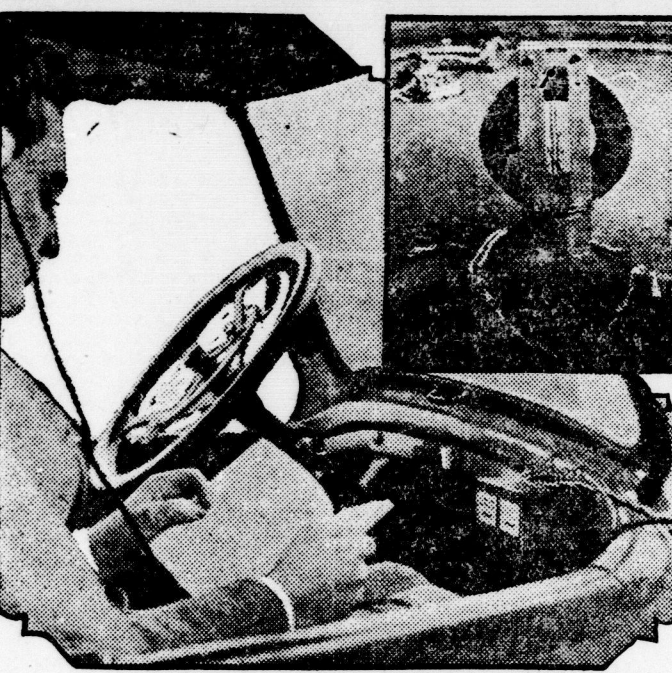

QUEBEC, Feb. 10.—"That is the biggest joke that has come over the wires in a century," said Premier Taschereau this afternoon to the Canadian Press, when he was told of the plan put forward at Washington by Senator King of Utah, for Canada to give up a portion of the province of Quebec in exchange for a partnership in the proposed St. Lawrence waterway.

40,000 WILL SEE PIUS XI CROWNED

ROME, Feb. 10.—Forty thousand tickets have already been distributed for the papal coronation ceremonies. The flood of demands continues, and Monsignor Sanz De Samper, the papal chamberlain, unable to meet all the requests for admission, has assigned a certain number of tickets to each Roman parish.

Outside the Vatican today the crowd clamoring for admittance into the chamberlain's office became so large that the Swiss guards were ordered to prohibit any further entrance into the Vatican of persons in quest of the highly-prized tickets.

May Use Wireless to Guide Autoists

RECEIVING INSTRUMENT ON DASH AND (INSET) DETECTING COIL.

YOU needn't ask the cop. Wireless will guide you.

That is, if the latest invention to direct the motorist is adopted along the highways of the Dominion of Canada.

The invention, at the automobile owner's end, consists of a receiving box on the dash connected by relay, amplifier and wire with a detecting coil above the radiator cap. A series of dots and dashes in Morse code is performed on the face of the receiving box and underneath are two arrows, pointing opposite ways.

Use of this end, however, cannot be achieved without co-operation of federal and provincial highway commissions. For transmission of the road signals would have to be under their supervision.

Wires must be strung along each highway and connected by small electric generators strong enough to set up a magnetic field along the wires. Over the wires are sent signals in Morse code—a different signal for each link of road—which would be picked up by the receiving instrument on the automobile as it goes through the magnetic field.

The box on the dash visibly records these signals. All the motorist need do to learn on what road he is to consult his code book for the signal corresponding to the one recorded.

The driver keeps his receiver open and, as he goes along his way, the changing of signals on the receiving box will tell him the various roads he is taking. The arrows will flash to tell him the direction a set route turns when he comes to a crossing or fork, and a bell will sound if he is diverted from the main road.

HAS FULL LINE OF GRAY-DORTS

S. H. Gallagher Enters Attractive Exhibit At London Motor Show.

Visitors to the motor show will be interested in the Gray Dort exhibit shown by S. H. Gallagher, the London distributor for this famous and popular made-in-Canada car.

A full line of open and closed models, touring cars, roadsters, coupes and sedans, embodying all the latest improvements, are the result of a concerted effort on the part of Gray Dort engineers to make this car second to none from the standpoint of high investment value.

