Deceived AND Disowned BUT True as Steel!

CHAPTER XXXI. PRIDE BEFORE A FALL. "Well, well, lad," he said; "we shall see—the old man's always done his best for you; he meant it all for the best. You've always been happy with me, haven't you, lad?"

Reuben would blame him—perhaps hate him, for thus having defrauded him of his inheritance. Indeed, so gloomy were the thoughts that passed through the old man's mind, that more than once the temptation assailed him to keep silent even now; but his love for Reuben was strong enough to overcome it.

Their way took them past the Grange, and the evening was fast drawing in. In the lane in which Reuben had been accused of poaching, they heard voices from the seat on the other side of the hedge; and Wynter placed his finger on his lip, as he crasped Reuben's arm tightly. The two stopped short; their footsteps had evidently been unheard on the soft, clayey road, and Reuben immediately recognized the speakers. They were old Griley and Morgan Verner! He could hear every word distinctly.

"Master Morgan," said old Griley, in his harsh, croaking voice, "I've been speaking to your father! You don't know what a mess we're in."

"I ought to by this time," snarled Morgan. "You've talked about nothing else ever since you met me."

"Yes, yes, I know," said old Griley soothingly. "It's not your fault, Master Morgan, though you have flung the money about, too. It's the squire's speculations are the worst. Anyhow, between one thing and the other, there's not another penny to be got till you've married Miss Olive."

"I tell you she won't marry me for another two months," growled Morgan. Reuben's heart leaped within him as he heard this, and he looked at Wynter with shining eyes.

with a wicked chuckle. "You'll manage her right enough. She won't know there's anything wrong till you're well past the Grange. Then tell her that you're determined to take her away, and that, if she goes quietly, you'll marry her; if not—well, you know what you said to the other—pretty Polly."

"What am I to do then?" asked Morgan, evidently impressed with the other's villainous scheme.

"Why, I'll arrange with the coachman to drive you to a friend's house—a person, though as poor as myself; a special license will do the rest; and then you'll have her money in your pocket, and no dirty settlement to trouble you."

"Hold your tongue!" retorted Morgan. "Don't rake up old times; I don't want to remember anything about Polly, poor little fool. As if I could marry her—a man in my position!"

CHAPTER XXXII. THE ABDUCTION.

ON the following morning, the day on which Olive was to be torn ruthlessly from her home, Reuben was up with the dawn, and drove over to Sedley. From there he went back to Bingleigh Hall, but what plans he had made he refused to disclose till later in the day, saying that he wanted to see what would happen first.

Wynter was inclined to be hurt at his reticence; but, knowing his own secret, he soon got over his ill humor, and waited patiently for the night to come.

Meanwhile, Olive was happily enough employed at Bingleigh Hall. She had resolutely put aside all thoughts of the dark future which still lay before her, however much she might endeavor to delay its advent.

Neither Sir Edwin nor Olive had come into contact with the Cravendens, for when the Seymours had returned to Bingleigh, Viscount Cravenden, with his wife and mother, had already gone to town. So few were the servants at the Hall, that the gossip of his marriage and return had not yet filtered through.

Sir Edwin had received an urgent message to come to the Grange, and, feeling much better, had accepted the invitation to dinner which accompanied it. Olive's name was not mentioned; and, being only too glad to escape the company of Morgan, who, she knew from the faithful Topsy, had arrived at the Grange on the preceding day, she had persuaded Sir Edwin to go alone. When the time came for him to leave, the old man was seized with a strange reluctance.

"Good heavens! What brutes! What's to be done?" "Get to Bingleigh first," said Wynter, practically. "We can either warn Sir Edwin not to go—or Miss Seymour herself. The scoundrels!" he muttered, as they plodded along. "Not satisfied with getting the estate into their clutches, they mean to insult that poor girl. Thank Heaven, we heard them!" "Perhaps we shan't be believed," Reuben said moodily, as they neared the village. "Impossible," said Wynter. "We

GERMAN SAILORS GIVE TROUBLE.

LONDON, Jan. 25. German naval engineer, with the rank of lieutenant, who has deserted from the crew of the mine-sweeping trawler which entered Humber after an expedition in which the British, and one of the trawlers was damaged. Before the men were permitted ashore, according to the account, they were notified that they must report back for duty at certain hours. They asked time for rest, but the Hamburg Commandant refused, whereupon 150 men declined to obey orders. An hour later a lieutenant and two other officers arrived and ordered the men to return to their quarters. They refused the lieutenant's orders and the men and struck two British officers. The despatch continues, he was thrown into the water and left to drown. The Commandant who had previously despatched a motor boat carrying two machine guns, which were fired into the crowd of sailors, was shot and wounded. Thirty others were arrested and sent to the terms of imprisonment varying from five to twenty years.

SESSION OF ALSACE-LORRAINE

BERLIN, Jan. 25. The four first points in President Wilson's speech respecting which the German Foreign Minister and Count von Hertling said an agreement could be reached without difficulty related to the abolition of the diplomatic and free navigation of the seas outside territorial waters, subject of internal laws and removal of economic barriers and the establishment of equal trade conditions among nations and the reduction of armaments. The fifth point in which the Chancellor said difficulties would be met with related to impartial adjustment of colonial claims based upon the principle that the interests of the population concerned must have equal weight with the claims of the Government whose title is to be determined. The Chancellor declared that Germany did not wish negotiations with Alsace-Lorraine, is the answer to Lloyd George's demand that these negotiations must be permitted to decide their own fate, and President Wilson's expressed statement in the fourth point that the wrong done to France in 1871 in the matter of Alsace-Lorraine should be righted. The German Premier appears to support President Wilson's declaration regarding the freedom of the seas, he passes without comment over the very important condition in Wilson's statement which denies such freedom to nations whose acts require punishment by other nations. This condition was expressly framed in case of a country like Germany, which brings on an unjust war and therefore denies Hertling's demand for free navigation during the war, as well as in peace. The German Premier's concise statement that the question of Russian evacuation concerns only Germany and Russia, is in direct conflict with President Wilson's sympathetic expression with regard to Russia, as well as his previous demands that the people of occupied territories may arrange their own future.

