Petrograd an Armed City; Kerensky Makes a Number of Arrests and Orders Korniloff to be Tried

Petrograd, Sep. 12.—The provisional government today declared that a state of war exists in the town and district of Moscow.

Petrograd, Sep. 11.—The interior of the Winter Palace was a remarkable sight owing to the extraordinary precautions which first were taken early yesterday when hope of a compromise was lost finally.

All through the night Kerensky received resolutions from army and navy units promising to support him.

Premier Kerensky issued an order to the Petrograd garrison denouncing General Korniloff for opening the front to the Germans and for sending a division of Asiatics against the capital while professing to defend liberty.

General Kozin, now commanding the Petrograd city garrison, declared before the meeting in the Winter Palace of the representatives of the different organizations:

"No negotiations are possible with traitors. Our own future conversation will be carried on through cannon."

"Only bayonets can now decide the conflict," was the decision of Vice Premier Nebrasoff.

M. Tchernooff, minister of agriculture has resigned from the cabinet. Ninety arrests were made in Petrograd last night.

Premier Kerensky has ordered the procurer of the Petrograd court to put General Korniloff on trial under the historic 150th statute for conspiring to overthrow "the existing order."

During the night Premier Kerensky had a conference with the procurer and dictated a lengthy description of the details of the conspiracy.

PREPARATIONS FOR MILITARY SERVICE

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—Over two million forms of exemption and report under the Military Service Act are in the hands of the printers, and will be distributed in the course of a few days through the post office department.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—The Minister of Militia and Defense to-day issued the statement to the Canadian Press, Limited:

The casualties at the front in the Canadian Expeditionary Force for the period of 16th to 31st of August, 1917, so far reported were 7,586.

The total recruits in combatant arms during the same period was approximately 8,000, making a net wastage of approximately 7,475.

SWEDEN ALIBI IS TOO FEEBLE FOR ENTENTE

London, Sept. 12.—The statement of the Swedish foreign office concerning the transmission of German telegrams from Argentina is regarded by the morning newspapers as extremely feeble.

The Times declares that the Stockholm foreign office "dares not utter a comprehensive denial. It pleads that these particular messages were unknown to it, but admits that Sweden continued to act as intermediary between Germany and Argentina."

It has the effrontery to quote as precedents in justification of this course the transmission of incriminating telegrams about the civil population of Kiao-Chau and from the United States about American citizens in Turkey.

But by its own confession it knew the contents of these inquiries, and knew that they were harmless.

What parallels were there between forwarding open communications of this kind and forwarding secret messages between a great South American shipping centre and Berlin which have something to do with unrestricted frightfulness?

The Daily Chronicle asserts that the statement "shows a decidedly imperfect conception of the neutrality and extreme gravity of the proceedings. The treachery of which the Swedish foreign office is guilty is quite indefensible. There are three ways in which it may be rectified at Stockholm."

Either the foreign ministers may disown and punish his subordinates, the government may disown the foreign minister, or the country may disown the government.

The Morning Post says that the admission of the Swedish foreign office refers to Germany alone "concerning whose guilt there is no question. The points at issue between Sweden and the allies are not answered."

"It does not appear that the Swedish Government quite appreciates the gravity of the issues involved. Moreover there is the further question as to whether other (Continued on page six)

Loyalist Troops Turn Advance of Korniloff's "Savage Division;" Rebels Reported Surrendering to Provisional Government--Kerensky Seems to Hold the Upper Hand

Petrograd, Tuesday, Sep. 11.—(Delayed)—The Associated Press was personally informed this afternoon by Minister of Finance Nebrasoff that the forces of General Korniloff in the direction of Pskoff and at Dno, which were marching on Petrograd, had been outmanoeuvred by the troops loyal to the provisional government and that their retreat had been cut off.

MANY REBELS SURRENDER

Petrograd, Sep. 11—3 p.m.—Members of the Kerensky government have informed the Associated Press that while they are unable to report the final overthrow of General Korniloff they are optimistic concerning the general situation.

GENERALS WITH KORNILOFF

Petrograd, Sep. 12—Generals Denikine and Valuyeff, commanding the southwest and western fronts respectively have joined General Korniloff, according to announcement in the Petrograd newspapers given out by the semi-official news agency.

An earlier report from Petrograd said that General Denikine had been placed under arrest.

GUTCHKOFF UNDER ARREST

Petrograd, Tuesday, Sep. 11.—(Delayed)—Alexander Gutchkoff, former minister of war and navy, who after leaving Petrograd last Saturday joined the Korniloff movement, has been arrested. He is now under guard at Pskoff.

ARMY'S NEW COMMANDER

Petrograd, Sept. 12—Major Bonch Bruyovitch has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Russian army, in succession to General Korniloff.

AGREE TO RECONSTITUTED CABINET

Petrograd, Sep. 12—The central committee of the Constitutional Democratic party to-day informed Premier Kerensky that the party has agreed to its members joining a reconstituted Russian cabinet in order to avoid civil war.

PETROGRAD IS QUIET

London, Sep. 12.—The Petrograd correspondent of Reuters Limited, telegraphing on Tuesday at midnight, says that the capital remains calm, the population awaiting events and only the display of armed forces in the streets indicates an abnormal situation.

Government Commissioner Philonko at the headquarters of the commander-in-chief who was arrested by General Korniloff had been released and has returned to Petrograd. Legal proceedings, the dispatch says, have been begun against General Korniloff.

Minister of Agricultural Tchernooff has resigned in order not to create difficulties for Premier Kerensky on his account. The garrison at Kronstadt has placed itself at the disposal of the Petrograd council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates.

KERENSKY TAKES COMMAND

Petrograd, Sep. 12—9.30 a.m.—The Associated Press was informed unofficially early this morning at the Winter Palace that Premier Kerensky was about to assume the position of commander-in-chief of all the Russian armies until the revolt had been crushed.

COMMANDERS REMAIN FAITHFUL

Petrograd, Sep. 12—Vice Premier Nebrasoff in an interview distributed to-day by the Russian official states that the present situation could be considered favorable. All the commanders at the front with the exception of General Denikine, commander on the western front, who has been arrested with his chief of staff by the military committee, remain faithful to the provisional government.

General Dmitri Stcherbatcheff, commander on the Roumanian front, had definitely declared their allegiance to the government. From General Steadyeff, the commander on the western front, no news has been received, but from his attitude there is reason to believe that he remains true to the government.

The attitude of General Klemousky, commander on the northern front is enigmatic. Gen. Klemousky based his refusal to accept the position as commander in chief to the fact that the position he held at present required immediate attention.

The government, Vice Premier Nebrasoff said, had told General Klemousky that he must either define his attitude or resign.

General Locomsky, the chief of staff, the vice premier added, undoubtedly was the chief conspirator. There was evidence that the conspiracy had been prepared carefully and well in advance, whereas the government was caught wholly unawares.

The Constitutional Democrats, M. Nebrasoff said, had no part in the plot and no members of that party had been at General Korniloff's headquarters. The government had received information that dissensions had broken out in General Korniloff's camp. The army sent against Petrograd, the vice premier declared, (Continued on page four)

PAINLEVE UNABLE TO FORM CABINET

Paris, Sept. 12.—Paul Painleve, minister of war, has announced that he has been unable to form a new ministry to succeed that of M. Ribot, owing to the eleventh hour withdrawal of the Socialists, Albert Thomas and M. Varenne.

M. Painleve went to the Elysee Palace at 1 o'clock this morning, where he was joined by M. Bourgeois, other statesmen with whom he conferred, awaiting him at the ministry of war. He returned within an hour and announced to newspapermen that President Poincare had insisted that he continue his efforts to form a cabinet and that he had asked for time to think over the situation.

Calgary, Sept. 11.—"As a whole the farmers of Alberta will, I think, be well satisfied with the price of $2.21 for the number 1 northern fixed by the supervisors," stated H. P. Woodbridge, secretary of the United Alberta Farmers.

There will be a certain amount of dissatisfaction from farmers in districts that have a poor yield, but generally these will be satisfactory. It is one of the features that is perhaps better than we anticipated, that is, the closeness of the spread in the three grades. It is eminently satisfactory.

The mere fact that the government has set a price on wheat is very much to our advantage for we are now justified in asking that prices be fixed on other commodities, such as farming machinery and flour.

WESTERN WHEAT

By Courier Leased Wire

Paris, Sept. 12.—French troops last night attacked the German trenches in the region of St. Souplet, in the Champagne and succeeded in smashing the first two German lines and entering the third positions. All the German troops garrisoning these trenches, the French war office announced this afternoon, were either killed or taken prisoner.

The text of the statement follows: "In the Champagne district we conducted successfully several raids into the German lines, one northeast of Auberive and the other to the east of the road between St. Hillaire and St. Souplet. At this latter point, French detachments penetrated as far as the third German lines. A spirited fight developed in the course of which the German garrison was either killed or made prisoners. We blew up numerous shelters and brought back important raw material."

On the right bank of the River Reuse, we repulsed two attacks upon our advanced posts to the north of Courieres wood and to the north of Ronvaux. An enemy attack north of Tahure failed under our fire and resulted in serious losses for our assailants.