The performance of the car is so consistently reliable that owners speak with pride of the fact that mechanically it fulfills every requirement on all kinds of roads, in all weathers, winter and summer, and keeps operating costs within reach of the masses. An average of 20 to 25 miles to the gallon vouches for by many owners and garage men testify that it is one of the easiest engines on consumption of oil known. Owing to the improved spring suspension and deep upholstery it rides like a divan.

The classic and graceful lines and proportions of the Gray Dort give it the air of distinction so desirable to the owner of a motor car. The exquisite body finish is visible evidence of the skill in coach craftsmanship which can only be attained by many years of experience.

Seventy years ago William Gray, father of Robert Gray, now president of the Gray Dort Motors Limited, founded a big carriage factory. Today the company operate three large plants at Chatham producing Canadian built automobiles which are a credit to the founder of the firm.

Vaudeville and Feature Film Policy Also To Be Continued—"Some Baby" Will Be Offered At Majestic.

WITH THE exception of Monday and Tuesday, next week will still see the Grand Theatre continuing its popular policy of presenting five vaudeville acts, as well as feature pictures, and the regular supplementary films which fill out a most attractive program. For Monday and Tuesday the offering is Rube Goldberg's cartoon creation, "Boob McNutt," presented in the form of a musical comedy. For the last four days of the week Tom Moore, the popular movie star, will be seen in "From the Ground Up," a film which is exceedingly entertaining.

The vaudeville bill promised for this latter part of the week is also exceptional in merit, and includes a Japanese novelty, "Artists in Mid-Air," and some splendid musical numbers.

The Majestic Theatre offers a most entertaining comedy for the coming week in "Some Baby,"

BOOB McNUTT AT GRAND.

Rube Goldberg's irresistible cartoon, "Boob McNutt," will be seen in real life at the Grand, Monday and Tuesday with special Tuesday matinee. "Boob" has been such a sensational success in the cartoon world that Mr. Goldberg was advised to transplant this famous character from the comic sheet of the newspapers to the stage. He has surrounded "Boob" with a splendid cast of comedians, singers and dances supplemented by a winsome chorus of young misses who are described by the management as "The Perfect 36 Girls." The totally entertaining book and lyrics are by John Mulgrew, remembered for his many successes, and the music is by Charles Smith, who is well known in musical comedy circles. Pretty girls, catchy melodies, stunning costumes, novel surprises and smart ensembles are among the many features of the performance.

VAUDEVILLE AT GRAND.

The vaudeville and picture program offered at the Grand these days seems to have caught the fancy of the London theatregoers. This week the theater has played to capacity business at all performances and the program, consisting of five vaudeville acts and two feature pictures has never failed to please. The bill ending today is a particularly strong one, embracing as it does such artists as Otto, Bozz and Otto, European jugglers and jesters who have appeared in some of the largest theaters in the world. Their act, as presented at the Grand Theatre, is identical with the offering which made them successful in the London music halls. The feature picture presents a new star, Marie Prevost, who appears in "A Parisian Scandal," a big six-reel picture brimming with comedy and interest. Then there is as well the perennial favorite, Charlie Chaplin, in one of his old-time pictures, "The Bank."

On Monday and Tuesday the theatre will be occupied by "Boob McNutt," a musical comedy company which has played to big business everywhere. The production is built around the Goldberg newspaper cartoon character, is said to be very funny. The company contains the ing which made them successful in famous sixteen "Sweet Sixteens," the London music halls. The feature picture presents a new star, Marie Prevost, who appears in "A Parisian Scandal," a big six-reel picture brimming with comedy and interest. DO YOU FEEL WEAK AND RUN DOWN?

In This Condition a Tonic Medicine Is Needed.

The condition of being "run down" is one that doctors do not recognize as a disease. But those who are run down in health know that it is not a fancied affliction.

