Lendon, March 12.—The marquis Salisbury in addressing a meeting at Chelsea this evening in support of the conser vative candidates for members of parliament predicted a complete and early conservative victory. The conservative program, he said, was to appeal to the people on public business, especially on measures like the franchise bill, which sacrificed English the franchise bill th vative candidates for members of parlia- lady, who breathed a weary sigh of relief, on public business, especially on measures like the franchise bill, which sacrificed England and Scotland for Ireland. He urged a dissolution of parliament before any change was made in the franchise system, and declared the government's policy had aggravated and perpetuated depression in industry and trade, and caused low wages for the working classes. Radical attacks upon property would destroy the workingmen's means of livelihood. The Egyptian disasters were due to indecision arising from divided cabinet councils. He was opposed to the surrender of Khartoum, which he declared would be surrendering to barbarism what civilization had won. A resolution was adopted declaring that in view of the disasters arising from the government's policy an immediate dissolution of parliament is desirable.

Berlin, March 12.—Provincial corres pondence says the Lasker discussion is closed. The Germans agreed that it is no affair of parliaments to examine into the merits of foreign politicians and nations. The only intercourse should be through its supreme heads. The German Gazette attributes the fuss to the Berlin correspondent of the London Times, the policy of the editors of which paper, it says, is to stir up strife between Germany and other countries.

The result was what might have been expected. During the night before last one of the regulars noticed a man apparently loafing about the front of the building, and went for him. As the result of the altercation it turned out that the "loafer" established his identity as a "special" watchman, who for some reason had become incompetent to discharge his duty. He was subsequently dismissed from the military guard, but the incident shows the folly and danger of attempting to establish a special guard on the buildings without letting the regular caretakers know about it.

Temperance Reform.

There is no doubt that public opinion running in the direction of temperance Our drinking habits are undergoing reform Every day sees some advance made, sees some new proposition for reducing the evils of intemperance; we are nevertheless a long way from the goal of universal sobriety. Whether we shall ever reach it is a most point; we may however certainly approach it; the point of nearness depend ing on how we go about the task.

Just now we are trying in two legisla tures, the federal and provincial, to reduce the evils of the liquor trade by regulating it under stringent laws. We take it that be made for years to come. Suppression is, for the present, out of the question What we have to take care of is that our measures for regulation are well consid

But besides regulation of the traffic there is also another means that ought to be resorted to. If we can induce our drinkers to substitute beer and light wines for strong liquors such as whisky and brandy strong liquors such as whisky and brandy still greater headway can be made. This work of substitution is already a fact. A suggestion has been thrown out that might greatly assist it. Namely, let the liquor laws of all kinds, whether regulative like the control of the eggs received upon the laws of all kinds, whether regulative like the control of the eggs received upon the laws of all kinds, whether regulative like the control of the eggs received upon the laws of all kinds, whether regulative like the control of the eggs received upon the laws of all kinds, whether regulative like the control of the eggs received upon the laws of all kinds, whether regulative like the control of the eggs received upon the laws of all kinds, whether regulative like the city of Richmond. Even the brewers have apprehended the direction in which public opinion is running and they are conforming thereto. They are substituting lager beer for the stronger ales. More than this the brewers are getting ready to split with the distilling interest. They recognize that their business ought not to be taxed with the evils that flow from whisky drinking. distressed at his early summons. But they say that as the laws now are they are all in favor of the distiller and drinker of strong liquors. For instance wherever the Scott act is enforced the sale of beer, owing to its bulk, cannot be carried on illicitly, while the sales of whisky and gin increase. The distilled liquor is easily handled. What the brewers claim then is that the Scott act ought to be drink but allow beer and wines to remain. this whole question careful study are in favor of such discrimination. Mr. Hardy, the provincial secretary who has had so much practical insight into the matter, favors such a line of action.

Beer may be an evil, whisky may be an evil, but of the two beer is immeasurably the least.

Wheat From India-

The United States farmers, and these of Canada for that matter, begin to see a formidable competitor in supplying wheat in British India. The New York Times admits that this competition will be severely felt in a future not very remote. Fertile land, a teeming population, cheap labor—these elements of production exist to an extent hitherto but dimly recognized. All that is wanting is a system of cheap transportation from the interior to the sea-board. This has been begun, and slowly, but with increasing energy, is advancing, and opinion in commercial circles in England is being aroused mercial circles in England is being aroused to the necessity and the profit of making earnest efforts in that direction. Sooner letter that will be used and American the control of their newly found freedom, from the or later they will be made, and America must face the conditions of a new and strenuous struggle for the markets which large heart fore taken the greater part of The writer is not a member of the salhave heretofore taken the greater part of their exports. Ten years ago the Indian wheat exported was less than 400,000 hundredweight. In 1882 it was nearly 20,000,000 hundredweight, or 50 times as much. In the first six months of 1883 it was at a rate still greater, being nearly 16,000,000 hundred. tire from public life. I know nothing of weight. In four years, from 1878 to 1882, the authenticity of the rumor; but it is, it increased three-fold. Yet this remarkable increase in exports scarcely touches the actual wheat production. This is variously estimated at from 240,000,000 had no intention of resigning.

