AFRICA HAS SOME OF THE BEST COOKS

Lecturer Tells Some of Accomplishments of Chefs of Equatorial Region.

LONDON, July 28.—Probably few people suspect Central Africa of harboring some of the most wonderful cooks in the world, but the fact was announced by Mr. M. French Sheldon, the well-known traveller and explorer in the course of a lecture recently.

"These African people are the most wonderful and fastidious cooks in the world," said the lecturer. "Their cooking is marvellous, and they know practically every tree and plant that simulates a flavor. For instance the negroes are in no way dismayed by the lack of onions and pepper; she merely gathers the bark of a certain tree and scrapes the inner side to get the one, and searches for a particular plant, which rightly used, produces the flavor of the other, and her skill and patience in blending new flavors and concocting fresh dishes are unbounded. With these powers at her command it is scarcely to be wondered at that the wives in Central Africa are in great demand."

The possession of many wives is, in fact, a sign of wealth, and as their industry is by no means confined to the kitchen, the chief who owns 1,500 wives is really the owner of a great army of workers, who cook, wash, garden and otherwise justify their existence by performing tasks usually regarded as men's work. Marriage laws are rigorous and some faults or crimes are punished with great severity. A childless wife may find herself returned to her father, provided the gifts she brought her husband go with her. The only consolation she has is that her position in no way damages her market value as a wife if another suitor should happen to present himself. Her matrimonial experience is considered rather a desirable asset as having taught her exactly how a wife should behave.

ROPE OF PEARLS IS WORTH $300,000

Single Necklace in Same Collection is Valued at About $170,000

LONDON, July 29.—There has lately been exhibited at a court jeweler's in Bond street a striking collection of pearls. One magnificent rope is valued at no less than $300,000; while for a single pearl pear-shaped drop, perfectly symmetrical, $70,000 is asked. But probably the most exquisite article in the collection is a single necklace of gems of extraordinary hue, the matching and graduation being superb. The cost of this article is $170,000.

But the owners warn a would be purchaser that if one of the stones were lost it would be impossible to replace it with an exact duplicate. Black and pink pearls also found a place in the exhibition; whilst a passing reference must be made to a pair of button shaped earrings valued at $40,000.

One of the representatives of the firm gives a word of advice upon the preservation and treatment of pearls. Upon no account, he said, should they be locked up in a safe or other dark place for lengthy periods since such treatment soon causes them to lose their "life" and become dull.

If their fair owners find that for some reason or other they cannot wear them outside their garments they should make a point of wearing them underneath their dress, next to the skin. Constant contact with the human skin gives to the stones light, luster, gloss and sheen. The best possible way of preservation as well as to prolong their life, is to wear them always, both by night and by day.

STORY OF CREATION DEPICTED IN FILM

The greatest achievement in the simplification of Bible study since King James ordered the translation of the Bible from Latin into English, has been accomplished in the "Photo Drama of Creation" which is to be presented twice daily at the Grand Opera House at 8 and 8 o'clock, p.m., for two weeks commencing to-day.

Through the efforts of the International Bible Students' Association which has arranged this exhibition, it is now possible to study the Bible through the medium of forceful dramatic moving pictures.

Shown Without Charge.

From the time of the creation of the world down to the day of the crucifixion, and the following resurrection, science, history and Biblical teachings are harmonized and this harmonization is said to be the greatest achievement of the whole of the films.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—Francis Villon may ask in an immortal sneer: "Where are the girls of yesterday?" and Warden Hoyle may cynically say that the constancy of a woman runs but for three years and a day, but out of the past there has flickered a message from Ohio to California that tells how an affection once planted in a woman's heart never ceases to burn.

In July, 1849, Stephen T. Gage 18 years of age took Mary Stevens, 16, for a ride along the beech and maple uplands of Ashtabula, Ohio and, boy and girl together, they picked by a leaf-embowered stream. There was a spark that went with the glances of the two but fate swung their lives far apart.

A strapping six-foot-three lad, he joined the pilgrimage to the land of El Dorado, while she remained in the comparative quietude of the old Ohio home.

He went into freighting over the big Sierra divide from Hangtown (Placerville) into Nevada, and in 1856 was an assemblyman on the Know Nothing ticket to represent his country, when the "empire county of the state" in the Legislature, the legislative session of which he is now the sole survivor.

In his freighting he charged "all the traffic would bear" and he grew in influence and confidence in the transportation game. When it came time to organize the building of the great transcontinental railroad, young Gage was a factor to be reckoned with and he joined the Crocker's Stanford, Colton Huntington and the rest in carrying the project to its conclusion.

Then he became a commanding figure in the politics of California and Nevada, the confident and right hand of Stanford in carrying forward the railroads manifold politics. He made governors and judges, assessors, secretaries and controllers with a nod, and unmade them with a wink. Men

No Trading On Exchange In Toronto

TORONTO, July 29.—The committee of the Stock Exchange met again at noon and decided that the Exchange should remain closed. It will probably not do any business this week, and as Monday is an English bank holiday, not before Tuesday.

The Toronto Mining Exchange was also closed to-day, but a fair quantity of mining stock changed hands on the curb at prices around yesterday's figures.

Trading at Berlin

BERLIN, July 29.—Trading on the market as far as it occurred under the jurisdiction of the Bourse committee showed no signs of panic to-day. The prices for cash transactions were lower, but the declines were not greater than during the past two days.

The decision of the committee to arrange quotations wherever possible for the facilitation of the settlement at the end of the month, met difficulties, as quotations were not obtainable on the majority of the securities.

German and Austrian Government bonds were not quoted, while Russian 4 percents were at 79.62 compared with 80.90. Deutsche Bank was quoted at 219 as compared with 224 yesterday and other German banks were fairly steady. "Azzofion, the leading Russian bank was quoted at 180 against 186 1/2. Canadian Pacific dropped 12 points, going down to 160.

The executive of the Imperial Bank to-day decided for the present to abstain from convoking the committee to change the bank rate.

Gold for London.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Price is set off from fractions to a full point in the early afternoon on resumption of gold engagements. A total of $3,000,000 was ordered of which 12,500,000 was taken from the clearing house vaults. It is understood that the gold goes to London.

The gold movement was followed by a raise in call money rates to 5 per cent.

An interesting feature of the export movement was the sharp advance reported in the rate asked by Marine insurance companies. The rate yesterday was $1,250 for each million dollar's residence. To-day the rate was advanced to $5,000, with a slightly lower rate for shipments in American vessels.

STOCKS GO CRASH ON LOMBARD STREET AS WAR CLOUD THICKENS

Oldest Member of the Exchange Can Hardly Remember Such Panicky Times -- European Market is Completely Disorganized.

(By Special Wire to the Courier)

LONDON, July 29.—The declaration of war following the demoralization of the last few days culminated in the practical suspension of dealings most of the day on the stock exchange. Such a state of affairs could hardly be remembered by the oldest member of the house. Consols monopolized the attention in the forenoon. They opened at 71, fell to 69 1/2 and rallied to 70 1/2. Later on government brokers buying, they touched 71 1/2 and finished at 71. This had a tendency to cheer the rest of the market somewhat. Except for a few dealings in American stocks, the other sections were nominal, and sales were only effected after prolonged negotiations. The settlement was concluded with

BODY OF MISSING TAMWORTH GIRL

ed. With the story of the disappearance of Miss Yorke and Dr. Robinson still fresh in their minds, the men engaged in the removal of the furniture at once communicated with the authorities. Crown Attorney Bresden of Napanee, was told of what happened and immediately ordered a thorough investigation, instructing Dr. Wilson to supervise it.