The expression "run down" applied to health means a condition in which the bodily functions are enfeebled. Appetite fails, the digestion is impaired, the nerves are impoverished, the complexion becomes pale or waxy, there is no animation, but rather worry and mental depression. Fatigue is a constant symptom. No particular organ being affected, you must look for relief to the blood. As it circulates through every part of the body, any improvement in the condition of the blood is quickly felt throughout the entire system. In cases of this kind a tonic medicine is what is needed, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recognized as a valuable tonic because of their direct action on the blood, and through the blood on the nerves, giving tone to the system generally and restoring vigor. Where the system is run down the value of this medicine is shown by the statement of Mrs. Gregory J. Murphy, Lower Ship Harbor, East, N. S., who says: "About a year ago I was completely run down. I was so nervous and weak that I could scarcely do my housework and the least exertion left me breathless and tired out. A neighbor advised Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and so much good did they do me I feel quite like a different woman. I hope some other suffering woman may benefit by my experience."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be had through any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.—Advt.

TOM MOORE AT GRAND.

Commencing Wednesday and for the remaining four days of the week there will be a return to the vaudeville and picture program. Tom Moore, who has not been seen in London for some time is starred in the feature picture "From the Ground Up," which tells the story of Terrence Giluley, a witty, good-natured lad with the true Irish wit who makes a particular success of the contracting business in New York city, becomes a power and weds the girl of his choice after a series of thrilling adventures.

Buster Keaton returns in the comedy feature presenting on this occasion "In Hard Luck," a picture which has already proved most popular.

The vaudeville will be up to the usual high standard, the bill being headed by The Silverlakes, "artists in mid-air." Others on the program include "Little Allright," the first Japanese novelty act to play London for many months, Patterson and Newton, singing and dancing; Louise Mayo, songstress and pianist, and the Tivoli Trio, in a high class musical act. As will be seen the program is well balanced, offering a variety of pleasing entertainment.

"SOME BABY" AT MAJESTIC.

The management of the Majestic Theatre announces that a great treat is in store for its patrons the week of Feb. 13, when the Popular Players will present "Some Baby," one of the funniest farces ever written. They have secured this play by paying the highest royalty ever paid for any play presented at this theatre.

The plot of the play centers around the discovery of an elixir of youth—a delicious concoction far more potent than any home brew. The part of the professor who invents this marvelous liquid, was originally played by Mr. Frank Bacon, whose name for the past four years has been inseparably linked with "Lightning."

Mr. Penwarden will play the professor, and Mr. Secrest will be first assistant mirth provoker. The other members of the company, including Misses Gustin, Fox and Macdonald, Mr. Lockhart and Mr. Malone, will all have splendid parts. A new member of the cast, Miss Donna Bromette, will also appear.

"Some Baby" kept New York laughing for one solid year, and the management of the Majestic feels sure London audiences will say it is one of the best farces that has ever played the city.

Due to the big success of the "get acquainted reception" last Saturday's matinee, The Players will again personally greet their host of friends at the matinee today.

NO SUCH ANIMAL.

A prospective buyer walked into a garage and said to the proprietor: "I would like to see a first class second hand car."

The proprietor looked at him and smiled as he replied: "So would I, brother."

"Well, what happened?"

"Our auto turned turtle."

BALLANTYNE SAYS ICE BREAKER 7 YEARS OLD

Montreal, Feb. 10.—Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, ex-minister of marine, discussing the contract for a million dollar ice breaker, entered into by the late government with The Canadian Vickers Company, of this city, and cancelled by the present government, issued a statement today in which he declares that the "John D. Hazen," the icebreaker proposed to be bought in substitution of the said contract, is a second-hand seven-year-old ship which will need expensive repairs. The late government also considered the taking over of this ship, but title to her could not be proved for months, and it was considered that in view of current unemployment, a new ice-breaker should be built.

Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association, Excelsior Life Building, Toronto, Ont.

Speaking from the standpoint of the manufacturer who does a Dominion-wide business, newspaper advertising is as necessary to the successful distribution of a trade-marked piece of merchandise as food, raiment and shelter are to the well-being of the individual.

Newspaper advertising nourishes the product; it clothes it with reputation, integrity and respectability; and it protects it from the storms of competition and the inroads of goods of questionable parentage.