Even from its present supply, could it be got to market at a paying rate, India could spare third more than, the total average exports of wheat from the United States for the past five years. The key to the future lies with its possible production when a profit able market is offered. That is practically inlimited. There are districts already under cultivation capable of yielding millions of bushels of wheat, where a bountiful crop is regarded as a disaster, and to remit the land tax because good crops brought ruinously low prices. The central of yielding a food supply for 20,000,000 more people than they contain, and there wheat sells for 20 cents a bushel, for lack of means of transportation. A Dancing Salvationist

From the Kingston Whig.
On Friday Cap. W. Stacey, of London and an ex-member of the Kingston salvation army, arrived in the city. Capt. Hughes gave Capt Stacey charge of the meeting Sunday, and he created quite a sensation. Between the testimonies he "let himself out," striking all sorts of comical attitudes. Sometimes he would square himself as if preparing for a fight, closing his fists and whirling them around in an outlandish fashion. At other times e bobbed up and down as if he worked on springs or india rubber. The people were amused and laughed outright, and finally one could not tell whether he was in a place for worship or fun. The service be-came perfectly ridiculous.

the Mercer Matter Up Again-Busines Moving Slowly.

At the morning session of the house yes erday Mr. Hammell moved for an orde the house for a return of a statement of he total vaine of the Mercer estate, dis inguishing between real and persona roperty. A statement of all payments ade to Andrew Mercer, the younger, o a his behalf, on account thereof. Also all correspondence between the said Andrew Mercer, the younger, or his solicitor, and the attorney-general, or any memer or officer of the government since Jan.

that he could see whether Mercer, the younger, had been fairly treated. He understood that the annual income of $1500 interest on the $25,000 had not been paid. The young man was at present harassed by creditors, and as he had a wife and six children to support by the results of his own industry, he thought the house should not withhold the annuity granted him. Mr. Mowat was willing that the resolution should pass, and briefly defended his conduct towards the claimant tor the estates. He believed young Mercer had been treated in a liberal manner. He did not doubt that he was in debt. The young man would be in debt if he had half a million in his own right. He had squandered 30,000 in one year and seemell, Mr. Mowat added, sorrowfully, "to have no notion whatever of taking care of money." The annuity had been retained on account of the litigation, but would be paid regularly as soon as the question was definitely set-

Mr. Creighton had been seeking inspiration from blue books during Mr. Mowat's speech, and arose to demolish the arguments of his chief adversary. He believed it was a stain upon the escutcheon of Ontario that Mercer had been deprived of the money to which he was legally entitled. The government had acted in an inggardly manner towards young Mercer. He asked the attorney-general if he had taken out a license as a pawnbroker. When young Mercer had pawned his watch during his illness to meet creditor's claims, Mr. Mowat had lent him $200 to redeem it on the understanding that redeem it on the understanding that young Mercer was to return the chrono-

'He didn't return it," continued Mr. Creighton, "or the premier would still have been carrying on an illegal business as a pawnbroker.

The shame is not in the allusion; it is in the cause." A chorus of hisses here interrupted the speaker, who, however, continoed his attack, and wound up by asserting that Mr. Moreer's funiture at an auction sale and stored it in the parliament buildings.

The premier explained that he had done this at the request of young Mercer, and also asserted that judgment against the claimant would more than consume the arrears of annuity now in the hands of the government.

Lodgers are not kept at this station, and he was directed to Agnes street. With an effort he informed the sergeant in charge that he was very tired, and he would be obliged if they "Would send im up in a 'ansom." Neither of the half-dozen policemen standing around could get to the cabstand quick enough to get him the carriage. Even the telephone was too slow.

New Armory Wanted.

A new and larger armory is wanted for the accommodation of the different city. Mr. Fraser stated that if the young man —Every observer who walks the streets of a great city, and scans with intelligent eye the colorless faces of more than fifty per cent of the people he meets, can easily agree with us in the statement, that this age, which makes such drafts upon the working energies of the greater part of men in the intense pursuit of business, has destroyed in a proportionate degree the animal health and robust constitution. Nature, in this stage of exhaustion, cannot be restored of itself, but requires some stimulating tonic, to strengthen and keep the system in regular order, and in Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine, we have the exact remedy required. The peculiar operation of this medicine, in cases of goneral debility and nervous prostration, has undergone long and close observation, and it is believed it will never fall, if properly and judiciously administered.