With the two brothers of the deceased, Samuel and Edward, the search of the house was started. It was not until they reached the cellar were they given any hope of making the expected discovery. The pile of boxes and wood was soon removed and the body of the missing girl brought to light.

In no time the news spread throughout the village and the surrounding country. Superintendent of Provincial Police Rogers was notified at Toronto and at once despatched Inspector Miller to the scene. He will arrive here this evening with Crown Attorney Bresden, High Constable Van Koughnet and Corner Dr. Cowan of Napanee. An inquest will be opened, but will likely be adjourned to allow the Crown to get more evidence.

Yesterday's developments credit the story of Henry Card, who saw Miss Yorke on the night she disappeared, shortly before 10 o'clock. She was just coming from the office of Dr. Robinson and on her way home. The direction she was going in would also lead her to the home of Dr. Robinson, which is some considerable distance from the place where he had his office. Mrs. Robinson was in Kingston that night, and there was nobody at the doctor's home to say as to whether anybody came in or not that night. The fact remains, however, that the body was found in the cellar of Dr. Robinson's home, and the doctor has not returned here since his hurried departure on the 16th.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Dr. Robinson on a charge of murder.

several failures, and several other firms are believed unable to meet their obligations which raises the fear that other suspensions will be announced to-morrow. The American department was uncertain and undecided, until Wall Street opened when prices fell away and closed flat.

The discount market was disorganized, and the Bank of England again transacted a large volume of business in loans and discounts. The bank rate is confidently expected to be raised to four per cent to-morrow and possibly to five per cent in view of the critical state of affairs on the continent and the large gold exports. Paris purchased the bulk of $5,000,000 gold offered in the open market yesterday.

through a cellar window opening beneath the stairs where the fire started and the firemen soon finished the work. The fire is supposed to have started by spontaneous combustion among some oils and chemicals stored on a shelf beneath the stairs.

Bedroom Contents Destroyed

The third alarm came this morning, by telephone from 130 Cayuga street, at 9:47 where the front bedroom of the house owned and occupied by Thos. Cockburn and family had caught fire from a lighted coal oil lamp set on a box of blankets. The lamp had been burning all night by the cradle of a child and it either exploded or the wick burning down into the oil caused the blankets to catch fire. The East End firemen responded with full apparatus and the hose wagon was sent down from the Central station. The contents of the bedroom, including all the bedclothes, were destroyed, but the fire was confined to the bedroom.

GEORGE W. SULMAN HAS 13 MAJORITY

Judge Bell Gives His Decision on Disputed Ballots, Which Reduces Sulman Vote

CHATHAM, July 29.—The majority in favor of G. W. Sulman in the recent contest in West Kent was 13 votes. This is the net result of the recount which was started before Judge Bell some time ago, and which was adjourned pending a decision in the East Lambton appeal. The sittings were continued yesterday when Judge Bell gave his decision in connection with many disputed ballots. R. L. Brackin, the Liberal candidate, made a gain of five ballots, reducing the majority from 18 to 13. The dispute in connection with 162 ballots that were also marked with the poll book number in addition to having the number of ballots attached, was decided in favor of the Conservative member. It was on this that the Liberals was basing their hopes.

It is decidedly improbable that the Liberals will enter a protest and today J. A. Walker, K.C., president of the West Kent Liberal Association, stated that while in his opinion there were grounds on which a protest could be made that it was unlikely that this action would be taken.

THE EUROPEAN CRISIS

All wars have more or less of an effect upon the money markets of the world, and prices, but all records in this regard will be eclipsed should hostilities between Austria and Serbia lead to a general European conflagration.

The present situation is such as to utterly confound the critics who opposed a Canadian grant to the British navy, upon the ground that there was no emergency and no need in sight. As one Old Country speaker put it, "there is always an emergency," and developments of the last few hours have abundantly demonstrated that fact. At the present moment we have the instance of a country 134,634 square miles in extent and a population of 50,000,000, taking up arms against an adjoining country of 34,000 square miles, and 5,000,000 people. The outcome would, of course, be a foregone conclusion but for the fact that all the great powers may become involved. It may be of interest to recall the fact that Russian interest in Serbia has always been most marked. Under Turkish rule, frequent devastations took place, but in 1877, with the help of Russia, the Serbians threw off the Turkish yoke. The following year, also largely through Russian influence, her independence was recognized and territory increased under the famous Berlin treaty—that treaty with regard to which D'Israeli used the historic phrase upon his return, "Peace with honor." If the Czar and his advisers decide to back the Serbians, a war can scarcely fail to result, which will change the map of Europe.

Even the apprehension of that has already had a world wide effect. Stock prices are tumbling down like so many cards. C. P. R. alone dropping twenty points, and both the Montreal and Toronto exchanges yesterday afternoon decided to close in order to stem the sacrifice selling by European holders. Wheat, on the other hand, has commenced to soar, and so will other edibles, because in time of hostilities, agricultural pursuits are largely crippled in the countries so engaged. Putting the matter in a cold-blooded way, this may sound good to the Canadian farmer—look at the prices he received during the American civil war—but there is the countervailing circumstance that Canada's export of farm implements would also be largely affected, to the loss of her workmen. It is well known for instance that one Brantford factory ran last winter on goods destined for Russia.

For all reasons, humane, as well as practical, it is to be devoutly hoped that the trouble will be kept within a restricted area, but the outlook is certainly, at the present time, most disquieting.

A SENSATIONAL TRIAL—Madame Caillaux, wife of one of the most prominent public men in France, went to the office of Figaro, a leading Parisian paper, and shot and killed the editor. The facts of the case were not denied; could not be denied, yet a supposedly intelligent jury has found her "not guilty."

The entire proceedings constituted an absolute farce when compared with the methods of British justice. The editor sought to ruin M. Caillaux politically, by an assault upon his private character. The evidence showed that there had been a liaison between himself and existing wife before the first wife left him, and the details were just as nasty as all such entanglements always prove. There was no cross-examination, and the proceedings were conducted with such a lack of decorum that the chief justice challenged one of his associates to a duel.

As a matter of fact the whole affair was a subject for public entertainment and regarded by the populace as such, John Bull is more decorous in his court methods—as witness those awful wigs judges have to wear in the Old Land for no earthly reason that anyone has ever been able to ascertain—but the spirit of justice is well maintained, and as compared with the French variety, is decidedly more preferable.

AN ADMISSION

After talking more or less buncombe about good times under Laurier and bad times under Borden—as if with essentially the same fiscal system the individuality of one Premier could make any difference—the Toronto Globe makes this admission during the course of an editorial in today's issue:

"I see no reason why there should be any curtailment in the farmers' purchasing power this fall, except that the knowledge that business is dull may influence them to exercise more caution about fulfilling their wants. They are not asking us for any extensive advances." This statement by the Globe's staff correspondent by a bank manager in Cobourg emphasizes the evils of thinking depression, and also helps toward a more normal outlook. If everyone assumes that times are hard the result will be hard times. It is not an infrequent experience for men with fixed incomes who are benefited by the price reductions of depressions to curtail their outlays in sympathy with a general feeling that trade is depressed. It is not only a matter of duty but a piece of personal wisdom for such men to increase their purchases. A general tendency to reduce economy lessens trade, depresses industry, throws men out of work and aggravates a condition that should be relieved. The folly of going deeper into debt without prospect of means of payment intensifies the distress of the ultimate and inevitable collapse, but this is a far different matter from the keeping up of normal outlays by those in a position to sustain ordinary standards of comfort and enjoyment. It is unwise to create hard times by thinking and acting hard times."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Madame Europa may well exclaim "War are we at."

Austria apparently desires to make her neighbor a serviate.