WARNS THIS CAPTAIN THAT THE KIDNERS WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS PAINS AND ACHES—Freed of Pain and Suffering by a Well-Known Medicine.

Hereford, Que., January 11th.—Captain Peabody is well known all through this section, and his cure by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills has aroused great interest in this great medicine. The Captain had been suffering for a long time, and could never get any treatment to afford lasting relief until he began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Captain A. Peabody, Hereford, Que., writes:—"For years I suffered from indigestion, rheumatism and neuralgia. Lightning-like pains would shoot all through my body, and I also had severe pains over my left kidney and through the hips. I doctored for years and tried all kinds of remedies, but the only result was money spent without relief. At last I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac of his Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them. One box made such a change that I sent for five more. Before I had finished them the pains in my kidneys and hips had disappeared, and I was clear of those sharp shooting pains through the body. I still take these Pills occasionally to keep my bowels regular, and would not be without them, as I have them to thank for my cure. I can also speak highly of Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder and Linseed and Turpentine. The former cured me of catarrh in the head, which caused frequent headaches. I am completely cured of this now, and breathe freely as when a boy. The Linseed and Turpentine proved of great benefit for a bad cough which bothered me continually for three winters. Last winter I took one bottle of the Linseed and Turpentine, and have not been bothered with a cough since. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Don't be talked into accepting anything said to be just as good. Imitations and substitutes only disappoint."

FRENCH COMMENT.

PARIS, Jan. 25. The comments in the French Press to-day on the speeches of Count Czernin, the Austrian Foreign Minister, and Count von Hertling, the German Chancellor, vary. Some papers consider the speeches mere bluff or brain stuffing, while others see in the words of the German and Austrian statesmen a genuine advance toward peace. In the latter category is Gustave Hervé's "Victoire," which says the Austrian reply to Wilson is certain braggadocio which will deceive nobody. Famine strikers in Austria have opened the area of bargaining, it is now the turn of diplomacy. The Le Journal says that Czernin in addressing a public which is openly manifesting its war weariness and is speaking in the name of a power which having obtained what it could expect, namely, Russian Balkan Slavs and the dislocation of Russia, naturally hopes for prompt liquidation. Hertling, on the contrary, says the Journal, is the champion of an empire which hasn't obtained a result proportionate to its efforts, still less its ambitions, and which hesitates as to means by which to attain its ambitions, and which places its cravings for hegemony above the sufferings of war. Consequently, continues the paper, it was impossible for the two statesmen to avoid these striking dissonances. All their skill was confined to maintaining harmony on broad principles, that peace is possible in the East if the Russians admit they have been beaten and impossible in the West and in the near east without ridding Bismarck's life work. Such is the conclusion both of the soft-voiced Czernin and the reserved Hertling.

ARAB ACTIVITY ANTICIPATED.

LONDON, Jan. 25. Arab activity against the Turks in the Palestine theatre of war is expected here to show considerable results during the next few months. The German peace offer at Brest-Litovsk is taken by students of eastern affairs to indicate Germany's recognition of the importance of the British threat in the east, in fact it has been stated that the military importance of the eastern victory is far more generally recognized in Germany than England or America. Germany's peace efforts are regarded by specialists in eastern affairs as an effort to draw out of an economic and commercial strangulation which is threatened by the British success in cutting the Berlin to Bagdad route.

CONSIDERING REPLIES.

LONDON, Jan. 25. The first impression created here by summaries of the replies of Count Hertling and Count Czernin to Premier Lloyd-George and President Wilson is that the Austrian view-point shows signs of independence and doesn't follow the German policy in several respects. On the vital question of Belgium the German Chancellor's statement is considered so indefinite it might be construed to give Czernin's proposal that peace negotiations should be permitted to cover their own fate, and President Wilson's expressed statement in the fourth point that the wrong done to France in 1871 in the matter of Alsace-Lorraine should be righted. The German Premier appears to support President Wilson's declaration regarding the freedom of the seas, he passes without comment over the very important condition in Wilson's statement which denies such freedom to nations whose acts require punishment by other nations. This condition was expressly framed in case of a country like Germany, which brings on an unjust war and therefore denies Hertling's demand for free navigation during the war, as well as in peace. The German Premier's concise statement that the question of Russian evacuation concerns only Germany and Russia, is in direct conflict with President Wilson's sympathetic expression with regard to Russia, as well as his previous demands that the people of occupied territories may arrange their own future.

NO INTERFERENCE WITH MILITARY LEADERS.

MONTREAL, Jan. 25. Discussing the contention made by Col. Repington that Haig's plans had been set aside by the British War Cabinet, Sir Frederick Smith to-day told the Canadian Club that in his judgment the military authorities had the full confidence of the British administration and that they had been allowed a freer hand than had ever before been given to soldiers in any war in which the country had taken part. Sir Frederick said the military authorities have during the two years he had been a member of the government been complete masters of the war. During that period no civilian had interfered, nor as far as he knew had attempted to interfere with the operations of the soldiers. Sir Frederick said he had made his statements in regard to the criticisms of Col. Repington after deliberately selecting his language.

