POETRY.

A Prayer.

I ask not wealth, but power to take

And use the things I have aright;

Not years, but wisdom that shall make

My life a profit and delight.

I ask not that for me the plan

Of good and ill be set aside;

But that the common lot of man

Be nobly borne and glorified.

I know I may not always keep

My steps in places green and sweet

Nor find the pathway of the deep

A path of safety for my feet;

But pray that when the tempest's breath

Shall fiercely sweep my way about,

I make not shipwreck of my faith

In the unsheltered sea of doubt;

And that, though it be mine to know

How hard the stoniest pillow seems

God's angels still may come and go

About the places of my dreams.

—Florence Curry.

SELECT STORY.

Wolfe the Ranger.

CHAPTER XXV.—Continued.

"I don't know. Suppose we say that it was Lord Brakespear, the marquis," and he fixed his keen eyes piercingly upon the man's face.

Probably Ned had prepared himself for the shock, for he kept his self-possession.

"The marquis!" he said, with a laugh. "That's likely, ain't it? What should I want to see the marquis for?"

"Why, for money! Blackmail, of course!" said Rawson Fenton, blandly.

Long Ned shook his head.

"And why should he—a swell like that—give me money? You're the wrong scent, Mr Fenton. Better give it up, and let me go. I'm getting tired of being badgered and baited."

"I dare say. No; I shall have to trouble you for a little while longer,

Ned. I'll tell you why you are likely to get money from the marquis if you want to know."

"Oh, I ain't curious," smiled Ned.

"No? How different to me, now!

But come. The reason why the marquis should give you money is because he was the leader of the rangers!"

Long Ned's face went white, and he frang to the door and set his back to it, panting and quivering.

Rawson Fenton drew a long breath and smiled.

"Right the first time, eh?" he said, with a ring of sardonic triumph in his voice.

Ned turned the key in the door and advanced upon him.

"Do you know what you're saying!"

he said, in a hoarse whisper, as if the very walls had ears, and great drops of sweat stood on his forehead.

Rawson Fenton was trembling with excitement, but his face was calm and set.

"Do you know what you're hinting at?" demanded Long Ned. "Him, the marquis! One of us! A great swell like that! Yah! and he tried to laugh, but the attempt was a failure, and he kever it.

"Spare yourself, my friend," said

Rawson Fenton. "You gave yourself away just now. It wasn't a guess,

Ned; I knew it."

"You knew it?"

Rawson Fenton nodded.

"Yes," he said, coolly. "I recognized him as easily as I recognised you."

He sneered. "He must be a wonderful man," he said.

"He is," exclaimed Long Ned, promptly. "There ain't another man like him anywhere."

"Which is rather a good thing for people with property to lose," said Rawson Fenton, caustically. "It is a pity that such a wonderful man should spend the rest of his life shut up from his fellows. A thousand pities!"

Long Ned watched the hard face anxiously.

"Mr Fenton—" he began, but Rawson Fenton held up his hand.

"Wait," he said; "let me think."

A silence fell upon the room, as with his hands thrust in his pockets, and his eyes bent on the ground, Rawson

Fenton's brain went through its work.

Then he looked up.

"You wanted money of the marquis?" he asked.

Long Ned hung his head.

"Yes, I did," he growled. "I'm without a penny, and—"

"You have had money from him before?" asked Rawson Fenton, keenly.

Long Ned nodded reluctantly.

"Yes," he replied, with something like a groan. "He gave it to me without the asking—a lot, and I—I'm a curled fool—I lost it."

"Drink—play—what?"

"I—I drink a bit," said Ned, moodily, "and I had the worst kind of luck

as ever a man—What are you driving at, Mr Fenton?" he broke off.

Rawson Fenton smiled.

"I was thinking what a nice kind of life you were leading, your dearly loved friend," he said, with a sneer.

The man's baggard face grew red.

"I wouldn't have come to bother him if I could have helped it, but—when a man's starving. And most like he wouldn't have given me any. He said he wouldn't, and he always keeps his word."

"And then you would have gone to the nearest police station and split upon him, and got the reward, if you could,"

said Rawson Fenton, with a hard laugh.

The man struck the table with his blinded fist.

"I'd sooner have gone and died in the nearest ditch!"

"Noble, but foolish," retorted Rawson Fenton. "But you need not die in the ditch, Ned. If you want money,

I'll give it you."

"You!" exclaimed Ned, with wide open eyes; then they grew suspicious, and he said, sharply: "What should you give me money for? To split on him?" he buttoned up his coat and flushed his face. "You can keep it still you rot, Mr Fenton!" he said, with an oath.

"No," said Rawson Fenton, calmly.