Ireland has been bordering on civil war and the Borderers tried to help.

An exchange is running a story headed, "A marriage in Damascus." Isn't that just what a maiden lady once exclaimed to a tardy wooer.

Liberal Leader Rowell has just returned from a holiday in the Maine woods. What he doesn't know about areas of that nature isn't worth printing.

Obituary

Late George Washington Botham—The sad death occurred yesterday morning of George W. Botham, after a serious illness. The deceased has for some years been a resident of this city and had gathered around himself a large circle of friends, besides whom he leaves to mourn his demise, a wife, one daughter and three sons. The funeral which will take place to-morrow will leave Reid and Brown's undertaking parlors for burial at Scotland cemetery after services have been conducted. The interment will be of a private nature.

HAMILTON IS SIDETRACKED

Fast Train From Hamilton to Chicago Doesn't Connect Here.

Recently the Grand Trunk railway augmented its schedule between Montreal and Chicago by establishing a fast daily train between those two points. Hamilton, for some reason or other, was entirely ignored in the matter, and it was not until the meeting of late complaints after complaint has reached the offices of the board of trade for an explanation of the matter.

Secretary Brown this morning wrote a letter to C. E. Horning, district passenger agent of the G. T. R. at Toronto to request the reason of Hamilton being overlooked in the matter. The G. T. R. has been well patronized by local citizens, it was said to-day, and its latest action is looked upon as decidedly discourteous.—Hamilton Herald.

The above train stops at Brantford but then Brantford is Brantford—Null said!

WORLD'S GREATEST SHORT STORIES

NO. VIII.

The Outcasts of Poker Flat

BY BRET HARTE

PART I. A Mr. John Oakhurst, gambler, stepped into the main street of Poker Flat on the morning of the 23d of November, 1880, he was conscious of a change in its moral atmosphere since the preceding night.

Two or three men, conversing earnestly together, ceased as he approached and exchanged significant glances. There was a Sabbath still in the air, which, in a settlement unused to Sabbath influences, looked ominous.

Mr. Oakhurst's calm, handsome face betrayed all concern in these indications. Whether he was conscious of any predisposing cause was another question. "I reckon they're after somebody," he reflected, "likely it's me." He returned to his pocket the handkerchief with which he had been whipping away the red dust of Poker Flat from his neat boots and quietly discharged his mind of any further conjecture.

In point of fact, Poker Flat was "after somebody." It had lately suffered the loss of several thousand dollars, two valuable horses and a prominent citizen. It was experiencing a spasm of virtuous reaction, quite as lawless and ungovernable as any of the acts that had provoked it.

A horseman slowly ascended the trail. In the fresh, open face of the newcomer Mr. Oakhurst recognized Tom Simson, otherwise known as "the innocent" of Sandy Bar. He had met him some months before over a "little game" and had, with perfect equality, won the entire fortune amounting to some $400 of that guileless youth. After the game was finished, Mr. Oakhurst drew the youthful speculator behind the door and thus addressed him: "Tommy, you're a good little man, but you can't gamble worth a cent. Don't try it over again. He then handed him his money back and pushed him gently from the room, and so made a devoted slave of Tom Simson."

There was a remembrance of this in his boyish and enthusiastic greeting of Mr. Oakhurst. He had started, he said, to go to Poker Flat to seek his fortune. "Alone?" No, not exactly alone. In fact, a single he had run away with Piney Woods. Didn't Mr. Oakhurst remember Piney? Didn't Mr. Oakhurst remember the Temptation? They had been engaged a long time, but old Jake Woods had objected, and so they had run away and were going to Poker Flat to be married, and here they were.

And they were tired out, and how lucky it was they had found a place to camp and company. All this the innocent delivered rapidly, while Piney, a stout, comely dame of fifteen, emerged from behind the pine tree, where she had been blushing unobserved, and rode to the side of her lover.

Mr. Oakhurst seldom troubled himself with sentiment, still less with property, but he had a vague idea that the situation was not fortunate. He retained, however, his presence of mind sufficiently to kick Uncle Billy, who was about to say something, and Uncle Billy was sober enough to recognize in Mr. Oakhurst's kick a superior power that would not bear trifling. He then endeavored to dissuade Tom Simson from delaying further, but in vain. He even pointed out the fact that there was no provision, nor means of making a camp. But, unluckily, the innocent met this objection by assuring the party that he was provided with an extra mile loaded with provisions and by the discovery of a rude attempt at a loghouse near the trail. "Piney can stay with Mrs. Oakhurst," said the innocent, pointing to the Duchess, "and I can shift for myself."

Nothing but Mr. Oakhurst's admonishing foot saved Uncle Billy from bursting into a roar of laughter. As it was, he felt compelled to retire up the canyon until he could recover his gravity. There he considered the joke to the tous cliffs of naked granite sloped gently toward the crest of another pretty place that overlooked the valley. It was undoubtedly the most suitable spot for a camp had camping been advisable. But Mr. Oakhurst knew that scarcely half the journey to Sandy Bar was accomplished and the party was not equipped or provisioned for delay. This fact he pointed out to his companions early, with a philosophic commentary on the folly of "throwing up their hands before the game was played out." But they were furnished with liquor, which in this emergency stood them in place of food, fuel, rest and presence. In spite of his remonstrances it was not long before they were more or less under his influence. Uncle Billy passed rapidly from a bellicious state into one of stupor, the Duchess became maudlin and Mother Shipton snored. Mr. Oakhurst alone remained erect, leaning against a rock vainly surveying them.

Mr. Oakhurst did not drink. It interfered with a profession which required coolness, impassiveness and presence of mind and, in his own language, he "couldn't afford it." As he gazed at his recumbent companions, the loneliness begotten of his parish trade, his habits of life, his very vices for the first time seriously oppressed him. He bestowed himself in dusting his black clothes, washing his hands and face and other acts characteristic of his studiously neat habits, and for the moment forgot his annoyances. The thought of deserting his weaker and more pitiable companions never before occurred to him. Yet he could not help feeling the want of that excitement which, singularly enough, was most conducive to that calm equanimity for which he was notorious. He looked at the gloomy walls that rose 1,000 feet sheer above the circling pines around him, at the sky, ominously clouded; at the valley below, already deepening in shadow. And, doing so, suddenly he heard his own name called.

A horseman slowly ascended the trail. In the fresh, open face of the newcomer Mr. Oakhurst recognized Tom Simson, otherwise known as "the innocent" of Sandy Bar. He had met him some months before over a "little game" and had, with perfect equality, won the entire fortune amounting to some $400 of that guileless youth. After the game was finished, Mr. Oakhurst drew the youthful speculator behind the door and thus addressed him: "Tommy, you're a good little man, but you can't gamble worth a cent. Don't try it over again. He then handed him his money back and pushed him gently from the room, and so made a devoted slave of Tom Simson."

There was a remembrance of this in his boyish and enthusiastic greeting of Mr. Oakhurst. He had started, he said, to go to Poker Flat to seek his fortune. "Alone?" No, not exactly alone. In fact, a single he had run away with Piney Woods. Didn't Mr. Oakhurst remember Piney? Didn't Mr. Oakhurst remember the Temptation? They had been engaged a long time, but old Jake Woods had objected, and so they had run away and were going to Poker Flat to be married, and here they were.

And they were tired out, and how lucky it was they had found a place to camp and company. All this the innocent delivered rapidly, while Piney, a stout, comely dame of fifteen, emerged from behind the pine tree, where she had been blushing unobserved, and rode to the side of her lover.