OVERWHELMED BY CYCLONE.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Jan. 25. The town of Mackay, Queensland, has been overwhelmed by a cyclone, which produced a tidal wave and flood conditions. A heavy loss of life is feared, and fourteen bodies already have been recovered. The property damage was heavy, especially to stocks of sugar, of which more than $3,000,000 worth was stored in the town. The State authorities are arranging for relief measures. McKay, a seaport of Queensland, lies on the southern bank of Pioneer River. It is situated in a sugar growing region, and is the port of outlet for important gold and copper fields. It has a population of approximately 5,000 by the latest available census.

LONDON, Jan. 25. Some of the Ambassadors at Petrograd are reported to be conferring with reference to the formal acknowledgments by their Governments of the Bolshevick Government. It is not stated which Ambassadors are concerned, and there is no indication as to the decision. The Russian National Commissioners are reported to have received the reply of Great Britain to their enquiry regarding the arrival of a British cruiser at Vladivostok. Although the British explanation wasn't wholly satisfactory, it was regarded as acceptable, and the fact that the reply was addressed to the Commissioners, made a good impression.

LONDON, Jan. 25. A Daily News message from Petrograd quotes Ensign Krymlin, the Bolshevick Commander in Chief, as having said in a speech, there is no help for us except from ourselves.

Our allies care nothing about our revolution. When they heard we were breaking off peace negotiations and forming an army, they pricked up their ears and thought we could be useful to them again. First an American officer, then a British, and then a French officer came. We were asked whether the army would fight. I said we hoped so. Then they asked about money. They were willing to pay us for fighting for our revolution, thinking we would be useful to them, but we shall not be cannon fodder in order that the Allied Imperialists may celebrate victory. We are against the whole world. We shall fight for the revolution and revolution alone.

MORE WARLIKE THAN PACIFIC.

LONDON, Jan. 25. Chancellor Von Hertling's speech was characterized to-day by Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade in a statement to the Associated Press as a very warlike and certainly not a peace speech.

He added that his speech has been dictated by Hindenburg and Ludendorff and contained no declaration of policy regarding Belgium, which he always looked to as a reality of any proposals from the other side. He had not read the speech of Foreign Minister Czernin therefore he couldn't comment upon it.

Milady's Boudoir.

NERVES AND MOODS.

It is absurd and very uncomfortable for other persons, for one to indulge publicly in moods. Almost every woman has moments when she could scream from sheer irritability, but will power to control these moments should be exercised to the extreme of determination. It is very necessary to learn how to rest properly to overcome moods. Do not think that change of occupation is rest for there is no greater delusion. To acquire perfect rest, settle yourself in a corner, arrange your feet and arms and, indeed, your whole body, until you feel comfortable from head to foot.

Sit in this position for five minutes motionless.

Don't do anything but take long, chest deepening breaths. Whether you close your eyes or not make no difference, but don't move. At the end of five minutes you will feel much rested. If possible do this four or five times a day.

The nervous woman who feels inclined to scream if the door bangs or something drops suddenly and the girl who cannot help being irritable, needs five minutes of absolute relaxation at least twice a day in a dark room.

On nervous days, when you feel like flying out of the window, try this. Stand erect hands clasped in front and head bowed and expel all the air from the lungs. While inhaling deeply through the nostrils, center the thoughts on perfect peace. This exercise will, in a few moments, cause the nervous feeling to completely subside and, incidentally, it is a fine exercise for reducing a double chin.

Hockey Notes.

Secretary J. Tobin, of the St. John's Hockey League, wired Mr. T. Winter, of the King's College hockeyists, last night stating that arrangements had been made to play a series of three games commencing on Monday, Feb. 18th.

The visitors are expected to arrive on Saturday, the 18th, and on Sunday will rest up after the journey. It is not likely that the local teams will get down to practice this week. However next week will see them hard at work.

It generally takes about a fortnight for the average puck chaser to get in form, and as the visitors are due in a few weeks we should meet them with a strong combination.

Gerald St. John who travelled the ice with much success, for a Halifax team will line up with the Terra Novas.

Entertainment at Waterford Hall.

On Thursday evening the inviolated soldiers at Waterford Hall were treated to an enjoyable entertainment by a number of young ladies from the city. The programme consisted of songs by Misses Ryan, M. Dunfield; recitation, Miss M. Emerson, and a dance by Misses Joan Rendell and Lois Reid.

A feature of the evening was the farce entitled "Such is Fame," the principal characters were represented by Misses Doyle, W. Hayward, M. Ryan and Ruth Emerson.

The inviolated heroes greatly enjoyed the entertainment and at the close gave three ringing cheers for the performers.

The Real Question.