"If I give you money, Ned, it will be to hold your tongue!"

The man eyed him half suspiciously.

"To hold my tongue," he said.

"Then you mean to let him loose?"

"You're—you're a gentleman, Mr Fenton. I might know it."

"Thank you," said Rawson Fenton.

"I'm obliged for your good opinion,

Ned. Yes, I will help you, but only on one condition."

"What is it?"

"That you leave here at once, and go where I tell you, and stop there."

Long Ned watched his face.

"Go on, guv'nor," he said, attentively.

"You are hard up, you say. No means of living?"

He shook his head.

"How can such a chap as me get a living?"

"Difficult, I dare say, if you want to keep out of jail. Well, for the sake of old times," he smiled. "I will help you. I will tell you what I will do.

Take my offer or leave it. If you take it, we remain good friends; refuse it, and—"

"Let's hear it," said Ned, roughly.

Rawson Fenton took some gold from his waistcoat pocket, and selecting three sovereigns held them in his outstretched palm, right before the man's eyes, which instantly became glued to them.

"I will give you three now. Go to London and settle there. Send me your address, and on every Saturday I will send you the same amount. Three pounds a week is a little over one hundred and fifty pounds a year. Not a bad salary for doing nothing, my friend."

"For doing nothing!" repeated Long

Ned, suspiciously.

Rawson Fenton looked at him with a calm smile.

"Exactly! for doing nothing but holding your tongue, and you were quite prepared to do that. You'd sooner die in a ditch, you know. Living on three pounds a week punctually paid is better than dying in a ditch, is it not?"

"But—bit—what are you doing it for?" said Ned, knitting his brow. "I don't see—"

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., JULY 31, 1896.

Local and Provincial.

Quite a number of Wolfvillians are in Halifax this week attending the Carnival.

Mr Wellington Neary, formerly of Union Street, Gasperau, died on Wednesday morning, aged 80 years.

A large number of tourists have this week visited the Hotel American in order to get a glimpse of Mr Deane's "old French coffin."

Haymakers are now busy. The weather has not been very favorable but notwithstanding a large quantity of very excellent hay has been got up.

The ladies of the Brooklyn Baptist church are to hold a "Cherry Festival" in the hall at Avonport this evening, when a good time will no doubt be had.

Mr Henry Roscoe, of Long Island, had the misfortune on Monday of last week to cut off two fingers of his right hand with the scythe of his mowing machine.

Mr Harry Palmer, of the same place, lost the third finger of his right hand on Friday, in the same manner.

We have been requested to announce that the Executive of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance have been compelled to make a sudden change in the locality and date of holding their Quarterly Session.

Owing to taking off of boat between Weymouth and Westport, Digby Co., it has been decided to hold session at Wolfville, on Tuesday, August 11th, at 3 p. m.

Mr D. A. Munro has contracted to build two residences for Mr J. S. Forsyth, who recently purchased the property lately owned by Mr J. D. Keddy, corner Acadia street and High land avenue.

Mr Forsyth has sold the dwelling erected by Mr Keddy, and will build one house on Highland avenue and another on Acadia street. Both will be good residences and will add to the appearance of that part of the town.

We understand Mr Forsyth will reside in one and rent the other.

Mr D. F. Reame, of Montreal, who has secured the sole right for the sale of the Kitchman Woven Wire Fence Machine for the provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, was in town for several days last week, endeavoring to dispose of the right for Kings County. The machine was on exhibition on the American House lawn where a number of feet of fence was made, to show how the machine worked.

No one in Wolfville, however, seemed inclined to venture the required $500, so Mr Reame departed on Saturday for Kentville.

The Baptist District Meeting was held at New Minas on the 28th inst. The reports from the churches were of an encouraging nature. Dr. T. A. Higgins presented a valuable paper, sketching briefly the early history of the Baptists in the Maritime Provinces, and showing the contrast between the state denominations of 50 years ago and that of the present time.

Pastor D. H. Simpson, of Berwick, showed in an able address what was needed for the promotion of the interests of the churches. An interesting missionary meeting was held in the evening. The speakers for the occasion were, C. H. Martell, of Casco, D. H. Simpson, of Berwick, and M. P. Freeman, of Billtown.

Beach Echoes.

The attendance at the Beach is increasing as the season advances.

Mrs Vaughn, of Wolfville, and Miss Flo Borden, of Avonport, spent a very enjoyable week here this season.

Jack Jones and Avery DeWitt are in camp at the Beach this week.

Mr and Mrs Gustavus Bishop and Miss Blanche Bishop, of Greenwich, who have been rusticated here for the past ten days, went home on Wednesday last.