Mr. Oakhurst seldom troubled himself with sentiment, still less with property, but he had a vague idea that the situation was not fortunate. He retained, however, his presence of mind sufficiently to kick Uncle Billy, who was about to say something, and Uncle Billy was sober enough to recognize in Mr. Oakhurst's kick a superior power that would not bear trifling. He then endeavored to dissuade Tom Simson from delaying further, but in vain. He even pointed out the fact that there was no provision, nor means of making a camp. But, unluckily, the innocent met this objection by assuring the party that he was provided with an extra mile loaded with provisions and by the discovery of a rude attempt at a loghouse near the trail. "Piney can stay with Mrs. Oakhurst," said the innocent, pointing to the Duchess, "and I can shift for myself."

Nothing but Mr. Oakhurst's admonishing foot saved Uncle Billy from bursting into a roar of laughter. As it was, he felt compelled to retire up the canyon until he could recover his gravity. There he considered the joke to the

SCROFULA AND ALL HUMORS GIVE WAY

There are many things learned from experience and observation that the older generation should impress upon the younger. Among them is the fact that scrofula and other humors are most successfully treated with Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine is a peculiar combination of remarkably effective blood-purifying and health-giving roots, herbs and salts, and has been tested for forty years. Get it today.

Mother Shipton, who, of course, knew the facts of their associate's defection, "They'll find out the truth about us all when they find out anything," he added significantly, "and there's no good frightening them now."

Tom Simson not only put all his worldly store at the disposal of Mr. Oakhurst, but seemed to enjoy the prospect of their enforced seclusion. "We'll have a good camp for a week, and then the snow'll melt, and we'll all go back together." The cheerful gaiety of the young man and Mr. Oakhurst's calm infected the others. The innocent, with the aid of pine boughs, extemporized a perch for the Duchess cabin, and the Duchess directed Piney in the rearrangement of the interior with a taste and tact that opened the blue eyes of that provincial maiden to their fullest extent. "I reckon now you're used to the things at Poker Flat," said Piney. The Duchess turned away sharply to conceal something that reddened her cheeks through its professional tint, and Mother Shipton requested Piney not to "chatter." But when Mr. Oakhurst returned from a weary search for the trail he heard the sound of happy laughter echoed from the rocks. He stopped in some alarm, and his thoughts first naturally reverted to the whisky, which he had prudently cached. "And yet it don't seem so sound like whisky," said the gambler. It was not until he caught sight of the blazing fire through the still blinding storm and the group around it that he settled to the conviction that it was "square fun."

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and NoBODY Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is very a troublesome matter.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyley's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Paris, July 22, 1914. To Rev. C. C. Purton, St. James Church.

Dear Rector:—It was with feelings of sincere regret that we, the members and adherents of St. James' Church learned of your intention to leave the parish, and we, therefore, take this opportunity of expressing in some tangible measure the love and esteem in which you are held by us.

We also feel that your removal from Paris, will not only be a distinct loss to St. James' Church (where you have labored for the past three years) so faithfully and unselfishly, and at the same time so successfully, but also to the community as a whole, in the interests of which you have always taken an active and fearless stand for all that was right and for the general betterment of mankind.

By your unvarying kindness and courtesy, you have won a large place in our hearts. As an expression of our respect and affection, we ask you to accept this address and purse of gold.

In conclusion, we trust that every happiness and prosperity may attend you and yours in your new and responsible position as first assistant in St. Paul, Cathedral, Detroit.

Laid at Rest

The Late Herbert S. Scruton. Sydenham Street Methodist church was crowded yesterday afternoon with sympathizing friends, relatives, Odd-fellows and shopmates of the late Herbert S. Scruton, who desired to pay a tribute of respect to a well-known young citizen.

Previous to the public service in the church, a private service for the family was held at the parental home, 28 Dundas St., conducted by Rev. A. I. Snyder.

The service at the church while impressive was bright and full of hope. The pastor delivered an address from the text, "Be ye also ready." Mr. Snyder stated that the deceased was ready and had given abundant evidence during his illness of a firm faith in Jesus Christ. He made it plain that often the most vigorous were the first taken and that all should be ready when the call came.

Rev. James Chapman and Rev. Mr. Holling assisted in the service. There was no congregational singing but appropriate vocal selections were given with excellent effect by the following: Duet, Misses Ariel and Hazel Huffman; solo, Mrs. W. Kempthorne of Detroit; duet, Mrs. Durand of Winchester and Mrs. E. Alderson. Mr. A. R. Knott acted as accompanist and also rendered several appropriate selections.

The pallbearers were: Messrs. Ed. Reeves and A. Snyder, from Ham and Nott Employees; H. Robertson and E. Alderson, Oddfellows; J. Cowbrough, from the choir and Russel Gowman from the Sunday school. The flower bearers were: Messrs. Beecher Bailey, Robert Cook, Lloyd Miller, William Gillespie and T. Mailing. Ald. J. W. English and Mr. J. Kilgour assisted at the church.

Among those present from a distance were: Rev. G. E. and Mrs. Gullen, Detroit; Mrs. W. Kempthorne, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Scruton, Toronto; Mr. Roland Scruton, Toronto; Mr. W. H. Cope, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Scruton, Toronto; Messrs. Bert and Frank Burdige, Toronto; Mr. Percy Dungey, Palmerston.

A wealth of floral tributes were received completely filling the front of the church, from sympathizing friends, in addition to letters and telegrams of condolence. They were as follows: Willow, the Family.

That Son-in-Law of Pa's—By Wellington

GOOD AND BAD STUFF WAS PRESENTED HERE YESTERDAY

Senators Grab Second Game of the Series by Score of 4-2.

The Brantford Red Sox having become thoroughly accustomed to take a beating were unable yesterday afternoon to break either custom or precedent and of course took another. It was Reverse 44 on the Baseball Calendar this year, and it was just like many of the previous 43 reverses. The frolic yesterday of Nelson's hirings with the Ottawa collection of Senators contained a lot of good and bad baseball. So good in fact were some of the plays that the fans wonder and keep wondering how it is that a team which comes across with such beautiful stuff can occupy the booby hatch in the Canadian League. The only explanation to the problem and an ordinary policeman could unravel it, is that the Red Sox do not believe in presenting a repertoire made up of any one particular line of attraction. Their vaudeville consists of feats of daring and skill, comedy, not much music, but a considerable amount of bone. When any of the actors make a skip they take the time to do it, when the audience is most thrilled, and when it gives the enemy, the villain, the whip hand advantage. If Dengas's De Funnies contracted the habit of presenting the one line of stuff and not mixing it up, Brantford might win a ball game some day before September 7. In her all star cast, there are too many super.

Eddie Taylor pitched another of his usual games yesterday and while Ottawa got two or three opportune hits with men on, the score should have been at best a tie. In the fourth inning Taylor got in a deep hole. With one out, Shag walked and on the hit and run play Stewart rolled an easy bounder through short. Fried having vacated his position to cover second, Shaughnessy went to third and Stewart to second. Had Fried remained stationary until the ball was hit, the play would have been an easy one on Stewart. With third and second occupied, Lage hit a slow roller to Taylor, the latter making a perfect

Story of Reverse 44

Mitchell, first man tried to bunt and Roth at third made a beautiful play on him. Mitchell went down to first a mile a minute at that.

Taylor put two over on Rogers, then made him hit at a beautiful drop, striking him out. Smykal went out the same way, Taylor showing beautiful stuff.

Long got a beautiful three base hit over Rogers' head to start Brantford's first. Rogers was playing in close and the hit was a clean up call. Nelson had two strikes called on him and struck out on the third one. Cosma got a nice double over third base, scoring Long. In the meantime Shag did a lot of crabbing from centre. Dudley was out Smykal to Dolan. With Cosma on third, Roth grounded out.