In Belgium there has been very spirited artillery firing in the sectors of Drel-Gracelin and Bixchoote. The night passed quietly elsewhere. "Enemy" airplanes have bombarded the region of Dunkirk. There were several casualties among the civilian population."

London, Sept. 12.—German troops this morning attacked the British trenches east of Harcourt. Field Marshal Haig reported to-day from the British headquarters in France. The assault was launched under cover of a heavy barrage, but the advancing waves were met by rifle and machine gun fire, and the Germans were repulsed.

Korniloff's Demand For Power Made in Hope of Saving Nation--Moscow is Loyal to Kerensky

Petrograd, Sep. 12.—The text of General Korniloff's proclamations are published here today. The first, denounces Premier Kerensky's discipline of Vladimir Lvoff's mission as untrue and declares that Korniloff did not send Lvoff to Kerensky, but that Kerensky first sent Lvoff to him with the aim to create trouble.

"Russian men," continues the proclamation, "our great fatherland is perishing. The government under pressure of the Bolshevik majority of the councils is acting in full accord with the plans of the General staff. Overwhelming consciousness of the impending ruin of the fatherland compels me in this menacing moment to summon all Russian men to save perishing Russia. All in whose breasts beat Russian hearts, all who believe in God let them flock to the temple and pray God to perform a great miracle—a miracle of saving the fatherland. I, General Korniloff, son of a peasant and Cossack, declare to all that I require nothing personally, nothing except the salvation of mighty Russia and I swear to lead the nation by the road of victory over the foe to a constituent assembly through which the nation will decide its own fate and choose the organization of its own life. But I shall never betray Russia into the hands of its traditional foe—the German race, or make the Russian people the slaves of German. I prefer to die on the field of honor and battle, rather than to witness the shame and infamy of Russian land."

"Russian people! "In your own hands rests the fate of your country, (signed)—"Korniloff."

In the second proclamation General Korniloff declares that he is supported by all of the higher commanders on the front, denounces the government, weakness and indecision and declares that in order to conceal its unfitness the government is creating the chimera of a non-existent counterrevolution. The provisional government has prohibited the circulation of General Korniloff's manifestos or the publication of unofficial news concerning military measures taken against the revolution.

TREE FALLS; MAN KILLED

Since, Sept. 12.—(From our own correspondent)—William Miller, Charlottesville farmer, aged 75 years, passed away at 8.45 this morning from injuries received while felling trees in the woods yesterday. He went out alone early in the morning, and at ten o'clock, neighbors heard the sound of a tree falling. When he failed to put in an appearance at noon, his wife went in search of him, and found him lying in the wood underneath a tree which he had felled. Miller was not planned down by the tree, but was unconscious, and never recovered. A small scar on the face was the only outward mark of injury. He is survived by three sons, Gordon, Wesley and Milan, all farmers in the Charlottesville district.

Simcoe, Sept. 12.—(From our own correspondent)—Lt. Wm. Hope King listed yesterday among the wounded, is a son of Manager W. J. C. King of the Bank of Commerce here. He is a chartered Accountant and graduate of Toronto University. He enlisted in a Western battalion and was attached to the 144th on crossing to Europe. He was admitted to the Camiers General Hospital on Sept. 5th, suffering from gunshot wounds in the left arm and side, and a badly lacerated thigh, received on the previous day. The family has reason to believe that Lt. King has already been transferred to England. He went overseas one year ago. A younger brother George F. went over with the former 132nd. Where the Norfolk Boys Fell. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Sovereign are grateful to learn that up till recently, as the following letter shows, their soldier son has led a charmed life in the thick of the struggle in France.

The Letter
France, Aug. 14, 1917.
Dear Father, Mother and Helen,
I will write home again to let you all know that I am still alive and well, and hope this letter will find you the same. Will you please forgive me for not writing sooner. I have been having other things to attend to lately.

Has Seen Some Fighting.
Since I wrote last I have been in some of the worst fights that have ever been fought in France. We have been giving Fritz hell lately. I have been in it all and, dad, God must be merciful to some, for I never got but a little shrapnel in my trigger finger, but not enough to put me out.

I never got so far as the hospital with it. The last letter I wrote home to you was just after the big fight at Vimy ridge. When Fritz came through that without a mark, but a lot of my dearest friends got it and say, there must have been some Simcoe Boys.

Some Simcoe Boys
I was out of the 132nd in that too, for I saw some of them a week or two after, coming out of the line just as I was going in for the fifth time at the ridge.

Write, dad, and tell me all the news. I got the letter about poor Sherman getting drowned. Well, it may have been all for the best for I would rather see him living in peace over there than out in this hell where I am. But never mind, I am coming out all right yet, so don't worry.

Please tell Art and Mrs. Murdoch that I am still alive and that I am going to write soon to them and all of my other friends.

I suppose you are reading in the papers all about the big fighting. I have been in it all so far, but am now out on a few days' rest. Don't worry "God" will be done. I think it his will for me to come back to Simcoe safe and sound.

I can't say much about the fighting only this: We went over the top on August 15th and got our objective, but we had to fight for it, and fight we did; and prisoners, well, there were too many for us to handle, so we left some behind, but they will ever give any more trouble. Oh it was the worst scrap I have been in yet, so you can tell what kind of a living hell it was. I was in the very worst of it, and here they are: Through Actions Unsuspected.

At the Somme we went over twice on Sept. 15th, 1916, and Oct. 2nd, 1916, and Vimy Ridge, April 9th, 1917, and the last, but God knows, not least, the battle for Lens, Aug. 15th, 1917.
That means that we took what was laid out for us to take, and we held all till relieved by another division. We took one corner of Lens. It is no small place, just one big hill filled with machine guns, rifles and shells.
We got our share and held it. We lost heavily, but old Fritz lost more heavily. He was very sore about our getting the position, and he tried to get it back. We had three counter attacks inside of twelve hours—going to me, but he never reached our front line.
Now, dad she was a buzzard. He when they once start. One of the German officers told me that the Canadians are "fighting devils. No stop him when he starts; his fighting devil; no human; too quick with the bayonet."

I was beside one of our officers—Lt. Tommy Dugal, our scout officer—as fine a man as ever lived. I administered first aid. He died at the age of 19. All of the boys loved him. He was a man. He, if any, deserved a V. C.

After a long march, I am too sleepy to write more. Remember me to Uncle Chas. Denney and Auntie. Write all soon. Good-bye. God bless you. Remember me in your prayers, and all will come right some day.

Bright September Wedding
A festive scene was set at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burgess, 143 Maple Street, when at four o'clock this afternoon the marriage of their niece, Miss Jessie Reid Finlayson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Finlayson, of Cleveland, formerly of Simcoe, to Mr. George Willis, of Hamilton, was solemnized by Rev. H. O. Newcombe.

The bride's parents and relatives and friends of the contracting parties are in town for the occasion, from Chicago, Pittsburg, Toronto, Hamilton, Cleveland, Victoria, Port Dover, Port Byrnes and Mt. Pleasant.

The altar was erected under an arch in the parlors of the Burgess residence with the Tri-color and the Stars and Stripes interwoven above in the decorations.

Miss In Finlayson, of Hamilton, cousin of the bride played the processional, as the bride, attired in pearl gray tulle embroidered gossamer and wearing a corsage bouquet of sweet peas, and unattended, approached the altar on her father's arm, to meet the unattended groom in waiting.

The wedding formalities over, a most epicurean wedding breakfast was served, and old friends met old friends and new.

The young couple will leave by the 7.15 trolley for a honeymoon down the St. Lawrence and up the Saguenay.

Bread Down Two Cents
E. Shellburg put up the notice "Bread 10 cents" yesterday and has arranged with Dover and Brantford bakers to supply his customers, at that price. Heretofore the three-pound loaf has for months been costing 22 cents or 24 cents.

When local bread began the high climbing some months ago, the hardware men did a lively business in bread pans and rapid dough mixers, and as a result there are hundreds of houses unconcerned as to whether the price is 10 cents or 12 per loaf.

Lightning Kills Cattle
George Slaght, of Windham, has filed an insurance claim for six cows killed and one injured by lightning, in the storm of last Thursday. Samuel Waddle, of the same neighborhood, puts in a claim for two cows killed also by lightning. All of the animals are valued in the claims at $90 each.

Match Damage By Frost
Reports from various parts of the county, from the the lake front to the north, all agree as to the general severity of Monday night's frost, and beans, buckwheat, pumpkins, cucumbers and citions, and all corn not well advanced suffered seriously. In some districts potatoes and tomatoes also were blackened.

Last night was past master's night at the Masonic lodge. The sittings consisted with a burst of oratory from H. R. Innes, K. C., Frank Reid, Col. Alken and others. The exercises of the evening were over before Robinson street on Sept. 4th. J. West and John Jackson testified as to Reardon's sobriety at the time in question, but the evidence was insufficient. We understand no effort was made to ascertain where Reardon got the cider.

Charles Chaplin drew a full house to the picture show last and Monday night.