Mrs Edward Woodman and family returned home on Wednesday, from a two weeks stay here.

The Naptha Launch made the run from the mouth of the creek to the pier a distance of 4 1/2 miles—showing a speed of 9 1/2 miles an hour.

The Wolfville Band will play at the Beach this afternoon at 4 o'clock. There will be a good chance to bathe as the tide serves at 5.34 o'clock.

Mr W. J. Gates, P. G. W. A. of the Grand Division Sons of Temperance of Nova Scotia, was made Most Worthy Associate of the National Division of North America at Washington, July 7th, the position of the late President J. M. Cramp, D. D., of Acadia College, Hon. Neal Dow, of Maine, and other temperance leaders. He was nominated for W. J., but declined the great honor on the ground that older members in the Nova Scotia Grand Division were better entitled to the distinction. The present incumbent has been a member of the order for over 42 years.

Next meeting in Temperance Hall Thursday, Aug. 13th, at 3.30 p. m.

She was a Pioneer in the Movement. HER DAY THE FOREMOST TEMPERANCE WOMAN IN CANADA—SKETCH OF HER EVENTFUL CAREER.

Toronto, July 20.—Mrs Letitia Youmans, the pioneer woman temperance worker of Canada, has, after years of great physical suffering, been called to her rest.

She was educated at the Burlington Academy, Hamilton, and graduated with high honors at the age of twenty-one.

Her early days, those who know her say she manifested in a remarkable degree what have since become the most prominent traits of her character, an intense desire for knowledge.

An unwavering determination to devote herself to the realization of a high ideal of life, and an intense sympathy with sorrowing and suffering humanity.

But she always took an extremely practical view of whatever most interested her. This prevented her sympathy from being dissipated into mere sentimentality.

While at the academy she was chiefly instrumental in enlarging the school library, in projecting and sustaining a school periodical, and in setting on foot and maintaining in operation many schemes of active benevolence.

For two years she taught in the academy where she studied and then at the age of twenty-three was married to Mr Youmans.

Mr Youmans, who died some thirteen years ago, is described as a dignified, genial gentleman who always accompanied his wife wherever she addressed public meetings.

It was a speech made by the Hon. Neal Dow at her home in Pictou, over forty years ago, that convinced Mrs Youmans that the liquor traffic was the gigantic "crime of crimes."

And that reason, enlightened conscience and wise statesmanship all demanded its prohibition.

But it was the trumpet call of the "Woman's Temperance Crusade" that finally roused her to active public work.

She had already organized a Band of Hope, numbering hundreds of the children of the neighborhood, and the first autumn of the memorable crusade year (1874) Mrs Youmans unheralded and uncredited, appeared in Trinity M. E. Church, Cincinnati, at the first anniversary meeting of the Woman's National Christian Temperance Union.

A Trouble That Makes the Lives of Thousands Miserable.

The Only Rational Treatment is to Remove the Cause of the Trouble—One Who Suffered Greatly Shows How This Can be Done at a Comparatively Trifling Expense.

The life of a dyspeptic is beyond doubt one of the most unhappy lots that can befall humanity.

There is always a feeling of over-fullness and distress after eating, no matter how carefully the food may be prepared.

And yet her content kept getting worse, and she was at last seriously aggravated by palpitation of the heart brought on by the stomach troubles.

She lost all relish for food and grew so weak that it was with difficulty she could go about the house, and do her share of the necessary housework.

At times she was simply impossible for her to take food as every mouthful produced a feeling of oppression.

At last she read in a newspaper of a cure in a similar case through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

After using three or four boxes there was a great improvement in her condition and after the use of eight boxes Mrs Worrell says, "I can assure you I am now a well woman."

These pills are a blood builder and nerve restorer, and there is no trouble whose origin is due to either of these causes that they will not cure.

Joe—How so?

Jim—He has invented a pocket flask that looks like a whisk broom and a corkscrew that resembles a nail brush.

Keep Minards Liniment in the House.

Mis Chicago—The papers say that Li Hung Chang expresses more curiosity to see Chicago than any other American city.

Mis St. Louis—No, on account of your immense feet.

Tired Young Man—I'm all worn out. This thing of working sixteen hours a day is enough to kill any man.

The Other Fellow—What do you work at?

Tired Young Man—I'm a reporter for the Eight Hour Advocate.

Ask for Minards and take no other.

Mrs Wills—What are you taking that phonograph and seven cylinders on your journey for?

Old Wills—They contain seven of your 4 a. m. greetings at the head of the stairs, one for each day in the week. You see, I shan't miss you darling.