After drawing three and two in Ottawa's second, Shag hit a nice bounder which Fried gobbled up. Stewart hit a nice grounder to second and was an easy out. Lage was also out, Nelson to Cosma.

Barrett started Brantford's second by popping an easy fly to Nil. Fried was safe on Mitchell's boot, the crowd enjoying it. La Croix struck out but Fried stole second. Taylor struck out, retiring the side.

Dolan got a grounder past third to start Ottawa's third. Nil singled to centre and Shag crabb'd Dolan for not going to third. Taylor made a great fielding play on Peterson's bunt and forced Dolan at third. Barrett made a wonderful one hand catch off second for a double but threw wild. Rogers was out, Fried to Cosma.

The fielding the Brantford team pulled off in the third inning was the smartest seen on the local lot this year. Two men were on bases with no one out and yet they didn't advance.

After Long struck out in Brantford's third, Nelson walked and went out stealing. Cosma walked and when Smykal struck out to start Ottawa's fourth, Shag pulled a walk, and went to third on the hit and run play. Stewart hitting through short, Shaughnessy was safe when LaCroix dropped Taylor's throw. Stewart scored on Dolan's sacrifice fly to Long. Lage was out stealing.

LaCroix's error in Ottawa's fourth was practically responsible for two runs. Had he held the ball, it would have made it the second out. Dolan next man up filed to Long.

Dudley started the Brantford end of the fourth very auspiciously. He smashed one over first base, the ball rolling clean to the score board. What happened afterwards to Dudley was a shame. He failed to come in on Roth's bunt, and when Barrett filed to Rogers, he left third base before the ball was caught thus making a double play easy.

In the fifth the Senators were disposed of in one, two, three order. Roth making a nice catch off third.

Rabbit Fried got a base on balls to start Brantford's fifth and was sacrificed by LaCroix. He went to third on Taylor's infield out. The score was tied when Long beat out a hit to short. Nelson was safe on Nil's error. Cosma then fouled out to Rogers. Both Mitchell and Nil threw inaccurately to first.

Rogers started Ottawa's sixth with a single over second. Smykal's effort to bunt was a pop fly to Taylor. Shag walked but it looked like a strike out. At this stage Shag did a lot of crabbing to Eddie Taylor, calling the Brantford pitcher all sorts of names. A wild pitch advanced both runners.

Bone and Ivory

Fans have written this department letters asking the Courier to knock the Brantford team. The letters previously have been squelched because it was the opinion of some and the hope of many that better days were coming. However, the time has come for the anvil chorus and with to-day's contribution in our letter box we are willing to become Honorary members of the anvil brigade until such time as there is room for at least a little bit of confidence in the champions who are now in entire possession of sub cellar of the Canadian League.

Here is what one fan writes us to-day:

Sporting Editor, Courier,
Sir—

Early this year over 3000 fans paid their good money to see Brantford play the opening game. On that day they got their money's worth, but is that any reason why they should be hoodwinked into supporting day in and day out such a bunch of false alarms as have been paraded before them in weeks past? I think not!

For two days this week Manager Deneau has kept religiously under cover. He has not been seen on the coaching line. When the visiting team forged ahead the home team quit cold. There is as much fight in the Red Sox as in a collection of Indian cigar signs. There are some exceptions on the team but the rule is to accept defeat with the stoicism of those who are used to it. Why can't the Brantford team fight and make a noise any way as if they meant business?

Every fan, of course, has his choice of players. The writer can see where Brantford gained but little in the trade for Ivers. The work of Roth and LaCroix is the real handicap to the club. Roth can cover as much ground as an old woman while LaCroix's system seems full of bone. In fact, such ivory headed base running by an experienced player has seldom been witnessed in the Canadian League as that displayed by the Brantford catcher yesterday. Dudley who was secured from Hamilton also gave an exhibition of ivory hard to beat.

The writer is one who has faith in Deneau as much as anybody. The team has had its share of bad luck but it can never win games with such a lay-down spirit as in yesterday's contest. Changes have been promised every week with the same old result. If the team cannot win with such pitching as that served up yesterday it can never win.

Yours Sincerely,
East Ward Senator

Saints Took Sweet Revenge

ST. THOMAS, July 29.—The Saints took sweet revenge out of the Hamilton Athletics here yesterday and gave the finest exhibition of clouting witnessed at Pinafore park in many a moon. With the score standing 2 and 2, when the locals went in for their seventh, they took a real fancy to Shears's offerings, and pounded him all over the lot, collecting nine runs before the side was retired. The Saints got a two run lead in the first. Craven singled, Hadley doubled, and both scored on Kading's rap to right. The visitors tied it up in the sixth. Shears drew a ase on balls. Cunningham was safe on Hadley's error, and Corns knocked a single to right, scoring Shears and Cunningham.

The seventh was opened by ncker bargin got a triple. Reilly got a hit on McGroarty's fumble, and Kopp popped out. Craven was safe on a fielder's choice. Inker scoring. Hadley drew a pass, filling the bases. Kading scored on Kading's rap to right. The Craven men in the seventh, when 7 hits for a total of fourteen bases were made, and a sacrifice fly.

In the eighth they got another, making it an even dozen. Hadley doubled and Kading was safe when McGroarty tried to get Hadley going to third. McNeill hit into a double play, Hadley scoring. Perhaps a Canadian League record was established by the Craven men in the seventh, when 7 hits for a total of fourteen bases were made, and a sacrifice fly.

Erie Wallops Kockneys Again

ERIE, July 29.—Erie triumphed over London in the third game of the series yesterday by hitting Beebe hard and opportunely. The Tecumsehs hit Close hard, but fast fielding behind him, combined with his tightness in pinches, enabled the Yanks to pull out ahead, 9 to 2. Both London runs were lucky. In the third Whitcraft was safe when the wind blew his high fly away from Scott. Dunn was safe on McNeill's error and Beebe scored on Bierbauer's double to left. Dunn and Biery were stranded when Lamy went to second. A base on balls to Lamy, followed by an infield out, and Mullin's hot single to right, sent their last tally over in the eighth. Cooper was the bright star of the day, with the stick. In four trips to the plate doubles which sent three runners over, and a single to right, scoring another. He won a diamond ring on his single, by hitting a sign in the fence. London infield went to pieces in the sixth when Erie scored three runs after two were out. Beebe helped matters by giving a base on balls and making a wild throw to first. With the bases full in this inning, Cooper doubled. He also started trouble for himself in the ninth by hitting McNeill after passing Gygl. This was followed by three hits, including a double, which allowed four runs over the plate. Both teams played fast ball with the exception of London's sixth inning. The Yanks played in real championship form, their only errors being McNeill's efforts to hurry two plays. Schaeffer reported for duty, and was on the coaching line in uniform. Harris's catch of Dunn's fly to the fence featured.

Unfinished Game Played Off To-night

The Scots and Tutela meet to-night to finish their league game, which was left unfinished when the spectator refused to leave the field of play two weeks ago. Should the Scots win it will be the first defeat sustained by Tutela this season.

Duffs Team to meet.

All signed players of the Dufferin Rifles football club are requested to report at the Armouries at 8 p.m. sharp to-night.

Beavers Lose A Close One

PETERBORO, July 29.—The Petes and Beavers put up another good game yesterday with the locals on the long end of a 2 to 1 score. It was a battle between Sterling and Roberts, and the fielding of the teams. Each pitcher displayed a lot of stuff and the infielders showed some snappy work as did the outfield. The ball was rapped sharply on numerous occasions, but great work minimized the score. Only in the innings in which scores

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony
By LEONA DALRYMPLE

Author of the new novel "Diane of the Green Vase" awarded a prize of $50,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as Judges.