"Punch" not so long ago published a humorous "How to become" series telling its readers the surest and quickest path to any position in life, from bootblack to Privy Councillor, and concluded it with a bit of advice on "How to become an idiot," an ambition to be achieved by the simple process of "reading all the newspapers." This was a good joke in London. If it were made in St. John's to-day, we think a careful explanation that it was intended to be humorous would be necessary to save the maker from the frequent fate of his kind and being taken seriously. The recipe would not need to be followed in full: instead of reading all the newspapers, a few successive editions of the Advocate, provided they were read with earnestness and in all sincerity, ought to be sufficient to reduce the reader to a state bordering on "insanity." The proviso, however, is the saving clause. No one reads the Advocate seriously. None the less, our people not being deficient in a sense of humour, it makes enjoyable reading. We can imagine nothing happier, for instance, than the coincidence by which yesterday the Advocate extolled highly the soundness of the Savings Bank and the other local banks and deprecated endeavours to destroy the people's confidence in them, while our correspondent "Vigilance" recalled Mr. Coaker's attempt, which more than partially succeeded, to do that very thing a few years ago. It is little wonder that our friends of the Herald and Advocate discourage the back-file practice.

In the same way we must believe it is this saving sense of humour that preserves their sanity to those who are interested in the political situation. Between disputes over A's past and the purely private skeletons that may or may not repose in his cupboards, and quarrels about his political record and aspirations, what C did 1890 and what he should have done in March, 1902, and the rest of the other interesting but slightly disconnected subjects which are filling columns of the local press, we could not blame the public if it felt a little bewildered and held its head between both hands. We have no concern for it, however. It has had the same experience before and we believe enjoys it up to a certain point. Above all, it is thoroughly acquainted with that lusus natural, the red herring, and is not disturbed by it. The only danger in all the irrelevant discussion and argument is that the real question, the only point that is of importance, will be engulfed by it and lost to sight. That question is as to the true nature and tendencies of the Government at present in power. It is the only one of vital import to the country; but it is of very vital import indeed.

Its defenders call the Government a National one. It is no such thing.

The Menace to the Country.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Sir,—I said yesterday that Mr. Coaker, in bringing about a run on the Newfoundland Savings Bank in the year 1913, displayed "the folly and dim stupidity and baseness" of the Anarchist; that he very nearly succeeded in causing a panic amongst the depositors in that poor man's institution, and that it was only the prompt, patriotic conduct of Sir Robert Bond that averted a public calamity. This was only one manifestation of "the methods and principles of the Anarchist" with which I charged Mr. Coaker in my letter to your paper under date the 10th instant. Let me state one or two more. About the same time as the Savings Bank affair, Mr. Coaker convened a meeting of fishermen in the British Hall, hundreds of them being then in town from the Northern Outports. It was not a public meeting. It was semi-private, being for fishermen alone. To this meeting he invited the leaders of the Liberal Party, and Mr. James M. Kent, and Dr. Lloyd accepted the invitation, Sir Robt. Bond was not present, but, I am aware, a full report of what took place was furnished to him by his trusty and tried first Lieutenant, Mr. Kent. I am also aware that what was reported to him materially influenced him in severing his connection with the party, and it formed one of "other reasons," set out in Sir Robert's letter of resignation, for his retiring from public life in 1914. It will be remembered that for months prior to the General Election of 1913 Mr. Coaker, through the medium of his "official organ," had been violently assailing the Government, and Governor Williams, in respect to the retention in the Executive Council of certain persons who had been rejected by the people at the polls. This matter formed the text upon which Mr. Coaker addressed the fishermen convened in the British Hall, and, in the course of a violent diatribe he declared that unless the Government complied with his demand he would call upon the fishermen of the North to shoulder their guns, and follow him to the Colonial Building and Government House and enforce his demands. If this statement should catch the eye of His Excellency the Governor, and he should have any doubt as to its reliability he will be able to verify it by inquiring of Dr. Lloyd, and, if that gentleman's memory should prove to be defective I am certain Mr. Justice Kent will verify it. I know what was said, and horror he regarded the incident, and how very gallant he felt it to be connected in public life with such an element. Although he became the leader of a joint Opposition in the House of Assembly, up to the very day before he dropped out of politics to fill the high office of a Judge of the Supreme Court, he kept himself aloof from all entangling engagements with the Coaker faction, and refused to be a party to the merging of the Liberal Party into that of the Coakerites. Further, he was never a party to the negotiations put forward by Mr. Coaker for a Coalition Government, having refused absolutely to have anything to do with that proposal. The action of Sir Robert Bond with regard to the matter brought under his notice by Mr. Kent was both pronounced and drastic. His resignation was made public almost immediately after, and in his published letter he said, "While I was prepared to associate myself with the F. P. U. in a respectful protest against the violation of a Constitutional right or practice, I cannot permit myself to be connected, however remotely, with accompanying threats of violence. As the Opposition party is at present constituted, it would be exceedingly difficult for me to combat a charge of joint responsibility for those political activities of the President of the F. P. U." And he resigned, not only the leadership of the party but his seat in the House of Assembly, rather than even "remotely" be connected with such a disloyal and violent and dangerous element. Subsequent to this we had Mr. Coaker displaying similar anarchist "methods and principles" in relation to the private, business of one of our mercantile firms,—Bowring Brothers. Because that firm decided to continue in its employ a sealing master who was objectionable to Mr. Coaker and certain of his dupes, he, through the medium of his "official organ," threatened, with the aid of the Union fishermen to exercise force to compel the Messrs. Bowring to dismiss their servant. I have referred to these matters to prove the truth of my assertion that Mr. Coaker's methods and principles are precisely those of an Anarchist, and also to indicate the character of the individual who, through the connivance of Sir Edward Morris, and recommendation of Dr. Lloyd, has been accepted as a fit and proper person to exercise the high and responsible functions of a Minister of the Crown. If anything is calculated to encourage disloyalty and disorder in this community it is the recognition of such men for positions of honour and trust. Some people may say that the incidents I have related are but the blustering ebulliences, the stock weapons of the demagogue. I will admit that they resemble somewhat the thrustings of the "Mad Mullah"; but, that notorious character had such a dangerous influence with his followers that he had to be got rid of in the interest of peace, and progress. And the "Mad Mullah" of Newfoundland politics must be curbed, before he does greater mischief. The Executive Council to-day is a reproach and a scandal. It contains the very worst elements of the Morris Government, and such other elements as cannot possibly command the respect and confidence of the public.