Uncle Hiram—No wonder them bicycle fellers is all bent over like monkeys.

Aunt Hulda—I'd like to know how you know about it, Hiram.

Uncle Hiram—I don't much, I'll allow, but they say the best on 'em has got rheumatic tize.

Minards Liniment is used by Physicians.

Perry Patette—The Lord is purty good to the human race, even you and me.

Wayworn Watson—I'd like fer to know how?

Well, fer instance, in making us so kin swaller our beer down. 'Spose we had to go to the exertion of swallowin' up, like the horse doos water?

If there is anything that I covet, said Mr Spickles' wife, it is a good voice.

I know that it is very wrong to be envious, but I can't help it when I hear another woman singing.

And as Mr Spickles is a notoriously mean man, nobody was surprised to hear him reply:

That is perfectly natural. If you could sing you'd be sitting up there with the choir, where you could see what every woman had on without turning your head.

How much for a photograph? he queried, as he entered the room at the head of the stairs.

My dear sir, you have made a mistake replied the occupant of the office. 'Thy is a dental office, while the photographer is next door.

Oh, you pull teeth.

Yes, sir.

How much?

Fifty cents apiece.

A Dozen Conundrums.

What is that which no one wishes to have and no one wishes to lose? A bald head.

Why is a gatepost like a potato? Because they are both put into the ground to propagate.

Why are coals in London like dogs given up to plunder? Because they are sacked and burned.

What is that which is often brought to the table, always eaten and never eaten? A pack of cards.

What moral lesson does a weathercock on a church steeple continually inculcate? 'Tis vain to a spite.

Why shouldn't a boy throw dust in his teacher's eyes? Because it may occasion harm to the pupil.

What are the most unseemly things in the world? Milk stores, for you never see two of them together.

A Billville Incident.

We are about to have to record an annoying if not serious accident that happened to our wife yesterday while she was returning from the grocery store of Messrs. Kracker & Butters, whose half column advertisement will be found in another page of this paper and who have just received a fresh invoice of those delicious salt mackerel and California dried apples so popular in Billville.

While directly in front of the post-office our wife slipped on an orange peel, carelessly thrown on the sidewalk by some thoughtless if not malicious person, and as our wife was burdened with a half-gallon pitcher of molasses in one hand and a paper bag containing two dozen eggs in the other, it was impossible to maintain her equilibrium and fell heavily flat on her back, drenching herself with the molasses in an annoying and painful manner and breaking the pitcher, while not a whole egg remained in the bag.

Kind friends hastened to the assistance of our wife, and she was carried into the drug store of Messrs. Fillymore & Pineda, whose advertisement of their new stock of toilet articles and fine stationery will be found on our third page, and whose attentions to our wife were in every way gentlemanly and polite.

Aside from a pair of badly dressed elbows and the annoyance of getting her hair full of egg and the shock to her nervous system, our wife was uninjured.

Our thanks are due to Messrs. Hedy & Fudge, whose full-column ad. will be found on our first page, as well as to the kindness to the person who threw the orange peel on the pavement not to do so again, for our wife might have been very seriously hurt. She has nearly recovered at this writing and expects to spend Friday with our mother-in-law over in Bensenville and we will probably go over to tea and return with our wife.

—Billville Banner.

The young physician was tired when he as settled back in his easy chair, and his pretty wife of only a month or two took a seat beside him and asked affectionately:

And has my little wife been lonely? Oh, no, she said, anxiously; at least not very. I've something to buy myself.

Indeed! he said. What is it? Oh, I'm organizing a class. A lot of young girls and married women are in it, and we're teaching each other to cook.

What do you do with the things you cook? he asked interestedly.

Oh, we send them to the neighbors just to show them what we can do. There's one lodging-house gets most of it.

It's great fun.

Dear little woman, he said, leaning over and kissing her. Thoughtful of your husband's practice, always anxious to extend it.

Its Fame Spreading.

A New Remedy in General Use in Manitoba and the Northwest.

WINNIPEG, July 27.—The effects of the regular wave of sickness which sweeps over this portion of the Dominion in the spring are noticeable in the increasing amount of druggists' ads. There has been quite a run on the kidney remedy now so well known under the name of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The recovery from Bright's disease of Mr. Arthur Coley, of Somerset, through the use, an account of which appeared in the papers, gave a considerable impetus to the sale, and the remedy has become indispensable in many Manitoba households, its fame having penetrated into the remotest parts of the province and North West Territories.

No matter what I do, said the young man with the wistful look, I have the same ill-luck.

Can't you get any of your poems accepted? No.

Why don't you try a different kind of composition? I did. I wrote a check the other day. But even that was thrown into the waste basket.