No. 120
Dad's Great Gift.

MARY was a spark of expectancy at our Christmas breakfast. "Peter," she said, "I'm simply dying to know what you have for me."

All this pretty display of delightful ignorance in face of the fact that Mary had, at varying intervals, mentioned, very concisely the things she wanted. I may say right here they were every one of them, things I couldn't afford.

"Well," I began, "I don't have a diamond necklace, and I don't have a diamond ring. It's a sensible gift."

"Why be sensible on Christmas?" pouted Mary.

"Why, indeed?" I asked. "But I notice just the same that I usually get socks and slippers and tea, and exceedingly sensible things of that sort."

"Nobody knows what to give a man," said Mary petulantly, and she colored guiltily. I thought,

"If women would spend one-half the time thinking up some desirable gift for the men of the family that the men spend thinking up things for the women, the sock and the slipper would fall off considerably at Christmas."

"Hum!" said Mary, "that sounds very well, Peter, but men don't do their own Christmas thinking. They ask some woman to do it for them. And women can always think better for women."

I glanced over the array of mail at my plate. It was chiefly Christmas cards and Christmas greetings.

"I thoroughly approve of this card stunt," I said carelessly to my wife. "You can let your friends know that you think of them, and it's much better than well-wish cushions, for instance."

"That," said Mary, "is just as you look at it."

Which was one of Mary's speeches that doesn't mean anything at all. She has a lot of them that fill in various conversational places and don't make anybody think.

I picked up a letter addressed to me in Dad's handwriting. Opening it I found that it contained a letter written by mother and signed by mother and dad.

"Son, dear," began mother's letter, and somehow that way of beginning always rings so true that I get a choke in my throat and a warm feeling around my heart.

"Dad and I want to give you for Christmas what you need most, and after a great deal of talking here nights by the fire—and, son, dear, we do miss you still when the log glows, and Dad's growling and chatting alternately in his easy chair—we want you to accept the $25 that Dad lent you as a Christmas gift with the love of both of us. Dad says you'd get it some day—what little we have—and, therefore, we like to see you have some of it now when you need it. Don't you see some time through the day and wish us Merry Christmas."

And, as I read, I sat quite still, choking back a flood of feeling. Mary seemed very far away from me. I couldn't tell her. I didn't want to tell her. She seemed apart from the moment. There is only one big love in the world that counts, and that is the mother's love for her child. Every other love is sticky and queer beside it.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER—THEN AND NOW * * * * * By Michelson

Mother and Daughter Fifty Years Ago.

Mother and Daughter Today.

AWAY back in the last century—Mother was an elderly person at forty, and being an elderly person she settled down into an elderly person's place and wore an elderly person's clothes. It was easy to know by her bonnet and gown that she was a settled person—just Mother. To Daughter was left the privileges and responsibilities of being fashionable and picturesque. There wasn't the slightest chance in the world that you wouldn't know which was which, even when you couldn't see their faces.

NOWADAYS it is quite different. There are no elderly feminine persons today—this side of seventy. The older Mother grows today, the greater the need for combatting facial signs of age by the aid of other outward signs. Mother takes a lot of trouble to keep her youthful figure, and feels discreet enough to take chances on sensational clothes that Daughter is far too young to risk. Probably it is Daughter who is demure. This is MOTHER'S century. And isn't she charming?

The Short Cut to Beauty By the Perspiration Route

By LUCREZIA BORI

Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York.

Special arrangements have been made with Senorita Lucrezia Bori, the famous prima donna soprano, who has created a wonderful impression in Europe and New York on account of her remarkable beauty and artistic attainment, to write for this paper a series of articles on beauty. There is probably no authority her equal in giving the newest and most approved methods of attaining and preserving the divine radiance of woman.

If you would be beautiful you must perspire. You never perspire even on the hottest day in summer. I heard a girl say the other day, and I felt like saying: "You look it, my dear, and you will do well if you set yourself about proper perspiration right away. Don't boast about it."

BORI boast about it.

An expert histologist and into all the details of telling your body is formed, and how much work the skin should do to rid the body of effete matter. I am going to take the word of a dermatologist who says there are 25 million of pores in the skin of the body, and when the pores do their proper work they discharge two pounds of waste matter every day. Perspiration is the chief aid in this important work. Healthy, open pores will perspire. If you don't perspire, something is wrong with your system. It is clogged. You need medical attention.

Value of Exercise.

Bathing is the first step toward starting perspiration. Exercise is next. Walk, run, play tennis, golf, hand ball, skip rope, roll, do something in the form of energetic exercise until you start the glands and the pores of your body working. Hot baths, with some softening agent in the water and good soap, will greatly help. The warm bath should follow exercise, and a cooler shower and brisk rub-down complete the treatment. You need never expect a good complexion, girls, unless you perspire.

A girl wrote me that she had tried all the advice of her friends and still her hands are red. I would advise her to see her physician. Her circulation may be wrong. Outward applications will not cure until inward causes are removed.

"What perfume do you think is most pleasant?" writes another girl. Perfumes should suit the personality of the user if one is very fastidious. I think the most delightful perfume is that of absolute cleanliness, and, perhaps, the faintest suggestion of violet or orris. Heavy perfumes are bad enough any time. They are unendurable in summer.

Good Hair Tonic.

"I am losing my hair," writes "Madge of Oregon," and wants to know if this is the proper time for one to lose her hair.

No time is proper for one to lose hair, Madge. By nature we are supposed to keep our hair. Try a shampoo in tar soap or an egg beaten in water, and be sure the hair is thoroughly cleansed and rinsed. Then rub in a pomatum made of three ounces of white vasoline, half an ounce of sweet almond oil, and three-quarters drachms of gallic acid and a few drops of oil of lavender. This will stop the hair falling and encourage new growth.

"What cold cream do you advise?" asks J. K. who wants to know. I cannot give names. Here is a good cold cream, and you can make it for yourself.

Three ounces almond oil, one ounce of lanoline, five drachms each of white wax and spermaceti, one drachm of oil of bitter almonds, and add the witch hazel and elder flower water, mixing well.

The wax and oils in a double boiler and add the witch hazel and elder flower water, mixing well.

It is one of the best creams for skin and summer irritations of the skin that I know.

Masterpieces of the Cuisine

A Favorite Recipe of E. Panchard

Chef of the Hotel McAlpin, New York

Ramp of Beef a la Mode.

THE making of delicious dishes is not a mystery, it is not a secret, it is not a trick, rather it is a simple test of patience and of thought.

You can prepare dishes as pleasing as the greatest chef can make if you will only give to your task a little time and consideration. All the ingredients that the chef uses are at your command, and all that you need do is to give to your kitchen the study and time that he gives to his.

Never save on quality when you buy for the table, but study how you can make what you buy go a long way. When you refuse to give your table serious study, tossing together your meals with all possible speed, how can you hope to economize? Out of the scraps that you waste a chef would make a feast to delight a king.

The following dish takes time to prepare, but I offer it to you exactly as it is made by me. I hope that the time spent in preparing it will be repaid by your pleasure in eating it.

Two split calf's feet which are blanched, a bunch of parsley tied up with some celery, thyme and bay leaves; one whole pepper, two carrots, two onions and some garlic. Then add the brandy which was left in the bowl, let it come to a boil, cover and put it in the oven to simmer for two hours, or until well done.

Drain the meat. And strain the gravy. When nearly cold cut into slices and spread over an oval dish, range round some braised carrots, glazed onions, the calf's feet boned and cut in small pieces, and some green peas; pour the gravy over it and keep cool in an ice box until set like a jelly.