Yours truly,
VIGILANCE.

Anniversary of Burns.

CELEBRATED AT ST. ANDREW'S ASSOCIATION.
The largest number of members on record was present at the Celebration of Burns' Night at St. Andrew's Association last night. The President, Mr. John Browning, presided, and an excellent programme was rendered consisting of songs by Mrs. King, Miss Ryan, Capt. Campbell, A.D.C. to His Excellency the Governor; instrumental selections by Messrs. Deveaux and Vavasour, and a recitation by Miss Minnie McLean. Rev. Gordon Dickie, M.A., delivered a very able address on Bobbie Burns, which won the admiration of all. Refreshments were served during the evening by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The celebration, which was a most enjoyable event, concluded with a dance.

At the Casino.

The W. S. Harkins began their season in the Casino last night with the farce comedy "It Pays to Advertise." The attendance was one of the largest and a keen interest was evidenced as the different situations developed. The story demonstrated, as the title would suggest, the power of advertising; a business that seemed absolutely hopeless, not assets, but thousands of dollars liabilities. Sing Sing looking the principals in the face, with nothing but a trade mark to their credit, through advertising was able to sell out 49 per cent. of their trade mark for the sum of five hundred thousand dollars. Mr. Joseph Mann acted as Cyrus Martin, the old conservative business man, who thought the only way to make money was through method, and Mr. Clay acted as Rodney Martin, his son, who was forced into business by the sweet tenographer in his father's office, and who promised to marry him if he made the start, was all that could be desired. Miss Davis acted as stenographer. Mr. Joseph Selman acted the part of advertising manager in a mighty clever manner. Miss Eugene DuBois, Miss Lois Perkins, Miss Lillian Worth, and Messrs. Alderson, Newson and Clark made up the balance of the cast and all performed in their different roles in a capable manner. No doubt the advertising managers of our business community will see this excellent comedy. "It Pays to Advertise" is playing again this afternoon.

Magistrate's Court.

Yesterday a 14 year old girl was before the Magistrate charged with obtaining money under false pretences. She pleaded guilty and was remanded for a week.
This morning a business man was before court charged with a violation of the Municipal regulations (falling to clear snow from the sidewalk in front of his building on Water St.). He was fined $1 and costs.

"Roll of Honour."

St. John's, N.F., Jan. 25th, 1918.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—A few Sundays ago, on entering one of our City Churches, the first thing that caught my eye, hanging on the wall of the vestibule, was a "Roll of Honour" with the names of over one hundred young men belonging to that congregation, several of whom have paid the Supreme Sacrifice; a few have returned to St. John's on furlough; others are still fighting for you and for me. Many of these young men I knew personally.
Last night we had the pleasure of attending the weekly debate of the Methodist College Literary Institute. We have no hesitation in saying that it is a long time since we spent a more interesting and pleasant evening. The debate—"Is an Income Tax along Canadian lines preferable to the War Profits Bill passed by the Legislature during the Summer Session?"—there were over fifty members attending last night's debate. The leaders on both sides and their supporters were well fortified with good, sound and practical arguments. On the vote being counted by the Secretary, the negative leaders found their side carried by a majority sufficiently large to defeat the affirmative. So far as the M.C.L.I. are concerned, by their vote last night, they support the Government in the War Profits Bill. We observed in looking over the syllabus for the Fifty-first Session, the debate scheduled for February 14th should prove a very interesting one, viz.:
"Resolved that at this Session of the Legislature the Government should enact an Eight-hour day for all employees of the Civil Service, Factories, Mines, Mills and Mercantile Establishments."
At no period during the past half century did the members of the Methodist College Literary Institute discuss a subject as the above, fraught with greater importance to the national well-being of every Commercial and Industrial worker of this Colony. We look forward with much pleasure to listen to the above debate, and predict a large attendance and good speeches. From the reception which we received last evening from the chairman and members, it is quite evident that strangers are cordially welcomed. Young men who are eligible for membership should join without delay. We consider it a great honor to belong to such a debating society.
I am not aware of any organization of a literary nature that has had such a brilliant career as the M.C.L.I., who, this year, celebrates its Fifty-first birthday. There is no Institute of its kind that has produced more and finer speakers in St. John's than the Nursery of the Methodist College Literary Institute. We wish it a continued success.

"Roll of Honor."

The Roll of Honor of the M.C.L.I. contains forty names, who were prominent and active members before enlisting to serve their King and Country. Ten of these young men have paid the Debt. We hope, at an early date to see hung upon the wall the photographs of the heroic dead, and in this slight way ease the dark cloud which hangs with a greater halo of honor. In looking over the list of these names I could not help thinking of the words:

The living know that they must die; But all the dead forgotten lie: Their memory and their name is gone, Alike unknowing and unknown.

Their hatred and their love is lost, Their envy buried in the dust; They have no share in all that's done Beneath the circuit of the sun.

"Army and Navy and Frontiersmen."