Nation-wide newspaper advertising is the foster-son of transportation. As the facilities for the distribution and delivery of goods increased, so did national newspaper advertising develop.

The shoe manufacturer of to-day was the village cobbler of yesterday. The manufacturer who makes thousands of good mouse-traps for the public now is the successor of the man who years ago made mouse-traps for himself and his neighbors.

But the world does not beat a pathway to the door of these manufacturers! No, they go out and "tell the world" about it through the newspapers. And the world responds, and buys.

R. W. Ashcroft/S.

ASSISTANT TO PRESIDENT.

Ames, Holden, McCready, Ltd., state a truth that is vital to the buyer—Daily Newspaper advertising "nourishes the product." A product advertised in the Daily Newspapers must be better value for the same money than one which is unadvertised. No firm can continue to advertise successfully and break this law.

Come To Church Tomorrow

"YES, I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees or by a running brook, or in a man's own house, just as well as in a church. But I also know as a matter of fact that the average man does not thus worship."

Here are a few benefits to be derived from church attendance:

"You will listen to and take part in reading some beautiful passages from the Bible. And if you are not familiar with the Bible, you have suffered loss."

"You will take part in singing some good hymns."

"You will meet and nod or speak to good neighbors. You will come away feeling a little more charitably inclined toward all the world, even toward those excessively foolish young men who regard church-going as a soft performance."

"Join in church work for the sake of showing your faith in your works."

Make your start in church service tomorrow. A fair trial of church attendance will convince you it's well worth while.

CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS BASIS OF CATHOLIC PLEA

Bishop Fallon Addresses Toronto Meeting On School Question.

TRACES GROWTH OF ACT

TORONTO, Feb. 10.—For months past the press of the province has been reflecting the renewed determination of the Roman Catholic Church to secure if possible legislative changes that will give them a larger share of corporation taxes, and the right to the establishment of separate high schools, but the campaign which has the capture of the Legislature for its objective was given its real start tonight, when His Lordship Bishop Fallon of London, speaking to a large audience at Masey Hall, stated the case for his church.

It was not as a militant leader of Roman Catholicism that he descended upon Toronto, but rather as one who came seeking for nothing better than an opportunity to reason the whole thing calmly and deliberately. "Things have changed since I was a boy," he said. "I believe there is a better spirit abroad among our non-Catholic citizens of this province, and I have perfect confidence that if our case can only reach their ears, unobscured by prejudice or by baseless opposition, we shall secure by their decision a victory in keeping with our just claims."

GIRLS! LEMONS

WHITEN HANDS

Press the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach lotion to soften, whiten, and remove rough or chapped hands. This home-made lemon lotion is far superior to glycerine and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate. Adv.

RUMORS ARREST IN DELORME SLAYING

Dispatch From Quebec Predicts Developments Next Week.

Montreal, Feb. 11.—A special dispatch from Quebec to the Montreal Gazette says: "There will be an arrest in the Delorme murder mystery in Montreal next week. So much seems clear out of the mist of speculation and gossip, wild and much foolish, which has been written from here and in Montreal."

Hon. L. A. Taschereau, prime minister and attorney-general, left for Montreal last night. His visit has nothing to do with the Delorme affair, but it is a weekly event, though quite probably provincial police authorities will communicate with him in regard to anything new which may have developed since the visit here of Coroner McMahon and provincial and city detective heads on Thursday.

That the attorney-general's department has actively intervened in the conducting of the Delorme murder investigations was made clear here last evening. What passed between Coroner McMahon, the detectives and the attorney-general is not disclosed.

Coroner McMahon reached Montreal Thursday evening. His first task in the affair will be to resume the inquest, now postponed since the following this, it is expected a warrant will be issued.

CLAIMS CANADA NEEDS INCREASED POPULATION

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 11.—(Canadian Press)—Too rapid railway development and a large war debt are the main problems confronting Canada today. G. F. Towers, superintendent of foreign trade of the Royal Bank of Canada, declared in an address before the Bankers' Association for Foreign Trade here last night. A growing population, he added, will provide the solution in both cases. The collection of roads known as the Canadian National Railways has some hard years ahead. Mr. Towers said, "until growing population, in which immigration must play an important part, gives a sound basis for operation."