Mr. Nat Porter is again at the desk in the customs office. While south Mr. Porter saw the first drafts leave Boston and Providence for mobilization for overseas, and he informs us that with the Yankees down there, the opinion prevails that Canada has done her share in supplying men. That further enlistment while of moral weight, might cripple production at home. That the States can pick up the first two millions among the idle and not feel the loss in the matter of production or commerce at home.

It is now time for those of the Republic to do their part at the front. Mr. Porter, no doubt heard it all with pardonable pride.

It was remarked yesterday that four dollars a day and transportation to Niagara Falls was offered for help to pick fruit and vegetables there.

AN ULTIMATUM FROM PREMIER

Closure Will Be Applied if Opposition Obstructs Franchise Act.

READING SATURDAY Liberals Protest Against "Railroading" Bill—Provisions Are Explained

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—The War-Time Elections Act will be given the third reading Friday or early Saturday morning. Unless the Opposition agree to a reasonable discussion without obstruction the vote will be brought on then by the application of closure.

Before the House adjourned notice of closure was given, but it will not be put into effect to-day if an agreement is reached to give the bill third reading this week.

The House put in the day discussing the various details of the measure. It was expected that Liberal members would combine in a bitter attack upon the Government's proposals, but while there was criticism of a kind it was couched in restrained language.

General Enfranchisement. Sir Robert Borden, in explaining the position of the Government, declared that he had not changed his opinion that general enfranchisement of women was desirable.

In opposing the demand for the vote for all women, Hon. Arthur Meighen stoutly maintained that since the extension of the franchise to the near relatives of soldiers was intended as a measure of compensation for the loss of their personal independence in a war-time election, the general granting of the vote to women would nullify that compensation.

No clauses were adopted in committee, but all of them were partly considered. The discussion to-day will take up the disfranchisement features of the bill.

WARNING TO COAL DEALERS

Feels Better Since Tanlac Overcome Trouble Than He Has In Thirty-five Years.

PERMISSION FIRST. Appeals To Dealers To Make Allowance for Small Consumers.

Ottawa, Sept. 12.—C. A. Magrath, Canadian fuel controller has issued a warning to coal dealers that they are not to increase prices now when the approaching winter without first making representations to him.

"I wish to say," added Mr. Magrath, "that I have every confidence in the desire of the coal dealers of Canada to deal fairly with their customers, and particularly those of small means."

Ordinary prices of coal advance in winter time when the consumer cannot afford to purchase in advance lays in his supply.

"I wish to appeal however, particularly to the dealers in our towns and cities where large quantities of coal are handled in small lots to deal in a generous manner with the smaller users of coal and add as little as possible to the heavy burdens they are now carrying."

"I expect our fuel dealers to put me in a position—without my having to force the issue—by meeting me in a way that will be mutually beneficial after this abnormal situation passes away that no section of business organization met their responsibilities in a generous and patriotic spirit than those engaged in looking after the country's fuel supply."

SUFFERED MOST ALL HIS LIFE

Feels Better Since Tanlac Overcome Trouble Than He Has In Thirty-five Years.

"I'm feeling better to-day than I have in thirty-five years and it's all due to the good work of Tanlac," said James J. Snider, of 17 Jackson street, West Hamilton.

"A medicine that will make a person my age gain in weight and relieve them of troubles of thirty-five or forty years standing is certainly wonderful. I had been suffering from a bad stomach nearly all my life. I had no appetite and just had to force myself to eat. At times I felt like there was a hundred pounds weight on my stomach, and I was almost doubled up with misery. Gas would form from what I ate and make my heart flutter, and I often had dreadful smothering spells."

"Tanlac did for me just what others say it has done for them, and I want to make this statement because I feel like it may help lots of people who are in the same fix as I was. Before I took Tanlac I had rheumatism in my knees and the pain was so severe I couldn't straighten my legs, and now the rheumatism is nearly all gone, and I can walk as good as anybody. It has put my stomach in good condition, the gas has stopped forming and I don't have any more of those awful smothering spells. My food agrees with me and I know it is because of Tanlac. I have had a headache several times since I took Tanlac, but I have never had one since I started on it. All the pain is gone now and I want to say that I feel better than I have in thirty-five years. I can't say enough in praise of Tanlac and I'm going to tell everybody I can about the good it has done me."

"I wish to appeal however, particularly to the dealers in our towns and cities where large quantities of coal are handled in small lots to deal in a generous manner with the smaller users of coal and add as little as possible to the heavy burdens they are now carrying."

THE SITUATION

The veil of secrecy has been drawn over present occurrences in Russia. The brief preface that Kerensky has control of all avenues of information, and that he is preventing any detailed news from reaching the outside world. Whether it is he or someone else, it fact remains that the censorship is most complete, and that nothing is known except that Russians, who have been refusing to fight the Teutons, are now preparing to fight each other; in fact may have already clashed in armed conflict. Just what is back of Gen. Korniloff's unexpected move, is a matter also involved in much mystery. At the time of the Moscow convention, it was said that he and the Premier had been at variance over the punishment of recalcitrant troops, but there is manifestly far more than that at the bottom of the present violent estrangement between the two. Kerensky characterizes the General as a "military rebel," while the latter responds with the declaration that his revolt against Kerensky is based on the highest patriotism and a desire to save his country "from a government dominated by the German general staff." As far as outsiders are concerned, the one certain thing is that while the new Republic is engaged in a game of national rough house, any hope that it will be of any more use to the Allies as an offensive force, has gone still further a glimmering.

Reports from the Italian front indicate that the Teutons are preparing a big offensive against Cardona's soldiers in the area northeast of Gorizia. A heavy concentration of forces is taking place, and there are said to be indications that Hindenburg is taking a hand along the Isonzo.

In heavy fighting of a local nature on the Western front in the neighborhood of Villare, the Northumberland troops captured a German trench nearly a quarter of a mile in length.

Report comes from Macedonia that French and Russian troops have made progress, and taken several villages. It is also said that Russian forces have been repulsing attacks in Roumania.

The United States has advanced Italy another credit loan of $55,000,000. This makes the total advanced to that country $255,000,000, and to all the allies, $2,321,400,000.

A pro-German and pro-Swedish demonstration took place in Buenos Aires. Attempted explanations there look with regard to the recent sensational disclosures, are regarded as evasive and altogether unsatisfactory.

W.C. GOOD TO BE CANDIDATE OF INDEPENDENTS

The selection of Mr. W. C. Good, a prominent Brant County farmer, as a candidate for this district for the Dominion Parliament at the next federal elections, was made by the Independent Labor party at a general meeting held last evening.

THE DOUBLE GAME

Mr. A. McColg, member for West Kent, against whom Mayor Kerr, of Chatham (Liberal) has accepted nomination as a win-the-war candidate, had a gathering of his own recently at which he was endorsed by the dyed in the wool section of the party.

During his remarks Mr. McColg admitted that he voted for the Laurier amendment, seeking to introduce the referendum dodge, and then for the bill itself, but he denied that he had wobbled.

However, it was not McColg's acrobatic trick to try and reconcile his North by South attitude, which formed the chief feature of the meeting, but a speech by Dr. Neely, member for Humboldt, Saskatchewan. That gentleman complained that the Franchise Bill, in cutting off alien foreign votes would disfranchise "from 25 to 30 per cent. of my electors simply because they vote Greek."

In other words the Germans and the Austrians in his riding, support the doctor because he supports Laurier, who in turn supports all those elements which are against a more active participation in the war. During the course of a heated speech he also made this significant statement: "You do not need to fear to put Sir Robert Borden out and Sir Wilfrid Laurier in. This conscription act will stay on the books, and if Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not do his utmost to win the war, and will not resort to that measure, if it is necessary, it will then be time for him to step down in favor of somebody else."

The above is an illustration of the game to be played in Ontario by the men who refused a union government and who hope to win at the polls by singing different tunes in the different provinces.

As a matter of fact Sir Wilfrid was from the first been hostile to any conscription act, and his personal organ, Le Canada, of Montreal, recently said in this regard: "We are bound to repeat that conscription is completely banished in any form, under any pretext, from the Liberal programme."

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier has formally stated and repeated in the House that he is irrevocably opposed to compulsory service."

Yet in view of such an admitted attitude, Dr. Neely has the consummate gall to tell an Ontario audience that Laurier should win, said Act would be in no danger.

Few Lives Were Lost in Chang Hsun's Revolt

Soldiers on Both Sides Fired Into Air—Only About 50 Casualties.

Peking, Sept. 12.—Although fully 10,000 Republican soldiers participated in the bombardment of the headquarters of Gen. Chang Hsun, the monarchist leader, in Peking, 3,000 of Gen. Chang's troops resist the onslaught for about ten hours. Fewer than fifty persons were killed and injured in the fighting. Military officers stationed at the legations in Peking are at a loss to explain the small number of casualties. In the fighting on July 12th, stray bullets fell practically all over the city, and many small shells and shrapnel were exchanged by the contending armies. It is estimated that not less than a million shots were fired in all. The few casualties among the great number of persons who took to the random firing is undoubtedly due to the fact that both sides were shooting into the air without thought of killing.