In order to have a complete roll of honor, we humbly suggest to the Officers of the Chubasco's Brigade, Catholic Cadet Corps, Methodist Guards, Newfoundland Highlanders, and every Brigade throughout the country, to make as complete a collection as possible of the Boys' photographs, who have enlisted and lost

"Roll of Honour."

St. John's, N.F.,

There were over fifty members attending last night's debate. The leaders on both sides and their supporters were well fortified with good, sound and practical arguments. On the vote being counted by the Secretary, the negative leaders found their side carried by a majority sufficiently large to defeat the affirmative. There is no Institute of its kind that has produced more and finer speakers in St. John's than the Nursery of the Methodist College Literary Institute. We wish it a continued success.

"Roll of Honour."
The Roll of Honour of the M.C.L.I. contains forty names, who were prominent and active members before enlisting to serve their King and Country. Ten of these young men have paid the Debt. We hope, at an early date to see hung upon the wall the photographs of the heroic dead, and in this slight way ease the dark cloud shrouded with a greater halo of honor.

In looking over the list of these names I could not help thinking of the words:

"The living know that they must die; But all the dead forgotten lie: Their memory and their name is gone, Alas unknown and unknown."

"Army and Navy and Frontiersmen."
In order to have a complete roll of Honour, we humbly suggest to the Officers of the Church Lads' Brigade, Catholic Cadet Corps, Methodist Guards, Newfoundland Highlanders, every Brigade throughout the country, to make as complete a collection as possible of the Boys' photographs, who have enlisted and lost their lives in the greatest War the world has ever known, and have them hung in the building, this to apply to the Frontiersmen, Army and Navy. We also make the same suggestion to those in connection with all our City Churches, of all denominations in the Colony—to make a similar collection of photographs of the young men who belonged to the different Churches. In our opinion the names of a Roll of Honour is not complete without the photographs of the boys. Let all Societies and Clubs in the country do the same thing.

Relentless War.
In times of peace it is said "the young may die," but in these strenuous days man's ingenuity is engaged in devising fiendish contrivances, whereby our youths are sacrificed on the altar of Liberty, and we wonder when the scene will change. The era of the World-wide peace still seems afar off, if it ever will evolve under the spirit of Brotherhood, created by the devastations and horrors of War permeate all sections of humanity without sorrow, sympathy seldom emerge from its shell of selfishness, and the War, dripping with the heart blood of stricken parents and friends, has, at least, cracked the outer crust, and human nature appears in its real garb. Our young men, some of them only lads of 17 years, have paid forfeit with their lives in the World-wide struggle for Freedom, and in the golden era of peace their parents, relatives and friends have but a memory to conjure with. It ought to impel the spirit of the true man and woman to step forward, grip firmly and sympathetically the hands of near and dear friends, and soothe the aching hearts. Family after family, all over the country, have eaten the same bitter fruit, and the experience through which many have passed must bind them closer and closer to one another and sweeten the gall of the future. We are glad to learn that the Knights of Columbus are making a collection of photographs of all the members who took part in this fearful War. We hope the B.I.S., Star and other kindred Societies will do likewise.

What is it all?
What is it all when all is told, This ceaseless tolling for fame or gold, The fleeting joy or bitter tears? We are only here a few short years; Nothing our own but the silent past; Loving or hating, nothing can last. Each pathway leads to the silent fold. Oh! What is it all when all is told? What is it all? A grassy mound, Where day or night there is never a sound. Save the soft low murmur of the passing breeze, As it lovingly rustles the silent trees, Or a thoughtful friend with whispered prayer, May sometimes break the stillness there. Then hurry away from the gloom and cold. Oh! What is it all when all is told? What is it all? Just passing through—A cross for me and a cross for you. Ours seem heavy while others seem light. But God in the end makes all things right; He 'tempers the wind' with such loving care, He knows the burden that each can bear. Then changes life's gray into heavenly gold. Ah! That is all when all is told.

If we cannot have the substance—we can retain the shadow.
Yours sincerely,
JOHN ANDERSON.

Dr. Tait Lectures to N. L. W. A.

The lecture given by Dr. J. S. Tait to the N. L. W. A. last night was enjoyed by the largest attendance on record. Vice-President Giles acted as Chairman, and the lecturer then took for his subject: "Organisation, its Object and Aims" gave a very interesting discourse which lasted two hours. He dealt with the conditions under which the working classes in the past had worked, the great desire for improvement and the consequent formation of unions. These at the present time had become influential, politically and as a consequence have been of very great benefit. The relationship of capital and labour was dealt with in detail and the lecturer favoured the eight hour day. Dr. Tait thought the Association had a great field before them and particularly as many labourers needed the assistance of their children to live. If children are obliged to work at an early age, it means that their schooling is neglected and consequently an illiterate people will be the future generation. He felt that the idea of a Department of Labor was a good one as well as a great necessity, as the State owes it to her able-bodied men to provide them with work and thus assist in the production of work. The doctor then dwelt upon the question of strikes and closed shops which he thought could be beneficial to the public as well as a danger, as seen in the driving up of prices unnecessarily. The departments which should be controlled by the Government he enumerated as follows: Libraries, hospitals, police and fire departments, slaughter houses, street railways, water, gas and electric lighting system, docks and others all of which could be sources of revenue and consequently would bring about a decrease in taxes.

The Doctor Did Not Do Her Lasting Good.