Canada today was compared by Mr. Towers with the United States of 100 years ago, and a repetition of the remarkable growth that has taken place in the United States was predicted for the Dominion.

TORONTO BOXER LOSES MATCH AT CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Feb. 11.—Joe Delaney of Dayton, Ohio, was the only out-of-town boxer to be returned a winner in the final bouts of an inter-city amateur boxing tournament, which ended here last night. Delaney took down first prize in the 145-pound class. Frank Boyle of Toronto furnished the sensation of the show. He participated in three bouts and barely missed winning the 125-pound division match, principally because he was fatigued.

NOTED GAMBLER, "DOC" OWENS, DIES

New York, Feb. 11.—News reached New York today of the death at Havana, on Jan. 14, of W. J. (Doc) Owens, a notorious old-time gambler, considered one of the most expert card manipulators of his time. He fell downstairs at a hotel in the Cuban capital and died soon afterward.

Gamblers here said Owens' equal never lived. He mainly operated on the great Transatlantic liners until the steamship companies barred him from sailing. In 1908 he was reported to have won $200,000 from William Shaw of Pittsburgh, although both denied the story.

When he arrived on the Majestic from England, in 1908, the passengers presented him with a loving cup for refraining from card-playing during the voyage. He broke into the headlines at the time of the Titanic disaster, when it was reported in the press on both sides of the ocean that he had escaped in a lifeboat by disguising himself as a woman. He denied the report.

PLAN TO TOUR WEST INDIES FOR 2 MONTHS

Toronto, Feb. 11.—As a result of the preferential trade agreement recently negotiated between Canada and the West Indies, a large party of prominent Canadian manufacturers and their wives plan a two-months tour of the rich British possession with the view to studying the lines along which trade between these two parts of the Empire can be increased to the mutual advantage of both countries. Members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association believe the reciprocal trade now carried on can be greatly increased. The Ontario end of the party leaves this city tomorrow night.

OTTAWA YOUNG COUPLE MISSING AFTER FIRE

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—(Canadian Press)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tyo, a young married couple living on a farm about three miles east of Maxville, Ont., are missing following a fire which completely destroyed their home early this morning. Volunteer fire fighters called to the scene by telephone succeeded in saving the outbuildings, but a distant search of the neighborhood failed to locate the owner of the farm or his wife, who were the only occupants of the house. The meagre details reaching here this morning by telephone did not divulge the cause of the fire or the possible loss.

BELIEVES ZEY PREVOST TO BE IN NEW ORLEANS

San Francisco, Feb. 11.—Zey Prevost, missing witness in the Roscoe Arbuckle manslaughter case, for whom authorities have been searching, is believed by District Attorney Brady to be in New Orleans. Brady said information had been received by his office that she told friends she was going to the southern city. He declared a determined effort would be made to return Miss Prevost to San Francisco before the Arbuckle third trial began next month.

TO HOLD RAILROADERS' AND MINERS' MEETING

Indianapolis, Indiana, Feb. 11.—The first joint meeting of the representatives of the railwaymen's organizations and the United Mine Workers of America will be held in Chicago, February 21, according to an announcement made today by John L. Lewis, president of the miners, who called the meeting. President Lewis said the acceptance of the railroad organizations of the miners' invitation to enter a joint meeting was practically unanimous and "especially gratifying."

"It indicates that the organized railroad workers and mine workers," said a statement issued by Mr. Lewis, "have a profound appreciation of the necessity for closer cooperation and reflect a determination to utilize every proper means of protecting the interests of the men employed in these basic industries."

Lisbon, Feb. 11.—A naval officer and two sailors were killed when an oxygen tank exploded at the submarine base here yesterday.