Many foreigners who saw the virtually bloodless battle, which resulted in the overthrow of Gen. Chang Hsun, say that the monarchist troops and the republican forces had their rifles against their hips and shot into the air.

The firing began at 4.30 in the morning on July 12, Chang Hsun had his headquarters at his home in the Imperial City about one mile directly north of the American legation. Chang Hsun's troops were scattered about his headquarters, and outside the main gate a machine gun was placed in a great pagoda commanding the gate. A large detachment of Chang Hsun's troops also took refuge in the Temple of Heaven, about one mile south of the main city gate. Shelled the Temple of Heaven.

The republican forces first shelled the Temple of Heaven. Then they also directed shrapnel into the Imperial City and struck Chang's headquarters with great regularity. Two airplanes flew over the city directing the fire of the big guns, and expert foreign military observers say the direction of the firing was quite expert.

Gen. Chang Hsun's headquarters became untenable about ten o'clock in the morning, and the general and his staff took refuge in the Dutch Legation. Up to that time firing had been constant, spent bullets doing much damage to glass in the foreign quarters, and forcing the residents to keep under cover.

FRENCH BLACKS NOW GARRISON SUMMER PALACE OF KAISER

Named After Achilles and Built on Spot Where Ulysses Came for His Sojourns, the Place is Reeking With the Atmosphere of "Dreams of World Conquest."

(Corfu, island of Crete, Sept. 12—The summer palace of Achilles, on a height overlooking the Bay of Corfu had the French flag flying over it when we drove up for a visit today at the gateway the arms of the Hohenzollerns blazed from the massive iron gates thrown back on either side. But these proud arms were the moment obscured by the solid ranks of French soldiers, native troops from French Senegal in the heart of Africa, black as coal, in the French gray uniform, with red fez. They saluted the French officers as we passed through the gate, and their trumpet sent a French bugle call echoing through the German emperor's gardens.

All about were evidences that the French had replaced German direction at this imperial establishment, and that instead of being a summer plaything for majesty it was now being put to some real use. The island itself is, temporarily, under a French military government. French battleship and cruisers crowd the harbor and dominate the heights, and French soldiers and sailors make up a considerable part of this medley of races, supplied to Corfu by the stress of war. Here at the palace grounds we passed French Red Cross nurses tending wounded French soldiers in the olive groves, and the high officers of the French medical service came from the palace to greet the party as it arrived.

Ulysses Resting Place
This palace of the emperor is one of the curiosities of the east and is typical in many ways of the eccentric genius which conceived it. There are palaces the world over, but nothing quite like this exists anywhere. Only Emperor William could have developed such an ideal. The whole scheme is imperial and heroic. The palace is planted on the very spot where Ulysses came for his sojourn and from the imperial chamber one looks on the classic island of Ulysses where the great hero spent his leisure hours. Like Ulysses Emperor William came here for his leisure, and every day when he began the imperial yacht circled Europe from the North Sea to the Mediterranean in order that he might enjoy these classic and heroic surroundings during the leisurely period of the year. Looking down the steep cliff one sees the imperial landing place where the yacht was moored during these visits. Here the emperor first set foot on the island, and he had a flight of steps hewn in the rock, lined with marble statues of Greek deities. Or if he did not wish the climb an auto took him through the miles of drive to the olive grove, making gradual ascent to the lofty palace.

The palace dominates a vast stretch of land and water—Albania just across the strait, then Greek Epirus to the south, the mountains of the Levant, and the sea, Italy lying low in the dim distance, to the west, and the clear blue waters of the Adriatic reaching in all directions to the horizon. The islands, it is suggestive of imperial pomp, and one thinks of what Emperor William had in mind when he looked out on this circle of many lands, and their strategic waters.

Dreamed Universal Conquest
There is one definite clue to his thoughts in the heroic statue of Achilles which he built at the highest point dominating all this land and water. The statue is of bronze, showing the hero armed from head to foot, sword in hand and shield on his breast, straining forward on the flight and looking intently out on this empire of foreign lands and waters spread at his feet. Perhaps William had in mind something more than a top palace dedicated to Ulysses and Achilles, and that the old Trojan hero revived dreams of universal conquest.

The palace is of white marble, squarely and solidly built after the Greek classical design, with the suggestion that a German hand had modernized the old classical lines. Along the middle front, facing the sea, runs a deep wide marble gallery or porch, with similar wide galleries (part at the eastern end where the entrance is located. The building is three stories high, with a frontage of about five hundred feet, and has about one hundred rooms, including ball rooms, state dining rooms, a royal chapel, and the suites of imperial chambers. The marble columns of the galleries, the window cornices and friezes along the front, are all essentially Greek, and the whole place has the massiveness and majesty of a Greek temple.

Paintings by Vandal Hand
Entering the main hall it was not clear whether one was in a palace or temple or a museum. Immediately to the right was the royal chapel, with the large fresco of Munkov's "Christ Before Pilate" back of the altar. By an ingenious electrical contrivance a flood of light could be turned onto the central figures of the fresco, giving them a sort of luminous living effect, almost as in a cinema, though it seemed a queer contrivance for a chapel. One could hear a murmur of "Boche" run among the visitors, indicating their view of the vandal hand had put together this mass of fresco and effect. Elaborate frescoes and mirrors covered the ceilings and side walls of the state dining-room. The subjects were always drawn from Greek antiquity, but the figures of dancing nymphs and fawns looked rather heavy, as though they were the big-limbed people of the north, instead of the fine and delicate creatures of legendary Greece.

Atmosphere Warlike
The huge painting of the "Triumph of Achilles" occupies the post of honor at the top of the grand staircase. It is one of those striking pictures, full of life and movement, like Garri Melcher's "War" in the Congressional library at Washington, and showing the same straining horses and men pushing forward to the combat. Achilles is shown in full panoply of war, driving his chariot and dragging along the bloody, prostrate body of his foe, chained to the chariot wheel, with the howling at the spectacle. Art connoisseurs do not always approve this picture, but it is a work of art, and it is here in the presence of one of those great tragedies of the Homeric age.

Russia, he says, is tired of war just like all the other belligerent peoples, but is not "not enough to make a separate peace." He added:
"I can say with absolute confidence that the whole Russian people would be dead against a separate peace and would make short work of anyone who attempted to negotiate it."

AN ARTISTIC TRIUMPH

Not since 1907, when Miss Marie Hall (now Mrs. Baring) was heard here twice in recital, have Brantford lovers of the violin had such a great treat as that afforded them last evening in Brant Avenue Methodist Church, when Miss Isolda Menges another famous English violinist, gave a most charming recital, and was encored again and again, by an enthusiastic audience.

Her programme was a most delightful one, opening with the somber Handel's Sonata in D Major. Then came a dainty group of numbers: (a) Melodie, Gluck-Kreisler; (b) La Capriccioso, Elgar; (c) Le Basque, Marin Marais; (d) Berceuse, Herbert Menges (composed by a twelve-year-old brother, and a work of decided merit) and (e) Zapateado, Sarasate. These were followed by the Ernest Concerto and the Fantasie from Faust, substituted for Sarasate's The Witches' Dance.

The Fantasie was especially given with a tone and technique that stamped Miss Menges as a really great artist. Her bowing was superb—so vigorous, so firm, so sweeping. She gets a singing quality out of her violin too, which carries all before it, and in addition has a gift of technique that is most satisfying.

For encores she gave Dvorak's well-known Humoresque, Schubert's "The Bee," Annie Laurie and Beethoven's Minuet, the latter played in a manner unequalled even by Mescha Elman, who generally included it in his repertoire.

Miss Menges, in addition to her wonderful powers of expression, has a personality and temperament that leaves nothing to be desired. A very great future is undoubtedly in store for her.

Nothing but words of commendation must be accorded Miss Eileen Beattie, who accompanied the star of the evening. She is a wonderful pianist, and accompanies with both taste and expression. Altogether a most delightful evening, which should make a large and enthusiastic audience Thursday night, when Miss Menges will be heard in an entirely new programme at Brant Avenue Church. No true music lover should miss hearing this, undoubtedly foremost feminine violinist of the day.

BRANTFORITES PLEDGE THEMSELVES TO FOOD ECONOMY

Resolution Unanimously Passed Last Evening in Victoria Hall, Prof. Creelman and Others Heard on Food Subject

"That the citizens of Brantford here assembled pledge themselves to observe honorably any regulation issued by the food controller of the Dominion." Such was the text of a resolution passed unanimously at a public meeting of citizens held in Victoria Hall, last night. The speakers of the evening were Professor George Creelman, Commissioner of Agriculture, and President of the Ontario Agricultural College, and the Rev. J. B. Fotheringham. The serious need for food conservation was emphasized by both speakers, who advocated restriction of some of the more common foods, for which substitutes could be found.

Mayor Bowley said he had every sympathy with this resolution, but it was not confined only to Brantford, but is province and dominion-wide—the conservation of our food supply, frugality in our diet will assist in winning the war for the freedom of the world.