For this dish use a piece of beef prepared with six pounds of ramp. Lard it with fat pork, and season well with salt, pepper, nutmeg and chopped parsley. Then place the meat in an earthen bowl with sliced carrots and onions, pour over it one-half pint of brandy, and let it macerate for one day in a cool place, turning it over frequently. Drain and dry the surface.

Put it in a sauceman with some fat, roast it until brown, add a pint of white wine and enough beef broth to cover the meat. Add some bones and

Secrets of Health and Happiness. How Your Nerves Work By Own Electric Power

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

MOST biologists and physiologists claim that a distinguishing feature of life is the irritability of living tissues. If this were not true animals and plants could not grow, adapt themselves or survive and reproduce offspring.

Irritability of this nature does not in any way partake of the popular meaning of this word. It has nothing to do with petulant ill humor and huffiness.

When any living thing takes food, avoids poison, or otherwise maintains a definite equilibrium with its surroundings, it has a normal, healthy irritability. Brutes as well as vegetables, man no less than animals, must change eternally, and so alter their activities as to preserve a peaceful, progressive balance between their own internal mechanism and the outside surroundings.

A tonic or a stimulant is associated in most opinions with drugs and medications. That is to say, most persons think of alcohol, coffee, broths, tea and pharmaceuticals such as strychnine, as "tonics" and "stimulants." Yet many of these, such as whiskey, wine and beer are so far from being stimulants that they are poisonous sedatives.

There is, however, an easily ascertainable electric current—"bioelectric action," as it is termed—associated with a nerve in action. In fine, a nerve in tone and irritated is, more or less, the same as a copper wire with electricity flowing through it. This electrical condition in living tissues, more particularly the nerves, is the essential peculiarity that accounts for its self extending impulse or "message."

How Nerves Work.

The thing which begins your body to action, which moves your muscles, spins your brain and sets your nerves a tingle, is an electrical charge due to a sudden fall in the electric power at the skin or outside portion of the nerve. This difference in electric "potential" between the outer and the innermost parts of the nerve, causes the message hastily to travel along the nerve fiber.

This explains how a ray of light is carried to the other tissues; how movements of the air are finally "heard"; how a pinch is felt; how heat, cold, pain, taste, smell, movement and the other things are registered in your common sense.

ADVICE to GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a girl of almost 18. I read the letter in today's paper and perhaps I, too, have made a mistake. I am engaged to a young man, 25, and am to be married this fall. I fancied I was too young, but as he is a bachelor with no one to help him in any way, living in a strange place, I look pity on him.

He has been keeping company with me for almost two years, and I have found no fault of any account in him. And he says the same of me.

Do you think it would be wiser and better for us both to wait a couple of years under the circumstances? My father and mother consent.

Now please tell me what you think about it.

BLUE EYES

WHY you funny little girl, you whatever is the matter with you? You have a sweetheart you love truly, and he loves you the same. What in the world do you want to go around hunting for some excuse to be miserable for?

Here a bachelor, alone in a strange place; he needs you and you need him, and your father and mother consent. What more do you want in the name of love and all love's puzzles?

Do you want him to take to drink so you'll have to marry him?—to save your?—Must he rob a bank to get you to be his wife—on the day he is sentenced to the penitentiary—like the heroine of your favorite book?

What or what do you want, Blue Eyes, and why do you want it? You've found a pearl in the road—a pearl of great price. Don't throw it into the grass just to have the fun of hunting for it again. You might not find it this time.

If you have the true love of a good man, be thankful for it, and give him your love and make him happy—and whither, Blue Eyes, a few "blue eyes" stories just now—and a little more sewing on the pretty things you're going to wear at your wedding.

You ask your mother if that isn't a good prescription.

Miss Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper, and will reply to them in these columns. They should be addressed to her, care of this office.

PASTOR HAD BEER AND WAS CHUMMY WITH BARTENDERS

Rev. Dr. Short and Members of Church Disagreed on Prohibition.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., July 28.—A minister of the Gospel who while in charge of a pastorate was also an honorary member and regular attendant at the meetings of a bartenders' union, who has frequented barrooms in New York, Chicago and elsewhere, who refused to allow in his pulpit a speaker of the Anti-Saloon League, who gave up a $3,000 living rather than recant his declaration that temperance by legal restriction is a failure—these are the high lights in the ministerial career of the Rev. Wallace M. Short, for nearly five years pastor of the First Congregational Church of Sioux City.

When the deacons of Dr. Short's church protested to him against his slumming activities, he said: "I would rather be a tramp and hold the common touch than be shut out from humanity in any select circle."

When they urged him to alter his views on the saloon question, he replied: "Almighty God created me, and I am responsible to Him. When any man seeks to control my actions and my conscience, I hit him between the eyes, and hit hard."

That prohibition by law of the sale of liquor is not a successful temperance measure, and that the saloon is not the proper point of attack for the temperance force is the conviction of Dr. Short.

WALRUS A VICTIM OF HIS GLUTTONY

Ephraim, at Zoological Park Literally Ate Himself to Death—Would Sleep With Head in Pan.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Ephraim, the huge walrus of the New York Zoological Park, afflicted with a multitude of hookworms, died of sheer laziness, superinduced by the most voracious appetite ever possessed by any animal.

He was caught near Etah, Greenland, by Paul Rainey, and was presented to the park four years ago. At that time he weighed 149 pounds but he began eating his way to an early death on the day he arrived. Eating was a continuous performance, with Ephraim, both awake and asleep, until he became so fat that it pained him to move.

He weighed 500 pounds on the day of his death. In the last four months his weight increased at the rate of half a pound a day.

He was possibly the most expensive animal on exhibition at the park. He ate forty pounds of clam meat, and other items of expense were the labor of preparing the food, the frequent cleaning of his tank and adding sea salt to the water, so that the cost of keeping Ephraim was equal to that of two large elephants.

Of late the walrus never attempted to move away from the pan of clam meat upon which he fed. Unless it was kept continually full he raised a howl which sent all the other animals into throes of nervous excitement. He frequently went to sleep with his paws in the feeding pan.

"DUCK WORSHIPPERS" DINE ON KING'S DISH

Famous Gourmet Discovers Lost Recipe for "Dodine de Canard."

LONDON July 28.—A dinner of the "Dodineurs" or Duck Worshippers, took place at the Cafe Monico, Piccadilly, the other night. It was given to celebrate the discovery by M. Thomas Gringoire, the poet-president of the "Ligue des Gourmets" of the famous recipe known as the "dodine de canard," invented by the chief to Louis X., King of France, just seven hundred years ago. The delicacy occupied the place of honor in the menu.

The discovery of the "dodine" is almost as great an event to the gourmand as any Egyptian papyrus is to an archaeologist. The dish, in its day, was famous. Manarchs and great nobles revelled in it. Unfortunately, the chef administered an overdose of cayenne to his royal master and the recipe was lost.

M. Gringoire, rumaging the other day among dusty relics in the British Museum, came across it by merest accident. The tender duckling was boiled in old wine of Suresnes, flavored with rare cognac. Next it was steeped in the fragrance of shallots, cooled and blended with the delicate savour of truffles and mushrooms.

French Criminal Procedure As Compared With America's

NEW YORK, July 29.—Judge Edward Swann of the Court of General Sessions, who has made a study of the trial of Mme. Caillaux for the shooting of M. Calmette, editor of Le Figaro, is bringing into relief, as perhaps no other case has done, the differences between the French and the American systems of administering the criminal law. The newspaper accounts of the trial are emphasizing these differences.