310 Patients Now Occupy Every Available Bed in City Hospital

ON Friday night every available bed in Victoria Hospital was occupied. Superintendent Heard said there was not a room vacant, and he had to refuse applications to a number of people. Friday morning there were exactly 309 people in the hospital, and 10 more were crowded in during the day.

No epidemic is responsible for this crowding, for Dr. Downham, M. O. H., says that the present winter is the lightest in the matter of disease that he has ever experienced with the exception of one winter, when the absence of disease in the city was even more marked. This was the winter of the first "flu" outbreak. After the epidemic passed, there was little or no sickness.

Dr. Downham says that in regard to diphtheria cases, many doctors are playing safe, with the result that cases looking like diphtheria are sent to the hospital. This attitude has two things to recommend it. If the case proves to be diphtheria, the result is that the family is protected, and second, the sufferer immediately on arrival at the hospital gets anti-toxin.

INVITE LABOR LEADERS TO PRINCESS' WEDDING

London, England, Feb. 11.—A number of labor leaders and representatives of trades unions are being invited to attend the wedding of Princess Mary, in accordance with the wish of the king, who, says the Daily Mail, desires the guests to be as representative as possible of all classes. In view of the national economy and the widespread unemployment, the authorities are urging that there be no costly public illuminations and decorations on the occasion of the wedding.

URGES INCREASED TAX ON GERMAN BACHELORS

CLAIM BUSINESS CONDITIONS GOOD

Canadian Creditmen Report Gradual But Sure Improvement Being Shown.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 10.—Business conditions throughout Canada show little change from the commencement of the month, a gradual but sure improvement in all-around conditions being the feature of all reports received, states the weekly trade report of the Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association.

Montreal, Toronto and other eastern advisers say that wholesalers are now feeling the effect of increased orders from country points. Drygoods, men's and ladies' wear and hardware are among those reporting improvement in general conditions. Retail trade in the larger cities is about the same as at the start of the month. Collections are still slow. Assignments are fewer. Winnipeg wholesalers are, as a whole, optimistic as to early spring and summer conditions, finding assurance in increased orders from most parts of the Prairie Provinces. Retailers have in the larger stores been very busy this week with bonspiel and carnival visitors, it being stated that fully 30,000 visitors are in the city. Collections are slow and assignments showing a decided decrease. Retail and other Saskatchewan points report business not improving as fast as was expected, both in wholesale and retail circles. Volume of business is considered to be not quite so good as in February last year.

ONIONS SELL AT $1.50 ON MARKET

Price Almost Double That Charged Year Ago.

There was an excellent supply of nearly all products on the local market on Saturday. The country roads are in a better condition than they have been for the past two weeks, resulting in a much larger attendance. Eggs were the feature of the market, nearly every farmer having some to offer. The price remained the same, at 45c a dozen wholesale and 40c retail.

Butter was also plentiful, but no change in price was recorded. Dairy butter is quoted at 26¢@28¢ per lb. whole-sale and 40¢@42¢ retail. Creamery butter is selling at 41¢ per lb. wholesale and 45¢ retail.

There was a good demand for all varieties of green stuff. Rhubarb was plentiful, and was selling at $1.50 per dozen, or two bunches for 15c; the quality is very good. Green onions sold rapidly at 5c a bunch. Onions by the peck are selling at $1.25@1.50, nearly double what was paid the same time last year.

Potatoes had a good sale at $1.50@1.65 per bag. Apples are selling at $1.50@2.25 per bushel, and $4.50@6 per barrel, but are getting scarce. Those offered in the past month have been of poor quality. The fruit inspector for Western Ontario states that the majority of farmers do not know how to store them for the winter, and as a result many of them go bad, and what are saved are only good for cooking purposes.

There was a plentiful supply of fowl. Dressed chickens were selling at 32¢ per lb. whole and 35¢ retail. Old fowl sold at 25¢ per lb. alive and 27¢@28¢ dressed wholesale, and 30¢ retail. Old oysters are selling at $1.70 per bu., and new oysters at $1.25@1.35. There has been very little grain offered for the past two weeks.