Such were the words of His Worship Mayor Bowley, chairman of the evening, introducing the speakers.

Rev. J. B. Fotheringham said: "That we are to abide by any measures advocated by the government."

This was a vow that should be taken by every individual in the Dominion, thought the speaker, and if this were done, he felt sure that the remedy for the present food crisis would be found. He continued:

"To-night we are face to face with the food situation, and it is our duty to conserve as well as possible the present supply of food. There are two duties that confront us. First, to save our own boys and girls from overseas may be fed; the second, to prevent Germany from securing any outside supply."

The speaker then proceeded to enumerate the various causes for the shortage. "Not only is a great quantity of food being consumed by the millions of fighters on the battlefield, who are not producing, but there is also considerable destruction of food supplies on the battlefield for strategic purposes. The loss through the submarine warfare is a serious item, and while actual starvation is not anticipated, the world generally is acutely affected. The crops last year were below the average standard and these many factors together are responsible for the crisis that exists to-day."

The remedy for the trouble, thought the speaker, was a personal vow, "that we were to abide by any measures advocated by the government." He was of the opinion that this vow, if carefully and honorably adhered to, would prove the solution of the difficulty.

Abolish High Living
In Canada there were two factors to which could be accredited our weakness, if any at this time when the Mother Country and our boys in the trenches are demanding food—the liberty of the individual and the high standard of living. While a high standard of living was a credit to any country, the Rev. Mr. Fotheringham thought that it did not engender energetic action nor strengthen the fibre of our national life for the time of test. However, many families and persons had voluntarily eliminated many luxuries from their lives.

"While individual liberty, the possession and seemingly the heritage of every Canadian, is one of the greatest assets of national life, at the present time it constituted a menace to the Empire. We recognize the danger in the Russian situation, in fact it is the root of the evil there where revolution is rampant, a seething ferment of individualism and individualism is the danger of Canada at the present time, as it has been for the past three years. There are only two remedies—collective emotion strong enough to eliminate friction or an "imposed organization" of despotism. There should be in Brantford a tide of patriotism such as would sweep all petty and minor difference before it, but while this is true of a large part of the city it cannot be said of the city as a whole. In view of the present situation, and for the good of the future we must adhere to the measures imposed by the food controller or any other controller. The danger facing the world is that the ideas for which we have been fighting will be lost, and that those things now hanging in the balance may be diverted or postponed until a future day.

Our object can only be achieved by a complete and decisive victory. We are still facing an organized foe, for in spite of all their reverses, the Central Powers are well organized, and can only be overcome by united effort. Let us drop all our private opinion as to the best methods that should be adopted, and unite and bend all our efforts toward winning the war."

Professor Creelman
"The present time, insofar as I can see, is one for serious regard and attention to the food situation. Strict regulations and restrictions have been enforced in the Old Country and we must follow this example willingly if we would demonstrate that there is true British blood in our veins. We have clamored for a food controller, and now that a competent and capable man who understands the situation has been appointed our food controller, it is our plain and obvious duty to support him."

These were the opening words of Professor Creelman, who throughout his address advised his audience to assist in every way possible to ensure the success of the dictum of the food dictator. He had conferred with Mr. Hanna and was assured that any demands that would be made by him on the people of the Dominion would not be unreasonable but would ultimately be for the best interests of Canadians.

"This year America must supply 460,000,000 bushels of wheat for Europe or the rations of the people of the Motherland and our troops in the trenches would again have to be reduced. It was thus the duty of all to cut down their diet of any food containing wheat or wheat flour and use substitutes.

"Can, can, can; you cannot put up too much of perishable foods this year," declared Professor Creelman. What could not be canned, the speaker said, should be stored, and nothing should be wasted. In the town of Barrie the merchants had entered into the movement and had turned over the cellars under their stores to the townspeople for storage purposes. These canned materials to be considered of equal extent would replace bread and meat on our menus.

Chicken and other kinds of poultry were far cheaper than pork and beef and are now twenty-five per cent. cheaper than this time last year. During the last few years, we imported over $10,000,000 worth of tropical fruit and at the same time had exported enormous quantities of our home grown variety, that is just as good as, if not better, than that grown in any other part of the world. Arrangements are now being made to bring apples from Nova Scotia, where there has been a good crop this year, to Ontario, leaving a little profit to the middleman as is possible.

YOU don't know this girl perhaps. But suppose you did and she came to you for advice! What would you say?

Till yesterday her husband, young and vigorous, had lovingly encouraged her small extravagances and boasted laughingly that his income was ample and growing. He worked with might and main to "gather the fruits of success for his fair trinity at home"—and was succeeding.

But death, swift and relentless, had without warning cut down his guard, and the three he loved more than his own life were now at bay to the world—alone.

If she had come to you for advice—that, briefly, would have been her story.

Her faith was strong. Her husband, she knew, would not leave her with the children to face a financial situation for which there was no solution. Yet when she attempted to calculate the income she would receive from the savings he had left, a panic of fear overcame her.

"The greatest and hardest of her duties now was the one she knew the least about."

Perhaps someone dependent and depending upon you, is destined some day to be left alone—at bay to the world. This is so serious, so appalling a situation that its very contemplation makes thinking men turn cold with apprehension.

That is why we have written "Her Way Out"—to make you realize how serious is the situation which may overtake those for whom you believe no sacrifice or effort is too great.

If, in addition—without the use of technical language or confusing terms—it provides a solution for the dilemma, surely that is another point in its favor, is it not?

We will be pleased to send you a copy of "Her Way Out," free. The coupon below is provided for your convenience. Fill it in and mail it to-day, or a note or postcard will do as well.

HUN'S INGRATITUDE TO THOSE WHO SAVED HIS WORTHLESS LIFE

Giant German Deliberately Sought to Smash Doctor, and When Nurse Came Within Reach he Broke Both Her Arms—Brutality That Shocked Hospital

New York, Sept. 12.—An almost incredible story of German brutality comes direct from an associate of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, the American surgeon now giving the best years of his life to treating the wounded at the great army hospitals of Paris.

A terribly wounded Teuton of enormous size was brought from the front to one of the military hospitals near Paris because his case was so desperate as to require extraordinary attention, which could not be given to him on the field. Dr. Blake was asked to perform the very complicated abdominal operation. He became so greatly interested in saving the prisoner's life that he not only regularly visited the case, but especially assigned thereto, one of his most experienced nurses.

Expressed Desire to Give Girl Thanks
For days the big burly patient lingered between life and death, but the crisis finally passed. Then was shown the value of good nursing. The woman, knowing the interest her chief felt in the case, devoted her entire attention to this man. At the end of weeks the Boche was declared ready to be sent to the internment camp. Swedish representatives in other capitals also are transmitting German messages through Stockholm to Berlin. Germany, as we know, has been receiving much information through Zurich undiscoverable up to the present. After what has been discovered it is impossible to suspect that it should not have a particular direction.

"The Daily News says: 'A man may have a perfect right to post a friend's letter for him, but when he finds himself made inadvertently an accessory to murder in the exercise, it is natural to expect a little more indignation at the abuse of his confidence and little less insistence on his technical innocence than the Swedish note shows.'

Christiana, Sept. 12.—The Christiania Morgenbladet, commenting on the Washington disclosures expressed deep regret that "Swedish diplomacy is so lacking in understanding of the duties of a neutral that it did not serve as a lucky which directly furthered the German submarine warfare against neutral ships, even if it did not clearly understand the contents of the German despatches."

"In the last ministerial conference at Stockholm, nothing was said about the submarine war probably owing to the Swedish cabinet. On the whole Sweden until now has played such a commanding part in Scandinavian co-operation that the other Scandinavian countries have been unable to maintain their own interests to a degree desired. Neither Norway nor Denmark would in the future like to leave Sweden in the leading position in the North Atlantic, a system, which not only is to be condemned on moral grounds, but endangers Sweden's neutrality and might greatly risk her independence."

LEG-WORK MIGHT WIN SERIES FOR CHICAGO

White Sox Are Snappy on Base-Running—If Cut Out Orthodox Baseball and Take Chances Against the Giants, May Upset National Leaguers

Base-running, which was fast becoming a lost art in the American League, might win the world's series for the Chicago White Sox, providing that club would take the same chances in the post-season battles that it is taking in the games for the pennant.

Rowland's men gave a remarkable exhibition of sack-navigating in the series with the Tigers and the Junge-lers were completely bewildered by their speed and daring. It must be admitted that Detroit's pitchers are not very skillful in holding men on the cushion, but at the same time, no other club has ever taken such liberties with them as the Sox took in the recent disastrous series in the Windy City.

The felicitous catchers were seldom to blame for a theft. In fact, the Sox were beating perfect throws right along and even when the receivers had them guessed and called for pitchouts, there was no stopping them. Stealing third was one of the best things the Rowlands did. This is a play that most orthodox baseball theorists do not fancy, on the ground that the risk is out of proportion to the benefit if the manoeuvre goes through. The argument is that as a runner will score from second on a single anyhow, he should stay there and wait for the batsman to do something. But Chicago several times scored runs without the aid of a hit or an error simply because of cleverness in annexing the hot corner by burglarious methods.