"To the American lawyer and the American public who have followed the development of the trial," he said, "there are many points of difference between the French system and ours. Some of these appeal to us as being excellent and others cause wonder and amazement. The rapidity and dispatch with which the French Court of Assize selected the jury in this case excites our admiration, but it would appear that the rules of evidence have gone to just the opposite extreme to those which obtain on this side of the Atlantic.

"While the rules of evidence with us are too narrow and exclusive it would appear that the French system goes to extremes and permits the witness to express his or her opinion in regard to facts at issue, to testify to what other persons, not present, have told them, and the brother of the deceased was permitted to testify to what the deceased would have done had the defendant made a request upon him, thereby judging the mind of his dead brother as affected by a possible state of facts.

"It would seem from the request made to the witness Mme. Gueydan, the first wife of Caillaux, to produce letters in her possession, and her reply that she would produce them provided the Court would allow all or none of them to be read, would indicate that the production of the letters was entirely at the option of the witness.

"The rules of evidence that formerly obtained in France were abolished of the twelve are incapacitated. Under the French system the investigating Magistrate and the judges presiding are there for the purpose of getting the facts, whatever their effect may be, whereas under the American system the City Magistrate and the Judge presiding at the trial perform their functions somewhat in the nature of a presiding officer to rule in the admission or exclusion of evidence and to see that the case is conducted according to the established court procedure. He is an attentive listener, but not an investigator.

"Again the first witness under the French system is the defendant, who is usually in a position to know more about the facts in the case than any other person. This is known as the 'inquisitorial' method of trying a case, and I believe it has been abolished in Germany or Austria, and I doubt that it maintains in any other country except France, and possibly Spain. I think that under the new Code of Criminal Procedure just adopted this year in Italy the 'inquisitorial' method was abolished there.

"It would appear in France that while the questions of fact are nominally for the jury to determine, nevertheless the audience in the courtroom is so responsive to every sentiment and emotion caused by a piece of evidence or argument, even the actions of counsel, that it performs more than the functions of the 'Greek chorus' in a classic drama, and the jury, being only human, must be swayed one way or another under the influence of the 'psychology of the crowd,' and there often results what we may be excused for calling 'a recall of the verdict' before it is rendered. It will appear that the jury, even in this important case, are allowed to go to their homes at night and to read the newspapers, and it does not appear that they are forbidden to discuss the facts in the case while absent from the courtroom.

"In America the counsel for both sides sum up at the end of the case when all the evidence is in, but in France counsel debate the effect and discuss the evidence of each witness as it is given. In America, counsel cross-question each witness as the testimony is given. In France the cross-questioning can only be conducted by the presiding judge. The French system, even more than ours, allows wonderful latitude for the display of skill of counsel in deflecting the issues from the true issue of the guilt or innocence of the accused. The report of the first day of the trial states that M. Labori, for the defense, was closely watching for an opportunity to convert the trial into a debate upon the rival political questions of the day, with the intent, of course, of obscuring the issue by an appeal to partisan prejudices, in order that the jury might lose sight of the one issue of the case—that is, did Mme. Caillaux intentionally kill M. Calmette without legal justification or excuse?"

Mr. Archibald Blue, Chief Officer of Census and Statistics for Canada, died at his home in Ottawa, in his seventy-fifth year.

NEW BATHING SUITS CAUSE A COMMOTION

Colors Range From Billiard Table Green to Tango Orange and Green.

PARIS, July 28.—Quite a commotion has arisen over preparing the pretty bathing dresses for Dieppe, Trouville and other seaside resorts this summer. They will resemble the Russian ballet costumes.

Navy blue is the color of these bathing costumes, but dead billiard table green, canary yellow, beetroot color, old blue, lilac, tango orange and vermilion are also shades which will be seen in the newest bathing dresses.

In materials serge is being displaced by alpaca, which glistens prettily when wet, but satin is "le grand chic" as to style. While many university costumes will be worn by lady bathers, the smart Parisiennes are favoring transitional model. The old-fashioned skirt is replaced by a natty little trouserette, laced up the side and attached to a close fitting corseage cut decollete and laced on the shoulder.

The newest bathing shoes take the form of "bathing baskets" laced at the ankle and matching the costume in color.

Bathing caps will be made of a new rubber material which looks like shot taffetas and will be modeled on all kinds of national head dresses, such as Norwegian and Finnish bonnets and Albanian and Cuscan caps.

Some caps have strings tied under the chin and argettes are seen on some. Even the Hindoo "le grand chic" as a surprise in bathing headgear.

In Peignors the grand novelty is a bathing cape resembling the capes now fashionable for walking dress, with cross strips and Medici collars.

The fact that Jack Johnson had reached the age of 36 when he risked his title against Frank Moran had led to some interesting discussion regarding the ages at which previous heavyweight champions lost their ring laurels.

John L. Sullivan was 34 years old when defeated by James J. Corbett at New Orleans in 1892. He held the title for ten years, but Corbett was less fortunate for he retired the championship but five years, being 31 years old when Bob Fitzsimmons won at Carson City in 1897.

Fitzsimmons' tenure of championship was even less for at the age of 37 he was knocked out by Jim Jeffries at Coney Island in 1899, after holding the title for two years and three months. Jeffries who met defeat at the hands of Johnson at Rena

70 Columns FORTY-FOURTH YEAR Situation War as C NATIONS P GENERAL Russia is Getting Army Ready and So is Germany. Britain Gets Share of the Line Assailed Together. (By Special Wire to The Courier) LONDON, July 30.—While Austro-Hungarian and Serbian troops fighting the opening stages of war on Serbian territory to-day, peace statesmen and rulers were gaged in what they regarded as almost hopeless task of trying to a general clash of the millions of opposing the armies of the great powers. Sir Edward Grey, a central figure in the controversy owing to his efforts to keep the powers of the Triple Alliance and the Triple Entente from flying at each others throats, not able to give any cheering when he spoke about the crisis to House of Commons. The British sign secretary said: "I regret that cannot say the situation is less grave than it was yesterday. The outstanding facts are the same. Austria-Hungary has ordered a partial mobilization of its troops. This has not hitherto corresponding steps being taken by the other powers so far as our information goes. "We continue to pursue our great object of preserving the peace and for this purpose we are keeping in close touch with the powers, in such keeping in touch have, I am glad to say, had no difficulties so far with the other powers although it has not been possible those powers to join in diplomatic action as was proposed on Monday. "Premier Asquith also spoke of the extreme gravity of the situation, announcing to the House of Commons the postponement of the second reading of the bill to amend the Irish rule bill, he said: "We meet to-day under conditions of gravity which are almost unprecedented in the experience of any nation. "The issues of peace and with the risk of a catastrophe of which it is possible to measure either the dimensions or the efforts. "In these circumstances it is of vital importance in the interests of the whole world that this country, has no interests of its own at stake should present a united front and be able to speak and to act as authority as an individual nation. "If we were to proceed to-day the amending bill we should inevitably be involved in a debate which would be a mere artificial come—he involved in controversies in regard to differences whose importance to ourselves none is disposed to believe. "I need not say more than a moment may have an injurious lasting injurious effect on the national situation. "Mr. Bonar Law, leader of the opposition shares to the full the position I have expressed. "We therefore propose to postpone for the present second reading of the amending bill without prejudice to its future hope that by the postponement this discussion the patriotism contribute to what lies in our if not to avert to at least circumvent the calamity which threatens the whole world. "Mr. Asquith's references to a rallying to the support of the Government were heartily cheered the members. The British foreign office suggestion of a conference of ambassadors in London of the great powers failed to meet with the approval of Germany and Austria has invited Germany to suggest some matic way out of the difficulty will meet the approval of A (Continued on Page 4)