WALL STREET REVIEW

New York, Feb. 11.—The strength of international exchanges, in which sharp reactions were quite general, and the comparative ease of domestic money rates, were factors in the more hopeful feeling which prevailed this week. Buying of rails, especially the cheaper shares, and bonds was another noteworthy development, although accumulation of these issues seemed to be founded largely on potential values and hopes of federal financial relief.

There seemed to be no material increase of public interest in the stock market, the greater part of the advance being accomplished at the expense of an over-extended short account. Weekly reviews of mercantile authorities referred to the further decline of commodity prices, but business improvement, it was added, still encountered various obstacles, notably production costs and wage adjustments. Conditions in the basic industries, particularly steel and iron, showed little change from long-standing apathy. The January tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation, for example, indicated no recovery from the low production and reduced earnings disclosed in the last quarterly report of that company.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Feb. 11.—Wall Street, 19.30 a.m.—Reactions of 1 point in Gulf States Steel and Royal Dutch featured the stock market at the opening. Other stocks and bonds, as well as motors, equipments and foods, eased fractionally. Rails alone displayed firmness. Prices steadied, however, the end of the first half hour under lead of Baldwin. The entire range of foreign exchanges forfeited more of their recent rise, sterling losing 1/32.

MONTREAL STOCKS

Montreal, Feb. 11.—Trading was dull during the first half hour this morning, and the only interesting issue was Bell Telephone, which yesterday registered a decline of 3 1/2 points to 102 1/2, after announcement of the railway board's refusal to grant the company permission to increase its rates. This morning the stock sold at 102 1/2 at 103. Brazilian was unchanged at 31 1/2.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $2.00.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and pleasant—children like it.

You can feel the take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—infamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont. —Advt.

British Committee On National Economy Makes Drastic Cuts.

WILL SAVE £75,000,000

LONDON, Feb. 10.—Drastic reductions in the personnel and the estimates for maintenance of the army, the navy and the air force of Great Britain are recommended in the long-awaited report of the committee on national economy, headed by Sir Eric Geddes, made public today. The committee, which was asked to show how £100,000,000 could be clipped from the national expenditures, accounts for £75,000,000 of this amount in this report, and will suggest further reductions of expenses in various government departments in a later report.

The committee even challenges the expenses incurred in operating the two royal yachts. It suggests that

Your Food Is Fuel

In winter, the body needs more "heat units" in the blood to keep you warm and comfortable.

These "heat units" you can best obtain in the form of starches, sugars and fats from your food.

NEAL'S Good White Bread

contains them all—so perfectly blended that they form no irritating waste, but go all to pure, good nourishment.

Eat plenty of Bread for warmth. It is your best and least expensive fuel-food.

A loaf of Bread on your table is worth more to your family's health than many bottles of cod liver oil.

one of these, subject to the king's approval, be reduced to a maintenance status during the winter months and the other one disposed of, together with the yachts used by the admiralty in the Mediterranean and on the China station.

Naval Estimates on Lavish Scale. In recommending reduction in the navy the committee expresses the opinion that the estimates for 1922-23 provided for manpower on a lavish scale, and that without interfering with the manning of the fighting ships of the navy, from capital ships to submarines, there is an excess of more than 33,000 officers and men in the navy. It asserts that the admiralty, with a smaller navy, is maintaining far larger shore establishments than it did before the war. The committee points out that it is not as yet informed as to what extent the government intends to adjust the naval estimates as a result of the Washington armament conference; nor is it informed regarding the proposed expenditure on oil stocks, oil storage and on permanent military establishments abroad. The committee expresses the opinion that large savings are possible under all three heads, but as these questions involve high policy it seeks government guidance.

Large Savings Possible. In its recommendations regarding the navy, the report states: "No account has been taken of the large savings which might result from the proposals arising out of the Washington conference, such as the discontinuance of the construction of the four new capital ships, for which the estimates of 1922-23 include £11,500,000, nor of the possible reduction in the number of capital and other ships in full or partial commission."

The committee considers the army manpower estimates also to have been made on a lavish scale, and thinks that a reduction of 50,000 officers and men could be made without reducing the forces employed by the war office on foreign service.