If the Sox follow precedent, it is to be feared that all their sprinting talent will be wasted in the world's series, however. Almost invariably a tight baseball prevails in these important battles for the big coin. Now and then somebody steals second with two gone, but such a thing as trying to pilfer third or of pulling the double steal with none out is almost unheard of. In 1910 the Athletics cut loose and ran themselves black in the face and by so doing won against a club that was supposed to be their equal in all departments and to possess the best catcher in the game.

It would add interest and excitement to the series to have the American League entry discard air-tight methods and do some running. Possibly McGraw's pitchers would be able to break up the plays a good part of the time, but unless the New York Pitchers are very alert to see that nobody gets a running start, the percentage of success would be very high.

Chicago has an unusually large number of good base-runners. Leibold, Weaver, McMullin, Eddie Collins, Jackson and Felsch are fast men on the paths and Gaudi, though slow of foot, gets a good lead and knows when to go. Opposed to a pitcher that is inclined to be wild and that is putting men on the bases by the pass route, the Windy City boys could score a bunch of runs with very few hits.

Would Encourage Wildness The more attempts to steal there were the more the catchers would be likely to call for waste balls and this, of course, would not help the flingers to cut down the pass list, and even though base-running did not bring big results in itself, its value as a threat would be considerable. For the enemy never would know whether to look for the free steal, the hit and run or straight-away slugging. There is so much hitting strength on Comiskey's club that it does not always have to depend on fancy stuff to get runs.

The primary object of the Christian religion is 'peace on earth.' I believe it is peace between God and man, for with that will come peace to all the world.

The 20th Century Club of Hamilton, who for the past two years have won the amateur baseball championship of the city, but who were this year beaten out by the C.M.R., have been secured to come to this city on Saturday and play the Dominion Steel Products team, champions of the Brantford City League.

The 20th Century Club is reputed to be a fast aggregation and had they won the championship of their league this year would have been entitled to hold the silver trophy that is competed for each year. Other efforts to have this team from the Ambitious City come here during the earlier part of the season have failed, but now that the race in the Hamilton League has been settled, they have consented to match their mettle with the D. The official batting averages of the league have the Century men's records compiled as follows: McLeod, .438; Shaw, .364; Boswell, .358; Lammond, .322; Brodie, .288; Sullivan, .283; Gurry, .276; Harvey Muir, .273; E. Smith, .226; J. Smith, .087.

KAISER AND CZAR PLOTTED TO DIVIDE WORLD AMONG THEMSELVES

Interesting Secret Correspondence Between "Willy" and "Nicky" is Revealed For First Time; Hope to Check Progress of Democracy

The New York Herald publishes an interesting series of letters and telegrams that were exchanged between the Emperor William and the Czar Nicholas in 1905. The papers were found in Petrograd after the overthrow of the Czar and have been made public by the provisional government. They make some startling revelations of the ambitions and intrigues against the peace of the world which shaped the course of the German Kaiser even at that time, and they throw a most astonishing light on the pliancy and treachery of the Czar. A main purpose of the correspondence, which very nearly succeeded, was to draw Nicholas into a secret alliance with Germany, deserting France, to which Russia was pledged. It would appear that for some weeks the Kaiser had been plotting that France, without her knowledge, actually had no ally and might have had to face Germany alone, if attacked. The question naturally arises whether the interference of the Kaiser in the affairs of Morocco at that time was not really intended to bring on war with France, taking advantage of this secret understanding with the Czar.

It is not to be wondered at that secret diplomacy is held in such favor by crowned heads when the crown has been in question for years past. The revelations of the trusts and combines in the United States and elsewhere are put to shame beside the cold-blooded and brutal conspiracies of Wilhelm of Prussia. "One of the most unscrupulous ruffians in history" is the characterization that non-German Europe gives him. Yet all the time this international Pecksniff was going around pretending to be a saint and apostle of peace, the boon companion of his "dear Gott," and a standing reproach to the hypocrisy of Britain.

In 1905 he was plotting to complete the ruin of Denmark, which he had done in 1864, and but for Britain would probably have completed his infamous scheme. His indignation over the frankness of the British minister illustrates the Prussian point of view, utterly unconscious of anything wrong in his own attitude that anyone should be annoyed about and only fearing to be discovered prematurely.

The minister, he declares, "used very violent language against me, accusing me of the vilest plans and intrigues, declaring that every Englishman knew and was convinced I was working for war with and for the destruction of England."

He continues with a naïveté that would be amusing were it not so criminal—"You may imagine what stuff a man like this may have been putting into the minds of the Danish family, the court and the people. I did all in my power to dispel the cloud of distrust by behaving quite unconcernedly and making no allusion to serious politics at all." The picture of the arch-hypocrite "boasting unbecomingly" while all the time he was meditating the downfall of the Danish Kingdom, would need the pen of a Shakespeare to do it justice. "Tarry, Mephistopheles, and other secondary villains must hide their diminished heads beside this prime plotters."

"The provisional want of discretion of the Danish court annoyed me."

throbbed ceaselessly in their consciousness. As far back as 1905, the Kaiser, while hypocritically professing the utmost friendship toward Great Britain, was secretly plotting her overthrow. He proposed an alliance between Germany and Russia, ignoring the already existing alliance between Russia and France. It was extremely anxious that no information concerning the conspiracy should leak out till the nuptials between Germany and Russia were completed. In fact, hearing of it, should make trouble by enlisting England or otherwise. When Germany and Russia had become practically one nation, France would be entirely at their mercy and would be driven to enter the combination. Then Germany, Russia and France could together bring about the downfall of the British Empire. The Czar appears to have been weak enough to comply with the Kaiser's wishes, but through various instances they were never carried out.

These revelations would appear to indicate that the declaration of war against Russia was more or less of a bluff on the part of the rulers. It had been arranged through Southamilton and Sturmer to betray the Russian armies. Britain was expected to keep out of the war, having her hands full, as was thought, with Ireland and India. France and Belgium were the immediate objectives, and perhaps Holland and Denmark as well.

Britain, however, and evidently most unexpectedly for Germany, came into the war. The British Government was astonishingly puny—threw over the "scrap of paper," and an alliance with Russia appears to have been checked the growth of democracy. This followed the idea of Bismarck in the '70s, who formed the original triple alliance of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Russia, as the League of the Three Emperors, with the frankly avowed object of upholding monarchical institutions against increasing democratic encroachments—that is, an alliance of autocrats against government by the people.

The Kaiser, it will be remembered, was a grandson of Queen Victoria, through the Princess Royal of England, who became the wife of the Crown Prince of Prussia; Frederick. The Czar was a grandson of him. "I was afraid to let anything tell the Russian tool, who must have thought him a genius, 'as it would immediately have been communicated to London, a most impossible thing, so long as the treaty is to remain a secret for the present."

So it appears that Denmark was to have suffered in 1905 the fate that befell Belgium in 1914. Though Denmark was not even in the path of the projected war, her territory was to be seized under the pretext that some one else might seize it if Germany did not, and the Danes were to be reconciled by being told that this would insure the future existence of "the dynasty"—as a subordinate horse of the German Empire, of course. Here was the same reasoning that was applied to Belgium in 1914—the same lack of moral restraint, the same low cunning, the same disposition to look on scraps of paper, the same absence of any sense of honor in regard to keeping one's word.

King Edward was Awake. We may be sure that King Edward had some intelligence of what was afoot, and that this was what nourished the entente cordiale with France. There is no such thing as a secret when three people know it. The Czar, his wife and the Kaiser could not conceal what must have

King Christian, through Princess Dagmar, a sister of our Queen Mother, Alexander, Noble monarchs than Queen Victoria and King Christian never lived. What a pity that their grandchildren should be so degenerate!

It was high time Russia should be delivered from the sway of such a weakling as so much else, proves "Nicky" to have been. We see now who was right when Lord Roberts and the so-called gladiators in England urged the fullest preparation for a German attack. We see how well-founded was Great Britain's insistence on a two-power ratio for her navy—that is to say, that her navy should be equal to those of any other two powers combined.

PORK AND BEANS TO BE SOLD STILL

Embargo on Canned Vegetables Does Not Extend to This Compound.

The latest edit of the food controller that prevents the sale or purchase of canned vegetables between the retailer and the consumer is causing considerable misunderstanding as to the correct interpretation of the measure.

The local grocers are clear as to the attitude of the controller towards canned corn, peas, tomatoes and string beans, but whether or not pork and beans is included in the list has caused some uneasiness. One local wholesale house has informed its clients that pork and beans may be sold if mixed with catsup, tomato sauce or some other like ingredient, but that if beans alone constitute the contents of the can, it must not be sold. As no special mention is made in the decree regarding pork and beans, other grocers of the city have continued to sell them as of yore.

In Hamilton there has been quite a controversy in this regard. The grocers wrote to the Food Controller and received a reply that they considered entitled them to continue selling pork and beans. The Chief of Police, however, being evidently very enthusiastic about the conservation of canned goods, stated that he would prosecute any merchant caught selling baked beans.