SO MRS. JOS. ROGER USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. Popular New Brunswick Teacher Tells What Splendid Results She Got From Dodd's Kidney Pills. Elm Tree, Gloucester Co., N.B., Jan. 25th. (Special).—"When the doctor I consulted failed to do me any lasting good I decided that my kidneys were the root of my trouble, and made up my mind to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. "You may judge of the results when I tell you that I have not lost a day's work as teacher during the past year." That is the statement of Mrs. Jos. Roger, the well-known and popular teacher here. Just how ill she was before using Dodd's Kidney Pills is best told in her own words. "My trouble came from a strain," she says, "and I suffered for thirteen months. "Backache, heart sufferings, sciatica, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, and falling memory were among my symptoms. "I took 12 boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills in all, and I can say for them that they have done me all that was claimed for them." If you have any of the symptoms that troubled Mrs. Roger, ask your neighbors if Dodd's Pills are not the remedy you are looking for.

Finger Exercises.

By RUTH CAMERON

RUTH CAMERON

There is a certain dream which everyone I have ever interviewed on the subject—and for the fun of the thing I have asked several people,—has had. Myself, I have had it not once or twice but just about once in so often. The dream is that all dreams express subconscious fear or desire. There is no question which this expresses.

Why Do We Hate School?

The dream came again the other night and started me to wondering why we hate school so and if something couldn't be done about it. It isn't wholly because its hard work. I've worked infinitely harder at times since I left school than I ever dreamed of working in school.

And never, even in college have I concentrated as I sometimes concentrate now. I was correcting some proof the other night in the waiting room of a shop where I was to meet a friend. After I had finished it I sprang up, started to go to the mail box to mail it and became conscious of someone at my elbow. "Well," said my friend's voice, "I've been sitting there about a foot from your nose for the last ten minutes and I think it's about time you noticed me." I had been sitting at a double desk and she had been sitting at the other half of it in front of me. Now I never worked like that in school.

The Work Seems Aimless.

It seems to me that the child's dislike of school comes rather from the fact that we don't seem to be working for any particular end there. The goal is too far off. We feel we are being set tasks just to amuse the teacher, not for any definite purpose. We aren't either really playing or really working.

There are some educators who are trying to combine school work with play in some miraculous way so that the child will learn without knowing it.

I Am Afraid School Must Always Be Monotonous.

Perhaps this will work out. But somehow I have my doubts. I am afraid that the foundation of an education must be ever laid, like the foundation of proficiency in any line, in definite effort. No one can ever become proficient in music without finger exercises. The multiplication table and the dates in history and the Latin declensions,—are they not the finger exercises of the mind?

And you know what Padorewaki said about his finger exercises,—that if he omitted them for a day he noticed it in his playing, if he omitted them for a week his audiences noticed it, and if for a month, the world noticed it. Surely we are lucky if we can leave ours behind in the school-room.

By HOWARD L. RANN, THE WISDOM TOOTH.

The wisdom tooth is a bright attempt on the part of Nature to be funny with man. Nature is constantly springing little jokes of this character, such as the double-headed calf and the three-legged hen, but when she invented the wisdom tooth she committed a thoughtless and inhuman act.

No good reason has ever been advanced why the wisdom tooth should be allowed to live and litter up the human mouth. It is one of the most poorly located teeth we have, occupying a seat in the nineteenth row of the third balcony, where it cannot bite into anything except the cheek of the wearer. One of the most disappointing experiences a hungry man can have is to aim his teeth at a porterhouse steak three inches thick and have his wisdom teeth miss the target entirely and maim a perfectly good cheek. Science has long asked why Nature did not locate the wisdom tooth near the main traveled road, instead of hanging it off to one side, where nothing but the inquisitive forefinger of the dentist can get at it.

The wisdom tooth does not come with the rest of the set, but sits back and waits until the mouth has been completely filled with cavity-stricken molars, when it crowds into the end of the seat without any regard for the comfort of those next to it. A great many people do not cut their wisdom teeth until they get married, which teaches us that marriage should not be entered upon lightly.

Nobody is in favor of the wisdom teeth except members of the dental profession, who find it more profitable than buying laughing gas at eighty cents per 1,000 feet and feeding it to the patient at $9 per square yard. It requires more acrobatic ability to fill a cavity in a wisdom tooth than it does to dodge an action for breach of promise, hence our leading dental schools require their graduates to take lessons of some boneless courtshipist.

The wisdom tooth is like some human voices which are roaring up and down, seeking whom they may destroy. It should be extracted as soon as it gets noisy.

Games Help Fighters.

Soldiers at the Front Are Cheered by Play.

Lt.-Col. Percy Guthrie, commander of the Canadian Highlanders, wounded many times, and now back from the front, says that war is not all hell and hardship. "There's lots of fun over there," he said the other day, and denounces as part of German propaganda much of what we hear about the intolerable and unremitting suffering of the men in the Canadian army. Evidence on this point is also given by Captain David Fallon, M.C., late of the British and Australian armies, who writes in The New York Herald about the play side of the war. He says that the fighting is best done by the men who can take their games seriously, who laugh at death and make a joke of their sufferings. He tells of men deeply engrossed in card games when awaiting the signal to go over the top, of football games played with enemy aeroplanes circling overhead.