The order-in-council reads as follows: I. On and after the twenty-fourth day of August, 1917, and until further notice, except as hereinafter provided, the sale and purchase of peas, beans, tomatoes, beets, celery, corn, spinach, rhubarb and pumpkins preserved in cans, glass jars or any other container, commonly known as "canned vegetables," is prohibited.

II. The above regulations shall not apply: (a) when such vegetables are sold by the manufacturer to the wholesaler, or by the wholesaler or jobber to the retailer; or (b) when such vegetables are to be consumed in lumber camps, mining camps, construction camps, and dining cars, provided that they will be consumed within said lumber camps, mining camps, construction camps and dining cars, and not resold.

(c) when such vegetables form a part of the contents of a can, glass jar, bottle or other container, and are sold as soups, catsup or pickles.

A GIFTED VIOLINIST

Miss Menges is highly gifted and an accomplished violinist. She has a tone of great power, of emotional warmth and, searching expressiveness that is eloquent of a glowing and ardent temperament. An admirable technical equipment; energy and elasticity of bowing; a precision upon the fingerboard that maintains the accuracy of her intonation even through her most strenuous outbursts. Her style is one of dashing impetuosity that is stirring and contagious. The Times.

Miss Menges will be at the Brant Avenue church again on Thursday evening.

AT THE GRAND

Charles J. Carter, the American tragedian, who will open his season of engagement at the Grand Opera House, Sept. 14-15, matinee Saturday, has had a varied career. He says that touring the world one sees and hears much more as a public man than otherwise. "A magician's life is sometimes fraught with all that is strange and amusing," said Mr. Carter, in an interview, yesterday. "For instance, when I was in Manila, Father Finnegon, the chaplain of the famous Bilibid prison, arranged for me to present an entertainment; for the 3000 or more native and white prisoners in this wonderful penal institution. Imagine these unfortunate men and women who like a small army marched out and squatted on the ground like so many children with a handful of guards over them, and cannon trained on from the walls of the prison. When I treated them to a kind of a drink or beverage from the same fountain and afterwards broke the bottles and found therein a live guinea pig—their amusement and consternation knew no bounds. Just in the middle of performance a rain storm began, but these men and women laughed at the wonders they saw, and were drenched to the skin. I felt that I left Manila that the performance was still the greatest theme of conversation among the prisoners. In Chicago, Warden White had me to the prison to entertain his charges, and I remember on one occasion that I presented my entertainment, my most attentive and enthusiastic auditor was Johan Hoch, who was awaiting sentence of death, and who was hanged three days later."

PARAMOUNT POINTERS

Vivian Martin, Paramount star, is going in for a little of this character-ization stuff at which George Boban has been so successful. Miss Martin is now hard at work on an Irish production in the direction of Robert Thornby. There will be an angle in the parlor and no shillalah hanging above the mantle piece, but there will be a good deal of hogpen scattered around the studio before the picture is completed.

Tom Forman, who has done such clever work in recent Paramount pictures, took the examination for the rank of non-commissioned officer in the Coast Artillery Federal Reserve in which he enlisted, some time ago, and passed with a rating of 42. Forman is already a private of the first class with special rating as a gunner. He seems to be hitting the "bull" head with the same accuracy which marked his hitting of the popular eye as a screen player.

Julian Ellinge, who is transferring his feminine impersonations from the stage to the screen via Paramount pictures, made a great success in his appearance at the benefit given for the family of the late Maitland Davies, dramatic critic of the Los Angeles Tribune and Express. Mary Pickford and Cecil B. De Mille were box holders at the performance.

Miss Mary Grantham of the city, spent over Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. Henry Phillips. Mr. Henry Phillips visited at Fronta on Sunday. Mrs. E. Pay Your Debt To Your Defenders

Turn Your Luxuries Into Comforts For Those Who Have Sacrificed Most.

"Self-sacrifice, self-denial and service lie at the basis of the highest personal and national development."
Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance.

Is it nothing to you that men from all round you have sacrificed home and salary, safety and life, to defend your home as well as their own?
Is it nothing to you that their wives and families trembly scan each casualty list, and pale at the step of the postman or telegraph messenger?
Can you see others giving their dearest, without feeling that you must do something yourself? Do you wonder what to do?
You can at least save—and lend your savings to the nation. Canada needs every dollar her loyal sons and daughters can spare, to meet the growing expenses of the struggle.
Every dollar you invest in Canadian War Savings Certificates helps the nation to deal generously with those who are defending you.
Certificates in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, repayable in three years, may be purchased at any Bank or Money Order Post Office at $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively. This means over 5% interest—making them a profitable as well as a patriotic investment.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

His misgivings were measurably corroborated by the attitude toward Sally adopted by Mrs. Standish, in her capacity as close friend, foil, and confidant of Mrs. Artemus. In the course of those three days the girl had not been insensible to intimations of a strong, if as yet restrained, animus in the mind of the older woman. In alarm and regret she did her futile best to discourage this gentleman without being overtly discourteous. She could hardly do more, impossible to explain to her benefactress that he was not the man of her heart's choice.

Unfortunately, Trego was indifferent to tempered rebuffs.

"If you don't mind," he interrupted one of Sally's protracted snerls, "I'll just stick around and keep on enjoying the society of a human being. Of course, I know these others are all human in their way, but it isn't your way or mine. Perhaps it only seems so to me because I don't understand 'em. It's quite possible, One thing's sure, they don't understand me. At least, the women don't. I can get along with the men—most of 'em. They're not a bad lot, if immature. You can stand a lot of foolishness from children once you realize their grown-upishness is only make-believe.

"They don't know how to enjoy themselves," he expatiated; "they've got too much of everything, including spare time. What's a holiday to anybody who has never done a stroke of work? You and I know the difference; we can appreciate the fun of loafing between spells of work; but these people have got no standards to measure their fun by, so it's all the same to them—fast, rapid, monotonous, unless they season it up with cocktails and carrying on; and even that gets to have all the same flavor of tastelessness after a while. That's why so many of these women are going in for the suffragette business; it isn't that they care a whoop for the vote; it's because they want the excitement of wanting something they haven't got and can't get by signing a check for it."

"You're prejudiced," the girl objected. "You're at loose-ends yourself, idle and restless, and it disturbs your mental vision. For my part, I've never met more charming people."

"That's your stigmatism," he contended. "You've been wanting to back and mental vision. For my part, I've never met more charming people."

"Wouldn't it be more kind of you to leave me to discover the sawdust for myself?"

"It unquestionably would, and I ought to be kicked," Trego agreed heartily. "I only started this in fun, anyway, to make you see why it is you look so good to me—different—so sound and sane and wholesome—that I just naturally can't help pestering you."

She did not know what to say to that. She suffered him.

Her duties as secretary to Mrs. Gosnold proved, when inaugurated the second morning after her arrival, to be at once light and interesting. Her employer was conservative enough in an unmannerly age to insist on answering all personal correspondence with her own hand, what passed between her and her few intimates was known to herself alone. But she carried on, in addition, an animated correspondence with numerous friends, friends, antique dealers, charities, professional poor relations, social workers, and others of that ilk—which proved tremendously diverting to her amantissis, especially when it transpired that Mrs. Gosnold had a mind and temper of her own, together with a vocabulary amply adequate to her powers of ironic observation. This last gift came out strongly in her diary, a daily record of her various interests and activities which she dictated, interspersing dry details with many an acid annotation.

When all was finished Sally found she had been busied for little more than two hours, and was given to understand that her duties would be made more burdensome only by the addition of a little light bookkeeping when she settled down to the routine of regular employment.

Of the alleged high play, at cards or otherwise, she had yet, at this third midnight, to see any real evidence. Mrs. Gosnold, most undoubtedly played a stiff game of bridge, but she played it with a mastery and profound study; her losses, when she lost, were minimized. There was there ever a sign of cheating that came under Sally's observation. Everybody played who didn't dance, and vice versa, but nobody seemed to play for the mere sake of winning money. And while the influx of week-end guests by the Friday evening boat brought the number at Gosnold House up to twenty-two, they were all apparently amiable, self-centered folk of long and intimate acquaintance with one another as well as with their hostess and all her neighbors on the island. Of that dubious crew of adventurers she had been led to expect there was never a hint.

Such provision as their hostess made for her guests entertainment and amusement, they partook of according to individual whim; they commanded breakfasts for all hours of the morning, and they lunched at home and dined abroad, or reversed the order, or sought all their meals in the homes of neighboring friends, quite without notice or apology. Such was the modish manner with them that that summer of 1914, a sedulous avoidance of anything resembling acknowledgment of obligation to those who entertained. Indeed, if one interpreted their attitude at its face value, the shoe was on the other foot.

And they brimmed the alleged lowliness of their days with an extraordinary amount of running about. There was incessant shifting of interest from one focal point to another of the colony, a perpetually restless swarming hither and yon to some new center of distraction, a continual kaleidoscopic parade of the most wonderful and extravagant clothing the world has ever seen.

To the outsider, of course, all this was not merely entertaining and

HEREDITARY DISEASES.