One of the most remarkable incidents of the war was surely that of the East Surrey regiment, which went over the top in the face of a rain of shrapnel on July 4, 1916, dribbling a football. This is the sort of spirit that is also exemplified, according to Captain Fallon, in the remarks the Tommies make to each other as they leave their trenches to charge. One often hears some wag shouting, "Keep in step! Left! Right! Left!" or "I had a good job and this is what I left it for"; "Keep your distance, Bill; I'm not your little bit of fluff." When a man falls someone is sure to say, "Poor old Tom, his day's work is done." As they pass a wounded man they shout, "Cheer up, old dear; I'll soon be joining you!" or maybe, "Keep a place for me in the next bed in the hospital." Running through the Boche trenches they will throw bombs while singing, "You Made Me Love You, I Didn't Want to Do It," and "Take My Compliments to Paralytic Bill." As Captain Fallon remarks: "Never can such spirits be beaten; such morale never can be destroyed."

Different, indeed, is the German morale. "I have never seen a smile on a Hun's face, have never heard a humorous remark from one of them," says Captain Fallon. Even when they are taken prisoners they bring their Kultur and their hostilities with them. After some very heavy fighting round the Ancre the writer ordered four Hun prisoners to pick up a sorely wounded British soldier and carry him in. They refused, saying, "We will not carry the English dog." What happened to them is not recorded, but those of us who are most humane will trust it was something swift and comparatively painless. On another occasion a Boche officer was captured, and one of the Tommies, seeing him looking down-hearted and hungry-looking, offered him some cigarettes. The officer knocked them out of his hand and spat in his face. Captain Fallon concludes this incident: "I never saw a quicker bayonet-thrust in all my life, and I have been in a few hand-to-hand melees myself."

Men must be cheerful to fight well, and one of the reasons why the men are regularly taken out of the trenches and sent back to rest is to give them a chance to laugh and be as foolish as they like. Just what kind of levity and foolishness the men require they will find out for themselves. Amateur theatricals are great favorites, and it is said that the men take women's roles with particular delight. Then there are foot-races, steepchases, obstacle races, races with gas masks, and catch-the-ring-on-the-bayonet races, the latter an improvised game probably suggested by the old merry-go-round and memories of the time when someone speared the brass ring and got a free ride. Some men prefer when they are back in the rest camps to devote their leisure to cultivating a little flower or vegetable garden. Others will dress dolls, carve figures out of wood, practice on a musical instrument, or model in clay. Whatever form of relaxation they prefer they go in for it wholeheartedly. The man who slacks at his work is unlikely to slack at his work.

It is an everyday occurrence to see men playing football over some recently captured territory, with the spectators madly cheering while shells whistle overhead. In one case while a boxing tournament was being held a bomb dropped and killed the principals in the bout and the referee. The others were for continuing until forbidden by their commander. Card games are particularly popular, and Captain Fallon says that you will find Tommy's favorite game of "House" in progress in the midst of a German "strafe," the players paying more attention to the banker than to the shells. By means of these games Tommy's souvenirs are likely to change hands very often, as captured helmets, iron crosses, and such like junk are the first thing wagered, cigarettes being reserved as the blue chips. It is plain that there is another side to war than the horrible side, and that it is not as bad as going to jail, for instance, where there is perfect safety and perfect monotony.

Gingham dresses are worn by the fashionable women who have gone south.

Striped gingham and smocking make an ideal morning dress for the wee tot.

Your Boys and Girls.

Perhaps your child seems indifferent to dirt. He would rather be in a mud-puddle than in the parlor any day. But if the parent will take the child to the proper place for removing soil and dirt and have the thing done without fuss and talk, the next time the child comes to the table in a dirty condition, the parent will simply have to give the sign for retiring to the bathroom and he will usually go at once. Better still, you might deprive the child of food and it will be long before he will associate the deprivation of the pleasure with dirty hands and he will remember to come to the table with them clean.

He cannot simply be charged with carelessness, or indifference or shamelessness. This means of control can be utilized at ten or twelve, but not at five or six or even eight years of age. Each age has its appropriate sort of appeal and this the parent must employ.

Shirt Flannels and Winceys have been difficult goods to get even at high prices, but we have managed to procure a fairly decent assortment of MEN'S FLANNEL and WINCEY SHIRTS at pretty decent prices.

If you want a bit of Red Flannel to wear on your "chest" these times, you've got to pay about $1.15 per yard for it. It takes about three and a half yards of Flannel to make a Shirt, and there is the cost of making. Now, do a little figuring. We offer—

MEN'S STRIPED WINCEY SHIRTS at $1.50 each
 MEN'S HEAVY GREY FLANNEL SHIRTS at $1.85 each
 MEN'S FINEST QUALITY STRIPED and GREY FLANNEL SHIRTS at $3.00 to $3.50 each.

These latter range in size from 14½ to 17¼ inch neckbands, and are made with detachable collars. Most of our other Shirts are made with collars attached.

We have a lot of other Work Shirts which we do not mention here as the quantities are small. Amongst them

A Big Seller is Our Men's Khaki Winceyette Shirts, only $1.35 each.

You will have to admit, on the present prices of materials, that our Shirt Prices are more than reasonable. But be warned, we can't do these prices for always, so buy now. We mention that we have

BOYS' STRIPED WINCEY AND FLANNELETTE SHIRTS, without collars; sizes 12 to 14.

THE MENACE OF THE EMPTY CRADLE,

(By Father Bernard Vaughan.)

WHERE IT IS, WHY IT IS, AND WHAT IS ITS CURE.

The object of this book is to recall his fellow-citizens to a sense of the ruinous decay which is sapping the foundations of this 'plot', this earth, this realm, this England, together with its Overseas Dominions. As Newfoundland is one of its Overseas Dominions, every citizen should read this very interesting and only too true book. Price 35c.; postage, 2c.