If you had an ancestor who died of some disease that was considered hereditary, and you found yourself showing symptoms of that disease, wouldn't you march to the doctor double quick?

Or suppose we put it less strongly than that. Suppose he did not die of the disease but only suffered much discomfort, lost a great deal of happiness, became obnoxious to others on account of it. Even in that case you'd rush for a doctor, wouldn't you? The symptoms cropping out.

If it Tore At Their Very Sinews. And yet how calmly people often take it when they find their parents' predominant faults cropping out in them. They are in a position to know just how much unhappiness; just how much loss of efficiency, perhaps. Those faults were responsible for. Some better than the others ought to be ready to pounce on such tendencies in themselves and tear them out if it tore at the very sinews of their being.

Middle age often brings a strong family look in people who, when young, looked little like either father or mother. Likewise it brings out family tendencies—the good and the bad. You Have a Map—Use It. One should watch oneself. And since one has been well provided with a map of one's temperamental dangers, why not use it? I know a man whose mother was cautious to a degree that made life miserable for herself and for those about her. He knows just how much unhappiness caution goes to seed in a man. And yet as he approaches middle age he is permitting himself to grow more and more cautious. If anyone says anything about it he says, "I'm only sensible. I'm not like her."

What Habits Shall You Bequeath Your Children? Rancy ignoring such a danger signal!

What are your family faults, the faults that bother you even in your beloved father and mother? Are you permitting yourself to form these same faulty habits to pass on to your children? Can you stop yourself and leave your children a heritage even better than your own? These are questions every young to middle aged person should ask himself once in a while.

Good Night Stories

WHAT MADE BETTY CHANGE HER MIND

Betty loved to chew gum even better than she liked to eat candy. She enjoyed it most when she could chew it fast, and she didn't seem to care how she looked.

Her mamma tried to teach Betty to chew the gum with less display. "Betty, dear, you shouldn't chew like that. Only cows chew that way, not nice little girls," said Betty's mamma one morning, as she watched Betty.

"Cows don't chew gum," exclaimed Betty, laughing at the idea. "Oh, yes, they do, and just the way you do," replied mamma.

Betty thought this very funny. She had seen many cows, but she never remembered seeing any of them chewing gum.

"It must be very funny," laughed Betty, and she ran to pack her doll's things in the suit case, for mamma had promised to take her to visit grandmamma.

The next day when the train pulled into the station grandmamma was standing on the platform to meet Betty and her mamma.

"Grandma, do your cows chew gum?" were Betty's first words after grandmamma kissed her.

"Gum?" exclaimed grandmamma, and Betty's mamma laughed. "Why, yes! Mamma said—"

"Oh, she meant their cud," said grandmamma.

Nothing more was said about cows and grandmamma and mamma, for Betty got all about it, but Betty didn't.

Just as soon as they reached grandmamma's place Betty threw off her hat and ran out to the barnyard. There wasn't a cow there.

"Hello, Uncle Jim! Where are the cows?" cried Betty to her uncle, who was working in the garden. "In the meadow over yonder," replied Uncle Jim, after he had kissed her.

Betty hurried to the meadow and climbed on the fence. The cows were scattered over the meadow. Some were eating and some were lying in the shade of the trees, and Betty called out to the great brown cow under the maple tree chewing lazily with her eyes half closed. So Betty slipped down on the other side of the fence and ran over closer so she could watch her better. The old cow was chewing at a terrible rate and Betty was ashamed she chewed like that.

"If I look like that—" laughed Betty.

Betty looked up. Toward her was rushing a great, big bull. His head almost touching the ground, and Betty fled back to the fence and Uncle Jim pulled her over just as the angry bull crashed into the boards.

"Never go in there again!" cried Uncle Jim. "Had he caught you he would have tossed you sky high on his horns."

Mamma and Grandmamma came running out of the house. "What did you go into that field for, child?" asked grandmamma.

"To watch the brown cow chew gum," answered Betty.

Then mamma had to explain to grandmamma why Betty was so interested in seeing a cow chew, and Uncle Jim and she had a good laugh, now that the danger was passed.

Betty ran upstairs and pulled a chair before the mirror. She chewed her gum as she always did—then she laughed.

"Dear, dear! I do look as funny as that old cow." Then Betty tried to mamma's way.

"That's better," cried mamma from the hallway, where she and grandmamma had been watching Betty.

"Yes, indeed, to see anything in her again about the way she chewed at her gum."

LADY'S APRON.

By Anabel Worthington.

It is hard to believe that this good looking apron is all in one piece, but nevertheless it is true. No. 8428 has the back cut in one with the front, and the extension of the back forms the belt, which fastens at the front. It is light, easy to put on, and is just the thing to slip on over a good dress, as it will not crush what is worn underneath. The apron fastens at the back with a button or strings. The housewife whose watchword is efficiency will see to it that she has a number of these handy slips-on.

The apron pattern, No. 8428, is cut in one size only. It requires 2 1/2 yards 36 inch material, with 7/8 yards bias seam binding.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

Hay Fever Disease of Nerve and Not of Nose—Frost Kills It?

(Detroit News)

Of course you understand that hay fever comes from golden rod, and as golden rod is very late around Detroit this year there will be no hay fever. Ha-ha-ha! he has his head-on-the-laughter. Mocking, imply, you're another laughter. Because no matter what you understand or how late golden rod is, hay fever is here just the same, dab the bad thing anyhow.

A few weeks ago Detroit was flooded with a little booklet, cute little male gray booklets, and they were gotten out by the Hay Fever Association of America and every blame member of the thing has got, has had or will have hay fever. It was a depressing little book and held out no more hope than a second mortgage. There was a lot of discussion of symptoms and some suggestions to resorts in the book and it was supposed to be almost nothing, but there was an air of cynical doubt a lack of enthusiastic belief in the resorts, and it was plain to see that the members were in pessimistic a gang as ever took out a charter and invented a title.

Detroit has feverites are many. They can be told by their little red noses and the Chastiquis salutes they give themselves every other minute and the bulge in their pockets indicating relays of handkerchiefs. Speaking of handkerchiefs, there is a fortune awaiting for the man who will put a hay fever handkerchief on the market about this time of year. It should be about a cross between a napkin and a sheet in size and of very, oh, very, soft texture. Once a man with hay fever had a birthday in the middle of the almanac and a maiden aunt sent him a dozen handkerchiefs as a present but they were maiden aunt sort of handkerchiefs, neat but small. They had a very exciting time at the homie trial and the jury had a foreman with hay fever, so they found him not guilty and—

They Even Fear Pictures

But that is aside from the question. For years lots of Detroit men have believed that hay fever and golden rod have a community of interests and they bitterly opposed the use of the flower as the national blossom. His picture is enough, sometimes, to get the victim started, psychic suggestion and all that sort of jolly rot, you know. Now that golden rod has had a crop failure it seemed to prove that the old idea was mere superstition. (Note: Don't send the editor golden rod to prove him wrong. He has nothing to do with this piece and there are several convalescents about the office.)

This, by the way, is a yearly story, and it has been the custom heretofore to call up a physician or two, and have him say something about hay fever. They never said anything very brilliant and generally were cross, because they were both very old and very custom, so one was called this time, and what do you think, the rascal had it himself!

It was clear and concise and told me that Gray's Anatomy, or whatever it was that Gray wrote in addition to his "Elegy in this Physical Churchyard," ever did. This physician added that he thought it was "dabbling his foot in a mab and spoofing him at this." Then he sneezed in the telephone and acted as if a draft were blowing in through the transmitter, so the conversation came to abrupt end.

Last year the man wrote the yearly hay fever piece was highly amused because the artist who had to illustrate it had up his residence and made him cry in his ink to draw things about it, but he was so cross and sulky and indignant and peevish about it, that he never drew a picture. Oh, yes; something should be said about the frost killing hay fever. That is a firmly-rotated belief.

Dr. A. S. DeWitt, who is a diagnostician in the Kresge building, tells what strange and weird diseases are that are trying to fool a regular practitioner, explained this. He said the frost killed the weeds and they became trampled under foot and the pollen was mixed with the earth and lost or died or something. He let something else out too, that was interesting. In other words, it is a nerve not a nose disease. In the last year or so they have been experimenting with a vaccine, he said, a sort of antitoxin affair that is injected into the victim before the hay fever gets him altogether, and it has worked in some cases—and in others it doesn't. Apple and peach tree pollen is just as bad for some persons as golden rod, and in fact like any other neurotic-based disease, it depends on the individual just what he will pick out for a store and fauna bugaboo.

Please the Majority

If you have hay fever you probably have read this with the same degree of fascination that you would watch a cannibal king chew the scalp of his mother-in-law, you heartily disliked reading about what you think is a most serious thing treated in a manner altogether frivolous. But, you see, the majority of folks have not got it, and so them it's as funny as watching the other fellow slip on a banana peel.

And the majority must be pleased.

Parry Sound, Sept. 12.—This town was seriously threatened with destruction by fire this morning when at 1:45 a. m. the big saw mill of the Parry Sound Lumber Company was burned to the ground.
